Vol. 27, No. 1 January 1, 1916 Price 10

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Woman with a Rose" (Essanay).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

— MUTUAL PROGRAM —

EDWIN THANHOUSER
PRESENTS

The BUBBLES in the GLASS

IN 3 ACTS

THE GENI OF GRAPE GRAPHICALLY DRAMA
WITH AN ALL-THANHOUSTAR CAST, INC

RELEASED
TUESDAY JAN 4

HARRIS GORD
THOS. A. CURRAN · K.
ETHEL JEWETT LORRAI
GEORGE MARLO · MORRIS FOSTER · MADELINE FAIRBANKS

STAGED by ERNEST WARDE

FALSTAFF COMEDIES

PALSTAFF FILMS

OPTIMISTIC ORIENTAL OCCULTS

Released in 1 Reel
Monday, January 3

Featuring RILEY CHAMBERLIN.

HILDA'S HUSKY HELPER

Released in 1 Reel
Thursday, January 6

With Louise Emerald Bates, Claude Cooper and Frances Keyes.

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

Henry B. Walthall

and

Edna Mayo

are presented in

"THE MISLEADING LADY"

In 5 acts.

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon from the great stage success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey.

Directed by Arthur Berthelet.

The story of the kidnapping of a bride and a cave-man wooing in modern society

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

To Be Discontinued

This Brand Name

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURES

This Brand Name

The Name

"Red Feather" Photo Plays

With This Trademark

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 1915

Will Be Substituted

This will give the Exhibitors of the Universal Program an opportunity to advertise the best features on the market (RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS) and in a way that will prevent the public from confusing them with the regular Universal Program Features. The standard of the "Red Feather Photoplays" will be high. They will be far superior to the average widely advertised 4 or 5-reel feature. "Red Feather Photoplays" will be released at a price that will give the Exhibitor the greatest chance he has ever had to improve his show, popularize his house and add greatly to his profits. Write or wire your Exchange for full particulars and releases immediately.

Universal Film Manufacturing Co

CARLE LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway - - New York

?

WHO'S BACK

Universal Film Manufacturing Co.

Carl Laemmle, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway, New York

Cheese Cake

No. 114, Straight from the shoulder talk by the President of the Universal Film Mfg. Co.

Reprinted from Moving Picture Weekly of Jan. 1. If you are not getting the M. P. Weekly regularly write the Editor, Universal Film Mfg. Co., 1600 Broadway, New York.

There was once a man who loved cheese cake. He ordered it whenever he went into a restaurant and he kept asking his wife to have it at home. Like a perfectly good wife she made it a point to have cheese cake in the house all the time. She finally got in the habit of serving it for every meal. The waiters in the restaurants used to speak of him as "Old Man Cheese Cake" and they always put cheese cake at his place whether he ordered it or not.

He was almost cheese caked to death. He got such an overdose of it that he couldn't stand the sight or sound or smell of cheese cake. One whiff of cheese cake used to give him nauseritis of the parallelopipedon. When he died, they brought a piece of cheese cake into the room and he got up and left his death bed in a high dudgeon, whatever that is.

Try the same stunt with your own favorite dish some time and it will work the same way, whether your favorite is ice cream, pickled whale oil, stuffed waffles, pate de goose livers, corn meal slush or plain potatoes boiled with their etons on. You can get an overdose of ANYTHING, no matter how good it may have seemed to you in the beginning.

That's the situation with regard to features just about now.

The exhibitors thought the public's favorite dish was features. So, instead of giving them one, two or three features a week, they gave them one every day and in some cases two a day. The dear old public liked it at first, but the revolt came just as I predicted it would.

The public stomach finally reached such a condition that it turned a Japanese flip at the very thought of seeing features ALL the time. And when the public flips up in the air, be careful that it doesn't land on top of you when it comes down again.

The natural antidote of too much feature is the UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, and the very fact that the exhibitors are flocking to the program fast and excitedly, simply proves all that I have said and predicted.

I believe that the big houses will always use SOME features. How many a week I can't say, but possibly one, two or three. The UNIVERSAL will probably make that many itself. The little house, however, has simply got to have a program and it must have the best program it can lay its hands on. This naturally means the UNIVERSAL AND NOTHING ELSE.

I'm already beginning to receive letters from exhibitors complaining that they can't get service from the Universal Exchanges, in certain towns because the opposition has "monopolized the Universal program." They've let their competitors beat them to it, so they call it a "monopoly." It's too bad. I'm sorry for exhibitors caught short of the market in this way, but heaven knows I warned them of what was coming. The rush for the Universal program is on in full blast. Are you going to grab it while the grabbing is good, or are you going to feed cheese cake to a public that is already cheese caked to death?

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK

Essanay

presents

ANN MURDOCK

and

RICHARD C. TRAVERS

in

"CAPTAIN JINKS of the Horse Marines"

in 5 acts.

A fantastic comedy by Clyde Fitch.

Adapted from the great stage success and directed by Fred E. Wright.

ANN MURDOCK

BOOK ESSANAY'S GREAT FEATURE SUCCESSES

"A DAUGHTER OF THE CITY"
(5 Acts)
With MARGUERITE CLAYTON and E. H. CALVERT

"THE ALSTER CASE"
(5 Acts)
With BRYANT WASHBURN, JOHN COSSAR, RUTH STONEHOUSE, ANNE LEIGH

"THE CRIMSON WING"
(6 Acts)
With E. H. CALVERT and RUTH STONEHOUSE

"THE RAVEN"
With HENRY B. WALTHALL and WARDA HOWARD

"IN THE PALACE OF THE KING"
(6 Acts)
With RICHARD C. TRAVERS, NELL CRAIG, ERNEST MAUPAIN, LILLIAN DREW, SYDNEY AINSWORTH and THOMAS COMMERFORD

"THE MAN TRAIL"
(6 Acts)
With RICHARD C. TRAVERS

"A BUNCH OF KEYS"
(5 Acts)
With JUNE KEITH, JOHN SLAVIN and WILLIAM BURRESS

"THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE"
(6 Acts)
With EDNA MAYO and BRYANT WASHBURN

"THE WHITE SISTER"
(6 Acts)
With VIOLA ALLEN and RICHARD C. TRAVERS

"THE SLIM PRINCESS"
(4 Acts)
With RUTH STONEHOUSE

"GRAUSTARK"
(6 Acts)

TRADE MARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

LOOK AT THEM
AND YOU WILL BOOK THEM

ESSANAY PHOTOPLAYS ARE ALL DISTINCTIVE

THE PLOTS ARE FASCINATING LOGICAL

THEY POSSESS AN INDIVIDUAL CHARM

REALISTIC IN ACTION ARTISTIC IN SETTINGS

Book the latest

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN
"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

IN 2 ACTS

★★★★★★

G. M. ANDERSON'S

next great drama is

"Her Lesson"

IN 2 ACTS

RELEASED JAN. 4

TRY THEM AND YOU WILL BE CONVINCED

"MILE-A-MINUTE MONTY"

Cartoon Laughs Jan. 5.

By LEON A SEARLE
the world famous cartoonist

"THE HOUSE OF REVELATION"

3-act drama Jan. 8

Presenting ELIZABETH BURBRIDGE and JOHN LORENZ

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

These Magazines Are Advertising Mary Page

Cosmopolitan
Ladies' World
McClure's
Harper's Bazar
Metropolitan
Vogue
Vanity Fair
McCall's Mother's Photoplay
Hearst's
Collier's
Leslie's
Sunset
Review of Reviews
Motion Picture Classic Motion Picture Magazine
Modern Priscilla
Pictorial Review

The Strange Case of
MARY PAGE
IS A STORY OF AN UNCONQUERABLE LOVE

The Exhibitor Who Books This Essanay Series Presents

HENRY WALTHALL
and EDNA MAYO

In a Powerful Feature
Every Week For Fifteen Weeks
No Series Before E'er Had a Cast Like This Gowns by Lady Duff Gordon (Lucile)

A Succession of Perfect Productions Backed by Nation Wide Advertising In Newspapers and Magazines

Essanay
"FIRST TO STANDARDIZE PHOTOPLAYS"
1333 Argyle Street, Chicago
George K. Spoor, President

PARAMOUNT

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

MARY PICKFORD

IN A REMARKABLE CHARACTER-IZATION,

"THE FOUNDLING"

IN FIVE PARTS, RELEASED JAN. 3RD.

PRODUCED BY THE

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director
EDWIN · S · PORTER, Treasurer and General Manager

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PROGRAM

THE SYMBOL OF SCREEN SUPREMACY

THE SIGN OF THE HIGHEST AND MOST CONSISTENT PHOTOPLAY STANDARD IN THE WORLD.

FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
507 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Canadian Distributors—
Famous Players
Film Service, Ltd., Calgary—
Montreal—Toronto

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PARAMOUNT

Jesse L. Lasky
presents
VALESKA SURATT in the spectacular photodrama
"THE IMMIGRANT"

In this extraordinary production Miss Suratt will make her debut as a Lasky star on the Paramount Program.

Released through PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION
DECEMBER 20th
Canadian Distributors,
Famous Players Film Service, (ltd)
Toronto, Montreal, Calgary.

LASKY

JESSE L. LASKY
120 West 41st Street,
Jesse L Lasky President Samuel Goldfish

PROGRAM

Lasky Productions and the Public

The name of LASKY in the world of motion pictures possesses the same suggestion of quality leadership that surrounds the noted names in literature and the arts.

The exhibition of LASKY productions in a theatre indicates that the exhibitor has a firm grasp on and a thorough understanding of the wishes and desires of his patrons.

The public knows that LASKY leads the world in perfect photoplay productions.

Thirty-six conclusive "arguments" to prove the statement are released every year on the

Paramount Program

and in Canada through

FAMOUS PLAYER'S FILM SERVICE, LTD.

LASKY

FEATURE PLAY Co Inc.

New York City

Treasurer Cecil B. DeMille Director General

Paramount Pictures

Oliver Morosco
Presents

Constance Collier

THE INTERNATIONALLY FAMOUS ACTRESS IN

"THE TONGUES OF MEN"

A SPARKLING DRAMA OF LOVE VERSUS DUTY

FROM THE WELL KNOWN PLAY

by

EDWARD CHILDS CARPENTER

PRODUCED BY

The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.

RELEASED
JANUARY 6TH
ON THE
PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Be sure to obtain the special music from your PARAMOUNT EXCHANGE. It will help your showing and if advertised, will attract more patrons

The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.

PUBLICITY OFFICE
222 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y.

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE LTD.
MONTREAL, TORONTO, CALGARY.

STUDIOS
201 NORTH OCCIDENTAL B'V'D
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Paramount

from the beginning to the present, has been characterized by conservative business methods. Its progress has been consistent and uninterrupted.

PARAMOUNT has larger plans mapped out—plans that mean benefit to the exhibitors and public as well as PARAMOUNT,—that is PARAMOUNT'S policy. These plans will develop and become established as have other PARAMOUNT plans.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
ONE HUNDRED and TEN WEST FORTIETH STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces
The first of the three-a-week

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

WILLIAM RUSSELL
· AND · CHARLOTTE BURTON
— IN —

The THOROUGHBRED

A Stirring Drama in Five Reels

RELEASED THE WEEK OF JAN. 17TH.

produced by American

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

Announces

For Release Week of Jan. 17th

An absorbing Play in Five Reels.....

WILLIAM CLIFFORD
· AND · MARGARET GIBSON
— IN —

The BAIT

.....A...

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE
DE LUXE EDITION

Book through your nearest Mutual Exchange

produced by Horsley

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces

WOLVES OF SOCIETY

A MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE
DE LUXE EDITION
THREE-A-WEEK

A POWERFUL SOCIOLOGICAL DRAMA IN FIVE REELS

Book through any Mutual Exchange

A Mutual Production

MUTUAL PROGRAM

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces

IN THE NAME OF THE LAW

A Powerful Feature Production in Three Reels Portraying the Attractive Star

GLADYS HULETTE

ONE OF THE THREE THREE REEL FEATURES RELEASED ON THE MUTUAL PROGRAM THE WEEK OF JAN. 11TH.

A Thanhouser Production

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION ANNOUNCES

A SENSATIONAL SCOOP!

FIGHTING FOR FRANCE

THE SAME WAR PICTURES THAT HAVE PLAYED TO PACKED HOUSES DURING THE LAST FEW WEEKS IN NEW YORK, CHICAGO BOSTON, SAN FRANCISCO AND LOS ANGELES. RELEASED JAN. 1ST TO EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE. PRESENTED BY OFFICIAL AUTHORITY OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT

FIVE REELS!

RELEASED JAN. 1ST

WIRE YOUR NEAREST MUTUAL EXCHANGE NOW FOR PRICES AND DATES . . .

MUTUAL PROGRAM

Slapsticks With A Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

An Innocent Crook

Laugh? Why, man, they'll roar when you show your patrons this side-splitting comedy. It's the latest "Vogue" featuring that new, eccentric comedian—

Sammy???

Released the Week of Jan. 3rd

Another "Vogue" Comedy

Sammy's Scandalous Scheme

Released the Week of Dec. 27th

"Vogue" comedies are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

Vogue Films, Inc.

Executives: Joseph H. Finn, Samuel S. Hutchinson.
Publicity Offices—222 S. State St.
Chicago, Illinois.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

The Gamble

A "Flying A" drama of the wheat fields. Forceful and picturesque. Two parts, featuring

HAROLD LOCKWOOD

May Allison William Stowell

Directed by Thomas Ricketts

RELEASE DATE, JANUARY 16th

Viviana

A two-part "Flying A" drama especially written with

VIVIAN RICH

Supported by GEORGE PERIOLAT and a special cast.

Directed by Reaves Eason

Release Date, January 10th

The Secret Wire

Two-part "Flying A" drama, with

HAROLD LOCKWOOD

May Allison William Stowell

Directed by Thomas Ricketts

Release Date, January 14th

Spider Barlow Meets Competition

Single reel "Flying A" comedy drama.

Winifred Greenwood Edward Coxen

George Field

Directed by Charles Bartlett

Release Date, January 14th

The First Quarrel

A "Beauty" comedy, with

Carol Halloway and John Sheehan

Directed by James Douglass

Released January 11th

Getting in Wrong

A "Beauty" comedy, with

Neva Gerber
Lucille Ward
William Carroll

Directed by Jack Dillon

Released January 15th

All "Flying A" and "Beauty" films are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

American Film Company, Inc.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, President

Chicago, Ill.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

WATER STUFF

She couldn't swim. She needed the five dollars, though, that are paid to moving picture "extra" girls, and so she jumped. She screamed as she leaped from the burning vessel. Then the deep, dark ocean waters closed over her flaxen curls. It's a "Mustang" three-reel subject from Charles E. Van Loan's famous "Buck Parvin and the Movies" series that millions read in The Saturday Evening Post. Book published by George H. Doran Company—a comedy that nearly ends in tragedy, with

"Art" Acord

Larry Peyton Dixie Stratton
Queenie Rosson Ashton Dearholt
Directed by William Bertram

Released Jan. 15th!

Two-Reel "Mustang" Drama

The Hills of Glory

Helene Rosson E. Forrest Taylor
Directed by William Bertram

Released Jan. 17th

All "Mustang" dramas are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

American Film Company, Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON
President
CHICAGO
ILLINOIS

MUTUAL SPE

SUC

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

AND now "The Girl and the Game" has proved itself the greatest success of the age. Thousands of theatres now have shown the first chapters of this railroad film novel. Tremendous crowds, crowds, crowds, have surged into theatres everywhere to view Helen Holmes in this new production of breath-taking thrills.

Everybody Everywhere Talks About This Railroad Novel

Helen Holmes' absolute fearlessness — her daring exploits — her expressive beauty — her beautiful gowns — are the talk of a million people, who are seeing the great picture and reading the wonderful story in the newspapers.

CIAL FEATURE

CESS!

The story of "The Girl and The Game" by Frank Hamilton Spearman, is appearing week by week, as the film is released, in more than 1,000 leading newspapers, including

New York World
Pittsburgh Press
Atlanta Constitution
Omaha Bee
Buffalo Courier
Indianapolis Star
Chicago Evening Post
Detroit Journal
Baltimore American
Boston Globe
Cincinnati Times-Star
San Francisco Chronicle
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Cleveland Leader
Philadelphia North American
Memphis Commercial Appeal
Milwaukee Sentinel
New Orleans Times-Picayune
Los Angeles Tribune
Dallas Journal
Seattle Post-Intelligencer

And One Thousand Others

No other film production ever has received one-half the newspaper co-operation that has been accorded "The Girl and the Game." The leading papers all over the United States are publishing this thrilling story.

15 Weeks of Stupendous Thrills! 15 Weeks of Big Profits!

"The Girl and the Game" consists of fifteen two-act chapters. One chapter to be released each week. Each separate chapter is a succession of great big THRILLS! Thrills that are logical! Thrills with a punch! One-half a million dollars has been expended to make these thrills the greatest ever—to make them pull the crowds to your theatre. Book "The Girl and the Game" RIGHT NOW — before it is too late.

For complete booking information apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of any Mutual Exchange in America, or to "The Girl and the Game" department of Mutual home office, New York City.

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Publicity Office: 222 South State Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

SPECIAL OFFER

To Exhibitors Who Have Not Booked

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

A Picturized Romantic Novel
By Roy L. McCardell

Now comes an offer so liberal that it is almost beyond belief—an offer only to those exhibitors who have not booked "The Diamond From The Sky." No special offer ever made to exhibitors equals or even approaches this one.

You must take advantage of this! And quick action is the thing! Tear out this coupon, fill it out and shoot it in to the Mutual home office. Full particulars will be sent to you at once. This offer lasts only a limited time. You must act now! Don't delay. It's a money-in-your-pocket proposition. Act!

Here's the Coupon! Send It In!

Mutual Film Corporation
71 West 23rd St., New York City

Gentlemen:—Please send at once full details of your special offer to exhibitors who have not booked "The Diamond From The Sky."

Name .....

City .....

State .....

Name of Theatre .....

Seating Capacity .....

Service Now Used .....

It is understood that this request incurs no obligation whatever on my part.

Now!

You exhibitors know the tremendous success of "The Diamond From The Sky." This special offer will amaze you. Send in the coupon NOW!

North American Film Corporation
JOHN R. FREULER, President
71 W. 23rd St., New York City

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL WEEKLY

The PALACE

America's Greatest Vaudeville Theater

SHOWS THE

MUTUAL WEEKLY

Because it is the BEST by Actual Comparison with all others

You Can

Give your Patrons the same Reel News of the world FIRST just as shown at the Palace Theater New York

Compare all motographic weekly programs and see how the Mutual Weekly leads. Haytian Revolutionary scenes were shown by the Mutual October 28th, the same historic incidents now offered two months later by another news reel.

The Palace Theatre is the Pride of the United Booking Office. Every number on the bill must be the Best. That's why it shows the Mutual Weekly.

For particulars visit or write any Mutual Branch.
Manufactured for the MUTUAL PROGRAM BY GAUMONT.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

Early forthcoming five reel productions to be released by David Horsley as Mutual Masterpictures, de luxe edition, are "The Bait" and "Vengeance Is Mine!"

The former features William Clifford and Betty Hart, supported by a cast of well known players, together with the Bostock animals, and is scheduled for release January 22.

"Vengeance Is Mine!" presents Crane Wilbur in a role that gives his abilities wide scope. An especially selected cast has been engaged for his support. "Vengeance Is Mine!" will be released January 31 instead of January 26, as previously announced.

In the making of these features there is brought into play the unparalleled equipment of the complete David Horsley studios; absorbing stories written by trained and high salaried scenario writers; the wide knowledge of technical experts; the stage craft efficiency of competent directors; the ability of many popular players and the thrilling performances of the matchless Bostock animals. The effect of such a combination is the production of Masterpictures, de luxe edition, not only in name but in fact.

In addition to the release of such features Mr. Horsley will release every Friday, as heretofore, one of the humorous single reel Cub Comedies featuring the funniest man in America, George Ovey.

Bookings on all these David Horsley productions to be had at Mutual Exchanges.

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

Far Sharper than a Serpent's Sting —

She sacrificed herself—this woman. She gave up all! Made of herself a martyr for the love of a man!

And then, he, too, spurned her. But far sharper than a serpent's sting is the ingratitude of man,—the failure to look behind the material things and see dazzling white, the glorious purity of a saintly wife and mother.

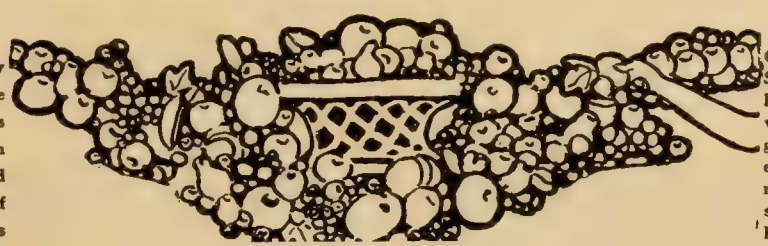
The New IVAN Success

Never has Ivan Abramson so clearly portrayed human emotions. Never has this Balzac of motion picturedom so mercilessly bared the soul of man and woman.

"Forbidden Fruit" is without a doubt the foremost picture of the year. Put aside its tremendous pictorial effects; put aside its splendid cast and you come down to the story which grips you even in its bare scenario form.

"Forbidden Fruit"

Once again Paula Shay makes her bow to the field and here she meets the opportunity which any actress would crave. Paula Shay is of the stuff that makes for headliners. She is of the first rank of film artists.



"She plucked—she ate, he too should share the shame"

Co-starring with Miss Shay is the celebrated Everett Butterfield, whose screen and legitimate stage successes place him high in rank. Supporting these stars are Minna Phillips, the "darling" of the stock companies, and James Cooley, versatile portrayer of social roles.

IVAN

Ivan Exchanges for Exhibitors' Reference

New England—E. W. Lynch Enterprises, Worcester, Mass.
New York and Northern New Jersey—Merit Film Corp., 110 W. 40th St., N. Y.
West Pennsylvania, West Virginia—Liberty Film Renting Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Ohio—Standard Film Service Co., Cleveland and Cincinnati.
Michigan—Standard Film Service Co., Detroit.
Illinois, Indiana, Southern Wisconsin, Kentucky—General Feature Film Co., Chicago, Ill.
Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Northern Wisconsin—Zenith Feature Film Co., Duluth, Minn.
Pacific Coast—All Star Features Distributors, San Francisco and Los Angeles.
Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana—Hubb City Film Exchange, Waco, Tex.

IVAN

This Woman has

One ready to do good;
Impossible?

THE RED

Pathé's big serial produced by Balboa, from scenarios
by Will M. Ritchey

Complete in 14 episodes of 2 parts each

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

two right hands!

the other to do evil.
Not at all—see

CIRCLE

Featuring RUTH ROLAND and FRANK MAYO
Stories by Albert Payson Terhune
Widespread publicity

EXCHANGE inc.

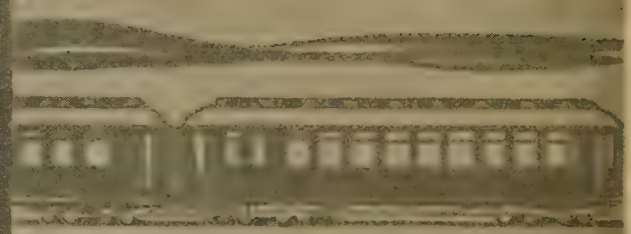
OFFICES
NEW YORK

Pathe and Henry W.

EXCUSE

A rip-roaring comedy drama with
GEORGE F. MARION
VIVIAN BLACKBURN
and GERALDINE O'BRIEN

George F Marion



A perpetual mileage of laughs without any stopovers

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

Savage present

ME!

This 5 part GOLD ROOSTER offering is from the phenomenally successful play by Rupert Hughes, which played to record crowds

Vivian Blackburn

It features nearly the entire original cast

RELEASED DEC. 31st

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

"SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

Five Reels

Obtained by Donald C. Thompson, War Photographer

GOING WITH A BANG!

For Bookings Get in Touch Quickly With

PROGRESSIVE MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, 645 Pacific Building, San Francisco

PROGRESSIVE MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, Central Building, Seattle

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE, Inc., 12th and Penn Streets, Pittsburgh

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE, Inc., Consumers Bldg., Chicago

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE, Inc., 532 Walnut Street, Cincinnati

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM COMPANY OF NEW ENGLAND, 31 Beach Street, Boston

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM COMPANY OF NEW ENGLAND, 19 Congress Avenue, New Haven

WM. L. SHERRY FEATURE FILM COMPANY, Inc., 130 West 46th Street, New York City

Exchanges and Exhibitors in other Territories Communicate Direct With

Arthur S. Kane

901 Candler Building
220 West 42d Street

NEW YORK CITY

COMING METRO EVENTS

METRO PICTURES

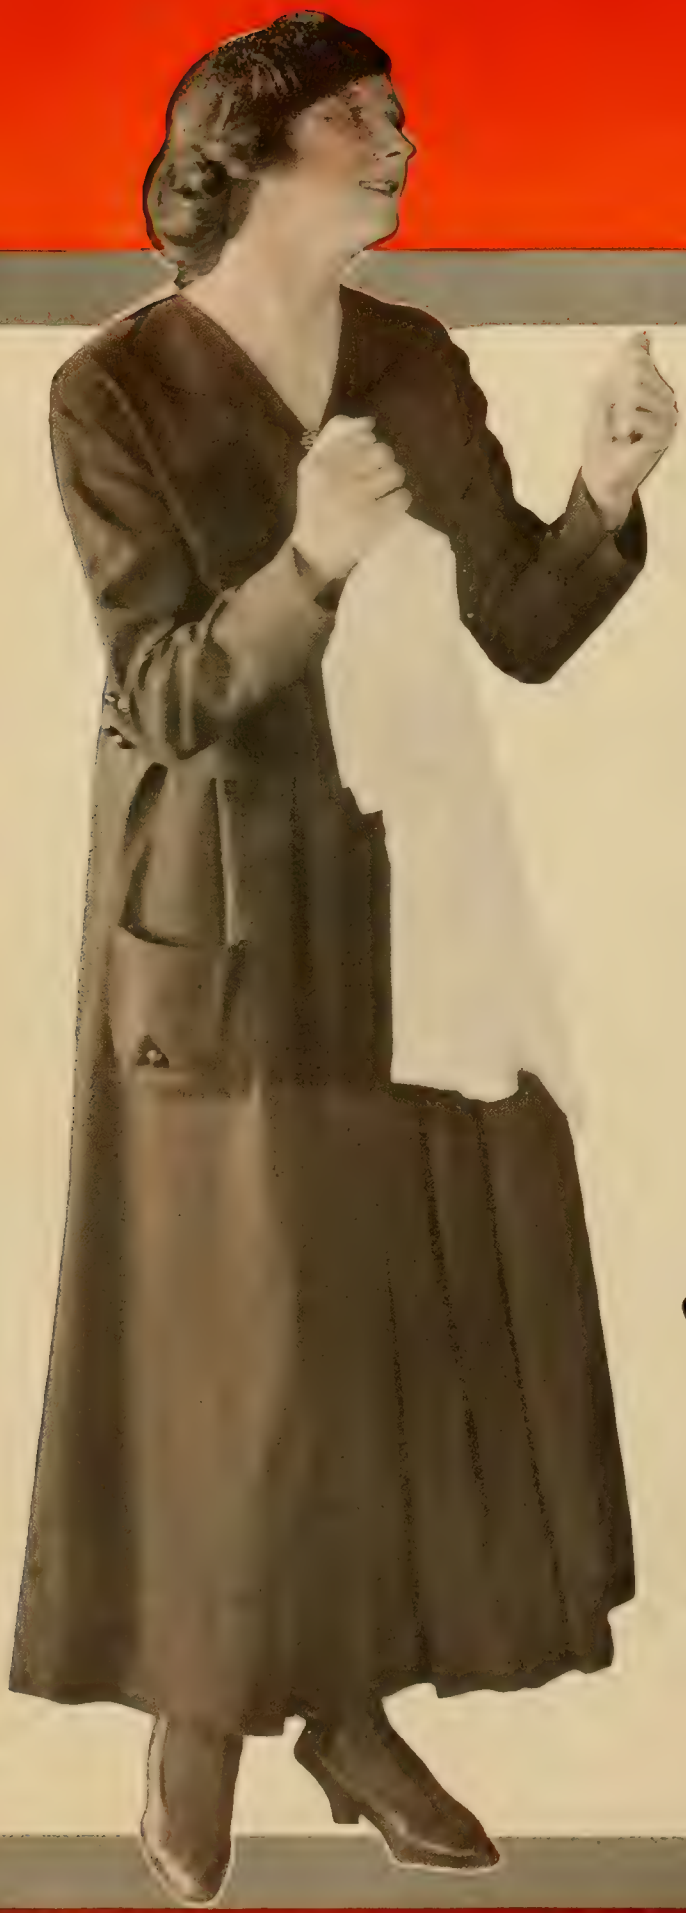
Again Speaking fo Consistency:

From an Exhibitor, Bruce Godshaw, in the Exhibitor's Herald, issue of November 27, 1915—

"But how to induce the patrons to continue to come from a distance, with the climatical conditions and car fares as their points of consideration, is my continual problem. My wares must be consecutively attractive; there must be no chasms of apparent mediocrity between one night and the other unless there is a difference in the admission price. But if a uniform scale of prices prevails, a uniform program is necessary.

"To illustrate: If a Mary Pickford or a Francis X. Bushman production can be seen for a dime, is it reasonable to figure that as many people will come out to see a Bruce McRae, a Gail Kane or a Frederick Perry, etc.? Not ordinarily! But it is possible, I believe, if a "feature program" maintains a standard—throws out the inferior offering and creates a "confidence" in the output. For instance, I will cite the Metro program. While possessing many prominent stars, they have others of lesser importance, but the business holds up to within a few dollars of each other for me, whether it is a William Faversham, an Olga Petrova, an Emily Wehlen or a Mary Miles Minter. I am not on the "outs" with any film exchanges. My relations are equally friendly with all and I do not try to favor any in these articles, but I find much pleasure in being truthful when occasion demands, and in the instance of Metro I admit increasing business from week to week—because they have not had a poor release. They are clean, clever, novel and—best of all—the public is sharing my opinion. Metro night with me is secured. I am not compelled to spend time nor money in forcing an attendance for Metro night."

The experience of Exhibitor Godshaw is the experience of other Metro Exhibitors. QUALITY. PLUS CONSISTENCY WINS



METRO PICTURES

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

presents

Booth Tarkington's

THE TURMOIL

with

VALLI-VALLI

and GEORGE LEGUERE

A METRO wonderplay produced in 5 Acts by COLUMBIA PICTURES CORPORATION
and directed by Edgar Jones

Released on the METRO Program January 10th.

METRO PICTURES

COMING METRO EVENTS

METRO PICTURES

Jan. 17	A Rose of the Alley	Rolfe Photoplays, Inc. Mary Miles Minter
Jan. 24	The Upstart	Rolfe Photoplays, Inc. Marguerite Snow & George Le Guere
Jan. 31	Man and His Soul	Quality Pictures Corporation Francis X. Bushman & Beverly Bayne
Feb. 7	Her Debt of Honor	Columbia Pictures Corporation Valli Valli
Feb. 14	Dimples	Columbia Pictures Corporation Mary Miles Minter
Feb. 21	Red Mouse	Quality Pictures Corporation Francis X. Bushman & Beverly Bayne
Feb. 28	The Lure of Heart's Desire	Popular Plays and Players Edmund Breese

Metro Pictures Corporation

First Official French Government Motion Pictures of FIGHTING IN FRANCE

READ THIS OFFICIAL LETTER

(Translation)

Minister of Foreign Affairs,
Office of the Minister.

Dear Mr. Powell: I herewith send you the cinematograph films you have selected. As I have already told you, these films have been taken from the "operateurs mobilises" at the front of the French army, with the authorization of the Great General Staff. It is, as you know, quite superfluous to affirm their authenticity, or to add that they have not been retouched. This is indisputable.

Accept, dear Mr. Powell, the expression of my heartiest best wishes.

FOURNOL (Bureau Chief).

These pictures were loaned by the government of France to through E. Alexander Powell, its war correspondent, for presentation in the United States and Canada.

The World

These were the only motion pictures exhibited to the Allied Diplomats at the French Embassy at Washington, Thursday, November 18

FIGHTING IN FRANCE

has been playing to thousands every day at the Fulton and Forty-fourth Street theatres, New York, and in the Keith theatres in New York and Brooklyn.

LEADING NEWSPAPERS

including Chicago Daily News, Boston Herald, Philadelphia Ledger, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Montreal Star, Quebec Chronicle, Ottawa Journal, Winnipeg Telegram, Minneapolis Tribune and New Orleans Times-Picayune have blazed the way in publicity as the official French pictures have been shown in these cities under their auspices.

STATES RIGHTS JUST RELEASED

Wire at Once for Privileges to

THE NEW YORK WORLD

or MORRIS GEST

Princess Theatre New York City

EQUITABLE

PRESENTS

THE AMERICAN BEAUTY GIRL

MARGARITA FISCHER

IN A POWERFUL DRAMATIC TALE
AS UNUSUAL AS IT IS ENTERTAINING

"THE DRAGON"

IF YOUR MOTHER ABANDONED YOUR FATHER-ATTRACTED BY ANOTHER MAN. AND YOUR FATHER'S LIFE WAS RUINED, HIS FORTUNE LOST, YOUR HOPES BLASTED, AND CAREER DULLED - WOULD YOU GO THROUGH LIFE CAUSING DEATH UNHAPPINESS AND DESPAIR TO THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR FATHER'S PAINS? OR WOULD YOU, TOO, BECOME A VICTIM OF THE DRAGON THAT BROUGHT MISERY TO YOUR HOME ?

RELEASED JAN. 3

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE PRES. AND ADVISORY DIRECTOR

RELEASING THROUGH

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

Wm. A. Brady, Picture Plays, Inc.

Presents

ALICE BRADY

in

THE RACK

By Thompson Buchanan

In which is shown that "The Rack" did not die out with the middle ages. Blanche Gordon (Alice Brady), drinking deep of the dregs of life's dark draught, discovers that.

There are modern tormentors whose cruel irons sear the whitest lives.

But the hellish tortures of New York society's rack upon which Blanche Gordon's bleeding soul is bruised and torn, make for good in the end.

Released Through

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

Lewis J. Selznick, Vice Pres. and Gen'l Mgr.

130 W. 46th STREET NEW YORK CITY

BRANCHES EVERYWHERE

Canadian Distributors: World Features, Limited

Triangle Plays for the First Week of the New Year

The TRIANGLE releases for the first week of the New Year offer two particularly strong, gripping, and intense five-reel dramas, and a pair of Keystones that are in many ways the best that have yet been filmed.

"CROSS CURRENTS," in which Helen Ware makes her Triangle debut, is a gripping tale of a woman's sacrifice for the man she loves. Realizing he is growing weary of her she releases him so that he may marry another woman, but the shipwreck of a yachting party casts the two on a desert isle together and the old love rekindles. Happily they live together until the wife arrives with a rescue party, and knowing that the man's loyalty belongs to the wife the woman walks straight to a watery grave.

In "BETWEEN MEN," W. S. Hart takes the part of a man who never forgets a favor. When an enemy threatens the man who befriended him with financial ruin, he responds to the call with alacrity. It's a fight to the finish both with brains and fists to save the fortune of the friend and win the hand of the daughter. The terrific hand-to-hand encounter, the terrible Wall Street scene and the final victory combine to produce a play in which not a moment drags.

In many ways "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts" is one of the most wonderful Keystones ever filmed. Aeroplanes looping the loop, the thrilling chase of a biplane, the miraculous rescue from the top of a tower, and a 200-foot smoke-stack blown up are only a few of the thrills, and again we have Weber and Fields, those famous comedians, this time in "The Worst of Friends," a Keystone that is better than "The Best of Enemies," if that is possible.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

Triangle Plays Help the Box Office

The remarkable number of signed contracts received for the presentation rights of TRIANGLE PLAYS is due to the old axiom, "the purchase of any commodity by the middleman is made for just one reason—to make money for himself. It matters not whether the product be cheap or expensive, near at home or out of town, if the opportunity for profit is offered the purchase will be swift!"

The rapidity with which the signed contracts have been coming in proves this beyond a doubt. The average exhibitor today, the exhibitor who can appreciate TRIANGLE PLAYS, is a shrewd, hard-headed business man who knows the best pictures when he sees them, the type of plays that appeal to his particular patrons, and the kind of plays that will turn the spasmodic picturegoer into a regular.

Such an exhibitor knows TRIANGLE PLAYS. He investigated them at the start and has watched their progress since the beginning. He knows the men who are back of this corporation, the men who have made a life study of the motion picture business and have helped to transform it from a small beginning to the fifth largest industry in this country. Such an exhibitor has watched with particular care the quality of TRIANGLE PLAYS and by this time is convinced that the quality of the first few pictures has been consistently maintained and that if possible the latest pictures have been even better than the first.

The hard-headed exhibitor knows that it is to his advantage to present TRIANGLE PLAYS to his patrons, for he knows that they will appreciate their superior quality, that they will enthuse over the marvels of TRIANGLE PRODUCTION, and that increased Box Office returns will be the result. He cannot fail to appreciate the immense advantage of showing motion picture plays that have been a success at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York.

HAVE YOU SIGNED YOUR CONTRACT?

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST NEW YORK

"VIM"
COMEDY FILMS

Vim Comedies Released Every Friday Thru the General Film Company

Vim Comedies Released Every Friday Thru the General Film Company

CHICKENS

EVERY WEEK
A THOUSAND FEET OF LAUGHS

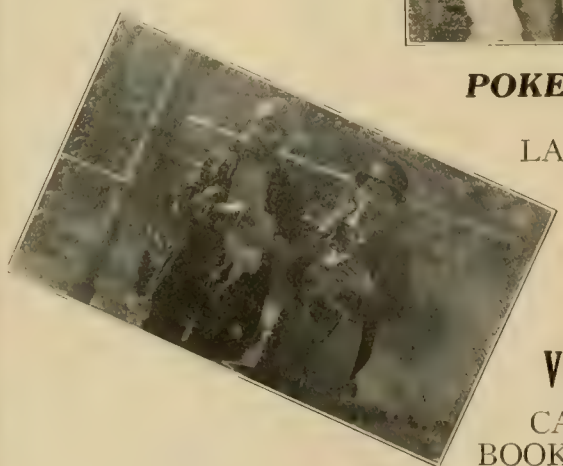
POKE AND JABB
YOUR EXCHANGEMAN
UNTIL HE INCLUDES
VIM COMEDIES
IN YOUR SERVICE

VIM COMEDIES HAVE NO COMPETITORS

RELEASED
FRIDAY
JANUARY 14th

VIM COMEDIES MAKE THE WORLD LAUGH

RELEASED
FRIDAY
JANUARY 14th



POKES AND JABBS
ORIGINAL LAUGH MAKERS

Vim Comedies
CAN ONLY BE BOOKED THRU THE OFFICES OF THE

General Film Program

Knickerbocker Star Features

End the Old Year Right by Presenting

The Mysterious Bride

A FEATURED SENSATION ON DECEMBER THIRTY-FIRST

3 GRIPPING REELS

3 GRIPPING REELS

3000 FEET OF EXCITING—STARTLING—
THRILLING AND SENSATIONAL PUNCHES

A BIG BOOKER EVERYWHERE
A STORY TRUE TO LIFE
A FEATURE THAT THRILLS

A Production of Action

DECEMBER 31st

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

Knickerbocker Star Features
NEW YORK

KLEINE-EDISON FEATURES

"This 'Come-On' Outfit Cost a Fortune"

Says Nancy, "And if you quit now we're through!"

That was when (to familiarize themselves with the location of their neighbor's jewels they staked their all on one grand throw) pretty Nell, with an inherent leaning toward honesty, threatened to quit right then and there!

GEORGE KLEINE'S

The Devil's Prayer Book

Featuring

ARTHUR HOOPS and ALMA HANLON is a story of gamblers and gambling—a sparkling, scintillating drama with a snap and go that keeps you muscle-taut through five enchanting reels—

It's a Kleine—on the Kleine-Edison program

FOR RELEASE JANUARY 5th

George Kleine

805 East 175th Street, New York City

NEW YORK
226 W. 42nd St.
CHICAGO
166 N. State St.
ATLANTA
71 Walton St.
BOSTON
14 Piedmont St.

DENVER
405 Railroad Bldg.
PHILADELPHIA
1309 Vine St.
MINNEAPOLIS
708 First Ave., N.
PITTSBURGH
123 Fourth Ave.

KANSAS CITY
209-12 Ozark Bldg.
SEATTLE
204-5-6 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
SAN FRANCISCO
234 Eddy St.

CINCINNATI
138 West 7th Street
DALLAS
1812½ Commerce St.
LOS ANGELES
514 W. 8th St.

NEW ORLEANS
103 Nola Buliding
MONTREAL
204 St. Catherine St., W.
TORONTO
96 Bay St.

LUBIN

FIVE REEL UNIT

LUBIN - UNIT PROGRAM JAN. 3, 1916

EXQUISITE

JUNE DAYE

IN

"SORROWS of HAPPINESS"

An Original Heart Drama

By

ANTHONY P. KELLY

DIRECTED BY JOSEPH KAUFMAN

DAVE DON COMEDY

"HIS LORDSHIP"

DIRECTED BY

EDWIN McKIM

REGULAR PROGRAM

JAN. 6TH 1916

"VENGEANCE of the OPPRESSED"

3 ACT DRAMA

FEATURING

EDWARD SLOMAN

JAN. 8TH 1916

BILLIE REEVES COMEDY "BILLIE'S HEADACHE"

DIRECTED BY

EARL METCALFE

GENERAL FILM LUBIN RELEASES

THE BLACK CROOK

Magnificently Spectacular Adaptation of the Famous Extravaganza

In Five Parts —A General Film Company Release, Mon. January 10th

A DAZZLING TWENTY-FOUR SHEET STAND

Is included in the unusually complete line of 4-color lithographs. Also two styles of one-sheets, two of threes and a six. Attractive heralds, newspaper cuts, etc.

The Special Music Provided at Cost Price Is the Best Buy any Exhibitor Could Make, Not Only to Aid His Presentation of "The Black Crook" but for Later Use by His Orchestra.

KALEM COMPANY, 235-239 West 23rd Street, New York City

"It's Distinctive!"--That is the Secret of "Stingaree's" Success--E. W. Hornung's Character Creation is Unique, His Stories of a Consistent Strength Never Before Attained in Series Productions

The Purification of Mulfera

Eighth Episode in the series by the author of "Raffles" Lightens the Tense Dramatic Strength of the Other Issues by the Introduction of a Delightful Comedy Touch—Released Wednesday, January 12

Remember—"the series hit of the year" costs you no more than an ordinary release. Twelve two-act episodes, each complete in itself, and released one every Wednesday. At any General Film Company office or the Greater New York Film Rental Company.

Are You on the Mailing List for the New Kalem Bulletin? Better Write Now!

Striking 1, 3 and 6-sheet, four color lithographs on each issue. Other advertising aids, too.

KALEM COMPANY

235-39 WEST 23RD ST., NEW YORK, N.Y.

THE HAZARDS of HELEN

THE ORIGINAL RAILROAD SERIES, FEATURING

HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

Have seldom presented a stronger story than that in "The Open Track," released Saturday, January 22. Helen's leap from a speeding motorcycle to a racing train, her rescue of the detectives bound to the cowcatcher of a runaway train, the hand-to-hand struggle in a racing automobile, these are but few of the breath-taking thrills in this single reel. "The Open Track" is another proof of the fact that in railroad pictures

KALEM LEADS—WHILE OTHERS FOLLOW

These Striking Scenes are on the 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs with each issue. Newspaper mats also.

THE TALE OF A COAT

A Bud Duncan Burlesque Comedy

Bud is an amateur cracksman, Gus his pal, and Jack the millionaire Sherlock who seeks to win Ethel's favor. The fun that follows may be imagined.

Released Tuesday, January 18. Attractive 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs on this comedy.

THE SEALSKIN COAT

An Episode in "The Ventures of Marguerite"

Real comedy is blended with the tense dramatic interest in this mystery of a stolen necklace into which Marguerite finds herself plunged.

Released Friday, January 21. 1, 3 and 6-sheet, 4-color lithographs that attract the eye.

A DUEL IN THE DESERT

A "Stingaree" Episode by E. W. HORNUNG, Creator of "Raffles."

With the fascinating desert as a background and the red-blooded action of strong men on their mettle, this two-part episode of "Stingaree" comes up fully to the swift pace set by the early issues which have been so highly praised. Stingareee is captured by the inspector of police, but his nerve and gameness outlast the officer's when they meet in the broiling sun and scorching sands of the desert.

Released Wednesday, January 19—Stirring action on the 1, 3 and 6-sheet, 4-color lithographs.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company offices or the Greater New York Film Rental Company

Have you placed your name on the mailing list for the new Kalem Bulletin? Better write now.

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

4793 CANCELLED
ASTOR LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 148)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, January 1, 1916

Facts and Comments

A WAVE of censorship seems to be sweeping over Oregon. In one town the exhibitors themselves asked for censorship, not because they thought it was necessary, but as a precaution against the vagaries of self-appointed censors. In another place young girls were appointed censors. There is no doubt whatever in our own mind that the desire to censor other people is closely allied to a species of mental disorder. We never lose patience with censors and we never quarrel with them. No patient can be cured by harsh treatment. Time must be allowed to assert its healing influence on the mind inflamed by the inquisitorial mania. Really the best remedy is the little anti-censorship pamphlet which we furnish to all our readers free of charge. In case of an epidemic we are prepared to furnish reasonable quantities.

* * *

FROM facts furnished to us by President Herrington of the National League, prospects for a better and stronger organization of exhibitors in the new year are better than they have been. Some of the state organizations have grown in numbers and influence. We wish we could convince the exhibitors of the supreme importance of organization. We wish we could make them understand that they must depend upon themselves. Their strength must be their own, it must be genuine, not stimulated now and then by solicited contributions from others. Proper organization with good leadership means better shows, more profits and greater power in the councils of the industry. The time to start work for a successful national convention is the present moment. We will do all in our power to make that convention a success, but the exhibitor must do his share. A big and highly successful national convention will be the surest means of impressing the country at large with the growth and the power and the future of our great industry. Don't be timid and faint-hearted. The men who love to repeat "It can't be done," should stand to one side and give the active men a chance.

* * *

ARRANGEMENTS are now under way for holding a big state convention of motion picture exhibitors in New York. There are some splendid local organizations in this state. The cities of Yonkers and Rochester are shining examples of what can be done by and for the exhibitor through a close union and practical co-operation. We have demonstrated the power of the screen in this state by a direct appeal to the motion picture audiences. If the exhibitors will hold a big convention, say in the early part of February, and hold it at Albany, the effects are bound to help us all. A demonstration in force in the very presence of the assembled lawgivers will have a wholesome influence. Two bad bills will be introduced in Albany just as soon as the Solons get their working clothes on. One bill is the censorship measure and the other is a bill to close all motion picture theaters on Sunday. We happen to know that the enemies of the modern Sunday will make the fiercest kind of a "drive" against us. Let us be ready. If you are interested write to Lee A. Ochs, the president of the state organization, at 110 West Fortieth Street, New York.

* * *

WE URGE every reader of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD to read our proposed petition to Congress, protesting against the establishment of Federal Censorship. If he will get signatures to the petition and return it to us we will undertake to present it to Congress. The reader will notice that we want the signatures of citizens who are not in any way connected with the motion picture industry. Such men are not open to the objection or even the suspicion of a personal interest in the agitation against censorship. We feel sure that there are scores upon scores among the patrons of each motion picture theatre in the country who will gladly sign such a petition. We advise our readers to begin the campaign at once and to keep at it until the bill comes up for debate in Congress. Remember that Federal Censorship will not only increase your expenses, but it will harass you in other ways as well. To install the proper machinery for censorship will be like duplicating the internal revenue department. You will be subject to infinite delays and to the whims of arbitrary officials. Federal Censorship will drive not hundreds, but thousands of exhibitors out of business. If you are interested in your bread and butter GET BUSY NOW.

A Great Year Dawns

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

A GENERATION has passed since Edwin Markham wrote his soul into a battle-cry of the days in which we are living.

"O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
How will the future reckon with this man?
How answer his brute question in that hour
When whirlwinds of rebellion shake the world?
How will it be with kingdoms and with kings,
With those who shaped him to the thing he is,
With this dumb terror shall reply to God,
After the silence of the centuries?"

This Dumb Thing is still the tool of those who hold themselves unaccountable to any one on earth and only to God in hypocritical protestation. Having no mind of his own, his will subordinated to monarchical organization, the Dumb Thing has become a menace to himself and to the whole world, but it would seem at moments as if he were about to straighten himself up before his Creator and break the silence of the centuries.

Trained to slaughter, encouraged to plunder, taught that wholesale murder and rapine are glorious, who really blames the unthinking creature, the tool of those "who shaped him to the thing he is"? As well blame a link in a chain or the cog of a wheel. The question is, will he go on destroying the weak and the undefended, as well as strewing battlefields with the flower of manhood, at the command of a group of War Lords, or will he gather enough courage to assert himself and declare for a voice in settling his own destiny, that of his home, that of his nation?

There is answer in a prophecy made by Richard Wagner almost a century ago, in his contributions to the Dresden Volksblatter. "Aye, we behold it, the old world crumbling; a new will rise therefrom; for the lofty goddess Reason comes rustling on wings of storm, her stately head ringed round with lightnings, a sword in her right hand, a torch in her left. Destroying and fulfilling, the ever-rejuvenating mother of mankind fares across the earth. Before her soughs the storm, and shakes so fiercely at man's handiwork that vast clouds of dust eclipse the sky. And where her mighty foot is set, there falls in ruins what an idle whim had built for aeons; the hem of her robe sweeps its last remains away. But in her wake there opens out a never-dreamt paradise of happiness, and jubilant songs of FREED MANKIND fill the air. The thickening clouds but proclaimed the advent of emancipating Revolution."

For those of us who read the morning papers in the smug and satisfied security created by our own Revolution, there is an occasional thrill over some brilliant exploit in the world's greatest war and an occasional heartache for the perishing brave and suffering innocent, then we glance at the clock and go about our daily routine, working and fretting over its trivialities. Some of us flatter ourselves that we have studied history, but here is the most wondrous, the most terrible history ever known being unfolded before our very eyes, that of our mightiest nations in a struggle to the death—is it without significance?

What can there be in the year 1916 to recompense for the sacrifices of 1915 if it merely witnesses a cessation of hostilities, to be renewed where and when War Lords may will? Is the struggle to be settled by dividing the possessions of the weak among the strong? Is peace to mean only a patching up of international jealousies? Have the bravest and the finest men been sent to the shambles for the establishment of no human right? Does any intelligent being in the world desire a peace as destitute of principle as those who forced this war on humanity?

What have these questions to do with the production and exposition of screen drama? One might as well ask what the screen drama has to do with our material improvement and our spiritual awakening. This beautiful New Art would stagnate, lose interest and wither in a year if it failed to respond to what is in the minds and hearts of people. It would lose its splendid assertion of individuality and drift into the monotony of performance that has dulled older arts if it adhered to repetition and played no part in universal progress. Its own function is to create from the rude material of actual events those ideals from which we seek to realize perfection.

The fact that we are in the midst of unexampled prosperity does not blind us to the fact that our sense of security may be only a dream, particularly if that great issue now at stake, the dominance of might over right, be unfavorably determined. Nor should we be blinded by any lull of temporary peace to some of the deeper issues, that out of the ashes of sorrow and shame may rise a new civiliation more glorious than any of us have pictured in our fondest dreams, though that awakening may be attended with convulsions more tremendous than those through which all Europe is now passing.

"The Man With the Hoe," of whom Markham wrote, is now "The Man With the Gun." On HIS back the burden of the world, this thing "the Lord God made and gave to have dominion over sea and land." Will he continue to be a mere link in a chain, compelled to go wherever it is dragged? "Let us not compare," says mighty Maeterlinck, "the poor wretch dragged from his home in these modern times, to shoot down others as unfortunate as himself, with those Americans who came running from their homes at Lexington in defense of liberty."

Will the private soldier of Europe, now but a helpless part of one or another military organization, where there must be no independent thought, grow to realize his power and revolt against the tyranny which is grinding him and millions of his brothers to death? Will he rise and destroy the machine which has done so much to destroy him and the world's finest ideals? Or will he wander on in darkness, depending on external influences for guidance, moved only by impulse of whose very nature he is only dimly conscious? Ignorant of his direction, one nearly always at variance with his best aims, can he not be shown through our new and universal medium, no slave to language, that there is liberty for him and hope for the world in his complete emancipation?

Is it not in the power of every intelligent man interested in the production of moving pictures to help make 1916 the greatest of all years by the bold assertion of truth to all parts of the earth, by the dissemination of truth to all parts of the earth, by showing that more is to be accomplished by liberty, kindness and mutual helpfulness than by the old order of force? "Times change and men's minds with them" says Jack London. "Down the past, civilizations have exposited themselves in terms of world-power. No civilization has yet exposited itself in terms of love-of-man. Previous civilizations, their purposes fulfilled, may well pass, leaving man to build that new and higher civilization which will exposit itself in terms of love and service and brotherhood. We know how the gods are made. Comes now the time to make a world."

Nineteen Sixteen

A Few Words to Our Readers and One Word About Ourselves.

By W. Stephen Bush.

The Moving Picture World sincerely hopes and wishes that the Year 1916 will be one of Happiness and Prosperity for every single one of the great host of its readers.

From the days of the Founder there has been an intimate personal touch between ourselves and our readers. A pleasing tone of confidence and friendship runs through the large and growing correspondence which the mails bring to us from every part of our own country as well as from the remotest corners of the globe. It would be strange indeed if we did not respond to these multiplying evidences of confidence and friendship. With all our hearts do we reciprocate the wish so often expressed by our readers, the wish to take our readers by the hand and look into each others' faces.

When the men who in various ways are devoted to the New Art speak of the power of the motion picture they are uttering no idle phrase. They themselves have felt this power, and they are feeling it every day of their lives. No man, woman or child with an honest and friendly interest in the motion picture but is proud and grateful. We all feel it to be an honor to aid in advancing the ideals and extending the scope of the motion picture. The rewinder in the exchange, the boy who helps the operator in the booth, the girl who works in the semi-darkness of the printing and perforating room, the great and gifted star, the ambitious director, the scenario writer, the usher and the manager, the scene painter, the expert on projection, the editor and all who march in the great procession know that, be their service small or big, low or high, they are connected with a noble work, which is at all times worthy of their best efforts and entitled to their strongest loyalty. The spell of the motion picture has, of course, fallen on the general public as well, else there would be no million-dollar theaters devoted to motion pictures, nor would there be a reel of film, a machine and an operator in every blessed little place where they have a fourth-class post office. There is, however, a thrill of joy and a current of enthusiasm which is reserved for the inner circles alone. The motion picture is jealous of its servants. The allegiance to the screen is like a vow for life—once a motion picture man always a motion picture man. You find the thrill of joy, the loyal zest and the bubbling enthusiasm in every studio, in every office and exchange, in every motion picture theater, and you find it in generous quantities from the office boy up on the seventh floor of the Pullman Building, 17 Madison avenue. If you go up three flights higher you will find a Spanish edition of it.

The freemasonry of film men, the "camaraderie" among the men who are serving the screen, is a bright particular page in our brief but eventful history. To paraphrase Kipling, The million dollar producer and the boy that carries the reels are "brothers under their skins."

Our readers—how can we ever thank them—have made the Moving Picture World a password which is valid everywhere in filmdom. Whenever a member of the staff of the Moving Picture World has gone among the exhibitors, whether it was to attend a convention or just to go on a tour of friendly interest, he has been received with open arms and shining eyes. When film men speak of the Moving Picture World they smile as men smile when they hear the name of a good old friend. This age of ours is not an age of faith. The motto of the century seems to be, "Missouri"—we believe as soon as we see, but no sooner.

The Moving Picture World has stood the test; it has never failed or faltered in its championship of the exhibitor and in its devotion to the industry—that's why the readers believe in it implicitly. We are ever trying to deserve your good opinion; we are always trying to vindicate your faith in the Moving Picture World. 1916 to us means a series of new tasks; it means more endeavor to serve you; more effort to study your needs and to supply them; we want to give you an increase of value, if that be possible; 1916 means to us more protection for the legitimate interests and rights of the motion picture men. As we have fought the common enemy in the past (always with your intelligent co-operation), thus will we fight in the future. We will give you more of that special service which has distinguished the Moving Picture World above all other publications in the industry; we will stand for the liberal modern Sunday with a good clean program, for beneficial and constructive legislation, and, last but not least, we will work for a closer union and greater co-operation among the exhibitors, the men on the firing line for whose benefit the Moving Picture World is printed and published first, last and all the time.

This last item is one of the features on the program of the Moving Picture World in 1916.

We want to see the exhibitor take his proper and rightful place in the councils of the industry. We do not want to see him forever hewing wood and drawing water; we want to see the days of his janitorship ended forever.

We want to see the exhibitors strongly organized, of course. We would like to see such organization count for better shows and better theaters. The change in conditions within the last twelve months have all been in favor of the exhibitor. Today he has a chance to show what is in him, to prove his enterprise and his power of initiative, to assert his individual talents. The Art of Exhibition is the coming art. The Moving Picture World will be his book of reference and his unfailing adviser.

Nudity on the Screen

By W. Stephen Bush.

Quite the most remarkable thing about nudity on the screen is its late arrival. Considering the perpetual vogue of nudity on the stage the screen has remained free from nudity for its own sake during far the greater part of its life.

Nudity on the screen as in real life is a very, very relative and highly elastic term. In Turkey a woman is considered immodest if she displays the tip of her nose before the eyes of the male. In some of the places in the Montmartre district in Paris a state of near-nudity is allowed. In the fashionable bathing resorts on the French coast very little in the way of clothes is permitted to interfere with the free movements of the swimmer. In some of the savage countries clothes are entirely unknown.

There is all the difference in the costuming and garbing from one age to another.

Nudity, then, is largely a question of climate and of time and of fashion. Lady Godiva was modest in her nakedness, while many a fashionably and completely dressed woman may appear immodest. The beholder's state of mind has a lot to do with the question of whether nudity is right or wrong.

Nothing is easier than philosophizing on this entertaining subject. The thing that interests the exhibitor and the producer is the practical side of the question. Is the display of nudity on the screen proper? How far does the law interfere with such display? What is the ethical aspect of the problem?

We think that it is wise for motion picture producers to bow not only to the letter of the law, but to the common usages of society. We cannot in one generation override the traditions of centuries. What are these traditions in this country? They are essentially Christian in the sense that they are anti-pagan. The ancient Greek and Roman in striking contrast to the Jew favored the fullest display of the human figure, regardless of sex or age. I mean, of course, the display of the human figure in the arts. To civilized minds the sight of any such great relics of antique art is a source of joy and admiration. They look glorious in the Vatican Museum or in the Uffizi Gallery at Florence, but shown to the yokels of a town in darkest Jersey they probably would have quite a different effect.

We have agreed upon decent covering for the body. There is no reason in the world why the men who are in the business of producing and showing motion pictures should depart from this cardinal principle. It is possible that in certain cases the development of a plot or the driving home of a lesson may be an excuse for ignoring the conventions of society. From what we have seen ourselves we believe that these exceptions are rare enough to be negligible. The screen was not made to experiment in the lawful and unlawful display of nudity. The late Mayor Gaynor struck a deep chord in the hearts of modern men and women when he made a plea for outward decency.

Woe betide the screen if it cannot arouse interest in any other way than by a display of a woman's nakedness. I do not share the belief of certain motion picture producers and exhibitors, that the American public demand plays in which nudity laughs at conventions. Take the amusement "ads" in any newspaper, from Maine to California, and you will find that people are interested in the harmless, the uplifting, the entertaining, rather than the salacious, the prurient, and the pornographic. In New York, where wickedness is supposed to be the eternal sentinel of the city, there is but one show which makes a candid bid for the patronage of the baldheads.

Title of Play is Property

Appellate Division Sustains Permanent Injunction Against General Film Company Restraining "A Fool There Was."

A DECISION has been handed down by the Appellate Division sustaining the judgment of the Supreme Court at Special Term, which granted a permanent injunction to Abraham L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw and Robert Hilliard against the General Film Company. The last-named corporation is now permanently restrained from using the title "A Fool There Was" for a film heretofore released by them under this title.

No claim was made by the plaintiffs that the play released by the defendant had any connection with the play in which Robert Hilliard has become famous. It was contended, however, that the use of the name title was an infringement on the property rights of the plaintiffs. The film is question had been made by the Lubin Manufacturing Company and had been distributed by the General Film Company

Exhibitors to Sit as Jurors

Blue Bird Photo Plays, Inc., Intends to Submit All Productions to the Judgment of Its Customers.

THE details of a novel plan to insure the quality of the production released by Blue Bird Photo Plays, Inc., have just been made public by the officials of that organization. This plan consists in having a jury composed of exhibitors pass judgment on every Blue Bird subject. These exhibitors are to have the final say, and unless the consensus of opinion is to the effect that the features passed upon possess dramatic and box-office merit they will be withdrawn from the Blue Bird program.

Sol Berman.

Sol. Berman, recently appointed New York manager of this organization, outlined the Blue Bird plan.

"In my statement last week I announced that we were taking steps to prevent the issuance of a Blue Bird feature that did not come up to the standard we have set," he said. "Here is what I had in mind at the time:

"It is a fact that the manufacturer is not qualified to pass judgment upon his own features. Each has cost him from $10,000 and upward. Because of this, his judgment is apt to be biased when he reviews these features in his projection room. Knowing that the financial outlay is absolutely wasted if he places the 'weak sisters' upon the shelf, he allows them to go out, orders the advertising and publicity departments to put a little extra pep into their efforts, and thus tries to get his money back from an undesirable product.

"Four weeks before the release date of a production from twelve to fifteen representative exhibitors will be invited to a special presentation of this feature. They will view it from the standpoint of the box office—which, after all is said, is the only standpoint. Should this jury render an unfavorable verdict, should they merely declare the subject passable, but not quite up to the standard, it will not be issued."

Mr. Berman then explained that by the term "representative exhibitors" he included the men who own the smallest as well as the largest theaters. He took pains to emphasize the fact that Blue Bird service would be sufficiently elastic to enable every exhibitor to link up with it.

Going into the details of this "exhibitors' jury," Mr. Berman declared that the same body of men would not pass judgment upon all the features. Instead, a new group would be invited to witness the special showing each week. Thus, practically every exhibitor in New York and vicinity would, in the course of time, virtually guarantee the merits of Blue Bird features. At the same time, while it will be up to the jury selected for each particular week as to whether the subject they see is to be released, an invitation to attend will be extended to every exhibitor who cares to observe how the jury system works so that he may see the manner in which the quality of the subjects is guarded. Mr. Berman mentioned some of the details of the comprehensive advertising campaign about to be instituted.

"Aside from our regular newspaper advertising we have already contracted for more than four hundred billboards in New York and Brooklyn alone," Mr. Berman went on. "The rest of the country will be similarly taken care of. The locations of these boards have been decided upon by the Blue Bird company."

Mr. Berman expressed his satisfaction with the designs of the posters to be used. Admitting the wonderful quality of the paper used by other organizations, he said nothing approaching the Blue Bird posters has yet been used. Realizing the drawing quality of good paper, his organization has gone to considerable expense, he said, in having the best poster designers in the country submit their ideas.

Freuler Reviews the Year

President of Mutual Film Corporation Enumerates Some of the Gains Made by the Trade in 1915.

THE year just ending has been crowded with the most significant developments in the history of the motion picture industry. Young Nineteen Sixteen comes in with busy prospects. The last few months of 1915 have seen more really big things happen than any similar period in the development of the business. I believe that 1916 will see yet further important developments in this direction. The really great scenarios are yet to come. Mechanically the picture is rather a satisfactory product now, and while important and revolutionary developments in that direction are of course possible there do not appear to be any near at hand. Meanwhile the "story," the real character and quality of the thought and matter conveyed by the film, will come in for a great deal more active attention.

It is interesting to note that within the year 1915 we have seen almost every American author of prominence become a writer for the motion pictures. This wholesale capture of authors by the motion picture can really be credited to the year 1915. It is true that there were a few who ventured with timidity and questioning into the film field in 1914, those of that year relatively so few in number that we may call them pioneers. For all practical purposes we may say that the great body of skilled writers became related to motion picture expression only with the year 1915. The year 1916 by this token must be expected to develop the writers for the film drama into better artists, better builders with the materials of photoplay construction. They will learn to think in pictures. They will have gained conceptions of the range of both the limitations and the possibilities of the camera.

If I were to attempt the somewhat difficult task of enumerating the other important developments of the year in the motion picture industry I should name:

Service Beyond the Films—The birth of new relation between the distributors and the exhibitors of film, by which the exhibitors receive more than a mere supply of pictures but also aids in publicity, music cues, exploitation methods and general assistance in the successful operation of the motion picture theater.

Higher Admission Prices—A strengthening trend toward higher prices of admission in a very large number of theaters, moving upward from the five and ten cent level to the class of 10, 15 and 25 cent admissions—this resulting in part from the improving standards of the films and in turn resulting in the production of better films.

Better Picture Art—Generally more active attention among manufacturers to the plots and photography of the picture drama, resulting in the enlistment of writers of ability and note for the production of scripts, meeting and encouraging a rapidly improving public taste in screen art.

Censorship—The beginning of a public awakening to the evils and perils of censorship, exemplified importantly in a number of communities where public intelligence over-ruled the absurdity and prudery of censors.

Awakening of the Lay Press—The establishment of photoplay departments in many newspapers and other publications of general circulation, and a more intelligent treatment of the film drama among publications of all classes—a somewhat belated recognition of the increasing important number of readers who are anxious for the news of the films.

Looking to developments to come I can see nothing that looks more important than growth and betterments in the business of exhibiting pictures. Great, big strides have been made in the construction of pictures, in the distribution of pictures, in the advertising of pictures—and now there is a very great deal up to the exhibitor.

Certain investigations made near the close of this year by the Mutual Film Corporation, looking into the operating methods of many thousands of theaters in all parts of the country, convince me that the exhibitor has many more opportunities for growth ahead of him than he has achievements behind him.

A review of the film history of the year cannot, I think, discover a more significant development than the formation of the new Mutual program—the creation which we have been pleased to label the $8,000,000 program—and the more recent but closely related announcement of the Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe Edition, three big five-reel features a week, and again, simultaneously the expansion of the program to take in yet a third three-reel feature. This gives the Mutual Film Corporation a total output of six features a week—the world's greatest feature release output for any single film distributing concern.

But while we take an inventory of 1915, we find yet other evidence of the forces that are making for the progress of the industry. I turn again to the example of which I can speak with the most authority—that is the reorganization of the methods of operation of the Mutual Film Corporation. This has included the establishment of seven new branches, giving a total of sixty-eight Mutual exchanges for the service of the exhibitors of the United States and Canada. District management has been abolished and every branch has been made directly responsible to the home office of the corporation in New York. A corps of efficiency men has been put into the field to keep up constantly the close relation we have established between home office and the exhibitors through the branches. A system has been installed by which confidential reports on films, attendance and all detailed theater statistics come to me from representative houses in all parts of the country, thus giving a direct "indicator reading" on our pictures and service, and enabling us to continually shape them to that which is proven successful in the final test of the box-office report.

Another important step this year has been the formation of the Motion Picture Board of Trade and plans for a concerted effort to free the motion picture from the shackles of censorship. This is not the place for my views of censorship, but I insist on saying that it is un-American, absurd and damned to final destruction. We can recognize only one censorship and that is the opinion of the wholesome-minded and intelligent public.

The European war, which has been so much a factor in the fortunes of many of our great American industries, has given no pause to the motion picture business. The film tax levied by Great Britain as a war measure is making New York the world's film market, and is giving us here the position that London had occupied in the world trade in film plays.

So looking ahead we can promise greater film prosperity, better plays, better theaters, better service to exhibitors and to the public. The motion picture atmosphere is being classified. The business is gaining in standardization. The unfit are being eliminated. The future is bright and filmdom can look with expectancy on 1916.

H. J. Streyckmans, Mirror Studio Manager

HECTOR J. STREYCKMANS, who has been made studio manager for the Mirror Fims, is one of the best known men in the motion picture trade. He has been through every phase of the business from production to marketing. His first association with pictures came about through his position as managing editor of the Show World. Later he organized the International Projecting and Producing Company, the first independent company to oppose the licensed manufacturers in 1909. His associate in this company was J. J. Murdock. For three years Mr. Streyckmans was in an executive capacity with the New York Motion Picture Company. He was a part of the Mutual organization under Mr. Toomey from its inception until he organized and managed the Pasquali American Co., now the Picture Playhouse Company. Through him the "Last Days of Pompeii" was released and he handled "The Battle of Gettysburg" as an isolated feature for the Mutual. Mr. Streyckmans was the originator of and edited the Mutual Observer, a magazine which he ran single-handed. The same magazine is now known as Reel Life, which is being handled by a sizable staff.

H. J. Streyckmans.

The first star who will appear at the Glendale studio for the Mirror Company in January is Nat Goodwin. Captain Harry Lambart and Lawrence Marston will have charge of the first two companies organized for Mirror pictures.

Universal Annual Meeting

Directors Re-elect Carl Laemmle President—Joe Brandt Is Secretary.

AT A MEETING overflowing with words of satisfaction over the successful and profitable business of the past year, the directors of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company held their annual meeting at the executive offices, 1600 Broadway, New York City, December 15, Carl Laemmle, R. H. Cochrane, P. A. Powers, Joe McKinney and John B. Stanchfield were re-elected directors of the concern, after having had one of the most successful years in its history.

The directors pointed with pride to the progress of the company in the past year, and pointed to the nearly completed plant at Leonia, N. J., as the Universal City of the east and as Universal City Junior, an undertaking which required over a year in completing and which necessitated the expenditure of nearly $500,000 to thoroughly install. The elections were held at intervals and following some time spent in going over the wonderful increase in business of the past year the election again became the chief topic. Carl Laemmle was re-elected president; R. H. Cochrane, vice-president; P. A. Powers, treasurer, and Joe Brandt, manager of the home office, was elected secretary, after which the board of directors extended a vote of thanks to President Laemmle for the profits and success of the year 1915.

The whole work of the past year was reviewed by the directors, after which plans were considered for the coming year.

Then the "big four," Messrs. Laemmle, Cochrane, Powers and Brandt, got down to business and outlined some of the big events the Universal will put over in 1916. Although the profits and increase in volume of business in 1915 clearly out-distanced the figures of any previous year, the officials are determined to double the present figures during the next year, and with the new electric studio at Universal City and the new plant at Leonia Heights, they feel they can safely increase the output 50 per cent., and with decreased producing cost, make larger profits than ever before.

Many of the plans laid out at the directors' meeting have been kept secret, and will be made public only when the officials are ready to execute them. Several prominent stars have been signed by the Universal and their names, as well as a list of the big plays and books which the Universal has already contracted to film, will be made known shortly.

Another Big Studio

Architect Kinsila Plans Structure for the Prudential Film Corporation, Located at Worcester, Mass.

EDWARD B. KINSILA, architect and studio specialist, has filed with the Building Department of Worcester, Mass., full working plans for an elaborate and up-to-date studio for the Prudential Film Corporation, whose parent office is in the World Tower building, at 110 West 40th street, New York.

A. W. Blankmeyer, owner of the Grand Circus theater, of Detroit, is president of this company, and Mr. Blankmeyer intends to employ the new studio, which will be equipped with every modern device for securing the best motion picture photography, for producing the highest quality features on a large scale. The studio will contain nearly 60,000 square feet of floor space, 6,000 square feet of which will be stage space inclosed within a special ground glass skylight that freely admits the full passage of the actinic rays of sunlight. Immediately outside the skylight and connected with it through wide open doors will be exterior platforms, 25 feet wide, surrounding three sides of the skylight, which may be utilized in addition to the stage in fair weather.

Overhead in the skylight, a light lattice trestled traveling bridge spans the entire width of the skylight. This bridge will be used to secure many novel effects. In emergency an artificial lighting system will be employed.

High elevating traps that may be used singly, or together to represent the postless balcony of a theater or the second story of a dwelling, and a large revolving platform that whirls quickly or moves slowly, above or below the floor plane, will also be installed.

In the open courtyard of the studio, containing a replica of the famous Bridge of Sighs at Venice, will be placed a circular water pool with plate glass sides, surrounded by a submerged corridor, from which all manner of submarine views may be photographed; from individual human battles with ferocious sea monsters to the warlike operations of sea-hidden submarines attacking warships.

The architecture of the studio will be of the English Tudor style to comport with the classic designs of neighboring houses, the studio being located on West Main street in the very heart of the fashionable quarter of Worcester.

KLEINE FINISHES "THE DEVIL'S PRAYER-BOOK."

Finishing touches were added last week to "The Devil's Prayer-Book," a Kleine feature with Alma Hanlon, Arthur Hoops, Frank Belcher and Ruby Hoffman. This is the feature that was especially written by Max Marcin, author of "The House of Glass," now playing at the Candler theater, as the starring vehicle for Miss Hanlon.

Miss Hanlon has availed herself of the many opportunities for sparkling work yielded by Marcin's script. She will be seen in three different roles in "The Devil's Prayer-Book," a young mother, a girl of fourteen and a young woman of twenty-five. It is released January 5, as the first Kleine offering on the Kleine-Edison program for the new year.

GAUMONT RECRUIT NOW NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICER.

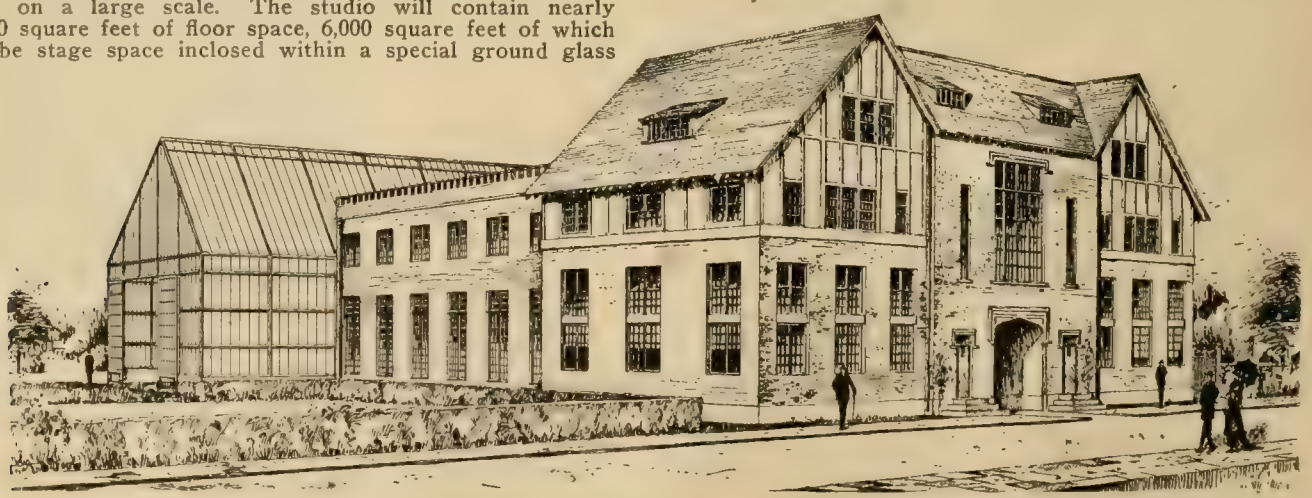
B. H. Bromhead, who resigned the second week of December as factory manager of the Gaumont Company at Flushing, N. Y., to join the British Army, writes from Montreal that he has been enlisted as a non-commissioned officer.

FREDERICK CHURCH NOW PLAYS LEADS.

Frederick Church, who for a long time played heavies opposite G. M. Anderson, has signed a contract with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to play leads and heavies under the direction of Joseph De Grasse.

CHANGE OF TITLE FOR CASINO STAR COMEDY.

The Casino Star comedy for release on the Mutual program, January 9, has been changed from "The Girls' Color Scheme" to "Alias Mr. Jones." This new play, which is from the pen of S. A. Van Petten, will feature "Budd" Ross, who has just become a Gaumont star.



Studio Planned by Edward B. Kinsila for the Prudential Film Company.

New Kalem Series

George Bronson Howard Will Write it—"Love Pirates" Will Be the Title.

GEORGE BRONSON HOWARD, novelist and playwright, has succumbed to the lure of the screen and has contracted to write a series of original stories for production in motion pictures. The author of "Snobs" will write the stories for the next Kalem dramatic series under the title, "The Love Pirates." It will be staged in fifteen two-part installments, and, as with all Kalem series productions, each episode will tell a complete story in itself. Work of production began this week.

A point of interest in connection with the new Kalem series is the fact that the stories will be written originally for the motion picture screen and will not be adaptations of any work already presented to the public. In addition to being written with the screen in mind, the Bronson Howard stories have for their theme a novel idea that should make it one of the most unusual series yet presented on the screen. The title, "The Love Pirates," will give an idea of the theme the novelist has chosen to mark his debut as a writer especially for the screen. He has built his stories around two young women whose natural characteristics make the sobriquet, "Love Pirates," more than appropriate. The girls are fascinating creatures who live by their wits and wiles, choosing for the victims the wealthy and sophisticated, and showing them that there are those even more wise in the ways of the world. The stories will each detail a separate adventure which befalls the "Love Pirates" in preying on the blase and self-centered idle rich. It is intended, through the medium of this series, to give the public a keen insight into the methods employed by the swindlers who use their wits to live without labor while at all times staying within the bounds laid down by the law. Many of the ingenious schemes best known to police officials will be laid bare while the author, because of his wide experience as a newspaper man and in government service, has been able to present many of the lesser known artifices employed by sharp-witted schemers.

George Bronson Howard

Marin Sais

Ollie Kirkby

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Kalem Company which assure "The Love Pirates" publicity backing on a scale equal to any yet attempted in the motion picture field. The stories, fictionized by Hugh C. Weir, will be syndicated in a list of newspapers covering this country and Canada, each story being published the week simultaneous with the release of the picture it concerns. Because of the prominence of George Bronson Howard's name, the original note to the stories, and the recognized ability of Mr. Weir, it has been possible to secure many newspapers for the syndicate which have in the past looked askance on the publishing of fictionized motion pictures. All of the large cities of the country are included in the list in addition to the medium sized and smaller cities.

Not one star, but two, will be featured in the screen versions of the Bronson Howard stories. Kalem has delegated the production of the series to the Glendale company under the direction of James W. Horne, which is responsible for the remarkably successful "Stingaree," which Kalem pronounces "the series hit of the year." Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby, both of stellar magnitude, will share honors as possessors of the title "Love Pirates." Of rare beauty, as may be judged from the accompanying photographs, Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby have both gained extensive followings by their work in Kalem productions, notable among recent releases being "Stingaree" and the four-part feature, "The Pitfall." They will be favored with unusual opportunities for the display of their versatility in "The Love Pirates" since there is a strong touch of comedy present throughout the dramatic action of the stories. The comedy is of the satiric nature to be expected from the author of "Snobs" and "The Red Light of Mars."

Though long ranked among the most prominent of literary lights it is since the publication of "God's Man," one of the most talked-of novels in years, and for some time past at the top of the "six best sellers" list, that George Bronson Howard has been recognized as one of the American writers whose work will live. He is undoubtedly the youngest American novelist of distinction. Though no figures are mentioned by the film company it is probable that the cost of "The Love Pirates" will set a new picture mark.

Like many other leading literary men, George Bronson Howard is an ex-newspaperman. Though barely in his thirties, and with a life filled with activity, by his prolific pen and broad vision he has succeeded in obtaining recognition as a novelist, dramatist and librettist. As a newspaperman Bronson Howard served on the New York Herald, the Brooklyn Citizen and the Baltimore American, after which he went to the Philippines in 1900 for a news syndicate. While there he held office in the customs and constabulary service under the Philippine Civil Government, leaving there for China, where he assisted in the reorganization of the Chinese Imperial Army. He served in Manchuria during the early days of the Russian-Japanese War as a correspondent for the London Daily Chronicle until he was deported by the Russians for getting uncensored matter through the lines.

After a few years in newspaper and magazine work in California on his return to this country he came east to engage in more ambitious work. His contributions to the Popular Magazine, which included the famous "Norroy, Diplomatic Agent," stories, are well remembered as among the work of a group of authors who brought that publication to the crest of popularity. The "Norroy" stories were later published in book form, and have since been translated into several languages. Bronson Howard at this time wrote "The Only Law," undoubtedly the first crook play, and forerunner of the "Within the Law" type. It was later revived under the title "The Double Cross" with such stars as Arnold Daly, Emmett Corrigan and Florence Rockwell in the cast. "Snobs," the first starring vehicle of Frank McIntyre, was a big hit on Broadway and equally successful when adapted to the screen.

Turning to a lighter field, Mr. Howard wrote the book and lyrics for two Winter Garden successes, "The Passing Show of 1912," and "Broadway to Paris." The following season he collaborated on the book and lyrics of another Winter Garden hit, "The Whirl of Society."

"Scars on the Southern Seas," a novel; "Sea Gold," a serial, and "The Red Light of Mars," a play, are works of Mr. Howard's pen during the succeeding years. In book form, "The Red Light of Mars" has been highly praised by such critics as Arnold Daly, who declared it, "The best comedy ever written by an American, probably the best play," and George Broadhurst, whom it caused to say, "I honestly believe George Bronson Howard is one of the few American writers whose work will live."

"An Enemy to Society," the novel later successfully dramatized, is another of Bronson Howard's well-remembered works. "God's Man," the Bobbs-Merrill novel, is the most recent. Surely there are bright omens for the success of "The Love Pirates," following as it does, so sensationally successful a work as "God's Man," which critics have declared to be a masterpiece.

Capt. Kleinschmidt Now at Italian Front

His Wonderful Pictures to Be Seen Soon in America—Will Lecture on His Personal Adventures.

By W. Stephen Bush.

ANOTHER formidable looking letter from war-ridden Europe has arrived in the office of the Moving Picture World. It is dated November 8 and mailed from Trieste. The writer is Captain F. E. Kleinschmidt, well-known to readers of this paper. The accompanying pictures show that the Captain is still in the thrilling centre of things and likewise that he lets no opportunities escape him.

The Walls of Belgrade.

Captain Kleinschmidt in his letter says that he has returned from the Servian front and that his work in Servia being practically finished he has gone to Trieste, where the Austrian headquarters are situated. He speaks of having secured permission to go to the Italian front.

He goes on to say: "I am here in Trieste now and will go in a submarine boat and on the Isonzo front. On my return I found amongst my mail two copies of the Moving Picture World. Believe me, I was glad to see the old Moving Picture World once more. I devoured it from cover to cover to get an idea of what is going on in the moving picture business." Captain Kleinschmidt later left Trieste and looked over the bloody battlefields on the Italian front. "I have seen," he writes, "much fighting and many battles during my nine months at the front, but this region here beggars description. In three great offensive movements the Italians have tried to break through the iron wall of Austrian forces and a hundred thousand Italians have broken their skulls on this wall: they are lying in heaps before the barbed-wire entanglements."

The Captain speaks of the extraordinary facilities he enjoyed for taking pictures. He was requested to show his films to the great General Staff to the Crown Prince and Archduke Frederick. Here is another interesting passage from the letter:

The Fortress Kalemogdan, Belgrade, from 3,000 Feet Altitude.

. "I circled over Belgrade for an hour and a half and took moving pictures from a height of 3,000 feet. I enclose some views I took with my Graflex camera when I ran out of Kino films."

One of the accompanying pictures shows just what the Captain accomplished.

With all the excitement and the adventurous times it appears that the Captain is just a bit homesick and looks forward with thinly disguised pleasure to the day of his return to "God's country." All of his films have been incorporated into the official war archives of Germany and Austria. Captain Kleinschmidt expects to return to this country some time in January. The chances are that he will come close upon the heels of his most interesting letter. He expects to show his war films and lecture on the events of the great struggle and on his own thrilling and unique personal experiences. He has alternately hobnobbed with royalty and shared the life of the common soldiers in the trenches and on the firing line. He surely will be worth listening to when he comes back and his pictures will have the stamp of authenticity.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

"Lydia Gilmore" at the Strand.

PAULINE FREDERICK is the star at the Strand theater this week, appearing in a photo-dramatic adaptation of Henry Arthur Jones' powerful drama "Lydia Gilmore," a Paramount picture produced by the Famous Players Film Company. In this silent drama Miss Frederick makes a distinct departure from any role in which she has been seen on the screen, and portrays a woman who holds the secret knowledge that her husband is a murderer. Though she loves her husband, his increasing neglect of her gradually cools her affection for him, and when she meets Benham, a great prosecuting attorney, his influence over her son and his love for the boy win the regard and, finally, the love of Miss Gilmore.

The Strand Topical Review contains latest news and war pictures, and new ladies' fashions in colors, taken in this country and abroad. The concert program is a varied and pleasing one. The soloists for the week are: Margaret Horton, contralto; Martha De Lachman, soprano; Martin Richardson, tenor, and Bruce Weyman, baritone.

"The Old Homestead" at the Broadway.

"The Old Homestead," is which the late Denman Thompson starred for over thirty years, has been converted into a Paramount picture by the Famous Players Film Company and is being shown this week at the Broadway theater.

Director James Kirkwood and his company went to New England and spent several weeks in photographing scenes in and about the Thompson farm and in the outlying country, where there still exists to a remarkable degree the same interesting and delightful types that were found by Thompson when he wrote the play three decades ago. Even the interior of the Thompson home was used.

Triangle Program at the Knickerbocker.

De Wolf Hopper's film debut in "Don Quixote" has been so successful at the Knickerbocker theater that he is being retained in the Triangle star combination this week. The rest of the program presents Willard Mack in "The Conqueror" and Chester Conklin in "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts." The last-named is a Keystone comedy and a monoplane and a biplane figure prominently in the action. The play ends with the blowing up of a 200-foot chimney, burying the comedy villain under the bricks.

De Wolf Hopper proved last week the fallacy of a pet theatrical tradition. The week before Christmas has always been a bugbear to the stage world, yet "Don Quixote" and Hopper attracted large audiences to the Knickerbocker all the week. Hundreds of school teachers were present at the various performances and expressed their approval of the film version of the Cervantes classic as an educational force.

Program at the Vitagraph Theater.

"The Crown Prince's Double," a five-part Blue Ribbon Feature, heads the bill at the Vitagraph theater this week. The principal parts are portrayed by Maurice Costello, Ann Laughlin, Thomas R. Mills, Anders Randolf, Howard Hall and other Vitagraph players of prominence. Included in the program is a three-part Broadway Star Feature, "The Wanderers," produced by the Western Vitagraph Company, featuring Mary Ruby, William Duncan and George Holt. The photoplay tells the story of a wandering blacksmith, made wealthy overnight, by a stock boom, and contains a fall over a precipice that furnished real thrills. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are seen at their best in "By Might of His Right," a one-part comedy, in which Donald MacBride is also cast.

"The Birth of a Nation" is in the last week of its run at the Liberty theater.

The Romance of a Great Business

The Beginnings of the House of Pathe—Patience and Industry the Keynotes.

GREAT businesses do not, like the dragon's teeth of mythology, spring into life fully equipped and formidable in the panoply of might. Rather are they the slow evolution of a big idea in the mind of a genius to which has been brought the propelling force of vigorous personalities, strong wills and generally a high standard of commercial ethics. In all the history of business there is no more remarkable growth than that shown by the motion picture industry. Realizing that today it is the fifth in importance of all the great businesses of the United States, it is hard for one to reconcile himself with the fact that some twenty years ago there was no picture business—merely an Idea, that Drama, Opera and Comedy sat all powerful and apparently inviolate on the throne of the Speaking Stage and that the man who would have prophesied that they must yield supremacy to the long rolls of celluloid film and the flashing of rays of light upon a snowy screen would have been looked upon as a fool or a dreamer. But Genius gives Vision or the sons of men would today be living the life of the Troglodytes of past ages. Let us then concede that the pioneers of the World's greatest amusement were geniuses and men of Vision.

Charles Pathe.

The photodramas we see today are built upon no greater romance than the rise of the house of Pathe, the great international business with factories, studios and selling organizations in all parts of the globe, yet only about twenty years ago it was founded by four brothers, who each contributed his whole capital of 2,300 francs apiece—less than $500, for each, and less than $2,000 for all, and after only three weeks two of them, horrified by their own rashness, withdrew, taking their money with them! Today Emile and Charles Pathe, the two to whom was given Vision and who remained, are drawing $100,000 apiece per year in salaries alone, besides their great profits from the business!

Harking back to those early days we find Charles Pathe with two of those primitive machines where one was privileged by depositing a coin to see a succession of tiny photos tumbling over one another, and giving the effect of life action. The original idea had been our own Edison's, and Mr. Pathe was the one man in Europe to recognize that there was the germ of great things. In a tiny store he placed these machines on view and quickly saw that it was profitable. There were no changes of program in these machines—and but one picture to each. Mr. Pathe saw that to make his patrons come back again and again it was necessary to provide new pictures. Then and there was born the modern film exchange idea, for he purchased twenty machines, placed them in twenty different towns, and switched his pictures in weekly rotation.

From his profits he secured Lumiere's motion picture camera, then just completed, and began to take his own pictures, ten or fifteen feet at a time. His wife feeding chickens, a railroad train entering a station, a man running, sheep grazing; these were his early subjects. The idea of projecting these strips of film into the screen helped the infant industry tremendously. Mr. Pathe took his fragmentary films in his pockets to London, Berlin, Rome, traveling third-class because of his limited means, and sold them there. Gradually his films lengthened and his markets increased, but for some time he was his own cameraman, shipping clerk, manufacturer, salesman, and demonstrator.

One day the idea came to him that a story could be worked out upon the screen—that such film stories would possess a wider appeal than the bare facts of every-day life which he had been filming. He hired Max Linder, then an actor, limp of purse, at $4 a day to work in comedies, and Louis J. Gasnier, a stage manager and play producer of Paris, to direct the taking of these pictures. Here was born the photoplay of today and from this beginning have come the "Cabirias," "The Births of a Nation," etc., with their universal appeal and gripping power. Max Linder, still considered by many critics the greatest comedian of the screen, up to the time of the war was drawing $70,000 per year, a colossal figure for France. Louis J. Gasnier, the first Pathe director, is today general manager and vice-president of the vast Pathe American interests.

A wise man has said we cannot stand still—we must either progress or deteriorate. The house of Pathe through all the years has not retreated, but has consistently kept at the head of the procession. The one-room factory of twenty years ago today is represented by a 14,000,000 franc factory in Joinville, France, with sisters in Montreuil, and other places; by others in England and the United States, the open-air platform where the first plays were staged was the ancestor of huge modern studios in France, the United States, England and India; the selling force of one man who carried his tiny films in his pocket is today represented by scores of offices and exchanges in all parts of the world, there being nearly forty in the United States alone; the news film which even today in the face of wide competition is associated in the minds of most people with the "Pathe Weekly," the first to be made, has a lusty family in the Pathe News in the United States, The Pathe Gazette in Great Britain, the Pathe Journal in France, the Pathe Giornale in Italy, and another with an unpronounceable name in Russia.

It is truly good for one's own inspiration's sake when looking at a Pathe Gold Rooster play, the name by which the best films of the Pathe product are known, to remember the busy man who was not too busy to have Vision, tramping the broad highways with his camera some twenty years ago!

VIOLA DANA IN "THE INNOCENCE OF RUTH."

Viola Dana, the dainty little Edison artist, will at last have in the Kleine-Edison feature, "The Innocence of Ruth," the chance she has been seeking for a long time; an opportunity to do a bit of dancing. For if there is one thing that this little lady can do delightfully, it is to dance. She excels at the classic dance and seems to catch in her lithesome body the very spirit of perfume-scented spring and carefree child days. In it, her spontaneous girlishness, which has endeared her to many on the screen, finds freest and prettiest expression. Yet this little miss does not frown upon the ballroom dance like many who love the classic steps. In fact, did the screen let you hear her voice, you could hear in this play audible sniffles from a cold which she caught at the Boston Exhibitors' Ball from dancing too much. Miss Dana was taught to dance by a famous danseuse, now retired. She has won a number of prizes for excelling in ballroom dances. In the feature, "The Innocence of Ruth," she ranges over some four or five different dances.

REVISE YOUR MAIL LIST.

F. F. Latta, president and treasurer of the Cozy Company, operating the Cozy, Princess and Lyric theaters of Austin, Minn., hands this bit of timely advice to manufacturers:

"Why don't the producers revise their mailing lists? There is delivered to us each week bundles of matter addressed to houses that have been out of business for five or six years, and if this condition prevails throughout the country, which no doubt it does, it must mean tons of matter each week wasted, to say nothing of the labor and expense of postage."

World Film Productions

Will Open the Year With a Number of Noteworthy Subjects.

THE first month of the new year finds the World Film Corporation and its staff of directors, players and scenic artists engaged upon a group of feature pictures that promise to be the most imposing of this organization's many productions.

Clara Kimball Young, prominent among photoplay stars, is at work under the direction of Edwin August in a Russian five-part drama dealing with revolutionary plots and counterplots. Many of the exterior scenes were taken during the recent big snow storm with exceptionally realistic effects. Particular enthusiasm was aroused among the heads of the organization by the successful staging of a scene depicting the Kishineff massacre in which nearly a thousand people appeared.

Director Chautard and a company headed by Frances Nelson, June Elvidge and Douglas MacLean are producing the filmed version of Jules Eckert Goodman's remarkable play, "The Point of View." The pictorial adaptation by Emmett Campbell Hall maintains only the thread of the original play and builds it into a powerfully dramatic story. Miss Nelson has the most important part in which she has yet appeared under the World Film banner, and Miss Elvidge, too, is expected to win new laurels through her skillful performance of the important role in which she is cast.

George Beban's original story of life in pastoral France and in the Parisian studios and salons is rapidly nearing completion under the masterly hand of Director Tourneur. The many thousands of picture patrons who reveled in Beban's marvelous characterization in "An Alien" will soon see this noted character actor in a role that gives him the greatest opportunities of his stage and screen career.

Miss Kitty Gordon, the statuesque queen of musical fame, is progressing rapidly with her first film venture at the Paragon studio under the direction of Frank Crane. This picture, an adaptation of H. C. Phillips' noted novel "As in a Looking Glass," affords Miss Gordon the opportunity to wear a marvelous array of gorgeous gowns and to display every phase of her dramatic talent.

Holbrook Blinn, Director Barry O'Neill and the company producing "Life's Whirlpool," an adaptation of Frank Norris' great American novel, "McTeague," have returned from the south with every foot of the picture completed. It is being cut and assembled for immediate release. Private showings have convinced Lewis J. Selznick and the other heads of the World Film Corporation that in "Life's Whirlpool" they have the most gripping picture yet produced at their studio.

Director Oscar Eagle and his star, Robert Warwick, have nearly completed the final interior scenes of the five-part filmed version of Henry Russell Miller's successful novel, "The Ambition of Mark Truitt." The title for this picture has been a much-discussed matter in the World Film offices, but a final decision has been reached on "The Quest Eternal."

WALTER MACNAMARA REJOINS UNIVERSAL.

When the papers announced recently that Jane Gail, the talented and popular English star, had returned from England and the zone of Zeppelins and rejoined her old partner, Matt Moore, at the Imp studios, the Universal Film Manufacturing Company received many congratulatory letters from exhibitors who were exceedingly happy that the comedy pair was back in harness again for the Universal.

But "old home week" is going on right along at the Imp studio, as Walter Macnamara, author of "Traffic in Souls," and other photoplays which have gained wide and extensive popularity, has come back, and will be associate director and script writer for the Matt Moore-Jane Gail Imp comedy company. The English trio has already started operations at the new studio at Leonia, and their first releases will be made in January.

MOSS SENDS THE "ONE DAY" PLAYERS SOUTH.

The players appearing in the B. S. Moss screen production of "One Day," a sequel to Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," left New York last Saturday, December 25, aboard "The City of Montgomery," with Savannah as their destination.

In addition to Jeanne Iver, the star of the organization, Director General Hal Clarendon and Head Cameraman H. M. Dean and the supporting company, there were in evidence the technical director and his staff, assistant cameramen, property men and electricians, making in all a total of forty-two for which passage was booked.

Gardner Hunting With Wharton

ONE item of news that will be received widely with interest, not only by members of the motion picture fraternity of New York and of the country at large, but also by the followers of the writers' craft and by readers of the magazines all over America, is the announcement made this week that Wharton Incorporated have secured the services of Gardner Hunting, writer, editor and scenarioist, whom they have put in charge of their scenario department.

Gardner Hunting

Mr. Hunting has many friends, both among the men and women who are making the literature and the pictures of this country to-day, and those who are enjoying both. His stories, especially those for and about boys, are known wherever the leading periodicals find their way to home firesides, and, though he is a comparatively new recruit to the motion picture world, he needs no other introduction than a mention of his name, to be sure of a warm welcome.

Some great plans are brewing in that model plant of the Whartons at the foot of Lake Cayuga. Feature pictures from the popular novels of Fred Jackson, from the Broadway and country-wide stage-successes of the Shuberts, as well as some original and unique things, with which the name of Wharton is becoming syonymous, are to follow the Wallingford and Elaine series. Clyde Fitch's "The City" and the never-to-be-forgotten "Hazel Kirke" are among the earliest of the good things to make their appearance for this early winter season. Fred Jackson's "Red Robin," an amazing story of a secondary personality, will soon be picturized. Mr. Hunting has just finished another scenario based on Mr. Jackson's famous Lloyd Demarest stories, and is putting the finishing touches on a remarkable snow-picture of Leo Wharton's own original authorship, which will probably be released under the title "A Tragedy of the Snows."

Mr. Hunting was for several years editor of People's Magazine, of Street & Smith's list, and has staunch friends on the staff of that popular publishing house, as well as among the multitude of writers for their periodicals. His books are being featured among the Christmas offerings in the great stores, and many of their readers will soon be looking forward to the things in his pictures of which they have grown fond in his stories. There is many a man among the scenario writers and editors as well as the editors of the craft's own periodicals who will extend a cordial hand to him and wish him good luck in his new undertaking.

SCREENERS HOLD CHRISTMAS TREE.

A hundred members of the Screen Club gathered about a big tree in the parlors of the clubhouse on the evening of Tuesday, December 21. King Baggot was chairman of the committee that had arranged the plans for a "get-together." President Billy Quirk acted as Santa Claus and saw to it that every Screener got at least one Christmas present. The fatherly advice that accompanied each token was the cause of a steady flow of laughter. Later there was a spread downstairs. There were songs by Bruce Weyman, whose "Mandalay" and "Mother of Mine" were applauded long; Sam Ryan, who, with his Irish songs, kept the crowd in high humor; Joe Phillips, Harry Benham and Georgio Majeroni. Sidney Bracy and William McKenna accompanied at the piano. It was entertainment of the best.

PANTAGES BOOKS "RED CIRCLE."

B. E. Loper, manager of Pathe's Los Angeles office, wires under date of December 17 that Alex. Pantages after viewing competitive serials booked Pathe's "Red Circle" for Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane and Tacoma. Mr. Loper wears a broad smile, for Mr. Pantages' judgment counts for a lot in his territory.

Metro Pictures in 1916

Announcement of Plans Includes "Survival of the Fittest" Predicts President Rowland.

THE year 1916 is to be by far the most important year in the history of the development of motion pictures, and it is to be a year of the survival of the fittest." This is the prediction of President Richard A. Rowland of the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Metro has laid its plan definitely for the coming year, which includes many additions and improvements to its present service. It announces, as its permanent list of stars under long time contracts, Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Mme. Petrova, Ethel Barrymore, Mary Miles Minter, Hamilton Revelle, Valli Valli, Martha Hedman, Mabel Taliaferro, Edmund Breese, Emmy Wehlen, Marguerite Snow, Julius Steger, Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine.

A decided innovation for Metro will be a series of fourteen pictures, two reels in length, in which Francis X. Bushman will be the star, and Beverly Bayne is to be featured with him. Each one of these pictures will be complete in themselves, but they will constitute a completed long story when they have all been shown. The stories are unusual in character, vital in plot, and they will present some new ideas in picture making. A celebrated author has completed the series. Special campaigns have been outlined and will be conducted in behalf of the Bushman-Bayne series, and in connection with two other special series of two-reel subjects in which two distinguished women stars will be featured.

Production of Metro wonderplays will be carried on almost exclusively in the East, although the Quality Pictures Corporation will continue to hold its Los Angeles studio in readiness in case of need. Metro now has studios at No. 3 West Sixty-first street, New York City, where the Rolfe Photoplays Inc., under the general management of Maxwell Karger, and Columbia Pictures Corporation under the general management of Charles Maddock, have been making pictures during the past six months; a studio in Fort Lee, N. J.; the Popular Plays and Players studio, at No. 238 West Thirty-fifth street; as well as the largest studio in the world under glass, and another local studio will be added to the list before March.

While special stress will be laid on the making of five-reel feature subjects, there will also be one-reel comedies and two-reel subjects, in which the foremost Metro stars will appear. Metro's aim for the New Year is to make the best pictures possible, with consistent quality the watchword.

The list of Metro productions for the year include a large number of original scenarios in addition to adaptations from famous plays and books already purchased by the scenario department. Vital dramas that are clean and tremendously interesting, stories with continuity, and power rather than "punch," are in a general way, the sort of productions that may be expected. The classics have been drawn upon for eight of the summer productions.

"Metro looks forward," said President Richard A. Rowland, in speaking of the coming months, "to a great year, because Metro enthusiasm, Metro spirit and Metro ability is concentrated as never before, on the making of good pictures.

MAURICE CYTRON JOINS HORSLEY.

Maurice Cytron has joined David Horsley's staff of assistant directors and has been assigned to Director Bowman's company, now producing "The Bait," which is to be the first Horsley-Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, release. He was associated with Mr. Bowman when the latter was directing plays starring Francis Bushman at the Quality studios.

Mr. Cytron's first work in motion pictures was with the Lubin company in Arizona as assistant director to Romaine Fielding, who was producing western dramas. This was six years ago. Later he was with Selig at Los Angeles as assistant to Burton L. King. A six months' engagement with the Eclair company at Fort Lee, N. J., was followed by a contract with Essanay and then the Quality company.

SYDNEY MASON TO BE FEATURED.

Because of his good work in Rialto Star Features on the Mutual Program, the Gaumont Company will feature Sydney Mason with Miss Marguerite Courtot in the Mutual Masterpicture Company to be directed by Henry J. Vernot, at Jacksonville, Fla. Before appearing upon the screen, Mr. Mason supported Blanche Walsh and Lillian Langtry. His last legitimate work was for Cohan and Harris in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford."

Frank Mayo

FRANK MAYO, who is featured in "The Red Circle," the serial detective photoplay produced by Balboa and released by Pathe, is the third actor of that name to come before the theatergoing public prominently. His grandfather, Frank Mayo, one of the foremost American actors of a generation ago, is still remembered for his sterling characterizations in "Davy Crockett" and "Pudd'in' Head Wilson."

Frank Mayo.

However, the present bearer of the name does not seek approval for the achievements of his distinguished ancestor. He stands on his own footing as a player, and as such he will surely measure up well alongside the Mayo family traditions. Although American born, Americans do not yet know much of this young man, for the greater part of his professional life has been spent abroad.

Frank Mayo III was born in New York twenty-nine years ago. He played in his grandfather's companies as a child and was on the train with him when he died. He has been with the Horkheimer Brothers ever since.

TIPPETT PLEASED WITH UNIVERSAL CITY.

That despite pictures he had seen and accounts he had read concerning the Universal's Pacific Coast studio he had absolutely no conception of its size and completeness, is the substance of remarks made by John D. Tippett, managing director of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company of England, after having been conducted through the Universal City studios the day after his arrival on the Pacific Coast by H. O. Davis, vice-president and general manager.

As head of the European branch of the Universal Film Company Mr. Tippett went west while on a trip to the United States to see for himself just what the home of Universal Films is really like.

"I have often wondered," he remarked, "how it is that the Universal films I have seen are so well done from the standpoint of casting and local color. Now it is quite plain to me. It could not be otherwise. With the hundreds of actors at the big studio from whom to choose the desired type, and with a staff of technical men at the beck and call of directors who need foreign sets, it is easily to understand how they are so nearly perfect. It is wonderful, and I only wish I were able to take back with me some idea of it to my friends in the industry in England."

Mr. Tippett sailed for England on Wednesday, December 22.

NEW VITAGRAPH OUTDOOR STUDIO.

Here is a panorama view of the new studio of the Vitagraph Company at Hollywood, Cal., showing the open air stage where it is posible to take as many as twelve different pictures at the same time. The buildings in the distance nearing completion are to be used for the mechanical departments of the industry. The property of the Vitagraph Company covers several acres, and the surrounding property provides scenes for thrilling rides and prairie scenes.

New Vitagraph Outdoor Studio, Hollywood, Cal.

The New News Reel

Big Four Branches Active in Behalf of Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial.

FOLLOWING the announcement that the new Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial would be released through the V-L-S-E, representatives of that organization made a very quick and effective canvass of the field, with the result that this news feature will have as wide a distribution from its inception as any film of like character has ever obtained.

The first release will be on January 4th. There will be two releases each week thereafter, on Tuesday and Friday. Each release will consist of approximately one thousand feet of film. Eight hundred feet of this film will be devoted to national and international subjects, the other two hundred will have to do with the local news of the particular zone in which it is displayed. In addition to this, there will be "extras," such as newspapers issue. This means that when some great, important national or international happening occurs, the motion picture narrative of it will be rushed to those exhibitors who are regular users of this service. With this special will go proper publication, advertising, and proper lobby and outdoor posters.

With all the pictures, there will be issued a one-sheet poster, and a set of five original photographs, 11 x 14, with printed captions illustrating scenes from the reel.

As has been indicated in the announcements for this pictorial, it will be extensively advertised in all of the Hearst magazines and newspapers, covering as they do, every section of the country. The first advertisement for the pictures appeared in the Hearst papers of Sunday, December 26th. It ocupied a full page. Quarter-page advertisements are scheduled to appear daily thereafter.

In addition to these advertisements, the Hearst papers will print once a month, a list of all exhibitors in their respective territories, showing the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial. This will be afterwards distributed in a handy booklet memorandum form, which is an innovation that it is thought will be welcomed by both the trade and the public, for the reason that the great difficulty in advertising of such features in the past, has been to inform the public where these might be seen.

The first release will be issued from New York. After the system of distribution has been effected, releases will be made from Chicago and from San Francisco as well, each containing eight hundred feet of the same material which makes up the New York release, and two hundred feet of subjects of interest primarily to the particular sections of the country in which those cities are located.

Among the many novelties which have been introduced for this service in addition to the cartoons by Tom Powers and the exceptional fashion pictures which are to be run, will be a human interest department in which will be shown studies of men and women prominent in the public life.

The editing of this news service is under the direction of Ray Hall, who has his headquarters at the Vitagraph plant in Brooklyn. Mr. Hall for many years, was in the general news service field, including such organizations as the United Press and the International News Service, and was formerly editor of the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial.

Fatty and Mabel Booked East

With Minta Durfee, Al St. John and Others They Will Start From Los Angeles Day After Christmas.

THE new Eastern Keystone company, under the direction of Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, will start from Los Angeles for New York on December 26. The celebrated Mabel Normand is the star, and prominent among the principals are Minta Durfee and Al St. John. The company, while possibly making a few stands en route to film scenic views, expect to arrive in New York on New Year's Day or soon thereafter. They will probably use Fort Lee studios, but their work will not be confined to this city, as they will handle a good many locations in various parts of the East.

This will be "Our Mabel's first Eastern film takisg in three or four years. She is delighted at the prospect. While an Atlanta girl, Miss Normand's mother and sister live in New York and there will be a joyful family reunion about the first of the year.

WIFE OF GAUMONT ACTOR DEAD.

Mrs. Phin Nares, wife of a member of Gaumont's Casino Star Comedy Stock Company, expired December 20. She had herself occasionally appeared in Casino productions with her husband.

Reducing Fire Hazard in Exchanges

Ludwig Diller, President Atlas Film Trading Company, Draws Conclusions from Recent Blaze.

Editor, Moving Picture World:

We ask your particular attention to the facts that developed in our recent fire at our office, at Atlas Film Trading Company, at 1600 Broadway. There were many peculiarities developed which we believe to be of great interest to the motion picture trade in general, as these facts seem to lessen the hazards of handling and storing film. The Mecca Building is one of the modern fireproof office buildings having a fireproof floor but a wood top floor. Aside from this wood flooring there is no combustible material except window frames in the building. The building is also equipped with a high-pressure sprinkler system.

We have a small rewinding room for two operators, and this room contains three sprinkler heads. Our film was contained in old fashioned metal cabinets, but each reel was also in a tight tin can. At the time of the fire practically all of the reels were in the cabinets. There were, however, on the floor of the room several tin cans containing film. On top of these tin cans were three reels of film that had just been returned from one of the theaters, and unfortunately they were not in any receptacle whatever.

Our film examiner was working on a four-reel feature, one reel of which was on the rewinder; the three other reels were laying around on the table and were not in tin cans. Aside from the seven reels mentioned by us, no film was exposed in the room other than mentioned above. A few features were on the floor in tin cans, the balance of the film approximately one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five reels being in metal cabinets in tin cans. The fire itself apparently started from defective wiring or a short circuit on the rewinding table, and it was but an instant before the reels on the rewinder were in a mass of flame which within a very few seconds ignited the additional three reels on the table. The heat from this blaze was intense enough within a short time, possibly thirty seconds, to melt a sprinkler head and start the water.

Within a short period, I should say approximately a minute, the three reels lying on the floor that were not in tin cans also ignited, exploding or opening up two more sprinkler heads. At or about this time everybody left the office and the door was closed so that it was impossible to know what the further action of the fire was until the fire department had done its work. As soon as we were permitted in our office again we found the following conditions prevailed:

The film in the tin cans on the floor was unburned and the heat had not been of sufficient magnitude to soften the emulsion and there was no evidence of fire. The cans were, however, half full of water. Upon opening the metal cabinets we found that 90 per cent. of this film was perfectly dry and only such cans as had loose lids contained any water whatever. The paint on the outside of one metal cabinet was badly burned and blistered and the heat was intense enough to blister and burn the paint on the inside of the cabinet, but the reels of film adjacent to this side of the cabinet were intact. Fortunately these reels were not in direct contact with the side of the cabinet, there being at least the space of an inch between the metal side and the tin can. The fact that the heat from the burning of the seven reels was not sufficient to either ignite the other film or melt the tin cans or do any other damage to the film contained in these cans we believe due to the fact that the act of the sprinkler system in the room was not instantaneous and the volume of the water spread into the room so great that the temperature was kept in almost a normal condition.

If this is not the case there is no way of explaining why the emulsion of the film was not softened. We also call your attention to the fact that the fire department upon arrival dumped a great deal of water into the room from the sprinkler system. Our great damage and loss was not occasioned by fire, but by water, as the office was wrecked. The film, however, was considerably damaged in its removal from the cabinets to the street, everything being wet and also the extra precaution taken by the fire department preventing the ignition of the film during its removal. This course consisted of dipping the reels in a bucket of water until they became rather damp.

The lesson to the trade from this fire we believe to be somewhat along this line: First, the fool-proof rewinding table with electrical connections so made and the lights so arranged that it is impossible for the film ever to come in direct contact with a wire. Second, that there should always be a minimum amount of film exposed on the operator's table in a rewinding room and that such film should at all times be contained in tin cans. Third, that an adequate sprinkler system will control the floor and prevent the spreading of the same to film contained in other cabinets or vaults, provided they are properly sealed in tin cans. These facts are considerably different from the requirements demanded by the various fire departments throughout the country. And if they can be established as true 90 per cent. of the film man's trouble in the storing and handling of motion picture film may be eliminated in the future.

LUDWIG DILLER,
President Atlas Trading Company.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Herrington Is Hopeful

League Matters Are "Looking Up"—Meeting of National Executive Committee—New Year's Resolutions Recommended by the President.

THE activities of President Herrington, of the National League, have taken him into Ohio recently, where the progress of the league is reported as most gratifying. Mr. Herrington says Ohio is a model state organization. It not only has the largest, but also the most active membership. The organized exhibitors of Ohio will continue their uncompromising fight against censorship of any and every kind. They do not believe that the moving picture men are in need of segregation like a lot of lepers who have to be examined and pronounced whole before they are allowed to mingle with the rest of society.

A meeting of the National Executive Committee of the league will be held in Chicago in the first week of the New Year. It is expected that the committee will decide upon the place and time of the next national convention of the league. A lively contest is anticipated. Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit and New York have friends in the committee and it is very probable that one of the cities here named will be the choice of the committee.

President Herrington has issued a characteristic New Year's greeting to all exhibitors and especially to members of the league. First in the list of New Year resolutions suggested by Mr. Herrington is this one: "I hereby resove that it is to my best interest to see a United Exhibitor's League to protect our business and therefore I will make application for membership at once."

Another very sensible resolution recommended by Herrington is this: "I will not refer to a man in the same business as 'my opposition.' In the future I will greet him as a fellow-exhibitor, recognizing the fact that he has as much right in the business as I have.

Here are the other resolutions:

Third—I will do everything within reason to work in harmony with him, knowing only too well, as taught by past history, that what I do to injure or undermine his business will also iniure or ruin my own business.

Fourth—That in the future I will not speak of a fellow exhibitor as a Greek, or a Jew, or an Irishman, or from any other view with hatred, but will look at him as a brother exhibitor, knowing that when our enemies, political or otherwise, attack us, whether it be in the form of adverse legislation or unjust taxation, they never refer to our nationality. They attack us as motion picture exhibitors, and it is to our advantage as exhibitors to combine our forces into one united organzition to meet and defeat the common enemy.

Now, as president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, I appeal to you to join that organization, and if the League is not what you think it should be, come in and help us make it what it ought to be.

I hope to hear of the adoption of the above resolutions by the thousands of exhibitors throughout this continent.

With best wishes for a successful future and with compliments of the season to you all.

F. J. HERRINGTON, President.
Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

OKLAHOMANS PLAN TRIP FOR MR. HERRINGTON.

In all probability National President F. J. Herrington will be present at the next annual meeting of the M. P. E. L. of A. of Oklahoma, which is due to take place February 11 and 12, 1916. Morris Lowenstein, secretary of the Oklahoma State League, recently wrote to L. W. Brophy of Muskogee, Oklahoma, who is a member of the National Executive Board, requesting that he personally take up the matter with President Herrington regarding his coming to Oklahoma. Mr. Brophy states that he will do so at the meeting of the Executive Board, which takes place January 5 at the La Salle Hotel, Chicago. Not only is it planned to have Mr. Herrington visit Oklahoma, but an effort is being made to arrange a Western circuit or tour for him, which will take in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, in the order named. Persons interested should correspond with James Delves, national secretary, 201 Apollo Building, 238 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

OKLAHOMANS IN SUNDAY OPENING FIGHT.

The M. P. E. L. of A., Oklahoma State Branch No. 23, through its secretary, Morris Lowenstein, has arranged for counsel to look after the case of the State vs. Smith, an employee of the Yale Theater Company, at Vinita, Oklahoma. Smith, the cashier and manager, and James Looney, the operator of the Grand theater, Vinita, Okla., were charged with operating a theater on Sunday. The exhibitors were represented by an able attorney, J. W. Thompson. The case was tried in the County Court and was a victory for the theater men, this being their first victory on Sunday closing, in a court of record, in the State. They won on every point. This was in July. It is now rumored that the opposition has filed an appeal in the Supreme Court. The league has retained eminent counsel to look after the case in the Supreme Court, should it be pushed.

Ann Murdock

ANN Murdock, little star of "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Essanay's film version of Clyde Fitch's brilliant comedy, arrived at the studio and immediately went on the floor with the picture in production. The young actress, prominent in the dramatic firmament is ridiculously young to hold such a place. Five years ago she finished her studies at a boarding school in Philadelphia. (Boarding school is used at the star's request.) She insisted it wasn't a finishing school, "just a plain, everyday boarding school." In June of that year, any ideas she may have had regarding a stage sareer were most certainly nebulous. But the following September found her starring in "The Call of the North," in New York, a hastily arranged and produced offering of Henry B. Harris. Under the Harris banner, the little lady appeared from time to time in such short-lived things as "The Noble Spaniard."

Ann Murdock.

Two years ago Charles Frohman offered her a contract which she accepted, and she is still with him on the stage. Her first Frohman play was "The Beautiful Adventure," a translation from the French in which she scored heavily. Then she appeared in "A Celebrated Case." After another successful run, she created the role of the bride in "Excuse Me."

Miss Murdock's age may be left to the guesses of anyone who cares to pass the time that way.

"You wouldn't believe me if I told you," she said. "And besides, I don't see what difference it makes to the people who see me."

But she is the youngest star, "the baby star" of Frohman's aggregation, and the most youthful he ever had. Her theory and recipe for success is "Work." In "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," she plays the part of Trentoni, the prima donna. Richard C. Travers plays opposite her in the title role.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Judge Butler, of Denver, Upholds "The Birth of a Nation."

HOLDING that if any race had any right to complain of the showing of "The Birth of a Nation," at the Tabor Grand Opera House, in Denver, Judge Charles C. Butler, of the third division of the District Court, recently sustained the application of the managers of the show for an injunction again Commissioner of Safety Nisbet, the chief of police, and all those acting under them from interfering with the presentation in that cit Judge Butler, however, in his decision stated that we would leave the matter open so that should occasion arise at any time which showed that an injunction would be necessary, the application could be renewed.

The lawyers representing the city attorney's office, reserved the usual exception so that they could have the matter reviewed in the Supreme Court, if they should so decide.

Judge Butler reviewed the case at length. He said he had attended the show on Monday night, December 13, at the request of the counsel for both sides.

I observed the picture thoughtfully, said Judge Butler. I have even reviewed the history of the times again since the beginning of this trial.

And, all in all, I am of the opinion that the attorneys have overlooked the real facts with regard to who has a right to complain of this picture, if we are to judge by those who are placed in a bad light in the picture.

I think that, without exception, throughout the play the white race is placed in the most despicable position.

They were the leaders in every act of lawlessneess that was shown on the screen and the negroes were merely used as their tools.

Wherever the negro of the South did vicious acts such as are depicted in the picture complained of, it is evident from the picture itself that they were not to blame.

The scenes depicted are of more than fifty years ago. No one now connects the present white man or the present negro with those times.

Two generations have passed. From my view of the picture none but a degenerate of any race would come from viewing that picture and start a riot or other trouble.

If we should suppress a picture or show because it had vicious characters we would have to suppress nearly all plays.

The courts should not interfere with the advancement of art on the stage or elsewhere, so long as there is nothing obscene or dangerous to the citzenship of the community.

Rumors in Chicago on Big Matters.

The presence in Chicago last week, at the same time, of David Wark Griffiths, Adolph Zukor, Carl Laemmle and Louis J. Selznick, gave rise to many rumors, some of them ridiculous and others startling.

One of the latter type was sent on the wing by the fact that Mr. Zukor and Mr. Griffith held two private conferences, about which they would reveal nothing. This rumor was to the effect that Mr. Griffith had resigned from the Triangle forces and that Mr. Zukor was exercising his most persuasive powers to induce him to join hands with Famous Players.

Another rumor went the rounds that several of the big interests were making soundings for consolidation, but none of the principals would shed any light on the matter.

It is safe to class all that has been said about the contemporaneous visit of these men as mere rumor, for no one is qualified to state that it happened by chance or was the result of prearrangement.

Mr. Zukor gave out that he was here to arrange plans for his organization for the coming year; Mr. Selznick stated that it was essential to the future of moving pictures that they should be distributed through the same channel; Mr. Laemmle said a little about the Bluebird product referred to in my last letter, and Mr. Griffith said nothing, except that he had merely stopped over for a few hours, on his way from New York to his Los Angeles studio.

Billie Burke, Chicago Tribune Star.

Miss Billie Burke is under contract with the Chicago Sunday Tribune as the star of that paper's next moving picture serial. She has been engaged for thirty weeks at $120,000, $50,000 of which has already been paid her, and the remainder will be drawn in weekly installments of $2,333.33 every Saturday.

Miss Burke has been secured under a special arrangement with her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr. The photoplay in which she will star is a drama of adventure, by Rupert Hughes and his wife, Adelaide Manola Hughes. Mr. Hughes is a well-known author and dramatic artist, and his wife is also a distinguished writer and actress.

The serial will be produced by George Kleine in his New York studios, and will comprise 20 parts, of two reels each.

An Eminently Unfair Minister Defeated in Bitter Attack Against Pictures.

Frank J. McWilliams, owner of the Casino and the Strand moving picture theaters in La Crosse, Wis., was arrested recently on the charge of violating the Sunday closing law in that city, the warrant being secured by the Rev. Joseph E. Watson of the West Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

It appears that the reverend gentleman has a special antipathy to the presence of picture theaters in residence districts of the city. He singled out the Strand as the especial object of his wrath, because it is located but a few blocks away from his church, but he had no charge to bring against downtown houses which also violate the Sunday blue law. He says he does not know that they are violating the law.

In a sermon delivered in his church on Sunday, December 12, the Rev. Mr. Watson, in his abuse of moving pictures, spoke in part as follows:

For example look into the home of a certain family; they are living comfortably; they are paying their bills and are able to face the world courageously. A picture show is established within easy reach of their home. They attend, and attend until it becomes a habit; the grocery bill begins to get behind a little; wages do not seem to go as far as they used to do; they begin to blame the high cost of living and the oppression of the r[illegible] in announcement of special features at the picture show. Listen to the conversation! "I wish we had saved our money ye terday, so we could go to this, but we can't afford so much." They read the bill again. There is the gaily colored billboard on the street. Listen! "I really would like to see that." There is a peep into the scanty purse and then the inevitable conclusion, "O, well, it's only a dime. I guess we can get along some way," and they put in some more of their money to swell the stream that is flowing into the rich coffers of the men higher up. More and more that family feels the cramp of poverty. They reduce living expenses; the inadequate dinner pail is the result, a feeling of the need of a stimulant; then the saloon, and finally a drunkard's home and a family of paupers. Who is responsible for the downfall of that family? If the railroad magnate in his luxurious home has not paid a just compensation for that man's labor, he ought to be rebuked and there ought to be laws to regulate his powers to oppress. The saloon, of course, is an evil which ought not to be, but the responsibility for the beginning of the chain of events that resulted in that family's undoing lies at the door of the 10-cent institution between those two extremes, which schooled them in extravagant and reckless spending.

It would be narrow-minded folly to assert that moving pictures, as such, are evil. They are used effectively in our educational institutions. They are a great success on our mission fields, but since the theater, as a business enterprise has six days in the week in which to operate legitimately, it has no right to desecrate the Christian Sabbath.

I have read many charges against moving pictures, but Mr. Watson takes the palm for making one of the most senseless. It is a new thing to learn that moving pictures make paupers and lead people to the saloon. I always thought the contrary was true, but then I don't see with Mr. Watson's eyes.

I am glad to state that Mr. McWilliams won his case hands down. It only took the jury five minutes to return a verdict in his favor.

What won the case was the proving of the fact that 10 per cent. of the net profits at the Strand, on Sundays, is contributed to charity.

I wonder if Mr. Watson sets a limit on the amount which any of his poor church members may contribute in alms. I don't think it would worry him very much if some zealot exceeded his means in the matter of giving. How he hates to think of the dimes and nickels that miss his poor box!

Chicago Film Brevities.

Tom Mix, Selig's writer, director and leading player of wild western dramas, came into the city Tuesday, December 21, all the way from Las Vegas, N. M. Mr. Mix was kept busy during the few days he spent here in receiving numerous friends and in giving audiences to representatives of the city press, in which he received large space. Mr. Mix told me that he will move his company of twenty players from Las Vegas to Newhall, Cal., in the near future. He informed me that he will engage in the production of features on a larger scale in California than hitherto attempted. He will soon produce the "Light of Western Stars," in five reels; also "The Last of the Dewans" in five reels, both works by the same author. Mr. Mix will write the scenario of these photoplays himself. He spoke in glowing appreciation of the great courtesy and kindness shown him by the officials of the town of Las Vegas and the county of that name. He was honored by being made a director of the Chamber of Commerce in Las Vegas; also deputy sheriff and honorary captain of the local militia company. "The New Deputy," in two reels, to be released in the near future, was built by Mr. Mix around the story of his military appointment as captain. Mr. Mix left for California Wednesday evening, December 22.

* * *

Robert R. Levy, president and treasurer of the Revelry Theater Company, which controls the Revelry theater on the West Side, has rented the Hippodrome, in Peoria, for eight days, beginning December 26 and ending January 22, for the showing of "The Battle Cry of Peace." The Hippodrome seats 1,750 people and the prevailing prices of admission were fixed at 25, 35 and 50 cents.

* * *

Watterson R. Rothacker, general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture Company, arrived from his trip to the Coast last week. Mr. Rothacker advised me that it is not true that he has taken over the United Photo-Plays Company's studio at Milwaukee and California avenues, as stated in a brevity in my last letter. He states that he has used this studio on a number of ocasions on a straight rental basis, and that he intends to use it some more, pending the time when his own studios will be ready for operation. "So far as taking it over, outright or completely, I have no such intention," said Mr. Rothacker.

* * *

Marshall Neilan, the well-known moving picture director and actor, was in Chicago Monday, December 20, as the guest of William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company. Mr. Neilan was en route from New York City to Los Angeles, Cal., where he will resume his position as a director with the Selig Company.

* * *

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the Signal Film Corporation, which is producing "The Girl and the Game," has taken out an accident insurance policy for $100,000 on Miss Helen Holmes, the star of that serial. The scenario calls for so many daring feats on the part of Miss Holmes that Mr. Hutchinson deemed it wise from a business point of view to have all risks covered.

* * *

The Prairie theater, Fifty-eighth street and Prairie avenue, this city, has been completed by Alfred Hamburger, and will be opened on Christmas Day. Mr. Hamburger considers the Prairie one of the most beautiful on his circuit and one of the best equipped for moving picture service.

* * *

English classes at the state normal school, Monmouth, Ore., recently added moving pictures to the regular course of studies. Twelve of George Kleine's features were rented by the school, after an inspection of more than a hundred reels. "Antony and Cleopatra" will be the first reel subject on the program, which also includes "Quo Vadis?" "Julius Caesar," "Spartacus," "Othello," "The Vendetta," and "The Last Days of Pompeii," etc.

* * *

It is gratifying to me to learn that the mail of Henry B. Walthall has been largely increased lately by the receipt of letters from literary and professional men, who congratulate and thank him for his fine impersonation of Edgar Allen Poe in Essanay's feature, "The Raven." These letters come from all parts of the country and, no doubt, not only please Mr. Walthall, but also strengthen him in his purpose to put all the art that is in him at the service of the moving picture subjects in which he appears.

* * *

The Ascher Brothers opened their fine theater, the Columbus, Sixty-third street and Ashland avenue, this city, on Saturday, December 18. The Ascher Brothers justly consider the Columbus one of the most beautiful in their long chain of houses. Architect Newhouse says of the design of the interior: "It has always been my aim while designing theaters to avoid the trouble often found—too many useless seats, due to the arrangement. I decided to substitute the amphitheater arrangement for the seats and place the screen in such a position as to afford a clear and direct view from any seat in the auditorium. The use of the dome lighting system, by which the management can burn 150 sixty-watt lamps throughout the performance and keep the house well lighted without affecting the picture will meet with popular favor."

* * *

"Thou Shalt Not Covet" is the title of a Selig Red Seal Play to be released through V-L-S-E, Inc., on Monday, February 7. This photodrama in five reels, written by James Oliver Curwood, features Tyrone Power and Kathlyn Williams, supported by a carefully selected company of Selig players, including Guy Oliver and Eugenie Besserer. Colin Campbell was the director. The story deals with the temptation of a man who loves his neighbor's wife, but finally finds strength and reunites a loving couple. Among the sensational episodes shown is the wreck of an ocean-going liner at sea. The ship strikes a derelict, and a crowd of men, women and children are seen struggling in the water. There is also shown a battle between a Royal Bengal tiger and a hyena, and Kathlyn Williams is seen struggling with an enraged leopard.

* * *

Film circles in Chicago were taken by surprise last week when the announcement was made of the marriage of E. C. Divine, president of the Strand Theater Company, and Mrs. Helen Ferguson, daughter of Mrs. Alfred B. Eaton, of 1210 North State street. The bride has been assistant manager at the Strand since it opened early last fall.

* * *

Judge Willis Brown, of the Juvenile Court of Salt Lake City, Utah, was arrested several days ago on the complaint of L. A. Thompson, of this city, a former schoolmate, who charged that Judge Brown had defrauded him out of $100. Mr. Thompson stated that Judge Brown had sold him three shares of stock in the Youth Photo Film Company some time ago, and that the company had ceased paying dividends on its stock when a picture showing Judge Brown and his work in the Juvenile Court was withdrawn. Judge Brown was arrested on the complaint of Thompson, but was released on bonds of $2,500. He has returned to his home in Salt Lake City for Christmas, and his trial has been set for January 17. It is now stated that Mr. Thompson, after an investigation, is satisfied with his stock, and agrees that he may have acted too hastily in his charge against his old friend. Ever since the first news of Judge Brown's arrest came out, I have felt that injustice was being done him. Since I first met Judge Willis Brown in the fall of 1910, I have been much interested in his work among boys. He was the originator of the "boy city" movement. That is, a city that is wholly run by boys, with a boy mayor, boy members of the council, boy bankers, boy editors and reporters, a boy postmaster, police boy, boy voters, etc., etc. I remember that Wm. N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, was so interested in Judge Brown's work that he made a special production of "The Boy City," founded by Judge Brown, near Charlevoix, Mich. That was in September, 1910, and a full description of the films was given by me in The Film Index, in the issue of November 5, that year. From that article I now quote the following tribute, which was taken from the Salt Lake Herald of a previous date: "When Judge Brown came here, children were being arraigned for petty offenses in the same dock with hardened criminals. There was a cell in the filthy city jail marked 'for juveniles.' Boys and girls were sent indiscriminately to the reform school and branded for life as unfit for good association when they were not essentially wicked or vicious; the per cent. of the saved was infinitesimal; the permanently damned was awful. This was the situation when Judge Brown came and began his talks to the boys, and it takes no long memory to recall how the boys rallied to his support, nor does it take any acute observation to discover that the cigarette evil has been almost entirely abolished among the boys of the community. There have been no more cases where boys have been imprisoned with hardened criminals. The man who used to sell cigarettes or liquor to boys has found it unprofitable as well as dangerous; instead of regarding the law and courts with terror the wayward youngsters have learned to know the judge as a refuge when they are tempted, a friend when they are in trouble, and to recognize their own obligation to observe the law and enforce it. Waiving any question of moral values, the Juvenile Court has been the best investment the city or state has ever made, and the returns are due to the judge who has managed it. Every principal in the public schools has declared the value of the court under Judge Brown's administration. Every man, woman and child who has had occasion to see the workings of the court, knows it is a powerful agency for the moral uplift of childhood of the whole community." No man with such a record as Judge Willis Brown can refer to, and with such mental and moral fibre as I know him to possess, could make such a lapse over a few paltry dollars paid for film stock. The truth of the matter is, so many peope now-a-days are so obsessed by the belief that there are millions in moving pictures that they consider an investment of $100 or $300 will make them rich. I confidently look forward to the exculpation of Judge Willis Brown from all blame at the forthcoming trial.

* * *

Wm. B. Wringer, who organized the Co-operative Film Association in this city about four weeks ago, is being sought for by twenty investors in that venture. Miss Alma Krueger, of this city, who was appointed secretary of the association, is being assisted by detectives to find the whereabouts of Mr. Wringer, who has disappeared. Miss Krueger charges that Wringer sold stock to twenty investors and collected $100 from each. It was the understanding that each investor was to be a player stockholder and Miss Krueger was cast for the leading role. It is understood that two films were made, while the admiring households of the actors looked on. Miss Krueger states that about $1,145 of the company's fund has not been accounted for. The office of the company was at 17 South La Salle street, this city.

* * *

The management of the New Strand theater presented Geraldine Farrar in "Temptation" for the week beginning Sunday, December 26. The preceding week "The Old Homestead" had a popular run.

* * *

"On the Fighting Line with the Germans," which has shown to fine business at the Fine Arts, was moved to the La Salle Opera House Sunday, December 26, replacing the French war pictures at the latter house.

* * *

The Supreme Court of Illinois, one day last week, ruled that the operation of moving picture shows within 200 feet of a church constitutes "an annoyance to, and interference with, religious worship." The case in which the ruling was made was that of Frank Nahser against the city of Chicago. Mr. Nahser was denied permission to operate a moving picture show near the First Presbyterian Church of Hyde Park. The Supreme Court held that it is within police powers to deny the permit.

* * *

In aid of the American-Examiner Christmas fund, Richard C. Travers and Miss Ruth Stonehouse, assisted by a large company of Essanay players, acted the leading parts in a special production of "Brought Home," in the Louis XVI ballroom of the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, December 23. The Crystal ballroom adjoining was thrown open to accommodate the large gathering assembled, a special studio having been built in the Louis XVI room by the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company. The affair was thoroughly enjoyed by all present and the fund of the newspapers interested was gratifyingly increased.

* * *

Ben Beadell is representative of "The Strange Case of Mary Page" in the territory covered by the branch offices in Chicago of the General Film Company. He started in December 15.

* * *

W. Fay Lynch has been appointed special representative of "The Strange Case of Mary Page," his territory covering the whole United States. The first episode of the serial will be released January 24.

* * *

George Kleine arrived in the city Friday morning, December 24, and spent the holidays with his family, returning to New York the following Monday.

HAZEL DAWN RETURNS FROM FLORIDA.

Hazel Dawn has just returned from St. Augustine, Fla., where she spent two weeks at the head of a Famous Players company under the direction of Sidney Olcott, where the principal scenes in her next production, "My Lady Incog.," were taken. The play, which is an original script written expressly for the star, combines to a greater degree than anything in which Miss Dawn has previously appeared on the screen, the elements of comedy and dramatic thrills.

Essanay for the New Year

Reports Plans for an Unusually Strong List of Releases in 1916.

ESSANAY is planning an unusually strong list of releases for 1916, and for January it has produced two plays that made a considerable success on the stage, as well as shorter plays of standard worth.

The two multiple-reel features are "The Misleading Lady," by Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey, and "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy. Ann Murdock was engaged by Essanay to take the leading feminine role in the later production with Richard C. Travers, who plays the title role. Fred E. Wright, Essanay director, arranged this stage production for the screen in five reels.

"The Misleading Lady," also in five acts, was adapted from the stage success by H. S. Sheldon and was directed by Arthur Berthelet. It features the well-known film stars, Henry B. Walthall and Edna Mayo.

Several strong three-act dramas are scheduled, including "The Prisoner at the Bar," which features Darwin Karr and Warda Howard, and directed by Joseph Byron Totten; "The House of Revelation," featuring John Lorens and Elizabeth Burbridge, and directed by Charles J. Brabin; "Pieces of the Game," featuring Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig, and directed by Clement Easton.

Among the two-reelers are "Angels Unawares," featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Edmund Cobb, and "Her Lesson," featuring G. M. Anderson. The fables of George Ade will be continued during the month and also the animated cartoons. The cartoons include besides those of Wallace A. Carlson on Dreamy Dud and on the news of the day, a cartoon by the noted cartoonist, Leon A. Searle.

Still another strong feature which will be released early in February is "Submarines of Society," a five-act drama by Richard Goodall, which features Marguerite Clayton, Lillian Drew, E. H. Calvert and Ernest Maupain. Mr. Calvert also directs the play.

Ellis to Direct "Sis Hopkins"

Company Leaves for Jacksonville Studio New Years—Single Reelers to Be First Productions.

THE announcement that Robert Ellis has been chosen as director for the Sis Hopkins Company, starts the ball rolling in the production of that forthcoming Kalem special. The company to support Rose Melville in her screen debut is being rapidly organized and plans call for a start for the Jacksonville studio on Saturday. A technical crew left New York last week, so that no time will be lost in beginning the work of production.

Kalem covered the field thoroughly before appointing a director for the picture from which so much is expected. Director Ellis has shown his worth as a producer of multiple-reel features and in the closing episodes of the "Ventures of Marguerite," but it has been only on infrequent occasions that he has been given opportunities at comedy work. Then the unexpected happened, when the "Sealskin Coat," a coming episode of the "Ventures" was given its first showing to Kalem officials last week. This episode is delightful farce comedy, and the clean-cut manner in which Director Ellis handled his material left but one conclusion when the picture was over. Ellis was speedily informed to prepare for the trip south with the Sis Hopkins Company.

For a time it was the intention of the Kalem Company to present Rose Melville in a multiple-reel feature before starting the production of the one-reelers, which will in February replace the "Ventures of Marguerite" as the Friday General Film release. But the announcement of Rose Melville's acquisition in last week's trade papers resulted in a flood of letters from exhibitors and exchangemen, praising the drawing powers of a Sis Hopkins' one-reel series so that plans for a feature have been laid aside indefinitely.

Another item of Sis Hopkins' news made public by the Kalem Company last week was the announcement that Frank Minzey had been secured to play an important role in the pictures. Though long prominently identified with the Sis Hopkins' stage productions it took considerable persuastion to induce Mr. Minzey to consent to an appearance on the screen.

MISS RAE MARTIN PLAYING OPPOSITE "BUDD" ROSS.

Miss Rae Martin, who has headed one of the "Peg o' My Heart" companies, is now playing opposite "Budd" Ross in "Alias Mr. Jones," a Casino Star comedy to be released January 9.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

Local Censors May Go.

"We are With You," says Los Angeles Councilmen, Chamber of Commerce and Other Civic Organizations, "But Let's Wait"—This City on Eve of New Departure.

ON last Monday evening representative members of the City Council, Board of Education, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Ad Club and Chamber of Commerce, gathered at a dinner given by the Moving Picture Freedom League, to meet Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Censors, who is visiting here. At the banquet, various expressions were heard from those present regarding the proposal advanced by the motion-picture men that the local Board of Censors be abolished, and a commissioner, acting under the supervision of the National Board be substituted.

National Board Enough.

Mr. Brenton explained the workings of the National Board and declared that when a picture passes the final court of appeals of that board it undoubtedly was fit to be shown in any portion of the country. He argued for unanimity in this part of the industry, stating that if there is not unanimity, what is right in one city will be wrong in another, and in addition every city will be compelled to expend thousands of dollars to do over again the work already performed by the national board.

Dr. Sam Atkinson was chairman and introduced the speakers.

Dr. Scott of the Chamber of Commerce said that the organization stood ready to aid and protect every industry here and that the motion picture industry was to be recognized more than ever.

Four Censors Not Fair.

Councilwoman Lindsey made a very interesting talk, the essence being "It is not fair to the industry to let four people censor the films for a whole city of over half a million persons. We should be able to trust the National Board and then have one man here to inspect the films."

Mr. Brenton spoke on the National Board, which he said has been pursuing its work of presenting its philosophy and point of view to a vast number of organizations of influence for six and one-half years. No part of the country has remained untouched. The part it played in the matter of a motion picture ordinance for New York was widely discussed and commented upon. It has given advice and assistance to many cities interested in the physical surroundings of the motion picture theater. This has resulted in clean, wholesome and artistic playhouses.

He also touched on the evil of local censorship, saying "It is found to be a fact that small, local boards and the individuals conducting this work necessarily are biased in some of their judgments. Their decisions are often against the judgment of public opinion, and they are regarded as prudish, narrow, unwise or open to sinister influences.

"Most censorship by small groups is undemocratic, meddling, therefore, with the freedom of the people to see, consider and discuss moral and social matters.

"There is always the temptation to such small official groups and individuals to limit the free expression of ideas on the screen for reasons which may be personal to them, may be feelings of the class as against the mass, of the sect or religious group, or, finally, of some business or political constituency. This has been indicated by the supression of certain films in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kansas and Chicago.

In closing, the traveling censor stated that "the cities should accept the work of the New York board, and help it in every way possible, as the National Board was glad to hear suggestions and also criticisms."

Manufacturers Answer.

E. G. Judah, of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association said that his organization had already tried to compile records showing the extent of the film business in Southern California, and a resolution had been passed ordering the secretary to write the manufacturers here requesting confidential statistics on the volume of business which would be made up into one grand total, advertising it as the film industry in Los Angeles. This was last February, nearly a year ago, and only five answers were received to this respectful request. The secretary then sent out another letter but no more answers came in. Mr. Judah said the association had then gone by the five answers and placed the rating at $5,000,000 paid out in one year and employment of 25,000 persons. "It is your own fault, but we are with you, for we appreciate the fact that this greatest of industries is here with us. It is not only the material value we appreciate but the immense advertising value, and it is to be deplored that Los Angeles, which is your rightful home, should so retard your growth and freedom by allowing the small censors to hold forth.

"It seems to me that if New York has spent six and a half years on censor details they ought to be better able to censor films than a local board."

Councilmen Topham and Wheeler wanted the National Boards of Censors brought to Los Angeles. Councilman Conwell declared that if there must be censors, they should be national censors, citing the fact that the United States government has regulated almost every other industry of national importance. He stated the morals of the nation should also be cared for by government officials.

Frey Kley answered by explaining that it was necessary to censor the films in the city where they are released, New York.

C. J. McCormack of the Board of Education was present, Harold Janss, representing the Ad Club, the Rotary Club, and the Realty Board, read resolutions of these organizations pledging their hearty co-operation to enable the motion-picture companies to further their project of having one commissioner instead of a local board, so that the law as laid down by the big board would suffice, "and if it were not good, and a picture should slip through that our people did not like, why then our police department would be able to cope with the situation."

George Stout, business manager of the Keystone, told of the censoring of films saying that his company wanted censors and was glad to get a picture back without any cuts having been ordered.

Mr. Whittaker of the Dixon film told how his company had shut down on production until the local situation clears up a bit. Two hundred and seventy scenes were cut from the first part of the new picture for this reason.

William E. Bush, one of Los Angeles' most prominent automobile men, and president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, said he was opposed to one small board, dictating what people should or should not see. He cited the fact that the auto men send back east over two-thirds of their money while the film men spend practically the whole of theirs here, and that this city should call itself the home of the industry and set the example to other cities by starting the one-man commissioner idea.

So, if all goes as planned, the Mayor and Council will be petitioned to do away entirely with the local Board of Censors and a commissioner will be installed. Then the people can be the real and true board.

Now Censors Strike.

A new angle on the situation arose here when, tired of being held up to ridicule and of having their demands ignored by members of the theatrical fraternity, members of the Board of Censors held an indignation meeting Monday afternoon and delivered an ultimatum, to the effect that the ordinance relating to censorship will be strictly enforced if it takes the whole police force to do it. In just so many words it was announced that the next film shown without having been passed by the board will be confiscated and the man showing it will have to square the matter with the prosecuting attorney's office or forfeit his license and bond.

According to N. P. Jones, secretary, there will be no more running around making requests upon manager's to submit their plays, from the way the statement was made it was implied that the Board has no preference which course is elected.

Elbert Deffenbach called attention to the presence in the city of Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board, and hinted that he had been brought here by a prominent motion picture theater man with a view to influencing the local board. But Mr. Brenton arrived here and stated that he was on the trip and was glad to drop in on such an interesting fight. Mrs. Thomas and Mr. Deffenbach verbally attacked the national board and said, among other things, that it paid entirely too much respect to the wishes of the producers.

Tax Exhibitors?

Another obstacle seems to be arising on the horizon of the moving picture sea, which has been so rough of late. In view of the increasing work of the local board and their long hours, Mayor Sebastian is considering recommending to the Council that members of the board be allowed a monthly salary for their services.

If such salaries are provided the Mayor says the members of the commission should be paid out of the revenues of the department, and that this revenue should be provided through imposing a license fee upon the moving picture business of the city.

This, then, shows the utter inconsistency of local boards, trying to tax a man when he has already paid his license, to raise money to say whether he shall or shall not sell goods that he has bought and paid for, which have already passed the national board.

Al. W. Filson Injured.

Al. W. Filson well known through his long prominence on the Orpheum, Keith and other vaudeville circuits as a headline player with the team of Filson and Errol (Mrs. Filson), lies at his home in a serious condition, as the result of injuries received in filming a scene at Selig's studio this week.

Harry Mestayer dealt the blow which it was feared for a time would have the most critical results. The scene in which the men were engaged called for a fight of strenuous order. As first taken it did not have the vigor deemed necessary by the director and a "retake" was ordered, Mestayer, the attacking party in the play, "The Dragnet," being privately instructed to make the scene as realistic as possible.

Mestayer took the instructions literally and struck Filson, who is a heavy man past sixty years, just above the temple, knocking him senseless, his head striking a staple as he went down.

Doctors were summoned as quickly as possible and Filson was taken to his home in one of the company's automobiles, where he has since been under the constant care of a surgeon.

Although he is suffering severely from the shock and resembles his former self only on one side of his face, the other side being badly lacerated and blackened, Filson is recovering, but it will be a long time before he will be able to return to his professional work, and it is a question whether his eye, which was hit, will be entirely well again.

TALKING PICTURES.

Kellum Invention Works Great Prospects for Future of This Phase of the Art.

Last week we received an invitation from William Porter who is associated with F. W. Blachard who has control of the new Kellum speaking film invention, to visit their small projection room in the Blanchard Building where a number of demonstrations have been recently given.

The invention is the work of O. E. Kellum of Los Angeles, and is the result of two years' experiments. Mr. Kellum did not announce his plans or show a picture until he had covered every phase of his subject from the taking of the moving picture and recording of the voice, through the various processes to the joint presentation of the motion and sound.

The experience was something uncanny, and so evenly did the machine work that when the film was run a few feet without the voice we all burst into laughter, for there was no sense to what was going on on the screen.

A company has been organized with ample capital to carry out all of its plans. F. W. Blanchard has purchased the control and will preside over the destinies of the venture.

A thoroughly equipped studio and laboratory are now in course of erection in Edendale. As soon as the plant is completed work will be inaugurated and talking pictures made for public exhibition. No attempt will be made to reproduce lengthy drama or opera at the beginning, rather will the films be confined to educational endeavor. Lectures and courses of instruction from the larger universities may, by this process, be brought to the smaller colleges and high schools. Several states are now providing the public schools with "visual instruction" by means of motion pictures. The talking picture contemplates an advance by giving all that a film can give, plus the verbal descriptive lecture. The forthcoming presidential campaign offers a new field in the presentation to small cities and towns the personalities and addresses on national topics by the candidates for high office; the California prohibition campaign also presents immediate possibilities for the talking picture. The process is simple in its completed state, and any moving picture house can be equipped with the mechanical apparatus at a very small cost.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

The Press Club of Los Angeles entertained last Saturday evening with a big program headed by Francis J. Heney at one end, with a Dutch lunch and several film P. A.'s at the other. The Mayor, District Attorney, J. A. Quinn, a number of film men, and other prominent persons were present.

* * *

From far-away Norway Anne Schaefer has received a Christmas present that traveled over a month to get here. It is a beautiful album of Norwegian landscapes and water views, collected by the young woman who sent it in the hope that she could thus persuade "Lady Anne" to some day visit that fair country. With the album came another package, this time from a club of girls. There were a couple of pounds of tin foil in it, carefully smoothed out and packed. Miss Schaefer admitted to questioners at the studio that she had undertaken still another charity and could find good use for tinfoil, even as she is finding for the cancelled stamps she has been collecting and disposing of in such numbers.

* * *

Dee Lampton, "Rolin's Fattest Boy," is not a believer in mud baths. Last week in a strenuous scene taking place in a mud puddle Harold Lloyd, Rolin's leading comedian, accidentally pushed Lampton's face deep into the mud with his foot. According to Lloyd, this was accidental. Dee thinks otherwise. He gained several pounds, which he attributed to the mud he swallowed, and states that he prefers taking any such baths in the springs and externally.

* * *

In Long Beach, Maurice H. Kuhn, a picture theater man, has leased the Columbia theater on the Pike for three years, and is having extensive alterations and improvements made. He will open the house soon with seating capacity increased to 500.

* * *

The new Hollywood Vitagraph plant is almost deserted. A large company of players left this week for Truckee to put on a three reel snow picture. William Wolbert is the director, and the cast includes Webster Campbell, Mary Anderson, Corinne Griffith, Anne Schaefer, Otto Lederer and Frederick Hiller. They expected to return for Christmas.

* * *

Rolin Phumphilms are being made by talented comedians, and one of the most noted here this week is W. H. Doane, assistant manager, who was "shot" this week by Kiddo Kupid—matrimony is the name of the feature.

* * *

Because J. A. Quinn so widely advertised "Damaged Goods" a Venice, Cal., theater manager secured, according to Quinn's witnesses, a film supposed to be the print which caused so much trouble and advertised it as the real one, and the result is that the Broadway Theater Company, which is headed by Quinn, filed a suit this week in the superior court against the Abbott Kinney company, owner of Venice, for $26,000 damages, which it alleges were caused by the advertising and projecting of this film claimed to have been "Damaged Goods," the production for which the former corporation claims exclusive exhibiting rights in Los Angeles and beach cities.

According to Quinn, the Venice concern damaged the patronage of "Damaged Goods," now being shown at Quinn's Superba theater, to the extent of $1,000; caused $5,000 damage to the company through public association of the Venice film with the original production, and because of the alleged wilful and malicious fraud and injury of the Broadway company's business $20,000 additional damages are asked.

It is alleged by Quinn that the Abbott Kinney corporation advertised that it would show, and later did show, a film which was purported to have been the original production. He says that the concern stated in ads that it would show the film which the Los Angeles censors tabooed.

It is stated in the complaint by Quinn that he holds exclusive exhibiting rights for the film "Damaged Goods," and pays $100 rent each day.

* * *

Since the Fox Company has taken charge of the Edendale studio, formerly occupied by the Selig players, we have been able to pass the portals where applicants for jobs are turned away. For two long years we tried to get in past the brown-eyed exchange girl, and for two years she smiled "no," and was backed up in her refusal by the Selig manager, but anyway the Fox man let us in to see the famous Mr. Oscar Apfel, who had just completed a tedious day's work with two hundred extras.

Had the true pleasure of meeting William Farnum; he's a regular fellow, just like his brother Dusty—kind of expected to hear the hum of a camera and see the elusive and wonderful Theda Bara scampering off from some somnambulistic lover—but the lady was not in evidence.

Bill Farnum said the first thing he did when he hit California was to 'phone Thomas Santschi at the Selig Zoo and say "hello"—you remember Tom and Bill put over the only fight that was ever seen in moving pictures—Bill had a busted nose and bruises; and Tom was somewhat bunged up, too—and I wager that no two stancher friends battled for the death stronger than these two famous film men—even nowadays you hear some one say, "Gee, we certainly had some fight in this picture—just like in 'The Spoilers.'"

Dainty Miss Bebe Daniels, leading ingenue for Rolin, is now burning Rockefeller's goods in a chic little roadster on the Southland's smooth boulevards. She is a great little driver and is quite a mechanic also.

* * *

E. D. Horkheimer, Balboa's manager, says: "By our influence with the Salt Lake R. R., we have been given 'Safety first' protection. The main line of the Salt Lake passes the Balboa studio. As the plant occupies all four corners, its 250 employes have to go back and forth across the tracks many times a day. There being many trains passing, this constitutes a source of danger and liability to both the Balboa company and the railroad. I got in touch with the railroad authorities, through our business manager, Norman Manning. Leading officials of the Salt Lake responded immediately, visiting the studio they made a careful survey of the situation. Safety gates and a warning bell were not considered advisable at the point; however, the railroad men offered to have all their trains reduce speed while passing the studio from twelve to six miles, between Fourth and Eighth streets. This is just half the ordinance rate in Long Beach. This concession is greatly appreciated by the Balboa company; for, in view of the Salt Lake's franchise, it is doubtful if the same result could have been obtained any other way. It all goes to show that if you proceed in a gentlemanly way you get what you want."

* * *

An illustration of the services given by casualty companies in connection with workmen's compensation liability is found in the case of the National Drama Corporation, which is putting on "The Fall of a Nation."

One of the scenes depicts a battle in which several thousand men are engaged, and in order to properly take care of any accidents which might occur, the Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, with whom the company carries a liability policy, arranged for a field hospital on the grounds, with a nurse and physician in attendance during the entire time, so as to be able to give prompt aid to the injured.

The results were highly satisfactory to all concerned, as several men were injured during the production of this scene, which demonstrated beyond any question the value of this service.

Now all I wonder is whether the camera's eye took in that field hospital. If it did, the scene was worth the price of the premium.

Mr. Dixon please answer.

* * *

The Screen Club, which has progressed nicely since it was first started, held an enjoyable session at the "Steak Room" of the Eddie Maier brewery one night this week. The event was one to be remembered. Waiters with wooden platters served two-inch steaming steaks and other white-clothed men came around with glass receptacles overflowing with some creamy, yellow fluid which smelled like hops and roots. Fred "Keystone" Palmer was the Screamer of the night and the entertainment he gave was immense. Many lady members were present at this, the largest meet ever held, and all tendered a vote of thanks to Eddie Maier, the host.

* * *

Samuel Goldfish, the treasurer and General Manager of the Lasky Feature Play Company, arrived in Los Angeles last week. Mr. Goldfish, who was selected to head the motion picture branch of the theatrical profession at a recent meeting of the Actors' Fund Association in New York, will conduct a campaign here to raise money for the Actors' Fund. When Mr. Goldfish returns to New York shortly before New Year's, he will be accompanied by Mr. Lasky, who will make a brief visit to the Eastern offices.

* * *

Mae Murray has arrived at the Lasky studios and commenced rehearsals on the film version of Marion Johnston's story, "To Have and To Hold." George H. Melford will direct this production.

* * *

Charlotte Walker is to appear in a film adaptation of John Fox, Jr.'s delightful story and play "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Miss Walker took the part of "June" in the original play when it was produced in New York three seasons ago. The film production will be under the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille.

* * *

Paul Dickey, playwright, actor and director, has joined the producing staff of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company. Mr. Dickey is the author of "The Misleading Lady," "The Ghost Breaker" and a number of other stage successes.

* * *

A new ventilating system is being installed in the laboratory now being erected at the Lasky plant. By this system the air is changed every three minutes. One of the features of the new laboratory will be a well-equipped experimental room for the use of the photographers. Here the cameramen and laboratory experts will have facilities to "cinematograph-experiment" to their heart's content.

* * *

The Signal Company is now busy on the fifth installment of "The Girl and the Game." Ray Meyers is directing the second Signal company under the supervision of J. P. McGowan. The first picture to be produced is a five-reel feature by L. Genez. Rhea Mitchell and Hal Cooley are playing the leading parts.

* * *

A benefit for Los Angeles newsboys will be given in the Morosco theater Sunday evening, January 9. A number of the photoplayers will participate in the entertainment, including Dustin Farnum, William Farnum, Charlie Chaplin, Ford Sterling, Fred Mace, Victor Moore and the Keystone cops.

* * *

Teaching athletics by motion pictures is part of the instruction a coach is giving track aspirants of the Los Angeles High School. He has secured a film showing athletes doing various stunts on the cinders and the field. The film is first run off at normal speed, showing the men as they appear on the track. Then the same reel is run again, but this time as slow as the heat of the picture machine will permit. The second time shows the athletes in every position as they complete their stunt.

A man going over the hurdles is shown as he runs. It is possible to see which foot he jumps with, just how he throws his arms and when he gives the final jerk to his leg. The same effect is obtained for all the different athletic events.

The coach thinks that no better example could be obtained than the film of a good athlete. The reel may be re-run as many times as is necessary for the men to get a good idea of correct form.

* * *

Little Bobby Kaufman is perhaps the youngest of the one hundred thousand and one Charlie Chaplin imitators, amateur or professional. Little Bobby is no amateur, if you please. He is almost four years old and one of the leading men in the newly organized Juvenile Stock Company, which will make its initial bow to the public at the Gamut Auditorium this week. This company is composed of children nearly all under 6 years of age and none over 12 years. In the course of the play various imitations of popular screen stars will be introduced by the tiny thespians. Little Bobby "doing Charlie" is said to be the funniest.

* * *

In a recent issue of this paper it was stated that Glen Gano, a female impersonator employed by the Kalem Company to double a hazardous feat was dangerously hurt. We have found upon interviewing the Kalem Co. that Mr. Gano was not seriously hurt, but was able to return to his usual duties a few days after the accident. Also that Mr. Gano was not doubling for anyone at the time of the accident, but was performing a feat as one of the crooks in the story.

Mr. Gano is a member of the "Hazards of Helen" company and is more often seen as taking a crook's part than in any other.

* * *

We had a letter this week from good old Sam Spedon. Says the well-known Vitagraph publicity man, "If I can manage it, you can expect to see me out your way again this spring." Mighty glad to hear it, Sam. We all wish you welcome back to California.

* * *

Daily papers advise that Ted Montgomery, a moving picture actor, is under arrest in San Diego on a charge of having passed checks forged against the Universal Film Company. The police allege the checks were forged in the interests of Miss Florence Hardman, a cabaret singer. The complaint recites she visited a millinery store and purchased a hat on which she made $1 deposit. Later, it is alleged, Montgomery appeared with a check for a considerable amount, paid for the hat and received the balance in change. He is also reported to have cashed other checks. The complaint was made by B. J. Becker, of the Universal Film Company. Detectives have left to bring Montgomery here to face prosecution.

* * *

Director of visual education is a new position offered by Los Angeles county schools. Visual education is now an established part of the county educational system.

The requirements for the position are, that applicants must have a practical working knowledge of moving pictures, their installation, care and operation and must hold a high school teacher's certificate.

Announcement of the civil service examination of applicants for positions was made last week by the county civil service commission. The examination will take place January 15 in room 1007, Hall of Records.

* * *

Selig's magnificent feature production "The Ne'er Do Well," opened this week at Clune's Auditorium. This big photodrama in twelve parts from the fascinating story by Rex Beach and produced by Colin Campbell, the producer of "The Spoilers," has received unstinted praise from the reviewers and critics of the daily papers.

* * *

The Vitagraph spectacular anti war drama, "The Battle Cry of Peace," will be run this week at the Trinity Auditorium.

* * *

The Hoover theater at Ninth and Hoover streets has been purchased by Olsen Bros., of Moravia, Cal.

* * *

Wm. G. Muir has bought the Perris theater in Perris from C. Blagg.

* * *

W. Frank Harris and Floyd E. Knight, of Orange, Cal., have purchased the Colonial theater of Louis Bedding. The opening under new management took place last Saturday.

Flickers

WELL now, Christmas has come and gone, what are you going to do. I suppose that the majority of you fellows are going to climb on the water wagon and leave me flat. Go ahead, you'll be with me again in a week.

* * *

Any of you sport lovers been over to the Manhattan Opera House to see the wrestling bouts? Somebody slipped me a couple of pasteboards and I went, for no other reason than to see the masked marvel throw everybody who faced him. I just learned that masked man is none other than Francis X. Bushman. If it can possibly be true, he sure is some man.

* * *

Our good friend Bishop, after a short stay in this country, has returned to England with forty thousand dollars worth of negatives.

* * *

So long as we tell tales on everybody else when the opportunity presents itself, I feel privileged to inform you that our business representative, Wen Milligan, is now called "Pop." It is a little girl, was born Christmas Eve and speaks three languages so fluently that you can't understand a word she says. Her mother is doing very nicely.

* * *

I felt sorry indeed while on my way to the factory this morning to see the staff of the Novelty Slide Company watching the firemen fighting a very stubborn blaze in their building. It looked as though the entire structure would be rendered uninhabitable. Our sympathy, Mr. Coufal.

* * *

F. O. Neilsen, of Chicago, is in the big city again. This time he won't say what he is doing amongst us. I can see by his early start that if he stays long enough he will carry back a story about the big time he had New Year's Eve.

* * *

Among the Christmas cards that were received was one from Elaine Ivans. Her Christmas was merry, and the prospects for New Year's bright. The Equitable Motion Picture Corporation engaged her to play opposite Arthur Ashley.

* * *

James V. Bryson, sponsor for the North Western Motion Picture Company, left New York for his home after a short stay. Mr. Bryson's visit to the city was partly for business and a little more than that for pleasure.

* * *

Three weeks ago I showed you a picture of Harry Reichenbach's new automobile. Today, after being separated by the pole of a brewery truck, the Oldsmobile Company are trying to reassemble the many parts that were not fastened together tight enough at that time.

* * *

Eleanor Woodruff, the Vitagraph leading dramatic woman, allowed her name to be entered among an open field of speed ice skaters at Saint Nicholas Rink, Christmas Eve, and walked home with a first prize for the mile scratch race for women.

* * *

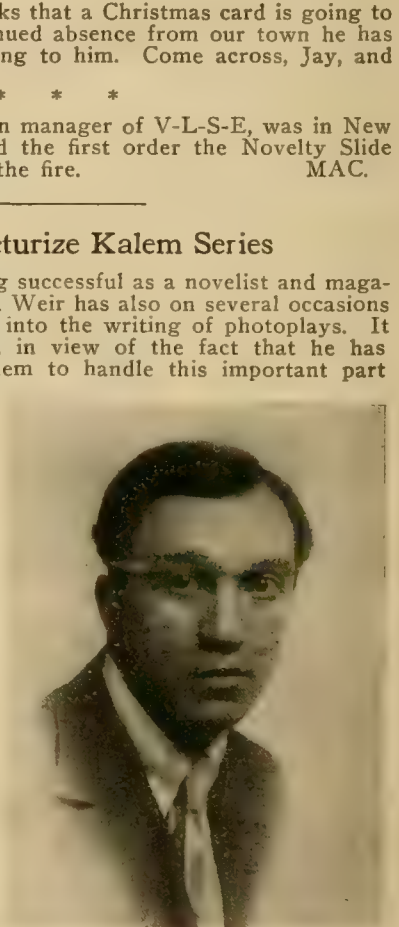
If Old Doc Cairns thinks that a Christmas card is going to square him for his continued absence from our town he has some more guesses coming to him. Come across, Jay, and quit yer stallin'.

* * *

George Balsdon, Boston manager of V-L-S-E, was in New York Monday and placed the first order the Novelty Slide Company received after the fire. MAC.

Weir to Picturize Kalem Series

IN ADDITION to being successful as a novelist and magazine contributor, Hugh Weir has also on several occasions ventured with success into the writing of photoplays. It is a peculiar coincidence, in view of the fact that he has been called upon by Kalem to handle this important part of the campaign around the company's latest undertaking, that Hugh Weir's first story written especially for the screen was also produced by the Kalem Company. It was a single reel, and naturally, being a newspaper man, Mr. Weir's mind turned to that field for a theme, his story being "The Girl Reporter's Scoop," released September 9, 1909. Since that time Kalem has also produced others of Mr. Weir's stories, written especially for the screen. He was induced, after the success in book form of "Miss Madelyn Mack, Detective," to write two photoplays for Kalem, detailing further adventures of that fiction character. They were "The Riddle of the Tin Soldier" and "The Riddle of the Green Umbrella," both released as two-reel features.



Hugh C. Weir.

Mr. Weir was among the first newspaper men to induce picture producers to see the value of syndicating the stories of their series productions in newspapers throughout the country and he has been responsible for the fictionization of many of the best-known successes in this line. He has made a specialty of this work and the value of his name in connection with the syndication of Kalem's "Love Pirates" is evident. The George Bronson Howard series is to be syndicated under the direction of the Buffalo Times syndicate, which last week opened offices in New York, preparatory to the launching of an elaborate campaign to link the newspapers and photoplay producers.

Cash in Advance vs. Open Account

Bernard M. Corbett, Secretary of the Boston Exchangemen's Association, Tells of the Results of the First Year of That Organization.

By Bernard M. Corbett.

"IT CANNOT be done." "The exchanges will not stick together." These were the expressions heard on every hand one year ago when we first purposed the one-week-cash-in-advance payment system for film rental and supplies; yet, after one or two meetings, the members of our little organization saw the logic and sound business judgment of the idea and at once set to work to put the plan in operation, and within a few days the exhibitors of all New England received from their exchange the following letter, or one similar:

Dear Sir: We beg to advise you at this time that commencing Monday, Jan. 4, 1915, all film rental must be paid one week in advance under the following conditions:

In the case of customers who are in the habit of calling for their shows on Monday morning it will be necessary that your remittance for the full week's service reach this office before first show is delivered to messenger.

Where shows are shipped via express on Saturday or Monday morning it will be necessary that your remittance reach us before shipment is made. If remittance has not been received by us in time, these shipments will be made as usual, with a C. O. D. attachment in the amount of the full week's service.

All express charges must be paid by the exhibitor and when films are returned, via express collect, this amount will be charged on the next week's service.

In the case of machines, supplies and accessories cash in full must accompany the order or 25 per cent. of the amount, the balance to be shipped C. O. D. and charges.

When remittance is made by check we reserve the right to withhold shipment until we have same certified or collection made thereon.

In reference to the above we beg to state that there can be no exceptions to this rule after this date, and inasmuch as it is in no way intended as a reflection upon the credit-standing of any of our friends we ask your co-operation in this matter in order that we may successfully eliminate for all time the "fly-by-night exhibitor" and the exhibitor who fails to pay his bills to the detriment of us all.

Trusting you will accept this letter in the spirit in which it is written and thanking you for your valued patronage and favors, we are,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) ..... (Film Co.),

....., Manager.

The result of these letters proved a big surprise to us all, for instead of receiving an avalanche of protests from exhibitors, as we had expected, the protests were few and those received were mostly from the class of exhibitors who had made the cash-in-advance movement a necessity. On the other hand, we were told on every side by the better class of exhibitors that the new arrangement was the best thing that had ever been done in the film business in this section.

To say that the idea was a grand success from the beginning would be putting it mildly, for on January 4, 1915, every exchange in Boston reported the largest collections in its history and that it was found necessary to ship C. O. D. in only a few cases.

This rule has now been in effect in New England for one full year and in place of the exchanges showing uncollected accounts amounting to $152,000, as was the case when this new system of payment was put in operation, not an entry was made on the books for 1915 and almost seventy per cent. of the old accounts have been collected.

The effect of our little organization has also been felt in several other directions, as the film folk of New England have been welded together with a bond of friendship and good fellowship such as was never before known in this section; and today the managers and employees of all the concerns doing business in our city are as one big, happy family, the selfish interests of the individual have disappeared and the good and welfare of the business as a whole stands out in the minds of all as the one thing necessary for success.

A number of other things have also been accomplished through our association, among which might be stated that by appearing before the heads of the several railroads and express companies in a body we have been able to secure a much better service in the handling and shipping of films.

In a report recently published it was stated that the accounts uncollectible on the books of the film exchanges of the country would run well into the hundred thousands; yet we are happy to state that not a dollar of this can be charged to the exchanges of New England.

The writer has had a number of requests for information on how this was all accomplished from friends in other sections of the country, and in his desire to see the cash-in-advance system in successful operation in all parts of the country before the close of the year 1916 wishes to state that he will be glad to render any assistance possible to interested parties and can be addressed at Essex Street Post Office, Boston, Mass.

While we do not claim perfection as yet for our association, we have the biggest word in any business today—ORGANIZATION—and as the year 1916 bids fair to be a very successful one in the motion picture industry we advise our brother exchangemen in other cities who have not already taken up the cash-in-advance movement to get together—get your organization on a working basis. You will be surprised at the result.

It CAN be done; it HAS been done, and to the credit of all the exchangemen of New England it can be said they HAVE stuck together, for which today they are being repaid a hundredfold and in a number of cases with the words from their superiors, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Arnold Daly Finds a Star

ARNOLD DALY, whose fame is about equally divided between Broadway "legitimate" productions and Pathe motion pictures, was traveling through the South not long ago and in a certain town of South Carolina stopped off between trains to get a hasty lunch in a railroad restaurant. His eyes wandered from pile to pile of crullers, cakes and pies as he tried to make up his mind on which particular dainty he should take a chance. Thus engaged in this engrossing hunt for edibles he failed to notice at first the girl who, with hands folded upon snow-white apron, waited patiently for his order. His decision made, he turned to her and then at once forgot what he had taken so long to decide upon. The girl before him was surely a waitress extraordinary. Oval face delicately tinted with old ivory and the flush of youth and health; brown hair combed with Quaker-like simplicity, yet somehow looking better than if it had been worked over by a fashionable hairdresser; blue eyes that looked at him modestly, and yet unafraid.

Nora Moore.

"I beg your pardon," said Mr. Daly, "but where did you come from?" The girl blushed and answered in a business-like way: "Order, suh?"

He asked her if she would like to work in pictures and told her, if she would, he would give her a chance. The girl refused to commit herself "You'll have to ask my mother, suh," was her reply.

Mr. Daly decided to miss his train and see her mother. He did and made an offer that caused the old lady to gasp with surprise. When the girl returned from work that evening it was talked over and decided that such a golden opportunity could not be neglected. So two days later Nora Moore and her mother took their soft Southern accent and few belongings to New York. That was two months ago. Now Mr. Daly wagers his judgment as a producing manager that he has made a "find."

It's a far cry from Southern pies to Pathe pictures, and from Carolina crullers to Broadway, but Nora Moore has made the jump and earns twice as much in a week now as she once did in a month. She is only nineteen, but it is safe to prophesy that her native good sense and good upbringing will keep success from spoiling her.

STUART N. LAKE WITH AURORA FILM.

Stuart N. Lake, well known in New York as a newspaper man and publicity director, has been engaged as director of publicity for the Aurora Film Plays Corporation, which has just produced "The Waif" as its first offering in the motion picture field. Mr. Lake was until recently with the publicity department of the World Film Corporation. Under Mr. Lake's direction, the Aurora Film Plays Corporation is planning an extensive advertising and publicity campaign which, it is promised, will offer several new ideas in advertising features leased on a state rights basis.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

IN a small New Jersey town, not far from this city, the Mayor and Council threatened to enact ordinances which would have been detrimental to the interests of moving picture people there. Conferences between the latter and the authorities were arranged, and resulted in a truce to give the picture people time to show that the proposed regulations are unnecessary. All this, the only newspaper published in the town says, proves that the newspaper's advice to the moving picture people to keep out of politics was in the picture people's and the community's interest. Those who would precipitate the moving picture people into politics, the newspaper adds, should "go way back and sit down."

* * *

The course taken to adjust differences by the Jersey people was a highly commendable one, but there was nothing original about it, nor were definite results attained. It was simply a matter of arbitration and such measures can be resorted to in all cases whether or not politics are involved. It is difficult to see why such conferences, whether wholly or partly successful, should deter the picture people in interesting themselves in politics. This is a period of preparedness and for that reason the picture people should keep in touch with politics, not to qualify themselves to take part in petty local political issues, but to be prepared to defend themselves when those who claim the right to be in politics overstep the bounds of reason and justice. In the New Jersey case the arbitration may ultimately fail and yet the claims of the picture people may be right. It would be foolish for these people to declare themselves out of politics and leave the politicians in control. A display of voting strength will often save expenditures on test cases in courts.

* * *

In some communities there prevails, among a certain class of people, an impression that members of the theatrical profession are without the pale of citizenship and any attempt on their part to have voice or take part in politics is an intrusion. This was a topic at a gathering of theatrical people a few nights before the State election last month. One of the party said he was assailed in most vigorous terms by a man who declared that if he had the power he would prevent all actors from voting at elections, because they are always "on the road" and know nothing about local issues, and very little more about national affairs. "You see," said the actor, "this man was aggrieved because for the first time in my life I had qualified as a voter and had incidentally let him know that I was opposed to one of his pet issues. He told me that one who had been born in this country and lived in it as long as I had without voting should not be allowed to vote at this late day. On the general proposition I quite agreed with him."

* * *

"But," the actor continued, "I did not come under the general proposition. I went upon the stage before attaining the voting age, and from that time until a comparatively recent period I was not located at home, or in any other part of the country, sufficient time, or at the opportune time, to exercise my right to vote. When I took up moving picture work I became enabled to establish a home in the full sense of the term, and last November was able to cast the first vote in my life of over forty-five years. It was indeed a privilege and if I am not obliged to take the road again I will take advantage of it every time. There are many others like me. I know of a number of professionals who either cast their first vote, or voted for the first time in several years last November. That is another feather in the cap of motion pictures. By enabling us professionals to become located they have swelled the ranks of voting citizens."

* * *

There may be a difference of opinion as to whether this increase of voters is a credit to the motion picture business, but there is no doubt that so far as that business is concerned the increase is an asset not to be sneezed at. There is a call for motion picture voters and all engaged in every branch of the business having the privilege to vote should be ready at all times to exercise it. It is not a matter of aggression, but a means of self-defense against the untiring efforts of those in politics to burden the motion picture people with unreasonable and oppressive laws and local regulations, notably, the censorship blister. The fact that the public is gradually manifesting a well defined opposition to official censorship does not justify any relinquishment of zeal on the political proposition. The stand should be maintained until the victory is complete. Los Angeles, Cal., is the pioneer in the movement to abolish existing censorship boards. The action there is backed by such a commendable representation of the people that success seems almost assured. Yet those behind the movement are not depending wholly upon it. If defeated now they will try again with some measure at the polls. Qunicy, Ill., has also taken formal action towards abolishing its local board of official censorship. Alton, Ill., believes that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Some people whose views did not harmonize with a recent production of "The Birth of a Nation" offered a censorship ordinance and the aldermen declined to pass it. A lady representing the Civic Club at Oak Park, Ill., unsuccessfully attacked the motion pictures at a recent public meeting. "One of the dangers resulting from them," she said, "is that when a long piece of literature is illustrated, the child doesn't want the bother of reading," and that motion pictures are a substitution of mental excitement for physical exercise. The meeting paid a tribute to the exhibitor who took the negative in the discussion. In Portland, Ore, the official board of censorship has heretofore had full sway with no remedy by appeal left to the exhibitors. The latter finally made a display of strength and forced recognition by the Chamber of Commerce of the city. The result was that the right of appeal was won.

* * *

All these instances should serve as an incentive for the exhibitors throughout the country to give all efforts towards making their organizations strong and active. Wherever the exhibitors are standing together and working in harmony we find them accomplishing results beneficial to the whole industry.

* * *

We are sorry to note that some exhibitors in a Pennsylvania town have been indulging in sharp practice that does not bring credit upon the business. The town prohibits shows on Sunday. The managers violated the regulation and then prosecuted each other for doing so. Each was fined four dollars and costs, which left them a good margin of profit on the shows. The Chief of Police attempted to get warrants, but was barred because the exhibitors had already been fined on the charge and now efforts are being made to make $100 the minimum penalty for such violations. The aim of all those serving the best interests of the motion picture business is to encourage and require all engaged in it to obey the laws, and not violate or evade them. The true idea is to work with the authorities, and not trick, confuse, or annoy them. Unjust as the laws, or the authorities enforcing them may be the exhibitors must follow a sane course until such time as the abuses may be rectified by correction or repeal by those having the power to do so. Trickery and collusion does nobody any good.

* * *

It seems that the zeal of many publicity agents in the moving picture business sometimes leads them beyond the scope of approval even in the eyes of those whom they most endeavor to benefit. The publicity man of a prominent producing concern is engaged in endeavoring to "bring a closer feeling of friendship between all daily newspapers and the film manufacturers as a whole," which is a very laudable undertaking. Unfortunately the publicity man does not correctly quote history in his appeals. In the first place, he says "manufacturers and exhibitors owe the newspapers much." He adds, "and they will continue to be the powerful allies of our industry (the motion picture business) that they have shown themselves to be for several years past." In order to aid the campaign we would like to say "Amen!" to these nice sentiments, but to also aid the general desire to give the public all information concerning the motion picture business as faithfully to the course of truth as possible, we must correct the publicity man's statements.

* * *

Up to within a very recent period no form of amusement has been the subject of as much ridicule at the hands of the newspapers as motion pictures have been. Even today the newspapers, with few exceptions, accord the picture shows no more than perfunctory notices. They have always seized every opportunity to favorably comment upon measures enacted against the pictures and have studiously omitted to refer to any claims made by the picture people to the unjustness of any of them. The manufacturers and exhibitors owe them nothing. Whatever favorable recognition the newspapers have given them the moving pictures won on their own merits. The patronage accorded the picture houses today was not secured through the newspapers. A statement made by a Philadelphia lady, who, last week, for the first time, visited a motion picture studio, fits the situation to a nicety. She said, "Up to about a year ago I had never seen a moving picture. I had no desire to see them and thought my friends who patronized the picture houses were inclined to be childish. Finally I was persuaded to go and see a show, and since that time I have been a full-fledged fan. I subscribe to every moving picture magazine that comes my way."

* * *

The stamp of absolute correctness must be given the statement of the publicity agent when he says, "The newspapers and the motion picture industry are twin agencies of amusement, educational enlightenment and human interest." The motion picture people have always maintained this and on that basis have claimed that the placing of official censorship on one and not on the other is discrimination that should not stand in law. If there has been any feeling on the part of the motion picture people toward the newspapers it has been on account of the latter's refusal, or failure, to take up this question as it does others that bear upon the rights of the people.

BRITISH NOTES

WE HAVE had from time to time since the day the one and only "Charlie" first tripped the light fantastic along the sun-flecked sidewalks of Los Angeles many and diverse imitations of his personal mannerisms and stunts. But none have evoked the interest given to the production of the Juvenile Film Company of New York in the Chaplin caricature in miniature, titled "A Chip Off the Old Block," which was snapped up as an exclusive by an enterprising exchange within a few days of its arrival. It has been said the English exhibitor will have the real thing on his screen or nothing, and the departure of some of them from a recent pledge to their association in a small degree confirms this observation. In a greater degree of truth, however, may it be said that in place of the real thing the exhibitor likes an original imitation, not a hackneyed impersonation that every stage duet on the boards is working to death. The way the Chaplin imitation of the Juvenile Film Company is booking augurs well for the success of these productions in Britain.

* * *

"American manufacturers have labored long and hard to find films that will amuse the Oriental races but their success has not been very marked," says a returned traveler from the Far East relating his experiences. "No white mind for instance can fathom the Japanese sense of humor and our funniest films over there go flat. Chaplin bores them. But in the midst of a death scene in some dramatic film they will suddenly begin to rock with merriment. There is a fortune in it for anyone who will locate the Japanese bump of humor and manufacture pictureplays that will hit it."

* * *

The Kinema Trade Ambulance Fund, the objects of which have already been explained in the World, has now reached the total it set out to collect—£30,000.

* * *

Derwent Hall Caine, the actor, has left these shores for New York. While in America he is to stage two or three of his father's well-known plays for the legitimate theater. It is understood he will also visit some of the leading motion picture studios, and it is not unlikely he may himself appear before the camera in one of Hall Caine's works. This would not be his first appearance, for last week there was unspooled under the auspices of the London Film Company a picture version of "The Christian," in which he takes the lead. The production has furnished ample scope for the expression of the talents of its producer, George L. Tucker.

* * *

A few months ago a well-known London exchange offered a cash prize for the best scenario founded upon a Biblical text. The other day the trade was introduced to the winning production which had been produced in this country and forms a construction upon the theme "Whoso Is Without Sin." It is a four and a half reeler, featuring Hilda Moore and Milton Rosmer.

* * *

The cardboard "cut-outs" of Chaplin have penetrated to many queer places, from dry-goods stores to churches, street-hawkers' barrows to saloons, but as a mascot for the troops in the trenches the mute ballyhoo attains a status quite original. Particularly when it is officially placed on record as the following extract from a letter received last week by Mr. Spoor shows: "I have to thank you for the gift of films. It is impossible to make you realize how they were appreciated and I truly wish you could have heard the cheer that went up when Charlie went on the screen. The cardboard posters of Chaplin were carried off during the night to the trenches and have been the subject of great attention by the Allemandes.—W. Murphy, Major, Army Service Corps."

* * *

An adaptation of the moving picture—possessing, at least to this country, the element of originality—is the motion picture song-scena. A short film, generally not more than five or six hundred feet, illustrating the action of some popular song or other, is exhibited in conjunction with a vocal interpretation of the number. The synchronization of the two rests with the singer who has to follow the action on the screen. Certain renters have taken up the booking of these combination features at prices calculated to be cheaper to the exhibitor than an ordinary exclusive film, the one charge including the vocalist's salary.

* * *

After a somewhat lengthy period of inactivity, probably due to internal rearrangements, the Clarendon, one of our oldest producing units, shortly enters a new phase of its career as maker of feature films. The first of the new series is an adaptation of the spoken play of the same title, "The Queen Mother," and is for release early in 1916.

* * *

No further definite information is to hand respecting the British Government's declaration to prohibit the importation into this country of Danish films, although it is generally anticipated that some concession will be made in two cases at least where wares are unquestionably Danish and whose productions are extensively booked by exhibitors in the country. The motive of the measure explains itself. Yet if, on the other hand, the order is enforced without exception, it can only be expected that the Nordisk and Dansk, to mention two firms feature-producing on a large scale, will seek a further market for their goods in America.

* * *

Maurice Elvey, formerly of the British and Colonial Company, is now working in the south in conjunction with the London Film Company and will shortly release under that trade-mark half a dozen two, three and four-part dramas, specially written to display the personality of the former Hepworth player, Elizabeth Risdon, now Mrs. G. L. Tucker.

* * *

The question of import duties on films again cropped up in Parliament last week when Mr. McKenna's secretary was asked if the slowness of the work of checking rebates if films sent abroad which had already paid import duty was causing serious obstructions in parcel post transit between England and the Continent, and other places. Mr. Montague, the secretary, once more made it clear to manufacturers, exchangemen or others availing themselves of the drawback facilities when sending films temporarily abroad that previous notice should be given to the customs authorities. No duty is charged on films which can be proved to have been reimported and to have received no drawback allowance when they were sent abroad.

* * *

Last Thursday marked the 100th presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the London Scala theater.

* * *

A picturesque figure in the British motion picture industry was lost last week by the death at Glasgow of George Green, a pioneer film renter of the Scottish city. Long before the photoplay became an established institution and was regarded, mainly on account of its imperfections, as the special territory of the traveling showman, George Green made a name for himself over the border. With the growth of the industry, that name was strengthened by the erection of a large circuit of theaters in and about Glasgow, while more recently he established Green's Film Service, one of the best-known exchanges in the north country.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Among the Picture Theaters

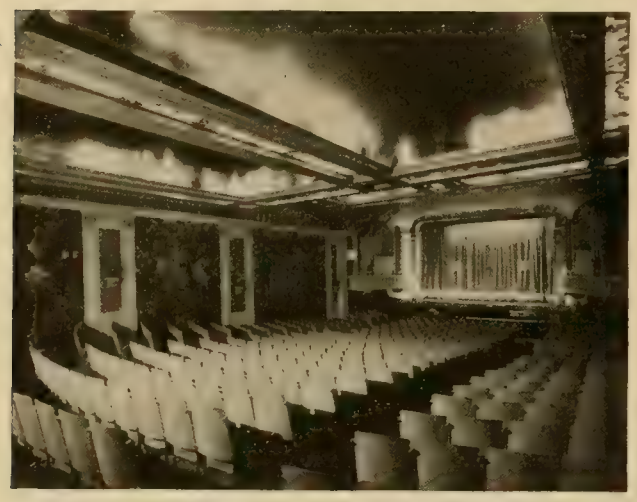
News and Views of Photoplay Houses Everywhere

SUNSET THEATER, PORTLAND, ORE.

Photoplay House Named After Its Decorative Scheme—Stands on Valuable Piece of Property—Structure Remodeled at Expense of $50,000.

THE Sunset theater, located on the southeast corner of Broadway and Washington street, Portland, Ore., has the distinction of being situated on the most valuable piece of ground in that city, according to the assessor of Multnomah County. The property, 100 by 100, pays taxes to the county of $900 per month. The corner on which the theater is located is one of the busiest in the city, as is shown by the reports of the city traffic engineer, it being one of Portland's principal transfer points.

The location has been the site of several theatrical enterprises, the first showhouse there being the Arcade, the pioneer of 10-cent vaudeville and picture houses in Portland. Its owner was S. Morton Cohen, now one of the big men in the moving picture game. It was afterward sold to the People's Amusement Company, which conducted it as a straight picture house. Last year Jennings & Company took over the theater and renamed it the Sunset, entirely remodeling the interior and lobbies at an expense of $50,000, and today it is one of the best appointed and coziest picture houses in the city of Portland.



Interior View of Sunset Theater, Portland, Ore.

The size of the auditorium is 43 by 100 feet, and its seating capacity is 500. There are four large loges in the rear, accommodating 34 persons. The motif of the entire decorative scheme of the theater is the autumn sunset, and to carry out this idea the walls are hung with canvasses of autumn scenes, and the center of the ceiling is finished in gold and old ivory, which, together with the lighting in the theater through translucent glass, causes a smooth blending of colors. The seats are ivory white, and a patron of the house is never compelled to grope in the dark when seeking a vacant seat. Besides the usual musical equipment, the theater is provided with an Estey divided organ.

Specially worthy of note is the unique lighting system. The ceiling is a plaster cast having a beamed effect and the soffets of the beams are set with art glass back of which is concealed colored lights, the effect against the gilded ceiling being a sunset glow. Set in coves in the ceiling and also hidden from view are the house lights. These are tubular mazdas, so distributed as to give an even and continuous light. During the projection of a picture there is sufficient light in the auditorium to read a newspaper and at the same time the subject on the screen is perfectly clear. There is not, however, a single exposed light to detract attention from the picture on the screen.

The proscenium arch is a splendid piece of scagliola work and the stage is of ample size to accommodate vaudeville acts. There being no balcony, the screen is set for a straight throw and the projection is perfect. The operating room is suspended from the ceiling, and is fitted with all modern appliances. The three Power's 6A machines are equipped with automatic fire shutters.

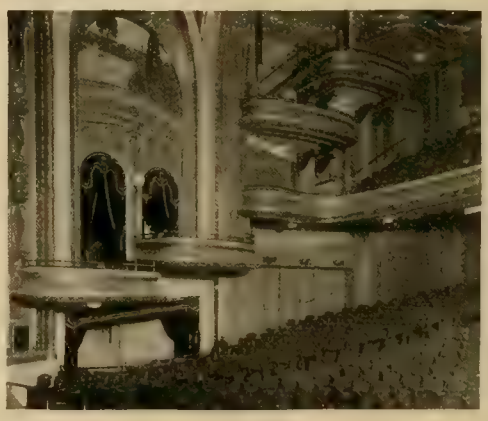
There are two entrances to the theater, one on Washington street, and one on Broadway, both entrances being finished in onyx. The front walls of the lobbies are set with Grecian marble with a Conamara base. The concealed lighting and sunset effects are carried out in the lighting and decorative scheme of the foyer and lobbies, both entrances having gilded ceilings, just below which are narrow panels of autumn paintings. Hydrogen arcs of 1,000 watts each are suspended under the marque front. Recently additional lights have been installed outlining the front of the building. The foyer is hung with rich satin curtains of old rose color, and the entrances to the loges open directly from the foyer.

A rest room is provided off the Broadway entrance which is fitted with the usual conveniences. The furniture and tapestries are of Marie Antoinette design, the walls being hung with drab drapes decorated with festoons of roses. The furniture is of solid mahogany enameled to harmonize with the walls.

PALACE THEATER, NEWARK, N. J.

Proctor's Latest Photoplay House a Structure of Architectural Beauty and Elegance—Has Seating Capacity for 2,800—Managed by Lewis H. Golding.

THE public of Newark, N. J., was agreeably surprised and delightfully amazed when the new Palace theater at 116 Market street, that city, was opened to them Thanksgiving Day, November 25. The new Proctor Palace theater is probably the latest word in theatrical construction, and a glance at the accompanying cuts gives an idea of the extraordinary beauty of the showhouse. The theatre is thoroughly fireproof, but nevertheless hand extinguishers and other fire-fighting apparatus are found in all sections of the building. Thirty-five fire escapes also render egress from the building very easy in case of necessity. The system of ventilation in the Proctor Palace is one of the most perfect in intake and exhaust. The heating facilities are also of the best. The interior furnishings are worthy of consideration. Mr. Proctor has chosen that exquisitely beautiful decorative style known as "the Francois Premier" for the interior embellishment of his new theater. Mr. Proctor's chief assistant in the work, J. W. Merrow, has gone to great trouble and expense to see to it that the new Palace theater is a fine example of that fine old period of blues and gold.



Section of Interior of Proctor's Palace Theater, Newark, N. J.

The sidewalls of the main auditorium are draped in panels of rich satin damask, as are also the side walls of the grand entrance to the theater and the first balcony. There are forty of these panels in all. In the decorative plan of the lobbies the finest genius of the painter, William De Leftwich Dodge, has been used to striking advantage in a series of Murals, probably not surpassed for beauty of coloring or originality of design in any other theater in this country. The front of the theater building is imposing in its height and solidity. The structure is ten stories high, with the highest floor eighty-seven feet above the street level. The exterior of the playhouse is entirely of white glazed terra cotta and marble, with rich-colored tiles extending on each extreme side of the roof. A series of massive hanging lights run from the third to the tenth story. An extremely ornamental and capacious marquee extends out over the sidewalk.

The main entrance is exceedingly attractive and striking because of the unique effect produced by its great height (fully forty feet) and the picturesque box office, which occupies the center of the approach. The woodwork of the box office extends to the top of the main arch of the entrance. The floors of the lobbies are all in mosaic tile, and the paneled walls in white marble. Lobby display signs are scattered at intervals about the lobbies. There are three lobbies, throughout which electric chandeliers and art globes shed a soft light, producing an artistic effect.

Mr. Proctor in his new theater provided carefully for the essential comforts of his patrons. These include cozy and spacious women's rooms on all floors; smoking and lounging rooms for the men, and mail chutes on all floors. Drinking fountains of ornate design are within easy access on all floors.

In the basic construction the use of steel, iron and reinforced concrete has been dominant. The plot covered by the office building and theater entrance is 33 feet in width by about 120 feet in depth. The ground in the rear, on which are elected the main Palace and the roof garden theater, extends over 75 feet by 150 feet. In all practically 16,000 square feet of land have been utilized for the building operation. The seating capacity of the Palace proper is approximately 2,800, while the roof theater seats about 1,400 more. Incidentally, R. J. O'Crowley, Jr., the assistant manager, who acted as guide for the correspondent of the Moving Picture World, said that this roof garden theater was quite complete in itself, but Mr. Proctor prefers to keep quiet now about the policy of it.

Beautiful Foyer of Proctor's Palace Theater, Newark, N. J.

The Palace proper consists of an orchestra, entressol and two balconies, and command the attention of the patrons. The theater is completely cleaned twice daily with huge vacuum cleaners. Motion pictures and vaudeville form the program at the Palace. A spacious operator's booth has been installed in the second balcony. The booth is equipped with all the latest projection equipment and spotlight service. A capable operator and assistant take care of the booth, which is absolutely fireproof.

The executive staff of the newest addition to Newark's amusement field is headed by Lewis H. Golding as resident manager. Mr. Golding is by no means unfamiliar with Newark, having been manager of Proctor's Park Place theater. He also held a similar position with Proctor's Elizabeth theater. His assistant, R. J. O'Crowley, Jr., is a man well known and experienced in Newark's theatrical activities.

NEW WORLD FILM PICTURE.

The first of Jules Eckert Goodman's plays to be adapted for the screen is "The Point of View," originally produced in Daly's theater. Work has begun at the World Film Corporation's Fort Lee studio, on the film version, made by Emmett Campbell Hall. Director Emile Chautard is producing this new five-part feature, with a cast including Francis Nelson, June Elvidge, Jessie Lewis, Mildred Havens, Douglas MacLean, Frederick Truesdell, Joseph Flannagan, John Hyland and Henry Thornton.

GRAND THEATER, WALLACE, IDAHO.

Mayor and Members of City Council Attend Opening of Photoplay House—Represents Investment of $30,000.

WHAT has been declared by exchange men and traveling representatives of the various railroads of this territory who have visited it to be the most up-to-date moving picture theater of this section outside of the city of Spokane, Washington, is the new Grand theater at Wallace, Idaho, recently completed at a total cost of about $30,000, including the ground. It was built by the Wallace Amusement Company under the direction and in accordance with plans prepared by L. R. Stritesky, of Spokane. It was opened November 10 and played to capacity houses at both shows, as two shows are run daily. The opening program was composed of motion pictures and vaudeville. In addition to this there were vocal and instrumental selections by Mrs. J. McAllister, Ralph Bovee and the Big Four quartet of Wallace. A feature of the opening was a reception at 3 p. m. for the purpose of leaving people inspect the house, and each woman was presented with a carnation. Fully 1,500 persons attended the reception, according to the estimate of a critic of a Wallace paper. For the opening program the mayor and members of the city council of Wallace were invited guests of the management and occupied boxes.

Grand Theater, Wallace, Idaho.

The theater was planned primarily for moving picture shows, but with a stage and other accessories of sufficient capacity to accommodate the average road show. The building covers a plot of ground 50 by 100 feet, and has a total seating capacity of 700, of which 525 can be accommodated on the main floor and the remainder in the balcony. Ample provision has been made for exits, there being, in addition to the main front entrance and exit, four additional exits for the first floor and two for the balcony. Wash and restrooms have also been provided for both sexes. The auditorium floor and orchestra rail are of concrete and wood trimming is everywhere used sparingly, making the building highly sanitary and greatly decreasing the fire risk.

The building is heated by direct steam, the radiators on the main floor being placed in recesses above the heads of the audience. Ventilation shafts with induced drafts exhaust the foul air near the floor line. The street sides of the building are faced with mottled brown brick of a rough texture and with terra cotta trimmings. The cost of the building exclusive is approximately $20,000. The lighting is of the indirect type, electric fixtures being used.

The Wallace Amusement Company is composed of J. A. Bedard, president; H F. Samuels, vice-president; Dr. J. E. St. Jean, treasurer, and C. C. Spencer, secretary and manager.

MABEL TRUNNELLE GETS ROSES.

The New Kingston theater, at St. John's place and Kingston avenue, Brooklyn, had a big performance the other night when Mabel Trunnelle and Herbert Pryor appeared in person during the showing of their feature, "The Magic Skin," and got a hearty reception from a large following that crowded the theater to the great delight of Manager Lou Smith.

Miss Trunnelle was presented with a magnificent basket of American Beauty roses and Mr. Pryor with a handsome gold handled cane.

We may add, as by way of a postscript, that Manager Lou Smith is just become a benedict, and that Miss Anna May Krassner is to be his bride, and the date set for the ceremony is January 1. For the honeymoon, the happy couple are to go to Atlantic City and their home address is then to be at 850 Longwood avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

STRAND THEATER, DENVER, COLO.

To Light Exterior 58,000 Candlepower Is Used—It Is a Blaze of White Light—House Managed by F. A. Mahagan—Accommodates 1,250.

THE newest theater on Curtis street, Denver, Colo., is the Strand theater, which was opened September 9, 1915. It is under the management of F. A. Mahagan, who formerly was manager of the Lyric theater on 16th street, that city. The theater stands on the site of the old Isis, and is one of the prettiest theaters in town. The interior color scheme is blue and gold. The walls are a soft blue, with gold trimmings. The curtains are a rich blue velvet, with the gold "S" and fleur-de-lis used as motifs. The drapes at the entrance and in the foyer are blue velvet, too, with the same motifs used.

The exterior is white. Three immense sunbursts light it. On the exterior there is 58,000 candlepower consumed. It is simply a blaze of white light—is one of the most conspicuous on the street. The entire building is fireproof. The aisles and stairs are unusually wide, so the building may be readily emptied. The booth is well protected against fire, and the light switches are so placed that they may be controlled from all parts of the house.

The seating capacity of the theater is 1,250. The seats are comfortable and wide, measuring twenty inches across. The rows are thirty inches apart. There are three balconies, all of which have good grades and are fitted with the same comfortable seats. A permanent vacuum system is installed and a good ventilation system. The air is changed every five minutes. The heating system, too, is all that could be wished—the house is always kept at a good temperature.

Photo by Wiswall.

Strand Theater, Denver, Colo.

Every comfort for the patrons has been thought of. There is a comfortable smoking room for men downstairs, and upstairs there is a pretty and attractive rest room for women, all fitted up in blue with wicker furniture. Metro and Kleine-Edison features are run in this house, which is exclusively a feature house. Every day there is a comedy and drama and twice a week there is a newspictorial. The admission is ten cents for every seat in the theater.

The Strand has really started a precedent in Denver in that when it strikes an unusually good feature it holds it for a week or ten days. It has always been the custom here that features, no matter how good or how bad, should be run three or four days. The Strand is also headed in the right direction in that Manager Mahagan has employed a bright young woman, Miss Tuhey, to manage the small details and to work toward efficiency. There is a marked improvement in the place since Miss Tuhey has been on the job, for she is a young woman of splendid experience in the picture game, having managed one of the biggest theaters in town for several years, The Iris, and understanding all the finer points that make or break the house. She can do everything from running the ventilation and heating plants to conducting the orchestra and selling tickets in the cashier's booth.

The Strand is a house of which Denver is proud.

REGENT THEATER, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

New House Had 8,000 Paid Admissions on Opening Day—Lights in Floor Aid Patrons in Finding Seats.

THE Regent theater, Indianapolis, Ind., recently opened by Bingham, Crose & Cohen, is an up-to-date exclusive photoplay theater. The house opened on Thanksgiving day with an attendance of more than 8,000 persons through the performances. The building is of brick, steel and reinforced concrete and fire-proof throughout from basement to roof. A big electric sign in front of the house, which carries approximately 1,600 lights, flashes the names of the current attractions. The entire front of the theater is studded with lights. Four flaming arcs close to the sidewalk advertises the house for blocks up and down the street.

The main entrance has a red quarry tile floor with mosaic tile, paneled walls and a well-lighted, domed ceiling in ornamental plaster. A well-designed marquise extends across the front of the entire building and over the sidewalk covering both the main entrance and the front exits. Inside an innovation which strikes the patron is the system of aisle lights. These lights are placed in the floor and are covered by heavy frosted glass. When the house is dark, patrons can find their seats easily or make the way out without any trouble. The lighting system is indirect.

The interior decoration is in tiffany effect with mahogany woodwork and mahogany seating throughout. The air in the auditorium of the theater is changed every few minutes—a system of natural and mechanical ventilation. Special attention has been paid to the retiring rooms for men and women and to the other rooms in the basement. Sanitary drinking fountains have been provided in the men's and women's rooms. A maid is in attendance in the women's retiring rooms and there are also free telephones and writing desks for the convenience of women patrons. The manager's office and rooms for the use of theater employees are in the basement. All exits are marked by large, red lamp boxes in plain view from all parts of the house.

Pageant Theater, Indianapolis, Ind.

The mirror screen which was designed so as to prevent the feeling that the picture was being "framed in" and also to give suitable setting to it, consists of a high paneled wainscot and ornamental plaster decoration and is of pleasing appearance. The screen is the second largest picture screen in any Indianapolis theater. At the front of the auditorium, a mechanical device to prevent drafts on those seated near the entrance has been provided. The house seats 800 persons, and the balcony has been so constructed that it is an ideal place to see the show.

The opening show was "Damaged Goods" at twenty-five cents for all seats. After this film had finished its run, the house established its prices at ten cents, and at this figure V-L-S-E, Pathe, Metro, and Fox productions are shown with a change of program every Sunday, Wednesday, and Friday. Music is provided by a first class orchestra and the shows run continuously from 10 A. M. to 11 P. M.

DITMAS THEATER, PERTH AMBOY, N. J.

Only Photoplay House in City Devoted to Feature Productions—Uses Mirroroid Screen and Has 100 Foot Throw.

THE Ditmas theater, an exterior view of which is herewith produced, enjoys the patronage of the best and most exclusive playgoers of Perth Amboy, N. J. This modern up-to-date house is under the management of Ned K. Miller, who also controls the Empire theater at Rahway, N. J.

The building, which is situated on State street, the center of the city's activity, is of brick construction. The lobby is spacious and artistic, containing pictures of well-known film stars. Lobby display signs are also placed at regular intervals about the lobby. The house accommodates 800 comfortably, and the seats are roomy. The auditorium has no balcony. The Ditmas has had installed a modern ventilating system. During the summer months, fourteen electric fans are kept constantly in motion. There are six ventilators on the sides of the house, and two more at the roof.

Ditmas Theater, Perth Amboy, N. J.

Paramount pictures, together with latest Universal releases, constitute the program. The Paramount pictures are each shown two days, and these form the program for the first four days in the week. On Friday, the current Universal serial is presented, while on Saturday, a special feature is introduced. Seven reels of good pictures are shown at each show at an admission price of five cents for children and ten for adults. Both matinee and evening performances are given, the admission being the same at night as at matinees. Although there are several moving picture houses in Perth Amboy, the Ditmas is the only one devoted to exclusive features. The city has a population of 40,000.

The projection department of the photoplay house is in the hands of a capable operator. The equipment consists of two Standard projectors, spotlights, and a high power generator. The throw is 110 feet, and the screen used is a Mirroroid. A piano furnishes the music. Manager Miller is a firm believer in newspaper publicity, and he attributes much of the success of the Ditmas to consistent newspaper work and the excellence of the Paramount program.

LYRIC THEATER, HAMILTON, ONT., CANADA.

Largest of United Chain—Seats 2,200 and Has 169-Foot Throw—Employs Twenty-one Persons.

THE Canadian United Theaters, Limited, with head offices in London, Ontario, control a chain of seven large theaters in Eastern Canada, three of which are devoted exclusively to the showing of high class moving pictures. The largest and best paying theater of this circuit is the Lyric of Hamilton, which has seating accommodation for 2,200 persons. It has been the policy of the company, for the past two years, to maintain this theater as a good moving picture house and several features of the system employed by Manager F. C. Chadwick are, to say the least, unique.

The Lyric was opened late in 1913 as a vaudeville house but, in spite of the city's population of 100,000, it soon proved a failure. It was taken over by the present company in February, 1914, and since that time, when it was transformed into a picture theater, the business has increased five times. At the present time, the one vaudeville act is not even mentioned in the advertisements for the week's shows.

Manager Chadwick is a great believer, according to his own admission, in "the long shows," and provides a program of no less than thirteen reels for the matinees each week day, for which he charges an admission of 10 cents with 5 cents for children. In the evening this show is cut down slightly in order to secure two houses, but still it is a long program. There are no "big nights" and the result is found in two big crowds every night in the week at 10 cents and 15 cents, with the admission for children never more than 5 cents. The program is changed three times a week, with World films on Monday and Tuesday and Paramount pictures during the remaining four days, with a total change on Friday. One feature each Wednesday and Thursday is an educational film of scientific or wonder nature.

The city of Hamilton claims the distinction of having theaters with the longest and shortest throws of any theaters in Canada. One local picture house has a projection of only thirty feet, but in the Lyric the throw is 169 feet. The screen, a gold fibre one, is no less than 16 feet back from the foot-lights so that the orchestra seats are almost as popular as those in the rear. The projection equipment includes two Simplex machines, and there is a telephone system running to all parts of the house. The theater also has its own electric generating plant so that entire reliance does not have to be placed on the two local lighting systems. A cooling plant is operated by electricity and the air is changed by means of mushroom ventilators under every seat.

The staff of the theater, including the five-piece orchestra and the manager, is made up of twenty-one persons—all men. The general manager of the circuit is Clark Brown of the United offices, New York, but the manager of each theater has practically complete control of his house. The Interior View of the Lyric Theater, Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

Lyric seldom takes any of the big multi-reel features because the long films mean an interruption to the system of programs in vogue.

The other large Canadian theaters controlled by this company are the Majestic, at Stratford, Ontario, seating 1,400 people, and the Majestic at London, Ontario, with a seating capacity of 1,500, both of which are moving picture houses exclusively. In addition the company has a burlesque theater in Montreal, Que., vaudeville theaters in Ottawa and Montreal, and a stock company theater in Hamilton. The show house at Stratford is the latest to be added to the string.

The accompanying photograph shows the interior of the Lyric theater at Hamilton with its plain and substantial appurtenances and decorations and indirect lighting.

NICHOLLS DIRECTING "THE GRINNING SKULL OF RESPECTABILITY."

Director George O. Nicholls is engaged in the production of a Selig Diamond Special in three reels, written by William E. Wing and entitled "The Grinning Skull of Respectability." This virile story depicts the foibles and insincerity of society.

BILLY SHERWOOD AT WORK WITH EDISON.

Billy Sherwood, the southern actor who won third place in the Junior A. A. U. Championship Walk of the south, is at work at the Edison studio playing the juvenile lead opposite Grace Williams in a three-reel drama under the direction of Frank McGlynn.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Be Careful.

EXHIBITORS should be careful in making contracts with traveling salesmen for premiums, advertising and supplies in general. More than once the columns of this paper have carried stories of swindles worked upon exhibitors and lately an exhibitor in New York State asked us to look up a company dealing in china. He wrote that a salesman had come to him and as he was busy he had turned him over to his wife. She, acting on the salesman's assurance that her husband approved the scheme, was induced to sign a contract for $130 worth of china. When he learned of the signing of the contract, the manager cancelled the order, but was threatened with suit unless he compromised for $40 for "commission, printing, etc." A letter to the company asking what the "printing, etc." represented was replied to by their lawyer, a singular procedure for a business concern. It is probable that that exhibitor will either have to pay for $40 for nothing at all, or $130 for some stuff that may or may not be of that value.

Do not deal with traveling men. You can get just as good bargains from novelty houses such as Shure & Co., and deal with people who stand back of their goods and who have built their business on a desire to deal fairly with patrons. You can get the stuff as cheaply, if not cheaper, select from a larger catalogue, be free from the results of misrepresentation and avoid legal fees. The firm mentioned above is by no means alone in the business, but represents a type of concern that it pays to deal with. If you want an address nearer your home town, it will be obtained for you.

You Try It.

Sharp and Vahl, of the Orpheum, Nampa, Idaho, are making a play for theatre parties. They print this item in a recent issue:

> A party of twenty young ladies, members of the Junior Department of the Century Club reserved seats for themselves and saw Laura Hope Crews in "The Fighting Hope" last Monday night.
>
> Can you think of a nicer way to entertain a party of friends than with a theatre party? Call us up and we will reserve any number of seats you may desire.

The printer split the item, just as he got the pages mixed, but the combination has its effect. Make a play for the theatre business, as explained in Picture Theatre Advertising, and start off by showing that others have already done it. You can give away seats to a couple of clubs if necessary.

Box parties have this advantage over straight attendance: they make talk. The guests naturally think more about a theatre party than they do of merely dropping in, and others talk more of a party than the fact that they saw certain persons in the house on a particular night. Also it is the sort of stuff you can feed the local papers, because it is real news as well as real advertising of a very practical sort.

How About It?

We are still waiting for Ben Michaels to come along with that Chinese department in polyglot North End News, which he prints in the interest of the Verdi Theatre, San Francisco. He has kept all of his other promises and the sheet is really a newspaper as well as a house organ. He stands in with the local association for the promotion of the section and now he is advertising for a society reporter. He has a sporting editor already. That takes a column and a half, but it makes readers. That the sheet has taken hold is shown in the printing of several advertisements in Italian; not house, but business advertisements. For a youngster the North Side News is a husky, and it is making business by taking an interest in the general affairs of the section.

Mail Folders.

The Elite, Mishicot, Wis., uses a four page card holder that can be clipped with a paper fastener and sent through the mails at penny postage, the back being lined for the address. They advertise a two day program (but do not date the days). The mailing scheme is a good one, where a mail list is used. You can send four or six pages under penny postage if the folder is not sealed, and you can save the cost of envelopes.

Teaching.

It is a good plan to clip things about the films and reprint for the information of your patrons, but it is a better plan still to give the paragraphs a local twist, where possible, and generally it is possible. The Liberty, Jamesburg, N. J., uses a tiny four page, but it gets in the program and house talk and it talks about the house. They not only stand up for the pictures, but they show from their own past programs what good stories can be had, which gives the argument a double force. Read this:

> Films are not a peril—they are not the things of evil the bigots suppose them to be. They have done good everywhere, are still doing good and will continue to do so for all time to come.
>
> What would be more of a lesson for good than "The Stoning," or "On Dangerous Paths" shown only last Wednesday, or "The Money Master," or "The Hand of God," or, in fact, any picture that has been shown, be they single reel, double reel or feature? What could have been sweeter than that beautiful Griffith picture, "A Mothering Heart?"
>
> And so they go, all down the line, each doing its little good and passing on—and so, one by one, the hold-outs, the people of all classes, are realizing what a wonderful benefit it all is.

See what you can do along the same lines. In every town there are some whose prejudice must be combatted. They are talking. Talk back.

An "Injun Invitation."

The Grand Theatre, Fairmount, West Va., recently booked in "Are You a Mason," and sent out invitations to all members of the craft assembled for special doings. It was done in regular invitation form, but at the bottom is the line, "Bring ten cents with you." The unexpectedness of the line gave more force to the invitation than any other form of advertising. A straight invitation with an admission at the door would have been a business breaker, but worded as it was it made both laughs and business.

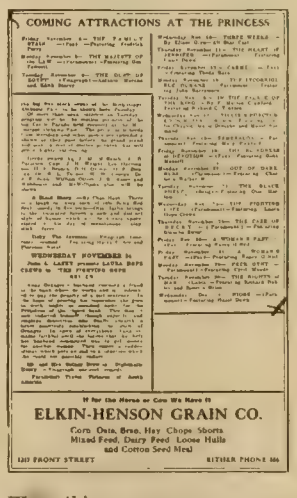
A Handy Phone.

The Fine Arts Theatre, Detroit, has phone number one in its exchange and makes "Phone Cadillac 1" a sort of slogan. It's more handiy than many realize to have a phone call that is easily remembered, but this is about the handiest yet. You phone one for information, the house program, party seats or anything else. They get out a nice looking twelve page paper with about a page and a half of house notes. An editorial chat should be put in. Notes are good, but about half a page of straight talk about one feature of the house is even better. Tell about yourself, modestly, but with a full appreciation of your various excellencies.

Wants to Know.

The Princess Theater, Meriden, Miss., sends in a program and says "go to it—criticize." They do not want to be patted on the head. They want to make the issue better. It is a four pager, cheap news stock, 6 by 9½. Some local advertising is carried, but there are five blank spaces which should be filled in with something to kill the unfinished look, even if nothing more had been done than to say, "This space for sale." Plain white space looks bleak and suggests an unfinished condition that unconsciously is associated with the house. Until the space can be sold, it would be even better to run some notes on photoplay.

The printer has made up badly. He uses two columns and on the first page the program matter is the left hand column instead of the right, and he runs there the Monday announcement and the Tuesday date and two lines of the first synopsis. This should have been taken over to the second page where it can be read as a whole. Inside the sheet looks like this:



COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE PRINCESS

ELKIN-HENSON GRAIN CO.

Corn Oats, Bran, Hay Chops Shorts
Mixed Feed, Dairy Feed Loose Hulls and Cotton Seed Meal

UNCLE JIMMY SHORT

SPINKS

For Good Plumbing

Were this our program we would first break up the rule borders and make the outside rule box in both pages, a single oblong of rule taking in the two pages. Next we would move the program column on page two, to meet the program on three, and box these in as a whole. This we would box in with six point rule. This would keep the program apart from the advertising. Next we would use on the right hand page, outside column, just enough of the coming attractions to run down to the bottom advertisement, or else we would set this just outside of the program on each side of the program box, having the advertisements only top and bottom, on these two pages. Or, still better, we would take these two sections for house chat and use the program space on the back page for underlines, making the stories for the day so short that they could all be gotten into the space on pages two and three. The L shaped underline is easy for the printer, but it is unsightly. He seems to have made it up in a hurry and to please himself and with no idea of making a good job of it.

If the Princess has a copy of Picture Theatre Advertising, a very excellent form can be found on page 181, or if they have a file of this paper, the same program is reproduced on page 1251, of the issue dated May 22, 1915. In either case we would urge a few lines of descriptive matter rather than the complete synopsis. If they hold to the full synopsis, they should watch the proof and not permit a two line turn. The Tuesday date should appear on top at page two and not at the bottom of page one. It can be done by cutting four lines out "The Black Sheep" if it is desired to give full space to the special film featured on that day; a local fair picture.

It is always necessary to watch the printer. Give him a chance and naturally he will loaf. He will not double up a story just because it looks better when straight run and a turn will save time. Tell him what you want, and how you want it and then see that he delivers the goods.

Meriden can get in the class with Brooklyn. The latter is famous as the home of Kick, the Printer. Meriden has Thrash, the Repair Man, and possibly some auto owners would like to.

At It Again.

They are at the coupon scheme again out west. The Ogden (Utah) Examiner gives matinee coupons for a local house that are good for balcony seats in the evening up to seven thirty. The scheme used to be a good one before the papers found out how handy it was, but now it helps only the paper and but seldom the house.

A Stock Invitation.

Louis Pilosi, of Pilosi's Theatre, Old Forge, Pa., offers a new scheme in a stock invitation. It is printed in Old English, which means that there is a printer with poor judgment in Old Forge, but the idea is new and of advantage. The form invites the recipient to attend a performance, the date and title of the picture being written in to suit the need of the moment. The sample sent in invites to a performance of America and was sent to all the local school teachers. Mr. Pilosi writes that a record business resulted. Since the lower line reads: "Kindly advise pupils to see this production," we gather that the card is kept for the teachers and is sent out whenever anything of an educational or semi-educational value is shown, but the scheme of having a stock invitation printed up and left blank for title and date is one that can be adapted to many forms of use. Where the number of invitations to be sent out permits, it is possible to get a two color effect by printing a second time for title and date in another color.

Mr. Pilosi deserves a vote of thanks. He gets something handier than the form letter, and this can be used many times when a form letter would require too much time. He says he has more schemes. If they are as good as this he is not only invited but urged to come along with the rest. It's odd this idea was not thought of before.

The Right Direction.

The East Liberty Cameraphone, Pittsburgh, in a recent program enclosed a slip which reads:

EVERY AFTERNOON—
WE WILL SHOW two pictures especially selected to entertain the Young People.
CAMERAPHONE THEATRE
6202 Penn Ave.

This is a step in the right direction. It is a good talking point and appeals to the mothers as well as the kiddies and in these days of overproduction it is easy to get good commercials cheaply. Many exhibitors report a falling off in the juvenile attendance. This is largely because they are not interested in the longer features now used. Give them something in the afternoon and get that extra money. It is just as spendable as the adult admissions and it pleases the youngsters.

Good Work.

We've been watching the Lehigh Orpheum, South Bethlehem, experiment with programs. They used to have a neat vest pocket, but they suddenly went after the six by nine, and for some weeks they have been fishing around. Now they seem to have struck it. The first page carries the releases for the week, the names of the players, the titles of the plays and the days, but not the dates—which should be added. Inside there are three days to a page, open composition and perhaps not quite enough display, since at least the title should be in display and the names of the players, too. The back page is given the chief feature unless a herald for this is bound in, when the back carries the second best bet for the week. One thing that makes for success with this house is that they never try to say too much for the space they have. They do not load down with type. It is always clean and neat in appearance, inviting to the eye.

Objects to Cigarettes.

H. E. Dodge, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Fall River, Mass., who runs the photoplay exhibitions recently spoken of in this department, writes that he is going to raise the program to ten reels. He has been running on what used to be called in vaudeville the Poli scheme, starting with the lesser films, running the features and repeating the opening numbers for the benefit of the late comers. Now he will run ten reels straight, which is just a little too long. Ten reels are apt to tire the spectator just as ten hard boiled eggs might be rejected where five would suffice. Six to eight are better, but of course local conditions govern. Mr. Dodge adds:

> From time to time I have read editorial comments in the various motion picture trade journals, in which they have stated that there was "too much revolver" in our motion pictures. I thoroughly agree with these criticisms, but would like to add another criticism, viz.—"too much cigarettes."
>
> In this day, no posted man will defend the cigarettes. It is bad enough to men, but the injury to boys is incalculable. When boys see actors using cigarettes as much as they do in our pictures, it cannot but have a very harmful effect. I do wish something could be done to cut the cigarette smoking in pictures down to the very minimum, if it cannot be eliminated altogether.

There undoubtedly is too much cigarette smoking in pictures, but cigarettes are cheaper than cigars and better than the sort the property man will supply, and the actor uses the cigarette to keep his hands occupied and out of the way. Mr. Dodge's point is well taken. Small boys have their motion picture heroes as well as heroines and some might be tempted to smoke "just like" their favorite star. The point is referred to the directors. Mr. Dodge is not in the reformer class. He is a regular man as his selection of films will show, but he takes a point because he knows so well there is a reason for it.

Come In Handy.

The accompanying cut shows the use made of a float prepared for a county fair. An animal picture suggested the circus, the circus suggested the float and the float made for business. It was used by the Burns, Brothers, of the Bungalow Theatre, Durant, Okla. The double use of the float is clever and suggests the expediency of building a structure for a wagon or auto that can be put to double use. If you are in a small town and need to wake them up now and then, get something of this sort and let it appear on the street only when you have something extra special.

Criticisms.

A western theatre is inviting its patrons to criticise the programs that may advise the manufacturers as to what is wanted. We do not like the idea. It argues well, but it does not take into consideration the fact that most persons suppose that criticism must be adverse. Start them criticizing and presently they will become dissatisfied. Do not ask them to critize each program or you'll have started something you cannot stop and they will keep on after the coupon is withdrawn.

Takes Nerve, but——

It takes nerve to give your front page to past performances, but that is what the Grand, Salem, Oregon, does. It starts off with a reader about the past week's bill. It tells you it was good and why. Then you turn to the current program feeling that this must be good, too. Too few managers tell of the past. They seem to think that it speaks for itself, but it pays now and then to tell, in a chatty vein, how good your shows have been, as an unspoken argument in favor of coming attractions.

A little more care should be taken with the inside pages. The right hand pages, three and five, should be used for the house programs, and the lefts given to the outsiders. The topics should be dated. In the first issue one story is announced for Friday and Saturday. The other is announced as "A feature of the week," without being more specific. In another place the dates are given. They should be repeated in the heading for the story. It would probably pay the house to throw the advertisement off the front page and take this for the program.

Selling Space.

The Orpheum, Fort Wayne, Ind., has some good lines for its program which are run every week. They may help others who have more white space than they have call for.

NUTSHELL FACTS ABOUT THIS PROGRAM

> 2,000 of these programs are delivered to the most select homes in the city. To people who are playgoers—and therefore spenders.
>
> The balance are given away to patrons passing from the theater.
>
> The reading matter in the program is of such a nature that people will necessarily have to keep the pamphlet in order to refer to the schedule of coming attractions.
>
> This program gets into the home—and stays there. Something which other theater programs do not do.
>
> Space rates are cheaper than any other similar publication issued in the city.

They run a lot of advertising as it is, getting out twelve pages, but they take a part of each page for themselves, setting a good example. They are happy in their choice of lines, some of the heads reading "Shadows of some coming events" for the underline and "What the orchestra will play this week" for their musical department, which is paired with "Vocal selections for the week." Both paragraphs carry some chat about the singer and the musicians designed to help the audience to realize that the music is worth while. It might seem that if the music was worth while the audience would appreciate the fact without being told, but it is a good plan to tell them because it crystalizes their own opinions. They may know the music is good and not realize it because they never definitely and positively told themselves so. When they read the paragraph, the wording gives the sub-conscious thought a form and permanency. That is why it pays, now and then, when you have had a particularly good program to talk about it. Your people have seen it, but tell them what to think about it and they will not only think but talk about the good shows.

Dates Needed.

The Lyric, Asbury Park, N. J., sends in a six-page folder for comment and about the only comment we can make is the same old suggestion of dated days. The folder opens up to show the program on three pages of one side. This gives a page to each two-day attraction, but only the days are named. They are not dated. The date runs only on the front page and there it is spelled out, so that it is not picked up as quickly as would be the figures. We think that while the spelled out date is more elegant, the figure date is more practical. The date should be given on the front page as "the week of" and the first and last day inclusive. Then each film subject should be dated as well.

The issue is an attractive one, being printed in purple on white stock and framed in a light yellow border. Inside, the three attractions are run as a whole, being separated into three panels with three lengths of rule, the center one being twelve ems and the others eight, the center rule rising and falling two ems below and above the others. This makes a simple cut-off that even the smallest shop can improvise and it isolates the three sections without separating them. The border runs about the entire three pages as a whole and carries three cuts and two trade marks set in. On the other side all of the pages are separately framed and carry the title, the underline and brief comment as to the week's attractions.

Purple on white alone is apt to be crude, but where there is another color to temper it, it works up nicely. The use of the yellow for titles is not well advised, for it puts the most important line in the weaker color. The title could better have gone in the purple with a frame of the yellow to throw it into prominence. The titles should always be made as prominent as possible. If you have two colors use the stronger for the titles and box with the contrasting color.

You Too?

Have you one of these in your theater?

> The Saturday morning performances at the New Family for boys and girls are proving a great attraction for the young folks. Indeed, the variety of subjects presented affords interest to every one regardless of age. Special care is given to the selection of the films, and the increasing weekly attendance demonstrates the public appreciation of the efforts put forth by the New Family Children's Welfare League in bringing these pictures to Adrian. Two shows each Saturday morning—10 and 11 o'clock. Doors open at 9:30. Admission without a league ticket 5 cents. Tickets may always be obtained at the following stores, which are members of the league: Henig, Westgate & Condra, Commercial Savings Bank, Geo. M. Tripp Co., and James H. Howell Co.

Sooner or later you must realize that the majority of motion pictures are not longer being made to please the children. The kiddies are no longer in the majority in any audience, not even at the matinees. A more adult story appeals to the men and women more than it does to the children, but the children can and should be appealed to through the special performance. This clipping is taken from the well edited program of the New Family, Adrian, Mich., but many houses are falling in line. Why not come along with the rest and have your own special performances?

This scheme seems to be worked in conjunction with business houses. Perhaps the management will be good enough to explain the details for the benefit of the rest of us.

The New Family program, by the way, holds its own remarkably well for a monthly. The bills for the month are announced in brief form and the remainder of the space is taken up with comment on the stronger features. This is much better than an even apportionment of the space, no matter what the relative value of the attractions. One great danger in program writing is to emphasize all pictures alike. Nothing seems to stand out; nothing seems to be better than the rest—so it is not.

Booming Carmen.

Orval E. Sellers is good enough to outline his campaign for "Carmen." The two films were showing in East Liverpool, Ohio, and his house, the Strand, had the Farrar pictures. He writes:

> Enclosed is a copy of an issue of our morning paper of a scheme I used for this theater last week to boost "Carmen." It may not meet with your approval as up-to-date matter for a big city, but it was a knockout here. East Liverpool is a town of 25,000. This theater is the best in the city for pictures, and seats 1,100. We are playing Paramount Metro, Triangle and the best of other feature films on the market. The business has been boosted 700 per cent. the last three weeks by novel advertising schemes. Our opposition was booked to play the Theda Bara Carmen at the same time we played Farrar. I used the page ad in the papers and had the form changed to the back page of the first section and 1,500 extras run off and put the red ink on the front. We got hold of the local agent of the Victrola and used the Farrar records of Carmen, and also got him to use space on our page. Then I wrote up a short history of Farrar, Bizet, the opera and the immensity of the production. We distributed the papers in all stores, offices and throughout the home section.
>
> During the action of the film, while the cigarette factory scene was on, I used disinfectine which imitated the smell of joss and tobacco and put it in the incoming vent pipe for air, which circulates every minute throughout the building. By cue from the operator at the termination of the scene, I cut it out and the odor was cleared out in less than a minute. The front of the building was draped with Spanish flags and set pieces. The orchestra used the Carmen music adapted for the play by Rothapfel and the ushers were dressed as Spanish boys. We packed the house for the entire engagement.
>
> We have some novel effects for Mme. Butterfly, with Pickford, when we play it. I will write you about them at the time. We have a 22-foot stage back of our screen and are using some novel effects a la New York when we can. On the Via Wireless picture we are using a large coil and flash on the roof of the building, the noise of which attracts a number of people.
>
> This may all seem like "small time stuff," but it is getting the money and the attention of the people in this city. I read your articles each week and get some very good ideas from them. Anything you might suggest that would get the attention of the people or the money, I would appreciate.

The paper is the regular issue with a half-page scare head in red ink surcharged on the face of the regular black imprint. The line, "18 women seriously hurt," is so placed as to show up clearly, and smaller type adds, "in the fight in the cigarette factory in Carmen." This idea is not new, but the fake extra is by no means worked out, and right now any extra will attract attention.

The back page gives only half a page of advertisement. There is a three-column half-page advertisement for the Victrola, apparently an independent advertisement, and some stuff set as straight news. As we get it the entire page was paid for, though but half was used for the ostensible advertisement, and this is very far from being "small time" stuff. It takes nerve to hold back the straight advertisement and put in reading matter, but the Victrola advertisement is really a part of the film advertisement. It tells who Farrar is better than the house could. Of course the house should know, but here is the Victrola company also advertising her as a record star. They are not interested in the house. Farrar must be good. It is worth the price of the full page to keep the stuff all together, even though some of it might have been slipped in as a free reading notice. We do not see that Mr. Sellers needs many tips from the big town.

The ventilator stunt is clever. We wonder if the next day the papers told about it, with mild emphasis laid upon the fact that in just one minute the smell vanished. That would be big time stuff, too. The Via Wireless coil was used at the New Amsterdam theater when the play was running in New York and it attracted as much attention on Forty-second street as it probably did in East Liverpool.

Mr. Sellers draws too fine a distinction when he asks for ideas that get attention or get the money. Ideas that get attention get the money as the inevitable result. The two work interchangeably. To get the money you must gain attention and, gaining attention, the money follows, but you must interest as well as attract. Sometimes it is a bad scheme to get the attention if you cannot back up the noise by an attraction worth the while, but this does not, of course, apply to Carmen.

Mixed.

The Empress, Gordon, Neb., sends in an opening program, the house being started in November, playing films when road attractions do not ofier. P. Poggenpohl, the manager, uses an elaborate cover, evidently stock, but not Hennegan or United States material, in red and gold, a neat design that is not intrusive and yet stands out well. We should like to see some of the later advertising after so tasteful a start.

Overdone.

A correspondent sends in the program of a theater here in New York. On one undated week the schedule was:

Monday—Country store. Fifty presents.
Tuesday—Oriental night. Forty presents.
Wednesday—Novelty and Surprise night.
Thursday—Country store. Fifty presents.
Friday—Shirt Waist night. Twenty waists.
Saturday—Cut Glass night.
Sunday—A special program of excellent photoplays.

No wonder some people say that there is no money in pictures! It will be noticed, nowever, that there is no lottery on Sunday. That will help some. This is not running a theater. It is as bad as the old Louisiana lottery.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid, $2.00.

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Inquiries.

Questions concerning the writing (but NOT the marketing of) photoplays will be replied to without charge if addressed to the Photoplaywright Department and accompanied by a fully addressed stamped envelope. Questions must be typewritten or written with pen and ink.

Questions as to the financial standing of concerns or the probable markets for specific or certain styles of stories cannot be answered.

In no case and under no circumstance will any manuscript or synopsis be handled and if sent will be returned without reply.

A list of addresses of producing companies will be sent if the request is made direct to the publication office, but not where request is made to this department.

Keeping at It.

PERSISTENCE pays, but it is not easy to persuade the novices of this fact. They want to write "a" script and sell it and write another and sell that and so on. After they have failed to sell a couple or "several" they get tired, decide that the business is a swindle and quit.

Generally, it would not pay the quitter to stick. He does not have it in him to succeed. Even if he did, he is too easily discouraged, but now and then someone worth the saving drops by the wayside and this is a message to them.

Lately we were spending the evening with Marc Edmund Jones and as we looked at his files we asked how many scripts had failed to sell. "Only four," he answered. After we came to, we expressed mild disbelief, and he went on to explain that he kept on changing a script until he got it into salable shape, and to illustrate he told the story of the card which is reproduced here This is the actual record of an actual script, that tells the history in brief, but Mr. Jones has amplified the explanation. As the entries will not reproduce, it may be interesting to note the selling history. The written entries are given as they run, the dashes indicating a break for a change in title. They are:

Biograph—10-25, 11-2.

Vitagraph—8-13, 8-17.
Biograph—8-17, 8-24.
Lubin—8-24, 8-29.
Selig—8-31, 9-6.
Victor—9-28, 10-2.

Reliance—4-4, 4-16.
Vitagraph—4-17, 4-26.
Edison—4-26, 5-22.
Lubin—5-22, 5-27.
Kalem—5-29, 6-9.
Essanay—6-10, 6-13.
American—6-13, 7-18.
Universal—7-23, 8-9.
Biograph—8-13, 8-22.
Pilot—8-27, 9-15.
Solax—9-17, 10-6.

Kalem—10-27, 11-4.
Biograph—11-18, 11-29.

Vitagraph—12-11, 12-12 Sold.

Here are twenty submissions in five different forms, four of these being to one company, three to another and several twice each. The story took two years and more to sell, but it did sell and was released. Mr. Jones gives this history of the story:

> "Was She Justified," story number four, was written October 25, 1911, submitted to Biograph, and rejected promptly. It involved the proposition of a woman in love with a man who had been a bad actor and whose conscience wouldn't let him propose to a good woman, the woman thereupon deliberately compromising herself and going down to his plane to win him. "Was She Justified?" Biograph didn't seem to think so.
>
> In August, 1912, the story was taken up again. "The Double Standard" is an elaboration, in which the girl, aided by detectives, succeeds in making the man think her like himself, whereupon he takes her to his arms. Vitagraph, Biograph, Lubin, Selig and Victor rejected promptly, and in October the story was back in the morgue.
>
> April 4, 1913, the story appears again as "When Standards Clash." The man remains a rounder, but is not averse to proposing. She is virgin pure, but accepts in full knowledge of his weakness. Instead of lowering herself to his plane she figures on raising him to hers. She fails. Later her son grows up and follows in the footsteps of his father. His father meets and saves him; also himself. In six months of steady travelling the story was refused a berth by Reliance, Vitagraph, Edison, Lubin, Kalem, Essanay, American, Universal, Biograph, Pilot and Solax, in order.
>
> October 6, 1913, the story was called in, emerging on the 20th, as "The Appearance of Circumstances." Here is a reversion to the original plot, dropping the two generation features. The man is now a reporter, and the girl daughter of a reformer. The man, sent to a notoious cafe to get a story, is reported to the proprietor as an investigator for the reformers, and to avoid a tanning, takes the girl he is talking with to a hotel, there explaining and soothing her disappointment with a liberal tip. He is seen by one of the detectives of the girl's father and told never to see her more. But she believes his story and to convince her father, deliberately compromises herself as in the original plot and convinces her father that "The Appearance of Circumstances" may be innocently damning. Kalem and Biograph returned with their compliments and then the humor of it struck home.
>
> The result is that in December, 1913, the story becomes a comedy. The girl becomes a country mouse and the man a handsome city fellow that thinks the flashy girls the best ones. The mouse tries mousy ways which fail to win him, follows him to a notorious cafe unseen by him, and there noticing the general type of feminity, extemporizes, with a large pair of shears, a generous decollette and an alarming slit skirt. Entering the cafe, she attracts first the attention of an oily theatrical type, from which she is rescued by her ideal, and all ends as it should. "She Would a Siren Be" sold to Vitagraph, and has been released as "The Siren" on September 8, 1915.

In passing it might be noted that so long as the editor was asked to accept seriously the story of a woman who deliberately sought to compromise herself that she might win a man, the story did not prove acceptable. As a comedy with a slightly farcical treatment it sold the first time out. There is a lesson here. Hundreds of stories that have no chance as dramas would make acceptable comedies and the reverse is equally true. The story that makes fun of a subject too serious to be treated humorously is no more acceptable than one which makes a serious portrayal of what cannot be accepted seriously.

Some of his stories have sold the first time out, most of them have sold without substantial alteration, but he just keeps on working away until he does sell. Taken as a whole, his average of sales is not better than the ordinary, but he cleans up through persistence.

For Vaudeville Writers.

Many letters are received by this department asking for information as to writing for vaudeville and some photplay writers have reported sales of this material. Those who have written and others will be interested in the latest addition to The Writers' Library, Writing for Vaudeville, by Brett Page. The work has been very carefully edited by J. Berg Esenwein and stands a remarkably complete and helpful volume to those who would essay that branch of the work. The experience of this writer as a critic of vaudeville for some fifteen years enables him to appreciate the thoroughness with which Mr. Page has done his work and the exactness of his advice. It is a book thoroughly to be commended. Vaudeville writing seems to appeal to the novice more than does the longer dramatic form, though it is even less easy because of the terseness of style and form required, but given the ability to write for vaudeville, Mr. Page's suggestions, made clear through Dr. Esenwein, will give complete guidance. (Writing for Vaudeville. By Brett Page, edited by J. Berg Esenwein, Home Correspondence School, Springfield, Mass. By mail $2.12.)

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 118.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high-class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

Are there any circumstances under which an inside two-wing shutter is to be preferred? What is likely to happen if a three-wing outside shutter is used when the current is 60 cycle A. C.?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 112.

The Roll of Honor on Question 112 consists of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Tex.; L. W. Carroll, Lan aster, New Hampshire; R. W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal.; J. R. Thompson, Youngstown, O., and G. Betz, Osgood, Ind.

It was rather a puzzle which answer to select because of the fact that Brothers Carroll and Betz gave particularly clear explanations of the principle of the beater movement, but Friend Martin, on the other hand, gave a very extended description of these movements accompanied by an excellent drawing, and this finally decided me to use his reply.

Reply to Question No. 112.

By R. W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Question:

What is the "beater type" of intermittent? What are the points for and against it? Why was its use abandoned? What is the "gripper type" of intermittent? Why is a large, heavy star, which would have ample wearing service, not used instead of the smaller one?

The Answer:

The "beater type" of intermittent movement, also called the "dog movement," is shown in one of its forms in Fig. 1. In this form the beater is substantially a wrist pin mounted on the outer end of a crank, the continuous revolution of which causes it to have a motion through circular path ABD in the direction shown. The crank shaft is geared to the shaft which carries the sprocket as shown in Fig. 1. The intermittent movement, entire, is comprised of the beater, the sprocket and the necessary connections between them. The action is described as follows: In Fig. 1 the movement of the film through the gate is just ready to commence. As the beater passes downward through arc AB it presses against and pushes a loop into the film between the gate and the sprocket, and this action, combined with the continuous pull of the sprocket, moves the film down through the gate the exact distance of one frame, or three-quarters of an inch. When the beater reaches point B it starts to ascend, and rises clear of the film, leaving the loop still in the film, so that while the beater moves through arc BDA the sprocket is taking up the slack in the recently formed loop and consequently the film remains stationary in the gate during the time of the movement of the beater through arc BDA. When the beater again comes around to the point A, the same cycle of operation commences again, and so on continuously throughout the whole run of the film, thus causing a continued intermittent movement of the film through the gate.

The throw of the crank, or rather the diameter of circle ABD, must be such that the ratio of arc AB to arc BDA will be equal to the ratio of the period of movement to the period of rest. The larger the diameter of circle ABD the shorter will be the time of the shift, and the smaller its diameter the longer will be the time of the shift. This point is difficult to make clear without going to very great length in the description. The fact that the time of the shift can be altered by merely changing the throw of the crank constitutes one of the main advantages of the beater movement. If the position of the beater is made adjustable by proper mechanical construction, the operator can experiment with different shifts and forms of shutter blades until the proper combination is found which is best adapted to local conditions. The intermittent sprocket type is wholly devoid of this advantage. The accuracy with which the film is shifted in the gate is wholly independent of the length of the throw of the crank. This feature is regulated wholly by the ratio of the gear connections between the crank shaft and the sprocket shaft. If the sprocket has sixteen teeth or a circumference of four frames, then the gear connection must be such that the crank makes four revolutions to every one of the sprocket. Or again, to every frame that the sprocket takes up the crank must make one complete revolution. But the actual principle involved is more clearly set forth by the following:

If the sprocket is running so as to take up sixteen frames per second, the film must pass through the gate at the rate of sixteen frames per second with either a uniform, variable, or intermittent motion. But the action of the beater is imparting sixteen intermittent movements to the film in the gate during the same time and at equal intervals. Therefore, the film is passing through the gate at the rate of sixteen frames per second, and also with sixteen intermittent movements per second; and consequently each movement must comprise the distance of exactly one frame.

This fundamental principle of the beater movement is the most perfect that has ever been applied to a device for shifting the film, and augments much in its favor. The Kinemacolor projector which uses the type of movement shown in Fig. 1 shifts the film at the high rate of about 35 frames per second, and the picture stands on the screen like a rock. The Kinemacolor machine also demonstrates another strong point in favor of the beater type. Even at such high speed, and under extra heavy gate tension, the film stands up well at the perforations. This is due to the fact that the sprocket moves a very short distance during the time of the shift. Consequently there is no ripping action exerted upon the perforations, such as is caused by the sudden high speed of an intermittent sprocket. Another advantage of the beater type lies in the fact that there are no intermittent mechanical parts, and consequently the shock and vibration in the mechanism is reduced to a minimum. It is therefore well adapted for high speed. The problem of inertia is eliminated, and inertia in a device of this kind is some problem.

Now to enumerate some of the defects of the movement: When the beater descends and strikes the film at the point A, Fig. 1, it sounds like a chorus of about 400 katy-dids and a few crickets, and the noise is loud enough to constitute a serious objection to using the movement at all. It is also claimed that when the beater strikes the film it tends to produce cracks in the celluloid. It is also claimed that the vibrations set up in the loop are transmitted to the aperture and injure the definition of the picture. There is still another fault which is serious, viz.: The beater is constructed to strike the film only on the perforated margins, to avoid injury to the photograph, and the constant beating on the edges causes the film to buckle, and in time this prevents the picture from lying flat in the aperture. All of these defects have caused the movement to fall into disrepute, until it is now scarcely used at all.

There is another form of beater movement known as the "pitman type." In this form the beater occupies a mechanical position that corresponds exactly with the cross head of an engine. The beater oscillates with a straight line motion, but otherwise the action is the same as described in connection with Fig. 1. It causes less vibration in the loop, but the oscillating motion produces more vibration in the mechanical parts. There have been many attempts to eliminate the defects of the beater movement by means of auxiliary devices which operate mainly to vary the nature of the movement of the beater; but so far none of them have been adopted to any extent.

The gripper type of intermittent movement is shown in one of its forms in Fig. 2. It could be described briefly as an intermittent wringer. The two rollers shown in Fig. 2 have a part of their surfaces raised along the arcs AB and A'B' and are connected to each other by gears which cause the two rollers to revolve in opposite directions at equal speed. When A and A' come to position shown, the film is gripped between the rollers and pulled downward like a towel through a wringer and when B and B' come into contact the film is released and remains stationary while the rollers move through the arcs BDA and B'D'A'. The ratio of time of movement to time of rest is determined by the lengths of the arcs AB and A'B'. There are other mechanical devices for accomplishing the purpose, but they operate in principle like the form shown in Fig. 2. In the early days of cinematography, before perforation of the film came into vogue, the gripper type was the subject of much experiment; but its action could never be made positive, since the film could not be prevented from slipping when passing between the rollers.

The star of the Geneva movement is made small and light to elminate the effect of inertia as much as possible. There are two kinds of inertia operating in the star, viz.: positive and negative inertia. Negative inertia is the resistance the star opposes to the starting action of the pin. Positive inertia is the tendency of the star to, when it has reached its highest speed at the central part of its movement, run ahead of the pin. If the pin does not fit the slots in the star very snugly, the positive inertia produces what is known as back-lash, and it is the back-lash almost entirely which produces the clicking noise of the Geneva movement. To test this, use a movement which is properly adjusted at the lock and cam but has a pin considerably worn. When run at normal speed, the noise of the back-lash can be plainly heard; but if the axle of the intermittent sprocket is pinched between the thumb and forefinger so as to set up a brake action, the noise can be made to cease. The power required in the pinching operation will be sufficient evidence of the enormous force of the inertia of the star and sprocket, and will be convincing proof that the star should not be made larger or heavier. It is taken for granted that it is understood that the inertia reacts on the pin to the deterioration of the pin, besides producing shock to the whole mechanism.

Operators' Scale Raise.

The Baltimore theater managers have shown wisdom in granting to the members of Local 181 a raise of $2.00 per week. The statement was recently printed that the raise was $2.00 per day (which is absurd on the face of it) and that the contract in a modified form was signed by the managers. The raise was $2.00 per week, and the contract was signed without any modification whatever. The managers were wise in taking this course. They would think nothing of paying two, ten, or even twenty dollars per week extra for film service, so why not pay a few dollars extra to have the service put on the screen properly? Is it not rather absurd, after all, to pay fifty to seventy-five, or maybe a hundred dollars a week for service, and then have that same service projected to the screen by a cheap man? It don't sound like common sense, does it? However, the Baltimore managers have the reputation of being fairly liberal and progressive. We, therefore, congratulate them on the step they have taken, even though there was a little argument about it.

Among other things we are informed that the contract calls for $1.50 per week extra for carrying reels one way, or $2.50 per week for carrying them both ways. Overtime is 50 cents per hour, or fraction thereof, the operators being required to be on duty fifteen minutes before the opening of the show; also if a manager insists on an intermission of less than five minutes between shows there shall be a boy, not a man, to rewind the film, and (the following looks mighty good to the editor) operators shall not rewind film while operating the machine. Six days is considered a week's work; Sunday double time.

The Union agrees to furnish sober, competent, reliable men. An authorized inspector of the union is permitted to visit the operating room at all times, when the house is open, to see that the operator is properly performing his duty.

And last but not least contract runs until November 3, 1918, and managers agree to employ only union operators, members in good standing of Local 181.

There are many things in the Baltimore contract which are highly deserving of emulation by other organizations. It is, in fact, the most up-to-date, progressive, thoroughly satisfying contract we have so far seen, except that in some cities of the far west salaries are very much higher. However, the Baltimore scale compares favorably with that of other eastern cities.

New York Operators' Ball.

On January 16th, Local Union No. 305, I. A. T. S. E., will pull off its fourth annual Big Doings. The Central Opera House, 67th street, near Third avenue, has been engaged and the various committees are working hammer and tongs to make the affair as in past years one great, big, howling success. It goes without saying that some of the biggest stars in the film firmament will grace the occasion by their presence. There will be favors for the ladies and each male guest will be decorated with a badge, presumably so that when he wanders forth at dawn the kindly cop can identify and steer his wavering steps toward home and mama.

Prior to the ball, at 8.30 sharp, will be an entertainment. If you wish to see this part of the Big Doings it will be necessary to be on the job at that hour, and no later.

The committee, through the department, extends to all locals a most cordial invitation to participate in the affair. Individual invitations will be sent to nearby locals, and it is expetced that the men of Hudson County, Local No. 384, Newark, N. J., Local 244, Paterson, N. J., Local 362, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Local 366, will attend. Also that Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, New Haven, Springfield, and other locals within "reaching distance" will at least be represented.

Take it from me, gentlemen, it is going to be some time. On that night the New York Local will give an up-to-date demonstration of the very newest and most approved method of shoving dull care clear back into his hole, and pushing the hole carefully in after him. Heretofore the New York Operators' ball has been classed among the Events (note capital E, please) of Gay Gotham, but this time the boys are going to give the Screen Club a close run for first place.

Likes the Handbook.

Oscar Hinton, Atchison, Kansas, encloses a money order for $2.50 for another copy of the second edition of the Handbook, and says:

> I want it for one of my operators, as I consider it the best text book that can be secured at any price or any place, and one which should be in the hands of every operator or beginner who desires to get ahead. In my nine years at the game I have never found any other work that covers the field as does your Handbook. Yes, Brother Richardson, I know this praise has been a long time getting into this form, but when a man has lots to do—well you understand. Atchison is a town of 20,000 with three houses, viz.: Royal, Crystal and Orpheum, the latter being a combination house. Have recently installed a Baird projector in the Crystal, and I believe the Baird will stand when others fail. Projection is, I think, good, and salaries as high as one could expect in a town of this size—better than in many places. No local. Salaries fifteen to twenty dollars; six hours daily. In closing accept best wishes both for yourself, the department and the Moving Picture World.

Sorry I could not send the book, but I hope by the first of the year to be able to send you a real book—one that will make the old one look like thirty cents with a hole in it. Glad to know that conditions in Atchison are good, but it seems to me that from every point of view it would be better if the men got together in a local. Whisper: looks like the new book is going to be a reg'lar hum dinger—700 to 800 pages.

Shadowgraphs.

Mullens, South Carolina, asks:

> (a) Please give me the name of publisher of book on Shadowgraphs. (b) Name and address of manufacturer of plates used in shadowgraphing. (c) Is there a film cement on the market which can be used successfully without first scraping the film, and where can I procure it?

(a) "Shadowgraphing" might mean either one of two things, viz: the throwing of shadows on a screen by means of the hands, in which way experts can imitate birds, animals, etc., or the painting or drawing of objects in such way that they are projected to the screen as they are drawn or painted. Don't know of any book on the subject. (b) Don't know what you mean by "plates used in shadowgraphing." If you mean plates upon which one draws objects, which are projected in the process of drawing, why any plain sheet of glass will answer, the same being coated with a suitable compound. (I said compound, but, as a matter of fact, these things are usually done by smearing the glass with a quick drying compound which is scraped off in the process of forming the object.) (c) Yes, there is such a cement, but I don't regard it as being a success when used that way. Don't remember who makes it. See back files of department, about two months ago I think.

Grounding.

J. Barbera, Newark, N. J., orders both question booklets and says:

> How do you make an electrical connection to ground the metal of a moving picture machine to the metal of the cabinet; also how do you remedy a ground?

You can ground a projector to the metal of the operating room by loosening a bolt in one of the iron members (I take it you have an asbestos operating room) and clamping one end of a small copper wire (bell wire will do) under the bolt tightly, and then clamping the other end of the wire under any convenient bolt of an all metal projector, say one of the bolts holding the mechanism to the base. A ground is remedied by finding the place where the current is leaking and remedying whatever is wrong. It would take up too much space to go fully into this matter. It is a very elementary question, and one you will find fully explained in the new Handbook.

Use the Table.

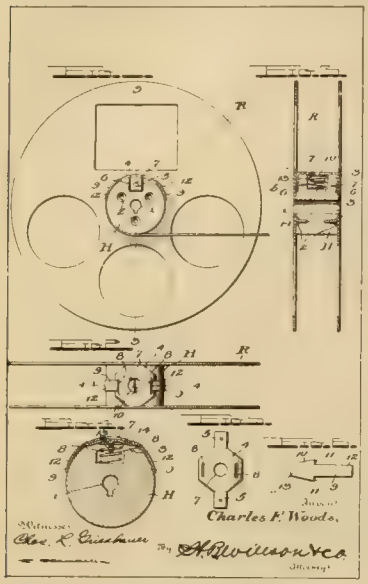
H. B. Franks, Macomb, Ill., says:

> Can't get my lens system right. Throw is 78 feet, and I have tried every kind of condensing lens I could get, but there is still a white ghost in the middle of the picture, with the top brown. Picture is 13 feet 7 inches wide, and am using a Gundlach quarter size lens. This is the first time in my ten years of show business that I have been stuck, and I will consider it a great help if you will advise me what to do.

You grab the October issue of the Moving Picture World, Brother Franks, and line up your lens system in accordance with Table No. 1, which you will find therein contained. IF YOU CANNOT DO IT THEN THAT MEANS YOUR OBJECTIVE LENS IS OF TOO SMALL DIAMETER. As a matter of fact, without figuring the thing out closely, I should say that your objective lens ought to be at least 2¼ inches in diameter, though I cannot say positively without knowing at what back focus it is working.

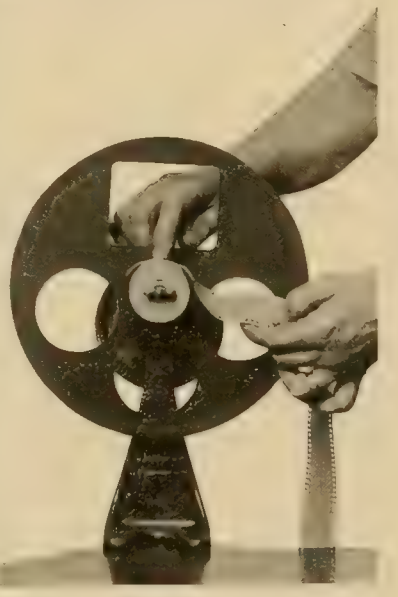
A Really Excellent Device.

In the days when I was twisting the crank of a projection machine I don't know how many times the future of my immortal soul was jeopardized through language used in connection with a cranky reel hub spring when I was trying to thread the film into the lower magazine in a hurry. More than six years have passed, and still four-fifths of the reels in use contain the same old inadequate, piffling, profanity provoking spring, which when not too loose to hold the film securely is usually so tight that it is difficult to get the film under it at all. Its only recommendation is its price—it is cheap.



And now comes one Charles F. Woods, of Princeton, Ind., with the "Woods' Improved Film Clamp" for moving picture reels, the name being larger than the article, but we will forgive this in view of the excellence of Friend Woods' invention.

In the diagram at the lower left hand corner is a coil spring which is operated by means of a button somewhat similar to the electric bell button, numbered 7 in the diagram. You punch this button (see photgraph) and the coil spring is depressed which at the same time causes the clips 9-9 to swing out away from the hub, as shown in the photograph. You stick the film end under, release the button, and the film end is automatically clamped to the hub.



At the end of the reel the film is released without any tearing. It can be inserted under either side, as both sides act precisely alike.

Brother Woods is and has been operating in his own theater for a period of three years, and the invention was the result of the amount of trouble he encountered in using the old style reel springs.

Mr. Woods sent us a working model which has been carefully examined, and has the strong recommendation of this department. It is not costly, is thoroughly practical and would be a blessing to the operator. If exchanges refuse to equip their reels with these clamps, I would suggest that operators can secure a half dozen of them direct from Friend Woods and place them on the operating room reels. The device, however, ought to be put on all reels by reel manufacturers.

From a Film Inspector.

Miss Edna Thomas, film inspector in a Kansas City exchange, sends in the following letter, or article, which speaks for itself, and is worthy of very serious consideration:

> Much criticism has, from time to time, been directed to the condition of film as received by exhibitors. Operators and exhibitors have been repeatedly advised to carefully report to their exchange managers any torn sprockets, bad splices, mis-frames or other defects that would in any way hinder the successful presentation of the film upon the screen.
>
> The operator has the unquestioned right to object to film received in bad order, but the blame should rest where it generally belongs, and that is with the exchange manager. There are exceptions to this rule, however, and I will explain some of them. Film sent out on circuit cannot be kept in first class condition, even though it has had the benefit of careful inspection before leaving the exchange. Each operator on the circuit contributes a little damage, and often by the time the last exhibitor on the circuit receives the film, it is indeed in bad condition. Again it often happens that transfers of film must be made at the railroad station, which eliminates any opportunity for inspection, however badly it might be needed. Again, film returning from out of town exhibitors often arrives too late for inspection, and must be hurried to some city exhibitor whose house opens at 10 or 11 A. M. These three objectionable features in handling film would be difficult to overcome, and are mentioned merely to show how it happens that film is often received in poor condition. (These difficulties really, when summed up, amount, as I have often pointed out, to an endeavor to get too much work out of a reel of film—booking it too close, instead of having more copies of the subject.—Ed.)
>
> And now here is where the exchange manager is at fault. Most exchanges employ women and girl inspectors to examine each film for defects and make repairs. In order to examine each film carefully an inspector would only be able to handle from 30 to 35 reels per day, whereas nearly all managers exact from 50 to 75 reels per day, which means that the inspector becomes practically a rewinder and nothing more. She may know that the 1,000 feet of film she has just handled is in one piece, and that is about all she does, or can know about it. Asked about mis-frames, insufficient titles or leaders, she cannot tell you. She has had no time to watch for these defects. If she took time to examine the film she would be called slow, and her place soon would be filled by one of the swift variety, for it is quantity rather than quality most managers expect of inspectors.
>
> But alas, if some exhibitor complains about the condition of his film, the manager promptly lands on the poor, over-worked and under-paid film inspector, and she is the object of severe condemnation because the film was not found to be in first-class condition.
>
> It seems that, almost without exception, when an exchange wishes to curtail expenses it begins by discharging one or more film inspectors, with result that many films must leave the exchange without any inspection at all, which oftimes means disgusted audiences (and always disgusted operators.—Ed.) and perhaps the loss of an exhibitor's patronage.
>
> The condition of the film contributes very largely to the success of an exchange. This being the case, why not provide adequate force in the film room, so that each film may be carefully inspected and properly repaired before it leaves the exchange? This provision would not only prolong the life of the film, but would assist materially toward holding the patronage of exhibitors.

Yes, and of the public also. I would like to take issue with Miss Thomas on one point, and very decided issue, too. Having myself at one time been an exchange manager (and a successful one, too) I most emphatically dissent from the statement that an inspector can carefully examine and repair 30 to 35 reels of ordinary film per day. In my exchange (the Laemmle Memphis, Tenn., exchange) I did considerable experimenting and found that in order to carefully examine and fully repair a reel of ordinary film (meaning by "ordinary" the reels both new and old—take 'em as they come), required an average of very close to thirty minutes, nor do I believe it can be done properly in any less time. Miss Thomas is absolutely correct when she says that an inspector who "inspects" (???) fifty to seventy-five reels of film in a day becomes nothing more or less than a rewinder. She certainly would not know anything more about the film than that it was all in one piece, and if it was in two pieces probably would not have time to splice them together, except with a paper clip. I bespeak for Miss Thomas' article a careful reading, both by operators, exchange managers AND PRODUCERS WHO CONTROL EXCHANGES. She is telling you some good, wholesome TRUTH when she says that exchange inspectors are over-worked and under-paid.

Had Things Too Soft.

S. S. Miley, Greenville, Pennsylvania, writes:

> "Me mind is troubled," therefore I come to the dean for advice. Our electric company, having decided we had things too soft, are going to discontinue D. C. and supply A. C. Now, my experience with the latter is practically nil. We are using two Simplex machines to project a 10-foot picture at 98 feet. Meter reading shows 32 amperes D. C. on each machine, with an arc voltage of 40 after the arc had settled—these readings taken on D. C., of course. (Something wrong with that voltmeter, old man, or else you are carrying altogether too short an arc. Using D. C., your arc voltage ought to be not less than 45 or 50.) I get a good light with a brilliant picture, but the Lord only knows how deep I will have to go when they cut out D. C. The manager is a live wire, and as such wants things right, and has put it up to me to find out which will be the best to secure light at a minimum cost, etc., meaning motor generators, rectifiers, or converters. Frankly, I don't know, and that is why I am coming to you. I have been following up the light dope and using it to good advantage, though I cannot find anything to give me the proper condenser size. My objective is 1⅝ inches in diameter; back focus 5⅜ inches. E.F. 6.77. Sure, we have a Handbook, and expect to have the new one as soon as it is published. Send me a carbon copy of your answer by mail, and some day I will catch you on that Go-devil, and give you a good trimming. What make is it, Harley or an X?

It's a brand new 1916 Harley, Mr. Man, and it runs so fast that when I stop it takes my shadow at least thirty seconds to catch up. (Old joke, but a good one.) And now with relation to your problem: There are only two things to do—one is to get a low voltage transformer (economizer, inducter, etc.) and use lots of A. C.; the other is get a mercury arc rectifier, or motor generator set, and rectify your current. The latter is the right way. I cannot give you advice with regard to which apparatus to select—that is, not in this department. If I told you to select a mercury arc rectifier, the motor generator manufacturers would heave a ton of brickbats at my head, and vice versa. The trouble with your lens propositon is that for that focal length objective its diameter ought to be greater. It is wasting a lot of light as it is now, and cannot be properly matched with the condenser.

Operators Represented.

The editor of this department is in receipt of the following communication from Mr. J. W. Binder, Executive Secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America:

My dear Mr. Richardson:

Recently I had luncheon with Mr. John Wylie, general manager of the Moving Picture World, and at that time told him something about the work which would be taken up by the Bureau of Standardization, recently created by the Motion Picture Board of Trade. I also informed him that it was my purpose, as soon as the Bureau was organized, to invite you to become a member, by reason of the expert knowledge you had on many of the problems involved; also by reason of the fact that the moving picture operator ought to be represented in matters of this kind, and his representation could be secured through you. I have not extended a formal invitation to you heretofore because of the fact that the Bureau will not get under way much before the first of the year, although some preliminary meetings may be held in December. The invitation to become a member of the Bureau of Standardization is, however, herewith extended, and I would very much like to hear from you at your earliest convenience as to whether you will or will not accept. The other members of the Bureau already selected are Mr. Howell, of Bell & Howell, and Mr. Nicholas Power, of the Nicholas Power Company.

Trusting that I may be favored with your acceptance at an early date, and thanking you in advance therefor, I am, Very truly, J. W. Binder, Executive Secretary.

The following reply was sent:

Motion Picture Board of Trade of America,
18 East 41st Street,
New York City.

Attention Mr. J. W. Binder, Executive Secretary.

Gentlemen:

With reference to your communication of November 29th, inviting the writer to serve, with Mr. Howell, of the Bell & Howell Company, and Mr. Nicholas Power, of the Nicholas Power Company, on the Standardization Bureau, as representing the moving picture operator, beg to say that although my time is very much taken up, still because of the fact that I believe the operator is entitled to and ought to receive representation in matters of this kind, I will accept. Most certainly there is important work for this Bureau to do, particularly in the standardization of the perforation of film. I will await your further advice as to meetings of the Bureau, and, barring absence from the city, stand ready to give my services whenever they my be required.

Very truly yours,

F. H. RICHARDSON,

I am indeed gratified to know that the powers that be are beginning to realize the fact that the moving picture operator, into whose hands the finished production is placed to be displayed before the millions of moving picture theatre patrons, is entitled to representation, at least in matters which directly have to do with his work. I understand and hope that the very first work undertaken by this Bureau will be the standardization of perforations in films. This may appear to be an exceedingly simple problem, but, as a matter of fact, is a very difficult one, and one involving quite some several things.

Among other things, it is quite within the range of possibility that the work of the Bureau may result in an entire change in the existing form of film perforation, but the most difficult task which will confront the Bureau in this matter will not be the selection of the proper perforation, but the securing of the acquiescence in the decision of the Bureau by the manufacturers.

However, I have faith to believe that the manufacturers will agree to whatever is done, because I think they all realize the need for just such work as it is proposd to have this Bureau perform.

He's Busted In.

Gus Betz, Osgood, Ind., after handing the editor a verbal bouquet of the most luxuriant sort, and remarking that he has been grinding a picture machine for three years, during all of which time has been a reader of the department, and often wanted to bust in, says:

I am at present working at the Damm theater, which is owned and operated by the whole Damm family. Recently, we installed a new Power's 6B. Previous to that Yours Truly was pushing the crank of the Edison Exhibition Model around about sixty times per. Since the new machine was put in it has developed a peculiar noise, which has frightened my goat clear off into the brush. It sounds as if it is caused by the film slapping up against the apron, but I don't know—it might be something else. Some day I am going to get busy on the questions. My answers might sound a bit foolish, but nevertheless I am going to try. I guess I will now crawl back into my shell and wait for returns.

As to the noise, why it is nothing which ought to worry the goat. I would suggest that you place a punch against the front side of the ears which carries the spindle upon which revolves the rollers on the lower end of the apron below the intermittent sprocket and bend them forward say 1/16 of an inch, being careful to bend both of them the same amount. If that does not help try bending them the other way, and, incidentally, be sure that the rollers are far enough apart so that the film seats down between them. When you have finished bending the ears be sure they set square with the lower sprocket, which can be ascertained by measuring from opposite teeth of the sprocket to the hub of the roller on the apron. If this does not cure the trouble you will have to be a little more specific in describing it.

He Kicks In.

W. W. Reid, Concordia, Kansas, says:

While this is my first "kick in," yet I feel that I am writing to an old acquaintance because I have read your dope with the greatest interest for the past two years, and have gained an enormous amount of good, sound horse sense regarding matters pertaining to projection, or at least I consider it that way. I have been at the game only nine years, so will confess right off the bat that I have a lot yet to cram into my cranium, but if the good Lord does not snuff out my candle too soon, I think I will get there yet. However, this was not originally designed as a biography of its writer. And now, I am appealing to you, as Little Father of the Crank Brigade, for help as against the utterly rotten inspection of a certain Kansas City film exchange. Will you try and get action through 1600 Broadway, not only for my benefit but for the benefit of all the houses in this territory? Oh, yes, by-the-way, slate me for a Handbook when they are ready.

Brother Reid encloses a bunch of very, very, very bad film faults, together with all the necessary data, and I will certainly try to get action. The matter has been referred to the headquarters with the suggestion that action is what is needed.

Pannill Gold and Silver Screens.

The Semple-Pannill Company, Petersburg, Va., sent in the following letter, together with a sample of their projection surface.

Enclosed find sample of our Gold Screen. You will notice that the mirror effect of the Gold Screen is beneath the surface of the gold powder. Hold your hand close to it and you will see the reflection of your hand with the shadow following. The screen is hand-made from start to finish. We use no paints or oils in connection with it. Advertising in the World is great. According to our past experience one more page will bring enough business to last for six months. Hereafter we will advertise instead of sending out circular letters.

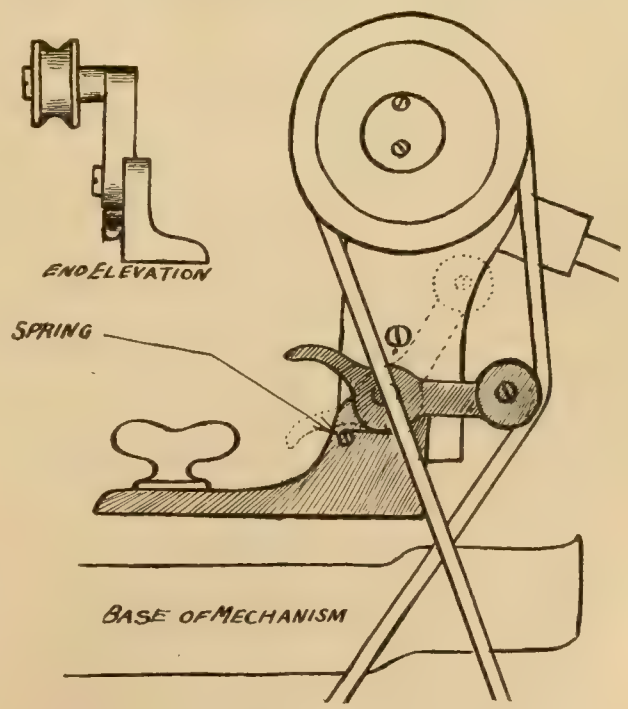
I have carefully examined the screen surface, which seems to be a very good one. Apparently the back is a heavy grade of what is known as "shade" cloth. As to the mirror effect, why I don't know about that, but the surface certainly is brilliant.

It is made in gold and silver, the gold being a very decided bronze; in fact, apparently pure bronze powder. This would soften the picture of course, but also it would eat up light pretty fast. The silver surface, however, ought to give a brilliant picture. The surface is slightly matte, and should produce good diffusion of light. I would recommend the screen to the careful consideration of exhibitors.

Belt Tightener.

Wadsworth, O., sends in a very neatly made drawing of a belt tightener he has placed on his machine and says:

I have found it very useful and submit it for your approval or disapproval, thinking perhaps others might find it to be of some use. It is an idler, designed to be placed on the Power's 6A to increase the take-up pull when needed, for instance, when running two films hooked together on a fourteen-inch reel.



The drawing is self-explanatory. It seems to be a practical little device which, under certain circumstances, might be very handy. It is, therefore, passed along for the benefit of department readers, and Wadsworth is cordially thanked for submitting the drawing.

Makes Enemies.

Michigan sends in two patches made by cutting the end of the film V shape. He thinks they are stronger and won't buckle, but inasmuch as both the splices are badly buckled, comment on that proposition is hardly necessary. He says:

> I find it does not pay to report bad patches, etc., as it makes enemies of the exchange you are dealing with, and they are bound to get back in some way. For instance: the exchange which I reported continues to send their reels to me not rewound. Have made several kicks to them, but it does no good. I get no more bad film, however, which balances things, You certainly woke them up. Keep up the good work, Pop, and hurry with the new "Bible."

Well, Michigan, you say it don't pay, and then you say it does—and there you are. Yes, I think our campaign did considerable good, and if we had had the universal co-operation of operators it would have done a lot more good.

Electrical Trouble.

F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas, says:

> Recently one evening the projection machine suddenly got "full of juice." The current is three phase, 220 volts, and we use two sides through a Fort Wayne compensarc. Operating room is a Johns Manville asbestos, and the projector a Power's Six A. The wiring is in conduit and the conduit is grounded. Now, when this machine got "hot," I connected two 110 volt lamps in series, and tested to see where the ground was, and the two lamps blew out, whereupon I immediately got a couple of large planks for the operator to stand on, and also put six 110 volt lamps in series. On all switches from the machine to the meter, with and without the compensarc on the line, the lamps burned above c. p., and if left on more than ten seconds you lost another globe. On both sides of the switches it tested the same, but from one pole to another it only tested 220. Now what I can't get through my thick head is how such high voltage could come in on either pole and a ground, and yet only test 220 across the switch. If you doubt this I can get three other men to vouch for what I say. The light company said it was in our wiring, but was unable to find any leaks. They advised me to ground my machine, which I did. The following day everything was O. K. at the matinee, but about thirty minutes after starting the evening show an arc formed across the mica insulation of the top carbon arm. I scraped the mica a little with a knife, and it immediately formed on the other side, which I also scraped, after which the arc disappeared, but the carbons gave a hissing sound and made a lot more noise than ever before. Tests now show 180 volts on one side to ground and from 30 to 110 on the other. This is with the arc on, but with the arc off it tested 180 on one side and from 180 to 550 on the other. What I mean by "30 to 110," and "180 to 550" is that it would test low one minute and then would come on strong for a few seconds, and in about a minute would come back again for a few seconds. We have just moved to our present location. Have only been opened since September 6th. Would these heavy grounds affect the reading of the meters? I don't know whether the company can find the trouble or not, as they all seem to be afraid to come near it, and the head lineman will try to shove it off on some one else, and he in turn "passes the buck." Everybody around the "Gem" is strong for the projection department. We have all been reading it ever since it started, and that has been quite some several years now. Am awaiting the announcement of the new "Bible."

Well this is quite some puzzle, and it is particularly interesting to me, because somewhere around 1890 I was engineer of the Palestine Electric Light Company when Ed. McCleery was superintendent and Jim Ozment was president. I lived in Palestine altogether for more than a year—in fact if I remember right it was nearly two years. Please give Bent Walker my best regards. And now as to your puzzle.

Not being quite sure of my ground in this matter (though I see now that my idea was very nearly right) I referred the same to Halbert P. Hill, who, by the way, is the manufacturer of a new rotary converter, which will be described in the department presently, and who is also a thoroughly competent electrical engineer. He says:

> One of two causes would produce these results, viz.: they ground their neutral, and the wiring to the projection machine is grounded, or their transformer is broken down, probably grounded on the case. The fact that they get such high voltage on the lamp shows their transformer is leaking, and the condition is really dangerous. It should be attended to at once.

From Springfield, Illinois.

Walter E. Bryser, Springfield, Ill., writes:

> Am having some trouble with flicker, and though I have tried my best, must confess that it, the flicker, is still on the job. I would appreciate any aid you may give me. The throw is 60 feet, with an 11-foot picture, taking current through a mercury arc rectifier. Power's 6A projector with one 6½ and one 7½ condensing lens with a 5½-inch E. F. objective, having a 1⅝-inch diameter. Glad to say that outside of the flicker am getting first-class results. In fact Springfield, as a whole, has good projection, with the exception of a couple of the houses where the screens at times look pretty punk. We have been organized for a couple of years. Had some scraps at first, but now all the houses except two have signed. If you are ever out this way be sure and call to see us. I promise that you will be treated royally. I have your last Handbook and would not part with it for more than it cost, provided, of course, I could not get another like it. Will the next one be out soon? Read in a recent issue you had met with an accident. Wish to extend my sympathy and hope you are up and around again. What do you think of the enclosed patches? We get a lot of them in our service, which is received from St. Louis, Mo.

Don't know which particular accident you refer to, and while I appreciate your sympathy, still I am the hardest chap to keep in bed you ever saw. Yes, I am up again and very much on the job. Got a brand new 1916 Harley-Davidson 80 Devil, too. Some boat, my boy, some boat. As to the two theaters that have not signed up with the local, why let us hope that they will. Railway companies, brick-layers, carpenters, painters and other bosses sign contracts with their mechanics, and why shouldn't theater managers? Yes, the new Handbook will be out before very long. Have sent the patches to the general manager of the producing combination handling the St. Louis exchange. And now as to the flicker. Proceed as follows: Make a metal slide to fit into your slide carrier, or if you haven't one, then a round metal plate to fit over the front condenser lens. In its center make a hole one-fourth inch in diameter. Project the light through this hole to the screen, and blow smoke in the light ray in front of the objective lens. You will find a point at which the light ray becomes very narrow, and that is where your shutter should set. Having placed your shutter at the proper point, make a shutter blade of heavy cardboard, which you can obtain from any printer, patterned after your own shutter. Take off the metal blade and put the cardboard one in place of it. You need not be afraid to do this because if you make it of stiff cardboard it will run for weeks. Now, when there is no audience in the house trim off a little at a time from both sides of the blade until you get travel ghost, and then, using your cardboard pattern reduce the width of your metal shutter until it is just a little wider than the cardboard pattern, and if you have taken off too much from the wide blade, add a little to the other two blades. (I suppose, of course, you are using a three-wing shutter. If you are not you ought to.)

I cannot spare the space to go into this matter any more fully. You will find the shutter very thoroughly dealt with in the new Handbook. I think from what I have said you can see the point. The idea is to get main blade as narrow as possible and the other blades as nearly as possible of equal width, and of equal width with it with the light openings—a 50/50 shutter.

Film Inspection.

Of late I believe the conditions of films sent out from exchanges has been very considerably improved, but nevertheless there still is a continual complaint of the receipt of reels in more or less bad condition. Suppose we look into this matter for a moment. Let us examine the chronometer balance and cylinder escapement of this particular thing, and see what makes the wheels go round.

In the first place, I believe the answer to the whole thing is found in the fact that the average exchange manager is over anxious to make a record for himself in keeping down the overhead expense, and in the endeavor to accomplish this end he pares down the inspection end to the very limit and, as Miss Thomas says, demands of the inspector at least twice, and usually three times, the work he or she could do and do in the best possible manner. Assuming this to be the fact, and I believe that away down in the mind of every one of you, you are pretty well convinced that this is the key to the situation, what is the solution? The answer seems to me very easy, and hinges on the fact that practically all exchanges are now controlled by combinations of big producers.

As a man who was once an exchange manager, I am prepared to make the flat statement that, take the reels as they come, day in and day out, that inspector never was born who can inspect and thoroughly repair, in the best possible manner, a daily average of more than twenty reels of film. Granted there may be days when the films run good and an inspector can look over and properly inspect and repair more than twenty reels—even let us say as many as thirty, still there are other days when the films will run bad and she cannot do more than ten. Mind you, I am not talking about a-lick-and-a-promise inspection, but a thorough inspection and repair. From evidence in hand it appears that the average exchange inspector does not receive in excess of 15 cents per hour or, say, $1.20 for an eight-hour day, which is insufficient to be much of an incentive to careful, expert, thorough workmanship, or fidelity to the manager's interest.

This whole matter can, I believe, be settled, and settled for good and all in such a way as would insure all reels to be in first-class condition if the big producing combinations who controlled the exchanges would issue three orders: First—Under no circumstances or conditions shall a reel be sent to an exhibitor until it has been thoroughly inspected and repaired. Second—no circuiting of films. Third—No inspector to inspect in excess of twenty reels of film a day.

Of course, the producers and exchanges would both raise a fearful howl at the firstly and secondly, and very probably their adoption would call for an increase in the price of film service, because it would be necessay for the exchange to buy more reels. But, after all, is the moving picture industry so cheap that it cannot afford to carry the legitimate cost of keeping films in first-class condition? I don't think so. As to the thirdly end of the thing, why, that would simply mean the adoption of practically a 6 cents overhead inspection expense per reel, or 36 cents for a six-reel show—surely nothing at all prohibitive in that. In order to make this thing effective an order would have to come from the exchange-controlling producers, and managers would have to be told point-blank that any variation from it would mean instant discharge. I suppose I am wasting time proposing anything of this kind, but if somebody else has a better solution for the present deplorable method of handling films let him, her, she, he or it, stand forth and be heard.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are enclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.00.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

Cinematography and the New Year.

ANOTHER eventful year of history has been added to the short but rapid growth of motion pictures. The last year, while remarkable for its growth and development, has not brought forth any startling changes or improvements in the technic of the cinematograph. True, the industry has seen a marvelous mushroom quality in the number of producing companies and in pictures produced, but the productions are like the fungoid growth of the mushroom, strumous and unstable, growing in the night and drying up and withering in the day. Already many of the older and larger concerns have realized the situation and have adopted policies that make for sturdier, solider growth of a more enduring nature.

It seems trite to point out the tremendous overproduction of pictures that has taken place in the past year. It is hateful to have to reiterate the threadbare phase "the survival of the fittest"; it has been written so many times by so many writers that like the cry of "Wolf!" in the old fable it is no longer heeded. Each company looks in horror at the business methods of its competitors and wonders to itself, "how do they get away with it?" and survey themselves complacently as if they were the perfect model after which all others should pattern.

Mr. Manufacturer, wake up! Look to yourself, discover the mote that is in thine own eye. It is beside the province of this department to criticize the staging, direction and stories of the motion pictures of the present day—their many faults and needs have many pens to write their wrongs, but the technical end has 'scaped almost scathless. Mr. Moving Picture Manufacturer, do you know that you run your business in the most inefficient manner of any industry of any importance today? Do you know that the workers whom you employ are, as a rule, the most poorly trained for the positions they hold of any modern industry? Do you realize that there are hundreds of industries of lesser importance that spend vastly more in proportion than you do in training their employees to a high grade of efficiency in their positions and are reaping in greatly increased output with the expenditure of less labor and fewer employees but with the use of a little more grey matter.

There are a few factories where the silver recovery alone pays the salaries of the employees and there are others where the silver recovery is less than a tenth of what it should be. The film waste alone from many a factory would give a man a princely income. It is related that a man who had some ideas of efficiency and a motion picture training approached the head of one of the largest plants in this country with a proposition to work without salary for a year for a percentage of the waste that he could save. Did the manufacturer fall on his neck and accept the offer with tears of gratitude in his eyes? Not so you could detect it with the naked eye. "Nothing doing," was his reply. "We made our money in the past with the present system, why should we change? You are absurd, of course there is a little waste, but you talk like a fish when you propose to come in here and run this place better than I can. Why, I made this business what it is and you simply don't know what you are talking about, get out of my office!" Now, the manufacturer was perfectly right from his point of view and the man who made the proposition may not have been a fit person to run this film factory but—and that is a great big capital B-U-T—BUT, if the manufacturer had said instead, "Here Mister Man, you interest me strangely, draw up that comfortable chair and light up this perfecto and we will hold pow-wow together. Methinks that a man who says he can get money that has hitherto eluded me and is willing to divvy with me may have some ideas that have slipped past me while I was feeding the furnace with scenarios from correspondence school graduates. Now, you say you can stop enough unnecessary waste around this plant to pay yourself a princely salary and still turn over a lion's share of the salvage to me. I certainly must have missed something. Explain explicitly in words of one syllable or make signs to that effect!"

"Well, Mr. Manufacturer," says Mr. Man, "allow me a moment to recover my breath, it's too startling to find a big executive in the game who will even listen to a proposition that reflects even indirectly on his business acumen for me to realize that there is such an 'animile.' In the first place, I'm not seeking a job to oust you from your position, you have made this place from an enormous money producing organization, yet you owe your success as much to a fortuitous combination of circumstances as you do to your own ability and while even the credit for shaping these circumstances may belong in some great measure to you, is it not reasonable to suppose that there are many details that have failed to receive the attention from you that they should have had? I have made it my business to study some of these details and it is because I have made a study of these details that I believe I have the qualifications, under your guidance, to rectify some of the items of unnecessary waste and inefficiency which prevail in some of the departments of your plant. In some of the details I may not have had sufficient details to base proper conclusions. For instance, I see much valuable scenery and many costly props go into the junk heap because there is no room to store them. Now, unless I have access to your cost records, I have no means of knowing whether it would be cheaper to store this stuff which can be used again or to rebuild it when it is wanted again. I can see where it would be quite possible in some instances where it would be cheaper to dispose of much of the cheap bulky stuff rather than store it and yet I know, on the other hand, that if some of these stock scenes had anywhere near the use that they should have before they are broken up, the head carpenter would have to invent work that doesn't need to be done to keep some of his union brothers in their jobs. I also see innumerable instances of where a whole company of high-salaried actors are delayed for long periods while a prop boy goes out to get something that should be in the prop room. Now, the prop room is small, and the head property man keeps it full and hollers he has no more room, but I notice that nine-tenths of the stock props are not used nearly as often as many of the things that are sent out for in a hurry, and which give a good opportunity for a padded expense sheet. Understand, I am not making any accusations of graft, but it don't look like good business to me to allow a two-hundred dollar overhead on actors and upkeep, etc., so that a property man can realize a ten-cent commission from a fifty-cent box of stationery."

"I didn't intend to start in so heavily on the studio end of the question, but while I am on it I want to mention another thing that occurs on the studio floor and also in the field, that is more directly connected with the factory end of the business. You have several directors here who have their cameramen turn on a scene before they have rehearsed it properly. I have followed up their work through the factory and they average from four to eight thousand feet of negative film for a thousand-foot reel, while others do just as good, or better work, with about fifteen hundred feet of negative film to the thousand-foot reel. I am not finding fault with any director who uses all the film necessary to obtain a certain effect—there are many exceptions where it is impossible to do anything but grind film until you get what you want—but that should not excuse the man who wastes film unnecessarily. Not only is this extra negative film a waste, but a print is made of most of the N. G. stuff so that the half-cocked firing director can 'pick it out on the screen.' Did you ever stop to figure it out that Director X, at fifty dollars a week, costs you a whole lot more than Director B, at two hundred and fifty? And yet B takes two or three days off between every single reel production and X has to work every day and late many nights to keep up his schedule of releases."

"B has a knack of planning his work ahead and doing it pretty close to schedule time, even with all the delays he is subjected to by the carpenter shop, the property man, and the weather; if a certain set is not ready he has some alternative scenes that he can take in the meantime. X does not seem to know what he is going to do from one minute to the next, and yet if some one shows him and assigns his work he can do almost as well as B. You need a sort of scene-dispatcher, a super-stage manager, for men like X—and his salary could be paid several times over out of the savings in overhead charges that he would make by keeping these hit or miss directors on a time table. Now, don't spring the time clock stuff on me; that's not what I mean at all. I admit that directors and actors are temperamental and that they all shy at the time clock. That's not the idea at all. It will require a man of exceptional ability to direct the rudderless ones; it calls for all kinds of tact and a broad-gauge mentality, but that is the kind of men who will eventually help to evolve the pictures of the successful studios of the near future."

"Wait a bit," said the manufacturer. "I can see where you have given me about all I can mentally digest at one sitting. I have taken notes from your conversation and I shall put some of your ideas to the test. I am sorry that I haven't time today to listen to your ideas about the factory waste, but I hope to go into that with you in the near future."

After all, there is only one moving picture paper that you really need, and this is IT. Conducted by the largest and most experienced staff of editors and correspondents.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

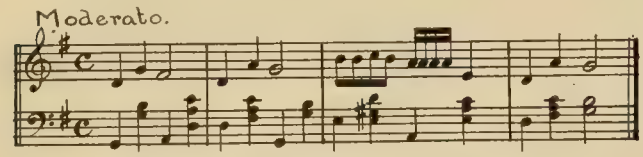
Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN.

IMPROVISING (Article IV.)

AT the risk of "getting ahead of my story" I am going to present a few examples which might more properly appear in a later article. However, they will illustrate a part of what has gone before and should interest you by showing what may be done with very little ingenuity or inventive ability.

A few years ago I wrote the incidental music for a play called "Down Mobile," and took for my working theme an old darkey song of the same title—"Down Mobile." Some of my readers may remember the melody:



Ex. 10.

That's all there is to the tune; just four measures and repeat. The principal figure (the one most prominent) is seen in the first, second and last measures. Two quarter notes and a half note.

After you once "get the hang" of improvising upon a theme or elaborating a melody, it is not likely you will take a pencil and deliberately work out these things in advance; they will naturally come of themselves. After it is done (if you happen to remember what you have done you can analyze the work and see how you developed your subjects and why. You might begin with laying out some alterations of the figure (either mentally or on paper) similar to those shown in Example 11, merely to give you an idea—something to start with.

Ex. 10½.

Ex. 11.

One of the simplest forms of altering a melody is to change the key from a major to a minor (or vice versa). Another is to change the tempo. In Example 11 we have taken the prominent figure of the subject ("Down Mobile"), and placed it in G minor instead of G major, as it appears originally. The three groups in the upper line (which are indicated, respectively, "a," "b" and "c") are in the same tempo as in the original—that is, 4-4 time. The three groups in the lower line ("d," "e" and "f") are also in G minor and are further altered by a change of tempo; they are written in 3-4 time.

The first group ("a") is in the original form (See first 2 measures of Ex. 10.) The second group ("b") is the same, with the addition of grace notes. The third group ("c") is an example of extended intervals. (Note the first interval is D to B instead of D to G; an interval of a 6th instead of a 4th. In the next measure of "c" the first interval is D to C instead of D to A, an interval of a 7th instead of a 5th.) The lower line ("d," "e" and "f" is the same as the upper—written in 3-4 time intsead of 4-4.

Taking any one of these as a starting point, a multitude of ideas might suggest themselves. Here is one which does not depart much from the original theme (as shown in Ex. 10). It is a mysterioso written as a bass solo with tremolo accompaniment and is suggested by the group marked "c" in Example 11.

Practically the same effect would be produced by simply writing the original theme (Ex. 10) in G minor as a bass solo, without using the extended intervals. It is merely an idea—a fancy, if you please. In any case it is advisable to simplify any group of quick notes when playing a bass solo of this character. (See the 4th measure of Ex. 10 and the corresponding measure of Ex. 12.) In the last measure of Example 12 an auxiliary note (B flat) was placed before A. The measure could as well have been written "D, A, G" without the auxiliary note. Another fancy, but it seems to round out the melody and add to the mysterious effect.

Ex. 12.

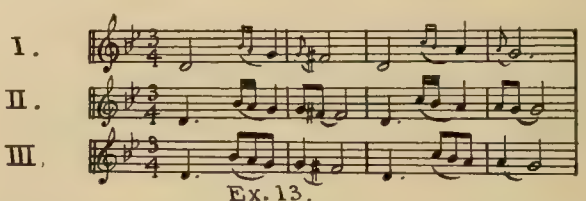
Here is another experiment. Take the second group in Ex. 11—the one with the grace notes. It is marked "b" in the top line and (changed to 3-4 time) marked "e" in the lower. Now see the first line in the next example. (Ex. 13.)



Ex. 13.

It is the same as letter "e" in Ex. 11. The middle line (Ex. 13) has the grace notes written in out in large notes—the effect when played being nearly the same. In the third (or lower) line the figure is altered a little, giving us a theme differing from the original, yet not so much as to be unrecognizable. You can still trace "Down Mobile" in this new theme. (Lower line, Ex. 13.)

The theme given in Ex. 13 is the foundation of the first strain. The first and second endings are inventions, but are suggested by the theme itself. Your fancy will no doubt suggest others. The second strain is "Down Mobile," altered only as to tempo (for the first four measures). The endings in this are also inventions—suggested by the theme and by the endings in first strain.

Ex. 14.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE PICTURE THEATER.

We have arranged with Mr. W. C. Simon to print a page of original composition in this reduced style at certain intervals. The following score is an original composition—the second of a series of ten or twelve numbers which will be suitable for certain styles of dramatic subjects under the general classification of society dramas. The complete sets will be available in loose leaf form and will be a welcome addition to the music libraries of orchestra leaders.

Original Composition No. 2.

MUSICAL SETTING FOR "WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER."

Released Jan. 3 by the V-L-S-E, Inc. Suggestions prepared by S. M. Berg by special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of V-L-S-E films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "What Happened to Father" were prepared by the photoplay department of the New York music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Further inquiries concerning any phase of the work of the orchestra leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World, and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

An amusing comedy of modern life. Father, overburdened with expense, secretly writes a musical comedy and a wealthy friend agrees to back it financially. On the opening night the two disagree over the star and a fight and a chase ensues. Father is jailed, but escapes, finally ending up in a sanitarium.

Fred Daniels as Father has a habit of brushing back his hair. Considerable laughter could be caused if the drummer would make some scratching sound when he does this.

Scheduled time—Five reels (about 4,600 feet), 69 minutes.

Time.		Sub-Titles or Descriptive Cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening.	Melody of the Century—Orlob.
3	T	Fredericka has been told to pick out her own wedding present.
5	T	"Oh, let me keep it! Remember, father, this is my first marriage."	Here Comes Tootsie—Finck.
8	T	Carleton Baynes, a rich speculator.	All Full of Ginger—Orlob.
10	T	Six little tadpoles.
11	T	Tom returns from her ride with Dawson.	First Love Waltz—Edwards.
13¾	T	Rehearsal and the family knows nothing about it.	The Trombone Man—Hill.
16¾	T	"One with my talents should be a leading lady."	The Julian Waltz—Kleinecke.
18¾	T	"This is Miss Maisie, whom I would like to have play the leading role."
20	T	"She won't do. To put her in would be plain murder."	Airs from High Jinks—Friml.
20¼	T	The day of Fredericka's wedding.
25	D	When Lydia sends telegram.	In the War Against Men—Romberg.
29	T	"There goes my lovely new car and all my wedding clothes."
30¾	T	"What has become of father?"	The Keystone Glide—Orlob.
33½	T	"Father has disappeared.
35½	T	"Oh, I almost forgot. Father gave me this note for you."	Just Win a Pretty Widow.—Eysler.
38	T	"Go, then. I will play the part myself."
38¼	D	The wedding.	A few bars Wedding March.
40	T	"It's me private opinion that the old boy eloped with her."	Hezekiah—Richardson.
42½	T	"Whatever father has done we don't want the servants to know."
42¾	D	The opening night.	I'll Make You Like the Town—Romberg.
45	D	When the curtain is lowered.
47½	T	"I will make that speech or die."	Ragtime Pipe of Pan—Romberg.
50	T	"I consider that this man has grossly insulted me."
52	T	"Your father has had an accident. I cannot explain it."	Love Thoughts—Edwards.
54½	T	"Gentlemen, bon soir."
55	T	Reception room at the sanitarium.	Here's to You, My Sparkling Wine—Edwards.
58¼	T	"This is the life."
59½	T	"Poor Father!"	Idol of Eyes Waltz—Orlob.
61½	T	"I want to see Dr. Hale."
62	T	"Gawd—my wife!"	The Tune They Croon in the U. S. A.—Lean.
65½	D	When father gets into bed.
67	T	"What happened to you, father?"	I Could Go Home to a Girlie Like You—Romberg.
68¾	T	"I wonder if that story went over."
69	T	The End.

For the convenience of our readers a price list on the above mentioned numbers has been compiled, which can be found in the ad of G. Schirmer, Inc., on page 153.

SHOW OF RICH FURS IN EDISON SUBJECT.

New York's and Paris's latest dicates in furs will be in evidence to gladden the feminine heart in the Kleine-Edison feature, "The Crucifixion of Phillip Strong," in which Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness will be featured. Helen Strickland, as the mother, will wear a beautiful coat not to be had for less than $3,500. It is long and generously full, reaching to the ground. One of the reasons for its high price, aside from its design, is the perfectly matched Russian sable, perfect both in width and in markings. To obtain such a match, it takes, sometimes, years of patient gathering and matching. The marking around the bottom is effectively used by running the fur, with broad band effect, in the same direction as the band itself. The coat is lined with a rich figured brocade.

Mabel Trunnelle will wear a set of real silver fox, so soft and fine that the muff can be crushed in one hand. Also a sealskin coat with silver fox trimmings.

MAYOR IS CENSOR OF PICTURE SHOWS.

Absolute power of censorship over all theaters and all other places of entertainment, whether public or private, is vested in the mayor of Oklahoma City by an emergency ordinance approved by the city commissioners. The ordinance makes the Mayor virtual dictator over the theaters and other amusement places.

The city's action was the result of a petition for censorship recently submitted to the city commissioners by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the city.

GARRICK MAKES FLYING TRIP TO NEW YORK.

Richard Garrick, managing director of the Gaumont companies at Jacksonville, Fla., has just returned to his winter headquarters from a flying trip to New York. Mr. Garrick brought north with him the film of the Mutual Masterpicture, edition de luxe, which he had just finished directing. It is called "The Idol of the Stage." Malcolm Williams is the star. It will be released the first week in February.

Universal Gets Florence Lawrence

Carl Laemmle for the Third Time Corrals the "Girl of a Thousand Faces."

THE fact that the Universal Film Manufacturing Company is a healthy child of the pioneer days of the industry, one of the prime offshoots of a scattered family, points to one obvious fact, that diplomacy and discrimination have welded the reins of governorship. And those who know the history of the business career of Carl Laemmle will remember that a very significant portion of that history is intertwined, more or less, with the professional career of Miss Florence Lawrence, the first famous star in the picture field.

Florence Lawrence at Home.

For over a year Miss Lawrence has been absent from the screen. Her last professional engagement it will be remembered was with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. We do not know to which compliment is most due, to Carl Laemmle for losing no time in getting in touch with the little star immediately it was known that she had decided to return to her profession, or to her well-known claim to talent and versatility. This week is expected to see the commencement of another period in her film career. One of the best directors in the business will guide her screen efforts, and the best of material will be placed at the disposal of both director and star.

The accompanying photographs provide optical information as to Miss Lawrence's whereabouts and partial occupation while she has been absent from the screen. On her fifty-acre farm at Westwood, N. J., she has looked well to the affairs of her household, tended her garden, and romped to her heart's content, until now, when the call of the pictures lures her back to the studio lights, and the hard work that is the prelude of all success.

Home of Florence Lawrence at Westwood, N. J.

CENSOR HEADS OFF THE "INSPIRATION."

"Inspiration" will never be shown again in Oklahoma City—at least during the administration of Mayor Overholser. The judgment passed upon the motion picture by local chapters of the W. C. T. U. and the ministerial alliance was upheld when a ban was placed on the photoplay by the mayor.

DAMAGES FOR MOVING PICTURE ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Celie G. Turner, whose stage name is Celie Ellis, brought an action before Justice Gavegans, Part 8, New York, of the Supreme Court, against the Crystal Film Company, for a broken ankle, sustained by her while depicting a scene in which she fell from a limb of a tree to a projecting roof and on to the ground below.

Attorney for Miss Ellis contended that his client's average earnings were $5,000 a year and that she was entitled to $15,000 for damages sustained. The jury, after short deliberation, brought in a verdict of $4,000 for the plaintiff.

The interesting feature in this action lies in the fact that John M. Gardner, attorney for the plaintiff, immediately on the release of the film, secured it and had it produced on the screen in a moving picture theater before witnesses and thus proved to them it was Miss Ellis, and then introduced in evidence the entire section of the film, showing the actual fall from beginning to end.

THE VALES AND RITCHIE JOIN UNIVERSAL.

Among the latest and best known of the photoplay folk to join the forces of the Universal Film Company at their Pacific Coast studios are Travers Vale, Louise Vale and Franklin Ritchie, director, leading woman and leading man, respectively. Mr. Vale comes to the company with fresh laurels. For two years he has been considered one of the most capable of producers. Prior to his joining that company he was allied with the Universal and Mutual companies among others.

Under his direction and largely responsible for the success of many of his pictures have been Franklin Ritchie and Louise Vale, who will continue to work with him now that he has joined the Universal. This latest Universal producing company will stage two-reel subjects for release on the regular program. The first of these is a picture by Harvey Gates entitled "The Chasm."

FIRE WRECKS NOVELTY SLIDE OFFICES

A fire, which originated in a cafe under the offices of the Novelty Slide Company, at 67 West 23d street, New York, Monday morning, December 27, practically wrecked the business offices of that company. While the fire did not get into the Slide Company's floors, the firemen did, and they performed yeoman service in turning things upside down.

Mr. Coufal said that, so far as he was able to discover, all negatives had been saved and that his dark room and workshops were in working order, but that his stock of finished goods appeared to be destroyed and that the Novelty would be out of business for a week or so. Work was resumed on the upper floors the same day, but the office and stock room was in a hopeless tangle. No estimate of the loss could be had at the time of going to press.

MARCIA MOORE JOINS UNIVERSAL.

Miss Marcia Moore, who was connected with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company on the Pacific Coast, playing ingenue leads, and who later played important parts in the Quality Picture Corporation productions under the direction of Francis X. Bushman, has returned to the Universal and will play leads in the Rex Brand of pictures under the direction of Joseph DeGrasse. While Miss Moore is not yet seventeen years old, she has all the qualities of an excellent actress. She is five feet high and weighs but one hundred and two pounds. She is especially capable of handling child parts, but prefers characters more suitable to her liking such as "The Abused Wife," "The Actress," etc.

KING BAGGOT SITS FOR SCULPTORS.

This office is in receipt of a pleasing holiday gift of a plaster bust of King Baggot, the well-known Universal star. Recently he had made as a Christmas present for his mother, a bronze bust, 8 inches in height, and the one received is a duplicate, finished in imitation of bronze. It will make a handsome ornament for a library, or business office, and no doubt will be much in demand by theater owners. The sculptor work was done by Andrew C. McHench, of New York.

VIOLET AXELL ENGAGED FOR "FOOL'S PARADISE."

The Ivan Film Corporation has engaged Violet Axell to play the part of the baby in their forthcoming production of "A Fool's Paradise." Little Miss Axell is one of the cleverest and most successful of the juvenile screen players, and her work is certain to add to the merit of the Ivan feature.

National Censor Board Conference

National Board of Censorship and Producers in Meeting at Hotel Astor.

THE annual conference between the finance committee of the National Board of Censorship and the executive heads of the motion picture companies was held at rooms C and D on the eighth floor of the Hotel Astor at 11:30 A. M. Tuesday, December 28. The members of the finance committee of the National Board were Edwin Trowbridge Hall, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Boys' Club; Matthew Adams, superintendent of schools of the Children's Aid Society; Frank Persons, director of the Charity Organization Society; Dr. Albert Shields, director of research of the Board of Education; Lester Scott, acting director of the People's Institute; Orlando F. Lewis, secretary of the Prison Association.

The following representatives of the motion picture producers were invited: J. Stuart Blackton, Vitagraph; J. J. Kennedy, Biograph; Ferd Singhi, Lubin; Wm. N. Selig, F. J. Marion, Kalem; Paul Melies; G. K. Spoor, Essanay; L. W. McChesney, Edison; F. S. Phelps, Kleine; R. H. Cochrane, Universal; Samuel M. Field, Mutual; R. R. Nehls, American; Edwin Thanhouser, David Horsley, Centaur; F. C. Bradford, Gaumont; L. J. Gasnier, Pathe; R. E. Aitken, Triangle; A. Kessel, N. Y. Motion Picture Co.; Carl Anderson, Paramount; Jesse L. Lasky, Adolph Zukor, Famous Players; Carl Pierce, Pallas; W. A. Atkinson, Metro; B. N. Bush, World; Lloyd D. Willis, Fox; Felix Feist, Equitable; I. C. Oes, Great Northern; Walter W. Irwin, V-L-S-E.

More than one-half of the men invited were present either in person or by representative.

The object of the meeting was to discuss standards, to determine upon the best method of co-operation and to decide upon the character of the future work of the National Board.

It was decided by the representatives present that provision would be made for the maintenance of the National Board and that the expense thereof should be apportioned among the various manufacturers in a ratio to the number of reels of motion pictures of each which the board should pass upon. It was also agreed that the rulings of the board should be upheld and that its efforts to discourage the establishment of local censor boards should be properly sustained.

The meeting was still in progress when the Moving Picture World went to press.

Pertinent Points by J. D. Williams

India and Australia Are Neglected Fields and the American Producer Ought to Take Notice.

J. D. Williams writes to The Moving Picture World from Sydney, Australia, under date of November 24, in the following interesting vein:

"The Editor, The Moving Picture World.

"Dear Sir: In one of your issues a few months ago, Mr. Madden, of Calcutta, India, in a letter to your journal, attempted to criticise some of my statements made in an interview with your W. Stephen Bush. In one of my letters from India, addressed to Mr. Bush, I enclosed a program of Mr. Madden's theater. In this letter I stated that it was the finest motion picture theater in India. I do not wish to discredit Mr. Madden for anything that he has done in India in the motion picture line.

"Nothing could have suited my purpose better than to have Mr. Madden say that India was already well catered to in regard to motion pictures.

"All that is necessary for American motion picture manufacturers to find out what they are doing there is to look over the accounts with their foreign agents and see if they have ever realized more than twelve cents a foot for one copy of their best features. If the average manufacturer is satisfied to receive no more than this amount for a country with 300,000,000 people, all I can say is we should still let him sleep on, or at least their London agent, who is responsible for same. I am very glad that the new film school in America, which, by the way, is composed mostly of their business as well as the producing end of the same.

"The successful company of the future must study their foreign sales as well as their domestic business. It is no wonder that the members of the old school in the motion picture industry, pay no attention to a country like India when they have so sadly neglected a progressive young country like Australia. Some manufacturers are still selling three copies of their best features exclusive right for Australia at 10 cents per foot, while other more energetic manufacturers are selling four copies at 19 cents.

"It is easy to see that the difference in profit realized will more than pay the expenses of the executive head of their company.

"Australia, at the present time is sending three or four copies of second-hand film to India each week. A great deal more than this goes forward each week from London. This old junk film does the business no good in India. It will take several years to develop the business there on anything like a proper basis. However, no doubt in time this will be accomplished. The individual firm or firms who can accomplish this will deserve the greatest praise from the whole industry in general. Yours, very truly,

"J. D. WILLIAMS."

E. C. NEWMAN HOME FOR HOLIDAYS.

E. C. Newman, manager of the New York plant of the Newman Manufacturing Company, which also has plants located at 108 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., and 717 Sycamore street, Cincinnati, Ohio, manufacturers of brass lobby display frames, railings, and other theater equipment, left New York for a visit to the Chicago plant, and after a short stay in Chicago, will leave for Cincinnati to visit the Cincinnati plant, as well as to renew some old acquaintances, as he is a native of the Queen City.

Mr. Newman, who is a comparatively young man, being only in the twenties, has built up quite a lucrative business for the firm in the east. He has well deserved his vacation, and after spending the holidays with his parents, he will leave shortly after the first of the year for New York, where he will again be glad to greet his old acquaintances.

Before leaving, Mr. Newman said that all of their plants were running full force, and that the prospects for 1916 were very bright.

FREE TO EXHIBITORS.

The Moving Picture World will send free of charge to any exhibitor who asks for it, its literature on the censorship question and its brochure on the Sunday Law. Sooner or later every exhibitor will have use for either the one or the other and, in most cases, probably he will need the two pamphlets. We have distributed a large number and we want every exhibitor to have this extra service which goes free to all readers and subscribers of The Moving Picture World. SEND FOR THIS USEFUL LITTLE LIBRARY TO-DAY.

UNIVERSAL CLOSES COYTESVILLE.

The Coytesville studio of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company will be closed on the last day of December, and all companies working there will be transferred to the new plant at Leonia the first of January. Bert Adler, who has been in charge of the Coytesville plant, will become assistant to Manager Julius Stern at Leonia, where he will also be casting director.

VITAGRAPH TO ABANDON THEATER.

The Vitagraph Company has decided to go out of the exhibition business and, consequently, will not renew its lease on the old Criterion theater at 44th street and Broadway for another year. The present lease expires about the first of February and it is understood that James K. Hackett's new producing company will take the house for legitimate productions.

C. A. KARPEN, UNIVERSAL TITLE EDITOR.

Manager Julius Stern of the Imp-Leonia studios has just announced the addition to his staff of a title editor, C. A. Karpen, who will have charge of writing and editing all titles and leaders for all Universal Film Manufacturing Company's pictures made in the East. This is a new departure in the business, and Mr. Stern feels that properly written and edited titles and leaders are as essential to a perfect photoplay as the climax. Mr. Karpen started in his new duties this week, being stationed at the new studio at Leonia.

CLARA WHIPPLE IN "THE PAIN FLOWER."

Miss Clara Whipple, the charming leading woman of the Equitable Motion Picture Corporation stock organization, has been cast for the ingenue lead in "The Pain Flower," to support Margaret Leslie. "The Man Higher Up," in which Miss Whipple is to support Frank Sheridan, has been postponed until spring.

Ambrosio Comes Back

The Famous Italian Producer in New York to Study Conditions—His Plans and Ideas for the Future.

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE simple news that Ambrosio is coming back into the American market will interest every reader of The Moving Picture World. Ambrosio has given the American market some first-class money-makers not to speak of the high artistic value of all his films.

Mr. Ambrosio or to give him his full and proper title Cavaliere Arturo Ambrosio has been in this city for the last two weeks or more accompanied by his business agent and interpreter, Mrs. F. K. Schultz, whom the American film world has favorably known for many years under her maiden name of Frieda Klug.

Cavaliere Ambrosio.

Cavaliere Ambrosio has just completed some extensive additions to his wonderful studio in beautiful Torino. With the respite afforded by the war he has decided to come here and acquaint himself with conditions here and to revive to new glory and profit the name of Ambrosio. In all my experience I never met a more modest, plain and unassuming man than this gifted Italian, of whom it may be truthfully said that "he is one of those men of rare talent who unite the imagination of the artist with the executive skill of the practiced workman." In Italy no film man stands higher than Ambrosio. He was knighted by the king because he taught His Majesty the art of taking pictures, and he gave the Queen of Italy a complete course in the art of kinematography. The report made to him by Mrs. Schultz who was here about four months ago induced the Cavaliere to come to America and study men and conditions in our country.

"I find," said the Cavaliere in the course of a most interesting talk with the writer, "that it pays the European producer to give a little more attention to the American market. You ask why? Well, here is the reason: If I produce with the European market uppermost in my mind I find that in nine cases out of ten the American taste is not suited. America is a wonderful country with a civilization all its own and its taste is of course quite different from the taste of Europe. Now while you in this country decline to accept the taste and the standards of Europe, I find on the other hand that Europe accepts your tastes and your standards. If I therefore manufacture with the demands of the American market uppermost in my mind I have no difficulty whatever selling my usual number of copies in Europe and I can sell many more in your country. The American play is popular in Europe everywhere.

Frieda Schultz.

This statement accorded well with what an English film buyer had told me but a week before, i. e., that of the plays shown on the London stage ninety per cent. were of American origin.

"I do most sincerely admire your people and your country," continued the Cavaliere, "and I certainly am going to make a determined attempt to win some of your market."

"The name Ambrosio is a good name in this country now," I suggested.

"Yes," replied the Cavaliere quietly, "but that alone will not sell any films. The performance must be back of the name, and that is what I am striving for now. I cannot say that my plans are entirely matured, but there is no doubt that the firm will be represented here again before the year 1916 is very old. Now, in regard to my productions I want to consult American ideas, and as far as I can I want to suit the American taste. I will have a man in my studio who understands American peculiarities, and he will be at my side constantly. I want good American stories, and there are negotiations now pending for securing some first-class American talent. I honestly believe that my studio in Torino is without a peer. My facilities and resources are greater than ever before. I have to return to Torino shortly, but I will come back here and either personally instal my American branch office or have it put in immediate charge of Mrs. Schultz, who knows conditions so well and who has proved her business ability."

The Cavaliere is a great worker and student. In the short time he has spent here he has seen different parts of the country and he has rapidly absorbed a knowledge of American atmosphere. He has seen the city and the country and I was surprised at his powers of observation. The varied scenery and the domestic architecture impressed him as very interesting. He reasoned shrewdly enough to the importance of the home in all American life, for men would not spend so much care and money for their homes if they did not love these homes. "Che belle casette d'abitatizione" was a frequent exclamation of the Cavaliere while he was spending a delightful day in the charming suburban towns of Southern New Jersey.

Cavaliere Ambrosio and Mrs. Schultz will sail for Italy within the next few days.

Miss June Elvidge

FEW film players have made such swift progress toward the stellar regions of the screen world as Miss June Elvidge, of the World Film Corporation, who, after only six months' experience before the camera, is soon to be featured in a five-part society drama. Miss Elvidge owes her success to her unflinching determination to "get there," aided and abetted, of course, by her undoubted beauty and photographic possibilities.

June Elvidge.

This young player joined the World Film stock company at Fort Lee last June, after two years at the Winter Garden, the second of which she spent as understudy to Josie Collins, whose part she played on the road. Miss Elvidge hails from Pittsburgh. She is a broad-shouldered, athletic girl, with golf cups, sailing trophies and medals for horsemanship galore to her credit. Last winter she gave exhibitions of riding and jumping at Durland's Academy and the Madison Square Garden Horse Show.

Miss Elvidge made her film debut in "The Lure of Woman." Then came a little better part in "The Butterfly on the Wheel," and a still better one in "The Sins of Society." Now she is sharing the leading roles with Miss Frances Nelson in the World's production of "The Point of View," and after that still greater honors are in store for her.

LUBIN RELEASES.

Beginning Tuesday, January 11, 1916, the Lubin Manufacturing Company will release a two-act drama every alternate week, and beginning January 10 it will release a one-act drama every week. These releases are to be added to their regular program of releases.

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

"The Wraith of Haddon Towers"

A Three-Part Clipper Star Feature with Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude in the Principal Roles.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

IN an adaptation of an old English story the American Film Co. have presented to the public a production that is modernly attractive, and at the same time brings us in touch with the ghostly legends of a couple of centuries ago. Exceptional judgment has been used in the filming of this story. A fine breadth of perspective characterizes many of its exterior scenes, adding charm and delicacy to the double exposure work of which a great deal appears in this production, and to good advantage.

Arthur Maude in the role of Phillip Drummond, who is summoned from America to England to attend the bedside of his dying uncle, is entirely satisfactory. There seems to be no room for adverse criticism, for Mr. Maude impersonates the character with an ease and grace that leaves with the spectator no sense of effort.

Scene from "The Wraith of Haddon Towers" (Clipper).

Constance Crawley plays the role of the spirit of the sweetheart of the long dead ancestor and imbues the action of the character with the charm and intelligence with which her work has always been associated. In a room in the castle which is always kept locked Phillip first comes in contact with the spirit of his ancestor's sweetheart. His interest in psychic phenomena causes him to seek the haunts of the ghostly personage, during which he discovers that he himself is the reincarnation of the former Phillip Drummond. His wife, arriving from America, comes just in time to find his body still warm after his spirit has departed with the "Wraith of Haddon Towers."

The production is a very interesting one, founded as it is on an old-fashioned story mingled with a belief of the present day. It has the peculiar grip of the old style novel that lures us by its improbabilities.

"Why Love Is Blind"

A Diamond "S" Special with an Appealing Story, to Be Released Through General Film Co.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

IF HUMAN nature had not such infinite types of character, one would be almost forced to the conclusion, after viewing "Why Love Is Blind," that Peter Stone, the inhuman father in the story, is a figment of the imagination. A monster of cruelty he is to his poor misshapen son, Bobby, and all one's better nature is stirred to its depths when viewing the maltreatment of the boy by the man who is responsible for his being.

Poor Peter is a hunchback, sensitive and physically weak, in utter contrast to his big, strong, bullying brother, who shows himself to be a chip off the same block from which his rough father had been hewn. And we cannot wonder that the sensitive mother of the two boys appears as a poor weak woman, whose personality has been ground to powder by the dominating force of her husband's brutal will.

Don't think, however, that the story will fail to catch and hold your interest. The very fact that Bobby is living his life against all odds will cause your sympathy to rush out in a flood, in his behalf, and you will find yourself forgiving his weakness at a critical moment, and understanding the motive that prompted him to do a very base thing.

Jack Pickford takes the part of Bobby, and I think you will agree with me, after seeing him in these films, that he shows kinship to his famous sister, Mary, in no uncertain way. I could not fail to admire the manner in which this young and personally attractive man loses sight of himself in his characterization of this unsightly hunchback. His gait and physical action never seem studied. They have all the naturalness of the character he has assumed, and combined with the mental attitude form a real living entity that is appealing and convincing. It will be an interesting study henceforth to watch the growth and development of young Mr. Pickford before the unerring eye of the camera.

Miss Betty Nathan as Ruth Rogers, the pretty blind girl whom Bobby loves and who loves him, plays the part with becoming simplicity and girlishness. The old favorite, Frank Clark, shows close familiarity with the sawdust rings beneath the white tops, in the person of Bill Rogers, circus owner. That ring costume is a dandy, and is just the thing to create awe and admiration in the minds of bucolic patrons. We know, for we have been there.

Guy Oliver gives a virile impersonation of the brutal father of Bobby, while Miss Lillian Hayward, as Mrs. Stone, is so real that great commiseration is created for the unhappy creature.

Scene from "Why Love Is Blind" (Selig).

Nor must that lovable canine actor, Jack Pickford's collie, be overlooked. Concerning him, in my mind's ear, I can hear countless repetition from feminine lips of the exclamation, "Oh, isn't he a darling!"

The release date is Jan. 17.

"The War God's Decree"

Three-Reel Pathe Production Which Is a Reflection of Present European Conditions.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

AN INTERESTING production has been fashioned for the program of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., from ideas inspired, no doubt, by the present war. The picture was made abroad, and with types especially well suited to the circumstance, and presents the hero of the play, together with his family fleeing from the Austrian soldiers, having recrossed their lines after delivering a message to the French headquarters.

The story of the picture is not wonderful in construction. It treats in the first place with the domestic affairs of a wayward wife and her husband, who immediately upon discovering his wife's perfidy is called to fight for his country. He is strangely thrown in company with his wife's lover, who accompanies him on his journey across country with the message. The other man is killed, and the husband, unable to deliver the papers with which he is entrusted, finds his way back to his own home, in a wounded condition. His wife, in order to prove her loyalty to him, carries the message successfully. The suspense of the picture is well worked up, and at the climax, where the husband is about to be shot by the Austrians, the French soldiers ride up and put the Austrians to flight.

The production is more or less spectacular, and is an attractive one.

"The Matchmakers"

A Three-Reel Edison Comedy-Drama with Sally Crute and Carlton King Heading the Cast.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT is a very great pleasure to record the fact that the matchmakers in this three-reel Edison photoplay suffer an ignominious defeat in their attempt to separate two pairs of loving hearts. First, there is a fine wholesome western beauty who knows more about the ways of a mustang than of costly lingerie and culture—she's loved by a manly young prospector, who is willing to take the biggest of chances on the smallest of grub-stakes for the sake of his sweetheart. Then there is a clear-eyed winsome young woman earning her own living in O. Henry's "Little Old Bagdad on the Subway," and loved by a young chap whose parents are determined he shall marry a maiden of wealth. How the young prospector strikes it rich, after being grub-staked by his sweetheart's father; how the sweetheart goes to New York; how her money insures her a warm welcome from the matchmakers; how they attempt to arrange matters between her and their son, and how Pa Lane, the western girl's father, takes a hand in affairs and each Jack is mated with his proper Jill, makes a screen romance that is breezy, peopled with worth while folk and untroubled by sex problems, and will be found enjoyable by all admirers of a pleasantly human story with a "and they lived happily ever afterwards" ending.

The general store of a little mining town out west is the scene of the earlier action of the drama and offers an excellent contrast to the interior of the home on Fifth avenue, where Mamie Lane gets her first glimpse of society. We are all somewhat familiar with the situation where the newly made western millionaire makes his entrance into social life, but Sally Crute as Mamie Lane and William Wadsworth as her father enter into the spirit of the thing with so much zest and evident enjoyment that we are bound to catch the infection and share their happiness with them.

To sum up the merits of "The Matchmakers" briefly and soberly: It is a clean, unpretentious photoplay that has been appraised by the director at its true value and made thoroughly entertaining by the acting of the cast and the manner of its pictorial embellishment. Other trustworthy participants in the play's making are Carlton King, Paul Bliss, Margaret Prussing, Leonora von Ottinger, Robert Brower and Mrs. Wallace Erskine.

"What Happened to Father"

Frank Daniels Is Thoroughly Amusing in Bright Comedy Produced by the Vitagraph Company.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE winning combination in this five-part Vitagraph production, for release on the V-L-S-E program, is Frank Daniels, star; Mary Roberts Rinehart, author, and C. Jay Williams, director. Right at the close of the picture Daniels, in the role of father, tells his wife an ingenious tale to account for his absence on the day of his daughter's wedding, and for a concluding subtitle we read: "I wonder if that story got over." Most emphatically it does get over; the entire picture gets over and best of all is the comedy acting of Daniels This is just the sort of clean, enjoyable comedy for which the demand is far greater than the supply.

Scene from "What Happened to Father" (Vitagraph).

Father is the author of a comic opera, "The Frolic of the Frogs," and for all his pride of authorship he keeps the coming production a secret from his family that is much exercised over the approaching marriage of the elder daughter. Just before the hour set for the wedding, father is summoned to the theater to settle a dispute arising out of a change in leading women, insisted upon by the wealthy backer of the show. The leading man also becomes concerned in the argument, refuses to appear, and nothing remains but for the author to become an actor as well. There is a quantity of fun in rehearsal scenes, in the wild automobile ride to the theater and in the actual performance that ends in a small riot with the actor-author as the target for various missiles hurled from the gallery. Almost equally entertaining are the ensuing scenes in which the father struggles to give a satisfactory explanation of his absence from home when he was needed at the wedding ceremony.

Daniels is individual in method and his comedy business is at no time imitative. He has an odd trick of brushing his hair whenever suffering from nervous excitement, a mannerism that becomes amusing through frequent repetition in this picture. Billy Quirk, Bernice Berner and Frank Kingsley are among those in a wisely selected supporting company.

"The Dragon"

Equitable Production Features Margarita Fischer in Dual Role of Childish Innocence and Adult Infidelity.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE Equitable's five-part production of "The Dragon" is a subject unusual in conception. The scenario was adapted by Russell E. Smith from the book by Perley Poore Sheehan. The story is of a young girl, at home on vacation from a convent where she has lived since infancy, who is told by her father of the desertion and infidelity of her mother, who had been lured from him by the Dragon. The beast, he explains, spreads its length down Fifth avenue and its influence extends into the side streets. The child clandestinely sets out to locate the Dragon and to bring home the mother.

Director Harry Pollard has imposed on Margarita Fischer the impossible task of portraying the child and the mother.

Scene from "The Dragon" (Equitable).

While Miss Fischer is superb in the adult role of the mistress of Tanner, the libertine Wall Street power who in make-up reminds of a late actual power, she fails to convince as the child who would be unable to recognize beans if the bag were open. The natural interest in the story centers around the doings of Messalla, the child. But only a very young child or one mentally deficient would in life walk up and down Fifth avenue asking policemen and white wings if they could direct her to the Dragon. It is because of this absence of probability that "The Dragon" will fail to stir or to move the seasoned, critical adult picturegoer.

The manner in which the story has been transferred to the screen is generally deserving of praise. Of the scenes occurring in the bank it need only be said they were taken in a banking house—and a prominent one. There was atmosphere here beyond question. Likewise the home of Tanner, with its carousing visitors or inmates, is well staged. The dragon, which by the aid of double-exposure is represented as lurking about Washington Square, will interest children even if its intended significance be not comprehended by them.

"The Dragon" does not ring true. In theme it seems more the effort of a writer to evolve the sensational than to adhere to the verities. Wicked men and women there are in New York just as there are wicked men and women in every town whether small or large. If in New York there be a particularly bad colony of libertines in the big community indicated it will come as news that is important if true to many of the five million inhabitants of the metropolis.

Triangle Program

"Don Quixote" Such a Drawing Card That It Is Repeated —Other Plays. "The Conqueror," KayBee, and a Keystone, "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts."

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"DON QUIXOTE" in revised form, about a thousand feet eliminated, runs with greater snap and vigor, a decided improvement on the version originally presented.

"Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts," a thrilling Keystone, directed by Walter Wright, is one of those marvels of ingenuity which delight all classes in an audience while completely mystifying the uninitiated, a very inclusive class in this day of newspaper criticism. The aeroplane feats of Chester Conklin, always amusing, take on an entirely new aspect; but the startling innovation is a wreck in midair, showing the descent of one wing of the machine to where it lands directly over a skyscraping factory chimney, smoking out the hands of an aeroplane plant below. Melodrama in its wildest moments has pictured nothing more thrilling than the ascent of the tall chimney and the nerve-tingling incidents of rescue that follow.

Scene from "The Conqueror" (Kay Bee).

"The Conqueror" gives a delightfully new turn to an old story, and affords Enid Markey and Willard Mack fine opportunity for mental revelation. It is the old story of the self-made man who has forced his way to a financial position of great power, openly associating with people of superior early advantages and hating them from a false construction of their character, finally cornering the father of a beautiful girl and compelling his consent to marriage. As usual, the self-sacrificing daughter consents to what is a virtual sale of herself to avert family ruin. Thus far the story runs along conventional lines and is supported mainly by the acting of Miss Markey and Mr. Mack. The latter is, however, interpreting a character of higher intelligence, and therefore more modern, than the ordinary. He tries the proud girl to the utmost by pointing out that she has the small scruples of her "class" in consenting to such a sacrifice, and thus recalls her natural high spirit. She decides for family ruin rather than marry the man who has deliberately planned it. This brings about an entirely new point of view for the parvenu and leads to a conclusion as pleasing as it is new.

Scene from "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts" (Keystone).

"Black Crook"

The Kalem Company Has a Five-Part Screen Version of the Famous Spectacular Drama Ready for Release on January 10.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT will be recalled by students of the drama in America that the "Black Crook" was written as a serious romantic play and, when first produced, was without spectacular embellishment of any sort. Owing to its bombastic style and lack of literary worth the piece made a dismal failure, but the discerning eyes of the Kiralfys saw in it an excellent medium for the introduction of a theatrical entertainment new to this country, and produced the play at Niblo's Garden, some sixty years ago, as a spectacle, containing the first ballet ever shown on the American stage, outside of a grand opera. The production was considered the acme of managerial daring, was denounced from the pulpit and many a good deacon from the rural districts went in fear and trembling to gaze upon the sinful beauties of the short-skirted ballet and the diaphanous allurements of Stalacta, the Fairy Queen. Shades of a departed and unsophisticated generation, what would it say to a Winter Garden undress parade! With the possible exception of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," no attraction has equaled the number of performances given in this country of the "Black Crook," and the author, who heard his play inconsistently damned at its first production, lived to grow rich from its subsequent royalties.

The version arranged for the screen by Phil Lang and produced by Robert G. Vignola again demonstrates the fact that the moving picture stage often reverses the verdict of the spoken drama, and a play that has failed when dialogue was used will frequently register a success when employing the screen as a medium of expression. Shorn of its fulsome speech, this play becomes what its author intended—a romantic drama of the old school that deals rather impressively with a weird story and the inhabitants of the lower regions. As a spectacle, it lacks one of the principal features that gave it vogue in its original form—the flash of color. The appearance and dancing of the young ladies who attend the fair Stalacta in a woodland glade is pleasing to look upon, but fairies work their spell with greater effect under the rays of the calcium light. For stately pageants and historical productions like "The Birth of a Nation," the screen is supreme; for the purely spectacular drama, with its music, dancing and kaleidoscopic flash of color the stage that produced "Black Crook" and now offers "Stop! Look! and Listen!" will always remain far in the lead.

The Kalem production is well equipped scenically and has the advantage of a good cast, E. P. Sullivan, Henry Hallem, Chas. D. Forrest, Frank Leonard, Gladys Coburn, Helen Lindroth, Robert Bottomly and Mae Thompson being among its leading members.

"A Soldier's Oath"

William Farnum Is Starred in Fox Drama Given an Artistic Production by Oscar C. Apfel.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

PROBABLY this will be the most popular of recent Fox productions. It lacks the morbid quality that has characterized many of the pictures issued by the same concern, and it has very positive assets in William Farnum as the star, in a dramatic and, at times, distinctly appealing story with war for a background, also in the artistic attractiveness of ingeniously arranged scenes, in which the photographic work is notably fine. The light effects in the picture are, perhaps, its most memorable feature, for they contribute amazingly towards creating the illusion of an actual battlefield at night—a field strewn with the bodies of the dead and dying and occasionally illumined by the flash from a bursting shell. Without using a great number of men and seemingly at a moderate expense, Director Apfel has succeeded as have few others in bringing the horrors of war to the screen.

Interest in a personal relationship is caught in the opening reel that reflects the intimacies of a happy family life shared by Pierre Duval, his wife and their little daughter. There is nothing new in emphasizing the appeal of a pretty child, but scenes such as those acted by Kittens Reichert always may be relied upon to stir an audience. Then comes the call for troops with its foreboding of evil, and the murder of Duval's wife while her little daughter stands pathetically at the other side of a closed door. The story is given an excellent start in this first reel and the interest is well sustained through the quite elaborate chain of circumstances that work the downfall of a successful criminal.

As in previous pictures, Mr. Farnum's acting is forceful in the extreme, also sympathetic when opportunity offers. Dorothy Bernard, H. J. Herbert and Ruth Findley are others in the cast.

Vitagraph Features

A Four-Reel Release in Which Charles Richman Takes One of the Leading Parts—Three-Part Broadway Star Features by C. Jay Williams.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

SENSATIONS are guaranteed in this Vitagraph feature, "The Surprises of An Empty Hotel." There are old-fashioned sensations and brand new sensations. It is entertaining and at times thrilling. The direction by Theodore Marston is capable, as one would expect it to be.

Mystery abounds in the picture. There is a copper magnate of fabulous wealth, at whose death two common-law widows appear, claiming the estate. The hero is in the mysteriously empty hotel when the two claimants begin to quarrel and make considerable noise. He wakes up and is told that burglars are on the premises. The strange visitors, however, are not burglars but unscrupulous lawyers, who want to get the heiress into their power. The lawyers succeed in kidnapping her and try to get her on board the yacht which they have made ready for their scheme of abduction. They are duly foiled by the hero. One of the men in revenge tries to blow up the yacht, but the tables are turned at the last moment and the wicked limb of the law perishes in the terrific explosion which wipes the yacht out of existence with the thoroughness of a German submarine.

Scene from "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel" (Vitagraph).

It is needless to say that Mr. Richman made a dashing hero and won much sympathy and admiration for himself before the picture had gone a thousand feet. His support was excellent throughout. The story was taken from the well known author, Archibald Clavering Gunter.

"By Love Redeemed."

THIS feature, "By Love Redeemed," a three-part Broadway Star feature, has a good story, which travels fast enough and has many tense situations. The plot hinges on the possibility of curing a criminal disposition by a surgical operation. Nell, a young girl of charming appearance but weak in character, has been hit over the head with a revolver in the hands of her father, a confirmed criminal. The girl thereafter suffers from bone pressure, a condition which hurries her into many petty crimes against her better nature. With all her inherited and accidental depravity the girl has good instincts, as is shown by her risking her life to save a poor old woman who is in danger of being run over by an automobile. In this way she makes the acquaintance of a young man, who takes an interest in her case and persuades her to submit to an operation by a famous surgeon who specializes in redeeming accidental criminals by surgical operations. In Nell's case the operation is of course successful. With the bone-pressure successfully removed the true and honest nature of the girl asserts itself and she appears on the high road of reform and recovery. A very unexpected and tragic development occurs in the climax of the story, resulting in the death of the criminal father just as he tried once more to cross the path of his unfortunate daughter.

Scene from "By Love Redeemed" (Vitagraph).

"The Immigrant"

A Lasky Feature of Much Merit, Starring Valeska Suratt.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

VALESKA SURATT is the leading figure of this play. She may eventually develop into a good emotional actress; her appearance is in her favor, likewise her evident sincerity. Her opportunities in this film play were great, indeed one might call them extraordinary. Miss Suratt perhaps realized the fact; at times she made laudable and intelligent efforts to rise to her opportunities. Taken as a whole, however, her performance does not measure up to great expectations.

With this qualification the play deserves great praise. Thomas Meighan and Theodore Roberts are true stars whose fame does not depend on meretricious advertising. Also they are prime favorites with the patrons of the high-class screen. They have splendid parts, both of them, and make one pardon the deficiencies of the star.

The story deals with the adventures of a Polish girl who emigrates to this country. She is a girl of parts and of ambition and rises above the squalor and pettiness of the environment into which she had been born. In its development the plot allows the introduction of varied and impressive settings. The flight of the people after the bursting of the dam, the mining and breaking of the dam, the rise of the waters is all very fine and realistic. Indeed all the outdoor settings are of the best and most realistic sort, if we except the "model" house, which is supposed to fall into the angry flood. Amid so much realism the "model" looked anything but convincing.

Scene from "The Immigrant" (Lasky).

The opening scenes of the play are particularly good, the contrasts between first and second cabin and steerage are brought out very cleverly and without any loss of time. The story had its weak points, but it never dragged and "padding," the crying evil of the feature situation, was conspicuous by its absence.

Biograph Feature and Reissue

"The War of Wealth" in Three Reels; "The Isles of the Wild," an Early Griffith Production.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

FOR release on Jan. 12 the Biograph Company announces "The War of Wealth," a three-reel drama of passable quality, produced some little time ago in California. In the matter of locations the picture is amply supplied, for the director was permitted to use one of the finest estates in the neighborhood of Los Angeles, and he never was at a loss for attractive backgrounds when the scenario required an exterior. There is enough variety and charm in the settings to satisfy the most fastidious audience, but the story may prove less interesting than its investiture.

After the first scene, affording a glimpse of a battle in the Civil War, the action shifts to the present day, and for the most part shows the characters in the realm of high, not to say, frenzied, finance. The central interest of the plot concerns the perfidy of a young man, who, elevated to a position of importance in a bank, changes his mind about marrying the daughter of the night watchman and in the course of time finds it necessary to rob the bank in order to cover his unfortunate stock speculations. It is not quite clear why a bank official was obliged to blow open the door of a vault at night when, presumably, he had access to the cash by right of his office. This is one of several incidents that appear a bit unnatural. At all events, the explosion is well handled, as is the run on the bank. A competent cast includes George Pierce, John Bramall, Charles Perley, Robert Drouet, Clara Bracey, William J. Butler and Lina Arvidson.

"In the Isles of the Wild" is a vivid little dramatic sketch, Scene from "The War of Wealth" (Biograph).

produced by Griffith and acted by Henry Walthall, Harry Carey, Lillian Gish and Claire McDowell. All of the scenes were acted in mountainous regions bordering on a lake, the chief characters being two woodsmen and their sweethearts. The flirtatious propensities of one woman and her desire to arouse the jealousy of her lover lead to her marrying the wrong man, and then, of course, there is trouble. The story is essentially tragic, and, needless to say, it is carried through consistently. The Griffith reissues continue to set a high standard for current single-reel productions.

"Love's Pilgrimage to America"

Five-Reel Broadway-Universal Feature, with Lulu Glaser, of Light Opera Fame, in Leading Role.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS production is one combining strength and weakness, but on the whole averages up quite well. The tone of the comedy is good, but a little too extravagant at times, particularly in the opening scenes. This gives a touch of burlesque to the piece. The author, May B. Havey, has made Scene from "Love's Pilgrimage to America" (Universal).

free use of subtitles throughout, many of which are overburdened with slang phrases. The slang is in keeping with the general character of the plot, but unfortunately is not always as funny as was no doubt intended. This sort of humor must be very much to the point in order to get over well.

Lulu Glaser plays the part of the bishop's daughter, who comes to America with the duke's nephew. Her work is pleasing throughout and she makes a good screen appearance.

The voyage of the young couple is unconventional, as the girl will not marry Archie until they make their fortunes, in spite of his desires in the matter. The bishop and duke are both opposed to the match and the couple are accordingly penniless and on their own resources.

Upon their arrival in America they search for work. The girl falls in with a theatrical agent, named Lester. The latter makes insulting advances, from which Archie saves her. He has become a book agent. Later they go to an employment agency and hire out as butler and maid. More trouble follows, as they are suspected of being thieves. Their difficulties are finally solved when the duke and his son die, leaving Archie his heir.

"Mr. McIdiot's Assassination"

Two-Reel L-KO Comedy in Which a Grim Situation Is Successfully Converted Into a Laugh Producer.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

RAY GRIFFITH first appears in this nonsense number. He is a young man addicted to flirting in the park. He disports himself for some time picking flowers illegally, and finally comes upon a fair charmer impersonated by Louise Orth. He makes advances and is making satisfactory progress in the love affair when a portly rival comes on the scene. The latter part is played by Dan Russell who, as well as Mr. Griffith, is making a good impression in this line of comedy.

Thinking he has lost his lady love, the young man becomes desperate and decides to kill himself. He lacks the nerve to do this and finally visits a murder bureau. The chief assassin turns out to be his rival, and he agrees to kill the young man within twelve hours. This is agreeable to Ray and he wanders out to the park again, wondering just when death will come.

The main situation appears to be very creepy as described, but it carries very well on the screen and there are numerous laughable scenes to offset the sanguinary nature of the plot. Moreover, a happy ending is brought about, by the sudden decision of the chief assassin to give up murder as a business. The girl also relents and looks up the despondent lover, telling him she loves him alone.

Scene from "Mr. McIdiot's Assassination" (L-KO).

The final scenes are good, picturing the three leading characters climbing a high ladder upon the park bridge, from which one dives into the water below.

"The Rack"

Thompson Buchanan's Drama Is Made Into Strong Picture by Emile Chautard of World Film Corporation.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

FAITHFUL wives and husbands, content to remain by their own firesides, seem to be losing whatever public favor they once enjoyed. We are obsessed with restless sex, on the stage, in magazines and on the screen. As a substitute for wishy-washy sentimentality producers of photoplays are presenting a great many stories purporting to deal seriously with the problems of married life. Most of them are melodramatic and inconsequential, in so far as any true character delineation is concerned; but they are popular, and there's the answer.

"The Rack," taken from a play by Thompson Buchanan and done into a picture by the Brady company, under the expert direction of Emile Chautard, is an excellent example of the best in the prevailing style. It is a play of situations, not of character. The situations are dramatically strong; most of the people fitted into them are just ordinarily weak, or dissatisfied—quite the sort of people that make grist for the divorce mill. Also they become suitable material for an emotional melodrama, accounted for by the vagaries of sex attraction.

We meet three young couples, all well-to-do, all for one reason or another, incapable of effecting the temperamental adjustments demanded in married life. The most reckless of the sextet is a philandering husband, who inveigles the weakest of the wives into a compromising position, causing a scandal that results in her suicide. Presently this same man returns to play the little game all over again with Blanche Gordon; but this time he is shot for his pains, and Blanche is accused of the murder. The picture takes its name from the ordeal experienced by the woman at the trial, prior to the confession of the dissipated man, whose wife killed herself.

Suspense is gained through the manner of the story's unfolding; it is lacking neither in emotion nor human interest, and the staging is admirable. Alice Brady, giving a sincere and unfailingly expressive portrayal of Blanche, justifies her stellar position in the cast, whereas intelligent support is provided by Milton Sills, Chester Barnett, June Elvidge and Doris Kenyon. A scene showing a woman being crucified does not strengthen the picture and is in very poor taste. It should be eliminated.

Scene from "The Rack" (World Film).

TWO LUBIN FEATURES.

"Saved from the Harem," a Four-Reel Unit Program Release, and "The Convict King," a Three-Reel Photoplay by a New Writer.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE United States Navy has been cast for an important part in the working out of the plot in this four-reel drama, written by Wilbert Melville and Julian Louis Lamothe and produced by Mr. Melville. The story is frankly melodramatic and depends upon the celerity of its action and the spectacular use of Uncle Sam's battleships and his gallant Jackies for its claim to consideration. The desire of Selim Bey, the ruler of a mythical kingdom in the East, to add an American girl to his harem is the mainspring of the plot. The arrival of Ezra Hickman, an American Ambassador, furnishes the Sultan with the opportunity to gratify his wish.

Scene from "Saved from the Harem" (Lubin).

Hickman has a beautiful young daughter, and an ambitious wife who is willing to encourage Selim Bey in his attentions to Miss Amy. This arrangement does not suit the young lady, however, an officer on one of Uncle Sam's warships being much more to her taste. When the ruler of Vergania finds that Amy does not fully appreciate the honor he would confer upon her, that exalted personage proceeds to make a prisoner of the young lady, also of the American Ambassador and his aspiring wife. Matters assume a serious aspect for all three, but Hanoum, a discarded favorite of the Sultan, swims out to an American battleship in the harbor and notifies Lieut. Robert Brice that his sweetheart needs his assistance. Backed up by an imposing array of officers and sailors and the American flag, the lieutenant storms the palace and rescues his compatriots in the nick of time. As an appeal to one's love of the spectacular and the sight of a body of white-clad Jackies charging the portals of an insolent foe, "Saved from the Harem" is an unquestioned success. The story need not be questioned too closely; it will entertain a great many worthy people who seek the moving picture theater for relaxation and amusement that is without offense. The production has been made in a spirit of intelligent liberality, and the acting of the cast leaves but little to be desired. Adda Gleason, as Hanoum, gives the most striking impersonation in the list of characters, and the names of Melvin Mayo, L. C. Shumway, George Routh, Jay Morley, Violet MacMillian and Adelaide Bronti call for honorable mention.

"The Convict King."

Dudley Glass, the author of the three-reel photoplay, "The Convict King," has written a drama with a purpose. The theme is out of the beaten track and exposes the abuses of the convict labor system. Considered merely as screen drama, the story is interesting. As in all works that have a didactic object, the fine points of construction are occasionally sacrificed in order to better emphasize the moral lesson. The scenes in the state capitol, when the legislature is considering the bill against the convict lease system, could have been made more impressive by the employment of a larger body of law-makers. The action of the drama hinges upon the experience of Jared Austin, an employer of convict labor, who, through an accident, is forced to serve with a gang of prisoners, and whose own son falls foul of the law and becomes a member of a convict camp. As soon as the elder Austin is freed from his unmerited detention, he works unceasingly and successfully for the defeat of the lease system. Edward Slomen has given the picture an adequate production, and was aided in his task by the finished acting of Melvin Mayo, Jay Morley, George Routh, L. C. Shumway and Adda Gleason.

Scene from "The Convict King" (Lubin).

"THE DEVIL'S PRAYER BOOK."

Drama for Kleine-Edison Feature Service Contains an Interesting Plot and Quick Action.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

ESSENTIALLY a picture of rapid action and odd personal relationships, Max Marcin's "The Devil's Prayer Book," produced in five parts by George Kleine, is likely to find favor. The plot opens the way for melodramatic happenings; there are easily appreciated ironies—a girl robbing her own father, neither being aware of the other's identity, for instance—and an audience may well wonder how it is all going to end. For the omission of superfluous scenes the producer of this picture is to be commended, but once in a while he goes to the other extreme by ignoring the value of plausible motivation.

Try as we may, we can't always credit the testimony of our own eyes. For a while the plot, so conveniently constructed, lacks the uncertainty that gives life much of its zest and lends romance to the careers of a choice band of crooks, such as we find here. The idea of a shoplifter borrowing a neighbor's baby to carry into court that the hearts of a jury may be softened into finding her husband "not guilty" seems a bit fantastic for practical criminals. That the trick works may, or may not, be taken as a reflection on the intelligence of American juries.

Then comes the death of the infant's mother, necessitating the adoption of the little girl by the two crooks. She follows in their footsteps, until, as a young woman, she is an equally expert thief. Meanwhile, her father, the most contemptible scamp of them all when the story opened, has married again and is a respected business man. Nell is set the task of stealing the family jewels, but she falls in love with her half-brother and confesses, thereby lighting a fuse to an explosive situation.

Deftly handled to make the most of all the essential details, there is no questioning the excitement created in the long campaign for possession of the jewels, and the climatic fight in which Nell's half-brother is killed. His removal, by one means or another was, of course, necessary, as was the girl's reconciliation with her reformed father. Alma Hanlon, in the dual role of Sprague's wife and daughter, is easily the most impressive member of the cast. Arthur Hoops inclines toward over-emphasis in his playing of the husband, a defect shared by several other members of the company. The picture was adequately staged.

Scene from "The Devil's Prayer Book" (Kleine).

Two Strong Famous Players Subjects

"The Old Homestead" at the Broadway and "Lydia Gilmore" at the Strand Make an Unusual Pair of Releases.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

"The Old Homestead."

THE Famous Players Company has given us a great photodrama in "The Old Homestead," its five-part adaptation of the play in the chief characters of which Denman Thompson for so many years held so tight a grip on the affections of the American theatergoing public. The screened version is a worthy sucessor to its staged original. If, owing to the absence of dialogue, some of the humor of the lines may be missing there can be no question that the pathos has been retained. The atmosphere is notable. No expatriated New Englander will look unmoved on the opening scene of a typical Yankee homestead, with the cows leisurely swinging through the lane, the farm-dog frollicking in the foreground. It is an auspicious beginning.

Scene from "The Old Homestead" (Famous Players).

Frank Losee has the role of Josh Whitcomb, the everyday New Hampshire farmer. Mr. Losee through his interpretation of this most lovable character is bound to be one of the best-known photoplayers in the next few months—and in no section will he be more favorably regarded than in Northern New England. He has hewed to the line of life. He portrays the prosperous rural New Englander as he is—with sympathy, with tenderness and with naturalness.

Mr. Losee is surrounded by a cast, many members of which distinctly stand out: Creighton Hall is Reuben Whitcomb, the son of Josh, who is falsely accused of stealing money from the bank, is jailed and escapes; Denman Meloy is Happy Jack Hazzard, the "wandering boy" who is sent on his way to his mother by Josh's five-dollar bill and later is the means of restoring Reuben to his father and sweetheart and to society; Louise Huff is Ruth, sweetheart of Reuben—and for several minutes near the close the picture was all hers; and then there was Aunt Tildy, naturally played by Mrs. Corbett. The portrayal of Henry Hopkins, the wealthy New York friend of Josh, was finely done. The rural types were carefully selected, especially so in the instances of Cy Prime and the sheriff, played respectively by Horace Newman and Russel Simpson. Thomas Wood's makeup as Seth was not wholly convincing.

There are many big moments in the course of the story. There are the dialogue between Josh and the tramp, the while Ruth on the old-fashioned instrument plays "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"—and one of the famous incidents of the stage play; the arrest of Reuben and his later misadventures in the city; the meeting of father and son in the city, and the carefully staged homecoming, perhaps the best and strongest of all. There are lighter moments, too, as when Josh, aroused by a song about a fire, rushes in his nightshirt through the fashionable gathering at the Hopkinses; or the dancing of the Virginia reel on the big homespun carpet in Josh's home.

Jim Kirkwood has most ably directed a corking picture, one of the few "great American" photoplays, and one that will live.

"Lydia Gilmore."

It is doubtful if Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford have collaborated to better all-around advantage than they did in the production of the photoplay that marked the ending of their associations as joint producers. "Lydia Gilmore," the Famous Players' adaptation of Henry Arthur Jones' drama of English society, is a splendid type of finished photoplay. The steady interest of the story itself is enhanced by the work of the cast as well as of the directors.

Scene from "Lydia Gilmore" (Famous Players).

At the head of the players is Pauline Frederick. There was to be found in the throng that patiently awaited admittance to the Strand at 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon a striking illustration of the increasing regard in which Miss Frederick is held by photoplay followers. It may have been a tribute to the house as well as to the player, but it was out of the ordinary. Miss Frederick has the name role. In the portrayal of Lydia, the young woman who, out of gratitude to her aunt, and against her strongly-defined inclination, accepted the hand of a man she did not love, she brings to bear all her talent for emotional interpretation. As the carefree girl she fascinates by her charm and vivacity. As the older woman unhappily married, to whose tragedy of soul there is added the tragedy of blood, she is compelling in her strength.

"Lydia Gilmore," barring the opening scenes, is stern drama. One of its basic elements is renunciation, the elimination of self. This is exemplified in the setting aside by Lydia of her affection for Benham, the lawyer without a brief. It crops out again in the trial for murder of Gilmore, the husband of Lydia, whom Benham, now prosecuting attorney, tries to save from execution in spite of the fact the prosecutor knows Lydia still loves him. It would be difficult to construct a situation where normally a representative of the law could with great zest enter into the prosecution of a murderer. Lydia has pleaded not for Gilmore—she despises him; not for herself, but for her son. Yet at the crucial moment of the trial it is Lydia herself, when she sees the little fellow about to follow her instructions and with reluctance testify as to what is not the truth, who sweeps aside the false fabric and denounces her husband. It is a thrilling denouement.

The cast is a short one and a strong one. Vincent Serrano is the husband, Thomas Holding the lawyer, and Jack Curtis the little son. Helen Luttrell is Mrs. Stracey, the charmer of Gilmore; Robert Cain is Stracey, killed in his own home by Gilmore, and Michael Rale is a most convincing detective.

"Lydia Gilmore" is lavishly staged and the story is closely knit.

Governor Boosts War Pictures

Kansas Executive Says Nice Things About Thompson's Scenes of Fighting in France.

GOVERNOR ARTHUR CAPPER of Kansas has proved himself a warm friend of the motion picture. His daily newspaper, The Topeka Capital, which has tremendous influence all over the Sunflower State, has taken up the engagement at the Grand Opera House there of Donald C. Thompson, the returned war photographer, and is heralding him as "The Topeka War Hero." Governor Capper opened the campaign in the issue of Sunday, Dec. 19, from which the following excerpts are taken:

Donald Thompson, Topekan, globe trotter and daredevil war photographer, who has snapped his camera on the battlefields of Europe along every front and photographed some of the most stirring scenes of the great conflict, will be in Topeka the week of Dec. 27 to vividly explain the pictures he has taken.

The Topeko war hero, the story of whose advehtures in the battle-scarred countries reads like a romance, will describe the pictures just as he took them.

By his utter fearlessness, his disregard for personal danger, his willingness to take a chance by prying in where he was not supposed to go, in the interests of his papers and in order to secure unusual photographs, Thompson, early in the war, became known, by name at least, to generals and officers of every country engaged in the conflict. And those qualities which gave him his initial success made it possible for him to secure better pictures than any man working among the armies. He was given permission to make views that no other photographer could secure. And the result is that the films he will exhibit are unquestionably authentic and portray unusual scenes taken under the greatest difficulty and at the repeated risk of his life.

Mr. Thompson left New York Thursday, Dec. 23, on the Twentieth Century to spend Christmas among the old home folks and fulfill his five-day engagement in Topeka beginning Monday, Dec. 27, and closing Friday, Dec. 31. It is expected that a number of other dates will be filled by him personally in the middle west before returning to New York in January to sail again for the battle front.

Arthur S. Kane, who is distributing Thompson's five reels of fighting on the French front called "Somewhere in France," as announced in last week's Moving Picture World, says inquiries for territory are keeping him busy.

New Million-Dollar Company.

The Equity Motion Picture Co., Inc., of New York, that has been filming comedies featuring Billy B. Van, the comedian, and the Public Service Film Co., of New York, that has been handling and exhibiting moving pictures have combined forces with a capitalization of one million dollars, with Billy B. Van as president, Joseph Leblang, vice president, Alexander L. Jones, treasurer, and Morris Cohen, secretary and counsel. The administrative offices of the company are located in the Strand theater building. Billy B. Van is well known as an eccentric comic of the spoken drama and it is proposed he will be as equally well known in the silent drama. Mr. Van owns several thousand acres in and about the hills and mountains in the vicinity of Lake Sunapee and also a large indoor studio, where he has turned out a number of comedy pictures during the past summer. The new Equity Motion Picture Co. have built a studio at Ridgefield Park, N. J., where they will commence picture making on or about the first of the year and will continue featuring Billy B. Van, the Beaumont Sisters and are also negotiating with other well known stars of the stage, whose comedy work will soon be seen under the brand of the Equity Motion Picture Company.

"The Quest Eternal," Latest World Feature.

Oscar Eagle, World Film corporation director, who returned this week from Savannah, Ga., and Pittsburgh, Pa., with a company of twenty-five people, headed by Robert Warwick and Madeline Traverse, has about compelted the photo-drama made from the novel of Henry Russell Miller's "The Ambition of Mark Truitt," which will be called "The Quest Eternal." Scenes in the steel mills, a realistic character study of Andrew Carnegie in the role of a steel king, big scenes on the Stock Exchange, mighty battles of men of millions, and tender love interest make "The Quest Eternal" an absorbing and unusually powerful picture drama of incident and excitement.

This is a man's drama in its account of a battle royal of steel kings. It is a woman's drama in its story of young romance, marriage, divorce, the passions of maturity and the triumph of love. It is life as we know it, handled in a large way, treated in a notable example. And it is led to a big conclusion when the big man emerges into the glory of Vision.

De Wolf Hopper's "Don Quixote"

His Notable Triangle Seven-Reeler Will Be Followed by "Sunshine Dad."

"DON QUIXOTE," in which De Wolf Hopper is presented for the first time as a screen star, is believed by the Triangle Film corporation to set a new standard in the film adaptation of classics. The work took on great proportions when being screend at Los Angeles. The wealth of material was such that the play was necessarily lengthened to seven reels. Edward Dillon has charge of it and his success in giving a film version of the classic is said to be most gratifying. Other great personal suceesses are those of Fay Tincher and Rhea Mitchell in the leading parts. Unusual care was exercised on the locations, costumes and furnishings, the director being guided by a Spanish-American clergyman who had lived in La Mancha. The stills show that the plan has kept in the golden mean between formalism and conventionality on the one side and buffoonery on the other.

Following the completion of "Don Quixote," De Walf Hopper has not been idle, but has gone immediately into the making of a modern farce, in which he plays the role of Adonis Evergreen, an elderly papa of chorus ladies. The title of this new play was originally given as "A Knight of the Garter," but it has since been changed to the merrier one of "Sunshine Dad." The story deals with the theft of a mystic diamond band from the God Siva in India. It finds its way to America and serves as a garter around the shapely right limb of Widow Wedagan, played by Fay Tincher. She loses it, of course, and there are innumerable comic mishaps as the diamonds fall into successive ownerships. Among those associated with Mr. Hopper and Miss Tincher in the cast are Chester Withey, Max Davidson, Eugene Pallette, Raymond Wells and Jewel Carmen.

Farnham and Farnham Have "Race Suicide."

"Race Suicide," the six part feature dealing with the subject of the depopulation of the earth which Joe Farnham, with his father G. Fred Farnham in charge of the office, is marketing upon the state rights basis, has met with a great amount of enthusiasm.

Mr. Farnham, senior, when speaking of the picture said: "While this marketing of motion picture films is perhaps a trifle new to me, still I am favorably impressed with the reception which has been so generously accorded this picture by those buyers of the better grade of motion pictures, who have come to this office in response to the announcement that "Race Sucide" was ready for the market."

Up to the first week after the opening of his office, Joe Farnham, explains that already he has received bids from more than thirty state rights buyers, who have eagerly grasped this picture because of the box-office value of the title and the names of the all star motion picture players cast.

The trade showing of the picture is to be scheduled for one day during the coming week, when announcement will be made to exhibitors of the names of the buyers who have already closed their contracts for territory.

Ivan Players at Atlantic City.

A good many of the scenes in "A Fool's Paradise" being located in Atlantic City, Ivan Film Productions, Inc., sent forth its company of forty players to spend two weeks on the beach. "A Fool's Paradise," which stars Chrystine Mayo, will bring forth Ivan Abramson's genius in a new light. It is said that prior to the departure for Atlantic City elaborate sets were erected in addition to those already erected, which have been put at the disposal of Mr. Abramson.

Picture Shows on Steamers.

Lewis J. Selznick, vice-president and general manager of the World Film Corporation, announces another forward move in the motion picture business.

Prior to the outbreak of the war, Mr. Selznick had a tentative agreement with the German trans-atlantic lines to install World features on the boats as part of a regular amusement bill. The conflict having knocked everything galley-west, however, Mr. Selznick is still equal to the occasion. It is announced that when the Fall River liners and the Hudson River boats start their regular seasons motion pictures from the World studios will be shown on board. An ingenious device has been invented by which a sloping floor—in sections with seats attached—can be "rolled" into place when it comes time for the entertainment, thus giving a "regular" theater floor capable of seating two hundred people. One dollar seats and fifty cent seats will be the tariff as at present planned. It is quite likely that the idea may be extended by Mr. Selznick to the West Indian tourist steamers and the Panama liners.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company

THE FAILURE (Biograph), Dec. 20.—The lesson taught by this D. W. Griffith one-reel reissue cannot be too often repeated; no man need remain a failure. The photoplay sets this fact forth in a cogent object lesson, and utilizes the services of Wilfred Lucas, Donald Crisp, Edwin August, Lily Cahill and Dorothy Bernard.

OTTO'S CABARET (Lubin), Dec. 20.—A comic satire on the cabaret craze, written by George Spink, and Edwin McKim has produced the reel with excellent results. It is easily one of the best pictures in which D. L. Don has the star part and argues well for the success of the Unit Program, to which it belongs. Freddie Douglas, James Cassady and John Delson are valuable members of the cast.

HARTNEY MERWIN'S ADVENTURE (Selig), Dec. 20.—The spirit of fun that runs through this one-reel comedy, by C. Doty Hobart, is accentuated by the vigorous manner in which the resourceful victim turns the laugh upon a number of would-be practical jokers, and wins a wife for himself. A bright and lively comedy, it receives the proper treatment at the hands of Wm. Stowell, Edwin Wallock and Marion Warner.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 101, 1915 (Selig), Dec. 20.—San Diago, Glenn Martin's new seaplane; Australian Boy Scouts, New York; winter cultivation of berries, Escondido, Cal.; arrival of Mme. Valkyrien from Denmark at New York; municipal Santa Claus, Lynn, Mass.; Tibitan blue bear at Philadelphia Zoo; electrification of C. M. & St. P. R. R.; Baby Show, Oakland, Cal.; the fire that destroyed Hopewell, Va.

LEVY'S SEVEN DAUGHTERS (Vitagraph), Dec. 20.—As Levy's best friend is the father of seven sons, it is easy to foresee that the comedy complications in this one-reel photoplay are as seven times seven. The picture was made for laughing purposes only and fulfils its mission. Edward Elkas, Nathaniel Gross, Eulalie Jensen and Anna Brody comprise the two sets of parents, and the entire cast has been chosen judiciously.

THE PATENT FOOD CONVEYOR (Vitagraph), Dec. 20.—On the Personally Picked Program, this one-reel comedy is something new in the way of a plot and is generously supplied with amusing incidents. C. Graham Baker is the author of the scenario, and Kate Price, Charles Eldridge, Harry Fisher, Wm. Sellery, Charles Edwards, Jas. Moran and Daniel Leighton are responsible for the lively acting bestowed upon the picture.

THE BANDITS OF MACARONI MOUNTAINS (Kalem), Dec. 21.—There is a thread of grim humor running through this burlesque comedy that is entirely independent of the comic antics and incidents that comprise the greater part of the reel. A bandit's lair has no terrors for a thoroughly domestic woman and, like Eve in the Garden of Eden, she at once proceeds to rule the roost. Bud Duncan, Ethel Teare, Jack McDermott and Myrta Sterling breeze through the reel in jolly style.

CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL NO. 3 (Essanay), Dec. 22.—Wallace A. Carlson's cartoons on up-to-the-minute events are as cleverly drawn as the best of this talented artist's work. The reel also contains a "Dreamy Dud" Christmas cartoon and travel scenes in New Mexico.

THE LITTLE PURITAN (MinA), Dec. 23.—Constance Talmadge and Ben Parsons have the leading roles in this one-reel comedy which has a novel plot involving a stage celebrity and two rival theatrical managers. The fun is not of the slapstick order, but depends upon the humor of the situations. An entertaining reel.

THE ORIENTAL'S PLOT (No. 9 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Kalem), Dec. 24.—The plot of this one-reel drama deals with the kidnapping of Marguerite, when she attempts to rescue another young woman from the same predicament. The situations are frequently ingenious, and the reel compares favorably with the preceding numbers of the series. As usual, Miss Courtot's costumes are very attractive.

MIXED AND FIXED (Vim), Dec. 24.—A masked ball at which none of the characters in this one-reel farce arrive, although they make great preparations to that end, is the "cause of the trouble" in this knockabout comic. Messrs. Pokes and Jabs and the rest of the cast, see to it that the photoplay does not belie its title or the name of the brand.

IS CHRISTMAS A BORE? (Vitagraph), Dec. 24—Quite in the Dickins spirit is this one-reel Christmas comedy by James Montgomery Flagg. The story is an effective little sermon on the joy of giving, and in the able hands of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and Mary Maurice loses nothing in the telling.

NO SMOKING (Lubin), Dec. 25.—Mark Swam has again supplied an amusing one-reel scenario for the purpose of permitting Billie Reeves to do a straight comedy role. The comedian takes advantage of every opportunity afforded him, and is well supported by Arthur Matthews, Carrie Reynolds, Jessie Terry and Charles Griffithe.

THE SACRED TIGER OF AGRA (Selig), Dec. 25.—This one-reel photoplay is a characteristic Selig Jungle Zoo drama. The atmosphere of the Far East is again reproduced with commendable verisimilitude and the plot has a firm hold on the attention. Vivian Reed, Edward J. Piel and C. C. Holland form a satisfactory cast.

General Film Company Specials.

HEARTACHES (Lubin), Dec. 20.—Daniel Carson Goodman is the author of this four-reel drama on the Lubin Unit Program. The theme is modern and touches the different grades of society from the shop girl to the young lady of fashion. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of Dec. 25, page 2385.

PERKIN'S PEP PRODUCER (Chronicles of "Bloom Center" No. 6) (Selig), Dec. 20.—Not only does the Perkin's compound have great stimulating qualities when taken internally, but it puts plenty of "pep" into this instalment of the Maibelle Heikes Justice serial. The medicine faker is a familiar figure in the life of a small town, and his visit to Bloom Center furnishes unwonted excitement for every one in the place. The cast, as uusal, are very amusing in their portrayal of country types. The picture is in two reels.

ON HER WEDDING NIGHT (Vitagraph Personally Picked Program), Dec. 20.—Reviewed by Lynde Denig on page 83 issue of July 31.

THE DANGER OF BEING LONESOME (Essanay), Dec. 21.—The plot of this two-reel drama does not always square with probability, but there is no denying the force with which it drives home its warning and the interest aroused by its theme. The production is almost without a flaw, the sending of the little violinist out into the snow-covered street without a wrap of some sort over her thin frock being the one false note. Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig are the same dependable artists in the leading roles.

A BUSH RANGER AT BAY (Kalem), Dec. 22.—Two reels, making the fifth installment of the "Stingaree" Serial picture. It is a picture with much delightful character drawing. Thomas Lingham (we mention him before True Boardman, the leader in this case, for here he is the most interesting character in the action) plays an Englishman, Guy, who in the "Voice in the Wilderness," the second episode, was the husband of the singing woman, who thought she had a voice. Here he goes up to the hills and persuades Stingaree to give him the sack of mail just "lifted" by the bandit. It is certainly worth seeing and makes an excellent offering of entertainment.

BEYOND ALL IS LOVE (Lubin), Dec. 23.—A three-reel drama, written by Daniel Carson Goodman, containing an interesting study of the drug habit and the laws of heredity. The story opens with a prologue and moves rapidly and convincingly to the final scenes. A review of this picture was printed in the issue of Dec. 25, page 2383.

BLADE O' GRASS (Edison), Dec. 24.—Leonie Flugrath and Pat O'Malley are the leading actors in this three-reel drama, the scenes of which are laid in the woods of Maine and in New York City. The story has many pleasing qualities and is excellently acted and produced. A review of this picture appeared in the issue of Dec. 25, page 2387.

THE THIRTEENTH GIRL (Vitagraph Broadway Star Feature), Dec. 25.—This three-part subject is taken from a magazine story, "Where Did Lottie Go?" It is well produced by Theodore Marston. Arline Pretty has the role of the Thirteenth Girl, the significance of which is her selection as the last of a group of models for a fashion show. Much is made of this show, by the way, and undoubtedly the picture from its sartorial side will have much interest for the feminine picture-goers entirely apart from its dramatic aspect. Miss Pretty does good work as the poor girl who is misled by her employer. Others who prominently figure in a good cast are Julia Swayne Gordon, Robert Whitworth, Lillian Burns, Arthur Cozine and Frank Currier.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER (Vitagraph), Dec. 27.—A five-reel farce with Frank Daniels in the leading role. It is a picture that keeps getting better till it gets good. There are plenty of good hearty laughs in it and, especially in the first two reels, a few dry places. As a whole it goes well and makes an excellent light offering and mirth provoker.

THE MAKING OVER OF GEOFFREY MANNING (Vitagraph Broadway Star Feature), Dec. 27.—This is a splendid four-part subject. The theme is the transformation of a well-to-do young man from a drone to a worker. He goes into the world with little or no money to make his way. The leading character is strongly portrayed by Harry Morey, supported by L. Rogers Lytton, Belle Bruce and an excellent cast. The picture was reviewed at length in the issue of December 18.

Fox Film Corporation.

A SOLDIER'S OATH (Dec. 19).—A very well handled human interest drama with war for a background. Oscar C. Apfel supplied a most artistic production and William Farnum is impressive as the soldier whose wife is killed when he goes to war. Fine photography is a notable feature of the picture.

Mutual Film Corporation.

THE NECKLACE OF PEARLS (Thanhouser), Dec. 19.—An interesting one-reel number, first showing a jewel theft on board a passenger boat. The thief's woman accomplice puts the necklace around the neck of her cat, covering it with ribbon. Later the facts come out at a Cat Show. This is novel and entertaining.

HUNTING (Casino), Dec. 26.—"Bud Ross" is supported in this comedy offering by Edward Boulden, Phin Nares and Jenny Nelson. This is an unusually entertaining farce comedy, in which a fascinating young woman invites two guests of the Hotel De Gink to lunch with her at a fashionable restaurant. The plume on the lady's hat takes fire from the cigarette of one of the men, and they go a-hunting to get her another from a golden pheasant. They return to find her with a millionaire and disinclined to even look at them.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 16, CHICAGO, ILL. (Gaumont), Dec. 28.—In this the Mutual Traveler visits Chicago. Excellent views are shown of that city's public buildings, streets, lake front, zoo and other features.

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Gaumont), Dec. 28.—On same reel with above. Pa has a dream in which he visits the trenches and puts an end to the war. Quite amusing.

THE MENDER (American), Dec. 31.—The story of this film is rather crude in its presentation, and the beautiful character of the old mender is made to cover a multitude of sins. The story centers about the accomplishments of the old member in patching up broken friendships, etc. One of the principal repair jobs tendered him is a domestic tragedy, in which a man and his wife are about to be divorced.

JERRY'S REVENGE (Cub), Dec. 31.—After suffering various vicissitudes in the opening scenes, Jerry becomes possessed of a magic ring which forces all to obey his will. This is slightly vulgar in one or two scenes, but the excellent humor atones for the lapses. Very funny knockabout comedy.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT (Beauty), Jan. 1.—This is an excellent comedy-drama in which an old couple after forty years of married life discover that they "jest can't hitch." Before the final arrangements for a divorce have been completed a long lost son returns and cements the tattered affections of the old people.

HILDA'S HUSKY HELPER (Falstaff), Jan. 6.—Built on a slight foundation this film pleases. It is a farce comedy offering, and shows the lovesick clerk getting in trouble all around, and eventually winning out over the heads of all through joining forces with a traveling feminine athlete.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

THE DECOY (Reliance), Dec. 26.—A two-reel number, featuring Jack Brammall, Bessie Buskirk, Alfred Paget and Irene Hunt. It pictures cleverly the way in which a bank clerk is caught after he commits a theft. The settings are ordinary, but the construction is good and the story follows through nicely. It keeps close enough to real life to hold the interest closely.

THE TRAGIC CIRCLE (American), Dec. 27.—Harold Lockwood is featured in this two-part production, which is only moderately interesting. A young man about to commit suicide because he has been refused by the girl he loves is taken in hand by the hero of the story, who explains to him love's tragic circle in which the lovers follow in a circle always reaching out for that which is just beyond them. An excellent moral is contained in the closing scenes of the story where the despondent lover is told that only in work can he find true happiness.

THE TERROR OF THE FOLD (Centaur), Dec. 30.—A two-part production that is above the average. The ultimate working out of the plot brings rivalry between two young men for the hand of a young mountain girl. The villain of the play meets his death partly through a shot from the gun of his rival, after he himself has fired the first shot, and partly through a wild animal trap which he has set for the other man in the shape of a couple of mountain lion cubs, which the fierce mother comes in search of.

THE CACTUS BLOSSOM (Mustang), Dec. 31.—Anna Little is very charming in this picture in which Frank Borzage plays opposite her. The production contains plenty of western realism, and is much above the average picture in every way. An attack by a gang of cowboys on the cabin of the Cactus Blossom and her father in order to steal both girl and gold makes an interesting spectacle.

THE WRAITH OF HADDON TOWERS (Clipper Star Feature), Jan. 1.—An unusually attractive three-part production which features Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude. It is adapted from an old English story. Some very fine double exposure work characterizes the picture, as well as excellent dramatic action, and much beauty of exterior location. A full review of the picture will be found on another page of the magazine.

THE BUBBLES IN THE GLASS (Thanhouser), Jan. 4.—This three-part production contains an excellent temperance lesson. The story for the play was written by Lloyd Lonergan. The film is intended to teach the lesson of total abstinence, and shows many of the disadvantages which arise from addiction to alcohol. This picture will be welcomed by temperance workers.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE DOOR (Mutual Masterpicture), Jan. 5.—Harold Lockwood, May Allison and Josephine Humphreys are prominent members of the cast of this five-part picture. The production is not always quite consistent in its development, and the cutting does not impress one as having been carefully done. There are moments in the picture, however, that have real merit, and it is a pity that the summing up does not stamp it a perfect one.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

MR. GREX OF MONTE CARLO (Lasky), Dec. 2.—Theodore Roberts is featured in this subject. His acting is par excellence. A timely plot involving the adventures of secret agent of all the great nations of Europe makes the story doubly interesting at this time. A good cast supports the star and the settings and photography are like the former Lasky subjects—faultless.

THE UNKNOWN (Lasky), Dec. 9.—The story is rather thin but the wonderful atmosphere helps towards redeeming it. Spectacular are the wild-man hunts by the Foreign Legion and marauding Bedouins. Lou Tellegen is the star, and is well supported. Photography and settings are up to the Lasky standard.

THE CHEAT (Lasky), Dec. 13.—A film drama of unusual power is "The Cheat." Fannie Ward has the part of the wife who in her passion for clothes is tempted to play with fire. She is ably supported by a well-chosen cast. The lighting effects are original as well as artistic. One of the best pictures of the season.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 101, 1915 (Pathe), Dec. 18.—Some interesting items of this issue are scenes of fancy skating on the roof of a New York hotel, branding horses to be used by the warring forces of Europe, and the removal of celebrities in wax from the Eden Musee, New York.

PECULIAR PATIENTS' PRANKS (Phunphilms), Dec. 22.—This is one of the best of the "Lonesome Luke" comedies, and shows Luke getting himself into a hospital for the purpose of meeting a girl whom he admires. He makes things rather more lively than usual about the hospital, and uses chloroform to stupify doctors, nurses, etc., when he attempts to kidnap the girl. A good farce number.

ANIMAL MOVEMENTS ANALYZED (Photocolor), Dec. 22.—A similar film to "Human Movements Analyzed." There are shown various kinds of animals, including the horse, the dog, the kangaroo, etc. These animals have been photographed running, jumping, etc., first by the ordinary, and then with a rapid camera.

A TEA PLANTATION, JAVA (Globe), Dec. 22.—This is an unusually interesting industrial picture, showing the various stages of the preparation of the tea leaf before it is placed on the market.

PATHE NEWS NO. 100, 1915 (Pathe), Dec. 15.—Scenes of special interest in this issue are fancy skating at Tuxedo Park, a congregation of U. S. submarines, celebrations in Japan for the coronation of the Emperor, and primitive methods of cutting, grinding and extracting the sugar from the sugar cane, whch are still extant in parts of Georgia.

BOARD BILL DODGERS (Starlight), Dec. 25.—A very amusing comedy which shows Heinie and Louie in some thrilling situations from which they make desperate and sometimes successful efforts to extricate themselves. A common-sized trunk with an enormous capacity for swallowing any kind of an article offered to it is an amusing item of the comedy.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

THE WAR GOD'S DECREE (Victory), Dec. 23.—An interesting three-part production dealing with conditions as they are in the war-stricken districts of Europe at the present time. The picture is well produced in every respect and has a love story of rather a tragic sort running through it. A full review of the picture will be found in another issue of the magazine.

THE RED CIRCLE, No. 3, "Twenty Years Ago" (Balboa), Jan. 1.—Another of the interesting two-part episodes which the serial presents, and entitled "Twenty Years Ago." This number tells the story of the origin of June. This is told to her by her nurse, who was with her mother when she was born, and who had cared for her since a child. In this episode also the nurse tries to put the detective who is watching June off the track by wearing the black cloak and veil used by this young lady when she robbed the loan shark's safe. We do not yet know with what success she met in the attempted impersonation.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE HUNT (Keystone), Dec. 26.—Ford Sterling in a new role, that of a colored man, mistaken for the fox in a hunt because a rival secretes a mackeral in Sterling's ragged shoe.

DIZZY HEIGHTS AND DARING HEARTS (Keystone), Jan. 2.—A story of thrilling aeroplane flights and daring rescues, quite as exciting as it is amusing.

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 198 (Universal), Dec. 22.—A number containing numerous American scenes and some close views of English, French, German and Russian soldiers in action, closes with Hy Mayer drawings.

PANTS AND PETTICOATS (L-KO.), Jan. 2.—A comedy number of the farcical type, featuring Fatty Voss, Gertrude Selby and Reggie Morris. The latter attires himself as a girl and breaks up his rival's love affair. The situations are amusing and the general tone of the production better than the average.

JED'S TRIP TO THE FAIR (Nestor), Jan. 3.—This number, by A. E. Christie, follows a plot that was used once before. Eddie and Betty, two young country people, visit the San Francisco fair. They fall in with some confidence workers and have numerous adventures. The comedy is average, but the views of the exposition at night make a very pretty feature.

SHATTERED NERVES (Rex), Jan. 4.—Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips appear in this comedy number. The young man of sporting proclivities has a bad attack of nerves and also a bad dream. The country hotel scenes are amusing. An entertaining light subject.

THE UNDERWORLD (Laemmle), Jan. 5.—A comedy-drama by Rupert Julian, in which a party of slum visitors are made the victims of a hoax by some actors out of work. The comedy ending is unexpected and the offering altogether is clever and unusual.

BUILDING UP THE HEALTH OF A NATION (Powers), Jan. 6.—An interesting half reel, featuring Benarr Mac Fadden of physical culture fame. He demonstrates his splendid physical condition in a series of health lessons.

CARL EMMY AND HIS DOGS (Powers), Jan. 6.—A vaudeville act, picturing some well-trained canines in various stunts. On same reel with above.

FLIVVER'S ART OF MYSTERY (Nestor), Jan. 7.—A very funny eccentric comedy, in which an English comedian, known as Flivver, tries to imitate the feats of a great magician. The result is extremely laughable. One of the best numbers of the kind recently shown.

THOSE FEMALE HATERS (Joker), Jan. 8.—A low comedy by Allen Curtis, featuring Gale Henry, Wm. Franey, Milburne Moranti and Lillian Peacock. The plot is not particularly novel, but some amusing incidents occur.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, "ARE WE PREPARED?" (Powers), Jan. 7.—No. 3 of this instructive series. This takes the observer into the naval department, on board battleships, etc. The photography is not up to standard in this number, though the closing scenes, when guns are fired after sunset, are very striking.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

THE POWER OF THE PEOPLE (Universal Special), Jan. 3.—No. 4 of the "Graft" series. In this two-reel instalment Bruce resigns as district attorney, but still keeps up his fight on the grain trust. The substitution of Harry D. Carey for Hobart Henley is cleverly manipulated in this number. The latter met with an unfortunate accident and Carey, playing his brother Tom, will continue the graft investigations. This number is entertaining throughout. The scene where Dodson is hounded to his office and forced to appear before the people is very dramatic.

THE GRAY SISTERHOOD (Gold Seal), Jan. 4.—No. 2 of "The Journals of Lord John" series. This number, adapted to the screen by Harvey Gates, is much clearer than the first one. The cast is proficent and the plot interesting, though it requires pretty close watching, owing to the great number of characters. In this Lord John rescues Maida from the convent, where she has been lured by the Egyptian hypnotist and his sister. There is a good atmosphere of mysticism over certain scenes. The further adventures should prove interesting.

THE HEART OF A MERMAID (Victor), Jan. 5.—A three-reel special, by Elaine Stearne, featuring Mary Fuller, Glen White, Paul Panzer and others. This is the comedy of a mermaid who comes to life, in the hero's dream. He takes her aboard his yacht, at first violently in love with her, but soon tires of her unconventional conduct and lets her return to her ocean home. The comedy is laughable and novel throughout. Mary Fuller is pleasing in this, though her costumes in numerous scenes are decidedly breezy and unconventional. The situations, while broad in treatment, are very amusing.

MISSY (Laemmle), Jan. 6.—In this two-reel number, by Lynn Reynolds, Myrtle Gonzalez infuses fresh interest into the part of a mountain girl. The story is interesting and many of the scenes are particularly attractive. Missy goes to her mother in the city, but is appalled by the social life and flees back to the country. The bachelors' dinner was a good dramatic touch. The close is strong. Alfred Allen, Val Paul and Frank Newburg are in the east. A good offering.

THE LAW OF LIFE (Imp), Jan. 7.—A three-reel number, featuring King Baggot, Edna Hunter, Elsie MacLeod, Ned Reardon and Clara Beyers. The story is interesting but not very strong and none too convincing. It pictures the way in which a very moral young man goes to the city and in one night brings a cloud upon his career, through acquaintance with a Spanish dancer. His love affair is broken off and years of sorrow intervene before the couple are reunited. The construction is faulty in places, but in some ways the offering is quite strong.

ON THE TRIAL OF THE TIGRIS (Bison), Jan. 8.—An animal film, by Paul Bourgeois, featuring the author, Betty Schade, Mme. Rosita Marstini and some tigers, lions and leopards. The story is quite gripping in certain ways. It tells of a jealous queen of the tigers who lures a young girl to her home to collect a big ransom. She threatens to release the wild beasts if the money is not sent, placing the girl at their mercy. The lover and his friends come after the beasts have been released and exciting scnes follow. Entertaining melodrama.

V-L-S-E, Inc. Specials.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER (Vitagraph), Dec. 27.—Frank Daniels scores an emphatic success in this five-reel comedy, written by Mary Roberts Linehart and directed by C. Jay Williams. Many of the most entertaining scenes are laid in a theater on the night of the first performance of a comic opera. Daniels is on the screen most of the time and he is ably supported by Billy Quirk and others.

World Film Corporation.

THE RACK (Brady—World), Dec. 27.—Adapted from a play by Thompson Buchanan, "The Rack" makes a powerful five-part drama, in which Alice Brady plays the role of a woman tried on the charge of murder. The picture was expertly directed by Emile Chautard, who maintained the element of suspense to a marked degree. It was carefully staged and expressively acted by those in support of Miss Brady, including Milton Sills, Chester Barnett, June Elvidge and Doris Kenyon. One scene that is offensive and should be eliminated shows the body of a woman nailed to a cross.

Associated Film Sales Corporation.

HIS TURNING POINT (Big A Feature), Jan. 1.—This five-part Associated subject is lacking in strength in the several departments which go to make a picture.

Thomas J. Carrigan

THOMAS J. CARRIGAN has signed a long-time contract with the Metro Pictures Corporation, and will be featured exclusively in Metro feature productions. He will make his debut, under Metro auspices, in "Rose of the Alley," the five-part feature in which little Mary Miles Minter is starred. This is an original story of life in New York's underworld, written by Harry Hoyt, also a newcomer with the Metro forces. Mr. Carrigan will also be featured in "Dimples," in which Miss Minter is starred, and in "A Scrap of Pasteboard," with Miss Minter, both of which features are now in process of production in St. Augustine, Fla.

Thomas J. Carrigan.

Mr. Carrigan began his professional career when he was eighteen years old. He ran away from his home in Lapeer, Mich., and joined the Ringling Brothers' circus, playing a clown with that organization. He made his stage debut in "Brown of Harvard," and the following season joined James O'Neill, playing an important juvenile role in "The Count of Monte Cristo." After achieving remarkable success on the stage he was one of the first well-established actors to see the future of motion pictures. He was starred with Pearl White with the Power's Picture Company, and made the first two-reel features ever produced. These were "Ten Nights in a Barroom," and "The Two Orphans." He also appeared in the serial called "The Man in the Street," produced by the Selig Company.

Mr. Carrigan is the husband of Mabel Taliaferro, now a Metro star, and the story of their courtship and marriage reads like fiction. He had left the Selig forces and was in the west when he was called back and engaged to play the part of Prince Charming in the feature production, "Cinderella." Miss Taliaferro was engaged for the name part, and the couple met for the first time when they were called on the floor at the Selig studio for rehearsal. Their wedding soon followed, for Mr. Carrigan proved a Prince Charming in real life to Miss Taliaferro, and Cinderella's dream came true.

GUNBY BROS. HAVE NOT SOLD STUDIO.

Gunby Brothers, Inc., wish to correct an impression circulated throughout the trade papers that they have sold their studio and laboratories at Ridgefield Park, N. J. This property is not for sale, but the Charter Features Corporation has leased the Gunby studio for a term of years, in which they will continue making pictures of Abraham Lincoln, portrayed by Benjamin Chapin, and which they have been working on for quite some time, but this company has no connection with the Gunby Laboratories situated in the same building, and any other concern who claims to have rented, leased or bought this studio, or laboratories, is handling the truth in a very careless manner.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

STRIKING CHARACTERS IN BRET HARTE STORY.

As a character actor both on the legitimate stage and before the eye of the camera for motion picture work Hobart Bosworth needs no word of introduction. The accompanying illustrations, however, are self-explanatory and will doubtless prove interesting to those who name this actor among their favorites, for they show him in a role in which he has seldom been seen.

Gretchen Lederer as the Duchess in "Two Men of Sandy Bar."

As John Oakhurst, in Bret Harte's story, "Two Men of Sandy Bar," Bosworth has achieved a triumph of make-up as well as of action. He has been able to put into the role all of the lovable traits that Harte wrote into the lines of his story as he originally conceived it. He has softened the character of the gambler, and while maintaining the spirit of game-keeper he has been able to turn to the spectator the more human side of the man, the part that perhaps was buried too deeply, but which was there, nevertheless. He has been able to show us the good that underlies all of us, however bad we may appear at times. And if for no other reason than this "Two Men of Sandy Bar" promises to be one of the best-liked features of recent months.

Hobart Bosworth in "Two Men of Sandy Bar."

"THE GOLDEN CHANCE" (Lasky).

Although 3,000 miles away, Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid were the principal guests at a private advance showing and reception held this week in New York. The stars, who are making their first appearance under the management of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company as co-stars in "The Golden Chance," a Paramount release announced for Jan. 13, were in California, and the advance showing at which each was applauded was held at the Wurlitzer theater, in the building in New York where the Lasky executive offices are situated.

"The Golden Chance," written by Jeanie Macpherson, possesses many sensational features. Cecil B. DeMille directed the production. The story is one that essentially is suited to the motion picture form of narrative. It relates the experiences of a young woman of refinement who, after a few miserable years as the wife of an undesirable, suddenly by chance is thrown into contact with men and women of her own kind. A young millionaire falls in love with her, but she keeps her true identity under cover until confronted by her own husband, who is discovered burglarizing the house in which she is staying as a guest.

The dramatic climax of "The Golden Chance" comes with a fistic encounter between the young woman's husband and the youth who is infatuated with her. Both Miss Ridgely and Mr. Reid have been members of the Lasky stock company for some months. Their first appearance together was in the picturization of "The Chorus Lady." Their joint success in this production and their growing popularity among photoplay lovers were reasons for their climb into the list of screen stars.

"THE KING'S GAME" (Pathe).

"The King's Game," the five-part Pathe Gold Rooster release for Jan. 7, signalizes the return of Pearl White to the screen after a long vacation, which began last spring with the completion of "The Romance of Elaine." Admirers of Miss White, whose numbers are legion, will be glad to again see in a picture the heroine of so many Pathe serials.

"The King's Game" is adapted from George Brackett Seitz's original play which was the starring vehicle of James K. Hackett for two seasons. The cast is noteworthy, containing as it does besides Miss White, George Probert and Sheldon Lewis, both of them well known on the speaking stage and each of whom possesses marked talent. The picture is the production of Arnold Daly and was directed by Ashley Miller.

The story is a strongly dramatic one, dealing with Russian nihilists transplanted to America. How the young Russian nobleman (played by George Probert), Americanized by his upbringing in the United States, defeats the purposes of the enemies seeking his life and wins the hand of the daughter of the nihilist leader makes up a story full of dramatic moments and that vital quality known as "punch."

"THE OTHER GIRL" (Raver).

The motion picture adaptation of the famous Augustus Thomas stage success, "The Other Girl," which is being produced by the Raver Film Corporation, is nearing completion.

The subtle, clean and healthy humor of this author transferred on film by able directors and renowned players will give the film fans a delightful high-class type of comedy.

James J. Corbett as "Kid" Garvey has some delightful comical situations with Paul Gilmore, who plays the role of Reverend Bradford. These parts are deftly handled by these two players. The famous health builder, William Muldoon, is a prominent figure in the picture.

Edith Luckett and Becky Bruce convincingly portray the parts of Estelle Kittredge and Catherine Fulton. They lend to the roles a freshness and personality that is thoroughly enjoyable. Other principal roles are interpreted by Horace Vinton, Louis Thiel, Mortimer Martini, Rauland Ratcliffe, Harry Redding, Ten Eyck Clay, Mona Ryan, Frances Thompson, and Lizzie McCall.

In order to inject the proper realism into this picture some of the scenes were taken at the famous William Muldoon Health Farm at White Plains, N. Y., and several others at the Staten Island Military Training Academy. One especially noteworthy scene was taken in one of the busiest sections of New York City, 44th street and Broadway, where the lives of the players were endangered by the heavy traffic.

Scene from "The Other Girl" (Raver).

This thoroughly enjoyable stage comedy has been worked into a highly delightful photoplay with many added punches in the way of comedy that are possible only to the motion picture.

Vitagraph Releases for Week of January 1

Program for the New Year Opens with Several Strong Subjects.

AN exceptional program of releases is announced by the Vitagraph Company for the week beginning Jan. 3 of the new year. There are drama and comedy features that form a well-balanced and desirable booking for the exhibitors.

Scene from "When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor" (Vitagraph).

The new "Personally Picked Program" of a four-reeler and a one-reel of the comedy, released Monday, Jan. 3, consists of Scene from "Tried for His Own Murder" (Vitagraph).

"Who Killed Joe Merrion," featuring Joseph Kilgour, S. Rankin Drew and Rose E. Tapley, directed by Tefft Johnson; and a Scene from "His Wife Knew About It" (Vitagraph).

Wally Van comedy, "When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor," featuring the Vitagraph Comedy Four, Hughey Mack, Kate Price, William E. Shea and Flora Finch.

Also released on Monday, Jan. 3, is a one-reel comedy, "The Little Trespasser," directed by C. Jay Williams, and featuring Jewell Hunt and James Morrison. On Friday, Jan. 7, is a Sidney Drew comedy, by James Montgomery Flagg. The Saturday release is a Broadway Star Feature, "Tried for His Own Murder," produced by Van Dyke Brooke and featuring Maurice Costello and Leah Baird.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are seen in a one-reel comedy by James Montgomery Flagg, "His Wife Knew About It." In order to keep the cook with the family the husband takes her to the theater. His wife knows about it, but some friends of the husband try to keep the truth from her and protect the husband's reputation. The play is extremely humorous, and is portrayed by Mr. Drew and his wife in their usual capable manner.

A THRILL IN "THE UNWRITTEN LAW."

One of the big thrillers of "The Unwritten Law" is a fire scene in which Larry McCarthy (Andrew Robson) effects the rescue of Kate Wilson (Miss Michelena) and her four-year-old daughter (Baby Rix). The building is supposed to be a combination millinery store and dwelling.

That nothing should be amiss in realistic effect, a structure was especially built and furnished for the burning, the actors, including William Pike, sent inside, liberal quantities of kerosene poured about to insure undeniable flames and then the match applied. The director was not long in realizing that too much kerosene had been used and so called for quick action. Robson dashed through the millinery store and into the room to its rear. As he carried out Baby Rix the flames closed in behind him and when he turned to go to the rescue of Miss Michelena he faced a roaring inferno. Nothing daunted, however, he broke through the blaze and staggered back again with Miss Michelena in his arms. The clothes of both were in flames and Miss Michelena was seriously burned about her limbs and neck.

In spite of her own painful condition, however, she was first to remember that Pike had gone inside the building with them. In response to her entreaty Robson started again to enter the building, but its ceiling and forward walls were already falling in, one of the beams having but narrowly missed Miss Michelena's head as she was carried out. To again effect a rescue through the door was quite impossible.

Scene from "The Unwritten Law" (California).

Meantime, the San Rafael fire department had arrived. Their faces protected by smoke helmets, they began using their axes in furious earnest, and in this fashion cut their way to Pike, who had been overcome with the heat and smoke. The three sufferers were hurried to a nearby sanitarium and their burns successfully treated.

FIVE HUNDRED "EXTRAS" IN KLEINE PRODUCTION.

Even the spacious halls and dressing rooms of the big six-story Bronx studio were taxed to capacity recently when five hundred young men and women spread over the floor of the roof studio in the making of theater scenes in a big forthcoming Kleine production. A curious feature of the story was that it called for two distinct theater "sets," one a pretentious Broadway establishment and the other a modest, second-class theater in a small western town. In the opinion of the director there is an observable difference between a typical Broadway audience and the less conventional but more diversified types of the west, and this belief is ably reflected in the splendid detail of the scenes. It is a drama of theatrical life enlivered by touches of quaint humor in presenting the happy-go-lucky characters of a thespian boarding-house in New York.

The story features Arthur Hoops and Alma Hanlon, and is scheduled for release through the Kleine-Edison Feature Service in the near future.

More Triangle Features

Jane Grey, Lillian Gish and Orrin Johnson Will Be Starred in Three Powerful Works.

THREE notable novelties, soon to be produced by the Triangle Film Corporation, show the versatility of the scenario writers and the resources of the two big studios of Fine Arts and Kay-Bee. They are "Waifs," starring Jane Grey; "Daphne," starring Lillian Gish, and "The Price of Power", starring Orrin Johnson.

Miss Grey will be supported in "Waifs," a Triangle-Kay-Bee play by William Desmond, J. Frank Burke, Truly Shattuck and others of Thomas Ince's most sterling players. It is an extremely powerful story of how a disgraced theologue finds himself in the slums and is redeemed from the depths by the influence of a dance hall girl. The role of the dance hall piano player is taken by Miss Grey and is said to afford her even greater opportunities than she had in "Let Katy Do It," in which she appeared for the Fine Arts-Triangle. Mr. Desmond has the leading male role.

Scene from "Waifs" (Kay-Bee).

"Daphne," a new Fine Arts production starring Lillian Gish and Elliott Dexter in her support, is said to be a romantic drama with a "punch." So formless and tame are most cloak and sword dramas that such a novelty should prove a real revelation. The play begins with the persecution of "Daphne," a gamekeeper's daughter, by Philip de Mornay, the scion of a duke. Follow the kidnapping of the girl, her imprisonment in the demi-monde quarter of Paris, her sale as one of the colonists' brides then trafficked out to Louisiana, and adventures with pirates on the Atlantic. Through a complex of circumstances Philip de Mornay is taken aboard the brides' ship, a captive from a pirate vessel they have captured. Girl and man proceed to Louisiana to be sold to a colonist, and is about to be wedded to the creole when De Mornay appears. He has ceased to persecute her and she has learned to love him. So the nuptials are happily changed to the marriage of De Mornay and Daphne.

Scene from "Daphne" (Fine Arts).

D. W. Griffith thought so highly of this scenario by Granville Warwick that he has associated with Miss Gish and Mr. Dexter some of the very best Fine Arts stock players. Among them are Walter Long, who was Gus in "The Birth of a Nation" and Santa Ana in "Martyrs of the Alamo;" Howard Gaye, who played General Lee in "The Birth of a Nation;" Lucille Young, Richard Cummings and Jack Crosgrove. W. C. Cabanne is directing "Daphne."

Third in the present notable triangle is "The Price of Power," an industrial story of extraordinary force in which Orrin Johnson will be seen as a workman who fights his way up to the status of a cotton mill owner only to lose his sanity and under a changed personality become a striker against his own regime.

"The Price of Power" is descriptive of the terrible price John Belmont pays for having ground down his fellows in his rise to wealth. Associated with Mr. Johnson in the cast are Sam DeGrasse, Spottiswoode Aitken, Gladys Brockwell, Vera Lewis, Marguerite Marsh, F. J. McDonald, Clyde Hopkins and Daisy Robinson. Verisimilitude is lent to some of the big scenes by their staging in an actual cotton mill near Los Angeles.

"ROSE OF THE ALLEY" (Metro).

"Rose of the Alley," a five-part feature production in which little Mary Miles Minter is starred and Thomas J. Carrigan is featured, has just been finished at the Columbia Pictures Corporation studio, and will be released on the Metro program Jan. 17. "Rose of the Alley" is an original story of New York City's underworld that teems with thrills and moves at a rapid pace for five gripping acts. There is but one lapse of time in the entire production. It was written by Harry C. Hoyt, who recently joined the Metro forces.

All the exterior scenes, as well as some of the interiors, were made in New York City, giving a vivid picture of a phase of life in the metropolis which has figured prominently in the newspapers during the last few years. One of the characters in the feature is "Kid" Hogan, a former prize fighter, who plays the role himself. Before he went into motion pictures, Hogan was a successful ring general and fought with Abe Attell, Leach Cross, Joe Gans, Packy McFarland and other well known pugilists. D. W. Griffith saw him fight one night and the next day engaged him for a part in a Biograph feature. Mr. Griffith said he observed at once that Hogan was a natural actor and there was no mistaking that he was an unusual type for the role of a "tough." Hogan is regularly employed in the Rolfe-Metro studio as chief property man, and he is called whenever roles are found that fit him.

Scene from "Rose of the Alley" (Metro).

One of the big and interesting scenes in "Rose of the Alley" is a gang fight in a dance hall. This picture was made in a famous dance hall, and a thrilling exterior scene shows a number of the gangmen leaping from the second story to the pavement. Another shows a remarkable leap of a man from the fourth story of an apartment house. There is a strong supporting cast and more than three hundred people are seen in one scene.

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE RAGAMUFFIN."

In a role that is entirely different from anything she heretofore has done on the screen, Blanche Sweet will be seen as the star in a new Lasky Feature Play Company's production entitled "The Ragamuffin," released through Paramount Pictures Corporation, on January 17th. William C. DeMille is the author of the photoplay and its producer as well.

Miss Sweet's peculiar charm and beauty in this production are made more piquant by reason of the character of her role in the early scenes when she appears as a "ragamuffin"—a mite of a girl whom opportunity overlooked and who is a victim of a crushing and demoralizing environment. Then follows the regeneration, dramatically made possible by a series of subtle changes.

"The Ragamuffin" will be Miss Sweet's first photoplay following her re-engagement for a long period by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company.

"THE DEVIL-IN-CHIEF" (Selig).

"The Devil-in-Chief," a Selig feature drama, released through General Film service on Monday, January 10th, is another of the superior productions now being released regularly under the Diamond S trademark. "The Devil-in-Chief" is an unusual multiple reel production in every respect. The principal character role is taken by Tyrone Power, the distinguished American actor, and he is ably supported by a cast of Selig all-star players, which include Wheeler Oakman, Eugenie Besserer and Edith Johnson.

Scene from "The Devil-in-Chief" (Selig).

In this production, which abounds in beautiful scenic exteriors and clear-cut photography, Mr. Power is given every opportunity to prove his great art as an actor. In the role of an anarchist betrayed by a woman, and who has sworn to revenge himself on the feminine sex in general, Mr. Power arises to artistic heights rarely if ever seen. How in the end his soul is conquered by love when it is too late, and when he realizes the futility of evil passion, is a very strong climax to a noteworthy offering.

Preliminary scenes enacted by Mr. Power and Miss Besserer, two of the most accomplished artists in the line of work, will prove a revelation for tense atmosphere. Mr. Power and Edith Johnson also perform in a succession of tense situations which will carry the spectators almost breathless to the conclusion.

"THE OTHER SIDE OF THE DOOR" (American).

One of California's most historic structures has a place of prominence in "The Other Side of the Door," a five-reel American production to be released January 6th as the first of the American Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe Edition. The building now is the city hall of Monterey, but in decades long since passed, it was known as Colton house.

Scene from "The Other Side of the Door" (American).

It was erected when Monterey was the capital of California, then a state of Mexico. When the American fleet first appeared off the old capital a force of bluejackets was sent ashore to maintain the dignity of the United States and to preserve order in the city. In charge of the bluejackets was Chaplain Colton, a warlike parson, whose first act was to raid the big gambling house that then flourishing in the building. More than $50,000 in gold and thousands of dollars in precious jewels were confiscated. From the old parson the building took its name of Colton house, by which appellation it still is known to the old, old residents of picturesque Monterey.

"THE NE'ER-DO-WELL" DOES WELL.

According to a telegram received Tuesday, Dec. 21, by William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, "The Ne'er-Do-Well," the spectacular production in nine reels opened the evening of Dec. 20 in Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, Cal., and the "S. R. O." sign was shown early. The word "great" is used in commenting upon the production. "The Ne'er-Do-Well" was written by Rex Beach and produced by Colin Campbell. Beach also wrote "The Spoilers," that other great Selig production, and "The Spoilers" was produced by Campbell. Scenes in "The Ne'er-Do-Well" were filmed in Panama, where Mr. Selig escorted a special company to the Panama Canal Zone. "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is considered a worthy successor to "The Spoilers," and Miss Kathlyn Williams and the others who contributed to the success of "The Spoilers" enact leading roles in "The Ne'er-Do-Well."

"BROUGHT HOME" (Essanay).

This photoplay contains a pretty sentiment that tugs strongly at the heart strings. The child scenes at the orphanage are especially delightful. There is much of pleasing humor in them, but they all border on pathos and many situations bring the tears to the eyes. It is the story of a rich bachelor who goes to the dogs because a woman refuses him, but is awakened to his responsibilities in life when he runs over a little orphan girl in one of his mad escapades in an auto. He puts her in a private school when she recovers. During his visits to the orphanage while she is ill he is taken with a little orphan boy, takes him out west on a ranch where they grow up together. Then comes the reunion after the children have grown up, and a touching love scene is enacted, the girl having fallen in love with the man who had visited her so often in the hospital. The scenes in the orphanage with the children playing their games, nursing their pets and trying to get some happiness out of a cheerless existence, strike straight to the heart. Richard C. Travers and Ruth Stonehouse play the leads, Miss Stonehouse enacting the parts both of the orphan girl and the woman grown.

Scene from "Brought Home" (Essanay).

EXHIBITORS' "VIM" DIARY.

Vim Films Corporation, producers of the popular "Vim" comedies, are distributing gratis to exhibitors and patrons of Vim Comedies a unique book of 192 pages which will be a big help to the exhibitors as a ready reference diary for past and future bookings. It will also enable him to keep a tab on his opposition, as well as a record of his own day and night receipts—including the daily weather conditions. Should there be any exhibitor overlooked, his demands will be supplied at the offices of the Vim Films Corporation, 326 Lexington avenue, New York City.

IMPERIAL EXCHANGE SUES GENERAL FILM.

Suit has been commenced in the United States District Court by the Imperial Film Exchange against the General Film Company and others for $750,000 damages alleged to have been caused by the defendants by unlawfully interfering with the business of the plaintiff company. The actual damage claimed is $250,000, but triple damages are claimed under the statute.

"CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS" (M-in-A).

MinA scores another big laughable hit with the release of Jan. 6, 1916, "Caught With the Goods." This picture is especially adapted for all married men whose vocation necessitates their journeying on railroad trains, especially the class who find it impossible to make their eyes and feet behave when they see a pretty girl across the aisle who (like themselves) has naughty eyes and naughty feet. In this case a married man's left bower, his mother-in-law, catches him with the goods.

KNICKERBOCKER BACK ON PROGRAM.

Under a special arrangement with the General Film Company Knickerbocker star features have once more become a part of the General Film program, replacing the three-reel Edison Friday release. The first release of Dec. 24, entitled "Every Girl," was followed on Dec. 31 with "The Mysterious Bride," both of these splendid features having Miss Claire Whitney in the leading role. The future Knickerbocker star features will consist of star plots, star casts and star photography.

NOTES OF THE TRADE

BLANCHE SWEET is at work on another photoplay in the Lasky studios. It is being directed by William C. DeMille.

* * *

Robert T. Haines has completed his work in "The Secret Agent," an Arthur Stringer photodrama, filmed at Jacksonville, Fla., by the Gaumont company for release on the Mutual program. Mr. Haines has returned to New York.

* * *

Under the direction of Lloyd Carleton, who has now joined the ranks of Universal producers, Hobart Bosworth is at work on the production of a five reel filmization of Bret Harte's play, "Two Men of Sandy Bar," and in it Bosworth plays the role of Oakhurst, a character well known to the lovers of Bret Harte's works.

* * *

Miss Stella Hammerstein is now at work at Jacksonville in a Gaumont production called "The Ace of Death." This thrilling photodrama is from the pen of O. A. Nelson and is being directed by William F. Haddock. Part of the play is located in a Central American city and "Silent Bill" Haddock has been fortunate in selecting locations about Jacksonville which accurately reproduce the tropical atmosphere.

* * *

Besides the Annette Kellermann picture, two other productions are being made in Jamaica for William Fox, and these are now nearly completed. They are "Terese Rapuin," from the celebrated French play and novel, and "The Ruling Passion," which has an Oriental coloring.

* * *

The old garage where the Lasky company studio offices have held sway since the organization of the company, is to be remodeled and made into private offices for the heads of the various studio departments.

* * *

Marshall Neilan was in Chicago Monday, Dec. 20, the guest of William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company. Mr. Neilan was en route from New York City to the Pacific Coast, where he will again direct Selig productions at the Los Angeles studios. Several important plays have been handed to Mr. Neilan, who will start production just as soon as he arrives at Los Angeles.

* * *

Charlotte Walker, who has appeared in two Lasky productions on the Paramount program—"Kindling" and "Out of Darkness"—will be the star in the picturization of "The Trail of the Lonsome Pine," in which she starred for several seasons on the legitimate stage. The motion picture rights to the play were obtained from Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger by Samuel Goldfish, executive head of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company. Miss Walker was leading woman this season with E. H. Sothern in a brilliant New York engagement. She has left for a protracted stay at the Lasky studios at Hollywood, Cal.

* * *

Edward Jose, who is producing Kipling's "Light That Failed" for Pathe, expects shortly to take a large company south to finish the Sahara desert scenes required by the scenario. Mr. Jose filmed some of them on an island off Bridgeport, Conn., but the balance must be taken in more tropical surroundings.

* * *

Bessie Eyton is to appear as a Salvation Army lassie in "The Three Wise Men," a Selig feature now in course of production by Colin Campbell.

"One of the Least of These" is the title of the child-labor play by Ashley Miller, in which his wife, Ethel Browning, will star next Spring, and the film version of which he is now working upon for simultaneous production on Broadway. For this dual work Mr. Miller has refused two offers to direct feature films, one in the south and another in the west, on the completion of "The King's Game" for the Pathe Gold Rooster brand, which is about to be released.

* * *

In "No Greater Love," the Selig Red Seal play, to be released through V-L-S-E, Inc., on Jan. 10 Miss Regina Badet, the emotional actress who assumes the role of "Sadunah, the Dancer," wears a large number of beautiful gowns of Parisian make. In the climax of this wonderful production, Miss Badet sacrifices a gown worth hundreds of dollars when she plunges over a precipice into the water below.

* * *

One of the best ideas Edwin Middleton ever had was to allow Miss Cissy Fitzgerald to "play herself." Mr. Middleton directs Casino Star Comedies, and in a number of these Miss Fitzgerald has appeared as the star. At the Flushing studios of the Gaumont Company Director Middleton is now putting his good-natured star through some society comicalities which will be called "Leave It To Cissy." The manuscript was penned expressly for her by Joseph H. Trant. The author has seen to it that Miss Fitzgerald's wink is scheduled for a prominent place in the production. It will be released on Jan. 2.

* * *

Mary Pickford is one of the happiest little girls in filmdom. She is enjoying the marvelous freedom of movement which comes with playing the leading character in "The Foundling." After nearly breaking her neck in Japanese sandals while playing in "Madame Butterfly," the Famous Players' star is reveling in the luxury of bare feet. "No more funny little ceremonies—I just romp around like a kiddie and have the time of my life," declares Miss Mary.

* * *

Bess Meredyth of Balboa's scenario staff is exceptionally well equipped for her work. After years of experience on the stage in stock, she went into pictures and relearned the art of acting from the camera's standpoint. Possessed of a lively imagination, she was attracted to the authorship end of the game. Hence, she writes from actual studio experience.

* * *

Kalem's Jacksonville, Fla., studio is being overhauled and there are rumors that a company will soon be sent there for the winter.

* * *

Miss Marguerite Courtot left for the Gaumont winter studios at Jacksonville, Fla., Christmas day. The first Gaumont feature in which she will appear as a star, a Mutual Masterpicture, Edition de Luxe, will be released in February.

* * *

In "The Uncut Diamonds," a Selig one-reel photoplay just completed by the Selig Company, Miss Fritzi Brunette, for the first time since her advent in pictures five years ago, donned the costume of a lady's maid.

* * *

Fannie Ward, whose acting in the Lasky production, "The Cheat," has created a sensation in Paramount theaters, has begun work at the Lasky studios on her third production. Miss Ward is among the most popular stars of the screen and she is under contract for a term of years to the Lasky Company.

* * *

The first Mutual Masterpicture, Edition de Luxe, made for the Mutual program by the Gaumont Company, will be released Jan. 24. This big feature, called "As a Woman Sows," will have Miss Gertrude Robinson and Alexander Gaden in the leading roles.

* * *

"Their Quiet Honeymoon" is a title which might sound less like gentle irony if it were the name of a story being produced by anyone but Al E. Christie. Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons and Betty Compson, the new Nestor leading lady, appear in the leading roles. The story will be told in one reel.

* * *

"A Tangle in Hearts," which was originally scheduled for release early in November, was changed on the Mutual program in order to allow two Harry Vokes comedies, "Beauty in Distress" and "A House Party," to take precedence. This Casino Star Comedy, "A Tangle in Hearts," which features John Daly Murphy, was released Dec. 5.

* * *

A view of one of New York's beauty spots, Central Park, will figure conspicuously in the Vitagraph screen story, "Mrs. Dane's Danger," being produced by Wilfrid North, with Lillian Walker appearing in the principal role. The scenes were filmed from the roof of the Hotel Majestic and show a panoramic view of Central Park at its most interesting section.

* * *

Alfred Vosburgh, who plays juvenile leads opposite Miss Vivian Rich in "Flying A" dramas, has practically completed the script of a spectacular two reel subject in which he and Miss Rich will take the leading roles.

The Mutual Traveler, the anonymous beauty who appears in all releases of "See America First," the weekly scenic reel made by Gaumont, has left Chicago for a visit to Duluth.

* * *

"Love Among Thieves" is a Selig feature play that has been put in production at the Pacific Coast studios of the Selig Company. The story was written by Grace McGowan Cooke.

* * *

"Life's Whirlpool," the new World Film feature with Holbrook Blinn starring, ranges in scenic variety from a San Francisco dive to the heights of the Rockies and the Alkaline wastes of Death Valley.

* * *

Joseph W. Smiley, chief director for the Ocean Film, will establish for it in the near future a children's stock company similar to the one he organized for Lubin. In that company the oldest actor was six years of age, the leading man was four, the leading lady five and the heavy man three and a half. Smiley got great work out of the tots by talking to them like grownups and putting them on honor as members of the profession with pride in their work.

* * *

E. Phillips Oppenheim wrote "Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo" before the present great war began in Europe. The Lasky Company recently completed its picturization with Theodore Roberts as the star. Its story tells of negotiations between the different warring countries leading up to the breaking point of diplomacy.

* * *

Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid will appear as co-stars in "The Golden Chance," a Lasky feature just completed and to be released in January on the Paramount program.

* * *

The summer home of George Sullivan, one of Milwaukee's wealthiest citizens, was used in Essanay's five-act feature, "The Misleading Lady." The home is located at Fox Point, a short distance from Milwaukee, and in architecture the style of an enormous log cabin is closely followed. The structure alone cost $25,000.

* * *

Jack Pickford has been cast as a struggling young playwright in the Selig three-reel Special, "It Can Be Done."

* * *

"Real manuscripts, from real authors, at real prices" is the slogan with which Maurice Tourneur, vice-president and general manager of the new Paragon Films, Inc., will start the new year for that company. He says he has had enough of the ordinary "scenario writer" situations and all of the so-called "unusual" ones from that source. What he earnestly seeks now, and what he is willing to pay well for, are original stories, written directly for the screen by literary geniuses.

* * *

The very title of the photoplay in which Hal Forde is starred in a Rialto Star Feature, "Lessons in Love," is sufficient to pique interest. Yet reports of exhibitors specify that those who come only out of curiosity are well repaid by the interest developed by this pretty light comedy. In this multiple-reel feature Miss Lucille Taft plays opposite Mr. Forde.

* * *

Director Colin Campbell has begun production of "The Three Wise Men," a symbolical story in three reels to be released in the near future. Thomas Santschi and Bessie Eyton are playing the principal roles supported by Marion Warner, Harry Lonsdale and others.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

CHICAGO, ILL.—Paul F. Olsen, 127 North Dearborn street, is preparing plans for a two-story theater, store and apartment building, to cost $100,000.

Gadsden, Ala.—V. Bacon and others will erect a modern moving picture theater.

Lincoln, Ill.—E. Jones has erected a new moving picture theater here, with seating capacity of 400.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Apollo theater, at the corner of South East and McCarty streets, has been purchased by E. W. Howard. The house was formerly conducted by E. M. Houser.

Topeka, Kan.—A new moving picture theater is being erected at 508 Kansas avenue by C. A. McGuigan. It will have seating capacity for about 600 persons.

Hellier, Ky.—J. M. Pickell & Son have opened a new moving picture house here. It has been named the Rex and has seating capacity of 250.

Louisville Ky.—Joseph & Joseph have prepared plans for a moving picture theater to be erected at Second and A streets, with seating capacity of 750.

Webbville, Ky.—A new moving picture theater has been opened by H. H. Keinner.

Baltimore, Md.—S. Raith plans to erect a one-story brick and concrete moving picture theater, 22 by 120 feet, at 2804 Pennsylvania avenue; will have wood-covered floor, steam heat, electric lighting; seating capacity 400; cost, about $6,000.

South Boston, Mass.—Mt. Washington Theatre company, care M. S. Williams, 6 Beacon street, Boston, plans to erect a two-story theater and office building, 98 by 150 feet, to cost $100,000.

Albert Lea, Minn.—F. E. Wheeler and R. D. Tomlinson have purchased the Royal theater.

Buhl, Minn.—The seating capacity of the Crescent theater nas been increased.

Wabasso, Minn.—A new addition has been built to the Princess theater.

Cape Girardeau, Mo.—M. E. Worcester, 310 H. H. building, is preparing plans for a one and two story picture theater, 35 by 164 feet, to cost $10,000.

Omaha, Neb.—Extensive improvements are to be made to the Strand theater.

Jersey City, N. J.—Harry J. Max, 9 Orient place, plans to erect a fireproof moving picture theater and store building, to cost $20,000.

Trenton, N. J.—The new Market Street theater, located at the corner of Market and Union streets, has been opened to the public.

Buffalo, Okla.—The Pastime is the name of a new moving picture theater opened here by Bonheur Bros.

Indiana, Pa.—Godfrey Marshall plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, to cost $25,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Manheim Amusement company has disposed of its interest in a theater, a one-story building and a three-story dwelling, at 5123-25 Germantown avenue, to John Courduff for a nominal consideration, subject to a mortgage of $14,000. The properties are assessed at $25,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Empire theater, formerly the Park, located at the northeast corner or Broad street and Fairmount avenue, was purchased at public auction by W. L. Nevin for $130,000, of which $100,000 remains on mortgage. The property consists of a large theater building on a lot 91.7 feet on Broad street, 130.3 feet on Fairmount avenue and 52.11 feet on Olive street. It is assessed at $150,000.

Hopewell, Va.—Village Amusement Company organized with $50,000 capital stock. J. M. Luke, cashier Virginia State bank, president; L. G. Humphries, City Point, Va., vice-president; Paul Barringer, secretary-treasurer. Will erect moving picture theater to seat 650 persons.

Colfax, Wash.—Edward Kratzer has opened a new moving picture theater.

Elkins, W. Va.—Work is being pushed to completion on the new moving picture theater, the Hippodrome, for R. H. Talbott. The house will have seating capacity of about 1,200, and cost approximately $30,000.

Bloomer, Wis.—William Prince has disposed of his interest in the old Andrews Opera house to Frank and Herman Schlenk.

This is the Man who rose from nothing, became world's champion, fell in love with a society bud, then eloped by mistake with

"The Other Girl"

SIMPSON SOLAR SCREEN

SEAMLESS SEAMLESS

THE PERFECT PROJECTION SURFACE

Write for booklet and full particulars

ALFRED L. SIMPSON

113 West 132nd Street, N. Y. City

Patented June, 1908

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

Doings in Maine

Bangor Exhibitors Will Miss General Film Branch Manager Ehrgott Who Goes to the New Haven Office—G. H. Newhall Will Succeed Him—A Hamilton Exhibitor Injured—Mutual Office Moves to Bangor—Other Items.

By J. P. Flanagan, Maine Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

A. L. EHRGOTT LEAVES BANGOR.

BANGOR, ME.—Maine exhibitors are sorry to lose their good friend A. L. Ehrgott, manager of the Bangor General Film branch, who has been transferred to the exchange of the same company at New Haven, Conn., and has left for that city. Mr. Ehrgott is one of the most popular film men who have ever struck the good old state of Maine, and during his acquaintance of near three years with the exhibitors and other film men it is hard to part with him. And Mr. Ehrgott says it's like leaving home. Both he and Mrs. Ehrgott have made a great many friends while in Bangor, for they are both charming people, whom it is a pleasure to know.

Mr. Ehrgott has been with the General for four years, having started in at the West 23d street branch of that company in New York City, and after a year and a half there he was sent to Bangor. He has had the pleasure of seeing the business grow most encouragingly, and it is well known that he has most emphatically made good.

To succeed Mr. Ehrgott, George H. Newhall of Lynn, Mass., has been appointed. Mr. Newhall is no stranger in Bangor, having been an assistant to Mr. Ehrgott at this office for five months during 1913. He has been connected with the Boston office of the company for the past five years. He is well known among the exhibitors in this section of the state and will be given the glad hand wherever he goes. For the next few weeks he will be engaged in calling on the trade most of the time, renewing old acquaintances and making new ones.

MANAGER W. T. FRENCH HURT.

Friends of Mr. W. T. French, proprietor and manager of the Dream and Heywood theaters at Houlton, Me., will be pained to learn that he is at the present writing confined to the hospital, suffering from a broken leg. His many friends join in wishing a speedy recovery. During Mr. French's enforced absence, his assistant manager, Mr. W. C. Benson, is very ably directing the destinies of both houses.

The Dream is playing Paramount features and Mutual program and doing good business. The Heywood is playing road attractions and special productions. Among the coming attractions at the Heywood are "The Birth of a Nation" and Tinker's novelty dance orchestra.

PARAMOUNT ENTERTAINS.

Eastern Maine exhibitors were the guests of the Paramount corporation at a gathering in the Bangor House last Thursday night, the first of its kind ever held in this section of the state. After a fine supper they were addressed by George K. Robinson, publicity man from the Paramount offices.

The purpose of the meeting was to bring the exhibitors into closer touch with the producer, giving them an insight into how pictures are made, how service is rendered and other matters. Suggestions helpful to the exhibitors were offered and the occasion furnished the film men an opportunity to become better acquainted with each other and to discuss phases of the business of value to each. N. Ross, Maine representative of Paramount pictures, assisted in the arrangements for the meeting.

MUTUAL COMING TO BANGOR.

William C. Green, of Portland, Me., manager of the Mutual, tells the Moving Picture World correspondent that the Mutual headquarters in Portland will be moved to Bangor in the spring, and it is probable that the office will be located in the Exchange building. Bangor is more centrally located than Portland. This will make the fourth film exchange in Bangor, the General, Universal and United now being represented here. Bangor is thus the leading film distributing city in the Pine Tree state.

Bangor Maine's Film Center.

Bangor, Maine, is rapidly becoming the leading film distributing center in the state of Maine. Already there are three film exchanges here, the General, United and Universal branches, and it is reported that another company is to locate here in the spring. Bangor is near the geographical center of the state, which makes it a good shipping point for quick express delivery, it has good railroad connections and from here, exchange men and representatives can leave for any part of the state and find the distance comparatively short. All we need now is a moving picture producing company and perhaps that will come in the not too distant future.

NEW FOX REPRESENTATIVE.

N. Shapiro has been appointed to succeeds Mitchell Granby as the representative of the Fox Film in the state of Maine. Mr. Shapiro, after a trip through the state, reports business as fine.

W. M. WHITE TO HEAD UNITED.

William M. White has been appointed Maine manager for the United Film Company, with headquarters at Bangor, succeeding E. B. Tinker. Mr. White began his theatrical career at Tony Pastor's New York, longer ago than you would think for such a young man. He opened one of the first motion picture theaters in America in a small store at Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, opposite Hammerstein's, in 1903, and since then has been connected with many theatrical houses in Lawrence and Lowell, Mass. Later he was on the road for the Universal Film company.

The Star theater, Fairfield, and Union hall, Searport, have taken on Universal service.

Manager Pray Got His Crowds.

Manager James Pray of the Silver theater, Waterville, Me., started the serial, "Neal of the Navy," off in great style at his house recently. He hired a brass band, had a parade, with concerts, and by this means succeeded in getting big crowds, all of whom promise to keep right on coming.

Theater's Name Pleases Farmington.

The Farmington, Me., Chronicle, a newspaper published in the home town of the late Madame Nordica, expresses the appreciation of Farmington people for the action of Manager Fred E. Mortimer of Freeport in naming his splendid new theater the Nordica. The Chronicle says, "The people of Farmington, Madame Nordica's old home town, will certainly appreciate this tribute to her memory and surely Freeport people have shown a sense of propriety that is commendable and worthy of imitation in Maine or anywhere the wide world round. The Nordica is built by a man who has had 46 years' experience in the show business, Fred E. Mortimer, manager of the new theater."

Fire in Belfast House.

The Universal theater, at Belfast, Henry Maddocks, proprietor, was badly gutted by fire recently. The fire started in the basement near the furnace. Only the moving picture machine and films were saved. Because of the furnace being under the theater proper, the Belfast city clerk has refused to grant Mr. Maddocks a license to conduct his theater for the present. Universal films are now being shown in the Opera House.

Pine Tree Notes.

The Bijou theater, Bangor, is now using Universal service.

Manager A. L. Ehrgott, just leaving the Bangor office of the General Film company for New Haven, Conn., was presented with a handsome desk watch by the Bangor employees of the company, testifying to the esteem in which he is held by the people who have worked under him in Bangor.

F. F. McLaughlin has opened a moving picture house at Wytopitlock, showing one night a week.

Edward Dore has opened G. A. R. hall, Bucksport, with a moving picture show running two nights a week.

NEW YORK SUNDAY SHOW NOTES

A Glimpse at Progress in New York State.

By Billy Bison, Buffalo Correspondent (229 Oxford ave.) of Moving Picture World

BUFFALO, N. Y.—In looking over reports on Sabbath shows in New York State we find it stated that District Attorney Stowell of Steuben County, N. Y., has been trying to prevent Sunday shows in the moving picture theaters of Corning, N. Y.

On the question of Sunday shows in Auburn, N. Y., theater managers contend that there is a demand for amusements Sunday afternoons and evenings and that entertainments presented at that time do not interfere with church attendance. They declare that it is no worse for the masses to go to picture houses on Sunday than it is for "the classes" to motor on Sunday, or play golf or do various other things.

A report from Schenectady, N. Y., says that the six charitable institutions of that city which were each given $700 last Christmas by Mayor J. Teller Schoolcraft, of Schenectady, as their equal share of the monies received from moving picture houses during the year for operation on Sundays, will not receive so large a sum this year.

Lockport Exhibitor Asked to Give Children's Matinee.

Henry F. Thurston, proprietor of the Temple theater, Lockport, N. Y., has been asked by the Mothers' club, Parents', Teachers' association and school teachers of the city to provide a picture show Saturday afternoon of each week for the entertainment of the city's school children. Superintendent of Schools, Emmet Belknap, of Lockport, has approved the idea.

Sabbath Show at Elmira's Colonial.

Moving pictures and sermons featured on a recent Sunday night at the Colonial theater, Elmira, under the auspices of the Park church and its pastor, the Rev. S. E. Eastman and the Rev. Albert E. Cornwell of that city. Mr. Cornwell was the speaker. He said that he had been wondering why people will go to a theater on Sunday evening when they will not go to a church. He said he had concluded that it is because the service in the theater is more democratic. One can go there without getting into somebody's else's pew, and without dressing up, and they are sure of a welcome.

Films Aid Sunday Night Services.

Moving pictures are being featured at a series of Sunday night services in the parish house of Trinity Episcopal church, Buffalo, pictures are used as a means of religious education. Films illustrating stories from the natural sciences are thrown on the screen. There is hymn singing and a brief talk to drive home some lesson brought out in the pictures.

It is rumored that a moving picture theater may be built at the rear of the Alhambra hotel, Ithaca, N. Y.

A man who recently annoyed a girl in the Lyndhurst moving picture theater, Rochester, was fined $90.

Manager Michaels of the Academy theater, Buffalo, recently stationed men in the uniforms of German soldiers at the front of his house. A machine gun of the latest type was also shown. The purpose was to advertise the moving pictures, "The German Side of the War."

NEW YORK MIDSTATE LETTER.

By E. O. Weinberg, Troy Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Cohoes Opera House Items.

COHOES, N. Y.—On Friday, Dec. 10, the manager of the Cohoes Opera house, Mr. D. Core, gave a private showing of "Damaged Goods" to forty representative citizens, included among whom were several ministers and city officials.

Cohoes Opera house starts Triangle service Monday, Dec. 20.

Pathe Office in Albany.

Mr. Fred Flarity, manager of Pathe Syracuse office, has been in Albany several times looking for a location to open a large branch for Pathe.

Troy Items.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" is playing a return engagement in Troy and Albany at Proctor's theaters. The return engagement is for six days in each instance.

Mr. Frank Barhydt has taken over the Glen theater, Troy, N. Y., and he intends soon to open Bolton Hall as an ice skating rink.

It is rumored that Mr. H. Hellman is about to open another picture theater.

Several scenes in "Inspiration" were ordered cut by the chief of police in Albany, N. Y., when recently put on by the Clinton Square theater.

Pathe is busy screening and booking "The Red Circle," although many houses seem to fight shy on serials.

Subpoenas in New Jersey

In Jersey City, Moving Picture Interests' Association Continues Its Fight Against Ridiculous Blue Laws—Many Summons Sworn Out Against Those Who Did Business on Sabbath—Film Men Also Arrested.

By Jacob J. Kalter, Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—The Moving Picture Interests' Association, of this city, continuing its campaign to arouse public sentiment against the observance of the old "New Jersey blue laws," caused Clerk Markley, of the First Criminal Court, to swear out no less than 139 subpoenas against as many alleged violators of the vice and immorality act who did business Sunday, Dec. 12. By request of Counsellor Fred C. Henn the subpoenaed ones will not be called until after the holiday season.

Only two moving picture managers opened their houses and were promptly arrested. Harry Schlesinger, manager of the Orpheum theater, at the Five Corners, and his operator, John Fels, were arrested and bailed out by August Kost. The other place opened was the Nickelette, at 131 Brunswick street, under the management of Louis Calitri. Mr. Calitri, together with his operator, Aaron Lowenthal, was also arrested.

At Long Branch an all night continuous prayer for divine aid in the fight to close the picture shows on Sundays was held in the First Baptist Church, under the leadership of Rev. Charles F. McKoy. Picture shows have been held every Sunday evening since last June.

EXIT NOTICES.

The Fire Board of Newark adopted the suggestion of Commissioner Hubert F. Hahn that managers of theaters be asked to insert in a conspicuous place in the regular program the following notice:

IMPORTANT!

Pick out the exit nearest to your seat now. In case of emergency walk to this exit; do not run.

MUTUAL HAS GOOD BUSINESS.

To the representative of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Manager Lynn S. Card, of the Newark branch of the Mutual exchange, made the following statement Wednesday: "We have done more business during the week ending Dec. 18, than during any other week since we have been established at our new office, 25 Branford place. Furthermore, we expect a continuation of this excellent condition for several more weeks to come."

Frank L. Doyle, who covers Hudson County as roadman for the Mutual exchange, reports good bookings for Mutual's latest serial, "The Girl and the Game."

ROYAL SECURES ALCO RIGHTS.

Leo Singer, manager of the Royal exchange, at 288 Market street, has secured the exclusive New Jersey rights to the productions of the Alco Features. The contract whereby Singer obtains the sole agency of this state goes into effect Jan. 1.

PATHE'S COLORED PICTURE.

Manager Albert Reinlieb, of the Pathe branch, told the WORLD correspondent last week that the "Beloved Vagabond," Pathe's wonderful picture in colors, will be shown at the Paramount theater, Broad and Hill streets, Newark, beginning Dec. 27. Mr. Reinlieb invites the exhibitors of New Jersey to view the picture while it is shown here.

NEW CRAWFORD THEATER

The Crawford theater, Broad and Orange streets, Newark, filed articles of incorporation Wednesday at the office of the county clerk. The capital stock is $100,000, and the purpose given is to operate a moving picture theater. John G. Crawford is mentioned as registered agent. The Crawford theater was erected several months ago and has been operated as a motion picture place since its erection.

OPERATORS' BALL SOON.

Newark Local, 244, I. A. T. S. E., composed of moving picture operators, will hold its second annual ball at Kreuger's Auditorium, on Feb. 4. It is expected that many notables will attend. Last year's affair was a decided success, and it is confidently predicted by those in charge that this coming affair will greatly surpass its predecessor.

PARK PLACE SHOWS PICTURES.

Beginning Christmas the showhouse on Park place used for several years by F. F. Proctor, and quite recently by the Forsberg stock company, will revert to the Proctor interests, and pictures of the war will be the initial attraction. The pictures entitled "Germany on the Firing Line" are the authorized German staff pictures.

NEW JERSEY CITY THEATER.

The National Theater company has filed a contract at the office of County Clerk John J. McGovern, in Jersey City, for the erection of a new theater at a cost approximating $55,000. The theater will be located on Central avenue and it will extend through to Bleecker street.

WURLITZER NEWARK OFFICE.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer company, manufacturers of theater orchestras, have appointed Edwin A. Rambonnet Newark district manager. Mr. Rambonnet was formerly manager of the Somerville theater, Somerville, N. J., and also at one time managed the Fox theater and Loew theater, both of New York. Mr. Rambonnet has been exceedingly successful in the short time that he has been here. He informed the Newark correspondent of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD that within two weeks he had installed theater organs at the Park theater, 191 Bloomfield avenue; Walnut theater, 214-216 Walnut street, and the Victoria theater, all in Newark.

Court Announces Contracts.

Manager Myers, who has recently acquired the Court theater, Market and High streets, Newark, announced that although the policy of the house will be not to bind itself to any one producer, the contracts for features have been closed with the V-L-S-E, and with the Pathe exchange. Mr. Myers also contemplates contracts with the larger producing companies.

Changes to Pictures.

The Bon Ton theater, Newark avenue, Jersey City, under the management of Edward Cadugan, has discontinued vaudeville and in the future will be devoted to high class film productions.

More War Pictures.

The German battlefield pictures taken by Edwin F. Weigle, staff photographer of the Chicago Tribune, were presented at the Newark theater last week to large audiences. One-half the proceeds was donated to the Blind and Crippled Soldiers' Fund. Altogether Newark has been treated to some excellent war films.

Manager Myers, of the Court theater, Market and High streets, Newark, announces that he will be the first exhibitor in Newark to show the new Universal serial "Graft," which started in his theater Thursday, Dec. 16.

Theaters in Reading, Pa.

City Has Twenty Picture Theaters of Which It May Well Be Proud—Fine Organs, Good Music and the Best of Films—Inspectors Find Sanitary Conditions Excellent—List of Houses.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

READING, PA., boasts of having twenty motion picture theaters scattered throughout its confines. These theaters are of the most modern type, are equipped with the latest paraphernalia for the presentation of the pictures. A large percentage of these establishments are equipped with mammoth organs which, with various musical attachments, tend to make the exhibition realistic to an extreme. Many lovers of good music are patrons of the moving picture theaters.

The theaters are subject to inspection by the city health authorities and it is pleasing to note that the sanitary conditions and the ventilation systems are numbered among the best in the country. The majority of playhouses are managed by experienced moving picture exhibitors and this fact alone has caused the business to become one of Reading's foremost enterprises. Following is a list of the moving picture theaters, their location and those in charge:

Cosy, 724 Mulberry street, C. L. Snyder.
Empire, 739 Penn street, Carr & Schad.
Family, 831 Walnut street, A. Miller.
Gem, Tenth and Spring streets, Julius G. Hansen.
Laurel, 640 Laurel street, Mrs. H. A. Ernst.
Lyric, 810 Penn street, Frank D. Hill.
Majestic, 108 Oley street, George W. Bennethum.
Palace, 734 Penn street, Cornelius G. Keeney.
Penn, Penn avenue, West Reading, G. N. Reiff.
Pictureland, 645 Penn street, George W. Bennethum.
Princess, 819 Penn street, Carr & Schad.
Prex, Cotton and 17½ streets, F. A. Gould.
Royal, Spring and Church streets, C. U. Gery.
San Toy, Front and Green streets, Benn H. Zerr.
Savoy, Tenth and Greenwich streets, Leroy B. Reinert.
Schuylkill Avenue, 649 Schuylkill avenue, Benn H. Zerr.
Star, 134 S. Tenth street, L. C. Bright.
Victor, 748 Penn street, Carr & Schad.
Victoria, 1645 Moss street, Charles Graul.
Queen, Eleventh and Elm streets, Witman and King.

THEATER SOLD AT AUCTION.

The Empire theater, of Philadelphia, formerly the Park, located at the northeast corner of Broad street and Fairmount avenue, was recently sold at public auction by S. T. Freeman & Co. for $39,000, subject to a mortgage of $100,000 bearing interest at 5 4-10 per cent., due August next. It is believed to have been purchased for John Wanamaker, although Mr. W. L. Nevin, Wanamaker's real estate agent, would neither deny nor affirm the rumor. The property has a frontage on Broad street of 91 feet 7 inches, 13 feet 3 inches on Fairmount avenue and 52 feet 11 inches on Olive street.

MUST KEEP AISLES FREE.

Director La Barre, of the Department of Public Safety, of Trenton, N. J., has recently instructed Chief Bennett of the fire department to notify the proprietors of moving picture theaters in that vicinity to keep the aisles in their theaters open at all times. Violations of this notice will likely cause the suspension of the license of the theater in question. For some time past Director La Barre has had firemen stationed in all public places of amusement in order to safeguard the lives of the public who attend such performances. This is a very good idea and has met with the approval of the exhibitors of Trenton.

THE THEATERS COMPANY.

The Theaters company was recently incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware for the purpose of conducting places of amusement of all descriptions. The new concern has been capitalized for $600,000, Herbert E. Latter, Norman P. Coffin, Wilmington, Del., and Clement M. Egner, of Elkton, Md., being the principal incorporators.

"The Nation's Peril."

"The Nation's Peril," a Lubin five-reel plea for preparedness, was recently given its first showing in the auditorium of the Curtis building for the entertainment of the employees of the Curtis Publishing Company and their friends. The presentation was given under the auspices of the Curtis Club. The photoplay deals principally with the question of armament, although an interesting romance runs throughout the story.

Arthur Johnson in Accident.

Arthur Johnson, of 1711 Spring Garden street, one of the most popular moving picture actors in the country, was recently given a severe shaking-up when his automobile was struck by a trolley car at 12th and Market street. One of the rear wheels was torn from the machine and Mr. Johnson narrowly escaped flying through the air and receiving severe injuries. He was taken to his home in a taxicab.

Business Notes and Theater Changes.

Frank Groat, of Athens, Pa., recently announced that he has sold his complete moving picture outfit, one of the best in the state, to the First Methodist Episcopal Church, of Elmira, N. Y. According to Mr. Groat it is the intention of those in authority at the church to use films in connection with all services.

The Palace theater, Main and Mill streets, Norristown, Pa., have contracted for the exclusive showing of Triangle pictures in that city. Commencing Monday last the exhibition of these photoplays has continued with great success and the people of Norristown are unanimous in their approval of these first class films.

The moving picture theater and two-story store and dwelling at the southwest corner of Fifty-first and Aspen streets, Philadelphia, was conveyed by Robert J. Behney to Edward D. Chaninel subject to a mortgage of $25,000. The lot is 126 by 63 feet, and is assessed at $22,000.

WASHINGTON EXCHANGEMEN STARTLED BY HUGHES BILL.

Call Upon National Exhibitors to Begin Campaign.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

THE members of the National Exchangemen's Association were surprised when, during the meeting held in the offices of the Metro exchange, the announcement was made that Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, of Georgia, had reintroduced his bill in the House of Representatives providing for the censorship of motion pictures.

All of the exchangemen present voiced their views on the subject and it was the unanimous opinion that this was the most drastic pieces of legislation that the film business has ever had to face. It was felt that the local organization was not situated so as to combat the measure, even though located in Washington, but it was the sense of the meeting that it go on record as opposed to the bill and to lend all co-operation possible in a movement looking to its defeat.

Each of the provisions of the bill was gone over very carefully and it was declared that if enacted into law it would prove a heavy blow to the film business. Practically every line of it was the subject of severe criticism.

The secretary of the association was instructed to secure additional copies of the bill and to notify various other exchangement throughout the country of the pending legislation.

As has been repeatedly suggested in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, it was considered that it would be a good plan for all the exhibitors in the country to secure slides and exhibit them in their respective theaters in a campaign to make known to the people at large what censorship really means. The members were informed that certain members of Congress had expressed their intention of supporting the bill with a view to securing its passage at this session.

HY-ART MASTERPLAYS COMPANY

A. S. Hyman, who last week resigned from the position of manager of the local branch office of the General Film Company, has formed the Hy-Art Masterplays Company, and is opening offices at 1311 H street, northwest. Associated with him will be John Payette and Miss E. M. Gibney. Others who are to be connected with the newly-formed company are J. Eiseman, E. A. Sherwood, L. H. Berg and Will Mack. With the exception of the two latter, all of those named come from the offices of the General Film Company.

John Payette is one of the most popular of the young film men in this territory. He is generally well liked and is of the type of man upon whose word one can always depend. He has seen service on both sides of the fence, for before becoming assistant manager of the branch office here, he was manager of the Rhode Island theater. For a number of months he was in charge of the Baltimore office of the General Film Company and upon the coming of Mr. Hyman he was recalled to Washington to assist the latter.

J. J. Payette.

J. Eiseman was assistant to Mr. Payette. Mr. Sherwood came to Washington from the New York office some time ago to act as assistant booker. Miss E. M. Gibney was the private stenographer of Mr. Hyman and she goes with the new company to serve as its secretary and to assume charge of the office, for all of the male members of the force will be on the road the greater part of the time.

Mr. Berg was formerly associated with a New York film concern as traveling representative, while Mr. Mack was on the road much of the time with big productions. These two and Mr. Hyman are each to take out a copy of the film, "The Battle Cry of Peace," the others named playing the houses. The new concern expects to add other large productions which they will carry through Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina and Florida.

THE GRAND AT MORGANTOWN.

MORGANTOWN, VIRGINIA.—H. A. Christy has just completed the remodeling of the Grand theater in Morgantown, Va. Artisans had been busily at work for four weeks and the result is that the theater is now most attractive. The walls have been tinted a deep red, while the proscenium arch is finished in old ivory, blending into the cream tinted ceiling and making a contrast delightful and restful to the eye. The lobby is also tinted red to match the interior of the auditorium. Retiring rooms have been installed for the convenience of both men and women patrons, and other conveniences are being provided.

It was early in the year 1906 that Mr. Christy realized the coming value of motion pictures and caused the Grand to be changed over from a legitimate to a motion picture theater. His was the first moving picture theater in the State of West Virginia, and he has run pictures continuously throughout the intervening years.

During his ten years as an exhibitor, Mr. Christy has won the friendship of the people to the extent that he was forced to enlarge the seating capacity of the Grand. He is always on the job looking for opportunities to make his house more attractive and inviting to the people of Morgantown. The music is of the best,

NEW VIRGINIA HOUSES.

There is considerable building activity throughout the state at the present time and quite a large number of new motion picture houses are included. In Huntington, the Ritter-Vickers estate will erect a three-story brick, terra cotta and reinforced concrete store and motion picture theater and apartment building which it is estimated will cost about $75,000. The Princess Theater Company has started the construction of a one-story brick theater to cost $25,000, and other cities will soon come into the limelight by reason of claiming ownership of many handsome theater properties.

E. A. Loudette Resigns.

Ashville, N. C.—E. A. Loudette, who has been manager of the Strand theater, in Asheville, ever since the initial opening of that house, has resigned from that position and will soon form other connections. Mr. Loudette has had a wide experience in the motion picture business and is quite well known in this section.

Pathe Exchange Moves.

The Pathe exchange, which was recently established in Charlotte, N. C., in the Latta Arcade on South Tryon street, has been removed to the building at 6-8-10 South Graham street.

A Live Screen Club Now

Pittsburgh Screen Club to Have Pleasant Quarters—Shown by Generous Subscriptions Towards New Rooms and Their Furnishing—Special Committee Has Gathered $450—Probable Site—Other Committees.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Messrs. Lande, Aronson and Hanna, the special committee appointed by the Pittsburgh Screen Club at the last meeting to solicit funds to acquire and fit up clubrooms, report that they made a brief canvas last week with excellent success. Subscriptions aggregating over $450 have been received and many of the film and supply men are yet to be seen.

The officers of the Screen Club held a meeting last Tuesday evening, Dec. 21, in the office of the Cameraphone theater. At this meeting the committee on finance was instructed to secure all the money subscribed at once.

M. Feitler suggested that the headquarters for the club be secured in the Cameraphone building, Fifth avenue, and Ira Aronson stated that he would fit up Room 406 in elegant shape for the club. Messrs. Levison, Aronson and Feitler were appointed a committee on furniture and furnishings. It is expected that the new quarters will be ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

Al. W. Cross and Leo F. Levison were appointed a committee on publicity. Messrs. Ainsworth, Feitler and Gibbons were appointed a committee on ball and music.

GENERAL FILM'S NEW HOME.

The General Film Company has moved from its old location on Fourth avenue to its new building at 119 and 121 Ninth street, Pittsburgh. The General Film Company's new home is a cement building, 37x140 feet, four stories and is second only to this company's exchange in Boston. The first floor is being used for office rooms, the second as film rooms, the third for the poster department and the last as a slide making department, where the slides will be made for all General Film Company's offices in the United States and Canada. The basement is to be fitted up as a projection room.

H. & B. FILM RENTAL STARTS.

The latest addition to the list of film exchanges in Pittsburgh is the H. & B. Film Rental Company, which is already in operation at 441 Market street, with William C. Pearce, a well-known Pittsburgh man, as manager. At present they have about 63 features on hand, consisting of subjects ranging from two to six reels, including "Paul Rainey's African Hunt." A number of Charlie Chaplin comedies are included in this list.

HAZELWOOD HOUSE OPENS.

Smith's new photoplay theater was opened to the public in the Hazelwood section of Pittsburgh Saturday night, December 11, with a tremendous business. The house is double its former size and now has a seating capacity of 600. A new Smith electric pipe organ provided the music and it proved a great attraction. The opening attraction was Fox's "The New Governor."

DAVID SIMON OPENS BRANCHES.

David Simon, manager of the Universal Moving Picture Tickets, with offices in the Jenkins Arcade, Pittsburgh, was in Cincinnati last week and while there he established a branch office to take care of the Southern Ohio trade. He also made arrangements with the Cincinnati Star to give the stamps. A branch has also been established in Columbus and Mr. Simon states that a third branch will be established in Ohio the 1st of January. This office will be started in Cleveland. Mr. Simon reports that the stamps are going good in Western Pennsylvania.

The Hudson Feature Film Exchange of Pittsburgh has received the new series of war pictures, prepared under the direction of the New York Staats Zeitung, and giving both sides of the European war. These scenes are said to be authentic. The Hudson will book them in Western Pennsylvania and Ohio territories.

Remodeling Cameraphone at Sharpsburg

Francis A. Mackert, manager of the Cameraphone, Sharpsburg, Pa., states that the remodeling and enlarging of this house is quite completed and that the opening night was held on Friday, Dec. 10. The Hudson Feature Film company's "After the Ball" had been selected as the opening attraction. This house now has a seating capacity of 1,000, almost double its former capacity. The stage has been removed and the front has been remodeled and will be studded with 600 electric bulbs and will present a pleasing appearance. A ladies' and entlemen's retiring room will also be put in. A Smith electric pipe organ costing $4,500 will be installed and a new screen will be put in.

Will Build New House at Once.

The Department of Building Inspection ordered the Shiloh theater on Mount Washington, Pittsburgh, Pa., closed last week on account of non-conformity with the present building restrictions. Henry Polk, the owner, was not satisfied with the judgment taken in the matter, and on the grounds that the house had been operated for many years, took the matter into court, but lost out. The house will not be opened again for moving picture purposes.

Mr. Polk stated that as a result of the action a new house will go up in record-breaking time. He has had plans prepared for a new theater to be erected on the lot adjoining the old house and work has already been commenced on the foundations. It is to be one-story affair, with a seating capacity of 800 and will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. It is hoped to have the building completed and ready for opening about the 15th of February.

General Theater Inspection in Pittsburgh

City Police Department Makes a Thorough Investigation of Moving Picture Houses —Finds No Firetraps—Most Theaters Are Commended.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—A great amount of discussion has been caused throughout the Pittsburgh motion picture trade by the rigid inspection of downtown motion picture houses and theaters started recently by Special Policeman Charles Freeborn and Albert Marmot, under instruction of Police Superintendent W. N. Matthews, to ascertain if they would be safe in case of fire during a performance. The move was made following complaints that so-called fireproof amusement houses are really fire traps and that loss of life incident to fire and panic might be appalling should a big fire break out suddenly in any of the places.

The claim that several amusement houses were fire traps has not been sustained, although Policeman Freeborn intimated that conditions in one or two places should be improved. The investigators found ample fire escapes and sufficient exits to empty the places in a few minutes, even if they were crowded to their capacity. Abundance of fire-fighting apparatus was noted and the inspectors were told that trained fire-fighting forces in all of the theaters were well established. It also was noted that fire drills among employes of every theater downtown are held weekly and that the employees are as efficient as city firemen. For the benefit of the inspectors, employees in several places held fire drills and astonished them with the alacrity with which they attached hose nozzles, placed chemical apparatus and took their stations for any emergency that might arise.

In some of these places more exits will be recommended. The protection around the projecting machines was found to be inadequate in some cases and that the public is not given sufficient protection in case of burning film. To avoid death and injury from such a course and to prevent a possible panic, it is possible that the inspectors will recommend that the film machinery, lights and reels be surrounded with a fireproof concrete enclosure that would prevent flame or smoke from attracting or reaching any part of an audience.

To Aid Ohio Picture Men

Advisory Censor Board May Be Formed in Cleveland—Meeting of Civic Organizations in League Rooms—Object: A Better Understanding Between Film Men and Those Who Are Censoriously Inclined.

By J. D. Raridan, Cleveland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CLEVELAND, O.—On Tuesday, Dec. 21, clergymen, social workers, club women and representatives of the Ohio Congress of Mothers, with Cleveland moving picture men, met to discuss plans for the organization of an advisory board to cooperate with the theater owners in raising the standard of pictures. The picture men present were members of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League executive committee and the meeting was held in the new clubrooms of the body in the Republic Building.

Censorship, the display of "flashy" posters and general conditions affecting moving picture theaters were discussed, the visitors expressing the opinion that a local volunteer censor board might overcome the defects in the Ohio censorship law. Both the visitors and the members of the board agreed that the Ohio censorship law has failed to meet the claims set up for it.

B. J. Sawyer, president of the league, who acted as chairman of the meeting, declared that in many instances pictures passed by the board of censors at Columbus have been so suggestive or lurid that the theater owners themselves have refused to book them.

What Is Hoped For.

The visitors informed the committee that they believed much good could be accomplished for the community and the picture business itself be benefited if a series of "get together" meetings were held between social workers and representatives of civic organizations. This it was declared would bring about a better understanding between the theater owners and those who criticise their methods of operation.

President Sawyer assured the visitors that the motion picture men and the organization he represented were willing and anxious to adopt any plan which would improve the picture business. Another meeting may be held in the near future.

According to the members of the executive board the meeting was called by Miss Kate Davis, president of the International People's Aid Association. She failed to appear at the session, however.

Nine organizations were represented. Among those who participated in the discussion were R. B. Colton of the People's Protective Association; H. F. Henderson and G. L. Fels, of the Central Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. Alice G. Kirk, of the Woman's Peace Forum; Miss Genevieve Cline, of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Charlotte Schaeffer, of the East End Settlement House; Miss Mary Rathbone, of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Herbrook and Mrs. J. K. Parker, Woman's Civic Association; Mrs. E. B. Haserodt and Mrs. Austin Estabrook, of the Congress of Mothers; Rev. E. R. Wright of the Federated Churches; Rev. Harry N. Dascomb, First Congregational Church; Rev. Elmer E. Pearce, Broadway Methodist Church.

TO HAVE PART IN XMAS FETE.

Exhibitors' League to Furnish Film—Operators' Union to Help.

The Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League will provide a substantial part of the nightly free entertainment on the Public Square, which is to a part of Cleveland's Community Christmas celebration. Arrangements were completed by the Community Christmas Committee through C. A. Megown, special representative of the league, by which a picture show of several reels will be shown every night of the celebration without expense to the committee. The films and the projecting machine will be donated by the League.

Benjamin Brown, business agent of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Operators' Union, has also agreed to secure the services of an operator for each night of the celebration. Among the operators who have volunteered for duty are John Noonan and Lawrence Schronfronick of the Camperaphone theater, William Bullock of the Corona theater, R. E. Thompson of the Strand theater and J. Shaffer of the Orpheum theater.

MAX J. MILDNER INSTALLED.

F. C. Aiken, district representative of the General Film Company with headquarters in Chicago, was in Cleveland last week to install Max J. Mildner, as manager of the Cleveland office. Mildner, who has been with the company for several years was transferred from Pittsburgh. He is well known in Cleveland and is extremely popular with the local exhibitors.

NEW LICENSE BILL DEAD.

The ordinance drafted by Councilman Edward Meyers, providing for a license fee of $25 and upward according to the capacity of motion picture theaters, is not expected to be offered in council. Members of the committee on law of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League report that they have succeeded in getting assurances that the measure will not be pushed. Members of this committee are B. J. Sawyer, William Slimm and LeMott Smith of Alliance.

OHIO ASKS FOR CHARTER.

Fred. J. Herrington, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, was in Cleveland last week and accepted an application for a state charter for an Ohio league from State President Smith, of Alliance, State Vice President Frank Eeverstock, of Mansfield, and Frank Kenney, vice president representing Ohio in the national body.

Several Cleveland exhibitors are planning to be in Chicago January 6 and 7 when the executive board of the national body meets.

THEATERS CHANGE HANDS.

Six moving picture theaters, all outside the downtown section, changed hands in Cleveland during the past week. The deals were handled through Morton and Sutton, real estate agents.

The Addison theater at 6418 St. Claire avenue, is now the property of Paul Pisker, who also purchased the Liberty theater, a West Side house at 3711 Fulton road.

Two other theaters were acquired by new owners in deals for real estate. The Enjoy U theater, 7700 Lake avenue, was taken over by J. F. Johnson in exchange for a farm at Chardon which William Carson the former owner of the Enjoy U, will occupy as his home. The new Colonial theater, Superior avenue and E. 57th street, was taken in trade for other property by M. F. Abrams.

Other deals were the purchase by Henry Miller and wife, of the Nemo theater, Detroit avenue and W. 84th street, and the acquiring of the Eagle theater, 4609 Denison avenue by Aaron Katz.

BUYS UNFINISHED THEATER.

G. T. Sharp, who has been prominent in the picture theater business in Cleveland for ten years, will take over a new 900 seat theater soon to be built on the northeast corner of Prame avenue and W. 25th street. The property was sold this week through the offices of the Joseph Laronge Company by A. F. Hummel, secretary of the Pearl Street Savings & Trust Company.

The new building is to be a brick, steel and concrete structure, four stories high, to contain the theater and four stores on the ground floor with office suites on the upper floors.

Another new house to seat 400, is nearing completion on Lexington avenue near E. 63d street. It is to be known as the Ball Park theater and will be operated by A. Silberberg. The house will be open next month.

SOPHIE MUELLER SAVES CROWD.

A nineteen year old girl, Miss Sophie Mueller, ticket seller in her father's theater, the Columbia, 6241 Broadway, stopped a stampede among the audience Tuesday night, when fire broke out while the house was crowded. Many persons in the house had started on a rush for the exits when Miss Mueller stepped inside.

"Single file, please, there is no danger," she cried. Her calmness stopped the rush and several men in the audience joined her in assuring the crowd there was no danger. The house was cleared in a few moments, the audience filing out in an orderly manner.

The fire was confined to the operator's booth. Films valued at $400 were destroyed.

French War Films Here.

Cleveland picture theater audiences will have an opportunity to see the Allies' side of the European war next week for commencing Monday, December 27, the official French government war pictures will be presented at the Duchess theater. The films cover the historic events in France since the great German drive on Paris. The pictures were loaned by the French government. Part of the proceeds of the exhibition go to the French Red Cross Society.

Cleveland Theater Notes.

The Duchess theater, Euclid avenue, near East 55th street, has returned to motion pictures after nearly two months as a stock company house. The Lee Amusement company, which operates the Duchess, will book Universal film features, with added musical attractions on the program.

Because of continued great crowds at the Metropolitan theater last week to witness the supposedly last week of "The Battle Cry of Peace," the film has been continued again this week, with Sunday, Tuesday and Saturday matinees.

"The Unknown," the film adaptation of "The Red Mirage," by I. A. R. Wylie, is the attraction at the Knickerbocker theater the first half of this week.

LYNCHBURG, VA., NEWS LETTER.

By Julian T. Baber, Lynchburg Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

LYNCHBURG, VA.—The Trenton theater has been devoting Saturday of each week for the past thirty days for the little folks by presenting a special children's matinee with appropriate pictures to suit the kiddies, at a reduction in the price of admission, five cents being charged for the younger patrons.

Manager Goebel of the Gayety theater, who recently assumed charge of this house, coming to Lynchburg from Bristol, where he has been in the picture business for several years, is clinging fast to the "5 cent admission" rule which has obtained at the Gayety for a long time. He is offering an excellent program and is playing to good business.

"Virginia," a four-part feature made by the Roanoke Film Company, with important scenes made in the principal Virginia cities, was shown at the Academy of Music on December 14 and 15 by Robert D. Foot, under whose direction the picture was made.

ATLANTA COUNCIL GOING SLOW.

Give More Time to Discussion With Exchange Men on New Law.

By A. M. Beatty, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ATLANTA, GA.—Regulation and restriction of motion picture film supply houses, inaugurated by the city council following a fire several months ago, was again delayed when the special committee appointed for the purpose was continued and given more time. Chairman Arville H. Hall, reported several meetings with the film exchange people. It was shown that the latter strongly objected to the proposed ordinance as unnecessarily severe and desired time to submit laws of other cities with a view to reaching an amicable agreement.

C. E. SUTLEFF LEAVES ATLANTA.

C. E. Sutleff, formerly of the Atlanta office of the V-L-S-E, has been transferred to Detroit to take charge of the sub-branch office in that city. Mr. Sutleff has made an enviable record by his work in the south and Atlanta friends will miss him.

TRIBUNE SELIG BRANCH HERE.

Atlanta gets an important moving picture interest in the establishment here of the southern headquarters for the Tribune-Selig weekly service. Supported jointly by the Selig Photoplay company and the Chicago Tribune, the service will be devoted to the securing of moving pictures of national interest and importance.

From the Atlanta office, in charge of F. M. Delevan, operators will be sent to "cover" important happenings in eleven southern states. The pictures will be used in the animated weekly to be furnished for the use of moving picture theaters throughout the country.

"PEACE" PICTURE EFFECTIVE.

Over a hundred and twenty-five men have joined different branches of the military service in Atlanta, since the "Battle Cry of Peace" has been exhibiting in the city. Major Leahy, of the Fifth Regiment, is authority for the statement that nothing outside of war itself could have benefited his regiment as much. That it has awakened a greater interest in military affairs and has led people to think about the national defenses. It has benefitted the Fifth regiment in more ways than one, because it has reminded the public that Atlanta has the only full city regiment south of Baltimore.

OLD JOHNNIE REBS STIRRED.

The realism of "The Birth of a Nation," playing at the Atlanta theater, was enhanced almost to a reality Monday afternoon, when the "rebel yell" arose above the music of the orchestra, and more than 100 Confederate veterans followed, in spirit at least, "the little colonel" through hell before Petersburg, and charged him down the dim avenue of the night with the Ku Klux.

The veterans of the Confederate Soldiers' Home were the guests of the Atlanta theater at the matinee performance. The gray-haired youths of yesterday occupied the best seats of the house free, and their enjoyment of the picture was quite as much a treat as the picture itself. Here and there could be heard:

"I took that oath fifty years ago, and I haven't told anything yet, but somebody surely told somebody something."

"I ain't saying I was a Ku Klux, because we were not allowed to tell, but I saw how the Ku Klux worked."

"I remember the day I went to the polls and they wouldn't let me—me, a white man—vote."

These and some tears and the "rebel yell"—a little thin, perhaps, and at times a little husky, as two score and ten years ago, but nevertheless the "rebel yell" was given to help the "little Colonel" flash the burning cross to his clan.

Triangle in Cincinnati

At the Family Theater, a Downtown House, First Run Triangles Began on December 26—Will Show a Drama and a Comedy and Will Change Twice a Week—Admission Is 10 Cents—Manager Libson's Other Houses.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Cincinnati Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CINCINNATI, O.—Much the most interesting development of the week in Cincinnati moving picture circles was the announcement that the Triangle Film Corporation has completed arrangements whereby its pictures will be run exclusively in the downtown section of the Family theater, one of the trio under the management of I. Libson. Beginning with Sunday, Dec. 26, the arrangement went into effect with the showing of "The Lily and the Rose" and "The Great Vacuum Robbery," a Triangle-Keystone comedy.

Hereafter a program of this nature will be shown regularly at the Family, with two changes a week, on Sunday and Thursday. That is, the Triangle will give the Family the first run in Cincinnati of its four releases a week, consisting of two five-reel features and two comedies, one of each for each half of the week.

The new arrangement means a change from the Family's hitherto unbroken policy of showing short programs, changed daily, for five cents, and it now joins the growing list of houses showing features exclusively, at a charge of ten cents for admission. Its remarkably favorable location, which is quite the best in Cincinnati, being on the crowded block between Fifth and Sixth streets, on Vine, will give it a great advantage in the matter of filling its seating capacity regularly, and should enable the management to prosper with Triangle releases, even at a high service charge and a low admission fee.

Manager Libson now has under his charge in Cincinnati, aside from his outside interests, three of the leading moving picture enterprises of the city, these being the Stand, which is entitled to head the list, with the Paramount program; the Family, with the Triangle program, and the Walnut, with the Fox productions. There are probably few men in the country who can show such an array of attractions in three separate theaters in the same city. Both Manager Hite, of the Triangle, and Mr. Libson, are delighted with the arrangement, and expect great things of it.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

LYRIC RUNS A PICTURE.

Big Legitimate Theater Sandwiches Film Between Stage Attractions.

If anybody had ventured to predict, even a year ago, that one of Cincinnati's leading "legitimate" theaters would devote nearly a week, in the very heart of the season, to a photoplay, he would have risked a bad dent in his reputation as a prophet; but that is exactly what happened last week, none the less, when the Lyric filled in the first five days of the week, and up to Christmas Day, with the Lubin production of "The Great Divide," under the V-L-S-E brand. Only 10 cents admission was charged for the production and crowded houses were the rule during the entire engagement.

The film play was sandwiched in between two of the biggest attractions of the season, the Winter Garden show and "To-Night's the Night," just as was the case at the Grand recently, and it may not be long before picture plays will be regularly seen at the leading theaters, alternating with the spoken drama, judging by Cincinnati's experience. Of course this is common enough in the tank towns, but when it happens several times in a season in a city of this size it may be regarded as highly significant of the continued astonishing progress of moving pictures. By a rather odd coincidence last week Mr. Henry Miller, who with Margaret Anglin first starred in "The Great Divide," was playing just across the street at the Grand in "Daddy Long Legs."

NEW CINCINNATI EXCHANGE.

The latest film concern to arrange for quarters in Cincinnati is by no means the least, being the Greater New York Film Rental Company, whose recent litigation with the General Film Company is still fresh in the memories of the film world. I. J. Schmertz, of New York, is to handle the Cincinnati office, according to arrangements now announced. He was in the city last week and secured quarters for the company's Cincinnati offices on the third floor of the building at 412 Vine street, on the second floor of which the offices of the Fox Film Corporation are located. The two companies are both under the control ol William Fox, but while of course friendly, they will be conducted here, as elsewhere, separately. Mr. Schmertz states that the company he represents will ultimately open offices in every city of importance in the country. Just what the effect will be locally of the apparently necessary conflict between the new concern and the local offices of the General Film Company is not known, but will be watched with interest.

COLONIAL ENDS FILM POLICY.

With a farewell return engagement of "The Battle Cry of Peace," the great V-L-S-E "preparedness" picture, the Colonial theater, of Dayton, O., closed its career Dec. 26 as a moving picture theater, and started all over again as a theater for the use of musical comedies and extravaganzas exclusively. For some months the Colonial has been operated as a photoplay house, showing only pictures, but the management feels that the plan has not been a success, and decided on the change indicated. No doubt the fact that a double program has for some time been offered for a single price of admission had something to do with the change, as this meant double expense for service and only half as many audiences as could be handled with the usual single bill. Twenty cents was the maximum charge for "The Battle Cry of Peace" on the last engagement, this price being fixed for the orchestra and box seats on Sunday and Christmas Day.

MAY BECOME PICTURE THEATER.

URBANA, O.—Billy "Single" Clifford, the famous Urbana actor and theater owner, is planning, according to a recent communication, to convert the Clifford into a fine example of the modern moving picture house on his return home from the West, where his company is now playing. He states that he has gathered a vast amount of valuable information concerning the adaptation of the theaters originally intended for spoken productions to the use of moving pictures, and that he intends to put this knowledge to good use in Urbana.

Censorship in Illinois

New Board in Belleville—Lack of Interest in Quincy Causes a No-Quorum Meeting—Bills Outstanding in Evanston Show That Exhibitors Are Slow in Paying Censor Charges—Interesting Notes from Other Cities.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

N Illinois the United Catholic Societies of Belleville have decided to censor moving pictures in that city after January 1.

A committee of three appointed by President William J. Claus will investigate attractions, book and report, from a moral standpoint. Members of the Catholic societies will be asked not to patronize these shows.

Twice has the censorship board in Quincy tried to hold a meeting and failed for lack of a quorum of three members. One member said he had to look after his own business affairs. Apparently the members have lost interest in the work of censoring.

The city council at Fulton has decided that moving picture shows may be operated on Sundays. They have been barred for two years.

Exhibitors in Evanston do not pay bills for censoring promptly, it is reported in local newspapers. One manager paid $6.10, but bills outstanding amount to over $150.

The Belasco theater at Quincy invited colored people to see an advance showing of "The Nigger," and upon their recommendation cancelled it.

Manager Hatcher of the Photoploy theater at Elmwood has started a Sunday show discussion in that city by requesting permission to operate seven days a week.

The local censorship ordinance in Alton is dead. Only one alderman championed the measure.

XMAS SPIRIT IN ILLINOIS.

The Star theater at DeKalb entered into the Christmas spirit by giving 2,500 tickets to the United Association Municipal Christmas tree. It is planned a birthday party for December 27 to the children who have joined the Birthday club of that theater and a local paper.

The poor in many Illinois cities owe a part of their Christmas cheer to the generosity of moving picture exhibitors. Manager Pittenger of the Pittenger Grand at Centralia, Ill., secured some Christmas films and ran them all day for charity. No admission was fixed; patrons laid what they wished on the box office window. Three matinees for children were given, the schools being dismissed for the purpose. The feature, "Lola," was shown at the opera house in Mt. Sterling, Ill., for a similar cause, and the Royal at Litchfield, Ill., helped to finance the municipal Christmas tree.

10-CENT TRIANGLE SHOWS.

The Gaiety theater at Springfield has reduced its admission for the Triangle attraction from fifteen cents to ten cents.

NEW INCORPORATIONS.

Certificates of incorporation have been filed in the office of Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield as follows: The Exhibitors' Film Exchange of Chicago has changed its name to the Exhibitors' Herald company.

The Armstrong Amusement Company of Armstrong has been incorporated with $1,500 capital stock. The incorporators are Walter N. Wood, Everett J. Smith, Henry Radermacher, E. V. Oakwood, Frank Radermacher and John B. Vannatta.

The Daily Movie News of Chicago has been incorporated with $200,000 capital, to manufacture and display moving picture films. The incorporators are Edward R. Newman, George S. Pines and Richard R. Klein.

Illinois Changes, Etc.

The Meek Sisters have sold the Princess theater at Lewistown to Ross Pittman and L. F. Harn.

John Kinscherff has opened a moving picture show at Kampsville.

John Hicks, of Davenport, Ia., has taken over the Princess theater at Atkinson.

Lloyd Danner has purchased a half interest in the moving picture show at Summum.

Fire in a business block at Springfield destroyed the Savoy moving picture theater on North Sixth street.

The Palace theater has been opened at Fifteenth and Laurel streets in Springfield.

Construction of a new opera house, 44x60 feet, has begun at Armstrong, Ill.

Glen Bradbury has sold the Majestic theater at Rochelle, Ill., to James McKinley and Richard Sherlock.

John Tesmer, of Michigan City, Ind., has purchased the Orpheum theater at Lena from W. C. McGurk.

Snyder & Belaski have sold the Princess theater at Lincoln, Ill., to Fred Stelzer, a member of the firm of Stelzer Bros., violin and moving picture machine dealers.

Johnson & Sittser, who have leased the town hall at Knoxville, Ill., for a moving picture show, have named it the Apollo theater.

Clarence Bain, of Rochelle, has purchased a half interest in the Rose theater at Byron, Ill.

J. C. Dailey has opened a moving picture show in the M. W. A. hall at Joslin, Ill.

A new $25,000 moving picture and vaudeville theater is projected for Granite City, Ill.

D. S. Bryant is erecting an opera house, seating 400, as Gladstone, Ill.

A new moving picture theater is to be opened at Cissna Park, Ill.

A. N. Cole, who sold his interest in the Grand theater at Rock Falls to August Johnson, has turned over the management of the Lyric theater in Rock Falls, Ill., to Wilson McKim.

Forrest Tanner has opened a moving picture theater at Mahomet, Ill.

Stockholders in the new opera house company, which will erect a $30,000 theater on the site of the old Lyric airdome at Belleville, Ill., appointed a building committee to inspect theaters in St. Louis and other houses to get ideas. Construction will start as soon as the weather will permit.

Illinois Brevities.

W. A. Peterson, in recent years an exhibitors in Bloomington, Quincy and Galesburg, has gone into the garage business at Bloomington.

Rubens & Thielen, who made films of an important local football game, presented them to the school after the exhibition had been finished.

The band at North Henderson has closed its moving picture show until spring.

C. W. Tinsley, of Des Moines, Ia., was at Kewanee making arrangements to produce a local photoplay for W. J. West, of the Majestic and Willard theaters.

Denver Dunn has reopened his moving picture show at Donnellson, Ill.

The demand for information regarding moving pictures is reflected in the catalogue of a public library in a small Illinois city, which lists thirteen informative volumes on this subject.

Public schools in Monmouth, Ill., were dismissed so the pupils could see the Lyman H. Howe pictures at the Pattee.

"Damon and Pythias" was shown at the Abbey theater in Kirkwood, Ill., under the auspices of the local Knights of Pythias.

Merchants' matinees were given Monday and Thursday during the holidays at the Elite in Waukegan, Ill.

At one of its special Saturday morning shows for children the Strand in Evanston had an old fashioned Punch and Judy show and gave every child a Punch and Judy whistle.

The Princess at Monmouth, Ill., has installed a five-piece orchestra.

Vegetables of any kind were good for admission at Dreamland, in Kewanee, December 14. Manager Chris Taylor gave the proceeds to the poor of the city.

The Bijou at Monmouth has booked the Triangle service.

HAUNTED BY DEAD BLUE LAWS.

Power of Advertising Shown in Effect of Illegal Sunday Closing Order.

Special to Moving Picture World by Midwest News Service.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Exhibitors in Grand Rapids, Mich., are among those who have felt the effects of a blue law crusade. The moving picture houses were notified not to keep their places open on Sunday, but ignored the order. However, business suffered, as the public did not expect to find the photoplay houses ready for business. A number of them were reported by detectives to the prosecuting officers.

The theater men based their stand on the fact that in April, 1906, the city council passed a measure closing Sunday theaters. At the November election a referendum vote was had on it and the people, by a majority vote of 61 plus, decided they wanted Sunday shows.

The city council at Grand Rapids passed a resolution favoring an open Sunday and requesting the police board to recede from its "blue law" position.

Jacobsen Managing Strand at Lansing.

Some time ago we stated in this letter that B. T. Hall was managing the Strand theater in Lansing, Mich., but this is an error. Walter Jacobson is at the helm in this new picture house.

Michigan Theaters Change Hands—Reopenings, Etc.

Paul S. Moon has purchased the Russell block, in which the Strand theater at Muskegon is located. The theater is to be remodeled and enlarged.

W. H. Yost sold the Happy Hour theater at Sparta to F. L. Hilton.

The Bellamy theater at Boyne reopened with the Mutual Masterpicture, "The Absentee."

The remodeled and redecorated Orpheum theater at Kalamazoo has been reopened under the management of P. C. Schram and P. F. Marquette.

Frank Butler and Roscoe Putnam, of Davison, have been planning to operate a moving picture theater at Marshall.

The Delmont theater at Cheboygan will be remodeled by Manager Tuttle.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stanton, who purchased the Lyric theater at Flint, plan to make extensive improvements to the house next spring.

Raymond Godshalk has taken over the management of the Rex theater at Three Rivers.

Alfred Mell, of the Mell Transfer company, at Niles, has leased the Niles Opera house from A. Green.

Michigan Brevities.

The Annex theater at Saginaw has a new policy, charging only five cents except on Friday and Sunday, which are Paramount days.

The Marinette theater at Marinette will not be used for moving picture shows except on Sunday nights. Features will be shown at ten cents the rest of the time.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" has been booked for Powers' theater in Grand Rapids.

William Mercen has sold the Princess theater at Marshall, Mich., to F. J. Butler and R. Putnam, of Davison.

John A. Thompson has reopened the Star theater on Second street, at Niles, Mich.

R. J. Crosby has returned to Sturgis, Mich., to resume the management of the Crystal theater.

The Butterfly theater at St. Ignace, Mich., was temporarily closed. Changes in the management were reported to be pending.

Myron Fancher has sold the Maxine theater at Port Huron, Mich., to L. Hoffroth, of the Olympic theater.

J. B. Starker has repurchased the moving picture theater at Holly, Mich., from M. B. Peck.

E. H. Saxton will be manager of the moving picture show at Jonesville, Mich.

WISCONSIN NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Had It In for One Manager.

LA CROSSE, WIS.—Rev. James E. Watson, pastor of West Avenue Methodist Episcopal church in La Crosse, caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of F. J. McWilliams, a moving picture exhibitor, charging him with violating the Sunday closing law. The minister served notice on McWilliams while the latter was constructing his theater, that he would not allow the house to operate on Sundays. He is interested in only the one theater, he says, and is not conducting a general crusade.

Schools Closed for Anti-Tuberculosis Film.

Racine schools were closed so that children of the city could see "The Power of the Penny," the film of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. This picture was shown at the Grand in Madison and the Rose in Sheboygan.

Wisconsin Brevities.

The two "Carmens" were in competition for a day at Madison, Wis. The Fuller had the Lasky film and the Grand the Fox version.

A local paper in Soldiers' Grove, Wis., suggests to Chris Halvorsen, new proprietor of the moving picture theater there, that Sunday shows be given. "We are of opinion that a clean moving picture would help to cultivate a higher moral plane in our village," it says.

The Lyric theater at Eau Claire, Wis., has adopted the slogan, "Now the Paramount House."

The Strand theater at Appleton, Wis., now charges five cents for all seats at matinees.

Wisconsin Changes, Etc.

E. R. Barager has purchased the moving picture theater at Prentice, Wis., from Manager Swedborg. He will erect a modern theater building next spring.

The Opera house at Necedah, Wis., was destroyed by fire.

M. Cairo, of Milwaukee, has been making arrangements to open a moving picture show in the new Opera house at Campbellsport, Wis.

Edwin Schliechert, who has opened the Strand theater at Appleton, Wis., will operate it as a five and ten cent house.

J. Willard Hall, a merchant of Readstown, Wis., has opened a new moving picture theater, 80x90, at that place.

Michael Barry and Michael Abraham have purchased the building occupied by the Dome theater on the north side of La Crosse. They have also purchased the theater from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Liesenfeld, and Barry, who has had photoplay experience in San Francisco and Duluth, will operate it.

Ira Phillips, of Mineral Point, Wis., has opened a moving picture show at Cassville, Wis.

Church Shows in Indiana

Indiana Motion Picture Association Calls Attention of State Bureau of Inspection to Special Privileges in Matter of Exits and Other Matters During Film Shows in Church Halls—General Discussion.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The Motion Picture Association of Indiana at a recent meeting in Indianapolis spent a great deal of time in discussing moving pictures in churches. As a result of this meeting the exhibitors agreed that a letter should be formulated and sent to the Bureau of Inspection of Indiana asking that bureau to require churches to comply with the same laws that apply to theaters if moving pictures are to be shown in the churches.

None of the churches so far as is known have provided special exits marked with red lights, fireproof booths for the moving picture machines, to keep people out of the aisles or to do the various other things that are required to reduce fire hazard.

At several points in the State, moving pictures have been introduced as a part of the church service and the innovation in every instance has been a popular one. There has, in some quarters, been criticism of this practice by church people who feel that it is beneath the dignity of the church to resort to such methods, but on the whole, the idea is popular and is excused on the ground that anything that will attract people to church is for the good of the church.

For the most part the programs being given in churches are of a religious character, but quite frequently they are purely for amusement purposes though clean. Comedy that is not based on exaggeration but runs true to character is being accepted for church exhibitions.

SHOW XMAS GENEROSITY.

Benefits to help the newspaper Christmas funds were quite the rule at Indianapolis houses during Christmas week. Among the houses who donated a share of their proceeds were the Palms No. 2, The Idle Hour, the Oriental, the Talbot, the Colonial, the Victoria, the Stratford, and the Family theater.

Big Film for Small Village.

Manager Shanks of the K. G. theater, Rochester, Indiana, has decided that Rochester will pay the price for a showing of "The Birth of a Nation," in the K. G. theater. Manager Shanks' daring is being noticed with considerable interest by the small town exhibitors who are anxious to know whether he can make it pay or not.

Opening of the Peter Pan.

The Peter Pan theater, seating 250, has been opened at Central avenue and Seventeenth street, Indianapolis. The little house is as daintily exquisite in its appointments as the name would imply, and is well adapted to the neighborhood.

Keystone Theater Advertising.

The Keystone theater is spending an unusual amount of money in advertising the Triangle service in Indianapolis. Edward Sourber is the newly elected treasurer of Marion county and has an interest in a prosperous automobile factory in Indianapolis, aside from his theaters of which he owns four. He believes in the liberal use of printers' ink. On a fifty-fifty arrangement with the film company his expenditures are running $600 a month for advertising alone. The features have been running only a short time, however, and it is not to be expected that the advertising will be continued at its present pace after the introduction has been successfully accomplished.

C. E. Naughton, of Walkerton, Ind., has bought the Lyric theater, Waterloo, Ind.

W. A. Dull Buys Decatur House.

Mrs. Mary Kircher who bought the Rex theater at Decatur, Indiana, a few days ago, has sold it to W. A. Dull of Willshire, Ohio. Mr. Dull was formerly in the grain business at Willshire and afterwards bought a theater there. The Willshire house he will operate himself, and the Rex will be operated by his son, M. B. Dull. The Rex was established several years ago by John Stark who only recently disposed of the property to Mrs. Kircher.

Fire Sale of Tickets.

The Palace theater which recently reopened in Peru, Indiana, advertised freely in big space "a fire sale of tickets," six admissions were sold for twenty-five cents 12 for 50 cents and 25 for $1. The tickets were transferable and were good until used.

Business Notes and Personals.

The Moose lodge at Warsaw, Ind., owner of the opera house, have been notified by the state fire marshal that certain changes will be necessary. The cost is estimated at $1,500. This means the house will be out of service for some time.

Manager Robert Hudson of the Palace theater, Richmond, Ind., announces the purchase of an $8,000 pipe organ.

V. U. Young, Gary's pioneer picture man, has gained control of the Twentieth Century theater, leasing it from Harry Hall. Mr. Young now has four picture houses in Gary, Ind., the Orpheum, the Art, the Grand and the Twentieth Century.

Manager H. H. Hornbeck of the New Majestic, Monticello, Ind., has bought a new Seeburg player from a Lafayette house.

Manager Meyer of the New Majestic, Evansville, Ind., has signed a contract for the Triangle features in Evansville.

Helen Weer, who appeared with John Barrymore in "Incorrigible Dukane," is spending the holidays at her home in Anderson, Ind.

Wallace Sawyer of the Palace theater, Bluffton, has sold one of his picture machines to the Central School at Bluffton. The school will run educational films.

The New Link theater, Walkerton, Ind., has been opened.

The Bell theater, Warsaw, Indiana, has been rechristened The New Grand theater, and is running photo plays regularly.

Henry Paff has bought an interest in the Vaudette theater at Michigan City, Indiana. Mr. Paff will be associated with C. J. Coyle in the management of the Vaudette.

Benefits for the People's Tuberculosis Sanatorium Association were given by the following Indianapolis houses: The Irvington, The Fountain Square, The Garrick, and the Tacoma. In all excepting the firs and last named houses, Lew Shank, former mayor of Indiana and a vaudeville headliner appeared as an entertainer. Mr. Shank expects to run for mayor again.

Harold Jaffe, concert master at the Indiana University and a violinist of drawing power in Indiana, has joined the orchestra at the Alhambra theater, Indianapolis.

The Cort theater, Kokomo, Ind., which was formerly the Ideal theater has installed a new 1916 Motiograph picture machine, also a new silver Fibre screen.

R. A. Cannan has taken over the Theatorium theater in New Castle, Indiana, and has placed Ernest Hodgsett in charge.

The Royal theater, Warsaw, Indiana, has installed a new gold fibre screen.

Hitches in Censorship

Incompetence in Personnel and Slipshod Methods of Kansas Censor Inspectors Cause Unnecessary Trouble—A Damage Suit in Manhattan, Kansas, and an Annoying Incident in Arkansas City.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Damage suits against the censorship officers of Kansas may grow out of the recent arrest of J. J. Marshall, owner of the Marshall theater at Manhattan, Kan., who was fined $25 and costs after having exhibited the three-reel Essanay film "Despair," on December 6. The arrest and conviction grew out of a complaint made by Festus J. Foster, one of the censor inspectors, who alleged the film had not been passed by the Kansas board.

Appeal Board Said to Have Passed It.

The information concerning the film that has come to Kansas City is that the picture was shown to W. D. Ross, state superintendent of schools, and Foster. They voted against the picture, after having accepted the exchange man's check of $6 as the censorship fees. Eight days later it was shown again, this time before two of the three members of the appeal board. They both passed it, but were unable to make out an approval receipt because the money already had been signed for by Ross and Foster eight days previous.

Why Approval Slip Was Lacking.

However, the daily report of films reviewed by the appeal board was made out by Lew Nathanson, projection operator for the board, and signed by himself and Miss Carrie H. Simpson, one of the inspectors, saying the film had been approved. With that as a clearance the picture was released and found its way to Marshall. Foster then appeared and had Marshall arrested. It is understood here that Marshall and exchange men are contemplating action against the censors on the charge of false arrest.

Censor's Reports Misleading.

The Marshall arrest preceded by a few days the appearance of a lengthy report signed by Ross, showing what films had been viewed and the eliminations ordered. One part of the report dealt with an elimination cut supposedly ordered by Ross in "The Island of Regeneration," the Vitagraph film released through the V-L-S-E office at Kansas City. The peculiar part of the report and one not understood by Kansas City exchange men is that any cuts were made. On June 25 the film was viewed by Ross, who told several exchange men that nothing would be cut from it. The fee receipt of $12 was signed by Ross, and Foster, his deputy, on that date, and carries the word "Approved," but without any mention of an elimination. The film is now being shown in Kansas without any changes having been made. If censor inspectors should order arrests made because of the annual report the V-L-S-E representatives will fight the matter out on the basis that when once a film is approved it cannot be rejected.

Woeful Ignorance in Reports.

The censor's report shows a woeful ignorance of the picture industry among those in the Topeka office. For instance, all through the report the Universal Weekly is mentioned as having been made by Selig and at another place a Paramount feature film is given as having been released by V-L-S-E. By tabulating the report, which contains all pictures viewed from April 12, when the censorship began, until October 1, shows that 4,840 reels had gone through the censor's office and that of all of them only thirty subjects had been condemned. For this the exchange men and manufacturers paid the State of Kansas approximately $12,000, while the expenses of the office were only about $2,000.

An Incompetent with Power.

Kansas City exchange men, in showing the unfairness of the Kansas censorship, are relating an occurrence in Arkansas City, Kan., last week. A. A. Davidson had booked the 4-reel Kalem picture, "The Call of the Dance," for exhibition the night of December 16. Foster, the inspector, was in Arkansas City that day and told Davidson the film could not be used, as it had not been approved by the censors. Davidson thus was forced to close that night as he could get no other films from Kansas City in time. The next day he learned the picture had been passed on December 2. Nobody offered to reimburse him for his dark night.

HENRY B. ALLEN'S ADVERTISING

When Henry B. Allen took over the active management of the Maze theater, Twelfth street and Baltimore avenue, Kansas City, in the business district, he began running long features and endeavored to hit upon a new newspaper advertising stunt. He found it. The idea is that in each of his ads he should make a personal statement, signed by himself, and thus taking responsibility for it on his own shoulders.

The plan was worked out as follows, to quote from some of his daily ads:

"A good steer—come to the Maze and see this great 5-act comedy. And ,by the way, watch this announcement each day. Big things are in store for the Maze—H. B. Allen."

AN INTERESTING SUIT.

A court in Kansas City, Kan., is going to have to decide whether or not the face of Mrs. Stella Kunz, who lives on a rural route out of that city, is worth $2,000 in a moving picture advertising the department store owned by Wilfred H. Allen and Charles H. Bayne, 642 Minnesota avenue. Mrs. Kunz has brought suit for that amount against the store proprietors, saying her picture was taken while she was in the store and now is being used in moving picture films advertising it. She sat for the films, without her knowledge, she declares, and is sure $2,000 wouldn't be too small a remuneration for the use of herself.

LOCAL HOUSES CHANGE HANDS.

Robert King, formerly owner of the Empress theater at Beatrice, Neb., has leased the Lyric there and will run big feature films. The Lyric has a seating capacity of about 800 and has one of the best locations in the city.

General Film Notes.

George B. Resor and Ray L. Hewitt are new road salesmen working out of the Kansas City office of the General Film Company. Their territories will be Missouri and Kansas.

R. O. Proctor, manager of the Kansas City office of the General Film Company, announced last week that several bookings already had been made for the Essanay serial, "The Strange Case of Mary Page," that will be released sometime in January. Mr. Proctor said that advance sales foreshadowed the film would be the biggest serial ever put out in this district.

The General Film Company is pioneering a new field in the Kansas City district by opening a projection room in which all the releases will be shown to the exhibitors. The plans of R. O. Proctor, the Kansas City manager, are that the releases for one week will be shown on Tuesday of the proceeding week to all the exhibitors who care to attend. Then they will be allowed to book any they wish. "Of course, if we show them any poor films they won't book them," Mr. Proctor laughed. "That will work out in forcing us to have only the best kind of pictures."

Kansas City Has All Night House

Idle Hour Is the Only All-Night Picture Theater Between the Great Lakes and the Rockies—Caters to Night Workers.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The first all-night picture house between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains has been opened here and is operating twenty-one hours out of the day's twenty-four. The theater that has adopted the new policy is the Idle Hour, 114 East Twelfth street, owned by W. D. Scoville. Its hours now are from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock the next morning, the three hours intermission being utilized by janitors and sweepers in cleaning up.

Idle Hour Theater.

Mr. Scoville opened the all-night feature on the assumption that the three thousand and more night workers would patronize his house while waiting for the owl cars that run only every hour after 1 o'clock in the morning. So far his idea has proved successful. The first two nights, Saturday and Sunday, he made money, but on the third—blue Monday—he operated at a loss of $1.75. He believes that within thirty days, when the all-night feature becomes well known, every night will show on the right side of the ledger.

The Idle Hour has close to release date on Triangle films. It is, of course, employing three shifts of workers, the last going on at 11 o'clock at night and working until 6 o'clock in the morning. The music at night is confined to a piano.

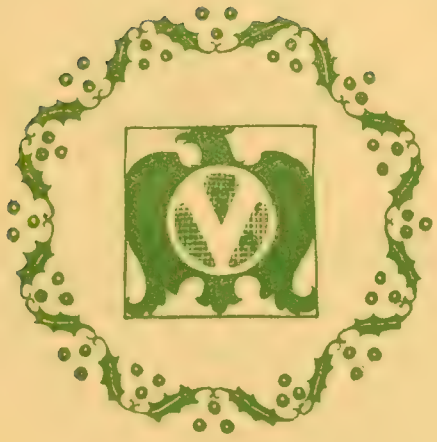
New House at Columbia, Mo.

The new theater being built in Columbia, Mo., at a cost of $35,000, will be completed about the middle of March. It will be situated closer to the state university buildings than any other show house in the city.

The Times theater, Kansas City, Mo., has been purchased by .A A. McConnell from H. R. Ross.

Work has commenced on the new Empress theater at Afton, Okla.

F. C. York is constructing a new theater at Salina, Kan., that will cost about $7,500.



Rather than give you Yuletide greetings

Rather than extend our wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year

We proclaim the continuance of the best in photoplay productions.

Furthermore, we consider that giving the exhibitor

Productions of merit only,—throughout the coming year

Is a far greater consideration than extending our best wishes.

ALBERT E. SMITH
J. STUART BLACKTON

VITAGRAPH

The best recommendation for
Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Features
Is the public attitude toward them.
From our first release,
"The Juggernaut"
Up to and including
"A Price for Folly"
Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Features
Have played to maximum crowds wherever shown

The release for January 3rd is

"Thou Art The Man"

It is a heart-interest,
heart-throbbing drama—
A lesson of goodness, of greatness, of overcoming evil.
It is a story of a life love—
Laid in the land of parched throats, of fever, of cholera.
From the pen of George Cameron, author of "A Million Bid,"
Produced by S. Rankin Drew Featuring Virginia Pearson and Joseph Kilgour,
This six-part Blue Ribbon Feature
Will prove to be epoch making.
See this on the screen—
And you will book it.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

Imagine This For a Situation!

Imagine Being Arrested and Tried for Your Own Murder!

This, in part, is the plot of the BROADWAY STAR FEATURE

"Tried For His Own Murder"

Released January 8th

Situations of this kind are of the variety that lend heart-interest to Broadway Star Features and make them the best three reelers in the world. Maurice Costello plays the dual role and is supported by such eminent screen stars as Leah Baird, Van Dyke Brooke, Harry Fisher and George Stevens.

THE STORY

Irene Garnder, a blind girl, and her invalid father are mountaineers. Ransford, on a shooting trip, visits their section. John D'Arcley, a cynic, comes to the woods and marries Irene. He has an operation performed which restores her sight. Her manner leads him to believe that she loves Ransford, so D'Arcley leaves his wife. On his way out of the country, he comes across the body of a suicide and exchanges clothes with the man. Irene mourns her husband, who is supposed to be the suicide. Ransford tries in vain to marry Irene, who later meets D'Arcley, but does not recognize him. Ransford discovers that D'Arcley's thumb-print coincides with the thumb-print found on the dead man. D'Arcley is arrested for his own murder. Irene accidentally puts her hands on D'Arcley's face and recognizes him as her husband. She realizes that this is the man she loves. He is freed.

Stories of this type make
BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
the best three reelers in the world

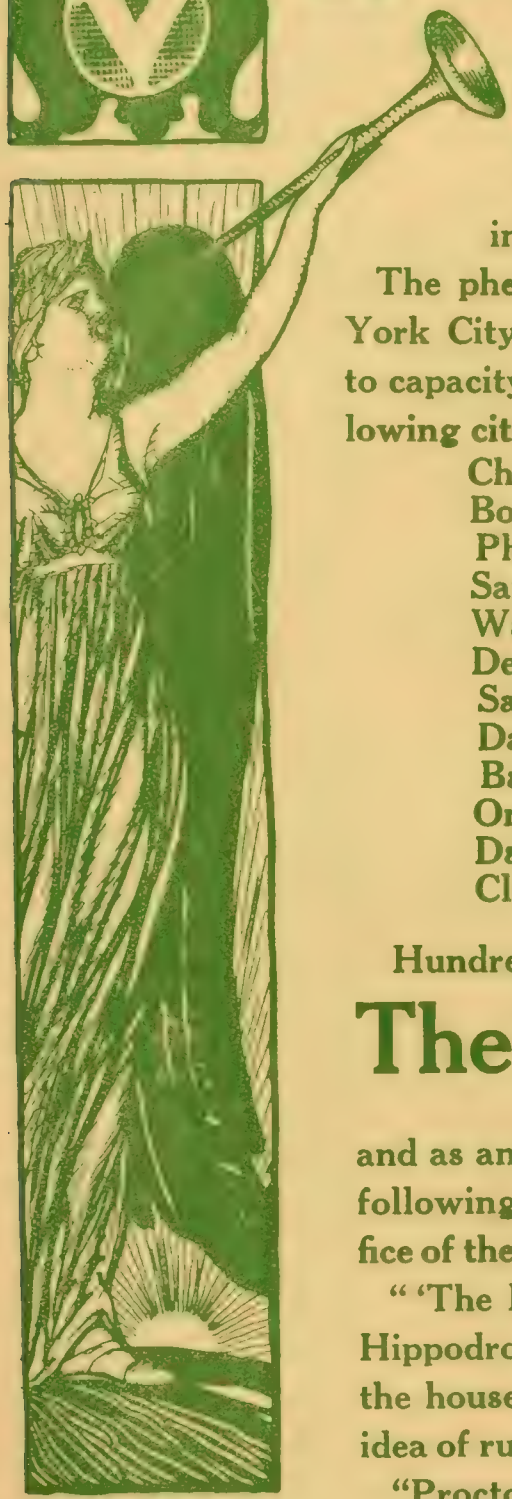
BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

A STUPENDOUS



"The Battle Cry of Peace" is now being shown in every city and hamlet in the United States.

The phenomenal run at the Vitagraph Theater, New York City, where this picture played for twelve weeks to capacity crowds, has nearly been duplicated in the following cities:

Chicago, Olympic Theater.
Boston, Majestic Theater.
Philadelphia, Metropolitan Opera House.
San Francisco, Columbia Theater.
Washington, D. C., Strand Theater.
Denver, Colo., Paris Theater.
Salt Lake, Utah, American Theater.
Dallas, Tex., Hippodrome.
Baltimore, Auditorium.
Omaha, Neb., Boyd Theater.
Dayton, Ohio, Colonial.
Cleveland, Ohio, Metropolitan.

Hundreds of other cities have played

The Battle Cry of Peace

By J. STUART BLACKTON

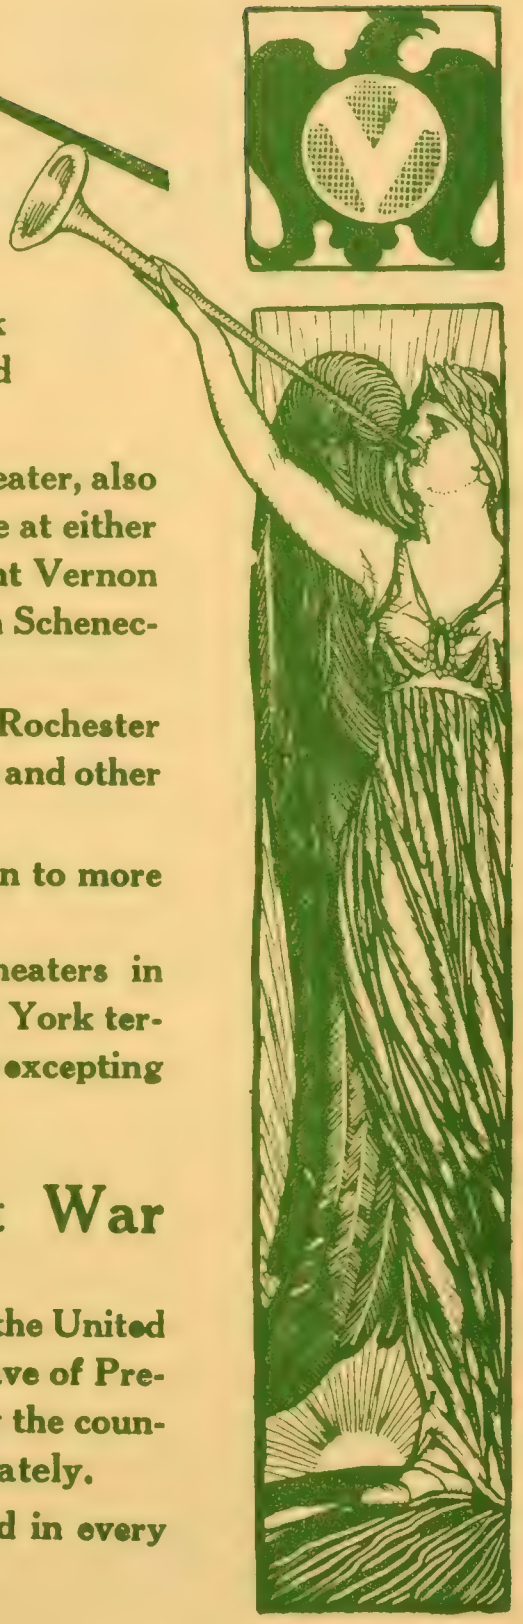
and as an example of its wonderful success we quote the following office communication from the New York office of the V-L-S-E:

"'The Battle Cry of Peace' ran three weeks at Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo. Largest business in the history of the house. Has asked for indefinite protection with the idea of running it Sundays at his big vaudeville house.

"Proctor played to capacity ten days in Albany and Troy.

The VITAGRAPH

SENSATION



On the third day in Troy, advertised ten o'clock opening. Crowd was so large that he was forced to open the doors at 8:30.

"Played two weeks at Proctor's 23d Street Theater, also at 125th Street, an unheard of thing for a picture at either one of these houses. Played one week in Mount Vernon to capacity business. Broke his house records in Schenectady.

"Is just starting a two weeks' engagement in Rochester to-morrow. Preliminary showing to the Mayor and other officials aroused tremendous enthusiasm.

"Is playing at Academy of Music in Brooklyn to more than satisfactory business at top prices.

"Upwards of 100 applications from other theaters in Brooklyn as soon as available. Success in New York territory greater than any picture ever released not excepting 'Quo Vadis' or the 'Birth of a Nation.' "

This Call to Arms Against War

By J. STUART BLACKTON

is now being shown in every city and hamlet in the United States. If you would take advantage of the wave of Preparedness and Patriotism that is overwhelming the country, book "The Battle Cry of Peace" immediately.

A sufficient number of prints are now on hand in every V-L-S-E office to take care of you.

CO of AMERICA

PERSONALLY · PICKED PROGRAM

JANUARY 10th

"THE SURPRISES OF AN EMPTY HOTEL," Four-Part Drama

Produced by Theodore Marston Written by Archibald Clavering Gunter

Featuring Charles Richman, Arline Pretty and Other Eminent Vitagraph Stars

and

'A CRIPPLE CREEK CINDERELLA," - - - Comedy-Drama

Featuring William Duncan, Carleton Weatherby and George Stanley

REGULAR RELEASES

THE LITTLE TRESPASSER

Comedy-Drama .....Monday, Jan. 3rd

Presenting Jewell Hunt, Harry Fisher and James Morrison

HIS WIFE KNEW ABOUT IT

Comedy .....Friday, Jan. 7th

Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew

TRIED FOR HIS OWN MURDER

Drama .....Saturday, Jan. 8th

An All-Star Cast, Including Maurice Costello, Leah Baird, Van Dyke Brooke, George Stevens and Harry Fisher

THE PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM

coupled with REGULAR VITAGRAPH releases will give an exhibitor all that can be desired in the way of photoplay entertainment.

But we do not ask you to pick our subjects in the dark. We want you to see them on the screen.

VITAGRAPH—That's all you need to know about a film.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

HEART-INTEREST • the KEY-NOTE of NEWS.

Of all the publications in the world, those under the control of William Randolph Hearst handle news from the HEART-INTEREST side.

This is because of the fact that HEARST employs the brains of the newspaper industry.

A NEWS REEL SHOULD CONTAIN HEART-INTEREST.

The telling of the story should be done in an interesting manner.

THIS MEANS MEN TRAINED IN THE PROPER INTERPRETATION OF NEWS.

For over four years the Hearst organization has been training news camera men. These men know news. They have been experimenting for four years and have arrived at a state of perfection that other news weeklies must strive to meet.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH
NEWS PICTORIAL
(Formerly • HEARST-SELIG • Now Better)

EVERY CITY EDITOR ON EVERY HEARST PUBLICATION IS WORKING FOR YOU.

HEARST CITY EDITORS HAVE THEIR FINGERS ON THE PULSE OF THE POPULACE.

When a story breaks, the Hearst Publications get this story and the cameraman is assigned from the city desk.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH

We do not depend upon outside sources for our news.

We accumulate it, gather it and get it direct.

This is because of the fact that the men behind HEARST-VITAGRAPH are all experts in their lines.

Every man is a trained news man.

HEARST-

NEWS

(Formerly HEARST-SELIG

THE NAME VITAGRAPH STANDS FOR EFFICIENCY IN MOTION PICTURES.

The facilities of its enormous plants are such that the HEARST-VITAGRAPH News Reel will BEAT ALL OTHERS IN THE FIELD FROM TWO TO THREE DAYS.

At the gigantic Vitagraph plant the famous TOM POWERS CARTOONS (animated by Raoul Borne) are made.

Tom Powers is the man who makes millions laugh. His little "joys and glooms" will caper for your audiences.

The Tom Powers cartoons will be an innovation in animated cartoons.

Five hundred newspapers today are using the great Tom Powers cartoons. Every one of these newspapers is an advertisement for your theatre.

VITAGRAPH

PICTORIAL

Now Better)

THE STUPENDOUS V.L.S.E ORGANIZATION WILL DISTRIBUTE HEARST-VITAGRAPH

Every office in the country will have a sufficient number of prints to give a great number of theatres a top run of this service.

The first release of HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL will be early in January.

Wire, write or 'phone the nearest V-L-S-E exchange.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH
NEWS PICTORIAL
(Formerly · HEARST-SELIG · Now Better)

The Orpheum, Pittsburg, Kan., that was destroyed by fire recently, will be rebuilt.

Work has commenced on the new Smith theater at Concordia, Kan. It will be completed in January.

George Beach, proprietor of the Lyric, Concordia, Kan., has leased the new theater being constructed there. He will operate both houses.

The Fowler building, Lucas, Kan., is being remodeled and will be operated as a motion picture theater by Lewis O'Brien.

The police had to be called to clear a way in front of the Maze theater, Twelfth and Baltimore streets, Kansas City, when the Fox film, "Sin," featuring Theda Bara, was shown there December 12. Five thousand persons visited the show house during the day. H. B. Allen, manager of the Maze, has signed a contract to use the Fox service four days each week.

ST. LOUIS AMUSEMENT CO.'S NEW HOUSE OPENS.

Ritz Theater, 208-210 North Sixth Street, Begins All Picture Program.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The Ritz theater, 208-210 N. Sixth street, opened on December 11th with an all picture bill, under the management of the St. Louis Amusement Co., which is composed of several young business men of the city, and of which company F. H. Van Craenbroeck is vice president and general manager. The Ritz is very beautifully finished in old ivory, gold and blue, with a sunken lettered sign out of which the name Ritz stands out prominently. On the roof are two blue and gold pennants with the name of the house on the field in red. The interior of the house is handsomely furnished with hangings and paintings that are all in harmony with the color scheme of old ivory, blue and gold. There are many exits to the theater, and a good orchestra to furnish the music. A clock in the middle one of the three arches over the screen enables the patrons of the Ritz to know the correct time all during the performance, which begins at 11 in the morning and lasts until 11 at night. The house seats 1,000, and ten cents admission is charged for all seats.

NEW HOUSE ON PESTALOZZI.

A new $10,000 motion picture theater is being erected at 2841 Pestalozzi street, which will be opened early in the new year by John and Samuel Ernie. The house will seat 800, and charge five cents on five days of the week, and on the other two nights which will be feature nights, the admission will be ten cents. The equipment was furnished by the Lears Theater Supply Co., and was installed in record breaking time, everything being ready for business four days after the order was placed.

NO-TENT BILL PASSED.

After September 1, 1917, no more tents can be erected in St. Louis for the purpose of exhibiting moving pictures. The bill to prohibit tent shows was passed by the Board of Aldermen, and only requires the signature of the mayor to become a law, and in that event, not only will the putting up of tents be prohibited, but all existing shows of the kind must cease after that date.

NEW COMMUNITY THEATER.

Plans for a new moving picture theater and airdome are being drawn up by a Chicago architect for a company composed of residents in the Cabanne district, who want to have a moving picture theater in their neighborhood. These men and women have organized a stock company, and will build the theater on a site already selected, which has an adjoining lot to be used as an airdome. The plan is to have the theater always in readiness for a cool night or a rainy one, even in the middle of the summer, so that the patron will know that he can see a show no matter how inclement the weather. The structure will be fireproof.

St. Louis Theaters

World Representative Calls on Many Prosperous Picture Houses Along Franklin and Easton Avenues—Begins with the Famous and Continues Till He Reaches the Fairy, Fifty-six Blocks Away.

By A. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Correspondent of The World made a trip of exploration out Franklin and Easton avenues the other night. Franklin avenue started out to be one of the longest business streets in the city, but after it had stretched out for a mile and a half it turned the job over to Easton avenue, which goes stepping right on out for more than six miles clear into the tall grass of the county.

No Blues at the Famous.

We began with a call at the Famous, which is at 615 Franklin avenue, right in the heart of the north end shopping district. Miss Tillie Schwartz manages the Famous, and is the financial secretary of the Exhibitors' League of St. Louis. "How's business?" we asked. "Not so bad," she replied, "considering the holidays." "Not nearly so bad as this time last year," we supplemented. "No, indeed." And this was the story we heard all along the line. After a few minutes at the Famous we went over to the Majestic.

At the Majestic.

The Majestic is the big, fine new place operated by the McKinley Amusement Co. under the personal management of A. D. Pappas, one of the company. The Majestic is one of the handsomest theaters on the street, has an elegantly furnished rest room, is fireproof all the way through, and is well patronized. The Majestic was showing the Pathe Gold Rooster feature, "At Bay," with Florence Reed. This picture has created much favorable comment among exhibitors.

Found Geraldine at the Palace.

After leaving Mr. Pappas we walked to the Palace just for the exercise, only three short blocks, where Scherrer Brothers have been holding forth for the last six or seven years. The Scherrers are sticklers for good projection, and their pictures are as sharp as a knife. The Palace showed Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen" last week and did nice business with it, and the manager's report is that things are moving along nice and smooth.

Saw Plaikos' Good Audience.

The Marquette, at 18th and Franklin, was the next stop. There we found Geo. Plaikos with a good audience, and full of pride over the improvements to his theater. The Marquette is about a year and a half old, and has had to be enlarged and rebuilt recently to accommodate the patrons. Mr. Plaikos voiced the prevailing sentiment, business not alarmingly good but better than this time last year.

Xmas Greens at Mrs. Snawder's Theater

After the Marquette we did not stop until we came to the Criterion, a theater presided over by a woman, Mrs. Nellie Snawder. She took it over at the death of her husband and has a very neat and snug little place. She was just through decorating it with Christmas green, and much red and gold paper.

Manager Compton's Novel Heater.

The street splits up here, and Easton Avenue begins. The next stop was at the Compton theater, where Wm. McDonald has solved the problem of heating a cold lobby by building a sheet iron drum around the stove. The heat is stored in this drum and a big fan forces it out into the lobby, which is as warm as toast. The stove heats the theater at the same time.

A Big Neighborhood House.

It was only a hop, step and a jump to the Novelty, on Grand and Easton. The Novelty was the first big neighborhood house in St. Louis to show pictures. It is a fine place. Six or seven years ago it was the talk of the town, but of late years the place has had hard sledding, and has been operated under many managements. A month ago it was reopened under the direction of the Koplar Brothers, and when we reached the place it looked like old times at the Novelty. The house has been refurnished and brightened, and an excellent program of big features put on, and it looks very much as if the Novelty had come into its own again. S. E. Koplar is the manager, assisted by his brother Harry, who was at the King's until that house went over to the Triangle program.

Doll Contest at the Alps.

The next stop was at the Alps, 4066 Easton. The Wagner Brothers manage the Alps and Gabe Wagner was one of the earliest film distributors in the middle west. He was also one of the original officers and stockholders of the Swanson-Crawford Film Co. The Alps was in the throes of a doll contest. Twenty beautiful dolls were displayed in the box office windows, and coupons were given to the children. The best doll will be awarded to the child having the largest number of coupons, and so on down the line.

At W. E. Young's Popular House.

After the Alps we stopped in and visited with Wm. Young, of the Taylor-Easton, on Taylor and Easton avenues. Mr. Young is a manager that has put the personal note in his business to a large degree, and his theater is one of the most popular in the neighborhood in consequence. There is not a man, woman or child that gets into the Taylor-Easton without a pleasant greeting from its manager.

At the Euclid.

The Euclid was next on the line. The Euclid is at 4869 Easton, and is again under the management of J. J. Macklin, its owner. Mr. Macklin rented the house out last year, but has it in his own charge now. The 12th episode of "Neal of the Navy" was on when we arrived and Bessie Learn, with "A Sprig of Shamrock," was pleasing the crowd when we left.

At the End of a Long Walk.

We had hoped to go the entire length of the six-mile street when we started out. Gerald Wagner, of the Alps, said we wouldn't get any further than the Taylor-Easton, but we were one lap ahead of his prediction when we reached the Euclid and just to prove that he didn't know we forged on ahead out to the Fairy, which is 56 blocks from downtown. There we found August Roettger and his wife emulating the doctor who wasn't afraid to take his own medicine. The Roettgers were looking at their own program, seated in chairs just as if they had paid admission. Mr. Roettger is one of the most successful picture men in the business. He has a good house in a good neighborhood, and his theater is growing more prosperous year by year. He is a great believer in serials. "I am giving them the 'Red Circle,' 'Graft,' 'Stingaree,' 'Helen Holmes,' and will start the 'Mysterious Bag' after the first of January," he said. The Fairy is noted for having the champion moving picture patron of St. Louis in the person of Mrs. Barbara Guentert, who has missed but two shows in the last seven years. Mrs. Guentert was extensively written up in the local press last year. There are two other theaters on the street, but it was closing time and the Mikado and the Orpheum will have to go over until another week.

Texas Mutual Sold

Mutual Film Corporation of Tennessee Buys Texas Mutual Organization—New General Manager for the Southwest Territory Will Be C. A. Clegg—Present Branch Managers Will Remain—Personal Notes.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS TEXAS.—The business of the Mutual interests in Texas has undergone a very radical change, amounting to almost an entire reorganization. The personnel of the Texas district, it is understood, will be practically unchanged, except as to additions.

The Mutual Film Corporation of Tennessee, headquarters Memphis, took out a permit to do business in Texas and purchased the Mutual Film Corporation of Texas lock, stock and barrel.

C A. Clegg, of the Tennessee corporation, succeeds J. D. Wheelan as general manager for the southwest territory. Managers for the branch offices will for the present remain unchanged.

J. R. McIlheran, formerly of the Picture Playhouse Film company's Dallas office, will take charge of the Mutual Masterpictures. D. E. Boswell will take the road as a special assistant to the manager. "The Girl and the Game" will be the special charge of C. M. Ketterick. On the road he will be assisted by E. C. Leeves. Mr. Clegg is an experienced film man, having been in the business from the very start. He was at one time with the General, later being northwest manager for the Universal.

THEATRICAL CLUB ORGANIZED.

New Dallas Club Has Fifty Charter Members, Many Picture Men.

The Dallas Theatrical club, of Dallas, Texas, was organized December 17 with fifty charter members. Preparations were at once made for the opening of the clubrooms, with cafe, buffet and other modern conveniences. Plans are being made for a grand housewarming on New Year's eve.

The officials expect to have fully 250 members within a short time. Dallas is the distributing point of the entire southwest for the moving picture trade and is situated in the center of theatrical circuits for the same territory; therefore, the club hopes to make Dallas the Mecca for members of the theatrical profession, as it now is for the moving picture men. It is also hoped to make the clubrooms the social and business meeting place for both branches of the amusement-supplying interests.

The club has been chartered under the Theatrical Mechanical Association. Stephen von Puhl, manager of the Majestic (vaudeville) theater, was elected president; "Ned" Depinet, manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply company's Dallas office, vice-president; Horace Meyers, treasurer; Sam Bullman, secretary; E. T. Peter, Dallas manager of the United Film Service, sergeant-at-arms; Albert Russell, David D. Reed (Metro) and Simon Scharninsky, trustees.

Waco Wants Sunday Pictures.

An initiative petition is being circulated in Waco, Texas, asking for an election to decide the question of Sunday exhibitions of moving pictures. The sentiment seems to favor the opening of the houses, but it will take the election to show whether it is strong enough.

An Error.

The Majestic theater, at Marlin, Texas, is owned by J. C. Chatmas, a recent erroneous notice having given the credit to another. The Majestic is, we understand, the largest and finest exclusive picture house in the city.

Dallas Territory Notes.

"Joe" Wheelan is having some repairs done on the New Strand (formerly the Phillips) theater, Fort Worth.

McKinney, Texas, had an epidemic of scarlet fever early in December and the city council requested the picture houses to close, but later compromised on the thorough fumigating of all houses each night. One house reports running a feature picture to two ten-cent admissions. At last reports conditions were improving and were expected soon to reach normal.

Macklyn Arbuckle was in Dallas in "The New Henrietta" cast December 15-18, and at the same time the Queen theater was showing "The Reform Candidate" (Paramount), and the screen house made good use of the big fellow's presence in the city in advertising.

J. D. Wheelan, former Texas manager for the Mutual, has announced no new connection, but indications are that he will hook up with the Paramount.

Charles A. Meade, southwest manager for V-L-S-E, made a business trip to New Orleans week of December 13-18, and reports trade conditions there very good. Mr. Meade insists on the "very."

H. C. Northfleet, of Houston, Texas, proprietor of the new Globe theater at that place, has been up looking for holiday attractions.

Saul Harris, head of the Gem Amusement company, Little Rock, Ark., put in a day looking over holiday specials in Dallas exchanges.

Charles Kimball, of McKinney, Texas, proprietor of the Pope theater, was another seeker for Yuletide attractions in the Dallas offices.

W. M. Richardson, an El Paso, Texas, exhibitor, spent a couple of days with the Dallas exchanges.

C. P. Lewis & Son, of Marlin, Texas, former owners of the Orpheum, are constructing a new house.

The Elk theater, Italy, Texas, has been overhauled and re-equipped, among other improvements being an entire set of seats. The Elk is managed by J. C. Couch.

NEW ORLEANS NEWS NOTES.

Personals—Interesting Items from Local Exchanges.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—P. O. Blankenship will enlarge the Isis theater. The seating capacity will be about doubled.

Ross Hardenbrook, formerly of the Mutual New Orleans office, is the new manager for the World Film Corporation.

S. T. Stevens has taken charge of the Mutual interests in New Orleans. Mr. Stevens was recently with Fox here.

H. G. Morrow, of the Jacksonville, Fla., office of the General Film Company, has been transferred to the New Orleans office of the same company.

It is unofficially stated that Francis J. Gilbert, road man for the World in the New Orleans territory, will be given charge of the company's exchange here.

PRAIRIE STATES' NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

In Nebraska.

DAVID CITY, NEB.—The Community Theater Company of David City, Neb., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,500 to own and operate an amusement and community auditorium, including moving pictures, plays, dramas, banquet and other recreative purposes for profit. There are twenty-five shares of stock at $100 each. The incorporators are W. W. Hughes, Carlisle King and Robert R. Smith.

A program "particularly adapted for children," given at one of the Saturday morning shows of the Boyd theater in Omaha, included the Keystone "A Rascal's Wolfish Way," "Keeping Up with the Joneses" and "Stanley in Darkest Africa."

Nebraska Changes, Etc.

Joseph Wolff and A. D. Booker have sold the Rex theater at Nebraska City to A. D. Williams, of Tecumseh, Neb.

Harry Sohns has closed the Empress theater at Alliance, Neb.

Paul Fuller has purchased the Empress theater at Staunton, Neb.

L. M. Shahan, of Casey, Ia., has purchased a moving picture theater at Florence, Neb.

The Magnet theater at Magnet, Neb., has been sold to G. B. Crellin and R. Dodson.

William Kuhl succeeds N. N. Baker as manager of the Pospeshil theater at Bloomington, Neb.

A. D. Lord has opened a moving picture show in the Ball building at Holbrook, Neb.

A new moving picture theater will be opened in the Storz building at Papillion, Neb.

Chosen Iowa Notes.

CHARLES CITY, IA. — Ministers of Charles City, Ia., secured from Judge C. H. Kelley an injunction restraining Charles City moving picture houses from carrying out their advertised plan of giving shows on Sunday. The exhibitors will make a test case in the courts.

The new local censorship ordinance proposed in Davenport, Ia., gives the mayor power to refuse permits for the exhibition of any film that is deemed objectionable by the censors.

The management of the Unique theater at Des Moines, Ia., has adopted the policy of reviewing every picture before it is exhibited to the public.

Iowa Changes, Etc.

Arthur Mitchell has opened a moving picture show in the remodeled Palace theater at Lynnville, Ia.

Manager Morehead has renamed the Majestic at Moorhead, Ia., and it is now the Rex theater.

J. H. Pooler, of Lake City, has purchased the Princess theater at Ida Grove, Ia.

LeRoy Davis has purchased the Grand theater at Toledo, Ia., from A. H. Erickson.

G. W. Seeger has purchased a moving picture theater at Sloan, Ia.

A. D. Tinsley has sold his interest in the Lyric theater at Corning, Ia., to Peregrine Bros.

W. G. Woolery has purchased the Orpheum theater at Oelwein, Ia.

C. F. Toedt is increasing the capacity of his opera house at Laurel, Ia.

Mr. and Mrs. Teddy Thomson have been making arrangements to start a moving picture theater at Manning, Ia.

The Grand at Burlington, Ia., had a "Hawaiian Quartette" on the bill with its start of the Triangle Service.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" was booked for the Garden theater at Davenport, Ia., for December 28, 29 and 30.

"An Alien" played a return engagement at the A-Muse-U in Clinton, Ia.

Theater Changes in the Dakotas.

THE DAKOTAS.—George M. Johnson has sold the Jewel theater at Vienna, S. D., to John Knaddle, Jr.

J. J. Reiter, of Martin, N. D., has purchased the moving picture theater at Drake, N. D., from Henry L. Thorson.

Frank Woskie, of St. Paul, has purchased the Gem theater at Hankinson, N. D., from Paul Kunert.

V. W. Harris has been making arrangements to open a moving picture show at Willow Lake, S. D.

L. Mitchell has opened a moving picture theater in the Walker Hotel building at Anamoose, N. D.

W. J. and F. H. Wulff, who have opened a new moving picture theater on Eighth street, on the east side of Sioux Falls, S. D., have named it the Lyceum theater.

SAN FRANCISCO NEWSLETS.

Eugene Roth, manager of the Portola theater, made a short business trip to Los Angeles recently to arrange for the presentation of "The Battle Cry of Peace" in that city.

Sol L. Lesser, head of the Golden Gate Film exchange and the All-Star Features, is away on a business trip to New York and will not return until early in January.

Fred Peachy, formerly manager for the United Film Service, has accepted a position as road representative with the Mutual Film.

V. I. Santell, of the Family theater, Kingsburg, Cal., was a recent visitor here to look over film offerings. He is one of the youngest exhibitors in the state.

The Home theater has been reopened by J. Cohen, of Corte Madera, Cal., after having been closed for a time.

The remodeling of the Glen Odeon theater in the Mission district has been completed and this house has been reopened as the Diamond theater.

Sam Harris, of the Hippodrome, is making a hurried business trip to Portland, Ore.

On December 16 the Pals club observed Sid Grauman night in the new quarters of the organization at Stockton and O'Farrell streets. A large crowd was present to do honor to this popular theater manager.

J. G. Godfrey, of the Grand, Vacaville, Cal., paid a visit to this city a short time ago to arrange for attractions.

R. W. Horn, who had charge of the exhibit of the Nicholas Power company at the Exposition during the past year, is now making his headquarters with G. A. Metcalfe and will remain here for an indefinite time.

No successor to A. W. Goffe has been sent to the Coast headquarters of the V-L-S-E as yet, and it is not known here who will fill the position of district manager.

I. H. Lichtenstein, of the Globe Film exchange, has returned from a trip by automobile through the San Joaquin valley. He found conditions showing an improvement, particularly in the citrus belt.

California Items.

The Pastime at Fresno, Cal., has been reopened by Mrs. L. Jones. A Baird projection machine has been installed.

The Strand at Sacramento, Cal., is now being conducted by the Dieppenbrock estate, owners of the building. W. S. Webster, who formerly had this theater, will continue to operate the Strand at Woodland.

Kufolias & Hildebrand have added a second Power's Cameragraph No. 6A to the equipment of their operating rooms.

The Manzanita club at Carmel, Cal., has purchased moving picture equipment and will give entertainments regularly.

H. Kabayashi left San Francisco recently with a traveling moving picture outfit and will give an illustrated lecture on "A Trip Through the Orient."

CRACKSMEN FIRE THEATER.

The Liberty theater at San Jose, Cal., near San Francisco, was entered by cracksmen a few nights ago, after the regular performance, and efforts were made to blow the safe. Nitro-glycerine was used and the outer door blown off, but the thieves were unable to get into the inner compartment. The explosion set fire to the office, and this was discovered only when the flames came through the roof. The fire department subdued the blaze after a stubborn fight, and it was then found that the damage was confined to the front of the house. The operating room next to the office was of fireproof construction and nothing in it was damaged, although the film stored there was hot when taken out. The lobby was cleaned up and temporary repairs made, enabling the house to be opened as usual in the evening, one matinee only being lost.

Censors Back Down

Berkeley, California, Censor Board Issues Order Prohibiting Showing of "Clansman"—Threats of Injunction Cause Reconsideration—Film Booked for Six Days in College City at T. & D. Theater.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BERKELEY, CAL.—The recent announcement of the Turner & Dahnken circuit to the effect that the "Clansman" would be shown at its Berkeley house for six days, commencing December 20th, brought forth the usual quota of protests from negro organizations, and for a time it seemed as though these might be effective. The members of the board of censorship, which is composed of Chief of Police Vollmer, Frank McAllister and Miss M. E. Stanford, acted upon the protests, and notices were served upon the theater management that the film would not be allowed to be shown there.

As the production had been allowed to be shown for thirty weeks in San Francisco and the efforts to censor it in Oakland had failed miserably, the Turner & Dahnken circuit decided to proceed with its original plans for presenting it. Attorney Benard Silverstein, of Oakland, announced to the city officials that he would apply for an injunction to prevent Chief of Police Vollmer and the board of censors from interfering with any of the performances, and the city attorney rendered an opinion to the effect that there were no legal objections to the film. The censorship decision was then rescinded and the film will be shown in the same form as in the other cities around the Bay.

NEW BOARD OF TRADE MANAGER.

At a recent meeting of the members of the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco a successor was chosen to R. E. Stebbins, who gave up the position of manager a short time ago to join the forces of the Progressive Motion Picture company. The new manager chosen, Fred W. Voight, is well known in local film circles, having for some time been with the Mutual and previously in the amusement field at Fresno. He will be remembered by many on account of the highly successful manner in which he introduced Mutual Masterpictures in northern California and through the efforts he recently put forth to secure the approval of the local board of censorship to "Damaged Goods." He enters upon his new duties with a thorough knowledge of conditions in the local exchange field and with the confidence of the members of the board of trade.

IMPROVEMENTS AT EXCHANGE.

The Progressive Motion Picture company, located on the sixth floor of the Pacific building, has completed extensive additions and alterations to its quarters and prides itself on having one of the most attractive film exchanges on the Pacific Coast. Another large room has been added to the office section, all of the partitions have been removed and a glass front installed. New fixtures have been put in and the quarters renovated throughout. Additional space has also been added across the hall, where the stock and inspection departments are maintained. A fireproof inspection room has been fitted up and adjoining this a storage vault, with a storage capacity of six thousand reels of film, has been constructed. Frank McCoy, who for some time has had charge of the shipping, has been placed in charge of the Paramount travel series and news films and Don Palmerton has been made manager of the shipping department.

WAR PICTURES PROVE POPULAR

German was pictures have been shown during the past week at the German house, under the direction of the Golden Gate Film Exchange, Inc., and so heavy has been the demand to see these, despite the location of the house, that they will be kept there for a second week. "At the Front with the Allies" is being shown with great success at the Empire theater, on Market street, near Fifth, while the Columbia theater is being packed day and night by "Fighting for France."

MORRIS L. MARKOWITZ.

San Francisco has produced a number of men who have made their mark in the film exchange world and one of the most successful of these is Morris L. Markowitz, who first engaged in the business seven years ago. In some lines this would be a very brief period, but in this new industry it stamps him as being in the pioneer class. In fact, he is one of the oldest in point of service now in the business here. His start in business was not very romantic, his capital being but two hundred dollars and his quarters a small office in the Phelan building, in this city.

The business grew and Mr. Markowitz kept pace with it, being one of the first handlers of film to inaugurate a daily change in service. Soon he moved to Mission street. In time these quarters were outgrown and a large store was taken over at 54 Seventh street, where the California Film Exchange, Inc., remained for three years. A year ago the present quarters on Golden Gate avenue were taken over and here one of the largest and best conducted exchanges on the Pacific Coast is maintained. Two floors are occupied, each covering an area of 37 by 137 feet, a unique feature being a driveway into the lower floor, enabling the loading of film shipments directly into the express trucks.

M. L. Markowitz.

About the time this move was made the Universal interests bought the Pacific Coast exchanges at a price that netted Mr. Markowitz a handsome profit. He continues as general manager in this territory and handles the business the same as when he was the sole owner, many of his customers not being aware that any change has been made. In addition to the San Francisco exchange, there are branches at Los Angeles and Phoenix, the territory covered including California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii.

Mr. Markowitz is looked upon as the dean of the film exchange business here and upon the formation of the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco was elected its president.

UNITED EXCHANGE VISITED.

Manny Feldstein, representing Leo C. Stern, receiver for the United Film Service, was here recently on a trip of inspection and made a careful examination of the affairs of the local exchange. The working force at this exchange has been cut down to a minimum number in an effort to reduce expenses.

The Strand Theater company has been incorporated by N. A. Eisner, L. M. Manley and H. R. Schulthers, with a capital stock of $50,000.

The firm of G. A. Metcalfe & Co. has been incorporated at Los Angeles to engage in the supply business by George R. Metcalfe, James Slipper and William Klein, with a capital stock of $10,000.

A moving picture outfit secured at the Exposition has been installed in the Veterans' home at Yountville, Cal.

Youthful Censors

Sincerity of Society Maidens' Purposes in Viewing Films Is Questioned by a Portland, Oregon, Daily Paper—Practice of Permitting Young Girls to Act as Viewers Condemned.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The Portland Oregonian recently published an interview with a young lady on the committee of motion picture viewers which led the reporter on the daily paper to question whether or not the viewing of motion pictures was a rational and sane undertaking on behalf of the city's morals or merely slumming parties indulged in by the young women of Portland's 400 to delve into the risque and sub rosa under the cloak of semi-official authority.

Several weeks ago one of the city's active club women called the writer's attention to the fact that many of the 40 odd viewers were girls and young women in their early twenties, lacking in those experiences which give weight to the judgments of older people. Exhibitiors are condemning the board's policy of permitting immature minds to pass judgment upon the pictures, but exchange men who expressed themselves on the subject favored the younger viewers if censorship must be tolerated. Mrs. E. B. Colwell, secretary of the board, admitted that many of the viewers subject to her call belong to the younger set of society women. She said, however, that these young women were rarely permitted to view alone, usually accompanying an older woman.

BACK TO TWO CHANGES WEEKLY.

About the time the downtown theaters in Portland raised their prices to 15 cents an understanding was had between some of them that they would maintain a policy of showing but one change per week. After a thorough trial this policy has proved unsuccessful and all houses concerned have gone back to two changes a week.

The Majestic has booked Pathe Gold Rooster plays under a year's contract and will use two services during the week. The Sunset, which has been using second run features for some time, will commence showing only first runs on the first of the year. Second run shows have never proven satisfactory in any of Portland's downtown houses.

SELIG-TRIBUNE BRANCH HERE.

Portland is fortunate in being selected as one of the three cities on the Pacific Coast which will be the headquarters for a representative of the new Selig-Tribune Weekly. The other two cities are Los Angeles and San Francisco.

E. B. Lockwood, who will represent the Pacific Northwest, arrived in Portland Dec. 17. From Portland he will cover Oregon, Northern California, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Southwestern Canada. With this large territory full of picturable happenings and the yet unphotographed wealth of scenery to draw from, some wonderful pictures will undoubtedly be sent to the home office by Mr. Lockwood, who is a proved live wire.

PURCHASER ALLEGES FRAUD.

E. M. Blackford, a Portland printer, purchased a moving picture theater at Cottage Grove, in Southern Oregon, and from June 6, 1915, to Nov. 19, 1915, he lost $1,-141.60 in the venture. He recently filed suit in the Circuit Court against W. B. Cooper and R. G. Nixon, of whom he purchased the theater, for $2,967.90 damages, alleging that the business was misrepresented to him and that he was induced to purchase by the statements of Cooper and Nixon that the house was making a nice profit each month.

CO-OPERATIVE AGREEMENT.

A. Finkelstein, with the Northwest Feature Film Company, Portland, returned recently from a trip through Eastern Oregon and Idaho. He stated that the theaters in Ontario, Oregon and Caldwell, Nampa, Weiser and Payette, Idaho, have entered into a co-operative agreement whereby a circuit has been formed for booking features in that territory. They have agreed to charge 25 cents for "Cabiria," which the Northwest people have booked in the towns named.

Will Boost "The Girl and the Game."

Manager Reed of the Portland Mutual branch has made room in his office for John R. Meldrum, special representative for "The Girl and the Game," who is in this territory in the interests of his picture. Mr. Meldrum will cover the territory served out of Portland and Seattle. He was formerly manager of the Universal branch in Seattle.

Universal Man Visitor.

E. H. Goldstein, assistant to the general manager of exchanges for Universal, with headquarters in New York City, passed several weeks in Portland recently looking after the interests of the company. Mr. Goldstein's itinerary includes all the big cities on the coast and he spent a short time in Seattle before coming to Portland.

Eastern Oregon Theater Notes.

The Star theater, Heppner, Oregon, has been sold by R. A. Redifer to Sparks & Hale. Sparks was a former owner of the house.

After a trip to Portland S. A. Gardinier, of L Grande, Oregon, evidently gave up the idea of building another house in the Eastern Oregon city, and upon his return he again became manager of the Arcade theater there. J. C. Stille, whom the People's Amusement company, lessees of the Arcade, sent to La Grande to manage it, has returned to Portland.

One on Pathe.

The Temple theater, Pendleton, Ore., Downey & Rhodes, owners, purposing to advertise Pathe Gold Rooster Plays, borrowed a Rhode Island Red rooster from a local fancier and, without the owner's consent, painted it with bronze. The bird proved to be a prize fowl, valued for its plumage and as the bronze failed to come off, the poultry man is demanding $50 from the showmen as the value of the rooster.

Chosen News Items.

Portland will have a patriotic week. "Guarding Old Glory" is booked to show at the National the week of Dec. 26, and "The Battle Cry of Peace" will be at the Heilig commencing Christmas Day.

The Comus theater, Gold Hill, Oregon, has changed hands.

Pete Sabo, who conducts an exclusive motion picture machine repair shop in Portland, has acquired an agency for Simplex machines.

I. D. Straus and Norvin Haas, who recently purchased the Crystal at Astoria, were recent visitors in Portland buying new equipment for their house, which is being remodeled. Two hundred and fifty seats will be added.

Other film men in Portland from out of town were: E. R. Redlick, Fox Films, Seattle; George Endert, World road man, Seattle; S. Danz, Star theater, Astoria, and B. J. Callahan, Critic theater, Seaside.

The Portland T. M. A., of which many Portland film men are members, is somewhat disgruntled over the fact that contrary to the usual custom, the Orpheum has declined to allow the T. M. A. the use of its house or acts for the annual midnight matinee on New Year's Eve, but will run a competing show.

L. A. Todd, manager of the General Film Company's Portland branch, played host on Dec. 18 when he invited Portland's exhibitors to attend a private showing of Vitagraph's Unit Program at the Sunset theater.

Manager Paul E. Noble, of the National, Portland, has inaugurated special matinees for children on Saturdays and on Christmas he has arranged to distribute toys to all his young patrons.

WILL BORROW THE LIBERTY.

Spokane Federation of Women's Organizations to Have Benefit.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of The Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The ways and means committee of the City Federation of Women's Organizations has arranged with the management of the Liberty theater to take over the house for one day after Christmas and operate it for the benefit of the federation. The women will be given charge on that day and the proceeds above the actual cost of operation will be turned over to them.

By this plan the club women expect to remove the debt with which the federation is handicapped. They will endeavor to make the occasion a unique one and there will be women ushers and doorkeepers. Federation members will preside over the theater generally. Wednesday or Thursday following Christmas is the day that probably will be given to the federation.

PRAISES THE "PEACE" FEATURE.

Prominent Citizens of German Blood Believe in the Picture.

Mrs. H. M. Prager, a prominent local club woman, came to the defense of "The Battle Cry of Peace," the national preparedness film which was shown privately, to an invited audience, at the Clemmer theater.

"As far as the subject is concerned," said Mrs. Prager, "I will say that no one who has seen the film can doubt the necessity of a large army and navy.

"The remarks that the Germans of the city would take exception to the film I shall take occasion to dispute as a native of Germany, although now a loyal American citizen. There was nothing in the film that any German would find occasion to censor. It is an unfortunate fact that atrocities will follow in the wakes of war. Whether committed by Germans or other nations, they are to be regretted.

"I consider this film to be the greatest educator and most scientific work of its kind ever put before the public. No medium other than the film could give the public what is offered in this. If I might make a suggestion to Dr. H. S. Clemmer, I would say that no child under school age should be admitted because it could not possibly comprehend a great work of this kind and might suffer in consequence from nervous tension which older people would not feel so keenly."

OPPOSITION TO "PEACE" FILM.

Some strong opposition to the presentation in Spokane of the big Vitagraph production, "The Battle Cry of Peace," developed on the part of some of the 200 persons who viewed the production in the Clemmer. The fight threatens to equal that against the "Birth of a Nation," in which Dr. Clemmer was successful. The Rev. Conrad Bluhm is taking the lead for the ministers and Mrs. G. E. Dyer, president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, aims to interest the women. The Rev. Mr. Bluhm said: "I am bitterly opposing the showing of the picture in Spokane because it totally misrepresents the facts in the matter of preparedness.

The statistics of the American army are not correct. It also presents the Boy Scouts in a false light as a military organization which is a part of the militaristic teachings of the picture. Its appeal to patriotism, of course, is rich."

Mrs. G. E. Dyer said: "I consider the film a dangerous one for public exhibition. Its tendency is to incite men and make them want to fight rather than arousing them to the realization of the necessity of preparedness to avoid war."

Chosen Spokane Brevities.

Peter Carrol, manager and road man of the Pathe exchange has gone to Lewiston, Idaho, and will cover the territory before returning to Spokane.

The Spokane theater has been opened by Boyd Davis, J. M. Reimers and Merle B. Lentz, with Robert M. Lee as manager. They are running two vaudeville acts and five reels of motion pictures.

Pictures which drew well at local picture houses are "The Land of Adventure" and "The Stage Coach Guard," at the Hippodrome; "The Raven," featuring Henry B. Walthall, and "The Unfaithful Wife," with Robert E. Mantell and Genevieve Hamper, newcomers in the list of Fox stars, appeared in the leading role; at the Casino theater. "The Spoilers," at the Majestic; "A Yankee from the West," with Seena Owen and Wallace Reid as the co-stars, at the Lyric.

"The Heart of a Tigress" at the Rex and "The Goddess" at the Empress also drew well.

William S. Hart in the Ince film, "The Disciple," completed a four days' run at the Liberty. This big Triangle feature having been held an extra day on account of the unusual demand to see it. Other good pictures at the Liberty were "The Sable Lorcha," a story of Chinese pirating; "In Father's Footsteps," a Keystone comedy, and "Matrimony."

Victor Moore, whose "Chimmie Fadden" was a nation-wide film hit a few months ago, returned to the Clemmer theater where it played the second of the series entitled "Chimmie Fadden Out West."

Another picture which drew equally as well at the Clemmer was "The Gentleman from Indiana," the first Pallas contribution to the Paramount program, featuring Dustin Farnum in the leading role.

TORONTO NEWS LETTER.

By W. M. Gladish, Toronto Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Shows Pathes on Thursdays.

Mr. James Travis, of Toronto, Ontario, distributor for Pathe Gold Rooster features and other Pathe productions, has inaugurated a series of private matinee performances in Loew's Winter Garden on Thursday of each week. Invitations are issued to all exhibitors, newspaper critics and friends and, although the attendance has been small to date, a "regular show" is put on.

Although a hundred or more invitations were issued for the first of the Pathe private shows, only four people attended. The attendance for the second increased to twenty-five, however, and the third was much better still. The idea of special exhibitions like this is entirely new for Toronto.

Famous Players Moves.

After having occupied premises at 12 Queen street East, Toronto, for only one year, the Famous Players Film Service, Limited, has found it necessary to seek larger and better offices. Mr. Phil. Kauffman, the manager, has in view several appropriate buildings for the new home of the company, but no definite selection had been made at this writing.

Propose to Build.

Mr. Arthur Cohen, son of Magistrate Cohen of Toronto, and Mr. W. Marks, a stamp vendor, are making arrangements for the erection of a new large theater.

Fine New British Columbia House Opens

Dominion Theater at Nanaimo, B. C., Began on December 14 with "Little Pal," a Famous Players Offering—Big Audiences Attend.

By E. C. Thomas, Vancouver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The Dominion theater, a new house seating eight hundred and controlled by the Dominion Theater Company of Vancouver, was opened on Dec. 14 in Nanaimo, B. C. This is a beautiful modern house, with all the modern features of an up-to-date theater. A roomy stage has been put into the house, so that theatrical performances may be given if desired, but the present intention is to show moving pictures only. J. R. Muir, general manager of the company, went over for the opening, and telephoned from Victoria that they were "standing them out" for the second show. The opening attraction was the Famous Players' "Little Pal"—the first Mary Pickford subject to be shown in Nanaimo in five months. Music is supplied by a four-piece orchestra, and the resident manager is George Beattie, formerly in charge of the Empress in Vancouver. Best wishes, Mr. Muir.

"SPOILERS" HAS LONG RUN.

Broy & Whitehead booked "The Spoilers" into the Globe in Vancouver for the week of Dec. 20, with evening prices fixed at 25 and 50 cents. This made the third week for this production in this city at advanced prices. Successful engagements have recently been played in Kamloops, Prince Rupert, New Westminster and Nanaimo.

CHANGE AT PANTAGES, CALGARY.

Carl G. Milligan, for the past two years manager of the Pantages theater in Calgary, has resigned. Mr. Milligan left last week for Edmonton to manage the Pantages house there in his brother's absence and will then probably go to Chicago and enter the booking offices. Duncan G. Inverarity of Seattle will succeed Mr. Milligan, and has already taken up his new duties. He was formerly associated with Mr. Milligan in that city.

FARRAR'S FILM IN ALBERTA.

As a result of the adverse publicity given Geraldine Farrar in the Lasky production of "Carmen," that film will not be brought into British Columbia, according to Manager Soskin of the Vancouver office of the Famous Players Film Service.

At the same time the picture is being shown before capacity houses in the adjoining province of Alberta, and has already played a successful engagement at the Allen theater in Calgary, with the Rose at Regina to follow.

Although the office in Vancouver has received from Samuel Goldfish a letter stating that Miss Farrar has no further interest in the film, it has been decided that the prejudice already aroused by editorials in a local newspaper would have the effect of making a showing here a financial failure.

RAISE ATTRACTS PATRONS.

Manager W. P. Wilson of the Lyceum in Winnipeg, who set the exhibitors of that city a good example by raising his evening admission price to fifteen cents, reports through Universal Manager Barrett that not only are more people attending since the raise from ten cents, but that the audiences are of a distinctly better class. It is thought that other houses will take the same action in the near future.

A. D. Kean, the Vancouver cameraman, has been quite busy for the past week or two taking pictures of the local school children. These scenes are being anticipated by practically half the population of the city.

The phenomenal success of "The Eternal City" at the Dominion theater in Vancouver, where Manager J. R. Muir ran the picture at regular prices, is being repeated this week at his Victoria house of the same name.

PITTSBURGH, PA., SCREEN CLUB.

Lively Meeting—Much Dissatisfaction—Will Buck Up.

The Pittsburgh Screen Club held a meeting at the Olympic theater, Fifth avenue, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 12, the attendance was only about forty-five, and the occasion was enlivened by some spirited debates.

President Kester opened the meeting and, as the purpose of the meeting was to elect officers, he called on Harry C. Megowan to act as temporary chairman.

Mr. Ainsworth opened the discussion on the future of the club by saying that he was no "quitter," but in view of the fact that the attendance was small, as well as the meeting two weeks before, thought it a hopeless task to make any further attempts at organization. He then inquired as to the finances of the club.

Mr. Hanna, the treasurer, stated that there was about $60 in the treasury and that the club has about 90 members. He said he was in favor of continuing the club, but in a more aggressive manner than heretofore.

Mr. Aronson and Mr. Klein both stated that they were strongly in favor of keeping the organization together, but in order to do so, the officers must attend to business. Mr. Feitler then said that the small meetings should not be used as an example of interest displayed in an organization. He gave a very good example by using the Liquor Dealers' Association, which holds meetings with only a half dozen members present, but still they have one of the strongest organiaztions in the country.

At this point Al. W. Cross jumped up and said, "What's the matter with us? Have we no confidence in ourselves? Can't we push this thing ourselves? Why 'Let George Do It' all the time? Stop talking and do something. Get together and boost the Screen Club and make it a credit to the city." He then moved that the present officers be continued until a club can be put on a working basis, and also to appoint officers to fill the vacancies which have occurred since the last election. The motion was seconded by Mr. Ainsworth and was carried.

Through a motion of Mr. Hanna's, the chairman was instructed to appoint a committee of three to wait on the film exchanges and solicit funds for the keeping up of a headquarters which Mr. Lande inquired about and was informed that nothing had been done along this line, owing to the lack of funds. For this purpose the three men who were chosen were Messrs. Lande, Hanna and Aronson.

Fred J. Herrington made an address regarding the failure of social organizations in other cities and invited the exchangemen to become associate members of the Exhibitors' League. This caused a great deal of interesting discussion.

Mr. Antonoplos delivered a little talk on renewing efforts to put the Screen Club on a firm basis for political reasons.

President Kester then took charge of the meeting and the following appointments were made until the election is held on January 9: H. B. Kester, president; Al. W. Cross, vice-president; William Mayer, secretary; A. J. Hanna, treasurer; Leo F. Levison, corresponding secretary; board of governors, H. B. Miller, Adolph Klein, M. Feitler, G. R. Ainsworth and Ira Aronson.

Making Success More Successful

IN nine months, V-L-S-E has made its productions synonymous with DEPENDABILITY.

Probably no other institution in any field ever achieved more instantaneous success.

Starting with "Graustark," "The Juggernaut," "The Rosary," "The College Widow," and running right through the schedule with such features as "The Island of Regeneration," "The Blindness of Virtue," "The House of a Thousand Candles," "The District Attorney," this organization has provided a continuous output of film dramas that have broken attendance figures, return booking records and high admission precedents everywhere.

And now comes 1916. We enter the year full speed ahead with a line-up of releases that must command the consideration of every thoughtful exhibitor. Bookings immediately available include:

"THE GREAT DIVIDE"

A Lubin Sovereign play, with Ethel Clayton and House Peters, of which W. Stephen Bush, Editor of the Moving Picture World, says: "Judged by the most exacting standards of the V-L-S-E, this picture surpasses the most successful features released within the last few months."

"NO GREATER LOVE"

A Selig Red Seal play, with Regina Badet, the wide-famed French emotional actress, as "Sadunah," the dancer. "Passionate mother love," says William C. Esty, 2nd, in the Motion Picture News, "is the basis of the story. The acting is exceedingly vivid."

"THOU ART THE MAN"

A Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature with Joseph Kilgour as a rich man who covets Virginia Pearson as a poor clerk's beautiful wife. Reviewed by The Morning Telegraph, as a production than which "nothing could be better."

"THE MISLEADING LADY"

An Essanay feature, with Henry B. Walthall, "The Mansfield of the screen," and Edna Mayo, in a story of primitive passions, brute force and overpowering mastery.

Merely forerunners, these, of a service for the entire year, charged with the highest-tensioned drawing power that brains, ingenuity and capital can devise.

And then, for added measure, the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial, issued through the nineteen branch offices of this organization bi-weekly. Made up of 1,000 feet of quick-actioned, dynamic-interest pictures, gathered by one of the world's greatest news organizations from the far corners of the earth, the nation and your own community. Obtainable with, or without, the regular Big Four pictures.

To urge upon you the advantage of making the most of the business-building certainties which V-L-S-E offers you for 1916, would be a reflection upon your good judgment. May we simply suggest, therefore, that you see to it that others do not "speak first?"

V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

Presents

Raymond Hitchcock in "THE WONDERFUL WAGER"

Written by GEORGE HOBART

Adapted by DANIEL ELLIS
AND MARK SWAN

HITCHY AT HIS BEST

3 REELS OF RIOTOUS COMEDY

Directed by
RENE PLAISSETTY

RELEASED
MONDAY JAN. 3RD 1916
BOOK THROUGH
V. L. S. E.

BIG FOUR
V L S E
FEATURE PLAY

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 8 and January 15

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 150, 152, 154.)

General Film Company. Current Releases

	Serial No.
MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1916.
BIOGRAPH—The Lesser Evil (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 31)	19820
SELIG—The Buried Treasure of Cobre (Three parts—Drama)	19815-6-7
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 1, 1916 (Topical)	19819
VITAGRAPH—The Little Trespasser (Com.-Dr.)	19818
VITAGRAPH—Who Killed Joe Merrion (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program)	U-1020-1-2-3
VITAGRAPH—When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran For Mayor (Comedy—Unit Program)	U-1024
TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1916.
BIOGRAPH—The Avenging Shot (Two parts—Dr.)	19824-5
ESSANAY—Her Lesson (Two parts—Western—Dr.)	19821-2
KALEM—The Missing Mummy (Comedy)	19823
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1916.
BIOGRAPH—The Skating Rink (Three parts—Comedy—Drama)	19829-30-1
ESSANAY—Mile-A-Minute Monty (Cartoon—Com.)	19828
—A Scenic Subject on the Same Reel	19828
KALEM—The Honor of the Road (No. 7 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama)	19826-7
LUBIN—Sorrows of Happiness (Unit Program—Four parts—Drama)	U-1025-6-7-8
LUBIN—His Lordship (Unit Program—Comedy)	U-1029
THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916.
LUBIN—Vengeance of the Oppressed (Three parts—Drama)	19832-3-4
MINA—Caught with the Goods (Comedy)	19836
SELIG—Selig Tribune No. 2, 1916 (Topical)	19835
FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1916.
KALEM—Crossed Clues (11th of the Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama)	19840
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES—Title Not Reported
VIM—This Way Out (Comedy)	19842
VITAGRAPH—His Wife Knew About It (Comedy)	19841
SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1916.
ESSANAY—The House of Revelation (Three parts—Drama)	19843-4-5
KALEM—When Seconds Count (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama)	19850
LUBIN—Billie's Headache (Comedy)	19846
SELIG—Spooks (No. 8 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center"—Comedy)	19851
VITAGRAPH—Tried for His Own Murder (Three parts—Drama)	19847-8-9

General Film Company. Advance Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—In the Aisles of the Wild (Drama—Biograph Reissue No. 32).
LUBIN—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
LUBIN—A Bath Tub Mystery (Comedy).
SELIG—The Devil-In-Chief (Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—The Surprises of An Empty Hotel (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).

TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—Angels Unawares (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
KALEM—Guardian Angels (Burlesque—Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy).
KALEM—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.

LUBIN—The Bond Within (Three parts—Drama).
MINA—Title Not Reported.
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical).

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.

KALEM—The Tricksters (No. 12 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—Title Not Reported.
VIM—Chickens (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—When Two Play a Game (Comedy).

SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.

ESSANAY—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
SELIG—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "No Sir-ee, Bob!" (Rural Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—By Love Redeemed (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

You can have A PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM from

THE GREATER VARIETY

RELEASED WEEKLY IN THE

REGULAR SERVICE

by the Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig and Vitagraph studios.

Our experience, dating from the very infancy of the motion-picture industry, enables us to give you the program best suited to the needs of your theatre.

Come to our office at your first opportunity and let us show you how our units are chosen and how our new big plan of closer co-operation means GREATER profits for you.

It isn't what you pay for your programs that makes them good—it is what you get for what you pay that counts.

Monday, January 10

In the Aisles of the Wild

One Reel Biograph Re-issue

WITH

HENRY WALTHALL LILLIAN GISH
CLAIRE McDOWELL HARRY CAREY

Directed by D. W. GRIFFITH

Wednesday, January 12

The War of Wealth

The Three Reel Biograph

WITH

ROBERT DROUET LINDA ARVIDSON
CHARLES PERLEY ALFRED PAGET

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 EAST 175th STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 8 and January 15

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 150, 152, 154.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 2, 1916.
BIG U—The Honor to Die (Three parts—Drama)..	01087
L-KO—Pants and Petticoats (Comedy).....	01088
REX—No release this week.
MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—Landon's Legacy (Five parts—Drama).....	01089
NESTOR—Jed's Trip to the Fair (Comedy).....	01090
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 4, "The Power of the People"—Two parts—Drama)	01105
TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—Lord John's Journal (No 2, "The Gray Sisterhood—Three parts—Drama).....	01091
IMP—No Release this week.
REX—Shattered Nerves (Comedy).....	01092
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 200 (Topical).....	01095
LAEMMLE—The Underworld (Comedy-Drama).....	01094
VICTOR—The Heart of a Mermaid (Three parts—Sea Drama).....	01093
THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916.
BIG U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—Missy (Two parts—Modern Drama)....	01096
POWERS—Building Up the Health of a Nation (Lesson 1—Educational)	01097
POWERS—Carl Emmy and His Dogs (Vaudeville Act)	01097
FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1916.
IMP—The Law of Life (three parts—Human Interest Drama).....	01098
NESTOR—Flivver's Art of Mystery (Comedy).....	01099
VICTOR—No release this day.
SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1916.
BISON—On the Trail of the Tigress (Two Parts—Animal Drama)	01100
JOKER—Those Female Haters (Comedy).....	01102
POWERS—Uncle Sam at Work (No. 3, "Are We Prepared?") (Educational)	01101
SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Blind Fury (Drama).....	01103
L-KO—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy)..	01104
REX—No release this day.
MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama).....	01106
NESTOR—The Boy, The Girl and The Auto (Com.)..	01107
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 5, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama).....	01122
TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama)	01108
IMP—No release this day.
REX—His Return (Drama).....	01109
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 201 (Topical).....	01112
L-KO—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy).....	01111
VICTOR—Man and Morality (Three parts—Drama).	01110
THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.
BIG U—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Drama)....	01113
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
POWERS—The Rubber Rompers (Vaudeville Act)..	01114
—Transporting Timber In Sweden (Edu.)..	01114
FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.
NESTOR—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy).....	01117
REX—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart—Interest—Drama).	01115
VICTOR—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama).....	01116
SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.
BISON—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama)	01118
JOKER—No release this day.
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges At Work and At Play" (Edu.).....	01119

Mutual Film Corporation.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 2, 1916.
CASINO—Leave It to Cissy (Comedy).....	04347
RELIANCE—The Law of Success (Two parts—Drama)	04345-6
MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1916.
AMERICAN—Matching Dreams (Two parts—Comedy-Drama)	04348-9
FALSTAFF—The Optimistic Oriental Occults (Com.)	04350
VOGUE—An Innocent Crook (Two parts—Comedy).	04351-2
TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1916.
BEAUTY—Billy Van Deusen's Shadow (Comedy)....	04357
GAUMONT—See America First No. 17, Chicago Industries (Scenic)	04356
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04356
THANHOUSER—The Bubbles In the Glass (Three parts—Society-Drama)	04353-4-5
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1916.
RELIANCE—The She Devil (Three parts—Melo-Drama)	04358-9-60
THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916.
CENTAUR—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal-Drama)	04361-2
FALSTAFF—Hilda's Husky Helper (Comedy).....	04363
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE—The Other Side of the Door (American—Five parts—Drama) (No 54)....
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 53 (Topical).....	04364
FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1916.
AMERICAN—Time and Tide (Drama).....	04367
CUB—Jerry in the Movies (Comedy).....	04368
MUSTANG—The Hills of Glory (Two parts—Western—Drama)	04365-6
SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1916.
BEAUTY—To Be or Not to Be (Comedy).....	04374
THANHOUSER MASTERPICTURE—Society Wolves (Five parts—Drama).....	04369-70-1
SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1916.
CASINO—Alias. Mr. Jones, (Comedy).....	04375
MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.
AMERICAN—Viviana (Two parts—Drama).....	04376-7
FALSTAFF—Belinda's Bridal Breakfast, (Comedy)	04378
VOGUE—Title not yet announced.
TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.
BEAUTY—The First Quarrel (Comedy).....	04384
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 18 Milwaukee, Wisc. (Scenic)	04383
Keeping Up with the Joneses, (Cartoon-Comedy)	04383
THANHOUSER—In the Name of the Law, (Three parts-Drama)	04380-1-2
WEDNESDA JANUARY 12, 1916.
RIALTO—The Secret Agent, (Three parts-Secret-Service-Drama)	04385-6-7
VOGUE—Title Not Yet Reported.
THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.
CENTAUR—Marta of the Jungles, (Two parts-Animal-Drama)	04389-90
FALSTAFF—Reforming Rubbering Rosie, (Comedy)	04391
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Numb r 54, (Topical).....	04392
FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Secret Wire, (Two parts-Drama)	04393-4
AMERICAN—Spider Barlow Meets Competition, (Crook-Drama)	04395
CUB—Jerry In Mexico, (Comedy).....	04396
SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.
BEAUTY—Getting In Wrong, (Comedy).....	04400
MUSTANG—"Water Stuff," (Three parts Comedy-Drama)	04397-8-9

Depopulating This Earth!!!

Is it WAR, or is it

RACE SUICIDE

A six-part motion photo-story showing enough conclusive proof to make your audiences debate; discussion means an interest which has its answer in the box-office.

With this cast of photo-play idols

Ormi Hawley, Earl Metcalfe, Octavia Handworth, Kempton Greene

TO BE SOLD OUTRIGHT ON

STATE RIGHTS BASIS

JOS. W. FARNHAM

Room Six Hundred and Seven
Two Twenty West Forty-second Street
New York City.

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

ESSANAY.

HER LESSON (Two Parts—Jan. 4).—The cast: The Capitalist (G. M. Anderson); His Wife (Ruth Saville); the Interloper (Rodney Hildebrand); Butler (Lloyd Bacon); Maid (Eva Heazlett).

The capitalist one evening suddenly realizes that his wife is slowly drifting away from him. A certain young Rodney Hildebrand has been paying her great attention and her affairs are the common gossip at the club. He determines to at least save his wife's name from dishonor. One evening he returns home and finds the room filled with flowers which Hildebrand has sent her. He also finds a note from Hildebrand telling her he will call and take her to the opera that night. He is furious and waits for Hildebrand. The capitalist offers him $25,000 to leave the country for two years. Hildebrand accepts. The wife, who has overheard the conversation, now enters the room. The capitalist shows her how Hildebrand's love could be bought for a paltry sum of money, then tells her to go with him. She falls on her knees and begs her husband's forgiveness, which he gladly gives.

MILE-A-MINUTE MONTY (Animated Cartoon—Jan. 5).—Mile-a-minute Monty's rest is broken when he receives a message requesting him to meet his heavy-weight wife at the railroad station in half an hour. He takes his flying machine, and while sailing through the sky, sees some diving girls in much abbreviated costumes. He immediately descends and is peeking over the fence when his wife, who is raging because he has failed to call for her, comes upon the scene. She throws him over the fence then goes after him, landing in the pool. The pool is flooded and Monty gets a derrick to haul her out.

This is a split reel release, the remaining five hundred feet contains scenes taken in the Canadian Rockies.

SELIG.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL No. 97 (Dec. 6).

San Francisco.—U. S. Marines leave the exposition on cruiser San Diego, en route to Topolombampo, where Yaqui Indians threaten the safety of 200 Americans.

New York.—Pirates' million-dollar treasure is unearthed in Central America and put on display by United Fruit Company.

Long Beach, Cal.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt is outplayed in tennis tournament by Mrs. May Sutton Bundy.

Boston.—Clothing needed by men in hospitals and warm mittens and caps for men facing winter in trenches are turned out by Massachusetts Red Cross.

Washington, D. C.—President is urged in telegrams from Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, noted suffragist, and hundreds of other prominent persons to induce neutral nations to stop the European war.

Newport, Ark.—Pearl fishers drag beds of White river with tongs. The value of the pearls discovered amounts to thousands each year.

San Francisco.—Cooper is first in hundred-mile race that marks closing of motor season at Panama Fair. Tetzlaff and Oldfield also race.

Florist adds to season's modes by originating new ways in which blossoms are to be worn during present season.

San Francisco.—Dangerous blaze attacks lumber yard and warehouse in the heart of this city's wholesale district.

On the Italian Front.—Famous Bersaglieri are rushed to station and entrained for campaign in Goritz region where some of the heaviest fighting of the war is under way.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL No. 98 (Dec. 9).

Los Angeles.—The steamship Great Northern leaves Honolulu, establishing a new line of communication across the Pacific Ocean.

Boston.—State House is a blaze of brilliancy in honor of the Electrical Convention. The statue of Joseph Hooker stands out in bold relief against the glare of the flaming arc lights.

San Diego.—Barrier is torn down and more than 700 automobile enthusiasts from Los Angeles make first trip over the smooth boulevard to exposition grounds.

Washington.—Congress will hold important deliberations all winter. The Ways and Means Committee has been at work for some time on the new army and navy bill.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Street car strike causes transportation company to cover windows with steel to prevent destruction of property by strike sympathizers.

Chicago.—Dr. Ray E. Hall constructs device that catches aerial correspondence and writes it on tape. The pen records the message on the tape where it is easily read by the receiving operator.

New York.—The American steamer Zealandia arrives in New York after having been chased by an unknown fighting cruiser off the Jersey coast.

Washington.—Buckeye State Agriculturists, led by a uniformed women's band from Marion, Ohio, march to the executive mansion to call on President Wilson.

New York.—The Oscar II, Ford's peace ship, leaves on errand of peace. Prominent peace advocates on board wave farewell to friends gathered at the dock.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 99 (Dec. 13).

Rome.—Fallen heroes of Italy are honored by floral memorial. Patriotic address is delivered by prefect of Rome.

Washington.—The tallest smokestacks in the national capital are scaled by steeplejacks who apply paint.

Los Angeles.—Avalon, on Catalena Islands, is swept by a $700,000 blaze. The world-famous Metropole Hotel and other prominent buildings are a heap of ruins.

Lowell, Mass.—Many women and children march in the no-license parade which was a spectacular part of the dry workers' battle here.

San Francisco.—Mrs. Anita Baldwin, heiress of the late millionaire, "Lucky" Baldwin, brings six of England's finest dogs to America. The dogs cost $15,000.

New York.—Whirlwind campaign for $1,000,000 actors' benefit fund is started.

Chicago.—The Periscope Hat, a new mirror equipped headgear, permits the wearer to look in both directions at once.

San Francisco.—Prize-winning canine and feline royalty pose before the camera after being adjudged best in their respective classes.

New York.—New municipal auto truck simplifies the method of handling refuse collected by street employes.

San Francisco.—President C. C. Moore of the Panama-Pacific Exposition imparts President Wilson's words of farewell to a large audience gathered on closing of the exposition. Many costly buildings will be destroyed.

Charleston, Mass.—Five submarines built expressly for the British Government are held by the United States authorities in Charleston Navy Yard and will not be released until peace is declared.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 100 (Dec. 16).

Washington, D. C.—Women open the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage by marching to congress with equal rights petition bearing four miles of names.

San Francisco.—Hawaiian Singers, employed by automobile manufacturer to entertain his workmen, arrive from far western islands.

New York.—The Frederick VIII leaves for Copenhagen with 1,000 passengers, twenty-two of whom will join the Ford Party in Europe.

San Francisco.—One thousand animals that warm the heart of childhood are allowed to scamper about with their playmates at the Panama Pacific Exposition.

New York.—The International Trade Conference delegates, from every part of the world, pose for the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial on the roof of the Hotel Astor.

Los Angeles.—Profitable pleasure is enjoyed by Japanese fishermen who pull in boat loads of ocean fish.

Washington.—The men directing the political activities of the Democratic Party gather in the National Capital and select St. Louis as the next convention city.

Chicago.—New $300,000 armor plated ice crushing steamer wears a steel bow to keep Great Lake ports open in winter. She can ram through three feet of solid ice. Chicago's new $3,000,000 municipal pier looms in the background.

Venice, Cal.—Native Philippine Islanders work and play by the sea.

New York.—The Brighton Baths Pavilion, built over breakers, affords ocean sports the year round.

Hoboken, N. J.—The liner Vaterland, which is interned here with other vessels of European nations, narrowly escapes damage by fire when garage burns.

THE MAKING OF CROOKS (Three Parts—Dec. 27). The cast: Tony (Jack Pickford); Lee O'Neil (George Hernandez); Walton (Herman Illmer); Elmer (Elmer McInturff); Bob (George Nicholls, Jr.); Hazel O'Neil (Thelma Crain). Mrs. Walton (Tess Conger).

Druggist Walton, convicted for the sale of doped candy to children, is released from prison through the intercession of Lee O'Neill, a powerful political "boss." Shaking off the qualms of conscience, Walton with protection from O'Neil, opens a disreputable pool room. Tony, a young Italian who has met Walton in prison, is released and Walton engages Tony as a pool sharp.

The pool room becomes a rendezvous for crooks and boys. Among the young men are Elmer, a bank messenger, and Bingham, the neglected son of wealthy parents. Bingham and Tony at a cabaret meet Hazel O'Neil, daughter of the political "boss." Tony fascinates the girl and they steal Bingham's automobile and leave for a midnight ride. Bingham reports the theft of his car to detective headquarters. As the chase grows hot Tony attempts to drive the car across the railroad track and an approaching locomotive shatters the car. In the terrible accident Hazel O'Neil loses her life.

Back of the pool room the detectives, waiting for Tony, recognize two well-known crooks, and thwart them as they are about to hold up Elmer, the bank messenger. Elmer confesses to the authorities that he had learned to gamble at Walton's pool room. The place is raided and every similar resort in the city is closed by the mayor. In the meantime, Tony the pool sharp, who was only stunned in the automobile accident, is, with Elmer, taken into custody.

THE MANICURE GIRL (One of the Chronicles of Bloom Center Series—Jan. 1).—The cast: Briggs (Cecil Holland); Johnny West (Sidney Smith); Constable Plum (William Hutchison); Postmaster Pash (John Lancaster); Chubby Green (Ralph McComas); The Manicure Girl (Anna Luther.

Briggs, Bloom Center's barber, engages a manicure girl to stimulate business. Briggs and the manicure girl are greeted by the band upon their arrival in the village. All the Bloom Centerites take advantage of the "three-minute manicure for 50c." Business continues good in Brigg's barber shop until the manicure girl's husband arrives and demands money from her. Johnny West, and Chubby Green see him and resolve to defend the manicure girl. They force the girl's idle husband to run, the gauntlet and he finally escapes, leaving the Bloom Center defenders fighting among themselves.

Have You Read Page 139?

M-I-N-A COMEDIES
YOU Laugh While THEY Run
EVERY THURSDAY ON GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

THE BURIED TREASURE OF COBRE (Jan 3).—The cast: Richard Everett (Harry Mestayer); John Hayden (Frank Clark); Chester Ward (Will Machin); Monica Ward (Virginia Kirtley); Prof. Peabody (Louis Cody); President Mendoza (Fred Hearn); Col. Goddard (Richard Morris).

Richard Everett is appointed United States Minister to Amapala, and is instructed by the Secretary of State, John Hayden, to secure the signature of President Mendoza to a treaty to extradite criminals. When Everett arrives in Amapala he is introduced to Chester Ward and his sister, Monica. Everett is informed by Robert Garland, the American Consul at Amapala, that Ward is a fugitive from justice and is wealthy. Ward has, through the aid of President Mendoza, secured exclusive rights to explore the ruins of Cobre, where, rumor has it, a treasure is buried.

Prof. Peabody, an archaeologist, through Everett and Garland, the Consul, asks permission to explore the ruins of Cobre, but his request is refused by President Mendoza. Ward charges Peabody with having a secret desire to search for the buried treasure. Peabody, in turn, informs Ward that he will explore the ruins of Cobre, and Ward secures a detail of soldiers to guard his concession. Everett tries many times to have President Mendoza sign the extradition treaty with his country, but his efforts fail through the plottings of Chester Ward and Col. Goddard, also a fugitive from justice, and who is friendly with Mendoza and Ward.

Peabody leaves for the ruins of Cobre, and Monica seeks the aid of Richard Everett, with whom she has become very friendly, in the belief that Peabody will be killed by her brother. Everett and Monica follow Peabody to the Cobre ruins. Peabody, in the meantime, has evaded the soldier guards and Chester Ward is informed by the soldiers that there is a stranger in the ruins of Cobre. Everett and Monica stumble upon a secret passageway, which leads into a secret room. There counterfeit money is discovered by Everett. Peabody, confronting Ward, backs him into this secret room where in the presence of Everett, Ward and his sister, he reveals his identity as that of a secret service agent. In desperation Chester Ward takes his own life.

Later Richard Everett again calls upon President Mendoza. He says: "The Secretary of State will arrive within an hour. For the last time I would advise you to affix your signature to this extradition treaty." Knowing that Everett is aware of the conspiracy with Ward in the making of counterfeit money, President Mendoza affixes his signature to the treaty. Monica Ward prepares to leave Amapala, but before she does so she meets Richard Everett, and he says to her: "I also am ready to leave, but not until you have become my wife," and the two look into each other's eyes with understanding.

THE CHRONICLES OF BLOOM CENTER (Spooks"—Jan. 8).—The cast: Judah Paradise (Cecil Holland); Mrs. Paradise (Mrs. Watson); Sleuth, their foil (Archie Mallott); Constable Plum (Wm. Hutchinson); Chubby Green (Ralph McComas); Postmaster Pash (John Lancaster); Johnny West (Sidney Smith).

Judah Paradise and his itinerant spiritualists visit Bloom Center. They rent apartments at Constable Plum's home and hold a seance. Chubby Green frightens all those going to the meeting by covering himself with a sheet and walking through the graveyard. Then he is himself frightened to death by a real "spook."

The spiritualists are getting the Bloom Center money in great shape until the spirit of Constable Plum's former wife invades the meeting. The spiritualists realize they have started something they can't finish and flee in disorder. One of their number falls into mortar and is covered with white. His co-workers mistake him for a ghost and flee before him down the railroad tracks.

VIM.

CHICKENS (Jan. 14).—Hiram Gothrocks, having recently acquired wealth, desires to enter into society and agrees to marry his daughter, Ethel, to Count Chasem, who is coming to visit Gothrocks at his summer home. Jabbs, who until now, has been Ethel's sweetheart, is ordered by Gothrocks to cease paying attentions to her and in despair seeks the advice of his friend, Pokes, the village barber. Pokes, learning from Jabbs of the count's intended visit, advises his friend to impersonate the count, which Jabbs agrees to do.

On his way to the residence of Gothrocks the count and his valet are held up by two tramps who are enjoying a meal at the roadside of chickens they have stolen from the hencoop of a nearby girls' seminary. They force the count and his valet, after first exchanging clothes with them, to enter the seminary by way of the window, where they are arrested as the tramps who recently stole the chickens.

In the meantime, Pokes and Jabbs have been disporting themselves in the Gothrocks home at the expense of Gothrocks' furniture. The tramps having found in the clothes of the count the letter of introduction to Gothrocks think that they shall pass themselves off as the titled nobleman and his valet, but instead find themselves marched off to jail by the irate Gothrocks. In the station house, when Gothrocks learns that the count is the husband of the matron of the seminary, his dream of society vanishes and he gladly gives Ethel into the arms of Jabbs.

LUBIN.

HIS LORDSHIP (Unit Program — Three Parts).—The cast: Otto (Dave Don); His Wife (Florence Williams); Carrie (Patsy DeForest).

It's the morning after and Otto awakens with a "dark" taste in his mouth. Matters are much aggravated when his wife hustles him out with a mandate "no money, no eats." To keep body and soul together, Otto takes a job as an extra waiter where he tries hard to live up to the promise to his wife not to touch another drop; but fate in the form of Carrie intervenes. Carrie is a born flirt and Otto falls.

The a. m. finds Otto stretched out on the floor in deep slumber with a couple of empty bottles at his side. Carrie sees a chance for fun and at her suggestion, Otto is dressed in silk pajamas and placed in a luxurious bed. Awakening, he stares in a daze as he beholds the uniformed butlers. "How is your Lordship feeling?" is the first remark with which the well rehearsed butlers greet Otto. At first Otto thinks himself in a dream as a vague vision of a wife and four kids—all his own—torture his befogged memory. The butlers assure him that one of his hallucinations is the belief that he has a wife and children. As he is attired in evening dress and escorted to the ballroom between two rows of bowing guests, he becomes impressed with the fact that he is really a lord. Happily he gazes at the wines on the refreshment table, but Carrie keeps him from drinking by a reminder that she promised to marry him provided he will stay on the water wagon. As Otto gazes at the fair face of Carrie, he is again tortured with visions of wife and kids, but Carrie looks good to him and immediate arrangements are made for the wedding ceremony.

At Carrie's direction, a butler hastens to Otto's wife in the wee morning hours and awakens her with the information that her husband is about to marry another woman. Dragging her four children along with her, she hastens to the Vanderfeller's mansion. Meanwhile, arrangements are completed for the mock marriage. As Otto kneels, Carrie slips away and a negress takes her place. Just then Otto catches sight of his wife and children. He looks from Carrie to his wife and begs to be told who he really is. Like a bolt comes the answer from the four kids who stretch forth their hands to him with an exclamation, "You're our daddy." Otto's wife drags him out by his ear, as he solemnly vows "never again."

SORROWS OF HAPPINESS (Unit Program—Jan. 3).—The cast: Mary Carroll (June Daye); "David Garrick" (Craufurd Kent); Grace Carroll (Inez Buck); Katherine (Helen Greene); Mrs. Carroll (Marie Sterling); Hotel Proprietor (James Daly); Mr. Carroll (Bartley McCullum).

David Garrick, a man from the city, disinherited by his father, wanders to a small town where he meets Mary Carroll, a simple little country girl. Mary holds clandestine meetings with Garrick, until surprised by her parents, who insist that her company see her at her home. Garrick has betrayed Mary and in answer to her pleadings as to when they will be married he sets the time for 3 o'clock of a nearby day. Great preparations are made at the humble little home while Garrick struggles with himself undecided whether to keep his promise. As he debates a letter comes advising of his father's death, and that he has been left the sole heir. Immediately his mind reverts to his old sweetheart, Katherine, a social favorite, and he decides to break his promise to Mary. He goes and leaves no trace of his whereabouts.

At the Carroll home, Grace, Mary's older sister, who is studying voice culture in the city, arrives for the wedding. The hour of 3 o'clock arrives and patiently the little family waits. At 3:15 Mary's father goes to summon Garrick. Upon his return he tells of Garrick's flight. Mary, holding in her heart the secret of her betrayal, is affected suddenly with a peculiar form of mental derangement. Grace sees a picture of Garrick and vows that she will avenge her wronged sister. As time rolls on each day at 3 o'clock, arrayed in her simple wedding gown, Mary sits and waits and waits for him who seemingly will never come.

They Won't

Sweep out the theatre each day.

They Won't

Sell and take the tickets at the door.

They Won't

Revolutionize your business.

BUT---

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Will

Provide the careful operator with his most important aid to Perfect Projection—and Radium Gold Fibre Screens

Will

Save any Theatre Owner in Christendom a Big Percentage on His Electrical Current Bills.

You need not believe these statements merely because we give them as established facts—

Ask the Exhibitor Who Uses a Radium

Write today for Sample, Price, and Details of Our New Sales Plan

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, Inc.

No. 220 West 42d Street, New York City

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS — Allfeatures, Ltd., No. 56 King St., W., Toronto, Can. Allfeatures, Ltd., Scala Theatre Building, Montreal, Can

Have You Read Page 139?

Grace, back in the city, becomes a popular favorite known as Madame Mimi. During one of her recitals Garrick is among the audience. His sweetheart of the former days became tired of waiting for him and married; and he became a man about town. He is introduced to Madame Mimi, who immediately recognizes the betrayer of her sister. Their meetings become frequent. Soon Garrick confesses his love for her and she, in reply to his proposal, replies, "Yes, tomorrow at 3 at my apartments we will wed." He is somewhat startled but she retaining her composure, questions him for his actions. Mary and Mrs. Carroll are called by wire, and plans are laid for the wedding the next afternoon.

VENGEANCE OF THE OPPRESSED (Three Parts—Jan. 6).—The cast: Aaron, the Jew (Edward Sloman); Esther, his wife (Adda Gleason); His Mother (Adelaide Bronti); Ruth, his daughter (Francelia Billington); Sergius Kosloff (George Routh); the Russian Ambassador (Benjamin Hopkins); Meyer (Julian Lamothe); Lady Elizabeth (Helen Wolcott); Russell Parker (L. C. Shumway).

Aaron Markowitz, a Russian Jew, is jubilant over the receipt of a letter from his uncle in America, enclosing a money order, with which to bring his family, consisting of wife, mother and baby girl, to America. The Cossack officer, Sergius Kosloff, attracted by Esther's beauty, makes advances to her. Aaron interposes. The next day, Sergius leads his Cossacks against the Jews. Aaron is cruelly scourged, and Sergius and two other officers go to his home. Sooner than suffer dishonor, Esther kills herself and the old mother is crucified. Aaron is nearly crazed when he discovers what has been done. Taking his baby girl, he makes his way to America, vowing vengeance.

In America, Aaron prospers. Twenty years later he is a Croesus, and an international financial figure. His daughter, Ruth, would marry Dr. Russell Parker, but Aaron tells her it is better that she wed one of her own faith. Aaron figures in a loan made to the Russian government, and later learns that the Russian attache is none other than Sergius Kosloff. He immediately sets out to obtain vengeance. Aaron has Lady Elizabeth Crane ensnare the Russian to such an extent that when Sergius is given a secret treaty to guard as he would his life, he promises to see Lady Eilzabeth before sailing for Russia with it. These facts known to Aaron, he sets the trap. He informs the Ambassador that Sergius is a traitor and to be followed. Sergius has promised to see Lady Elizabeth on Tuesday night at Aaron's New York home thinking it is her residence. A spy is given orders to kill if Sergius proves a traitor.

Then, before his plans can be carried out, Aaron is stricken. Ruth calls Dr. Parker, but no hope is held out for Aaron. The Jew, having lived all the years for vengeance, promises Parker his daughter and his wealth if the doctor can only keep him alive until Tuesday night. A fight is made against death. Medical science and Aaron's indomitable will finally conquer death. Tuesday night comes. Aaron has been wheeled to the library. Lady Elizabeth arrives. When Sergius comes, she admits him in the darkened room, where Aaron waits. Then she switches on the lights and rushes out. Sergius realizes that he has been duped; rushes after her; the spy shoots him with a noiseless gun from behind the window. Aaron and his prey are alone. The Jew wheels himself to the mortally wounded man, and asks him if he remembers the dread day twenty years ago. Sergius recognizes the Russian Jew. Aaron gloats over his victim, and raising his hands to God in a prayer of thanks, passes away, satisfied that his people have been avenged.

BILLIE'S HEADACHE (Jan. 8).—The cast: Billie Haskins (Billie Reeves); Jane Gray (Carrie Reynolds); Mr. Gray (Peter Lang); Mrs. Gray (Clara Lambert); Pudgey (John Sherman).

Billie is invited to take Sunday dinner at the home of his sweetheart, Jane. He arrives at the house, full of appetite and love. As dinner is not ready upon his arrival, Billie joins the family in a little gab-fest. He is given the best chair in the room which is Grandfather's rocker, but no sooner does he sit down than Billie realizes something is wrong. A hasty examination discloses the fact that Billie's trousers have become caught in a break in the chair seat, and try as he will, Billie cannot rise.

Dinner is announced but Billie is forced to decline because of his awkward predicament. When pressed for the reason why he refuses to eat, Billie says he has a headache. Mrs. Gray, a motherly old soul, at once imagines that Billie is really sick, and orders that he be put to bed in the spare room at once. Billie is lugged off to bed in spite of his protests, but when the family are all asleep, Billie tries to sneak out of the house and is mistaken by Mr. Gray for a burglar.

A lively chase through the snow ensues, and Billie is taken into custody by the Constable, who imposes a fine on Billie for appearing in public insufficiently clothed.

VITAGRAPH.

THE SURPRISES OF AN EMPTY HOTEL (Four Parts—Unit Program—Jan. 10).—The cast: Francis Marchmont (Charles Richman); Charles Manders (Leo Delaney); Thomas Cadwallader (Charles Eldridge); Alfred, Count (William Dunn); Henry Barclay (Robert Gaillard); Lucie Bennt (Arline Pretty); Birdie Jameson (Ethel Corcoran).

The Hotel Continental on the seacoast is emptied one season of its tenants by an epidemic of diphtheria, and the patrons never return. Francis Trehurn Marchmont was one of its regular patrons, who, while engaged in a copper deal, had been gobbled up by the trust in the person of Thomas Cadwallader Bennt, the copper magnate. Marchmont later learned that the man he hated (Bennt) had gone to Paris, married and died immediately thereafter.

Marchmont goes to spend a week at the Hotel Continental for old time's sake, and after his arrival, a steam yacht comes to anchor in the offing and the owner, a woman who signs herself "Mrs. Lucie Fairbanks," engages rooms at the hotel. Marchmont is greatly attracted to the lady, and the two become good friends, but as he supposes her husband to be alive, he does not presume upon their acquaintance.

One night she raps on his door and whispers to him that there are burglars in the hotel, as there are footsteps above her room. They being the only tenants in the place, Marchmont finds himself involved in some very exciting adventures which culminate in his overhearing "Mrs. Fairbanks" and a strange woman quarreling. He then learns that both women are common-law claimants to the fortune of old Cadwallader Bennt.

The two men who he thought were burglars were unscrupulous lawyers who were trying to get Mrs. Bennt to New York State so they could serve papers on her. The rascals finally kidnap her and take her aboard the yacht, which is prevented by Marchmont. One of the men, in revenge, tries to blow up the yacht, but the tables are turned at the last minute and the lawyer perishes in the terrific explosion which obliterates the yacht. Marchmont and his bride-to-be are then left in peace and happiness.

A CRIPPLE CREEK CINDERELLA (Jan. 10—Unit Program).—The cast: The Gambler (William Duncan); Dick (Alfred Vosburgh); Nell Gray (Mrs. Vosburgh); Nell's Father (Carleton Weatherby); Dancehall Proprietor (George Stanley).

A stranger enters the mining town of Cripple Creek and takes up his abode in old Bailey's empty shack. He is tall and good looking and his name is Dick, but he has a strong aversion for dancehall girls. Nell, who dances at the saloon to support her invalid father, loses her slipper and Dick finds it. Filled with curiosity to know who the owner of the dainty shoe is, Dick keeps it and uses it to make his claim with, feeling it must be a good omen. He meets Nell later, but she has on old and very large shoes, so he decides it cannot be her, and she doesn't tell him.

Dick strikes gold, and incidentally falls in love with Nell, but at their first kiss, Jim, the gambler, appears, and his scornful laugh sends the girl home and Dick into a rage. He follows the gambler and finds him attempting to force his attentions upon Nell. A fight follows in which Dick is victorious, but he has to run for his life as all believe he has killed the gambler. His cup of misery is full when he learns the girl he loves is his Cinderella and a girl of the dancehall. He thrusts her aside, but in the man hunt which follows, she saves his life, and as the gambler was not seriously hurt, all ends happily.

WHEN TWO PLAY A GAME (Jan. 14).—The cast includes Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and Arthur Robinson.

Archibald Atwater's wife keeps his home so crowded with women knitting socks for soldiers that he finally decides to escape from his unpleasant environment and suddenly becomes a victim of aphasia, or loss of memory. He accordingly makes arrangements with his friend Charley, and goes to New York without letting anyone else know where he has gone. Mrs. Atwater is at once worried and fears her darling has met with foul play, until Charley rings up and abruptly tells her Archie has been seen in New York acting strangely.

Unfortunately, Archie runs into an old maid cousin whom he grossly deceives by pretending he does not know her. The good lady is frightened and at once telegraphs Mrs. Atwater that her husband is at the St. George, acting very strangely. Charley arrives at the hotel, and the two friends makes the acquaintance of two fair damsels, with the idea of taking them out to dine. But wifey arrives in time to overhear part of their conversation, and is greatly enlightened thereby.

To teach her hubby a lesson, she plays the "lost memory game" herself, makes him worried, then jealous and after leading him a wild goose chase, both speak what is on their minds, then "make up."

BIOGRAPH.

HEREDITY—(Dec. 27; Biograph—Reissue—No. 30).—The cast: The white man (Harry Carey); the Indian maid (Madge Kirby); their son (Jack Pickford); Indian chiefs (Alfred Paget, W. C. Robinson).

At the edge of the Indian encampment, where the renegade white man establishes a trading post, he meets the Indian maid, who later becomes his purchased bride. A son is born. Playing with his kind, the child, who inherits his mother's Indian character, passes on to boyhood. Then the racial difference between father and son is felt. At length the father, angered by the youth's reluctance to leave his people and accompany him on a trading trip, uses violence to gain his ends. In the presence of white men he becomes ashamed of his Indian wife and child. Traveling among other Indian tribes, he sells them bad whisky and broken guns. Aroused by his trickery, they go on the warpath. In the attack on the wagon the war cry of his ancestors stirs the young halfbreed's blood. The father's crimes prove his own destruction, while the boy and his mother return to their people.

THE WOMAN OF MYSTERY—(Three Parts—Dec. 29).—The cast: General Tremont (G. Raymond Nye); Baradier (Jack Drumeir); Marcel (Franklin Ritchie); Agostini (Herbert Barrington); Hans (Charles H. Mailes); Sophia (Louise Vale).

Having perfected the most powerful explosive in the world, General Tremont is beset by spies of foreign governments. To safeguard the formula he contrives a device which will explode when the safe is opened by anyone save himself. Hans, a foreign agent, attempts to enter the laboratory and is surprised by the general, whom he kills. The explosion of the safe blows off the thief's right hand.

Laforet, the detective put on the case, finds the severed hand and removes from one finger a ring engraved with the name "Hans." The detective learns that a mysterious woman visited the general on the night of his death, and sets out to trace her. She is the Baroness Sophia Grodsko, a secret agent associated with Hans and Agostini, the head of the secret service. Sophia learns that Marcel Bradier, a young chemist, son of the general's wealthy friend, has been associated with General Tremont and has received from him a copy of the formula. She contrives to meet Marcel and he falls in love with her.

By ingratiating herself into the laboratory she learns where he keeps the formula and throws a warning note to Hans, who, disguised as a fisherman, is waiting in a boat on the river below. But immediately an opportunity to secure the formula presents itself, and she takes it. Marcel goes walking with her. Hans gets fire to the factory and is caught by La Foret, who has used the ring as a clue. Hans gets away, reaches the laboratory, and, in the presence of fellow conspirators, discovers that the formula is not in its hiding place.

Sophia does not give up the formula, for she loves Marcel and has only stolen the secret to prevent it falling into her fellow conspira-

Kindly Read Page 139

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$3.50
Fifty Thousand.....$5.00
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

1916 WE HAVE RESOLVED 1916
TO MAKE PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE MAGNIFICENT PLANS WE HAVE BEEN WORKING OUT FOR YEARS AND YEARS WE ARE GOING TO TELL YOU ALL ABOUT OUR NEW HOME OF
Perfect Developing and Printing
INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE COMPANY
WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, President
223-233 West Erie Street - - - Chicago

tors' hands. Agostini and Hans suspect her, and she sends Marcel warning to keep away from the villa to which they would lure him in her name. But he comes and is trapped in her room. He turns upon her, until she proves her love by giving him the formula. His father and friends arrive and rescue him after capturing the secret agents. Sophia dies.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

NESTOR.

FLIVVER'S TERRIBLE PAST—(Dec. 31).—Pimple becomes a fugitive from the State jail. While journeying about town he passes a beer garden wherein are seated a group of people around a table. His throat suddenly becomes parched and he approaches them. He agrees to tell them a sad story of his past life, but before he can commence his thirst must be quenched, to which they readily assent. He then relates the story.

While an engineer on the Chatham and Lancashire Line he met a woman passenger on his train for the first time, and immediately became enamored of her and she with him. She became a frequent passenger on his train and ere long she was his bride. They lived happily for a time, until one day he came home to his wife and was thrown out of the house by his wife's former husband.

While running his engine that evening along its usual course his fireman shouted, "Danger ahead!" and, with a sudden jerk, he put on the brakes and leaped to the tracks below to investigate the cause of the holdup. He was astonished to see a woman, tied hand and foot, stretched across the track. He released her from her bonds and staggered when he gazed into her face and saw that it was his own wife Lizzie. Suddenly her husband came on the scene and she explained to Pimple that it was he who was responsible for this dastardly act. Pimple had prompted the villain to wreak vengeance on the hero, so he suggested a fight to the end for the hand of the woman. First, a duel in which the sword of each broke in the midst of the conflict, and then a fight with gloves, in which Pimple came out the victor, thus proving himself worthy of being espoused to Lizzie. As he finishes his story his jailer comes, and Pimple's spree ends.

IMP.

THE LAW OF LIFE (Three Parts—Jan. 7).—The cast: Robert McKenzie (King Baggot); Helen Willoughby (Miss Edna Hunter); Sid Powell (Ned Reardon); La Carmona (Miss Clara Beyers); Nan (Elsie McLeod).

Two men, Robert MacKenzie and Sidney Powell, love Helen. She prefers Robert and accepts his proposal because she believes him to be good. Powell has ruined a young girl Nan, and the village makes her an outcast. Helen alone remains her friend. In the city Powell and MacKenzie meet. Powell hates the other man for winning the girl he himself covets. In Powell's room, Robert sees the portrait of La Carmona, a dancer, in whom he recognizes a girl whom he saved from two ruffians in the park that afternoon. Powell persuades him to come back that night to a midnight supper which he is giving to Carmona. Robert comes and meets the woman who falls very much in love with him.

Robert had previously told Powell that he could not drink, for as soon as he took one glass everything faded into oblivion and he could not be responsible for what he did. Carmona coaxes Robert to take a drink to her health. He yields and does so. Then everything is forgotten. He remembers nothing until he awakens next morning—to find Carmona in negligee in the parlor of his apartment. He is stunned. He goes to Helen and confesses all, but she sadly turns him adrift.

Powell meets Robert and tells him tauntingly that Helen has promised to be his wife. The men quarrel. Powell in the meantime, has met Nan and promises her that if she comes to his apartment he will marry her and she goes there. Later in the night, unable to rest thinking of Helen, Robert goes to Powell's department to ask him the details of his engagement. He finds Powell dead. An old servant accuses Robert of the crime and he is being led off when a puff of smoke blows through the portiers and a loud report is heard.

The curtains are torn aside and the body of Nan falls to the ground. She tells how she entered the rooms—how Powell laughed at her proposal that he marry her—how he tried to take her into his arms—and how she finally fired the desperate shot that killed him. On the strength of this confession Robert is freed—and Nan dies in his arms. Shortly afterward he leaves Carmona and goes to work in a large mill where he tries to forget. Here again tragedy is brought before him when he finds the slim body of a young girl in the river—a girl who was ruined by one of his own foremen.

He begins to think deeply of his own life and to pity Carmona, whom he knows loved him deeply. So he returns to her—to find her the mother of a little child—whom she claims is his. She is very ill. Robert marries her and she dies happy. Robert now decides to devote his life to the boy. The child falls ill and a nurse is sent for. The nurse is Helen and so these two meet again and the bitterness of the past is all swept from the girl's heart at the sight of Robert's suffering and by the side of the sleeping baby they once more pledge their troth.

UNIVERSAL.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 199 (Dec. 29).

Echoes of the Wilson Wedding.—Marriage license issued to President Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt.—Washington, D. C. Subtitles: The bride's home, where ceremony was performed. The White House, their new home. Children present huge poinsetta to White House bride.—Hollywood, Cal.

Dinner on the Hoof.—Stockyards glutted with cattle, sheep and goats that will feed thousands. Chicago, Ill.

"Rockfeller of Japan."—Baron Yei-Ichi Shibusawa, with party of Japanese notables, visits Universal City, Cal.

Three-Master Aground.—Sailing ship "Pero d'Alemouer" finds a sandy berth.—Mantaloken, N. J. Subtitle: Bales of cork strew the shore.

Steaks "A la Cart."—Board of Health removes prohibition against sale of horse flesh.—New York City. Subtitle: Will these fellows have a kick coming?

To Brave the Arctic.—Capt. Louis Lane and John Borden to wrest riches in furs from Polar regions.—Chicago, Ill. Subtitles: Captain. Louis Lane. Mr. John Borden.

Picturesque Allies.—French Algerian troops lend their aid to strengthen position against the enemy.—"Somewhere" in France. Subtitle: Off to dig trenches.

Training Cavalry.—British recruits are put through strenuous drills.—"Somewhere" in England.

French War Balloon.—Giant air craft carries army observers aloft to spy on enemy.—on French Battle Line.

Engineering Feat.—Span weighing 468 tons, part of two-million-dollar bridge, is placed in position over Columbia River.—Vancouver, Wash.

Back From the Grave.—Lost submarine, submerged for twenty-five years, is raised from river bottom.—Chicago, Ill.

A Healthful Pastime.—Ice skating finds many devotees among the fashionable set.—Biltmore Hotel Ice Gardens, New York City.

Cartoons by Hy. Mayer, world famous caricaturist.

L-KO.

BILLY'S REFORMATION (Two Parts—Jan. 9).—The cast: Billy (Billy Ritchie); the Sweetheart (Louise Orth); the Nephew (Reggie Morris); the Trouble Maker (Gene Rogers).

When Billy inherits a fortune of $75,000,000 he becomes so unmanageable around the house that his wife sends him to her sister to be reformed. On the train he flirts with a pretty girl, thereby inciting the jealousy of the trouble maker. He is chased from the train and arrives at his sister's house in his pajamas. There he again meets the girl and tries to win her from her sweetheart. He demoralizes the household and in a battle that follows he is bested, and in trying to escape climbs a flagpole, falls from the top into a fire. He finally escapes, a sadder but wiser man.

JOKER.

THOSE FEMALE HATERS (Jan. 8).—The cast: Max Shultz (Max Asher); His Uncle (William Franey); the Widow (Gale Henry); Lillie (Lillian Peacock); the Valet (Milburn Moranti).

Max and his uncle hate everything pertaining to the female. In fact, so strong is their aversion to the fair sex that they have made an iron-bound agreement that the first who pays attention to a woman will forfeit to the other the sum of $50,000. This agreement they have

M-I-N-A COMEDIES
"From Blackstone to Stone"
RELEASED DECEMBER 30th ON GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

framed and placed conspicuously in their room. The widow is a "merry one" and arrives at the same place where Max and uncle stay. She finds much to admire in uncle, and when uncle gives her the stony stare she asks the clerk about him and learns his hatred of the eternal feminine.

A party of Max's friends are on an outing on a houseboat, and, knowing Max's aversion to anything feminine, persuade him to come, telling him that the party is strictly a "stagg one." Max comes, but is sore and angry when he finds that there are women present, among them being Lillie, whose brother is giving the party. He tries to avoid Lillie, but her charms are too enduring for that and they finally become very chummy. Max in a moment of indiscretion puts his arm about the girl and the others catch him in the act. Fearful that she will lose him, Lillie insists upon an immediate marriage, which is performed. Max tells of the agreement and they agree to keep the marriage a secret. The couple set out to see uncle.

Uncle meanwhile has not been asleep and finds much pleasure in the widow's company. The widow finally gets him in a receptive mood and while they are embracing are caught by the valet, who, fearing uncle has lost his mind, hastily writes Max to hurry home. When Max arrives uncle, in order to fool him, has the widow disguise as a valet, but when Max asks the valet to bathe him there is trouble in the camp. Max meanwhile, to fool uncle, disguises Lillie as a valet, and the two women confront each other and penetrate the disguises. Explanations are in order and things are finally straightened out. The two men agree to call off the agreement, as they both fell in love at about the same time and the two couples are left happy.

BISON.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE TIGRESS (Two Parts—Jan. 8).—The cast: Paul (Paul Bourgeois); Betty Hoffman (Betty Schade); Pidetta (Rozita Marstine); Pierre (Mr. Bryson); Pidetta's Accomplice (T. D. Crittenden).

Pidetta, a notorious French woman and leader of one of Paris' worst gangs of crooks, lives in a beautiful chateau which contains an underground palace. She reads in the papers of the arrival at the best hotel of Betty Hoffman, her mother and fiance, an American millionaire. She decides to make Betty her next victim. Being well known in French society, it is an easy matter for Pidetta to make the friendship of the American heiress, who soon learns to like the refined French woman. In Pidetta's underground palace there is a man, a weak dope fiend, who was once Pidetta's admirer. Through her evil plans she soon wrecked his manhood and reduced him to be her abject slave. Pidetta confides her plans to Pierre, the dope fiend, and forces him to do as she says.

One day Pidetta comes to the hotel for Betty and takes her riding. They enter the woods and visit the grounds of the chateau. Betty's natural curiosity leads her about the grounds of the place and the result is that she is suddenly pounced upon and gagged and bound. Pidetta goes out on the road again, and that evening when Paul, Betty's fiance, becomes uneasy because of her absence, he starts out to find her. He finds Pidetta lying on the ground by her car and when he raises her up she feigns faintness and tells him how they were attacked and Betty was carried away by two strangers. Paul takes Pidetta into her chateau and after summoning the servant to attend her he rushes out and back to the hotel to notify the police of Betty's disappearance, not knowing that Betty is being held a prisoner beneath the chateau which he is in.

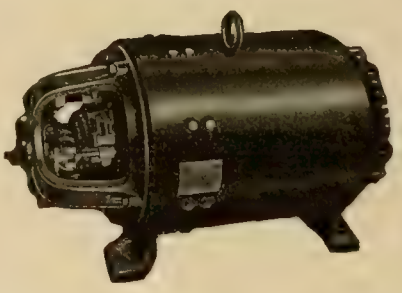
Pidetta forces Betty to write a note to her mother, demanding $10,000 to be given to a man at a certain place or time, or else she will be killed. The note is sent to the hotel by Pierre, who disappears. The mother, Paul and the detectives, who have been summoned, realize that the money must be delivered or the threat to kill Betty may be carried out. Consequently the next day the money is brought to the given place, but the crook escapes before the detectives get him.

The money arrives, but Pidetta does not fulfil her promise to allow Betty to return home, for she realizes that her chateau will be discovered. One day Pierre, touched by the pleadings of Betty, determnies to go to Betty's mother and tell here where Betty is hidden. Detectives are assigned to go with Pierre who leads them through the secret tunnels. Pidetta, having seen through her periscope their arrival automatically opens the cages of the lions and tigers, and the men are forced to battle their way through the ferocious animals, and thus follow Pidetta and her gang.

Pidetta and the gang, carrying Betty, arrive in the last underground room. They throw Betty upon the floor and disappear into the stone pillars by secret doors. The detectives rush into the room and bar the door in time to keep the tigers out. Paul rushes to Betty and releases her. They all realize that there is one way of escape; so, cautiously, they open the door to allow the hungry animals to leap into the room past them, and then quick as a flash they spring through the door and bar it after them. Thus they escape from the chateau with Betty. Pidetta and her gang start to come from the stone pillars, and are terrified to see the animals in the room. They are left to fate; to starve to death in the pillars, or come out and be torn to pieces by the lions and tigers.

HALLBERG

20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR



GIVES BEST LIGHT

Costs Only

$249

For 30 to 70 Amp. D. C. Capacity.

$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arc's—or $50 extra for control for (2) 30-40 amp. arc's on fine switchboards with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat—No live part on front of boards.

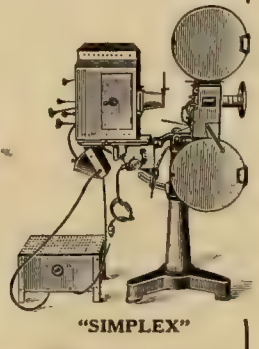
For 110 or 220 volt, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

Weight, 450 lbs. Height, 15″ Width, 15″; Length, 28″.

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted Upon Request

I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.

POWER'S 6A



"SIMPLEX"

Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue, send 25 Cents.

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY AND CARRY ALL MAKES CARBONS AND SUPPLIES.

Send $2.50 for latest Operators' Book "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

J.H. HALLBERG SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER

38 East 23d St. The House of Quality New York

NESTOR.

JED'S TRIP TO THE FAIR (Jan. 3).—The cast: Jed (Eddie Lyons); Lizzie (Bettie Compson); the Mysterious Stranger (Lee Moran); the Thief (Joe Janecke).

Jed, an honest country boy, is winner in the Exposition Contest of the Sacramento Bugle and finds that as winner he receives $500 in cash and two round trips to the San Francisco Exposition. He tells his sweetheart, Lizzie, and after receiving admonitions from the old folks to be careful of the "slick ones" the couple set out. Almost before they arrive in Frisco they find that the folks' advice was not badly given. A mysterious stranger, Lee, strikes up an acquaintance with them. Jed is rather suspicious, but Lizzie easily falls for the handsome stranger-crook.

In the city he plots with Joe, an accomplice of his, to cop the stranger's roll. He wants Joe to grab their grips and when Jed pursues he will grab or secure the money, which he knows the girl is keeping for her sweetheart. It happens, however, that by Lizzie's advice, the "roll" is transferred to the grip for safety. Joe steals the grip and Jed pursues. To his consternation Lee learns of the money being placed in the grip. Jed has no difficulty in recovering the grip, its theft being only a ruse, and he returns with the roll in safety.

The couple place the money in the girl's umbrella, believing that no one would suspect the hiding place. Lee tries to get possession of the umbrella, but is unsuccessful and gains the suspicion of both the young people. Seeing his own efforts hopeless, he gets his female accomplice, Ethel, and she exerts her charms upon Jed, it being the plan of the crooks to get Jed out of the room, while they make a search for money. All goes well; Jed falls for the charmer, and Lizzie is left alone in her room. Jed, however, sees the crooks sneak up the stairs and surmising their purpose, follows them and turns the tables. Then they proceed to visit the Exposition, their money still intact.

FLIVVER'S ART OF MYSTERY (Jan. 7).—Having nothing better to do one day, Flivver decides to visit a theater nearby and chances to see a very clever conjuring turn. He is greatly attracted by it and later on, receiving an invitation to spend the evening with his grandparents in order to celebrate their golden wedding, he decides to go to the conjurer and ask him to teach him his tricks.

He is received very kindly by the professional, who advises him to buy his 5-cent book explaining every trick most minutely. Very much pleased, Flivver sets himself to work and on the night of the party he arrives at his grandfather's house carrying a bag containing all the necessary paraphernalia. His relations are delighted when he tells them that he intends entertaining them all with some clever conjuring tricks. Alas! their joy is short-lived. Notwithstanding his careful attention to all the details given in the conjuring book, Flivver is met with failure and disaster with every experiment.

In his attempts to copy the conjurer he only succeeds in injuring nearly every member of the party. He mashes his aged grandfather over the head, throws his fragile grandmother mercilessly upon the floor, puts a hat containing six or seven broken eggs on the head of his cousin, and throws a bucketful of water over his charming young sister. When the party have recovered sufficiently from their shock they take him by the heels and hurl him out of the front door. We see him sitting disconsolately on the pavement trying to collect his thoughts, and from the expression on his face one would imagine that the conjurer who sold him the book of tricks will have an unpleasant half hour next time he chances to come across Flivver's path.

REX.

SHATTERED NERVES (Jan. 4).—The cast: Ted Harrison (Ben Wilson); T. R. Williams (Charles Ogle); Ruth, his daughter (Dorothy Phillips).

Ted Harrison, suffering from a nervous complaint, finds that the slightest scratching sound drives him wild. He is employed as the secretary to T. R. Williams, a broker. The sound of a construction gang steam whistle annoys him. After slamming down the window, he finds that the stenographer's steady clicking on her typewriter is driving him to distraction. He orders her to stop her pounding. Overcome by fatigue he falls asleep at his desk, and in a visualization of his dream we see Mr. Williams and his daughter, Ruth, enter the office.

Kindly Read Page 139

Now it happens that Ted is in love with Ruth and she with him. She consoles and soothes him and together they leave to go out to lunch. At lunch, Ted tries to control himself but is made very irritable by the constant beating of a man's fork on his plate as he keeps time to the music that the orchestra is playing. Ted jumps to his feet, and before Ruth can interfere, he has taken the fork from the hand of the man and thrown it on the floor. The stranger twists Ted's nose and takes Ruth away from him. The manager, noting the disturbance, orders them all out of the cafe. Once outside of the restaurant, the stranger coolly walks away with Ted's girl.

It appears to be a case of love at first sight, for Ted presently sees Ruth and the stranger enter a church, where they proceed to get married. Ted returns in a despondent mood to the office and Mr. Williams, noting his extreme nervousness, suggests that it would be a good idea for him to take a vacation. Ted takes his advice and goes to a little country hotel where he is given a room on the second floor, after informing the manager of his complaint.

At first all is quiet as the grave and Ted falls asleep. Then, all of a sudden at different times a number of nerve-racking noises are made which continued well through the night. Morning comes and Ted makes all haste to the office where he presently sees Ruth enter with the stranger to whom she was married. Ted has a furious encounter with the stranger again and succeeds in giving his nose a vigorous pull.

We now see Mr. Williams and Ruth at the office standing alongside of Ted who is still sleeping at the desk. Ted awakens with a violent start and then laughs as he tells Mr. Williams and Ruth of his dream. In the final scene it is very apparent that if there is to be any wedding coming off in the near future, it will be between Ted and Ruth.

POWERS.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK (Installment No. 1—"Where Uncle Sam Makes His Laws and Keeps His Relics"—Dec. 25).—This installment shows two of the most important of the Government buildings—the Congressional Library and the State Department Building. The scores of clerks and other workers are shown at their various tasks and each branch of the myriad of departments in each building is given individual treatment.

The picture starts with a close-up view of President Wilson and then he is shown with his full cabinet in session. Many other State, Government and a number of prominent representatives of foreign nations are shown. These include Lindsay M. Garrison, Secretary of War; Secretary of State Robert D. Lansing, former Secretary of State William J. Bryan, Sir Thomas Cecil Spring-Rice and his secretary, Sir George Persh; Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, and others prominent in the affairs of the world. The beautiful mural paintings in the Congressional Library, as well as the rare mosaics, are clearly shown. A portrait of Bernard R. Green, who designed and built the Library, and who died soon after the portrait was taken, is reproduced, together with that of Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress.

Perhaps the most interesting section of the Library is that devoted to rare books and documents. The Government Library contains as many rare exhibits as any similar institution in the world, among which is a first folio edition of Shakespeare, printed in 1623. This edition is valued at $13,000 and is faithfully depicted in the pictures.

The method of transferring the 3,000,000 volumes to the 155 miles of shelves is a picture of unusual interest. The latter part of the reel is given over to a journey through the Smithsonian Institute, where are housed historical relics, the best known of which are the camp kit used by George Washington during the Revolutionary War, his uniform and other mementoes of the "Father of His Country"; and the original Star Spangled Banner, the flag which inspired Francis Scott Key to compose our National anthem.

CARL EMMY AND HIS DOGS (Jan. 6).—This split reel release shows a number of dogs collected in what is apparently the auditorium of a dog theater, watching each other perform tricks. All of them take their part as their turn comes. Most of the dogs are fox terriers, but there are one or two which are more or less mongrel.

An interesting stunt is the dogs playing leapfrog. First they do this by ordinary jumps and vary this with fancy and intricate steps, jumping over each other on their hind legs, and finally combining the jump with a pirouette. Next the dogs are sent up a ladder on all fours and then on their hind feet only. The little mongrel is continually finding fault and objecting, so that occasionally he must be spanked, but he does his little roll-over stunt gracefully and does not seem to mind the spanking in the least.

Under the special title, "Slide, Kelly, Slide," the entire troupe is sent up a ladder and down a chute, both head-on dive and facing backwards.

LAEMMLE.

THE UNDERWORLD (Jan. 5).—The cast: The Newlyweds (Rena Rodgers and Hal Cooley); Antonio (Rupert Julian); Kara (Elsie Jane Wilson).

The newlyweds are entertaining a party of friends in honor of their recent marriage and the ordinary run of after-dinner pleasures being done to death, the wife is very anxious to give her guests a real entertainment. She proposes a slumming party, and while at first her husband objects, upon seeing the bitter disappointment of the wife, he finally agrees to take them all to see the sights of "The Tenderloin."

The party arrives in the tough part of town and Hal calls an apparent lounger and offers to pay him to show them through the town. The lounger agrees to guide them and they are taken into a tough joint. Among the interesting exhibits he shows them Antonio, who has a reputation as the best "knifer" in town and the guests look at him with shudders. Kara, a queen of the underworld, also comes into the limelight and the well-dressed strangers view her with curiosity and trepidation. Kara later returns to the room with an ardent admirer and when Antonio rises and stealthily creeps toward her, both denizens of the den and the guests, seek places of hiding.

They see, with horror, Antonio brutally thrust the girl aside and he and Kara's companion engage in a duel. The fight rages about the room and into the adjoining room. Later Antonio's antagonist staggers into the room and falls over a table apparently dead. The guests flee in horror and upon arriving safely home Mrs. Newly wed declares that never again will she go for a "slumming party."

In the den there is hilarious rejoicing. The manager divides with his confederates the money he had received from the visitors to get them safely out, while the principals in the drama remove their disguises and accept the congratulations of all present for their masterly portrayal of a tragedy.

MISSY (Two Parts—Jan. 6).—The cast: Missy (Myrtle Gonzalez); Dave Briscoe (Alfred Allen); Jenny (Josie Sedgwick); Walter Hart (Frank Newburg); Blonde McDonald (Val Paul); Jos. Boggs (William Brunter).

Dave Briscoe, trapper and guide, lives with his wife, Jenny, and baby daughter, Missy, in the big woods. Jenny has long rebelled against her life and had made the acquaintance of Joe Boggs, who owns a gambling house and saloon. Finally, one day, she and Boggs leave together, taking Missy, the baby with them. Dave returns home and learns of their elopement. He intercepts the two and takes the baby from her, but forcing her to go with Boggs in the life she has chosen.

Many years pass. Missy grows up to be a child of the wilderness, and is loved by Lon McDonald, a trapper. Missy and Lon become great friends and Dave has hopes that some time Lon will become more than a partner to him. Jenny, meanwhile, is enjoying the better things of life. Boggs is considered wealthy and their names are among the head of the list of the newly rich. Boggs had been fair to the woman and legally married her.

As Missy had now grown up her mother writes Dave begging him to allow the girl to come to her and take advantage of the education she can give her. Dave tells her that it will depend on Missy—that if she wants to go to her mother that it will be all right with him, but refuses to influence her one way or the other. Lon, knowing the yearning of Missy for little extravagances, had several times on his trips to town brought her different articles. When Missy learns that her mother is in the city, she also learns that by going to her she will have all the clothes and other little things that she has read about but never seen. When the actual time to decide the question comes, Missy refuses to leave her father and Lon.

When the hunting season opens, Walter Hart, a sportsman of the same city where the Boggs live, arrives in the woods to hunt and makes his headquarters at Dave's home and so becomes acquainted with Missy. The girl learns that Hart knows her mother, and the two spend much time together. A love affair develops between them and Dave orders Hart to leave. Missy shows a mind of her own and insists that if the hunter leaves that she will go to her mother. Dave is insistent, however, and Hart is forced to leave. Missy, true to her word, slips away to her mother. In the city, Hart again renews his attentions to Missy and at the expiration of a year, arrangements are being made for their wedding. Although Missy thinks a great deal of Hart she has vague suspicions against him and the night before their wedding she bribes a dancing girl to exchange places with her and Missy is present at the big party in Hart's home. She sees the attention Hart pays to the dancing girl and his true character is shown to her. Hart finally discovers his sweetheart's presence and there is a stormy scene between them.

Broken hearted, Missy thinks of the true love of Lon and the peacefulness of her mountain home and decides to return. She receives a hearty welcome from Lon and old Dave and is given a big celebration. She has learned her lesson and decides that Love in a hut with a true man is better than all the fineries of civilization with a "cad."

BLIND FURY (Jan. 9).—The cast: Jack Kelly (Jack Livingston); Jim Fulton (Leon D. Kent); Alice Butler (Mina Jeffries); Mr. Butler (Bud Osborne); Sheriff (Malcolm Blevins); Buck (Hart Hoxie).

An old recluse tells the story of an experience in the West, to account for his frequent spells of madness.

Jack Kelly makes a rich strike and goes to town to celebrate. A young tenderfoot, Jim Fulton, strikes town at the same time. Buck Logan, local "bad man," is out on a tear and, meeting him, compels him to dance for his amusement. Jack enters the street. Buck's attention is distracted for an instant and Jim, taking advantage, jumps and gets his gun. He then proceeds to administer a sound and scientific threshing to the "bad man." Later Jim goes broke in a poker game and Jack generously offers to take him in as a partner.

The next day at the mine Jim learns of the rich strike and suspects that Jack knew of it all the time. Jack silences his protests, saying: "Of course, you'll share it: you're my partner, aren't you?" Jim begins to learn what partner means to Jack. They both meet and fall in love with Alice Butler, but Jack, believing that she loves Jim, hides his love and keeps away. Alice is not quite sure of her love for Jim, but yields to his pleadings and wears his ring.

One day Jim goes to look for his horse, which has strayed. Alice, who has begun to realize that she cares for Jack, is out riding. She longs for a sight of Jack, so rides by the cabin. He comes out to meet her. In dismounting her foot catches and she is thrown into his arms. Jim, upon a hilltop, looking through glasses, sees them at this distance. Insane with jealousy, Jim rides back toward the cabin. Suddenly Jack remembers that he is not being square with his partner, and gently releases himself. He tells Alice that he must be a traitor to his partner; but the girl does not fully appreciate and share his point of honor and rides off somewhat angry.

Jim arrives, and, gun in hand, demands that Jack defend himself with his gun. Jack puts his hand into his pocket and Jim, thinking that his opponent is about to whip his gun out quickly fires. Jack falls. When Jim investigates he sees that Jack was only taking out his handkerchief. Alice has heard the shot and hurried back. She kneels beside Jack and then turns upon Jim, telling him that Jack has just refused her love out of loyalty to him.

You Should Read Page 139

Jim is ready to kill himself, but Alice discovers that Jack is still breathing, and Jim rides for the doctor. The doctor announces that Jack is still alive. Alice kneels beside the bed in joy and thankfulness. Jim looks at them sadly, then returns and walks slowly away.

The scene fades back to the old recluse as he says: "In my jealousy and anger I forgot that he was my partner, but I have been remembering it ever since."

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE.

LANGDON'S LEGACY (Five Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Jack Landon (J. Warren Kerrigan); Juan Maria Barada (Bertram Grasby); Pepita (Lois Wilson); Senorita Del Deros (Maude George); Miguel Alba (Harry Carter); Mr. Thompson (G. A. Williams); Mrs. Thompson (Mary Talbot).

Jack Landon was sent to Peru as manager of the Santa Clara mine. The mining property was somewhat in dispute. Gov. Juan Maria Barada resents the American claim. The two mine managers who preceded Landon have disappeared. The new mine manager knew that he would have a fight on his hands, but the fight waged against him was not the American style that he was used to. Barada first tried to bribe him, and, failing in this, several mysterious attempts were made on his life. Landon escaped these attacks by sheer good luck and a steady nerve, but after they had blown up the new machinery, forced a strike among the miners, called out the militia and placed the property under martial authority, Jack Landon concluded that it was time to return to San Francisco. When Landon left, he threatened to lay the whole matter before his company. Barada sent his tool, Miguel Alba, on a faster boat to intercept the manager at San Francisco and "silence him."

Alba is nearly successful in his attempt on Jack Landon's life, but the latter, after six weeks of delirium in a hospital, slowly recovers. When able to sit up, the American's long delayed mail is handed him. The first letter that he reads is one from a firm of lawyers informing him of the death of his maiden aunt; also that she has left him her property, a Massachusetts seminary containing two hundred lively and entertaining young ladies. Landon leaves for his property, and arrives at the college during commencement; makes an eloquent speech to the young ladies, then watches the departure of students and professors with something like regret. He is left alone in the empty college, with no companion save the caretaker and his wife. At night a noise in the adjoining room arouses him. Going into the darkened room, he turns on the lights and finds that the intruder is a bedraggled and much frightened young lady. He recognizes the girl as Barada's daughter, who is a student at the college.

Landon summons the caretaker and his wife, then asks the young lady for an explanation. She tells him that her father is at that moment awaiting her in New York; that her governess has plotted with Miguel Alba to take her to Boston, when Alba intended to force her into marriage. She had watched her chance and jumped from the train, then hurried back to the college. After telephoning her father in New York, Landon prepares to receive Alba, feeling sure that that gentleman will soon put in an appearance. Alba and Senorita Bel Deros soon arrive and demand Barada's daughter. The demand is promptly refused. A fight between the men follows, and the result is that Alba is bound and locked in the girls' gymnasium for safe keeping.

Barada arrives. Jack Landon and his old enemy meet again; but this time the older man is humble in his gratitude for the younger's efforts in saving his daughter. He assures Sig. Landon that if he will return to Peru, the road to his success will be smooth. Jack Landon gives one glance at Barada's daughter, and what is seen in her eyes causes him to decide on his future course at once. Baraba wishes to see his old friend Alba and goes alone to the gymnasium, only to discover that Alba has made his escape. Landon feels very sorry that the man got away, but Barada tells him not to worry, and softly adds, "We of Peru take splendid care of our enemies"—and he was right. Neither Alba nor the treacherous governess escaped the vengeance of Barada.

Mutual Film Corp.

MUSTANG.

THE HILLS OF GLORY (Two Parts—Jan. 7).—The cast: Cherry Blosson (Helene Rosson); Justus McCanna (E. Forrest Taylor); Matt Sipe (Roy Stewart); Bettina Purdy (Beatrice Van); Judd Blossom (Charles Newton).

Justus McCanna, a popular young physician, is rapidly falling in love with Bettina Purdy. Bettina is a girl in his own set, favored by his mother and sister, and much in love with Justus. A telegram from a friend injured in a wreck takes Justus into Kentucky. There Matt Sipe, a fiery young mountaineer, hearing of the doctor's skill, begs him to go with him to see his sick mother, but Justus refuses. As he starts for the station he is kidnapped by Matt and his father and carried to their cabin in the mountains. Once there he does his best for Mrs. Sipe.

Going to the spring one day for a bucket of water, he encounters Cherry Blossom. He carries her bucket home for her. Matt loves Cherry with all his ardent nature. He finds evidence of her meeting the doctor, goes to the Blossom cabin, and creates a scene. With her ambition for an education as an excuse, Justus arranges frequent meetings to help her with her reading. They fall in love and Matt, spying on them, swears to break it up. Following the doctor until he locates him in the bottom of a gully, he rolls a rock down on him. Cherry hears the crash and runs to find Matt gloating over his insensible rival. She solemly curses him, and Matt, with a mountaineer's superstition, feels terror grip him. Cherry supports her lover to her cabin.

Justus believes that he is dying and insists on immediate marriage. Cherry's father brings the minister and the ceremony is performed. But Justus does not die. His wife nurses him back to health, and he settles down contentedly to their simple life. Then a letter comes from his mother concerning a property deal where his immediate presence is imperative. He assures his wife that he will return soon, but Cherry's heart is heavy with foreboding. Justus means to act honestly but a reluctance to disclose his marriage until Cherry is better fitted to occupy her position as a prominent physician's wife seals his lips. Bettina proceeds to reassert her former claim on his time and attention, and Justus now in a false position finds the return to the old life dulling his recollection of the mountains.

A son is born to Cherry and people begin to sneer at her as a deserted woman. She loyally defends Justus, but her heart bleeds. Determined to know the best or the worst, she goes to Brooklyn with her baby and visits her husband's home. He is not there but his mother, sister and Bettina pity the frightened, illy-dressed mountain wife who refuses to tell the object of her visit. Cherry shrinks from them and goes.

Matt takes advantage of the results of her trip to press his attentions on her. She drives him away with a shotgun. Justus' mother tells him of the visit of the strange woman, whom Justus recognizes as Cherry. He leaves to go to her, reaching her just as Matt has returned with a gun to kill the "brat" and take the woman. He and Matt fight it out. Cherry intercedes to save Matt's life, then lays her son in Justus' arms.

BEAUTY.

BILLY VAN DEUSEN'S SHADOW (Jan. 4).—The cast: Billy Van Deusen (John Stepling); Hank, a waiter (John Steppling); Flora Smudge (Carol Halloway); Mrs. Smudge (Marie Van Tassel).

Billy is a tennis enthusiast, without particular ability, and one of his wild returns crashes through a plate glass window at the home of Mrs. Smudge. Billy, calling to reclaim his ball, finds Mrs. Smudge and her daughter extremely indignant, but when he presents his card and they discover that he is one of the Blue Book "400," their attitude promptly changes. They shower Billy with attention, for Mrs. Smudge and her daughter are exceedingly ambitious socially. Billy calls again and again and at length he and Flora are engaged. Flora, chancing to glance from her window discovers Hank, the waiter, endeavoring to flirt with a passing girl. Hank's form and features are exactly like Billy's and Flora labors under the impression that it is her fiance.

Mother and daughter Smudge enter a cafe for dinner, where they are horrified to discover Billy as a waiter. In reality it is Hank, whose resemblance to Billy is marked. Flora watches the waiter closely and he, inclined to be flirtatious, chucks her familiarly under the chin. Then the real Billy enters the cafe and seeing Flora and Mrs. Smudge, he at once makes for their table. Meanwhile, Hank who had been discovered in the act of chucking Flora's chin, has been discharged and the proprietor of the restaurant thinks that Billy who came in through the front door is Hank the waiter. Further complications set in. Billy is roughly handled. The next day he calls at the Smudge's to straighten things out. Woe unto him. He finds the Smudges have moved and left no address. Crestfallen, Billy wends his weary way homeward.

Don't Fail to Read Page 139

Every Big Player

APPEARING IN FILMS AT YOUR HOUSE has a drawing value.

YOUR BOX OFFICE

will be the gainer if you will Display the Stars in YOUR LOBBY. OUR LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES, size 22 x 28 inches, of all the players.

Price 75 cents each. In mission frame with glass, $2.50 each.

SPECIAL TO TRIANGLE EXHIBITORS.—All their players, including the big directors, in various styles for Lobby display.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10; of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

Theatre Record Ledger System, 1916

Commence next year's business with a thorough and systematic auditing record. Mr. John Freuler (Pres. Mutual Film Co.) in a recent issue of Reel Life, urges every theatre manager to install accurate recording record systems, just the same as the Theatre Record Ledger contains. You cannot help but keep a systematic record in using the Theatre Record Ledger System. Each Theatre Record Ledger contains 52 pages. One page comprises a complete week's records. Each day's receipts are carefully separated (matinee from night). Also every item of expense carefully disbursed under separate heads, besides recording space for weather and program used. Price $2.50 (20c. additional for postage.) Money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory Order today.

Northwestern Motion Picture Equipment Company, Inc.

J. V. BRYSON, President
MINNEAPOLIS, U. S. A.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE (Jan. 8).—The cast: Ignatius Jenkyns (Orral Humphreys); Mrs. Frummerly (Gladys Kingsbury); Her Daughter, Bella (Mary Talbot); Prof. Mugwash (Johnny Gough); Hotel Proprietor (Ed. C. Watt).

Ignatius Jenkyns is the world's greatest Shakespearean tragedian. He admits it, yet he plays on the "ten-twent'-thirt'" time. He and his company leave Waitsburg about midnight, much to the consternation of the hotel keeper who is not aware of their departure until the following morning. Arrived at Spudsville, the next town on their circuit. Ignatius at once proceeds with the rehearsal of his role, but members of his company, rebellious at the "all work and no pay" life they are leading, make forceful demands upon the lanky tragedian as to "when the ghost will walk."

Then the Waitsburg hotel keeper and sundry constables arrive, intent on procuring money from Ignatius or taking it out of his hide. In undignified haste, the great tragedian flees. He takes refuge in the home of Mrs. Frummerly, in whose blue veins flows the red blood of the long lamented Sir Archibald Ladykiller. Mrs. Frummerly and her daughter Bella are standing in front of a portrait of their revered ancestor. They have discovered a mysterious parchment which professes that when the ghost of the late Sir Archibald shall appear, fortune shall smile upon his descendants, namely, viz. and to-wit—Madame Frummerly and Bella.

When Honorable Ignatius appears, the Frummerlys are wide-eyed, for the long haired Hamfat bears marked resemblance to their feudal ancestor. As Ignatius approaches the portrait, he stumbles over his sword and falls. Frantically he grasps at the painting, which tumbles down upon his head. A cache is revealed, in which is a hoard of jewels and money. The Frummerlys, discovering that Ignatius is flesh and blood, and not a ghost, agree to split their good fortune "fifty-fifty" and Ignatius returns again to trod the boards of Spudville. Placating the irate hotel man, the great Hamfat lifts aloft his lance, and in deep stentorian tones he bellows: "A horse, a horse—my kingdom for a horse."

AMERICAN.

MATCHING DREAMS (Two Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Martha Weaver (Vivian Rich); Hugh Clayton (Alfred Vosburgh); Mrs. Hammond (Sylvia Ashton); Lola Hammond (Jimsey Maye).

Circumstances decree that Martha Weaver shall be a dressmaker, and the artistry of her needle finds expression in beautiful gowns she designs for the fortunate women who have the dollars with which to buy costly silks and satins. Lola, a niece of the wealthy Mrs. Hammond, employs Martha and makes of the girl her confidante. Lola explains to the young seamstress that the gown on which she is working has been ordered by Lola's aunt so that she, Lola, might wear it and ensnare the heart of Hugh Clayton. Lola doesn't love Hugh but rather her heart remains true to a young man in her home town. Lola wears the gown and Hugh, contrary to Auntie's desires, expresses a wish to meet the girl who could design a gown like that.

Martha meanwhile is pressed for funds with which to pay her rent. She promises to pay as soon as Mrs. Hammond's check arrives. Then Lola decides to elope with her young lover, and fearing that Martha will not be paid for her work, Lola leaves her horse and riding habit in payment for her gowns. This doesn't pay the rent, but nevertheless Martha's heart is filled with joy for it has long been her fondest dream to canter along in the mountains.

Martha rides out, astride her sleek mount. In the hills she meets with Hugh, and the two ride side by side. In reply to a question, the girl declares that she is Rosalind, and Hugh promptly insists that he is Orlando. The chance acquaintances part and agree to meet the following day. Martha meets Hugh, but at the end of their ride she gives him a note that she must say good-bye forever, for she has pretended to be what she is not. She prays that he remember her only as Rosalind.

Mrs. Hammond has reclaimed Lola's horse and habit and in doing so, paid Martha the money she owed. Martha has occasion to call at the Clayton home, where she is surprised to meet Hugh. He, too, is surprised, though not too much so to declare his love, and crushes the girl in his arms. The hearts of Orlando and Rosalind henceforth unite.

TIME AND TIDE (Jan. 7).—The cast: Ned Lang (Alfred Vosburgh); Ruth Walters (Nell Franzen); William Lang (Hugh Bennett).

William Lang is a wealthy widower and when there are women folks around, he just "cawn't make his eyes behave." In other words, Lang is a bold, bad flirt, much to the distress of his son, Ned, who tries to make him realize that the girls do not love him but rather his money. Father and son go to the seashore where the elder Lang is promptly captivated by the wiles of a charming widow. Then Ned meets with Ruth Walters, a pretty fishermaiden, and before he knows it, the young man is head over heels in love. Ned's wedding plans are unfolded and father announces that it will be a double wedding for he is to wed the widow.

Ned shows the widow a telegram which states that his father's fortune has been swept away, whereupon the widow promptly leaves for parts unknown. Father is disgruntled and refuses to see that all the designing woman wanted was to clutch his fortune. Enraged, the father refuses to permit the wedding of his son and the fisher girl. Then follow gloomy days, for father will not let Ned out of his sight.

The latter resorts to strategy. With his father he walks out on a rocky point, extending far out into the sea. The tide comes in. Neither can swim and they are cut off from land. They shout vociferously for help. Ruth rows out in a boat, takes Ned aboard and leaves the frantic father, bewailing his fate, but Ruth knows and so does Ned, that the tide never completely submerges the point where father stands. By the time the tide has receded, and Lang reaches the shore, the knot has safely been tied. Father, much to his chagrin, is forced to grin and bear it.

THANHOUSER.

THEIR LAST PERFORMANCE (Three Parts—Dec. 28).—The cast: Stage Struck (Ethyle Cooke); Her Sweetheart (Morris Foster); Young Girl (Grace De Carlton); Her Sweetheart (Boyd Marshall); Club Man (Hector Dion).

An ambition girl came from a small city determined to make her mark behind the footlights, but was soon disillusioned, and realized that the only theatrical future for her was a place in the chorus. She would have returned home, but her parents were in poor circumstances, and the small amount she was able to send home every week meant much to them. She saw the other girls accept invitations from wealthy men, but she knew the dangers of the gilded path and declined all advances from would-be admirers. There was a hard-working young man back home whom she had promised to marry.

One day she received a letter from her mother telling of her father's serious illness, and of their need for money to pay the medical expenses, while in the same mail came a letter from her sweetheart in which he told of financial reverses and of his inability to help her parents. The tempter, in the person of a wealthy man, appeared, and offered to lend her the money that her parents needed. To save her father's life, she made the sacrifice, and the money was mailed that night. The father did not recover as rapidly as was expected, and as he was hovering between life and death, a visitor to the great city brought news of his daughter's life. Heartbroken, the father died, and his wife soon followed him. The girl's fiance came to New York, told her of her parents' death, bitterly denounced her and cast her off.

She tried to forget the past in the gay life of the city, but she could not. One day, a new element came into her life. A young girl came from a distant town and secured a position in the same company. She was hopeful and enthusiastic, and fondly believed that a great future on the stage awaited her, but she had attracted the attention of the same man who had spoiled the life of the other girl. The older girl watched over the newcomer with the care of a sister.

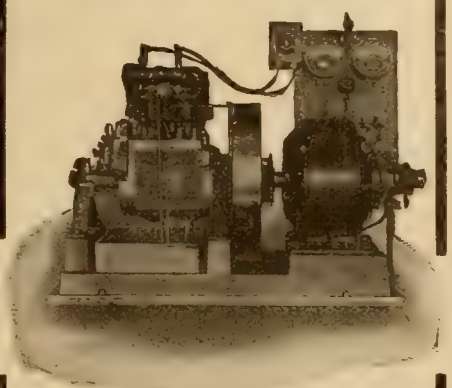
The younger girl slipped away one evening after the performance and went with the rich man to a restaurant where dinner was served in a private room. As time progressed she became frightened and to calm her the man called up the older girl at her boarding house and invited her to join them at the restaurant for dinner. He did not know that the sweetheart of the younger girl had arrived in the city and was at the boarding house at that time, so he was greatly surprised when a stalwart young man entered with the actress. He was not disposed to give up his prey without a fight, but he was no match for the young athlete and was beaten to the ground.

The following night the last performance of the play was to be held, and then the actress had promised to accompany her protege to her home, for the younger girl's sweetheart had induced her to consent to an early marriage. The curtain was about to fall upon the final scene when a pistol shot rang out, and a girl in the chorus was seen to sway and fall. Men leaped into the stage box and seized a half-crazed wretch, who clung to the fatal weapon, as he gazed in fascination at the stage, for the shot had not reached the little bride-to-be, but the older girl, who, though a cast-off of society, had given her life for her friend.

Her death was not in vain, for the other girl

You Should Read Page 139

What's the Use?



4 Kilowatt Direct-Connected Outfit

What's the use, Mr. Traveling Showman, in carting around several tons of antique engine and electrical apparatus for making electric current, when you can buy a

Brush Electric Lighting Set

Just sit down and write for our Catalogue. It tells the whole story, and what it tells is SO.

The Chas. A. Strelinger Co.

Box MP-2

Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Edison Machine, $65

Including upper and lower magazines, electric burner, new Simplex rheostat, asbestos cord, rewind and lenses to fit measurements, everything ready to run a picture, guaranteed first class condition, for $65. Will ship subject to inspection. Many other bargains in Simplex, Power's and Motiograph machines. Opera and Folding Chairs of all kinds, new and slightly used, at bargain prices. Roll Tickets, 7½c. a thousand. Film Cement and Oil, 15c. bottle. All makes of Carbons. We are the largest THEATRE SUPPLY west of Chicago.

LEARS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

509 Chestnut St. St. Louis, Mo.

is now happily married, and she and her husband often speak of the girl who made the supreme sacrifice which brought happiness to them.

FALSTAFF.

UNA'S USEFUL UNCLE (Dec. 27).—The cast: Una (Charles Emerson); His Wife (Winifred Lane); Uncle Dan (Riley Chamberlain).

The young married couple were struggling to earn a living from their little farm and to save enough to pay off the mortgage which encumbered it. But relatives descended upon them and devoured their food. The worst of them all was the wife's mother, and when she departed after a long stay, the young couple heaved a sigh of relief. Then they were again plunged into despair by the arrival of Uncle Dan, another relative of the wife. Uncle Dan was a shabby old fellow, who was continually drinking out of a flask which he carried in his pocket. He announced his intention to pay his niece an indennite visit.

Several weeks later the farmer called upon the money-lender to pay the interest on the mortgage, and while on his way home he lost the receipt for the money he had just paid. The voucher was found by the old miser, who, realizing that the farmer had no proof that he had paid the money, denied that he had ever received it and demanded payment again. The farmer and his wife were very gloomy and believed that it would be necessary for them to pay the interest again, although they knew that they were being cheated, but Uncle Dan, who had made an accidental discovery of great value, intervened.

A dance was to be held at the town hall that night. Uncle Dan appeared before the committee of arrangements with a number of apples, which he explained were samples of the celebrated "Usquebaugh Apple," of which only he possessed the formula. The members of the committee tasted the apples, and agreed that they were delightful, for the fruit made them feel very happy. A large order was given to Uncle Dan, and the miser watched the rapid sale of the apples with envy, and finally made the farmer an offer for his farm and the wonderful formula of how to produce them, but not until he had agreed to pay many times the market value did he secure the coveted property and he had to pay for it in cash. Uncle Dan gave him a sealed envelope which he told him contained the formula for the "Usquebaugh Apple." Sometime later the miser tore open the envelope. The note read: "For definition of 'Usequebaugh,' look in the dictionary." He did, and learned that the definition is "whiskey."

The money-lender never saw Uncle Dan or the young couple again, for they left that night for New York, where the young man prospered in business.

FOOLISH FAT FLORA (Dec. 30).—The cast: Flora (Arthur Cunningham); Husband (George Mack); Automobile Owner (Charles Emerson); Gardener (George Welch).

Flora hated weighing machines, but she could not keep away from them. She wanted to see if she was getting fatter, and each time she stepped upon the scale she tipped it a little higher. She did everything she could to make her figure sylph-like, taking long walks and practicing with dumb-bells and Indian clubs. Through this latter form of exercise, her worst ill luck came, for she dropped an Indian club out of the window and it hit the gardener, and the hose he was using slewed around and the water poured over her husband who was in the house, and Flora's husband fought with the gardener and the gardener lost his job and the husband gained a cold, but poor Flora didn't lose even a fraction of a pound.

After consoling her husband, Flora happened to look over one of the Sunday newspapers and a full page article attracted her attention. It was by a celebrated dancer, and explained that the way to "lose your fat and gain a figure" was to "dress on the floor, work on the floor, and eat and sleep on the floor."

Foolish, fat Flora tried it. She had all the furniture moved out of the house and religiously followed the rules laid down by the dancer. As a result, horrified neighbors had her arrested, and at the door of the jail she met her loving husband. He was accused of wrecking an auto tire with a plate, failing to make repairs, fighting on the public street and resisting an officer. It was all his wife's fault, he said, and he proved it, and was most unhappy when sent to jail. Flora was rejoiced, however, having heard that the prison food was bad and believing that jail life would train her down. Whether it did or not is a question, for she and her husband are still behind the bars.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 52 (Dec. 30).

Boston, Mass.—Big steel battleplane is built here. It has two gun turrets and is driven by 140 horsepower motor.

Marysville, Cal.—Citizens "bury the hammer" at dedication of new $150,000 bridge. "No more knocking" is their slogan. Subtitle: The key to the bridge is presented to the mayor.

RUN
ROLIN PATHE
FILMS
AND MAKE YOUR AUDIENCE
HAPPY.

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

We Furnish Cameramen
ALSO DO
PRINTING AND DEVELOPING
OF THE HIGHEST GRADE
We guarantee all work. Give prompt delivery at lowest prices
Standard Motion Picture Company
Room 1620, 5 So. Wabash Ave. CHICAGO

FOR SALE Moving Picture Theatres in the South.
Capital necessary, $35,000. Write for particulars, Consolidated Film & Supply Co., New Orleans, Louisiana.

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

OVER 9,000 Theatres are using "NEWMAN" Brass Frames furnished in the various finishes which do not require polishing:
BURNISHED BRASS — GERMAN SILVER
BRASS OXIDIZED — STATUARY BRONZE
GUN METAL — OXIDIZED
BRUSHED BRASS OR DULL BRASS
"NEWMAN" ALL METAL FRAMES cost no more than ordinary wood frames, and will last a lifetime.
Write in to-day for 1915 catalog.
The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK — CINCINNATI — CHICAGO
101 Fourth Ave. — 717 Sycamore St. — 108 W. Lake St.
Established since 1882

Charleston, S. C.—Southern Commercial Congress meets here. Naval review and pageant are features for the entertainment of distinguished guests. Subtitle: Gov. Manning of South Carolina and staff.

Paris, France.—Paul Hernieu of the French Academy is buried here.

New York City—Ice skating is society's newest fad. Here are illustrated the latest modes in costumes a Glace. Subtitles: Lanvin Model. Made of old rose sweater cloth. (Courtesy of J. M. Gidding & Co., Fifth avenue, New York.) Paquin Model. Made of blue suede leather. (Courtesy of J. M. Gidding & Co., Fifth avenue, New York.) "The St. Moritz." Hunter green velour cloth. Trimmed with beaver fur. Hat to match. (Courtesy of Leo F. Sturm, New York.) "The Figure Eight." Nutria Rink cloth. Trimmed with seal. Hat to match.

Paris, France.—Holland's gift to France. A hospital is established at Pre' Catelan. (Catelan.)

New York City—Junior American Guard gives military training to boys between 12 and 18. New movement to strengthen National defense plans.

Le Creuzot, France.—A new submarine for France. The "Daphne" is launched here. The Aquitania, greatest of English ships, arrives in the Dardanelles with reinforcements for the Allies.

Marseilles, France.—Trophies captured from the Germans at the battle of Champagne are placed on view here.

Washington, D. C.—President Wilson weds Mrs. Galt. This picture of the President and his bride was made at the World Series Ball Game at Philadelphia in October. Subtitles: Mrs. Galt's jewelry store. Mrs. Galt's residence in Washington. The White House—her future home.

New York City.—Ammunition for the Allies. German freighter seized by Russia is converted into munition carrier.

Ostrander, Ohio.—Second Annual Turkey Scramble. Any one catching a bird becomes its owner.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE DOOR (American—Five Parts—Jan. 6).—The cast: John Montgomery (Harold Lockwood); Ellie (May Allison); Rod, Political Boss and Gambler (Wm. Stowell); Dingley, District Attorney (Harry Von Meter); Fenwick, Ellie's Father (Dick La Reno); Carlotta (Josephine Humphreys); Sheriff (Roy Stewart).

John Montgomery, young, rich and of fine family, is eagerly sought after by the elite of old San Francisco. He and Ellie Fenwick meet for a moment at a hall, and are mutually attracted. Montgomery's impulsiveness and generosity cause him to fall an easy prey to Willie Felton, leader of a fast set, who introduces the young man to Martin Rood's gambling house. Rood, seeing in Montgomery a lamb to be shorn, quickly fleeces him of a large part of his fortune and then persuades him to invest the rest in a bogus mining deal. The young San Franciscan finds himself penniless. Meanwhile, he has met Carlotta Valencia, mistress of Rood, who develops for Montgomery the first real affection she has ever felt for any man. He is infatuated with her beauty and cleverness, and when he begins to hear evil stories against her, he stoutly defends this Spanish woman of doubtful arts. Montgomery's own reputation is sullied because of his associates, and only Ellie Fenwick continues to have faith in his inherent nobility. She believes Montgomery more sinned against than sinning. Her father, however, will not permit her to have anything to do with the man she loves. Montgomery, denied the companionship of the one woman who might have redeemed him, turns for consolation to Carlotta.

One morning early, Ellie is returning from the market to prepare a birthday breakfast for her father. Passing Rood's gambling house, she hears a pistol shot. Through the swinging doors of the bar-room, the proprietor of the resort falls out dead. Montgomery, with a smoking revolver in his hand, leaps out after him, and the next instant, flinging away the weapon, has fled. Ellie, panic-stricken, hurries home, where she tells her father and District Attorney Dingley what she has seen. Nobody else has witnessed the incident, and Ellie, violently against her own will, is obliged to serve as chief witness for the state. Carlotta lures the girl to her house and tries to bribe her into silence. When this fails, she attempts to induce her to drink a cup of poisoned wine. Ellie, however, is on her guard. Her father has made her feel that it is her duty to God and to society to testify against the man she loves.

Montgomery is convicted of the murder. As he

Have You Read Page 139?

The Starting of the

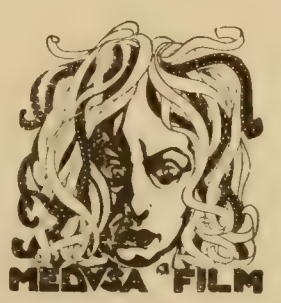
MEDUSA FILM

His Daughter's Second Husband

A palpitating and thrilling drama of real life, written expressly by:

Giannino Antona Traversi

The leading Italian dramatist. Author of many famous plays.



A tragedy of a woman's heart in the year 1915. Admirably staged by:

Augusto Genina

Perfectly played by:

Fernanda Negri Pouget—The unrivaled heroine of "The Last Days of Pompeii."

A Feature in Five Parts. 5300 Feet The Crack Film of the Season

Apply to

MEDUSA FILM

lungo Tevere Castello 3
ROME, ITALY

is leaving the courthouse a band of Mexican horsemen, hirelings of Carlotta, effect his rescue. He and the Spanish woman plot to flee the country together. A chance meeting with Ellie, however, causes Montgomery to resolve to leave the city alone and start life over again. He writes Carlotta his intention. Ellie is driving him in her carriage to the borders of the town when both are arrested by the sheriff's posse. The girl flees, taking refuge in Carlotta's house. She finds the beautiful Spaniard sitting erect in a chair—dead. A written confesion in her own hand reveals that it was she who murdered Rood. Later, Perez, Carlotta's servant, corroborates the story, throwing light on Montgomery's heroism in shielding the guilty woman. Montgomery is exonerated. He begins life anew—with Ellie as his wife.

SIGNAL FILM CORP.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME (Episode No. 2—"The Winning Jump"—Two Parts—Jan. 3).—General Holmes learns of the plans to steal the survey charts for his proposed new line. He tells this news to Rhinelander and Seagrue, his associates, who are at the home to meet with the directors of the C. W. R. R. en route to Signal on a special train. General Holmes takes Helen and his associates down to the depot to greet the visitors. On a passing track Storm is working around a big freight engine. Casting discretion aside he steps over and with outstretched hand greets Helen. She shakes hands with him and then rebukes him for his impertinence.

Arrived at the house General Holmes and his friends get down to business. A discussion arises over distribution of stock holdings. Seagrue refuses to accept the proposition advanced by Holmes and Rhinelander. Threats come from both sides and finally the meeting breaks up in disorder. Late that night Seagrue admits two confederates hired for the purpose of blowing the general's safe and stealing the plans for the survey. Helen awakens. Realizing the matter at hand and seeing Storm working on his engine at the depot, in the flare of a torch, she quickly fastens a serving bell to the wire running to the station and starts it along on its message for help.

Storm hears the bell and wondering what it is all about looks to the general's house and sees there silhouetted against a window the struggling forms of a girl and two men. After tying Helen, Spike and Lefty, the hired crooks return down stairs where they encounter General Holmes. They give him a beating and escape with the plans. The crooks run down to the track and at the risk of their lives board a passing train. Helen takes command of the situation. At the head of a group of her father's friends she hurries to the depot and hastily commandeers Storm's engine.

Hiding on the roof of one of the passenger coaches the two crooks see the beginning of the chase. Climbing over the cars they reach the engine and hold up the engineer and fireman. The freight engine is gaining. Spike sends Lefty back to cut off the coaches. As the engine is cut off the air brakes bring the coaches to a sudden stop. Behind them, Storm pulls his big iron horse. A parallel track affords further pursuit. Hastily backing onto it, Storm speeds up his engine and soon is abreast of the fleeing crooks.

Helen climbs back over the tank of the engine and as the two engines race side by side she jumps to the tank of the passenger engine. Lefty grapples with her but Storm knocks him out by throwing a wrench straight and true. Spike seeing the game is up leaps into the river but upon coming ashore he sees himself surrounded; so he craftily buries the survey plans at the foot of the trail. The party then returns to Signal and the general's home, when Helen learns she is an orphan.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 101 (Dec. 18).

New York City.—Notables in wax suffer indignities when the Eden Musee closes and they are carted off to Coney Island. Subtitles: Julius Caesar and Cleopatra. T. R. remains "delighted" through it all.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Horses destined for war service are purchased by agents of the French Government. Subtitle: Branding the animals whose life under war service will average about two weeks.

New York City.—Skating has become so popular that hotel courtyards are being transformed into ice rinks where guests may glide between dinner courses.

Figure Skating.—Costume by courtesy of A. G. Spaulding & Bros. Subtitles: The one-foot spin. The Davidson. The "cut-off" worked into a figure. The flat foot spin.

Aldershot, England.—Recruits are taught to manipulate the delicate electric instruments used in firing land mines.

Isle of Hope, Ga.—Diamond-backed terrapins are being incubated by the thousands to delight epicurean tastes at Christmas. Subtitles: After eight weeks the young terrapin emerges from the egg. Three years must pass before the terrapins attain their full length of six inches, which accounts for their high value.

Oquossoc, Me.—Thousands of Christmas trees are cut and shipped from the Maine woods at Christmas time. Subtitles: Unloading part of New York's consignment which costs the citizens $500,000 annually. A Merry Christmas.

Kyoto, Japan.—Streets are bedecked and triumphal arches erected to welcome Yoshito who journeys to the ancient capital of his realm to be made the 122nd Emperor of his dynasty. Subtitles: Troops arriving to line the streets have great difficulty in dealing with the enormous concourse of sightseers. Old and young hold patient vigil for hours to catch a fleeting glimpse of their "Imperial Father." Sand is piled along the route of the royal procession for ancient custom decrees that the Emperor must not pass over ground soiled by previous footsteps. The actual procession, however, is an extremely simple affair, and the royal carriages pass at the usual Japanese ceremonial trot.

PATHE NEWS NO. 102 (Dec. 22).

Houston, Tex.—A gearless automobile, driven by an air propeller, appears in the streets here.

Butte, Mont.—Electrification of 440 miles of railroad over the Rockies is completed and the world's largest electric locomotive makes its first run. Subtitles: One of the adjustable trolleys of the engine. The driving wheels. Over the Montana mountains at sixty miles an hour. Great Falls and the power station where the electricity is generated. Percy Rockefeller, nephew of John D., starts the first train.

Washington, D. C.—The home of Mrs. Norman Galt where her marriage to President Wilson is performed with simple ceremony. Subtitles: The marriage license. The White House, the future home of the first lady of the land.

Fairyland.—Santa Claus arrives to gladden the hearts of young folks the world over.

London, England.—The carriage of a captured German gun forms a vantage point for the recruiting orator.

Roehampton, Eng.—The loss of limb is not enough to dispel the innate cheerfulness of the British "Tommy." Subtitle: Although disabled he still enjoys a friendly contest.

Chicago, Ill.—A submarine, forty years old, which sank with its inventor on its trial trip, is discovered by a diver in the river bed. Subtitles: The curious twenty-ton craft is raised from its resting place. Difficulties are experienced in hauling the unwieldly mass out of the water.

Cartoon—The Troubles of a Pacifist.—Animated cartoon.

Boston, Mass.—Fifteen hundred school children march against John Barleycorn in "No License" demonstration.

North Yakima, Wash.—Unusually fine products of the breeder's art are exhibited at the Northwest Pacific Stock Show.

LONESOME LUKE, SOCIAL GANGSTER (Phunphilms—Dec. 29).—Luke and his companion, Tin-horn Tommy, are shooting craps on a public thoroughfare when an ugly looking pedestrian comes tramping along. Like a fox can scent the approach of the hounds—so did they feel the presence of the badge-carrier. Luke retreats to the roadway and a few seconds later finds himself astride the radiator of a swiftly moving motor-chariot. Little Miss Somebody goes motoring and sees a sign offering a hundred dollars to the best dancing partner for Mrs. Vermin Rastle.

The car on which Luke is riding bumps into the rear end of that belonging to the little millionairess and he lands in the seat beside her. She takes him in for feed and to try his feet at stepping. Tommy also meets a meal-ticket in the shape of someone not very good to look upon. In the establishment they try their feet at stepping and Luke, being able to floor the internationally famous stepper more times than anyone present, is given the razoo. But you can't keep a good man out, so he comes back with a pistol which he has taken from a policeman. When the commotion subsided there was still a few bits of furnishings that remained intact.

WHERE THE TREES ARE STONE (Globe—See America First).—On same reel as foregoing. This picture gives many remarkable views of the "stone trees" of Arizona. In Navajo County there are almost two thousand acres covered with these remnants of a pre-historic woodland. We see the actual grain and fibre of the wood preserved in the stone, rivaling onyx and marble for its delicacy and color. Many other interesting bits are shown making a pleasant short subject.

THE RED CIRCLE (Episode No. 3 "Twenty Years Ago"—Jan. 1—Two parts—Balboa).—To wipe out his Red Circle birthmark of crime, Jim Borden, crook, kills his son and himself. Later, Detective Lamar sees a Red Circled hand and pursues an automobile connected with the

Kindly Read Page 139

Study the conditions in front of your Ticket Office to-day—during the holiday rush.

Wouldn't you like to provide a service that will absolutely insure your ability to take care of the crowds faster, and at the same time with accuracy?

This is only one of a dozen protections which

The Automatic Ticket Seller and Cash Register

offers you.

Watch your ticket office to-day—Investigate!

The Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company
1737 Broadway, N. Y. C.

We manufacture all kinds of theatre tickets "Used Wherever Tickets are Sold"

TO ALL THE FRIENDS OF THE MOVING PICTURE:

IT is proposed to pass a law which will charge the Federal Government with inspecting every moving picture film intended for public display. If such a law is enacted it will strike a fatal blow at the most powerful medium of expression and the most popular amusement.

Federal Censorship will turn the most reasonably priced, the most democratic, and the most valuable entertainment into a football of politics. In the three states out of forty-eight where motion picture censorship prevails the institution has been an unattractive mixture of farce and scandal.

Let us convince our representatives at Washington that we want no national or any other kind of censorship.

We ask you, the owner or manager of a moving picture theatre, to tell your patrons about this proposed measure in Congress and to ask them to sign this subjoined petition against the bill. Put a slide on your screen announcing the fact that a petition against this destructive measure is ready for their signature in your office. Ask them to sign as they leave. Here is a form of petition. If you want more forms we will send them to you upon request.

When you have secured a number of signatures to this petition send it to THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, which will undertake to forward it to Congress and to use it especially in connection with the hearing to be held before the committee to which the Federal Censorship has been referred.

Petition to Congress

I, the undersigned, a citizen of the state of _____, in no way interested in the making, distributing or exhibiting of moving pictures, do hereby enter my protest against the proposed Federal censorship. I consider it un-American and entirely unnecessary. I believe that the laws now on the statute books of the United States and the various sovereign States are ample to deal with such films as offend against public decency. This is not a legal theory but a well-proven fact. Moving pictures are a medium of expression like the newspaper. The newspaper is free but subject to the law for an abuse of its liberty. We ask the same enfranchisement for the moving picture.

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

robbery of a loan shark. The veiled woman in the auto, June Travis, wealthy girl reformer, escapes and Lamar is baffled. June's old nurse, Mary, surprised a confession from the girl and is greatly agitated when the Red Circle appears on June's hand.

With much effort Mary tells June that she (June) is the daughter of "Circle" Jim Borden. At a camp in the West Mrs. Travis gave birth to a son at the same time that a girl was born to Mrs. Borden. With several others Travis and Mrs. Borden lost their lives when a gang of outlaws attacked the town. Borden left town taking by mistake the Travis boy. Mary fearing the result kept silent.

Next day when Lamar calls, the butler blunders in to ask June if a piece of one of the stolen notes had any value. Mary, June's old nurse, in trying to divert the suspicions of Detective Lamar, finds herself in a precarious situation.

CHASING 'EM OUT IN THE OPEN (Starlight—Jan. 1).—Heinie and Louie in their determination to make the world come to terms with them over the food question, make us laugh very heartily.

When a young man comes to the barn in which they are sojourning, to secret some negotiable notes, Heinie and Louie very promptly attempt to assassinate him in their greedy efforts to get the money. They get it—and spend it. The first dent is made by the feed bill and a carpet sweeper to wheel it home on.

They read that M. Parrot would pass up his hairdressing parlor for a small consideration; they investigate and buy. Thereupon feeling that they are in a class by themselves when it comes to crimping up the ladies, they discharge the help and wield the curling-irons in great fashion. But one unusually good looking lady comes along, and then there is no further peace in the family. Duelling may be out of vogue with the most of us, but not so with these extraordinary characters. They kill their seconds and then under heavy fire, Heinie shows a yellow streak and takes to his heels with Louie in hot pursuit. They again form an alliance for their common defence when the disgruntled fashion-chasers mob them. Back to the barn for Heinie and Louie.

THE NEW ADVENTURES OF J. RUFUS WALLINGFORD (Pathe—Episode No. 13, "The Missing Heir"—Two Parts—Dec. 27).—In the latest release J. Rufus and Blackie Daw use still another method to lay their talons on the bank account of P. S. Hutch, a shyster lowyer who has embezzled $120,000 from a man answering to the name of Lundy and whose home town is Berne, Switzerland. Lundy is the owner of American properties and has appointed Hutch his attorney. To live up to his reputation as a shyster, he confiscates them. Hutch did another crooked deed—he helped swindle the father of Violet and Fanny Warden and now has Wallingford and Daw on his trail.

They make the acquaintance of Hutch, and for a whole week they pump him in vain. Unable to glean anything in the wake of his dirty shoes, they decide on Daw as a souse and a call on Hutch at his office at the time that he usually goes to the bank. Wallingford accompanies him while Daw does a Rip Van Winkle on the couch until they get clear of the room—then he gets the information he wants and gets back to the couch not a minute too soon. They rent a "Spirit Parlor" for a day and cleverly get Hutch to call rather hastily—and leave quicker. Wallingford and Daw call at Hutch's office a little later, planning a trip to South America; but Hutch refuses to go along until he again sees the Lundy spirit out for an airing; then and not till then does he do a double-quick for the bank and the remainder of the embezzled money. They have a little difficulty in getting the coin when he fetches it from the bank, but let it suffice that they get it.

COLONEL HEEZA LIAR, NATURE FAKER (An Animated Cartoon Comedy by J. R. Bray—Dec. 28).—The doughty Colonel's latest adventure takes place in Africa, under the blazing sun of the Sahara, very close to an oasis to be sure, because the bear that attacks the Colonel would not venture far out in the hot sand, without some water nearby. But food is scarce and the Colonel has to do a Marathon to escape the bruin's teeth. A kangaroo and monkey also help to make the drawings genuinely animated—animated with fun.

HARRY K. LUCAS
"THE SUPPLY KING"
ATLANTA —— GEORGIA
THEATRES EQUIPPED THRUOUT. FIVE YEARS OF UNINTERRUPTED SUCCESS. 50 PAGE ILLUSTRATED SUPPLY CATALOGUE FOR THE OPERATOR OR MANAGER. WRITE.

Scenarios Wanted
Two or more Reel Comedies for Equity Motion Picture Company featuring Billy B. Van and Beaumont Sisters.
Manuscripts Universal Society of Writers Inc.
Literary Agents 220 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

There Is No Program So Good That One of Our Features Cannot Improve
Pasquali, Terriss Feature Film and Interstate Feature Film
MASTERPIECES
Picture Playhouse Film Co.
71 W. 23rd St. New York City

—FEATURE FILMS—
Three, four and five reel subjects, with paper,
$10.00 per reel
Two reel subjects, with paper,
$7.50 per reel
Single subjects, with paper
$5.00 per reel
Splendid comedies, all makes
G. W. Bradenburgh
902 Vine Street Philadelphia

125 Features
FOR SALE
2-6 REEL SUBJECTS
With Original Paper in Perfect Condition--Bargain Prices
NO JUNK
WRITE FOR LISTS
"Room 1601 FILM EXPORT"
71 West 23d Street New York, N. Y.

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

CALIFORNIA'S ROCKY COAST (Photocolor—Picturesque America—On Same Reel As Foregoing).—The coast line of California, with some of its rocky formations, is quite as grand as the coast of any country in the world. All this is easily proven by one look at the beautiful pictures called California's Rocky Coast, which Pathe has taken of the coast near Carmel-by-the sea. Some remarkable locations and unusual pictures of these rocks have been secured. There is shown a blow-hole, a cave hollowed by the pounding of the waves and how the water is blown out through the hole by the air it has compressed as it rushes in. Another scene shows the hills in the distance and the marked contrast they form to the rugged rocks of the shore.

EXCUSE ME (Gold Rooster Play—Five Parts—Dec. 31).—The cast includes Robert Fischer, Harrison Ford and Vivian Blackburn.

Henry Mallory, U. S. A., receives orders to join his regiment which is to embark for the Philippines. The Overland Limited is the only train that will enable him to reach the coast in time to escape a court-martial. Having a little time to spare he persuades Marjorie to elope with him and reserves two berths. They reach the train in time, but haven't time to get married. "Little" Jimmy Wellington, who stands six feet two and weighs 350 in his stocking feet, guzzles too much, so his wife takes the Overland for Reno, telling him she goes to Paris for the year. He gets sore and takes the same train, for the same place and for the same purpose.

The Reverend Doctor Temple, tiring of the Monotony of Ypsilanti elopes and takes the Overland to the coast. There is another girl aboard, a former sweetheart of Mallory's. With this cargo in charge of a worthy porter, they start. The happenings en route are screamingly funny. Marjorie, not married to Mallory, has her reputation at stake. Dr. Temple knows this, but won't let anyone know that he's a preacher of the gospel. Wellington and his wife fail to meet because he's too busy pestering the men folks and she puffing cigars. Then the other girl pesters Marjorie and Mallory with a bracelet she received from Mallory, and so every one does something that had been better left undone, and the porter must bear the brunt of it all.

A hold-up relieves the girl of the bracelet and the arrival of the Mormon minister when they get to Utah frightens Temple into practicing his profession of the young couple. Then a cinder in Wellington's eye causes him to meet his wife who relieves him of it, and they patch up their differences. With everything running smoothly, we leave them to continue their journeys.

TRIANGLE FILM CORP.

BETWEEN MEN (Kay-Bee—Jan. 2).—The cast: W. S. Hart, House Peters, Enid Monkey, J. Barney Sherry, Bert Wisner, Robert McKim.

Ashley Hampdon, a Wall street financier, has a daughter named Lina. Gregg Lewiston wants to marry the girl. The father tells him that the girl can please herself. As he does not seem to progress in his love-making, Lewiston puts through a scheme to ruin Hampdon in the market, so that the father will bring pressure to bear on his daughter to marry the suitor as he has lots of money. Hampdon is distracted by his losses. While aimlessly looking over his papers Hampdon comes across a little note signed by a western mining man, Bot White. It is an offer from White to assist Hampdon at any time and in any place, physically or financially. Hampdon had once befriended White and as he would not take anything else in return, White gave him the written offer. Hampdon sends a message to White to come to New York at once. When White appears, Hampdon tells him of his suspicion that Lewiston injured him through an accomplice who had given him a wrong tip.

Lina takes offense at a conversation she hears between Lewiston and White and tells White that she objects to him. He is put up at a club by Hampdon. There Lewiston sends Rankin (the same broker that he used to ruin Lewiston) to White with a tip on the market. White sends for detectives. They connect White's room with that of Lewiston's on a floor above by means of a wire and with the aid of a dictaphone they overhear Lewiston and Rankin concocting a scheme to ruin White as a friend of Lewiston and a possible rival to Lina's hand. White and Hampdon use this information to

MINA COMEDIES
Get 'em While They're Hot!
EVERY THURSDAY ON GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

A Record of Achievements

THE Special Service of The Moving Picture World is best described by its results.

Here is a brief summary of the work done by The Moving Picture World for the general good of the industry in the fight against censorship alone.

The Moving Picture World checked the advance of the Federal Censorship Bill and prevented its submission to Congress. No one appeared at the first session of the committee to oppose the bill but a representative of The Moving Picture World.

The Moving Picture World in conjunction with the Exhibitors' Organization defeated the Mitchell Censorship Bill in Albany. A representative of The Moving Picture World led in the protest and the bill died in committee.

The Moving Picture World aided in taking the sting out of the Censorship Law by forcing the adoption of an amendment allowing an appeal from the Censor Board. As a result most of all censorial decisions carried to the courts have been reversed.

The Moving Picture World has collected the most valuable facts and arguments on the censorship question in pamphlet form. This pamphlet is placed at the disposal of every exhibitor who wants it. It has been in great demand, and is doing much good.

The Moving Picture World has added the article "If Shakespeare fell among the Censors" to its "Free Exhibitors' Library." This clever satire has aroused nation-wide interest and has been copied in whole or in part by scores of newspapers.

The Moving Picture World has rendered all this Special Service to the industry in general and to its subscribers and readers in particular, at its own expense and on its own initiative.

Is there another such record of achievement?

Is The Moving Picture World worthy of the support of every moving picture man?

make a fortune much to the discomfiture of Lewiston.

As his treachery is now revealed, Lewiston is unable to win Lina. He goes to the club and insults White by saying in a loud tone of voice that this is the first case he has known of a man trying to buy a girl. White wants him to fight, but Lewiston excuses himself by remarking that it is a gentlemen's club. Finally Lewiston strikes White for calling him a coward, but spectators separate the men. Lewiston goes to his uptown home and White follows him. There is a fight and White gets the best of it till Lewiston hits White over the head with a bronze vase. Just then John Worth, who is a friend of White's and is half crazed from losses due to the villainy of Lewiston, appears at a window and shoots Lewiston in the arm.

White having accomplished his mission goes to bid his friend, Ashley Hampden, good-by. Lina has come to admire White for his loyalty to her father and for his efficiency. He does not seem to understand the change in her and bids her farewell. She, however, gets her father to take her on the same train on which White goes. They meet on the platform of the observation car where the misunderstanding is cleared.

CROSS CURRENTS (Fine Arts—Jan. 2).—The cast: Helen Ware, Teddy Sampson, Courtenay Foote, Sam De Grasse, Vera Lewis.

Elizabeth Crane lives and entertains lavishly in Washington. She is the fiance of Paul Beale, a diplomat. Elizabeth is a thoughtful young woman, and is interested in charities as well as things of the social world. Her younger sister, Flavia, returns from two years of schooling in Paris. Paul becomes fascinated by the girlish ways of Flavia, and the unsuspecting Elizabeth realizes at a dance that her lover has transferred his affections to Flavia and she releases him from his engagement to her. Then follows the marriage of Paul and Flavia.

Silas Randolph attempts to win Elizabeth but fails. He gets up a party to go cruising on his palatial yacht. After some persuasion by Silas' sister, Mrs. Van De Veer, Elizabeth is persuaded to accompany the party. It also includes Paul and Flavia. The yacht is destroyed by fire. Flavia is rescued by a sailing vessel after a night in the water. Elizabeth and Paul drift ashore on a desert island. She takes care of the man, who has been injured in the accident and has become almost helpless. Silas gets to shore on another part of the same island. He comes across the other two survivors. Elizabeth has found some food and feeds the ravenous Silas. He becomes demented and attacks her. Paul intervenes but is easily thrown off. Then Elizabeth manages after a struggle to kill him with a knife. Her attention becomes now centered in caring for Paul. He recovers his strength and aids her in making garments out of sailcloth, catching fish and devising furniture. After a long time he claims her as his wife, as he says the sea has given her to him.

Meanwhile Flavia has given birth to a child and is living in her beautiful home in Washington. In her love for her sister, Flavia has an intuition that she may have escaped the peril of the sea. She goes with a searching party and a ship to examine the island near which the yacht was wrecked. Paul and Elizabeth see them land. Paul wants to keep away from the party having grown to love Elizabeth dearly. She tells him that he owes it to his wife to return to her. Elizabeth then hastens away and drowns herself before Paul can prevent her. When finally the party arrives where Paul is sadly looking out at sea where Elizabeth disappeared, his wife throws her arms around him. She asks him if he is alone and he replies bitterly, "All alone!"

DIZZY HEIGHTS AND DARING HEARTS (Keystone—Jan. 2).—The cast: Chester Conklin, Dave Anderson, William Mason, Nick Cogley, Betty Anderson.

Chester Conklin and Dave Anderson are two rival buyers bent on purchasing an aeroplane. Conklin goes to the factory of Nick Cogley and makes a trial flight taking along Cogley's daughter, Betty. William Mason, who is a demonstrator for Cogley, objects to the girl going aflying with the stranger, but the manufacturer assures him that it is simply done to conciliate the buyer. Conklin presses his attentions on Betty till in desperation she jumps out of the flyer using her umbrella for a parachute. She makes a safe landing.

Conklin sees Anderson, his rival, speeding in an auto toward the factory. He drops bombs and blows up a concrete bridge but doesn't stop Anderson. Anderson gets to the factory first and has almost concluded the purchase of the flyer, when Conklin appears and outbids him. Then Mason appears on the scene and complains of Conklin. The father orders Conklin out and agrees to sell the machine to Anderson.

Conklin sees the girl near the aeroplane and starts up the machine, thinking to kidnap her. He gets tangled up with the propellor, finally falling off it into a barrel of rainwater on top a building. The girl manages to come safely to the ground. Then Anderson prepares for a flight. Conklin thinks to foil him so he cuts the wires on the aeroplane. Anderson does some great stunts of looping the loop, when a wing comes off which drops on a high smoke stack. Anderson loses control of his flyer and lands in a tree, unharmed.

The broken wing shuts off the escape of smoke from the stack, so Cogley orders workmen to go up and take it off. They all fear to attempt the perilous task. Young Mason volunteers for the service and gets on top the stack. Conklin cuts the rope so that Mason has no way to get down again. Then Conklin puts a big charge of dynamite at the base of the stack and lights the fuse. Betty sees her lover in danger of destruction and flies in an aeroplane to the rescue. She just manages to take him aboard, when the stack is destroyed by the explosion. Anderson has been fighting with Conklin and drives the villain toward the stack. Conklin is buried when the dynamite explodes and shatters the stack.

THE GREAT PEARL TANGLE (Keystone—Jan. 9).—The cast: Sam Bernard, Harry Gribbon, Harry McCoy, Minta Durfee, Mildred Adams.

Sam Bernard is the designer at the Modiste Shop. One morning he inaugurates a big fashion show at the store. He has a splendid time draping the models. Harry Gribbon is the proprietor of the store, and he is "sweet on" Sam's wife. Harry McCoy, who is a slick crook, manages to substitute an imitation pearl necklace for a real one. The imitation goes to Gribbon, while the genuine is pawed by McCoy. Gribbon takes Minta, Sam's wife, out to lunch and gives her the pearls. She pawns them for $2 and give the ticket to Sam. He redeems the jewels, getting the genuine ones and turns them over to a model with whom he is infatuated. To square himself with his wife, Minta, the designer gives her a string of beads.

McCoy, who has pawned the real jewels, redeems the phony ones by mistake. He is arrested.

Sam has been drawn by the District Attorney to serve on the jury. McCoy is put on the stand and turns state's evidence. Minta brings Sam his lunch and sees the pearls that Bernard had given to the model. The pawnbroker is sent for and identifies Minta as the woman who pawned the necklace. Gribbon is sent for and identified as the man who has smuggled the jewels. He is found guilty on this charge. Sam and Minta finally make up.

STOP!! Consider a minute
Before you purchase your

THEATRE EQUIPMENT

There is a certain lasting confidence in purchasing from a reliable concern—
Whether it is biscuits or battleships you buy. YOU KNOW THAT.

When installing a theatre equipment why not confine your purchases to a house whose experience and reputation will inspire that confidence? It costs no more—but the feeling of security you have is worth more.

The Kleine Optical Company is the oldest house in the country handling motion picture theatre equipment. We were the pioneers in the business! Ask anyone who has been in the business for years. The name KLEINE to them is synonymous to motion picture confidence.

Write us on any subject concerning the equipment of your theatre. WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS OF EVERY STANDARD MAKE OF MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR ON THE AMERICAN MARKET. OUR STOCK IS LARGE AND COMPLETE AT ALL TIMES AND INCLUDES EVERY ARTICLE AND DEVICE THAT HAS MERIT.

SEND FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

Kleine Optical Company

166 North State St. GEORGE KLEINE, PRESIDENT INCORPORATED 1896 CHICAGO, ILL.

FORM A PARTNERSHIP WITH US

Make our laboratory a part of your organization, send us your negative with the utmost confidence that it will receive the same careful attention that you would give it. Our unexcelled facilities are always at your disposal, with them we can finish your prints in a careful systematic manner, and you save all the worry.

THE COLUMBIA FILM MFG. COMPANY

1514 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, O.

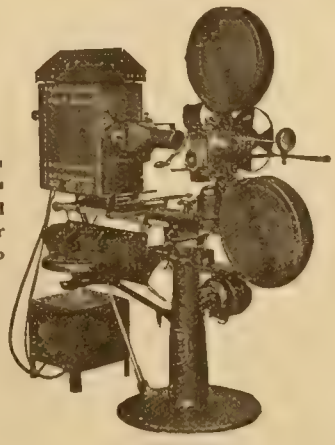
Start the Year 1916 Right

ORDER

The 1916 Model Motiograph

WHY?

BECAUSE
It is simple and easy for your operator to operate.



BECAUSE
It will give a flickerless and rock - steady picture

BECAUSE
IN PRICE, QUALITY and PROJECTION
IT HAS NO EQUAL

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.

574 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Eastern Office: 19 W. 23d St., New York City
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

WANTED—Films to Rent in the Pacific Northwest

OREGON, WASHINGTON AND IDAHO

For the past seven years we have been in close touch with exhibitors and business conditions in this territory and our long experience guarantees you results.

Our Exchange is Established, Well Organized and Efficient

We bear our own expenses, handling your films on a percentage basis, reporting and remitting to you each week, and will give bank and commercial references of the highest standard and furnish bonds if necessary. We want no compensation if we do not make money for you.

What Have You to Offer in Feature or Single Reel Subjects?

SERVICE FILM COMPANY 64-66 BROADWAY PORTLAND, OREGON

Member of Portland Chamber of Commerce

OPEN FOR ALL MOVING PICTURE COMMODITIES

LET KATY DO IT (Fine Arts—Jan. 9).—The cast: Jane Grey, Tully Marshall, Ralph Lewis, Walter Long, Charles West, Luray Huntley.

Katy Standish is a family drudge on a New England farm. Her elder sister "enjoys" poor health and her mother sees to it that Katy not only does her own work but that of the weak or lazy elder, Priscilla. Oliver Putnam, a husky young farmer lad, comes a-courting of Katy, but her parents interfere so much that he is discouraged. Oliver finally goes to Mexico with Ben Standish, uncle of Katy and Priscilla, who owns a valuable mine there.

Priscilla marries Caleb Adams, a young man who has bought a farm adjoining that of Standish. Father and Mother Standish die and Katy goes to live with her sister. She soon is doing all the work in the house and as Priscilla rapidly becomes the mother of seven each and every one of them is turned over to the care of Katy. Then Priscilla and her husband are killed by an express train while driving to the city. Then Katy has to teach school to help keep the wolf from the door. She writes to her uncle, telling of the death of her sister and how the care of her children had devolved upon her. The uncle invites her to bring the motherless brood with her and make her home with him in Mexico. Oliver Putnam is expecting Katy, but the information about the children has been withheld from him. He is overjoyed when he sees Katy step off the train, but is flabbergasted when he catches sight of the many children. The children have a way of getting between Oliver and Katy and the man takes an antipathy to them. He sees two of them in a mixup and spanks one of them. Katy catches him in the act and gives him a scathing rebuke. She then happens to hear Oliver tell Dan that he hates children. This puts him completely in the bad graces of Katy.

Uncle Ben likes the youngsters. He shows them one time how a series of guns in their little home could be discharged at once by pulling a lever and how a mine around the house could be discharged in a similar manner. He is careful to lock the room, where the weapons of destruction are placed; but one of the children finds out where he has hidden the key. While Katy and Oliver are away on an errand of mercy, Mexicans attack the little house. The children are all there but one. The missing one happens to be outside and escapes to a road, where he is saved by a cowboy who goes after help.

Meanwhile the children defend themselves by discharging the guns and firing the mines as their uncle had shown them. Katy and Oliver have a desperate fight, when they are attacked by another band of Mexicans, but hold them off in a deserted cabin, till the cowboys rescue them. Oliver can't help admiring the brave way in which the children have defended the house, and is grateful also for the fact that the silver under the floor has been saved from the Mexicans. So Oliver and Katy forget their differences and make a home for the children in a mansion in the United States.

THE CORNER (Kay-Bee—Jan. 9).—The cast: Willard Mack, George Fawcett, Clara Williams, Louise Brownell, Charles Miller.

David Waltham is the head of a syndicate, which corners the food supply. His wife hears of her husband's operation and begs him to consider the poor, who will be unable to pay the prices that his monopoly will exact. He is merciless, however. Among those who suffer from Waltham's efforts is an engineer named John Adams. The bank in which his small funds are deposited undergoes a "run" and he loses all his money. He has previously lost his job. The Adams family is reduced to starvation and finally Adams in desperation breaks a window in a bakery and gets away with an armful of bread. He is arrested and is sent up to the workhouse for thirty days. The rent collector comes around, but Mrs. Adams is unable to pay him anything though she slaves over the washboard and her two children assist her. Seeing that the woman is beautiful, the collector gives her some money, telling her to buy her children and herself a square meal. She reluctantly accepts his gift. Little by little she descends until she even appears in a low dance hall with the man.

John Adams returns from jail and goes to his humble rooms. There he finds his children in bed. Finally his wife appears in beautiful and expensive clothes. She appears disgusted with the life she leads and wipes the paint off her lips with loathing. Then she suddenly sees her husband, who is staring at her as if in a trance. She is almost hysterical from fright. He grasps her wrists roughly and demands an explanation. She tells him that she has done it for the children's sake. This plea saves her life, but the soul of John Adams is filled with bitterness.

Widespread suffering and destitution prevail and bread lines are everywhere in the poorer quarters of the great city. Men and women practice deception to get a little more bread and some get into fights overcome by their own and their children's sufferings. Three desperate men invade the sanctum of David Waltham, but are quelled by his masterful manner and slink away impotently when he tells them that he will call the police if they are not gone in a minute.

John Adams gets a job in Waltham's big storage house. A fellow worker points out Waltham to Adams and the latter's rage against the big monopolist is aroused to a high pitch of fury as he thinks of his wife's degradation. Adams blames it all on Waltham. That night he secrets himself in the big warehouse and telephones to Waltham saying that the police are down there, having heard of a secret plan on the part of some of the starving populace to destroy the place. He tells Waltham to leave his auto a block or two away from the building, when he comes, to avoid suspicion. Adams gets Waltham in the building and securely ties him and then leaves him to starve. That he may not be found, Adams surrounds the magnate with a big pile of boxes. In his struggles to free himself, Waltham upsets the towering piles of boxes and they topple over completely burying him.

Miscellaneous Feature Film

EQUITABLE.

THE SENATOR (Triumph—Five Parts—Dec. 27).—The cast: Senator Rivers (Charles J. Ross); Senator Keene (Joseph Burke); Silas Denman (Ben Graham); Secretary Armstrong (Thomas Tracy); Count Ernst von Strahl (Philip Hahn); Mrs. Hillary (Dixie Compton); Mabel, Denman's daughter (Constance Molineux); Mrs. Armstrong (Gene Luneska).

Senator Rivers of the State of Missouri comes to the United States Senate, and meets Silas Denman, who has been unsuccessful in the prosecution of the Denman Claim, a relic of the Revolutionary War. Denman's daughter, Mabel, who teaches music, meets Mrs. Hillary, a widow, who aids her in many ways. At Mrs. Hillary's home she meets Count von Strahl, and Armstrong, the Secretary of State, at whose home she is introduced to Senator Rivers.

Mabel develops a liking for von Strahl. Her father is excited over the prospect of such valuable aid in getting his claim through, and Rivers makes a powerful speech in it favor, incited by regard for Mabel as well as by the justice of the claim. The Senator is stunned by the remark of Mrs. Hillary that Mabel is engaged to von Strahl, but in order to give her a dowry, redoubles his efforts on the Denman bill.

The Senator and Mrs. Hillary are on good terms, and learn that Mrs. Armstrong and von Strahl are planning an elopement. The Senator sends Ling Ching, the Chinese Ambassador, to the Armstrong home to intercept Mrs. Armstrong, and before she can get rid of him, her husband arrives, he having been told that von Strahl's carriage had gone to his house. Senator Rivers turns the tables on von Strahl in a neat way, and hurries back to the Senate.

By a neat trick he puts the Denman bill through, but is afraid of Mabel's marriage with the Count, as he knows his character. Developments satisfy Mabel as to the rascality of the Count. She realizes that she is in love with Senator Rivers, who in spite of his age, appeals to every particle of her nature. She appreciates the force of his actions regarding Mrs. Armstrong and Count von Strahl, and at the end the Senator has won the claimant as well as the claim.

THE DRAGON (Five Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Elizabeth and Messalla (Margarita Fischer); Mayme (Katherine Calhoun); Moberly Trail (Bennett Southard); Fred Carrol-

For POSTERS
Goes Lithographing Co
Chicago

THE STERLING
CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

FILMS
of every description for sale and for rent at remarkably low prices.
Features of Quality Our Specialty
WRITE FOR LISTS
THE FILM EXCHANGE
37 W. 39th Street, New York, N. Y.

FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO
Moving Picture Exhibitors
Get your supplies from FULCO the house that carries everything you need
E. E. FULTON CO., 152 W. Lake St., Chicago
FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO

EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
COMMERCIAL BUILDING
422 FIRST AVE
PITTSBURGH, PA.
We Will Equip Your Theatre Completely

Repair Parts, Supplies and Machines Shipped from Stock
It Pays You and You Will Be Pleased If You
Send Your Next Order to Hommel's

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

Every Exhibitor Should Go To Liberty Theatre
before the close of the season to see the WONDERFUL PROJECTION of GRIFFITH'S BIRTH OF A NATION. Nothing was left undone to make the projection the most perfect the world has ever seen. Every exhibitor will benefit by following the Liberty, which has been the biggest success of Motion Picture history. PORTER specified the Motion Picture Equipment and supervised its installation. He can do the same for you.
B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

"NO GREATER LOVE"

A Selig Red Seal Play Introducing MISS REGINA BADET, the Bernhardt of Filmland, in the Role of "Sadunah, the Dancer"—A Drama of Daring Intensity, Revealing the Wonderful Power of Mother-love—See the Gorgeous Gowns, the Dance of the Five Veils—the Wonderful Scenic Effects!

SELIG RED SEAL PLAYS!

The Carpet From Bagdad—The Millionaire Baby—The Rosary—A Texas Steer—House of a Thousand Candles—The Circular Staircase—A Black Sheep—Sweet Alyssum—I'm Glad My Boy Grew Up to Be a Soldier—The Red Seal of Quality! Book Through V. L. S. E.!

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.—CHICAGO

AND EVERYWHERE

THE original American publication printed in Spanish and devoted exclusively to the interests of the moving picture industry in all South American and Spanish speaking countries. Send in your copy immediately. Rates on application. The South American Republics offer a golden opportunity for programs of American films.

NOW IS THE TIME.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

ton (Joseph Harris); A. Biskany (Harry Leighton); Tanner (Thos. J. McCrane); Crashaw (Sheridan Block).

Messalla, the embodiment of youth and innocence, lives in an old house in Washington Square, New York City, with her father, who has been ruined financially and who lost his wife through the lure of Fifth avenue. He tells Messalla that that thoroughfare is a dragon lying in wait for victims. Messalla starts out to find the dragon and goes up the avenue. Her meetings with various people bring destruction and death to those who had wrought her father's ruin, although she is unconscious of the effect she is having on their lives.

Messalla escapes the wiles of the white slaver. She allows a discarded flame of a big merchant to take her place at dinner to which she has been invited, and the merchant suffers at the hands of the discarded woman. A policeman's attention is attracted to Messalla and a man is killed by an automobile while he is looking at her. At a lacemaker's shop a wealthy young woman is tempted to take a bit of lace because Messalla has admired it, but she is caught and jailed. There is a robbery affecting some papers which have been taken and replaced by a bomb, and Messalla gives the package to a woman who turns out to be her father's lost wife, the house being destroyed after the woman and Messalla leave. There is a reconciliation. All those injured were people who had injured her father, and the dragon has been slain by Messalla's youth and innocence.

METRO PICTURES CORP.

THE TURMOIL (Five Parts—Columbia Pictures Corp.—Jan 10).—The cast: Mary Vertrees (Valli Valli); Mrs Vertrees (Florida Kingsley); Mr. Vertrees (Frank DeVernon); James Sheridan, Sr. (Charles Prince); Mrs. James Sheridan (Mrs. Kate Jepson); James Sheridan, Jr. (Fred Tidmarsh); Roscoe Sheridan (Robert Stowe Gill); Mrs. Sibyl Sheridan (Peggy Hopkins); Edith Sheridan (Ilean Hume); Robert Lamhorn (Frederic Sumner); Dr. George Gurney (Wm. Auker); Bibbs Sheridan (George Le Guere).

James Sheridan becomes wealthy and a power in a middle west city, where his entire life is absorbed in the turmoil of his own creation. The only thing he lacks is social standing, and this he strives to gain by methods he has successfully employed in driving a business deal. His two oldest sons, Jim and Roscoe, are like him, products of the turmoil, but Bibbs, the youngest, is a weakling with a penchant for books. The father insists on Bibbs working in the factory, but as it is distasteful to him, and he is physically unfit for the task, his health fails and he is sent to a sanitarium.

In the same city lives the Vertrees family, poor, but true aristocrats. There is a young daughter, Mary Vertrees, and Sheridan determines that his son, Jim, shall marry her, and thus make a wedge for the family into social prominence. He arranges a big dinner, with a vulgar display of luxury, which Mary Vertrees is obliged to attend because of a financial obligation Sheridan holds over her father. That night Mary is made to understand that she is to marry Jim, and she concludes to make the sacrifice.

At the height of the dinner party Bibbs returns from the sanitarium. He is ignored by the family, and Mary is attracted to him out of pity. Roscoe Sheridan, the second son, is married to Sibyl, but their married life is far from happy. Like his father, he is lost in the turmoil of endeavor, and she is obliged to seek companionship elsewhere. She becomes infatuated with Robert Lamhorn, a worthless young man, who is secretly engaged to Edith Sheridan, the only daughter of the house of Sheridan.

Jim proposes to Mary Vertrees, and she asks him to wait a while for her answer. Sibyl and Edith quarrel over Lamhorn, and Sibyl, knowing Mary's hold over the elder Sheridan, asks her to go to Sheridan and tell him Edith and Robert are engaged, and that Robert is only marrying the girl for her money. Sibyl's words remind Mary that she will be doing the same thing, if she marries Jim. She writes Jim a letter refusing his offer of marriage. Much to the delight of his father, Jim has built a large warehouse in half the time contractors said was necessary for the undertaking. Accompanied by inspectors, Jim is on the roof of the building when it collapses, and he is killed.

Sheridan is broken-hearted over his death. His sorrow is doubled over the fact that Roscoe, worried over domestic affairs, has taken to drink. He then strives harder than ever to make Bibbs a thorough business man, and his successor. Edith elopes with Robert, and Bibbs is the only one left to him. Bibbs has become attached to Mary, and on her advice agrees on a business career. She loves him, but thinks his attentions are prompted through pity for her. She refuses his proffer of marriage for the same reason she refused his brother.

When Bibbs learns this he quits his place with his father, and he informs him he does not want any of his fortune. Sheridan awakens to the situation, and pays Mr. Vertrees fifty thousand dollars for some worthless street railway stock. Mary's family thus becomes financially comfortable, and she accepts Bibbs' renewed proposal of marriage, and he becomes the leading spirit in the Sheridan enterprises.

V-L-S-E.

THOU ART THE MAN (Vitagraph—Six Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Gilbert Raynor (S. Rankin Drew); Hon. Irving Marner (Joseph Kilgour); Emily (Virginia Pearson); John MacDowell (George Cooper); Doctor Lamberton (Harold Foshay); Mrs. Tearle (Billie Billings); Khitmatgar (William Davidson); Bearer (Walter McGrail).

Gilbert Raynor, a young Englishman, after working hard for several years in the Indian Civil Service, has saved enough to send for his young wife, Emily. She is happy in her husband's love, but shortly after her arrival in the fever-ridden lowlands she is taken ill and the doctor orders her immediate removal to the northern hills. Gilbert has not the money to do this, and applies for a more lucrative position to his superior, the Hon. Irving Marner, but is refused.

Shortly afterward, Marner meets the young wife and falls in love with her, about the same time that a very lucrative but very dangerous position becomes vacant in the service. Then Marner remembers Raynor's application, sends for him and offers him the position, which is promptly accepted. Marner then goes to the mountain district where Mrs. Raynor is living at the hotel with her friend, Mrs. Taerle. Working on her gratitude toward him, he ingratiates himself into her good graces and shows her every attention which a man of wealth and power could show, until Mrs. Tearle cautions the girl.

MacDowell, the District Inspector at Raynor's Station, writes Marner that the young man has been stricken with fever, but Marner refuses to transfer him. Raymor, glancing through his Bible, comes to the story of David and how he had commanded that Uriah be placed in the front line of battle so that he might be killed in order to win Beth-Sheba, Uriah's wife, for his own. Se sees the deadly parallel to his own case and goes into delirium.

Marner, meanwhile, is tortured by the terrible voice of conscience and as his first advances to Mrs. Raynor are repulsed, he is unable to stand it longer and starts for the lowlands to rescue Raynor. He announces his intention to Emily and she goes with him. On their arrival, the doctor announces there is hope for Raynor and a joyful reunion takes place between man and wife; but Marner, overcome by the Inner Voice continually saying: "Thou art the man," remains behind, in the clutches of the deadly fever, while the man he would send to his death that he might claim the woman he coveted, is restored to health and happiness.

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

CAILLE
Ticket Office Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
CAILLE BROS. COMPANY, 1001 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich

OLD NEGATIVES WANTED
Can use old negatives (if in good condition) of standard educational quality—scenic, industrials, scientific, high grade short dramas. Send descriptive data and price.
JOHN VARRONE
250 W. 54th Street New York City

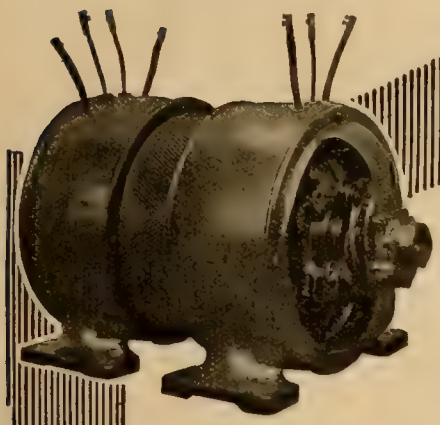
TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
4987 General Office, Schenectady, N. Y.

Perfect Developing and Printing
Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS.
5c. per foot complete
Special price on quantity orders.
TITLES in any language.
6c. per foot
Cards Free—Tinting Free
Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
145 West 45th Street New York City

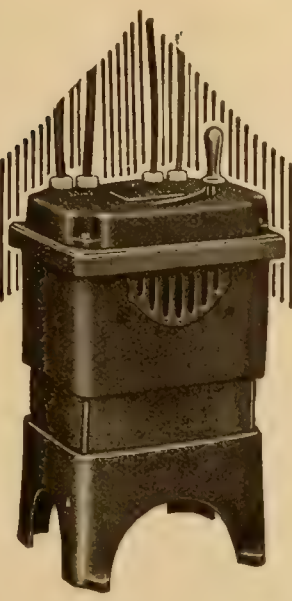
Old Judge Bates
wise through years and experience. Adviser to an impetuous youth with a fondness for show girls who were out of the class of
"The Other Girl"

A Dependable Mailing List Service
Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W41
MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY
80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago Phone 2003 Randolph
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

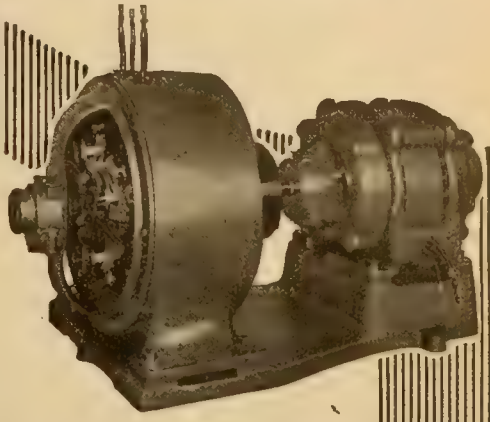
BETTER LIGHT LESS CURRENT



The DC Compensarc lowers the voltage of a direct current supply to that required at the lamp without needless waste.



The AC Compensarc cuts ⅔ from your lighting bill if you use alternating current.



The AC to DC Compensarc will transform alternating into direct current and reduce the voltage at the same time without needless waste.

No matter what current you have---Alternating or Direct---or what voltage or frequency, one of the will enable you to secure a light that will give those clear, bright pictures that everybody now demands.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARCS

What's the use of paying extra money for special screens, projecting machines, and first run films and then spoil the whole result with poor light? With the Fort Wayne Compensarcs you can get any kind of light you want regardless of the kind or quality of your current supply.

The Compensarcs will give you

STEADY LIGHT. No flickering, no sputtering, even when changing intensities or from one machine to another.

WHITE LIGHT. No yellow streaks, no ghosts.

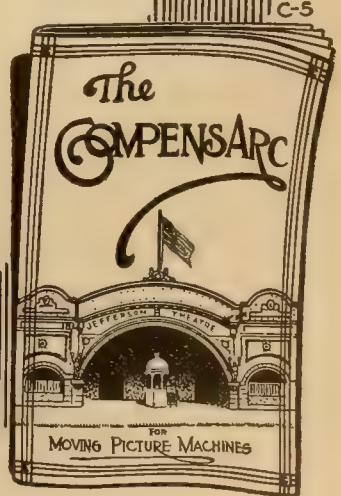
BRIGHT LIGHT. Three times the light with two-thirds the current.

They are safe, efficient, easy to operate, fool proof and reliable.

Compensarcs are so commonly found in motion picture theatres that many people now call all current saving and transforming devices by that name.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1702 BROADWAY
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

C-5



But Remember

If it isn't a FORT WAYNE *it isn't a "COMPENSARC"*

Send TO DAY for this FREE descriptive booklet

THE MISLEADING LADY (Essanay—Five Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Jack Craigen (Henry B. Waltham); Helen Steele (Edna Mayo); Henry Tracey (Sydney Ainsworth); Sidney Parker, manager (Edward Arnold); Boney (Harry Dunkinson); Keen Fitzpatrick, reporter (John Junior); John W. Cannell (John H. Cossar); Mrs. Cannell (Frances Raymond); Inn Keeper (Charles J. Stine); Stephen Weatherbee (Grant Mitchell); Jane Wentworth (Renee Clemmons).

Helen Steele, who has theatrical aspirations, has been told by Sidney Parker that, owing to her lack of stage experience he cannot entertain her proposition of giving her the leading part in his new production, "The Siren." Believing that she can get Parker to consent if she is persuasive enough, Helen has her fiance, Henry Tracey, invite the theatrical manager to the party to be given by John W. Cannell so that she may work upon him. At the affair Helen manages to obtain Parker's consent to give her a trial if she is successful in having Jack Craigen, a friend of Cannell, who has been living in Patagonia for a long time and who is a woman hater, propose to her. Helen works her wiles upon the adamant Craigen and finally elicits a proposal from him. The guests in the next room, who have been listening, come out at the critical moment, and congratulate her. Craigen demands an explanation, and he is told that it is all a joke. He refuses to accept the incident in such a light, however, and makes preparations to leave for his home in the mountains.

At this juncture, Tracey, who had been called out of town on important business before the commencement of the party, returns. When told of Helen's episode with Craigen he becomes very angry and upbraids her. Tracey then goes in search of Craigon, whom he does not know, and mistaking Keen Fitzpatrick, a reporter, who has been waiting in the next room for an interview with Craigen on Patagonia, for the man he is in search of, he starts to pour a scathing indictment upon him. The guests hear the tirade and inform Tracey of the identity of the man to whom he is speaking.

Meanwhile, Craigen, having packed his belongings, is leaving in his auto. As he is passing the back entrance, Helen jumps in front of his auto and tells him that, inasmuch as he does not know anything about women he should adopt the Patagonian savage method and carry her off to his home where he could study her. He puts her suggestion into effect and Helen is carried off in the auto to his home in the woods, where he brutally orders her about. She attempts to escape, and Craigen chains her to the floor.

While he leaves her for a moment to put his car into the garage, "Boney," an escaped lunatic, makes his way into the cabin. He styles himself Napoleon Bonaparte, and raves about his armies. As he is swinging his sword about the room, Craigen appears, and by diplomacy succeeds in getting "Boney" upstairs to review his armies where he is locked in a room. Craigen returns to Helen. His back is turned to her and she knocks him unconscious with the telephone. Taking the keys from his pocket, she releases herself and escapes into the woods. Craigen recovers his senses and, finding the note Helen left informing him that she feels sorry for her action and has gone for help, fears for her safety, and goes out in search of her.

During his absence Fitzpatrick, who was trailing, arrives. On searching through the house for Craigen, he comes upon "Boney," whom he takes to be the man he is searching for. He demands to know where the girl is, but "Boney" only raves about his armies. The two are just on the point of clashing when Craigen returns. He reveals his identity to the reporter, and tells him that Helen has fled into the woods. The asylum keepers trace "Boney" to Craigen's home, and take him away.

Tracey, who has also been following, arrives at the cabin and confronts Craigen with a revolver. He demands Helen or his life. Craigen manages to convince Tracey, after an argument, that Helen has fled into the woods. Helen has seen Tracey's car going in the direction of Craigen's home, and fearing trouble, makes her way back. She arrives just after Tracey has left. The other members of the house party arrive to take Helen back, but she refuses to leave Craigen.

WORLD FILM CORP.

CAMILLE—(Five Parts; Jan. 3).—The cast: Camille (Clara Kimball Young); Armand (Paul Capellani); Cecile (Lillian Cook); M. Duval (Robert Cummings); Joseph (Dan Baker); Robert Bousac (Stanhope Wheatcroft); Count de Varville (Frederick Truesdale); Gaston (William Jefferson); Doctor (Edward M. Kimball); Mme. Prudence (Louie Ducey); Nacine (Beryl Morharge).

Marguerite Gautier, known as "Camille" because of her fondness for camellias, is a queen of the underworld of Paris. She has a wealthy lover in the Count de Varville, whom she discards when she falls in love with Armand Duval, a young lawyer, a newcomer to Paris.

Armand and Camille retire to the country and live happily and devotedly in a pretty cottage, content with their love alone. Armand s father seeks them out and prevails upon Camille to leave his son rather than wreck his promising career. Camille, after a struggle with her selfish promptings, gives in and in order to make Armand turn from love to scorn leaves him with the impression that she is tired of simple life and wants to return to de Varville and the gayety of Paris.

Armand tries to forget Camille, but fails. At last he seeks de Varville, forces a quarrel on him and wounds him in a duel. By this time Camille is dying of consumption. Armand finds her on her deathbed. Their love is renewed, and Camille dies with a smile on her lips and Armand's arms about her.

LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL (Five Parts—Jan. 10).—The cast includes Holbrook Blinn and Fania Marinoff.

McTeague begins life in the mines. He later becomes an unlicensed practicing dentist. He is a man of violent physical passions, but until he meets little Trina, who visits his dental office, his love instincts have never been aroused.

McTeague induces Trina to marry him through the sheer force of his domineering personality. The couple are not happy. Trina develops miserly instincts and when she wins a $5,000 lottery prize, she hoards the money and grows more and more avaricious.

McTeague quarrels with Marcus, his former rival for Trina's affections, and the ill feeling between the two men leads to a fierce combat in which McTeague proves the victor. In revenge Marcus has McTeague prevented from practicing dentistry because he has no diploma.

McTeague leans on Trina for support but she turns him away. Trina has a severe illness and while recuperating develops a mania for fondling her hoarded gold pieces. McTeague returns to find Trina showering handfuls of gold upon her bed. After a terrific scene he strangles her and steals the money.

Marcus, determined to avenge Trina's death, trails the fugitive McTeague into the heart of Death Valley, where the two men come at last face to face in a final battle to the death under the blistering desert sun.

POWER'S 6B

We Installed A Perfect Projection Outfit

At the PARK THEATRE, East Rutherford, N. J.

For Mrs. H. E. SCHAFF

Several Weeks Ago

She was more than pleased with screen results we showed her.

WE ARE NOW INSTALLING FOR HER AT THE

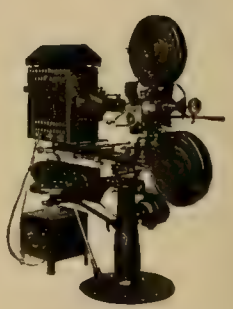
Ridgewood Opera House

(Ridgewood, N. J.)

Machines Special Condensing and Projection Lenses Special Prepared Screen, etc. etc.

SHE KNOWS WHERE TO PURCHASE PROJECTION

Ask Her About It We Can Do the Same for You



MOTIOGRAPH

The Largest and Most Complete Stock of Modern Theatre Equipment in America

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET BUFFALO, N. Y.

Tell Us Your Projection Troubles

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

A-1—Theatrical pianist and director. Specialty vaudeville and pictures. Sober, reliable. Charles Jerreld, 1205 Hampden St., Holyoke, Moss.

OPERATOR—And wife pianist. Joint salary $25.00. Experienced, best references. Experienced, care M. P. World, New York City.

HIGH-CLASS MANAGER wishes connection with up-to-date picture theater; have extreme ability; ten years' experience. An interview will convince. W. J., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR—Six years' experience, guarantee perfect projection. First-class electrician; can repair machines. Go anywhere, reasonable salary. First-class references. Address Walter Milner, care Idyl Theater, Ocean City, N. J.

CAMERAMAN at liberty after 7th January. Have own outfit and understands laboratory work. Best references furnished. C., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—Nine years' experience. Thoroughly experienced on all machines; sober, reliable; will go anywhere. Best projection guaranteed. Write or wire, Russell Hoyle, 923 University Ave., Dixon, Ill.

CAMERAMAN—Expert cinematographer, owning complete equipment (Moy), invites offers. Eight years' active experience, gilt-edge references. At liberty after this week. Address E. R., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

AT LIBERTY—Cameraman, after Jan. 1st. Expert in photography; lighting. References. Address AA-1, care M. P. World, Chicago, Ill.

MANAGER—Successful experience booking, house and projection. Salary or percentage basis. Address W. P., care M. P. World, Chicago, Ill.

WANTED—Position by man thirty. Twelve years' vaudeville booking experience. At present employed as booking manager of prominent vaudeville corporation; realizing the possibilities of the picture business, anxious to make connection; nominal salary to start. Unquestionable references. Have managed houses and understand all ends of theatrical business. Have been used to dealing with big men of affairs. L. M., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR, 5 years' experience, also good cameraman, desires position; Illinois or Indiana. Best references. Operator, 753 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

COMPANY of two wide-experienced men to take theater in hands and by ideal regulations increase box office receipts. Expense smashed. We mean manager, operator, cashier. Reference extraordinary. Our plan is different; results assured. State everything first letter. Address F. B. Holden, 212 North Jefferson St., Delphos, Ohio.

THEATERS WANTED.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical, successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

WANTED—Movie in State of South Carolina. Must be on paying basis. Modern building. Lewis, Moving Picture Broker, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Moving picture theater, county seat town 2,000, Northeastern Iowa. Seating capacity 250, best modern equipment, complete stage scenery. No opposition. Price $3,000. Address M. P., Care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE OR RENT—My rink building is being remodeled for theater and picture house, seat 1,000. Hillsdale has no opera house. No opposition, only two small picture rooms. Chas. E. Ellis, Hillsdale, Mich.

FOR SALE—Ideal Theater, Saginaw, Michigan. Seating capacity two hundred and seventy. Doing good business, but have other interests to look after. Open for inspection. W. B. Mates.

FOR SALE—First-class picture theater prosperous town 5,000. Seats 330. Best reasons selling. Bargain if sold thirty days. C. T., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FULLY-EQUIPPED picture theater, Pennsylvania town 3,000; rent $25.00. Best reasons selling. Bargain at $1,000 if sold three weeks. 300 seats. T. O., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER for sale or to let in a thickly-populated center, no competition. Company wishes to dissolve. Little cash required. W., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVIE—The only one in successful manufacturing town of about 4,000. Admission ten cents. Weekly expenses less than $60. Receipts about $150. Price for real estate and equipment $10,000, half cash, or will sell the business for $3,000. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

TWO OF THE LARGEST—And best equipped movies in town of 35,000. The monopoly of the town. Weekly receipts $800-$1,000. Weekly expenses about half. One of the houses could be converted into 10-15c. house under proper management, which should increase the receipts about $300 week. Positively worth $20,000; will sacrifice for $12,000. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—New and second hand moving picture machines, all leading makes, at reduced prices. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

PARTICULAR EXHIBITORS USE "AMBERLUX LENS FILTERS."

FOR SALE—New or second hand opera chairs for moving picture theaters at a bargain. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Complete equipment, any quantity, new and second-hand for moving picture theaters, furnished at short notice. Specializing Powers' machines. W. H. Latimer, 308 Lackawanna Ave., Scranton, Pa.

"AMBERLUX" Lens Filters improve projection 100 per cent. Let me prove it. Price $3.50. W. D. Warner, Columbus, Ohio.

SPOT CASH—For your chairs, wherever they are located. Two thousand veneer, 700 leather, 400 plush for sale. Empire Exchange, Corning, N. Y.

COMPENSARCS—110 volt $41. 220 volt $49. Power's and Simplex machines. Alden, 812 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

MOTIOGRAPH—Same as new. Deagen Electric Unifon. Ten by twelve mirrorcloth screen. Twenty reels film. Arthur Close, 1120 Branson St., Marion, Indiana.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—New and second hand. 400 practically new maple folding, 600 leather upholstered, almost new. 1,500 opera, perfect condition. Electric sign. Write for startling prices. Atlas Seating Company, 501 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

EDISON MOVING PICTURE MACHINE—1914, take up. 10 reels of picture and 250 slides, $60.00 will take outfit. W. H. Heffley, Duncannon, Pa.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic take-up, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 5961 Franklin.

HEAVY AND LIGHT TRIPODS—Also cameras and shutters for motion pictures. Hoover, 10 East 14th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Tripod with panorama, $14. Ship C. O. D., subject examination. A. Van Colli, Gillespie, Illinois.

CAMERA—Pittman, Jr., 200 feet, F.3.5 lens, only $90. Tripods, $15 upwards. Ray, 326 5th Ave., N. Y. City.

VISTA CAMERA—With 50 M lens, worth $30.00, trick crank and 150 foot film magazine. Can project and print. Guaranteed to make perfect pictures. Will sacrifice for $45.00. Anthony Noto, 726 Clara St., New Orleans, La.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

CHASING LETTER—And cartoon titles and advertisements made to order 17c. foot upwards. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—200 reels film, $1.50 per reel; 100 reels, with paper, $3.00 per reel. Lot features for sale. Cheap. Meyer Silverman, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BILLY SUNDAY HIMSELF—Only original film taken of this remarkable man in action. fine condition, paper, slides. N. Edward Malouf, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WE BUY and sell new and second hand moving picture machines, opera chairs and films. Crescent Film Exc., 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SCENARIOS—Typewritten for $1 per reel, and promptly returned. Thomas B. Lutes, Photoplaywright, Robbinsville, N. J.

For Your LITTLE WANTS in the Moving Picture Industry

the LITTLE ADS in the Classified Department

WILL GET YOU EXCEPTIONAL RESULTS

Send your copy, accompanied by remittance—The Rate is Three Cents per Word

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 74
Ambrosio Comes Back..... 88
Among the Picture Theaters..... 70
Another Big Studio..... 52
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 54

Biograph Feature and Reissue..... 92
"Black Crook" (Kalem)..... 91
British Notes..... 69
"By Love Redeemed" (Vitagraph)..... 92

Calendar of Daily Program Releases..122, 124
Carrigan, Thomas J..... 99
Cash in Advance vs. Open Account..... 67
Censors Back Down..... 117
Censorship in Illinois..... 112
Chicago News Letter..... 113
Church Shows in Indiana..... 113
Comments on the Films..... 97
"Conqueror, The" (Kay-Bee)..... 91
"Convict King, The" (Lubin)..... 94

Daly, Arnold, Finds a Star..... 67
"Devil's Prayer Book, The" (Kleine-Edison)..... 94
"Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts (Key-Stone)..... 91
Doings in Maine..... 106
"Dragon, The" (Equitable)..... 90

Ellis to Direct Sis Hopkins..... 62
Elvidge, June..... 88
Essanay for the New Year..... 62
Exhibitors to Sit as Jurors..... 50

Facts and Comments..... 47
Fatty and Mabel Booked East..... 58
Fine New British Columbia House Opens.. 119
Freuler Reviews the Year..... 51

General Theater Inspection in Pittsburgh.. 109
Great Year Dawns, A..... 48

Herrington is Hopeful..... 59
Hitches in Censorship..... 114
Hunting, Gardner, with Wharton..... 56

"Immigrant, The" (Lasky)..... 92
"Isles of the Wild, The" (Biograph)..... 92

Kleinschmidt, Capt., Now at Italian Front... 54

List of Current Film Release Dates. 150, 152, 154
Live Screen Club Now..... 109
"Love's Pilgrimage to America" (Universal)..... 93
"Lydia Gilmore" (Famous Players)..... 95

Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 100
"Matchmaker, The" (Edison)..... 90
Mayo, Frank..... 57
Metro Pictures in 1916..... 57
Motion Picture Exhibitor..... 59
Motion Picture Photography..... 83
"Mr. McIdiot's Assassination" (L-KO).... 93
Murdock, Ann..... 59
Music for the Picture..... 84

National Censor Board Conference..... 87
New News Reel, The..... 58
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 63
New Kalem Series..... 53
Nineteen Sixteen..... 49
Nudity on the Screen..... 49

Observations by Man About Town..... 68
"Old Homestead, The" (Famous Players)..... 95

Pertinent Points by J. D. Williams..... 87
Photoplaywright, The..... 77
Picture Theaters Projected..... 105
Projection Department..... 78

"Rack, The (World Film)..... 93
Reviews of Current Productions..... 89
Romance of a Great Business, The..... 55

St. Louis Theaters..... 115
"Saved from the Harem" (Lubin)..... 94
"Soldier's Oath, A" (Fox)..... 91
Stories of the Films..... 126
Streyckmans, H. J., Mirror Studio Manager 51
Subpoenas in New Jersey..... 107
"Surprises of an Empty Hotel, The" (Vitagraph)..... 92

Texas Mutual Sold..... 116
Theaters in Reading, Pa..... 108
Title of Play is Property..... 50
To Aid Ohio Picture Men..... 110
Triangle in Cincinnati..... 111
Triangle Program..... 91
Two Lubin Features..... 94
Two Strong Famous Players' Subjects..... 95

Universal Annual Meeting..... 52
Universal Gets Florence Lawrence..... 86

Vitagraph Features..... 92

"War God's Decree, The" (Pathe)..... 89
"War of Wealth, The" (Biograph)..... 92
Weir to Picturize Kalem Series..... 66
"What Happened to Father" (Vitagraph).. 90
"Why Love is Blind" (Selig)..... 89
World Film Productions..... 56
"Wraith of Haddon Towers, The" (Clipper) 89

Youthful Censors..... 118

TO ADVERTISERS

ASBESTOS SUPPLIES.
Johns-Manville, H. W., Co..... 157

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Habicht, Braun & Co..... 151
Jones & Cammack..... 159
Kiewert, Chas. L..... 157
Reisinger, Hugo..... 155
Speer Carbon Co..... 156

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co..... 161
Andrews, A. H..... 161
Peabody School Furniture Co..... 161
Steel Furniture Co..... 161

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 156
Electric Products Co..... 158
Erker Bros.' Optical Co..... 160
Fidelity Electric Co..... 156
Fort Wayne Electric Works..... 145
Fulton, E. E..... 142
General Electric Co..... 144
Hallberg, J. H..... 130
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 159
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 142
Kleine Optical Co..... 140
Lears Theater Supply Co..... 133
Lucas, Harry K..... 138
Northwestern M. P. Equipment Co..... 132
Picture Theater Equipment Co..... 146
Porter, B. F..... 142
Stern Mfg. Co..... 160
Strelinger, Chas. A..... 133
Swaab, Lewis M..... 155
Typhoon Fan Co..... 156

FILM EXCHANGES.
Bradenburgh, G. W..... 138
Central Film Co..... 142
Film Exchange, The..... 142
Greater N. Y. Film Rental Co.....122, 154
Twentieth Century Film Co..... 158
Film Export..... 138
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co..... 134

LENS MANUFACTURER.
Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co..... 155

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Film Co., Inc.....22-23
Biograph Co..... 123
Equitable Motion Picture Corp..... 36
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....3, 7-9
Famous Players Film Co.....10-11
Farnham, Joe. W..... 125
Gaumont Co..... 27
Gest, Morris..... 35
Great Northern Film Co..... 158
Hanover Film Co..... 156
Horsley, David, Productions..... 28
Ivan Film Productions, Inc..... 20
Kalem Co.....44-66
Kane, Arthur S..... 34
Kleine, Geo..... 42
Knickerbocker Star Features..... 41
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co.....12-13
Lubin Mfg. Co.....43, 121
Medusa Film..... 135
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Morosco, Oliver, Photoplays Co..... 14
Mutual Film Corp.....16-20
North American Film Corp..... 26
Paramount Pictures Corp..... 15
Pathe Exchange, The, Inc.....30-33
Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc..... 138
Rolin Film Co..... 134
Selig Polyscope Co..... 143
Selig Tribune..... 162
Signal Film Corp.....24-25
Sterling Camera & Film Co..... 142
Thanhouser Film Corp..... 2
Triangle Film Corp.....38-39
Universal Film Mfg. Co..... 4-6
V-L-S-E..... 120
Vim Comedies..... 40
Vitagraph Co. of America.....Colored Insert
Vogue Comedies..... 21
World Film Corp..... 37

MISCELLANEOUS.
Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Reg. Co.. 136
Bioscope, The..... 158
Booth, Allen..... 153
Caille Bros..... 144
Cine Mundial..... 143
Classified Advertisements..... 147
Columbia Film Mfg. Co..... 141
Corcoran, A. J..... 156
Consolidated Film & Supply Co..... 134
Eastman Kodak Co..... 157
Erbograph Co..... 144
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 161
Gunby Bros..... 144
Industrial Moving Picture Co..... 129
Kinematograaf, De..... 158
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 132
Manuscripts Universal..... 138
Moore, William N..... 138
Motion Picture Directory Co..... 144
Motion Picture Electricity..... 160
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides..... 161
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon..... 161
National Ticket Co..... 128
Newman Lacquer Co..... 160
Richardson, F. H..... 157
Service Film Co..... 141
Standard Motion Picture Co..... 134
Trade Circular Addressing Co..... 157
Varrone, John..... 144

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
International Photo Sales Co..... 160
Los Angeles M. P. Co..... 144
Universal Camera Co..... 155

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
Deagan, J. C..... 136
Harmo Pipe Organ Co..... 156
Schirmer, G..... 153
Seeburg, J. P. Piano Co..... 151
Simon, Walter G..... 158
Sinn, Clarence E..... 161

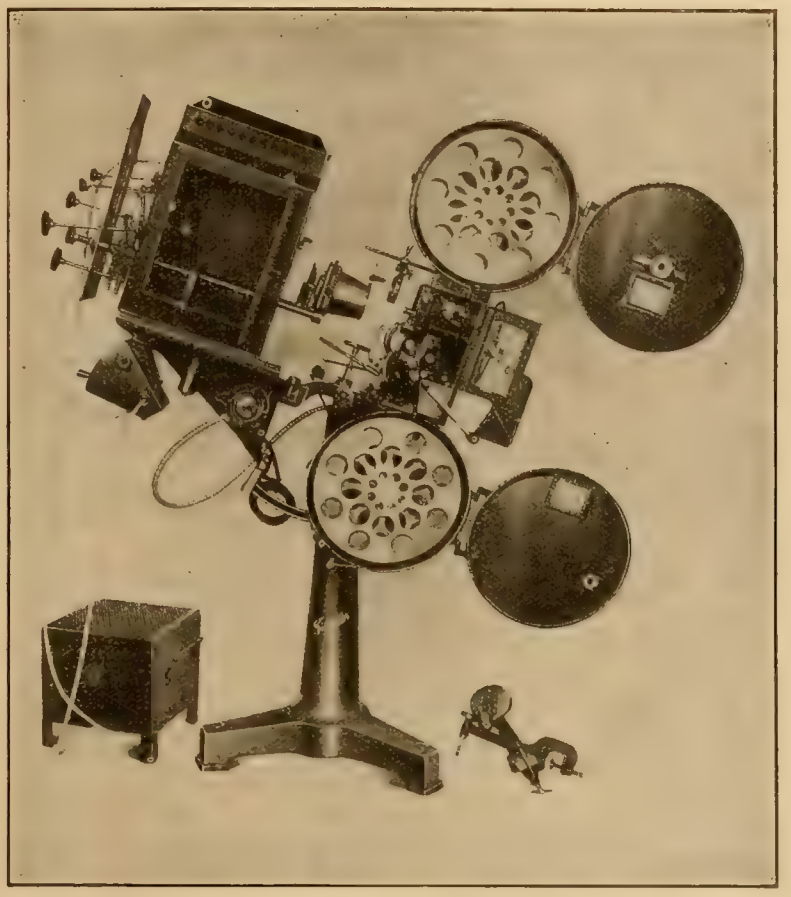
POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Goes Lithographing Co..... 142
Menger & Ring..... 134
Newman Mfg. Co..... 134

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Machine Co..... 158
Enterprise Optical Co..... 141
Power, Nicholas Co..... 164
Precision Machine Co..... 149

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc..... 158
Gold King Screen Co..... 158
Minusa Cines Products Co..... 153
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc..... 127
Simpson, Alfred L..... 105

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Decorators' Supply Co..... 159

SIMPLEX the ONLY PROJECTOR that has a device for setting the shutter while the machine is in motion



Every operator knows what it means to start his show and then find that his shutter is out of time or does not synchronize with his intermittent movement.

The shutter setting device of the Simplex is simple as is everything else about the machine; by simply turning the knob on the back of the mechanism either to the right or left the shutter can be adjusted while the machine is in motion.

Simplex

The machine that has all the needed devices and adjustments that every other projector has and THEN SOME.

Simplex

The PROJECTOR that received the UNANIMOUS APPROVAL of the U. S. GOVERNMENT WAR DEPARTMENT and GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

Send for Catalog "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 122, 124).

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Big "U," Laemmle, L-KO.
Monday—Broadway Universal Features, Imp, Nestor.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor.
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Victor.
Saturday—Big "U," Bison, Joker.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Dec. 1—Number 195 (Topical).
Dec. 8—Number 196 (Topical).
Dec. 15—Number 197 (Topical).
Dec. 22—Number 198 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 199 (Topical).
Jan. 5—No. 200 (Topical).
Jan. 18—Number 201 (Topical).

BIG U.

Dec. 16—Col. Steele Master Gambler (Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 23—No release this day.
Dec. 30—Babbling Tongues (Drama).
Jan. 2—The Honor to Die (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 6—No release this day.
Jan. 13—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Dr.).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama).

BISON.

Dec. 11—The Lion's Ward (Three parts—Animal—Drama).
Dec. 18—His Real Character (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Dec. 25—When Rogues Fall Out (Three parts—Railroad—Drama).
Jan. 8—On the Trail of the Tigress (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 6—The White Scar (Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 13—The Primrose Path (Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 20—Father and the Boys (Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Nature Man; or A Struggle for Existence (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Landon's Legacy (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Dec. 14—Lord John's Journal (Adventure No. 1 Lord John in New York) (Four parts—Drama).
Dec. 21—Christmas Memories (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—As the Shadows Fall (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 4—Lord John's Journal (Adventure No. 2, "The Gray Sisterhood" (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).

IMP.

Dec. 7—Slim, Fat or Medium (Comedy).
Dec. 10—The Little Lady Across the Way (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 14—Almost a Papa (Comedy).
Dec. 17—The Vacuum Test (Drama).
Dec. 21—When Love Laughs (Comedy).
Dec. 28—No release this day.
Dec. 31—A Tribute to Mother (Two parts—Psychological—Drama).
Jan. 4—No release this day.
Jan. 7—The Law of Life (Three parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 11—No release this day.

JOKER.

Dec. 4—Mrs. Prune's Boarding House (Com.).
Dec. 11—Slightly Mistaken (Comedy).
Dec. 18—The Opera Singer's Romance (Com.).
Jan. 1—Lemonade Aids Cupid (Comedy).
Jan. 8—Those Female Haters (Comedy).
Jan. 15—No release this day.

LAEMMLE.

Dec. 18—The Water Clue (Drama).
Dec. 19—No release this day.
Dec. 22—The Great Fear (Drama).
Dec. 23—One Hundred Years Ago (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 26—No release this day.
Dec. 28—The Evil of Suspicion (Drama).
Dec. 30—The Little Upstart (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—The Underworld (Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 6—Missy (Two parts—Modern—Drama).
Jan. 9—Blind Fury (Drama).
Jan. 13—No release this day.
Jan. 16—No release this day.

L-KO.

Dec. 5—A Saphead's Revenge (Comedy).
Dec. 8—Sin on the Sabbath (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 12—Lizzie's Shattered Dreams (Comedy).
Dec. 15—Blackmail in a Hospital (Comedy).
Dec. 19—The Doomed Groom (Comedy).
Dec. 22—From Beanery to Billions (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 26—Greed and Gasoline (Comedy).
Dec. 29—A Scandal at Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Pants and Petticoats (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 12—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy).

NESTOR.

Dec. 13—Her Speedy Affair (Comedy).
Dec. 17—Where the Heather Blooms (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 20—Love and a Savage (Comedy).
Dec. 24—No release this day.
Dec. 25—When Three is a Crowd (Comedy).
Dec. 27—Some Chaperone (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Flivver's Terrible Past (Comedy).
Jan. 3—Jed's Trip to the Fair (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Flivver's Art of Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Boy, the Girl and the Auto (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy).

POWERS.

Dec. 25—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 1, "Where Uncle Sam Makes His Laws and Keeps His Relics" (Educational).
—Wild Bird Life (Educational).
Jan. 1—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 2, "How Uncle Sam Gets His Coin" (Topical).
Jan. 6—Building Up the Health of a Nation (Lesson No. 1).
—Carl Emmy and His Gods (Vaudeville Act).
Jan. 8—Uncle Sam At Work, No. 3, "Are We Prepared?" (Educational).
Jan. 13—The Rubber Rompers (Vaudeville Act).
—Transporting Timber in Sweden (Educational).
Jan. 15—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges at Work and at Play" (Educational).

REX.

Dec. 19—The Bachelor's Christmas (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 21—No release this day.
Dec. 24—The Terrible Truth (Drama).
Dec. 26—Stronger Than Death (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 2—No release this day.
Jan. 4—Shattered Nerves (Comedy).
Jan. 9—No release this day.
Jan. 11—His Return (Drama).
Jan. 14—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Dr.).

VICTOR.

Dec. 15—The Widow's Secret (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 17—No release this day.
Dec. 24—The Tale of the C (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 29—Father's Child (Three parts—Com.).
Dec. 31—No release this day.
Jan. 5—The Heart of a Mermaid (Three parts—Sea Drama).
Jan. 7—No release this day.
Jan. 12—Man and Morality (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Dec. 13—Graft (No. 1, Liquor and the Law (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 20—Graft (No. 2, "The Tenement House Evil") (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—Craft (No. 3, "The Traction Grab") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Graft (No. 4, "The Power of the People" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Graft No. 6, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Reliance (2), Casino (1), Thanhouser (1).
Monday—American (2), Falstaff (1), Novelty (1).
Tuesday—Thanhouser (2), Cartoon and Scenic (1), Beauty (1).
Wednesday—Rialto, Centaur (3), Novelty (1).
Thursday—Centaur (2), Falstaff (1), Mutual Weekly (1).
Friday—Mustang (2), American (1), Cub (1).
Saturday—Clipper, Than-o-play or Mustang (3), Beauty (1).

AMERICAN.

Dec. 13—The Solution of the Mystery (Two parts—Drama).
Dec 17—Spider Barlow's Soft Spot (Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 20—The Clean Up (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 24—Yes or No (Drama).
Dec. 27—The Tragic Circle (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Mender (Drama).
Jan. 3—Matching Dreams (Two parts—Comedy—I rama).
Jan. 7—Time and Tide (Drama).

BEAUTY.

Dec. 18—Two Hearts and a Thief (Comedy).
Dec. 21—Making a Man of Johnnie (Comedy).
Dec. 25—That Country Girl (Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 28—Kiddus, Kids and Kiddo (Comedy).
Jan. 1—Settle Out of Court (Comedy).
Jan. 4—Billy van Deusen's Shadow (Comedy).
Jan. 8—To Be or Not to Be (Comedy).

CASINO.

Dec. 19—Cissy's Innocent Wink (Comedy).
Dec. 26—Hunting (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Leaving it to Cissy (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Alias Mr. Jones (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Dec. 22—The Mystery of Carter Breen (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 23—The Winning of Jess (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Dec. 30—The Terror of the Fold (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 11—Curly (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psyclo—Drama).

CUB.

Dec. 17—The Holdup (Comedy).
Dec. 24—Hearts and Clubs (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Jerry's Revenge (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Jerry in the Movies (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Dec. 13—The Conductor's Classy Champion (Comedy).
Dec. 16—Billy Bunks the Bandit (Comedy).
Dec. 20—When William's Whiskers Worked (Comedy).
Dec. 23—Toodles, Tom and Trouble (Comedy).
Dec. 27—Una's Useful Uncle (Comedy).
Dec. 30—Foolish Fate Flora (Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Optimistic Oriental Occults (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Hilda's Husky Helper (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Dec. 14—See America First, No. 14, Pittsburgh, Pa. (Scenic). Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 21—See America First (No. 15, Lexington, Ky.) (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Carton—Comedy).
Dec. 28—See America First, No. 16, Chicago, Ill. (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 4—See America First No. 17, "Chicago Industries" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 152).

How About Your Carbon Stock???

The WISE EXHIBITOR knows the situation of the market.

He knows also the goods because he tested them thoroughly.

Therefore,

Marcus Loew's Theatrical Enterprises placed with us an important order.

We got the first shipment from Europe a few weeks ago, and today many exhibitors everywhere in the United States our carbons and are well satisfied.

USE

WHY?
- Because it is the quality they require.
- Because they know there will be no shortage.

Read next week what an EXHIBITOR in a prominent position, well known to many of you, thinks of our IMPORTED

Fabril Carbons

HABICHT, BRAUN & CO.

FILM DEPARTMENT
161-163 Hudson Street,

Uptown Shipping Office:
145 W. 45th St., Room 1013

NEW YORK

Chicago: 109-111 West Ohio Street.
Pittsburgh: 441 Market Street.

2/3

of

Our Business Comes to Us

Through the Influence of Theatre Owners Who Have a

Seeburg Pipe Organ

This is the Highest Possible Recommendation

A Seeburg

will get you the results you want

J. P. Seeburg Piano Company

MANUFACTURERS
1004 Republic Bldg., Chicago BRANCHES

Boston
M. Steinert Sons
162 Boylston St.

New York
127 W. 65th St.

Pittsburgh
431 Liberty St.

Atlanta
65 No. Pryor St.

San Francisco
52 Turk St.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 122, 124.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 150).

MUSTANG.

Dec. 25—Author! Author! (Three parts—Com.-Dr.).
Dec. 31—The Cactus Blossom (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 7—The Hills of Glory (Two parts—Western—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Dec. 23—Number 51, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 30—Number 52, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 6—No. 53, 1915 (Topical).

NOVELTY.

Dec. 15—A Musical Mix-up (Comedy).
Dec. 20—The Fiddler (Comedy).
Dec. 22—The Innocent Sandwich Man (Com.).—Between Lakes and Mountains (Scenic).
Dec. 29—No release.

RELIANCE.

Dec. 19—The Bankhurst Mystery (Two parts—Detective—Drama).
Dec. 26—The Decoy (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 2—The Law of Success (Two parts—Drama.)
Jan. 5—The She Devil (Three parts—Melo-Drama).

RIALTO.

Dec. 15—The Ace of Death (Three parts—Dr.).
Dec. 29—A Prince of Yesterday (Three parts—Domestic—Drama).

THANHOUSER.

Dec. 12—Her Confession (Modern—Drama).
Dec. 14—An Innocent Traitor (Two parts—War—Drama).
Dec. 19—The Political Pull of John (Comedy).
Dec. 21—Ambition (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 28—The Last Performance (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Bubbles In the Glass (Three parts—Society—Drama).

THAN-O-PLAY.

Dec. 18—His Majesty the King (Three parts—War—Comedy—Drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES.

Dec. 23—The Painted Soul (Five parts—Underworld—Drama) (No. 52).
Dec. 30—The Deathlock (Five parts—Drama) (No. 53).
Jan. 6—The Other Side of the Door (No. 54—Five parts—Romantic—Drama).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 27—The Girl and the Game (No. 1—"Helen's Race with Death"—Two parts—Drama).

THANHOUSER MASTERPICTURE.

Jan. 8—Society Wolves (Five parts—Political Drama).

VOGUE.

Dec. 27—Sammy's Scandalous Schemes (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 3—An Innocent Crook (Two parts—Comedy).

Associated Film Sales Corp.

Releases for Week of Dec. 13:
The Blight of Greed (Empire—Two parts—Drama).
Your Only Friend (Ramona—Two parts—Drama).
The Spectre (Santa Barbara—Two parts—Drama).
The Man in Him (Alhambra—Two parts—Drama).
Ike Stops a Battle (Federal—Comedy).
Going—Going—Gone (Atla—Comedy).
The Spooners (Banner—Comedy).
Taking Chances (Deer—Comedy).
Dec. 20—Sealed Lips (Drama).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Pathe.
Tuesday—Pathe, Photocolor.
Wednesday—Pathe, Phunphilms, Globe
Thursday—Gold Rooster.
Saturday—Pathe, Starlight, Balboa.

BALBOA.

Dec. 25—The Red Circle (No. 2—"Pity the Poor—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 1—The Red Circle (No. 3—"Twenty Years Ago" (Two parts—Drama.).
Jan. 8—The Red Circle (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—The Red Circle No. 5, "Weapon of War' (Two parts—Drama).

GLOBE.

Dec. 29—Where the Trees Are Stone (See America First) (Scenic).
Jan. 3—Quaint Dances of Japan (Dances).
Jan. 10—Unfamiliar Fishes (Educational).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Dec. 17—Beloved Vagabond (Six parts—Drama) (Colored).
Dec. 31—Excuse Me (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—The King's Game (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—Madame X (Six parts—Drama).

PATHE.

Dec. 20—New Adventures of Wallingford, No. 12 (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 24—Life of Our Saviour (Seven parts—Drama) (Colored).
Dec. 27—New Adventures of Wallingford, No. 13, "The Missing Heir" (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 28—Col. Heeza Liar, Nature Faker (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 3—New Adventures of Wallingford (No. 14—Two parts—Comedy).

PATHE NEWS.

Dec. 22—No. 102, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 25—No. 103, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 104, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 1—Number 1, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Dec. 27—California's Rocky Shores (See America First) (Colored—Scenic).
Jan. 3—Old, Unchanging Holland (Colored—Scenic).
Jan. 10—From Kabylia to Constantine (Scenic).

PHUNPHILMS.

Dec. 22—Peculiar Patients' Pranks (Comedy).
Dec. 29—Lonesome Luke, Social Gangster (Comedy).
Jan. 5—Luke Leans to the Literary (Comedy).
Jan. 12—Luke Lugs Luggage (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Dec. 18—More Deadly than the Male (Com.).
Dec. 25—The Board-Bill Dodgers (Comedy).
Jan. 1—Chasing 'Em Out in the Open (Com.).
Jan. 8—Ach! Such Crimes! (Comedy).
Jan. 15—From Bad to Worse (Comedy).

VICTORY.

Dec. 23—The War Gods' Decree (Three parts—Drama).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT FILM CO.

Dec.—The Warring Millions (Topical).
January—The Battles of a Nation (Six parts—Topical).

AURORA FILM PLAYS CORPORATION.

January—The Waif (Five parts—Drama).

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Jan. —The Salamander (Drama).

CORT FILM CORPORATION.

Dec.—Whirl of Life (Drama).

DORMET FILM COMPANY.

Dec.—Joseph and His Brethren (Six parts—Drama).

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.

January—His Vindication (Four parts—Dr.).

EAGLE FILM MANUFACTURING & PRODUCING. CO.

January—Ocena's Pearl (Drama).
January—Pirates of the Sky (Drama).
January—Grogan's Alley (Comedy).
January—The Adventures of Suffy (Comedy).

EQUITABLE—FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 27—The Senator (Drama).
Jan. 3—The Dragon (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Behind Closed Doors (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Her Great Hour (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—The Ransom (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).

JOE W. FARNHAM.

January—Race Suicide (Six parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 12—Her Mother's Secret (Five parts—Dr.)
Dec. 19—A Soldier's Oath (Five parts—Dr.).
Dec. 26—Destruction (Five parts—Dr.).

FRENCH OFFICIAL WAR FILMS.

January—Fighting With France (Topical).

HANOVER FILM COMPANY.

December—Marvelous Maciste (Drama).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Dec.—Forbidden Fruit (Drama).

ARTHUR S. KANE.

January—Somewhere in France (Five parts—Topical).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Dec. 20—Rosemary (Quality—Five parts—Dr.).
Dec. 27—Black Fear (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—What Will People Say (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).

WM. MORRIS.

January—On the Battlefields of France (Top.).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Dec. 27—Lydia Gilmore (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 30—Temptation (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Foundling (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—Tongues of Men Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Mice and Men (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).

RELIABLE FEATURE FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 15—The World of Today (Six parts—Dr.).

SUN PHOTOPLAY CO, INC.

December—The Burglar and the Lady (Five parts—Drama).

SUPREME FILM CO.

Jan. 1—The Cow Puncher (Six parts—Drama).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 26—The Edge of the Abyss (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).
—The Penitentes (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
—A Submarine Pirate (Keystone—Four parts—Comedy).
—The Hunt (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
Released for week of Jan. 2:
Cross Currents (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Between Men (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts (Keystone—Two parts—Drama).
Worst of Friends (Keystone—Two parts—Drama).

WORLD FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 13—The Siren's Song (Shubert—Drama).
Dec. 20—Over Night (Brady—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Rack (Brady—Drama).

V-L-S-E, INC.

Dec. 20—The Great Divide (Lubin—Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 20—A Daughter of the City (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—What Happened to Father (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Misleading Lady (Essanay—Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Thou Art the Man (Vitagraph—Six parts—Drama).

KLEINE—EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Dec. 15—Bondwomen (Kleine—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—My Lady's Slipper (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Captain Jinks (Essanay—Comedy).
Jan. 17—Green Stockings (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).

SCENARIO WRITERS! ATTENTION!

I Want Your Exclusive Services

I desire to get in touch with the ten best scenario writers in the United States —writers of 42-centimeter calibre, who have written and disposed of four and five reel original material. Am willing to make extraordinary proposition to the photoplaywrights worth while. State full list of accepted and produced stories. Address Allen Booth, P. O. Box 1623, Los Angeles, Cal.

This is Lumley

social lion, fond of cafes, cabarets and choristers. Always in trouble yet would have won a jewel but for a mishap to

"The Other Girl"

Page 139 is of Particular Interest

Price List of Music "WHAT HAPPENED to FATHER"

Suggested in the cue sheet for the current V-L-S-E release.

Melody of the Century	$0.60*	Just Win a Pretty Widow	$0.60
Here Comes Tootsi	.60	I'll Make You Like the Town	.60*
All Full of Ginger	.60*	The Ragtime Pipe of Pan	.80*
First Love	.60*	Love Thoughts	.60*
The Trombone Man	.60*	Here's To You, My Sparkling Wine	.60*
The Julian Waltz	.60*	Idol of Eyes	.60*
Airs from High Jinks	1.25	The Tune They Croon in the U. S. A.	.60*
In the War Against Men	.60*	I Could Go Home to a Girlie Like You	.60*
The Keystone Glide	.60*
Hezekiah	.60*

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% (and in many instances to a further special discount if numbers are ordered immediately) to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to the net amount. The quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

Numbers marked with an asterisk (*) 25 cents each if ordered before Jan. 15, 1916.

G. SCHIRMER (Inc.), 3 East 43rd Street, New York City

"A GOOD RESOLUTION —GET A "MINUSA"

WE WISH YOU A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS "NEW YEAR"

You can make MANY good resolutions for 1916, but the BEST resolution you can make is to get a REAL SCREEN—the MINUSA GOLD FIBRE SCREEN. "Built by Brains." No other resolution you can make will so benefit you FINANCIALLY and MENTALLY. Financially because it means crowded houses DAILY. Mentally because you will have no more complaints about CLOUDY pictures and you'll DISCOUNT all your bills.

A "MINUSA" screen shows an INCOMPARABLY Brilliant, Natural picture, and DOES NOT TIRE THE EYES.

The "MINUSA" will save FIFTY PERCENT of your light bill, which therefore makes it a GIFT from the Electric Light Company.

No doubt you have sworn a solemn oath to MAKE GOOD in 1916, but why worry when the means is so close at hand? Get a "MINUSA" and you'll be both HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS in 1916. It's a good resolution—make it TO-DAY!

Write or Wire for Samples and Prices.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA

MINUSA CINE PRODUCTS COMPANY,

SAINT LOUIS, BROADWAY AT CHESTNUT | CHICAGO, SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH, CALGARY, ALBERTA | NEW YORK, 19 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 122, 124.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Mina, Selig.

Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Dec. 17—Fate (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 28).
Dec. 20—The Failure (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 29).
Dec. 21—Packer Jim's Guardinaship (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—The Tides of Retribution (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—Heredity (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 30).
Dec. 29—The Woman of Mystery (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Lesser Evil (Drama—Biograph Reissue No. 31).
Jan. 4—The Avenging Shot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 5—The Skating Rink (Three parts—Comedy).
Jan. 10—In the Aisles of the Wild (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 32).
Jan. 12—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Drama).

EDISON.

Dec. 15—History of the Big Tree (Educational).
—The Black's Mysterious Box (Cartoon—Comedy).
—The Hicks in Nightmare Land (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 17—The Hand of the Law (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 18—Santa Claus Versus Cupid (Comedy-Drama).
Dec. 24—Blade o' Grass (Three parts—Drama).

ESSANAY.

Dec. 11—Blind Justice (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 14—Reckoning Day (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 15—The Fable of Sister Mae, Who Did As Well As Could Be Expected (Com.).
Dec. 16—Snakeville's Champion (Comedy).
Dec. 17—Broncho Billy's Marriage (Drama).
Dec. 18—A Christmas Revenge (Special—Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 21—The Danger of Being Lonesome (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 3 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 25—The Woman with a Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—Brought Home (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—The Fable of "The Heir and the Heiress" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Prisoner at the Bar (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Lesson (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—Mile a Minute Monty (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic Subject on the same reel.
Jan. 8—The House of Revelation (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—Angels Unawares (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Drama).

KALEM.

Dec. 15—To the Vile Dust (No. 4 of the "Stingaree" Series—Special—Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 17—The Secret Message (No. 8 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Dec. 18—The Wrong Train Order (Episode No. 58 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Dec. 21—The Bandits of Macaroni Mountains (Burlesque—Comedy).
Dec. 22—A Bushranger at Bay (No. 5 of the "Stingaree" Series (Special—two parts—Drama).
Dec. 24—The Oriental's Plot (No. 9 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
Dec. 25—A Boy at the Throttle (No. 59 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Dec. 28—The Caretaker's Dilemma (Burlesque—Comedy).
Dec. 29—The Taking of Stingaree (No. 6 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Spy's Ruse (No. 10 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 1—At the Risk of Her Life (No. 60 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 4—The Missing Mummy (Comedy).
Jan. 5—The Honor of the Road (No. 7 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—Crossed Clues (No. 11 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Jan. 8—When Seconds Count (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Jan. 11—Guardian Angels (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 12—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Tricksters (No. 12 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 15—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).

LUBIN.

Dec. 14—The Great Detective (Comedy).
Dec. 15—The Inner Chamber (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 16—A Thief in the Night (Special—Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 17—Sweeter than Revenge (Drama).
Dec. 18—An Unwilling Burglar (Comedy).
Dec. 22—Heartaches (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 22—Otto's Cabaret (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 23—Beyond All is Love (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 25—No Smoking (Comedy).
Dec. 29—Saved from the Harem (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 29—This Isn't the Life (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 30—The Convict King (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 1—A Ready Made Maid (Comedy).
Jan. 3—Sorrows of Happiness (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 3—His Lordship (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Vengeance of the Oppressed (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 8—Billie's Headache (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Unit Program).
Jan. 10—A Bath Tub Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 13—The Bond Within (Three parts—Dr.).

MINA.

Nov. 25—Florence Turner Impersonates Film Favorites (Comedy).
Dec. 2—The $50,000.00 Policy (Comedy).
Dec. 9—Forty-Five Minutes from Nowhere (Comedy).
—Why Hubby Grows Bald (Comedy).
Dec. 16—When the Show Hit Watertown (Comedy).
Dec. 23—The Little Puritan (Comedy).
Dec. 30—From Blackstone to Stone (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Caught With the Goods (Comedy).

SELIG.

Dec. 20—Hartney Merwin's Adventure (Com.).
Dec. 23—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 102, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 25—The Sacred Tiger of Agra (Jungle—Zoo Animal—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Making of Crooks (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 103, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 30—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 104, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 1—The Manicure Girl (No. 7 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center"—(Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Buried Treasure of Cobre (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 6—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 2, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 8—The Chronicles of Bloom Center (No. 8, "Spooks"—Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Devil-in-Chief (Drama).
Jan. 10—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 13—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 15—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "No Sir-ee Bob!" (Rural Com.).

VIM.

Dec. 17—Speed Kings (Comedy).
Dec. 24—Mixed and Fixed (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Ups and Downs (Comedy).
Jan. 7—This Way Out (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Chickens (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Dec. 24—Is Christmas a Bore? (Comedy—Dr.).
Dec. 25—The Thirteenth Girl (Broadway Star Feature — Special — Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—He Got Himself a Wife (Comedy).
Dec. 27—The Making Over of Geoffrey Mining (Four parts—Drama) (Unit Program).
Dec. 27—The Pest Vamooser (Comedy) (Unit Program).
Dec. 31—By Might of His "Right" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Wanderers (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Little Trespasser (Com.-Dr.).
Jan. 3—When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor (Comedy-Unit Program).
Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Four parts—Drama-Unit Program).
Jan. 7—His Wife Knew About It (Comedy).
Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Unit Program—Four parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Unit Program—Comedy).
Jan. 14—When Two Play a Game (Comedy).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 1—The Wanderers (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Three parts—Dr.).

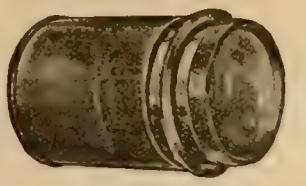
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 24—Everygirl (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Mysterious Bride (Three parts—Drama).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Dec. 27—The Making Over of Geoffrey Manning (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Pest Vamooser (Vitagraph—Com.).
Dec. 27—This Isn't the Life (Lubin—Comedy).
Dec. 29—Saved from the Harem (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Sorrows of Happiness (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Vitagraph—Comedy).

We offer a GREATER VARIETY of BETTER FILMS in THE REGULAR SERVICE than any other exchange. Our subjects consist of the one, two, three and four reel productions of the EDISON, ESSANAY, BIOGRAPH, KALEM, LUBIN, SELIG, VITAGRAPH, KLEINE and PATHE studios. Our charge is most reasonable. It will be to your advantage to investigate at once.
GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO., 126 West 46th St., New York



Gundlach Projection Lenses

Furnished as the regular equipment of the latest models of Power's, Simplex and Baird Machines and conceded to give the best results by thousands of theatre owners using these and other makes of machines. There must be a very potent reason why Gundlach Projection Lenses have replaced nearly all other lenses formerly in use and why they are given the preference by the United States War Department, The Lyman H. Howe Co., and the biggest theatre circuits in the country.

Try them and see for yourself how a picture looks made by Gundlach Projection Lenses.

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.

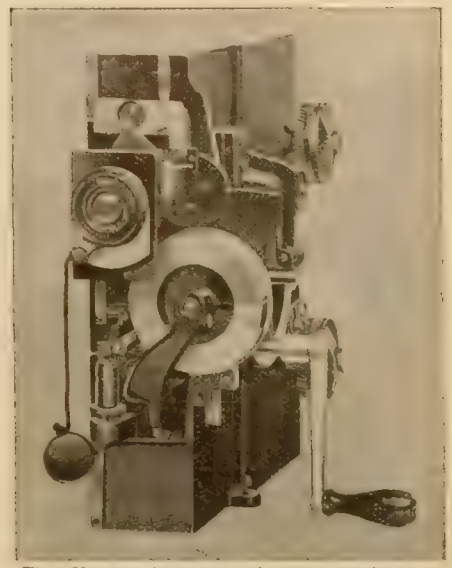
808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

The Universal Camera

For Motion Photography

The mechanism is as carefully and scientifically constructed as the movement of a standard watch.



The Universal assembled without the case. Front view showing the lens, flywheel, shutter and aperture adjustment, and the one-to-one crank shaft.

Demonstrational Catalogue on request

The Universal Camera Company

25 E. Washington St., Chicago, U. S. A.
1207 Times Bldg., New York
Represented by Atlas Educational Film Company
821 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

ELECTRA

PINK LABEL

CARBONS

are a guarantee of perfect projection

A Limited Stock of

⅝ x 12 Cored Double Pointed and ⅝ x 6 Cored Still on Hand

To be had of all first-class dealers

SOLE IMPORTER

HUGO REISINGER

11 Broadway New York

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

This is the Reporter with a nose for news, who scandalized a clergyman, shocked his congregation and nearly caused disaster for

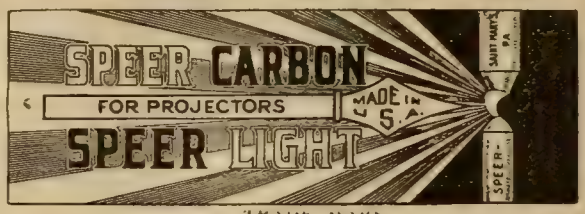
"The Other Girl"

SPEER CARBONS CAN BE HAD FROM YOUR DISTRIBUTOR!

NET CASH PRICES

½x12, cored, pointed both ends, $37.50 per M. (1,000 in a case)
9/16x12, cored, pointed both ends, $40.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅝x12, cored, pointed both ends, $50.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
¾x12, cored, pointed both ends, $70.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅞x12, cored, pointed one end, $115.00 per M. (500 in a case)
1x12, cored, pointed one end, $150.00 per M. (500 in a case)

We Fill Sample Orders for 100 Carbons at the Above Pro Rata Prices



TRADE MARK

SPEER CARBON CO., Dept. "W," SAINT MARYS, PA. Manufacturers

FOR SALE BY LEADING M. P. MACHINE DISTRIBUTORS—INCLUDING:

J. H. Hallberg 36 East 23rd Street, New York, N. Y.
E. E. FULTON CO., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
KLEINE OPTICAL CO., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

You Would Not Hesitate

If you could know exactly how much you could increase your BOX OFFICE RECEIPTS by installing a NEW UP TO THE MINUTE MACHINE to provide a "PAINTED ON THE WALL" class of pictures and especially if you knew about our EASY PAYMENT PLANS, by which you can make a new machine pay its own way.

We carry a big stock of POWER'S 6-A and 6-B, NEW 1916 MODEL MOTIOGRAPH AND SIMPLEX MACHINES and all supplies (except films and posters) for the Moving Picture Theatre.

We sell what the people want

Write us today for our catalog and proposition

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,

6th Floor Cambridge Bldg.,
N. W. Cor. 5th and Randolph, Chicago, Illinois.
Distributors of the Power's, Motiograph, Edison and Simplex Machines and Genuine Parts Laboratory Insurance!

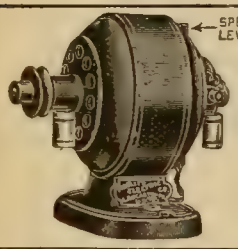
Why invest money in expensive chemicals and high salaried and competent men to mix your developing solutions, in order that your negatives will receive the proper chemical attention, but overlook the fact that a cheaply constructed and leaky tank will jeopardize your result? Interest yourself in this statement and send for Circular No. 8.

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11 John Street NEW YORK CITY



HERE IT IS

Motors for moving picture machines.

110-60 Alternating Current, $14.00
110 Volts Direct Current, 12.00

Furnished complete with speed lever giving a speed range of 50%.
Immediate delivery for cash with order.
These motors you can attach yourself.
We manufacture Motor-Generator Sets.

FIDELITY ELECTRIC CO.
LANCASTER, PA.

This is* ——————

What she is and what she does may never be known unless you see

"The Other Girl"

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

126 West 46th Street NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS
Send for Catalogue "W"
TYPHOONS COOL YOUR SHOW
Tel. 8134 Bryant.
TYPHOON FAN CO.
1544 Broadway, N.Y.C.

We are offering for the new year a novel feature—something different from anything ever shown. Read what the M. P. World says: "Entirely new and highly ingenious. Will undoubtedly prove to be a big drawing card wherever shown. It grips the interest from the onset."

MARVELOUS MACISTE.

IN 6 Parts — The Giant of Cabiria

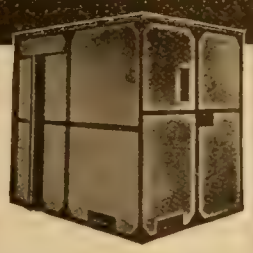
MACISTE CANNOT BE COMPARED WITH ANY OTHER FIGURE ON THE SCREEN TODAY BECAUSE THIS SUPERHUMAN IS NOT EQUALLED BY ANY LIVING ACTOR.

STATE RIGHTS APPLY

HANOVER FILM CO., Inc.

BROADWAY AT 47th STREET
Suite 904 Columbia Building
Bryant 9544
NEW YORK CITY

J-M Transite Asbestos Wood Booths



Absolutely fireproof. Prevent noise of machine from disturbing audience. Cannot become electrically charged or grounded.

J-M Booths conform to all the requirements of state and municipal regulations, insurance authorities and inspection departments wherever ordinances compel the use of a fire-proof booth.

Furnished in portable and permanent types. Write our nearest Branch for "J-M Theatre Necessities" Booklet.

H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.
New York and every large city

Projection Engineer

Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?

Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.

(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)
Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

A clear picture

is as essential as a good scenario. Because the basic product is right the clearest pictures are on Eastman Film. Identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

A Reel Bright Spot

Produced Only With

BIO RECOGNIZED BIO CARBONS BRAND STANDARD CARBONS

ORDER FROM YOUR DEALER OR EXCHANGE OR FROM

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK
MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St. — 165 Greenwich Street — SAN FRANCISCO 143 Second St.

FOR SALE

MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 22,000; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

1173 Film Exchanges	$4.00
149 Manufacturers and Studios	1.00
210 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers.	1.50

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago
Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

This is Catherine gay and free. Destined to social prominence, she was instead conquered by a man of the people in spite of

"The Other Girl"

FULLY SEVENTY PER CENT. OF ALL SCREENS in use to-day are MIRROROID being practically the unanimous choice of men best qualified to judge.

Mirroroid is the only metallized screen in the world made from drill canvas. The only screen that is made with a rough or matte surface. Naturally, the only screen that will give you clear and bright perspective, without haze, glare, eye-strain, or that fade-away effect so peculiar to other screens.

These broad statements have been universally proven, and at any and at all times we can prove it to you.

Why not send at once for our large free samples—12 x 18. Test any way you desire, with any screen on earth. Try and tear—this proves to you the cloth is not window shading. Crease, fold, in fact, abuse as much as you like—this proves Mirroroid will not crack or peel.

The reason we guarantee Mirroroid for five years is because we use the highest grade of materials. Get out of the rut. Begin a prosperous New Year. Mirroroid is built on honor and built to stay. Built in the largest screen factory in the world. To insure against imitations, let us refer you to our nearest agency.

Mirroroid—The Screen with the Black Back—is made in three tints—Silver White, Pale Golden and Silver Flesh. Sold the world over at 36 1-9 cents a square foot.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., NEWBURGH, N. Y.

Every Day You Are Without a Mirroroid Screen Means a Loss of Earnings to You

DUTCH EAST INDIES

Netherlands

DE KINEMATOGRAAF

Leading Organ of the Cinematograph Trade. With Correspondents all over the World.

AMSTERDAM	HOLLAND
Annual Subscription	fl. Dutch 7.50
Sample Copies	fl. Dutch 0.20
Advertisements, each line	fl. Dutch 0.20

Belgium

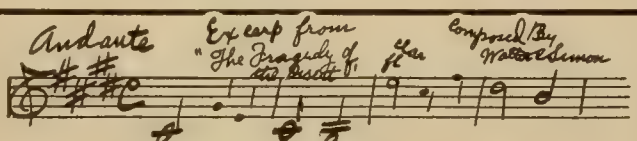
DUTCH WEST INDIES

THE BIOSCOPE

IS THE ENGLISH TRADE JOURNAL OF THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY

Annual Subscription (post free) 14s. (Dollars, 3.50)

85 SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, LONDON, W.



MUSICIANS ATTENTION

A large size of music in this issue

SENT POSTPAID on receipt of 5 CENTS

WALTER C. SIMON 50 W. 110th St., New York City

This is Muldoon

"Billy" for short, a great national figure but belongs in the plot for he squared the police for

"The Other Girl"

GOLD KING SCREEN

"Perfection in Projection"

Gold King Screens

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL

GOLD KING SCREEN CO., Altus, Okla.

1916

Motion picture theaters should begin the year right by using the

Wotton Rexolux

to convert alternating current into direct.

This will enable them to show their pictures in the clearest and brightest light and in the most economical manner.

For further information, address,

Electric Products Company

CLEVELAND, OHIO

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N. Y.

OPPORTUNITY

knocks but once at your door. Seize this chance. For sale 3,000 reels of film in good condition with plenty of paper. We have 2 and 3 copies of all Kriterion releases including a raft of paper. Also 3-4-5-6 reel features.

We contract to make motion pictures for all occasions. Camera parts and motion picture machines carried in stock. If it is anything in the motion picture line consult us.

Phone 6450 Bryant 20th CENTURY FILM COMPANY 220 W. 42nd St., N. Y. C.

A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

Resolve to give your patrons perfect projection so that they may form the habit of coming again and again, and more—that they may recommend your theatre to their friends and acquaintances.

Resolve, too, to save on repair bills, to make it easy for your operator to devote more time to presenting the picture on the screen and less to the projector.

Resolve to get an American Standard Motion Picture Machine—the MASTER MODEL—and please your patrons, your operator and yourself.

Start the New Year right by sending for our new descriptive circular.

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY

One Hundred Ten and Twelve West Fortieth Street, New York

Furnished for Single or Double Arc. Single, two or three phase circuit, 110, 220, 440 Volts, A. C. to Controlled D. C.; D. C. to Controlled D. C.

TransVerteR

TRADE MARK

is a complete—upright electrical unit, that furnishes the best possible direct current light for motion picture projection and may be installed and operated in any projection booth.

Better pictures, bigger profit and perfect automatic arc regulation.

Send for booklet, "The Perfect Arc"

The Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co.
Department W, Cleveland, O., U. S. A.

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland.

The Quality Carbons of the World.

Reflex D. C. Carbons have a Specially Constructed Negative with Copper Coated Core.

The letter below comes from an operator in the Middle West:

"I received the carbons, and after giving them a good tryout, find them the best I ever used. They burn long, with no flame, and give a nice snow white light."

You, Mr. Manager, and you, Mr. Operator, we know you want the best carbon on the market. You cannot get that "snow white light" unless you use Reflex. Send in your order now.

⅜ x 12 plain cored	$10.00 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 12 plain cored	7.50 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 6 copper coated cored	3.75 per 100 carbons
½ x 6 copper coated cored	2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with Reflex Carbons send cash with your order, or instruct us to ship C. O. D., and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Watch our weekly advertisements and benefit by the experience of others.

JONES & CAMMACK

SOLE IMPORTERS

Bridge and Whitehall Sts., New York City

Ornamental Theatres

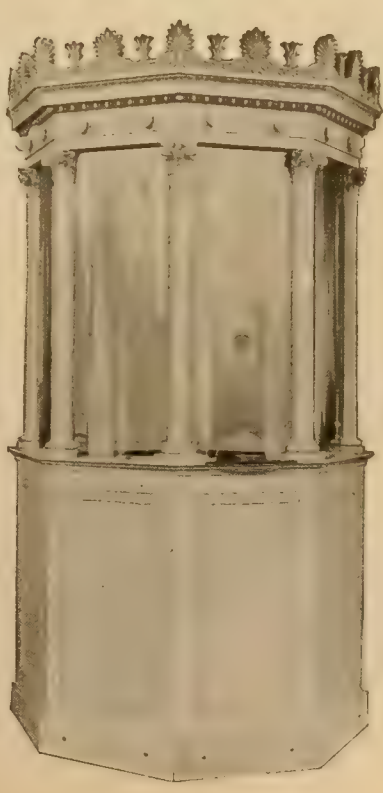
PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

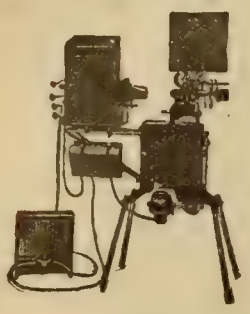
Theatres Designed Everywhere

Send for our 1916 catalog. It contains forty beautiful full-page illustrations—some in colors—of theatres we have designed and decorated. It shows several styles of ticket booths, lighting fixtures and ornaments; it will give you many valuable ideas for decorating your new theatre or improving the looks of your present one.

Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.



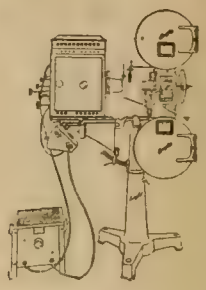


MOVING PICTURE MACHINES AND SUPPLIES

ABSOLUTELY EVERYTHING FOR THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE

WRITE FOR CATALOG

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.
608 OLIVE ST., ST. LOUIS, MO.



EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS
Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG
Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

This is the Minister who believes in smiles as a cure for trouble. He fell in love and married

"The Other Girl"

No More Wasted Elbow Grease !
Don't Polish Brass Poster Frames or Rails

Just brush on a coat of

Newman's Transparent Lacquer

same as used on brass beds; keeps a brilliant, lasting luster on metal, and prevents tarnishing. In a year or so, if lacquer begins to show wear, wash it off with wood alcohol and apply another coat of lacquer. The money you save on polish in a year pays for the lacquer many times over. You will always have bright, neat, attractive poster frames, which alone is worth fifty times the small cost of NEWMAN'S LACQUER. Now used by a great many theatres throughout the country.

A pint will cover ten one-sheet frames. Order today.

½ pint, with brush .....$1.50 | 1 quart, with brush $4.50
1 pint, with brush ..... 2.50 | 1 sample bottle 1.00

Newman Lacquer Company
3317 HACKBERRY STREET CINCINNATI, OHIO

Please Read Page No. 139

MR. EXHIBITOR

do you know for $39.00 you can equip your No. 6A machine with 110 V. Motor and motor drive, speed controller switch, etc., and $4.00 more for a 220 V.? This is quite a difference from the price you are asked to give up for a similar equipment. Start the New Year right. Save money and get your money's worth from us. There is a new Motion Picture Machine coming to life and it's going to be a knock-out at a reasonable price.

ASK US FOR INFORMATION

THE STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE KINOGRAPH M. P. CAMERA

200 FEET CAPACITY — WITHOUT LENS $52.50
SINGLE UNIT MECHANISM — WITH TESSAR F3.5 LENS $80.50

A professional camera using standard size film. With the Kinograph the exhibitor can film his own local events. Write for descriptive literature.

INTERNATIONAL PHOTO SALES CORPORATION
11 EAST 40th STREET NEW YORK

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON — HIGH Quality — LOW Price

Opera Chairs immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

THE PEABODY SCHOOL FURNITURE CO.
North Manchester, Ind.

Opera Chairs
Folding Chairs
Complete Line
Prompt Shipments
Write for Catalogue
With Direct Factory Prices

Are You Tired

of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection

contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3

Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have

50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK

in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and

IMMEDIATE SERVICE

Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered; kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY
General Offices: 1010 Lytton Bldg., Chicago
Sales offices in all principal cities.

OPERA CHAIRS

1000 Styles
For every purpose
Established 1865
Write for Cat. No. 31

Branches in leading cities
1472 Broadway, New York
728 Mission St., San Francisco
512½ First Ave. So., Seattle
Broadway & Yamhill St., Portland

THE A. H. ANDREWS CO., 115-117 SO. WABASH AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

Anti-Censorship Slides

Four Slides..... 50c.
Six Slides..... 75c.
Twelve Slides All Different $1.50

Address
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City

Moving Picture Exhibitors and Theatre Managers. The fight against Legalized Censorship of Moving Pictures is your fight. Show these slides on your screen for the next few months and help create a strong public sentiment against this unnecessary and un-American form of legislation. See page 1743 of our issue of March 20th for text matter. All slides neatly colored, carefully packed and postage paid.

"Keeping Everlastingly at It Brings Success"

Send your slide orders and remittances at once to

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y.

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Telephone 6881 Audubon
416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....
Cut out and mail today. Theatre.....

"A Reel Newspaper"

"J-U-S-T A M-O-M-E-N-T P-L-E-A-S-E!!"

The first number of the SELIG-TRIBUNE will be released through General Film Service on Monday, January 3.

The Selig Polyscope Company and The Chicago Tribune are cooperating to release a News Film carrying the Pepper, the Punch and the Power.

Such notable Correspondents and News Photographers as John T. McCutcheon, Cartoonist and Writer; Edwin F. Weigle, James O'Donnell Bennett, and Mark Watson, who have earned their spurs in the forefront of battle and elsewhere, will gather the strange and startling.

Alert cameramen in every nook and cranny of the wide, wide world are working overtime under the direct supervision of "Jack" Wheeler the SELIG-TRIBUNE Editor-in-chief who is intimately acquainted with all public men.

S-a-y F-e-l-l-o-w-s! Give your theatre patrons a reel Newspaper Presenting real news pictures red-hot off the griddle. Your patrons are going to demand THE SELIG-TRIBUNE for it will cover the news pictorial field like the morning dew!

The Selig Tribune

"The World's Greatest News Film"

SHOWS THE NEWS AND DOES IT FIRST!

"NO GREATER LOVE"
A SELIG Red Seal Play
In Five Heart-Stirring
Episodes Introducing
Miss Regina Badet, the Bernhardt of Motion Pictures, in the Role of "Sadunah, The Dancer."
A Story of A Mother's Love and Sacrifice
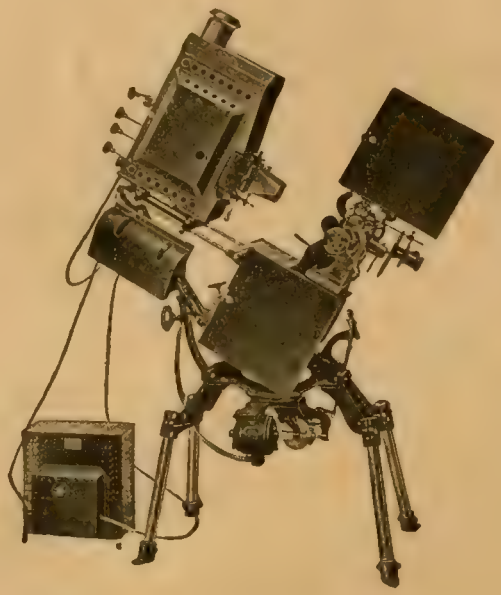
Released Through
V·L·S·E

N.P.Co.



INTEREST

in the new Power's Cameragraph No. 6B motion picture projection machine has been so great that it has become the recognized standard by which to gauge all projection of motion pictures.

If you have not already inspected this machine, you should take the first opportunity to see it and arrange for a demonstration with any of the following distributors selling our product.

A & B Moving Picture Supply Company, Raleigh, N. C.
American Slide Company, Columbus, Ohio.
Calebuff Supply Company, Philadelphia, Pa.
Consolidated Film and Supply Company, Atlanta, Dallas, El Paso, Jacksonville, New Orleans, Memphis, San Antonio.
Feature Flim and Calcium Light Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.
E. E. Fulton Company, Chicago, Ill.
J. H. Hallberg, New York City.
Kansas City Machine and Supply Company, Kansas City, Mo.
Kleine Optical Company, Chicago, Ill.
H. J. Mandelbaum, Cleveland, Ohio.
G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.
North Western Motion Picture Equipment Company, Minneapolis, Minn.
Pacific Amusement Supply Company, Los Angeles, Cal.
Picture Theatre Equipment Company, New York City, Buffalo, N. Y.
Southern Film Service, Houston, Texas.
L. M. Swaab, Philadelphia, Pa.
Swanson & Nolan Supply Company, Denver, Colorado.
R. D. Thrash Film Company, Dallas, Texas.
Universal Film and Supply Company, Charlotte, N. C.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 27, No. 2 January 8, 1916 Price 10 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Getting In Wrong" (Beauty).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MUTUAL PROGRAM

EDWIN THANHOUSER PRESENTS

GLADYS HULETTE

IN

A 3-ACT DRAMA

"IN THE NAME OF THE LAW"

A STUDY IN VIRILE TYPES! SENSATIONAL, DASHING ACTION! A SURPRISING TALE OF THE STRANGE DEEP BACK-WOODS WITH ITS STRANGER MEN AND THEIR DEEDS.

RELEASED TUESDAY JAN. 11TH

STAGED BY EUGENE NOWLAND FROM THE STORY BY CLINTON H. STAGG

FALSTAFF COMEDIES

PULLMAN FILMS

BELINDA'S BRIDAL BREAKFAST — Released Mon., Jan. 10

WITH BARBARA GILROY

REFORMING RUBBERING ROSIE — Released Thur., Jan. 13

A NEAT, SURE-FIRE FUN-FILM

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

MUTUAL FILM CORP. SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR THE UNITED STATES, MEXICO AND CANADA

"CAPTAIN JINKS OF THE HORSE MARINES" IN 5 ACTS

ANN MURDOCK AND RICHARD C. TRAVERS

are presented in Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy, which made such a wonderful stage success. The photoplay is filled with genuine, sparkling humor and comic situations. Arranged and directed by Fred E. Wright.

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

"The Misleading Lady"

Presenting

HENRY B. WALTHALL and EDNA MAYO

in Five Acts

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon from the great stage success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey. Directed by A. Berthelet.

HENRY B. WALTHALL

EDNA MAYO

"The Raven"
"Graustark"
"The Man Trail"
"A Bunch Of Keys"
"The Alster Case"
"The White Sister"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Slim Princess"
"A Daughter Of The City"
"The Blindness Of Virtue"
"In The Palace Of The King"

Book Essanay's Great Multiple Reel Features

TRADEMARK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

LOOK AT THEM
AND YOU'LL BOOK THEM

Ask the Exhibitor who uses Essanay and he will tell you that you can book its photoplays without looking at them.

But Essanay wants you to look at them. Essanay wants you to see their distinctive quality, their individual charm, their fascinating and logical plots, the artistic settings and realistic action.

Essanay believes in its pictures; it is proud of its productions; therefore it wants you to see them and judge for yourself.

★★★★★★

Don't Fail to Book the Latest

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN

"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

2 Acts—to be released soon

WATCH FOR

G. M. ANDERSON'S

Latest Drama

"Her Lesson"

In 2 Acts—Released Jan. 4

★★★★★★

"PIECES OF THE GAME"

3 Act Drama—Jan. 15

Presenting

Bryant Washburn

and

Nell Craig

"ANGELS UNAWARE"

2 Act Drama—Jan. 11

Presenting Ruth Stonehouse and Edmund F. Cobb

"THE FABLE OF THE TWO PHILANTHROPIC SONS"

By George Ade

Comedy—Jan. 12

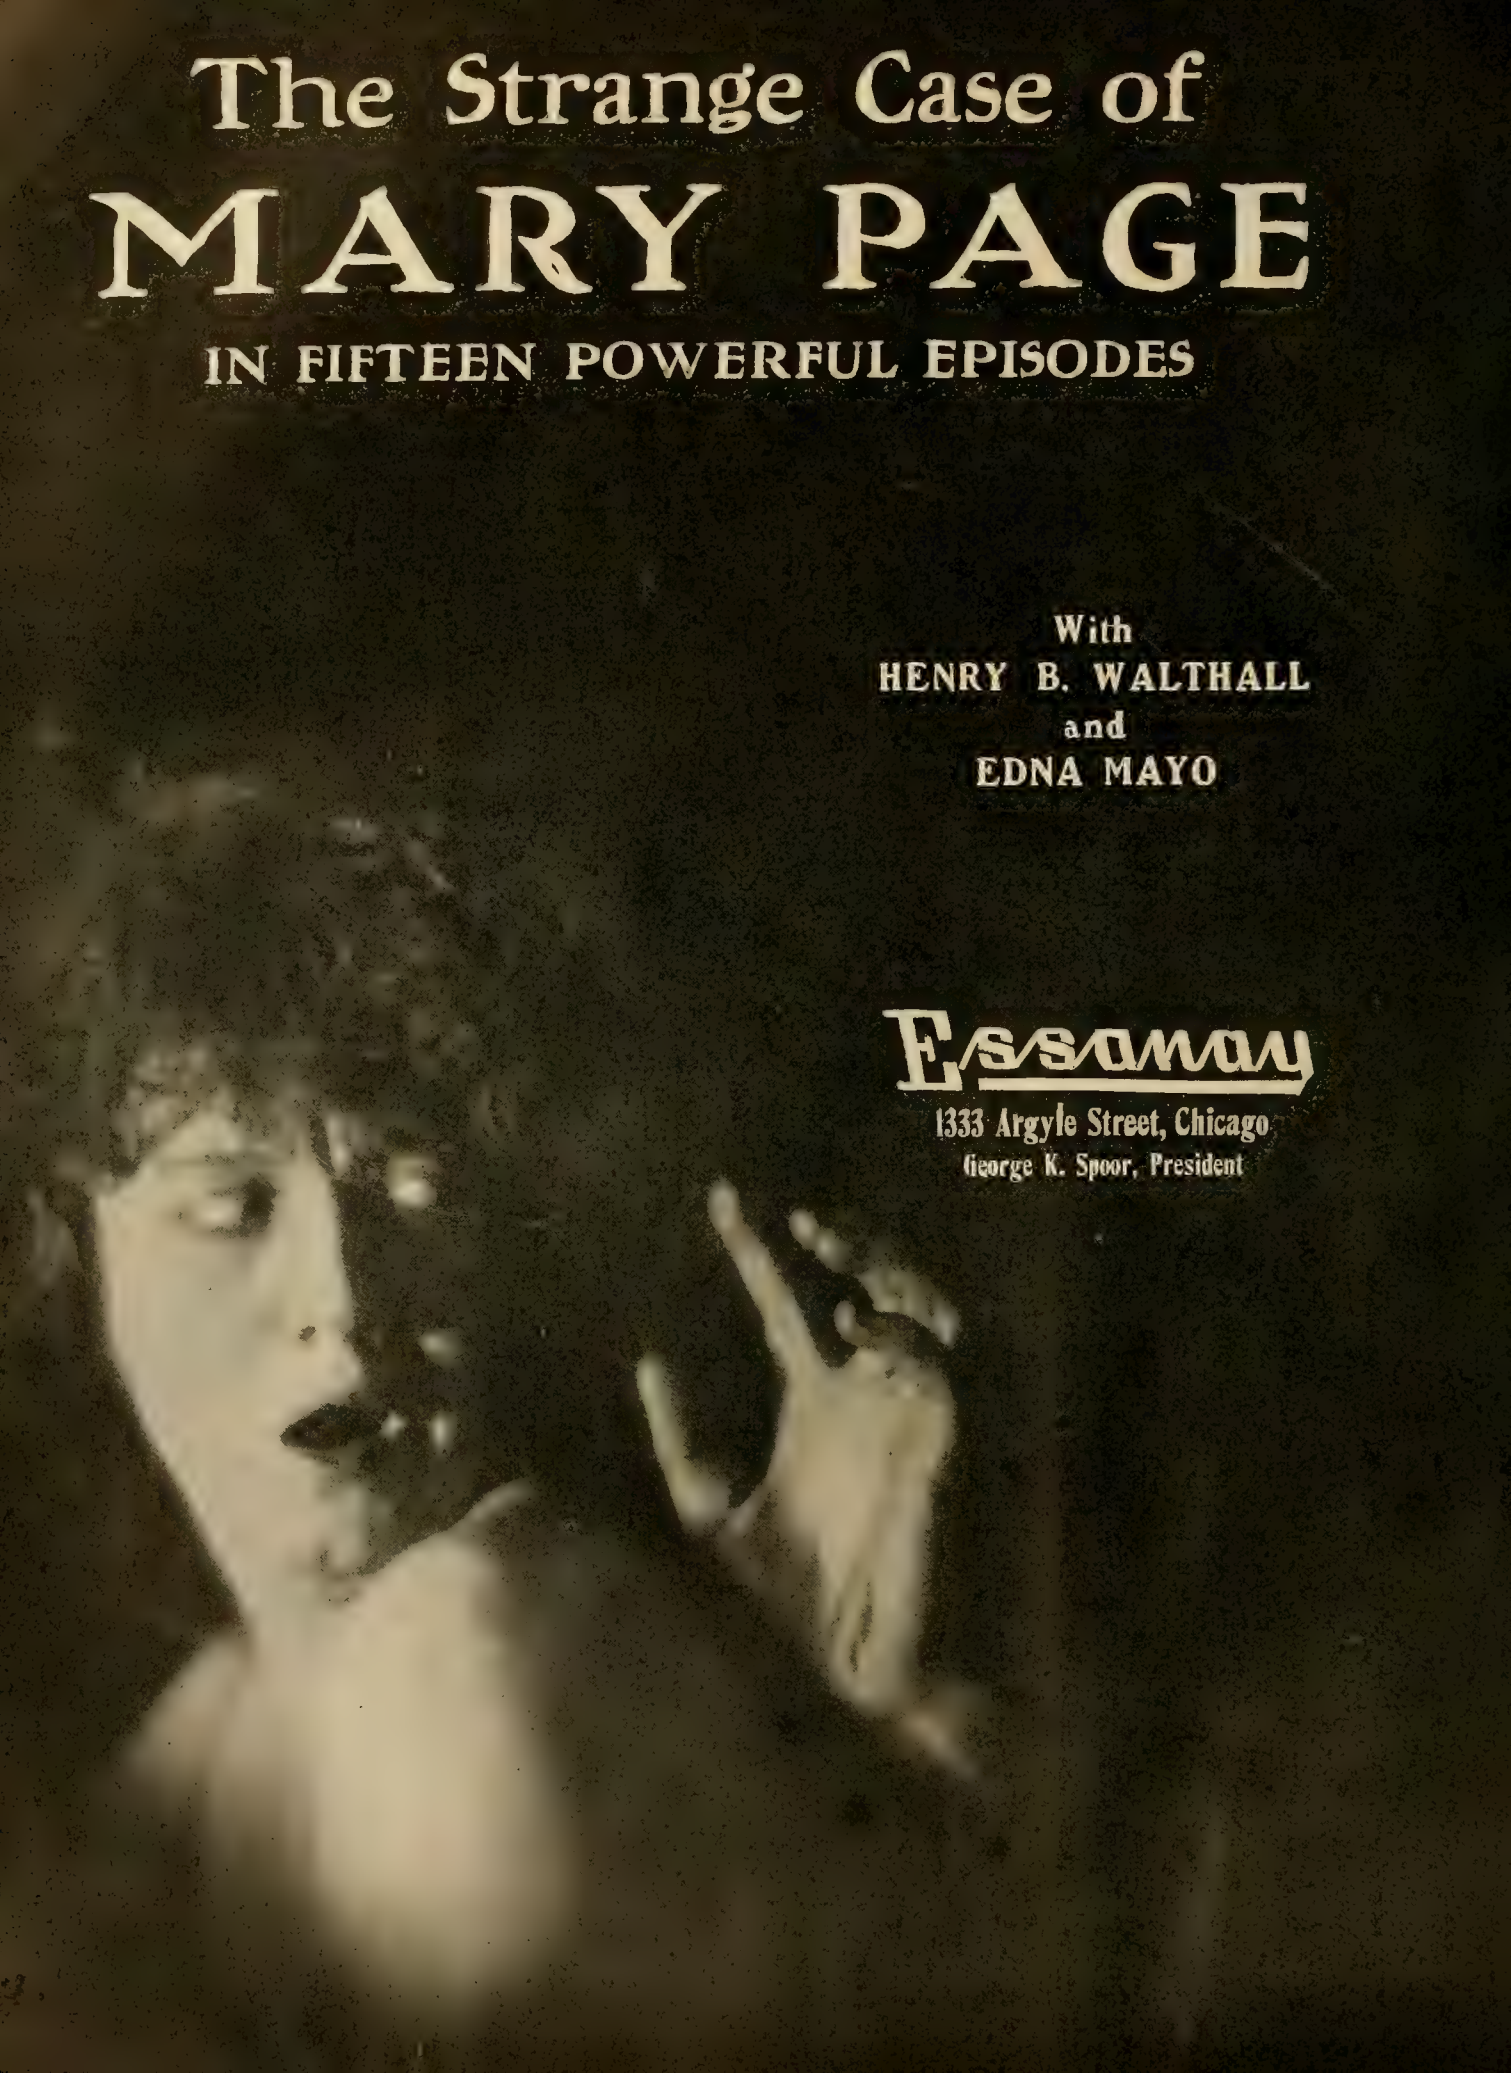
ESSANAY

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

George K. Spoor, President

The Strange Case of
MARY PAGE
IN FIFTEEN POWERFUL EPISODES

With
HENRY B. WALTHALL
and
EDNA MAYO



Essanay
1333 Argyle Street, Chicago
George K. Spoor, President

Paramount-Bray Cartoons

furnish that bit of variety necessary to a successful program.

"COLONEL HEEZA LIAR'S WATERLOO"
Released January 6th, 1916.

Listen to the murmur of mirth that ripples through your audience when a BRAY CARTOON is announced.

Nothing ever shown on the screen has produced so much real amusement to audiences as the BRAY CARTOONS. They are known and loved by men, women and children. Just say BRAY, that tells the story.

With each of these cartoons, there will be a short DITMARS Film, showing some of the animals of the famous New York Bronx Zoo.

January releases are:

Jan. 6 COLONEL HEEZA LIAR'S WATERLOO—Cartoon, Comedy by J. R. Bray
Jan. 13 HADDEM BAAD'S ELOPEMENT—Cartoon, Comedy by L. M. Glackens
Jan. 20 INBAD THE SAILOR—A Silhouette Fantasie, by C. Allan Gilbert
Jan. 27 THE POLICE DOG—on the Wire—A Cartoon, by C. T. Anderson

Write our nearest Paramount Exchange today about bookings

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

Exhibitors!

Do you know that PARAMOUNT gives you the privilege of the only real system of consistently improving your performance that has yet been devised? A system, mind you, carefully worked out in every detail.

The PARAMOUNT exhibitor already has the best pictures yet produced in the history of motion pictures---PARAMOUNT PICTURES are excelled by none.

But the PARAMOUNT exhibitor himself, by his own voice, determines what class and kind of pictures shall or shall not be released on PARAMOUNT Program.

Do you know that he even decides what producers shall make pictures for his theatre, what stars shall play in them, and what the character of the subjects shall be?

Statistics compiled from reports sent us by the exhibitor tell us unfailingly what he wants---in subject, style and star---then PARAMOUNT and producers cooperate to supply just the pictures he wants for his theatre.

This is the most efficient kind of team work between exhibitor and producer and is bound to keep on producing good results.

Write our nearest exchange to tell you more about this PARAMOUNT Quality Service.

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pict
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH
NEW YORK.

Big Things In America

To Be First In

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travelpictures

Burton Holmes is the most famous traveler and lecturer in the world.

He was the first man to visit foreign climes with the motion picture camera.

With his associates he has traveled more than 2,500,000 miles.

For eight weeks in November and December Burton Holmes attracted capacity audiences at two dollar prices, in the following theatres:

Orchestra Hall	Seating 2580	Chicago
Odeon Theatre	Seating 1890	St. Louis
Carnegie Hall	Seating 1968	Pittsburgh
Academy of Music	Seating 2662	Philadelphia
Albaugh's Lyceum	Seating 1338	Baltimore
Candler Theatre	Seating 1056	New York
New National Theatre	Seating 2000	Washington
Pabst Theatre	Seating 1752	Milwaukee
In January and February he appears at
Carnegie Hall	Seating 2662	New York
Symphony Hall	Seating 2569	Boston
Academy of Music	Seating 2350	Brooklyn

These travels in film are now to be released exclusively through PARAMOUNT Exchanges. Burton Holmes himself will personally direct the preparation of these releases.

Nothing comparable ever before offered the motion picture public.

Exhibitors may now present to their patrons these elaborate travels which heretofore have not been available to them because of the great demand upon Mr. Holmes' time. Even the smallest town may have the PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVELPICTURES.

This series will appeal especially to teachers and educators, parents and pupils, while everyone will wish to take these travels on the screen.

First release:

Feb. 7 "The Cliffdwellers of America"
" 14 "The Grand Canyon"
" 21 "A Day with a West Point Cadet"
" 28 "Our Middies at Annapolis"

You should have these pictures. Write our nearest exchange.

ures Corporation
AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
CITY, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT

DANIEL FROHMAN
Presents
The irresistible

MARGUERITE CLARK

In an exquisite picturization of the celebrated romantic comedy,

"MICE and MEN"

By Madeleine Lucette Ryley.

In Five Parts. Released Jan. 10th.

Produced by the

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director
EDWIN · S · PORTER. Treasurer and General Manager

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PROGRAM

As Peggy in the tender, romantic play, "Mice and Men," Marguerite Clark succeeds in creating a characterization of rare fascination and appeal

WHIMSICAL PEGGY

THE PROFESSOR FALLS IN LOVE WITH HIS WARD

"LAND'S SAKE, CHILE, YOU IS A SIGHT!"

THE PROFESSOR REALIZES HE HAS A RIVAL IN HIS NEPHEW.

FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
507 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Canadian Distributors—
Famous Players
Film Service, Ltd., Calgary—
Montreal—Toronto

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Jesse L. Lasky
presents
America's Leading Artiste,
GERALDINE FARRAR
(by arrangement with Morris Gest)
in
"TEMPTATION."
by Hector Turnbull
Produced by Cecil B. DeMille.

"Miss Farrar's sensational 'Carmen' surpassed by 'Temptation'."

Released through PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION
DECEMBER 30th
Canadian Distributors,
Famous Players Film Service, (ltd)
Toronto, Montreal, Calgary.

JESSE L. LASKY
120 West 41st Street,
Jesse L. Lasky President Samuel Goldfish

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Concerning Geraldine Farrar and Lasky Productions

The attendance at a motion picture theatre of the leading and most respected men and women of the community raises the standing of the house in the estimation of all its patrons.

The exhibition of a Lasky production, in which an artist so noted and superbly human as Geraldine Farrar appears, lifts the whole institution of the motion picture to a higher standard of excellence as the nation's chief amusement.

Wherever a Lasky production in which Geraldine Farrar appears as the star—"Carmen" was the first, "Temptation" is the second and "Maria Rosa" is still to come—is shown, you will find the regular patronage increased by hundreds of new faces of men and women eager to see this marvelous woman whose name is a household word on two continents.

They will be delighted—and, the next time a Lasky production is announced, they will come again.

The public knows!

Lasky Productions on the Paramount Program

LASKY

FEATURE PLAY Co Inc.

New York City

Treasurer Cecil B. DeMille Director General

GREAT SCREEN ATTRACTION

Great because it continues to please the public—people go to see it, enthuse over it, tell their friends, go a second time, and then wait for a return booking of it in their town.

Exhibitors have found this famous production one of their best box office attractions.

What is it?

GEORGE BEBAN

in

"An Alien"

Produced by THOS. H. INCE

It played a long run at the Astor Theatre in New York in the early spring, and has been playing to big houses throughout the United States ever since.

A Philadelphia patron wrote us:

> "Just a line to inform you what the writer, as well as a number of his friends, thinks of the production 'An Alien.'
>
> "You have produced some fine films, but this is in a class by itself. Mr. George Beban has put something on the screen that heretofore I have never seen. The way he gripped the audience here in Philadelphia was wonderful. His performance was the only photoplay production that I've heard opinions expressed as being really equal to the spoken drama. More productions of this calibre would be welcomed."

Secure bookings from your nearest Paramount Exchange. Write today.

SELECT FILM BOOKING AGENCY, Inc.

485 Fifth Avenue New York

THE ANIMAL MAN WHO HATED ISSUE

RACE SUICIDE

SIX PARTS
THE SOCIAL PROBLEM OF THE UNIVERSE

WITH

ORMI·HAWLEY
EARL·METCALFE
OCTAVIA·HANDWORTH
KEMPTON·GREENE
AND STUPENDOUS CAST

WITH LOVE FOR ALL AND FEAR OF NAUGHT

THE THOUGHT OF CONSEQUENCE

MID DEBAUCH AND ORGY, MOTHERHOOD IS FORGOTTEN

NO CHILDREN CAN EVER GRACE YOUR HOME

·SOLD ON STATE RIGHTS BASIS·

JOS. W. FARNHAM
220 WEST 42ND ST. ROOM 607 NEW YORK

Triangle Plays Pull Record Crowds

The Holiday Slump loses its terror for the man who has the kind of goods the public wants. People buy the best values.

Actual proof of the success of TRIANGLE PLAYS has been given during the past week. Following is a telegram which was sent on Christmas Day to our District Superintendent in Philadelphia by Mr. E. H. Hulsey, of Texas, one of the most prominent theatre owners of the South, who operates the Old Mill Theatre in Dallas, and many others.

Dallas, Texas, December 25th.

Mr. Arthur Lucas,
TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION,
Philadelphia, Pa.

"Submarine Pirate" broke our house record today. Did nearly a hundred dollars more than * * *. House seats fifteen hundred. From three o'clock this afternoon to nine to-night we were never able to get all people in with show lasting only one hour and a quarter.

E. H. HULSEY.

"Nothing succeeds like success" is an old saying that applies to the moving picture business as well as any other. The more successful the concern, the more rapidly and easily are orders received. The stream of TRIANGLE contracts persists, the dollars continue to flow into the box office of TRIANGLE Theatres.

ARE YOU GETTING YOUR SHARE OF THE PROFITS?

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

Triangle Releases for Week of January 9th

"Let Katy Do It," the first TRIANGLE PLAY in which the favorite Jane Grey appears, is filled to the brim with that sort of heart interest that will bring men and women back to see it the second time. There is a strong human note in it that brings the patron to the Box Office Window. Sensational in its tense moments, sympathetic in its emotional scenes, "Let Katy do It" has not a torpid moment anywhere. New York critics applauded every foot of it.

In "The Corner," the vital drama of industrial conditions in which Willard Mack appears, the main theme is the savage conflict that grows out of a high living cost forced upon the workers of a community by the rapacity of a capitalist played by George Fawcett. This is a big strong vital drama with a punch in every scene. You can get every class of theatre patron interested in it, and keep them interested which is a more difficult problem.

As for the Keystones, there is nothing more to be said save that when you have run the first show you'll find the second one crowded. Keystone has never touched anything better than "The Great Pearl Tangle" with Sam Bernard, and when it comes to "Fatty and Mabel Adrift" the big top note of successful comedy has been reached. Both are lobby crushers.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST NEW YORK

Startling scenes filling Page No. 716 of Leslie's Weekly, December 30th, are enlargements from DONALD C. THOMPSON'S French Battle Film

They're In the Film!

"SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

Thompson's Home Folks got an advance showing of the five-reel Pictures and all last week packed the largest theatre in town to see them. Here's what they thought expressed by the newspaper owned by

ARTHUR CAPPER, GOVERNOR OF KANSAS

To movie fans who are inclined to sidestep all motion pictures that are of news or historical nature, the Thompson pictures not only held their interest because they depicted the greatest tragedy the world has known, but because of the mechanical element, which showed that the pictures had been made by an expert. The depth and clearness of the pictures were remarkable.—The Topeka Daily Capital, Tuesday, December 28th, 1915.

For Open Territory Get in Touch Quickly with

Arthur S. Kane

901 Candler Building
220 West 42d Street

NEW YORK CITY

BLUE BIRD PHOTO PLAYS

The world's finest screen productions

BLUE BIRD PHOTO PLAYS

BLUE BIRD PHOTO PLAYS

Announces its first production

Mme. Rejane presents
Sarah Bernhardt

In the great French
D R A M A

"Jeanne Doré"

From the pen of Tristan Bernard

Being the drama in which the world's great tragedienne made her last appearance

BLUE BIRD
PHOTO PLAYS

BLUE BIRD PHOTO PLAYS

Helen Ware

"Sealed Valley"

"Undine"

The Devil

Rupert of Hentzau

BLUE BIRD

BLUE BIRD PHOTO PLAYS

Already announced the SUPREME

artistic

ACCOMPLISHMENT

of the Silent Art

Booking reservations are being considered

at all the foremost theatres throughout

America

Write EXECUTIVE OFFICES

1600 Broadway

NEW YORK

BLUE BIRD

NOTICE!

(Special Announcement by Carl Laemmle, President Universal Film Mfg. Co.)

We have changed the brand name of Universal Broadway Features to "RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS."

The change takes effect with the release entitled "The Path of Happiness," in which Miss Violet Mersereau is starred.

In doing this we change nothing but the name. The pictures will be every bit as good as the high standard already established by our Broadway Universal Features; and even better if we can make them so.

The change is made solely to avoid confusion.

Exhibitors have complained that their patrons were constantly confusing our Broadway Universal Features with the one, two and three reel pictures of our regular program and that as a result they lost much of the benefit that they would otherwise derive from the use of our five reel productions. The fact that Broadway Universal Features were a part of the regular program only added to the confusion.

In addition to this, other companies have been using the word Broadway so indiscriminately that it lost its significance and distinctiveness. Originally, the word Broadway was used to indicate that the picture contained a Broadway star or that it was a dramatization of a Broadway play; but so many pictures have been called "Broadway" attractions even when they had no right or title to the name, that the Universal decided to drop the meaningless word entirely.

To give the Universal Features a name that would make it easy for everyone to understand that they are in a class by themselves we hit upon the name "RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS."

It is a name that anyone can pronounce; one that everyone can remember; and one that lends itself to all sorts of advertising ideas.

Therefore, to repeat for the sake of emphasis, the big once-a-week feature on the regular Universal program will be a "RED FEATHER." And you may have it at a reasonable advance over the regular program service price just as you have had the Broadway Universal Features.

When you see the pictures soon to be released under this new name, you will realize why we are so sure of establishing the standing of "RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS" in a shorter time than it ever took to establish any brand of pictures on the market.

"RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS" will be made by the Universal's wonderful staff of directors, using the tremendous list of real stars employed by the Universal as well as stage stars and stage plays and well known books.

Get these facts fixed in your own mind and then let your patrons know about "RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS."

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS

PRESENT "The Path of

A romantic drama of unusual

Featuring—

Violet Mersereau

with Harry Benham

An idyllic play that will fascinate every lover of the romantic drama. Sweet and dainty Violet, as a child of nature, dances through the play with an irresistible charm. She appears in one exquisite scene sporting in a mountain stream like Diana at the bath. How she leads her lover along the path of happiness makes a story beautiful and true, strong in unique situations, and wholly satisfying.

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS

Happiness" charm au

This strong feature will pay any Exhibitor a generous profit. Write or wire your nearest Universal Exchange for release date and booking.

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS

EXTRA

Universal Animated Weekly Scores A TREMENDOUS SCOOP

Biggest Men of the entire world contribute their expressions to the Universal Animated Weekly—for

"THE SPIRIT OF 1916"

AGAIN—as is only natural—the enterprising staff of the great UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY puts over another colossal smash all for the profit of Universal Exhibitors. . . . It's an achievement never before recorded in moving pictures. . . . It's an accomplishment that stands absolutely unique and alone in the annals of News Weeklies . . . On Tuesday, January 4th, 1916, the UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY will release a SPECIAL. This special consists of 500 feet of film on which will appear the expressions of the most prominent men in all walks of life, to the people of the United States for the coming year.

To give you a faint idea of the class of men whose expressions will be seen in the 500-foot SPECIAL, just note the following: Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador; Charles S. Whitman, Governor of New York; Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador; Wm. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury; Wm. C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce; Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior; A. S. Burleson, Postmaster-General; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York; Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy; Oscar S. Straus, Chairman New York City Public Service Commission; Lindley Garrison, Secretary of War; Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives; W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor; Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York, and Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States.

Imagine what it will mean to be able to announce that in your House will be projected upon the screen the messages indicating "The Spirit of 1916" from the biggest and most prominent men in the world, together with the pictures of all these prominent men.

It's the first time in the history of moving pictures that such a thing has ever been accomplished, and it remained as usual for the UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY to put it over, proving once more that "When it is something worth while" you'll always find it first in the U. A. Weekly.

Wire your nearest Universal Exchange for booking. You can't act too quick; you have not one second's time to lose. ACT now—within the hour. Get this masterpiece scoop for your House. Get busy—get busy—get busy—NOW!

GET BUSY--BOOK IT NOW

Universal Animated Weekly

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Back Again

Who's Back?

Florence Lawrence's BACK

Universal Film Manufacturing Co.

Carl Laemmle, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway, New York

SHUBERT FILM CORP.
PRESENTS
CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG
IN

CAMILLE
With PAUL CAPELLANI
THE GREATEST FILM SENSATION OF THE YEAR
Directed by A. CAPELLANI
RELEASED THROUGH
WORLD FILM CORPORATION
LEWIS J. SELZNICK VICE-PRES. & GENL MGR.
130 WEST 46TH ST. NEW YORK CITY BRANCH EXCHANGES CANADIAN DISTRIBUTERS WORLD FEATURES LIMITED

EQUITABLE

OFFERS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN FILMS
THE RECENT STAR OF "BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS" ETC.

MOLLY McINTYRE

IN

HER GREAT HOUR

A PLAY OF SUSTAINED INTEREST - GREAT AND CONVINCING PLOTS

WRITTEN AND PRODUCED BY S·E·V· TAYLOR

RELEASED
JANUARY 10TH

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION
LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE PRES. AND ADVISORY DIRECTOR
RELEASING THROUGH
WORLD FILM CORPORATION

Gertrude Bondhill

one of the cleverest little women in pictures, makes her bow and wishes all the good people who may remember her as the star of "SWEET CLOVER" which she played from Coast to Coast, the friends and admirers she made during her stock engagements in Portland, Boston, Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, and her home town, Cincinnati; and all the friends she will yet please on the screen

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

She has signed a long-term contract to star exclusively in

Lariat Films

The first two five-reel features are now completed. Exchange men everywhere who are interested in handling these high class features in their territory should write or wire at once and get our proposition.

Lariat Films 401 Longacre Bldg. New York City

WATCH FOR FUTURE ANNOUNCEMENTS

COMING METRO EVENTS

METRO PICTURES

IS THIS EXHIBITOR SATISFIED?

OTTOWAY THEATRE CO.
Incorporated
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

December 3rd, 1915.

Metro Pictures Co.,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

Gentlemen:-

Under date of December 1st, we authorized your representative, Mr. J. W. Day, to have the price of our film service increased 16 2/3 per cent, beginning January 1st, 1916; and we further advised him that we hoped to be able to grant you an additional increase some time during the first of the new year, and if business continues to meet with our expectations you may expect to be advised of this additional increase at any time.

We wish to say that this voluntary increase in rental is being given through no motive other than we wish to show some concrete evidence of our appreciation of the consistently good shows that you have been giving us and of the courteous treatment and the cordial co-operation that your office has always shown us.

We are METRO enthusiasts, and should there ever an occasion arise that you would like to refer some exhibitor to us, we assure you that we would deem it a pleasure to answer any inquiries with reference to your service.

Trusting that the coming year will bring you abundant success, and with best regards, we are

Yours very truly,
Ottoway Theatre
by J. W. Andrews

MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

presents

MARY MILES MINTER

in

THE ROSE of the ALLEY

supported by Thomas J. Carrigan and an admirable company.

A vital drama of New York's underworld by Harry O. Hoyt shot through with the golden thread of romance"

Directed by Charles Horan, produced by

ROLFE PHOTO PLAYS INC.

Released
on the METRO
Program
Jan. 17th
METRO PICTURES

COMING METRO EVENTS

METRO PICTURES

To assure Metro Exhibitors of diversity in subjects slight changes have been made in the order of our new releases. The correct list of coming Metro Events is as follows:

Jan. 24	Her Debt of Honor	Columbia Pictures Corporation VALLI VALLI
Jan. 31	Man and His Soul	Quality Pictures Corporation FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN & BEVERLY BAYNE
Feb. 7	The Upstart	Rolfe Photoplays, Inc. MARGUERITE SNOW & GEORGE LeGUERE
Feb. 14	Dimples	Columbia Pictures Corporation MARY MILES MINTER
Feb. 21	The Bribe	Quality Pictures Corporation FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN & BEVERLY BAYNE
Feb. 28	The Lure of Heart's Desire	Popular Plays and Players EDMUND BREESE

In your home town a newspaper is telling the story of

THE RED CIRCLE

In your home town many persons are reading that story and want to see

RUTH ROLAND and FRANK MAYO

in this great PATHE serial.

What do the thousands of dollars being spent in advertising these Balboa-made pictures mean to you?

B = U = S = I = N = E = S = S!

THE PATHÉ EXCHANGE, Inc.

Executive Offices

25 West Forty-fifth Street

NEW YORK

"THE PICTURES THAT

Call Henry Ford an illusionist, a fanatic or the greatest self-advertiser ever—the fact remains his judgment changed him in a few short years from a working man to one of the greatest money powers of today. Ford has passed judgment on these greatest of all war pictures.

This is what he told the New York reporters in an interview before sailing "to end the war":

The Picture Ford Saw Is

The Horr

3 Reels, Releas

THE PATHE E

EXECUTIVE

25 WEST 45TH ST

WILL STOP THIS WAR!"
—Henry Ford

"The other day a moving picture plant showed me a picture of war. I saw a field covered with dead. Wounded men were kicking in agony. Other men came on and stripped them of their clothes. Then came wagons and the dead and half dead were piled on like so much cordwood. If pictures like that would be shown to the people war would be stopped."
—From the New York Journal, Friday, Dec. 3, 1915.

ors of War

ed January 17th

XCHANGE, INC.

OFFICES

REET, NEW YORK

PATHÉ OFFERS THE KING'S

George Probert

A GOLD ROOSTER Play
in 5 parts, featuring
PEARL WHITE
GEORGE PROBERT
and SHELDON LEWIS

Sheldon Lewis

Supported by a cast each one of whom is worthy to be featured. "THE KING'S GAME" is a virile drama in which James K. Hackett starred for two seasons. It was written by George Brackett Seitz

Production of Arnold Daly, and direction by Ashley Miller. RELEASED JANUARY 7th

The PATHÉ EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

GAME

PEARL WHITE

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

There is Only One News Reel

Hearst-Vitagraph

For over four years the term "News Reel" has been mis-used—abused. Never before January 1st, 1916, has the full significance of these words been realized.

A news reel meant a hodge-podge of scenes—in some cases a flash of real news—but generally a motley assembly of topics, poorly chosen.

ONE IN TEN

Thus far we have received ten thousand feet of negative from our camera men. This film comes from every corner of the globe. Out of ten thousand feet we have selected eight hundred. We scrapped the balance of the negative because it did not contain the type of news strong enough for Hearst-Vitagraph. The subjects were strong enough for news reels of the old type but not the kind of news that has made William Randolph Hearst the greatest journalist in the world.

THE INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE is a part of the Hearst-Vitagraph organization. They supply pictures to nearly every paper in the country. They have the greatest aggregation of camera men in the world. This is one reason why Hearst-Vitagraph will contain the latest, most up-to-the-minute, most startling news of the world—the kind of news that will bring your patrons back week after week.

AND HEARST-VITAGRAPH WILL BEAT ALL OTHER NEWS REELS IN THE FIELD FROM THREE TO FIVE DAYS.

Order from V. L. S. E. NOW!

HEARST-
NEWS-PICTORIAL.

IT IS ADVERTISING

Any organization can make claims to the superiority of their news reel.

BUT THE ADVERTISING IS THE MOST IMPORTANT FACTOR.

From the signing of the contract between Hearst and Vitagraph (each the greatest factor of its respective field) the success of this news reel was assured.

The publicity and advertising campaign on Heart-Vitagraph will be the most gigantic ever launched in connection with a news service reel. William Randolph Hearst controls the largest papers in the country. The International News Service, in conjunction with the International Film Service, supplies stories, photographs and news materials to over two hundred papers. These papers will advertise your business. Imagine what publicity in over two hundred newspapers could do for you. Imagine the cost of this campaign if you had to pay for it

THERE IS NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR THIS ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN. We consider it as part of the service.

BEFORE RELEASE DATE EVERY PUBLICATION IN THE UNITED STATES WILL BE TALKING ABOUT HEARST-VITAGRAPH. THEY WILL BE THINKING HEARST-VITAGRAPH. THEY WILL BE LOOKING FOR YOUR POSTERS AND ADVERTISING ON HEARST-VITAGRAPH. PAGE ADVERTISING HAS ALREADY APPEARED IN THE LEADING HEARST PAPERS. THIS IS ONLY A FORERUNNER OF THE GIGANTIC CAMPAIGN OUTLINED BY HEARST AND VITAGRAPH.

Are YOU Going to Be the Exhibitor Who Shows Them?

VITAGRAPH

(Formerly HEARST-SELIG-Now Better)

FRENCH OFFICIAL WAR FILMS

Fighting with France

OR

The Allie on the Firing Line

Thrilling, Soul-Stirring Battle Scenes Direct from the Front
The Flower of the French and English Armies in Action

The Battle of the Vosges

Heroic French Soldiers falling before your eyes. Thousands shedding their blood on fields of ice and snow to save France!

Canada's Crack Regiment

The beginning and the end of "Princess Pat's Own"—1,128 responded, only 93 returned from the Field of Honor!

GENUINE SCENES OF A RUSSIAN BATTLEFIELD that you will remember as long as you live

Played two weeks to packed houses at advanced prices at the Grand Circus Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Booked for return date at the Royal Theatre, Detroit, Mich.
Booked in St. Louis indefinitely in connection with the ST. LOUIS STAR.

6,000 Feet of Actual War Pictures Packing Theatres to Overflowing Wherever Shown Theatre Managers

Wire Immediately for Bookings. One-week Bookings Shortest Time Considered.

State Right Buyers

Wire, Phone, or Call Immediately for Your Territory.

ADDRESS

FRENCH OFFICIAL WAR FILMS

Suite 1503, 110 W. 40th St. New York City

Telephone, Bryant 5426

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

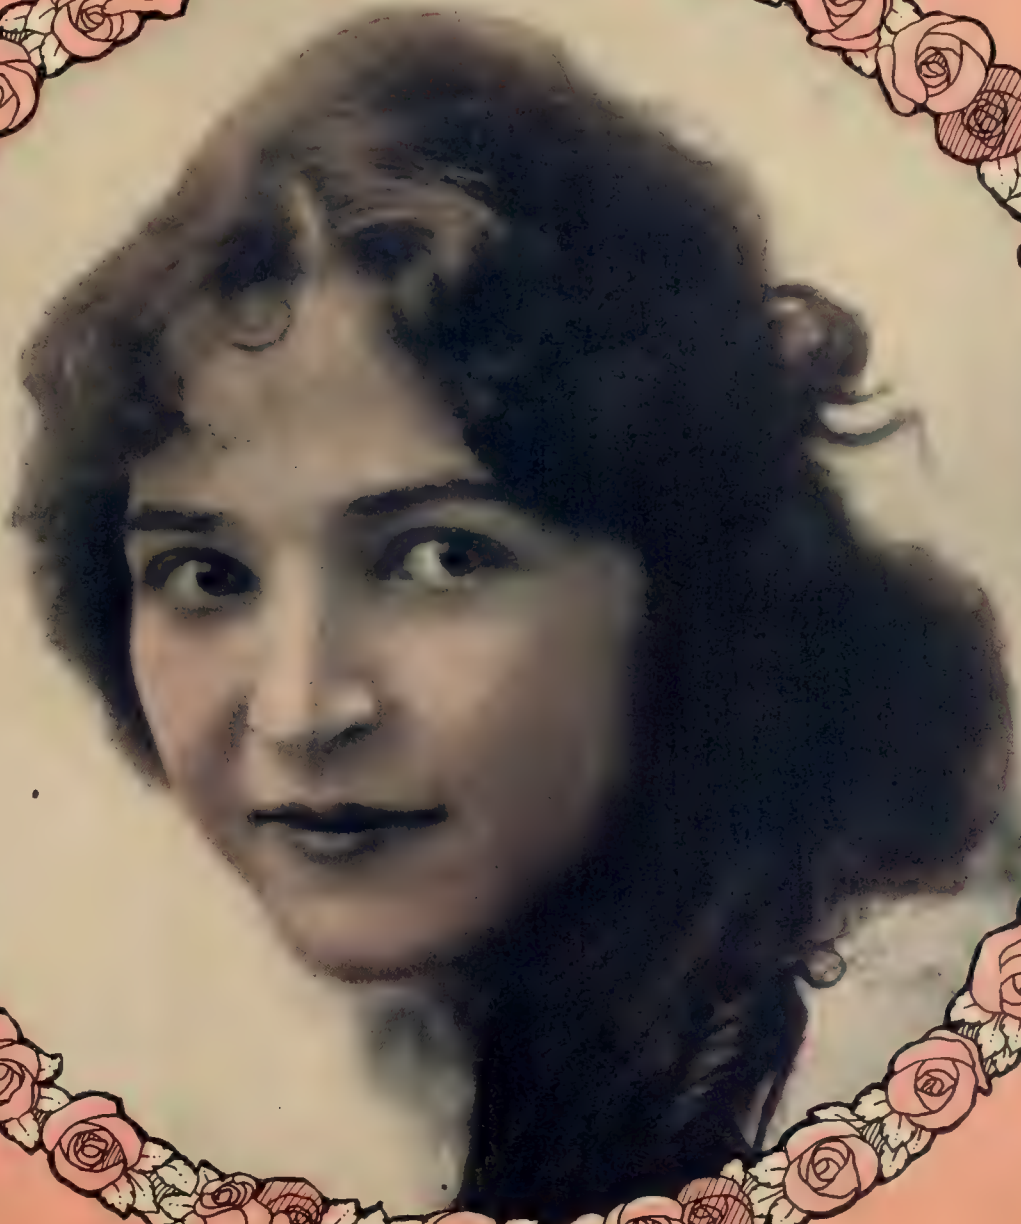
DE LUXE EDITION

AS A WOMAN SOWS

FEATURING THE BROADWAY STAR

GERTRUDE ROBINSON

ONE OF THE THREE SENSATIONAL MASTERPICTURES – EACH IN FIVE REELS – RELEASED THE WEEK OF JAN. 24TH THROUGH 68 MUTUAL EXCHANGES · PRODUCED BY GAUMONT



MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

LORD LOVELAND DISCOVERS AMERICA

FROM THE STORY BY THE WILLIAMSONS
FEATURING THE BROADWAY STAR

ARTHUR MAUDE

FIVE REELS RELEASED THE WEEK OF JANUARY 24TH THROUGH 68 MUTUAL EXCHANGES

PRODUCED BY AMERICAN

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION ANNOUNCES

BETRAYED

A DRAMA OF DEEP HEART-INTEREST
FEATURING THE ATTRACTIVE SCREEN STAR

GRACE DE CARLTON

ONE OF THE THREE MUTUAL
FIVE REEL FEATURES RELEASED
THE WEEK OF JANUARY 24

PRODUCED BY THANHOUSER:·

MUTUAL PROGRAM

IN THE EIGHT MILLION DOLLAR
MUTUAL PROGRAM

AN INNOCENT CROOK

A VOGUE COMEDY

WITH A LAUGH
IN EVERY SCENE

BOOK IT! RELEASED
WEEK OF JANUARY 3RD!

FEATURING "SAMMY"

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

GAUMONT CO. PRESENTS

THE IDOL OF THE STAGE

A SPECTACULAR MELODRAMA IN FIVE REELS FEATURING THE NOTED BELASCO STAR···

RELEASED WEEK OF JAN. 31 THROUGH 68 MUTUAL EXCHANGES

MALCOLM WILLIAMS

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

AMERICAN FILM CO. INC. PRESENTS

THE THOROUGHBRED

AN INTEREST-COMPELLING DRAMA WITH A STRONG MORAL. RELEASED THE WEEK OF JAN. 17TH THROUGH SIXTY-EIGHT MUTUAL EXCHANGES

FEATURING THE POPULAR STARS

WILLIAM RUSSELL AND CHARLOTTE BURTON

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

AMERICAN FILM CO. INC. PRESENTS

THE WHITE ROSETTE

A ROMANTIC DRAMA OF MEDIAEVAL AND MODERN TIMES FEATURING THE POPULAR SCREEN STARS

HELENE. ROSSON

— AND —

E. FORREST TAYLOR

FIVE REELS RELEASED THE WEEK OF JAN 31ST. THROUGH MUTUAL EXCHANGES

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

EDWIN THANHOUSER PRESENTS

THE SUPERB

FLORENCE LA BADIE

HEROINE OF THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

IN-- THE FIVE FAULTS OF FLO

THE UNUSUAL STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE ESTABLISHED BY THIS OFFERING MAKES THE USE OF SUPERLATIVE ADJECTIVES INADEQUATE-AND UNNECESSARY. THE STAR AND THE PLAY ARE PRESENTED FOR THEIR OWN STERLING VALUE

THANHOUSER
FILM CORPORATION
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

SCENARIO BY LLOYD LONERGAN
AUTHOR OF THE $1,000,000 MYSTERY-
AND PHILLIP LONERGAN

STAGED BY GEORGE FOSTER PLATT

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

FLORENCE
LA BADIE

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

DAVID HORSLEY PRESENTS

"VENGEANCE IS MINE!"

A TENSE DRAMA WITH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT AS ITS THEME. SUPERBLY ENACTED BY AN ALL-STAR CAST HEADED BY POPULAR

CRANE WILBUR

FIVE REELS RELEASED
WEEK OF JAN 31ST

MUTUAL PICTURES

Wild Jim, Reformer

A powerful two part American "Mustang" drama of early Western life —

Featuring

Jack Richardson
Lizette Thorne
E. Forrest Taylor

Directed by Frank Cooley

Released Jan. 21st

Other New American Releases

The Silent Trail

Two-part "Flying A" Drama

Nan Christy Ashton Dearholt

Directed by Charles Bartlett Released Jan 18th

The Thunderbolt

Single Reel "Flying A" Drama

Helene Rosson E. Forrest Taylor

Directed by William Bertram Released Jan. 21st

Johnnie's Birthday

American "Beauty" Comedy

Carol Halloway John Sheehan

Directed by James Douglass Released Jan. 19th

Mischief and a Mirror

American "Beauty" Comedy

Neva Gerber Wallace McDonald

Directed by Archer McMackin Released Jan. 23rd

Special Notice! The Mutual 12-page color insert elsewhere in this issue contains an announcement relating to The Thoroughbred, a five reel American Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, to be released Jan. 17th. Read it carefully.

Each of these releases distributed throughout the United States exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON
President

Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL SPE

CIAL FEATURE

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

Big Scenes— Terrific Action!

Never before have such tremendous thrills been experienced. Each chapter of "The Girl and the Game" is chock full of thrills — thrills of vital human interest, with a beautiful girl as the heroine. The illustration is but one of the outstanding thrills in chapter three.

Helen Holmes, the fearless film star in this great railroad film novel, is drawing great crowds every day in hundreds and hundreds of theatres. The public stares, open mouthed, at this girl's most wonderful daring.

This Great Story in 1,000 Big Newspapers!

Leading newspapers all over the United States are publishing Frank H. Spearman's wonderful story, "The Girl and the Game," and their millions of readers are literally carried away with the story of this motion picture masterpiece. Among the big newspapers printing this great story are:

New York World	Detroit Journal	Philadelphia North American
Pittsburgh Press	Baltimore American	Memphis Commercial Appeal
Atlanta Constitution	Boston Globe	Milwaukee Sentinel
Omaha Bee	Cincinnati Times-Star	New Orleans Times-Picayune
Buffalo Courier	San Francisco Chronicle	Los Angeles Tribune
Indianapolis Star	St. Louis Globe-Democrat	Dallas Journal
Chicago Evening Post	Cleveland Leader	Seattle Post-Intelligencer

Kansas City Journal, and nearly a thousand others!

Arrange now for your showing of "The Girl and the Game." A new, two-act chapter released each week. Three chapters now are appearing. There are fifteen chapters in all. Don't overlook this big special feature. Act!

For booking information apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of your nearest Mutual exchange, or write "The Girl and the Game" department of the Mutual home office, New York City.

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Publicity Offices: 222 South State Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE

Great Scott! It's a Woman! Look!! She leaps!!!

EDWIN THANHOUSER

PRESENTS

"THE WOMAN IN POLITICS" 5 REELS

WITH MIGNON ANDERSON, GEORGE MARLO AND A UNIFORMLY EFFECTIVE CAST

This Production is Sensational, Timely and Vital! It will prove the box-office surprise of the day!

STAGED BY W. EUGENE MOORE STORY BY LLOYD LONERGAN

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

MUTUAL FILM CORP., SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR THE UNITED STATES, MEXICO AND CANADA

"Forgive Me---It Was I Who Told the Police"

sobs conscience-stricken Roxane—But that was after she learned of St. John's weird "double"—

It's a story of double identity—of a clever crook, who, finding his exact likeness in physical appearance, engages him to impersonate HIMSELF while he, the crook, takes advantage of the helpful alibis thus furnished—

Miriam Nesbitt

and

Marc MacDermott

in

Edison's

"The Catspaw"

have been given the opportunity of their careers for dramatic, forceful, vivid work in this curious drama founded on the popular novel of that name by William Hamilton Osborne.

"THE CATSPAW" is a tale of thrills—five reels of speedy, snappy story that keeps you guessing every minute.

It's an EDISON—on the KLEINE-EDISON PROGRAM

FOR RELEASE JANUARY 12th

George Kleine

805 East 175th Street, New York City

NEW YORK 226 W. 42nd St.	DENVER 405 Railroad Bldg.	KANSAS CITY 209-12 Ozark Bldg.	CINCINNATI 138 West 7th Street	NEW ORLEANS 103 Nola Building
CHICAGO 166 N. State St.	PHILADELPHIA 1309 Vine St.	SEATTLE 204-5-6 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.	DALLAS 1812½ Commerce St.	MONTREAL 204 St. Catherine St., W.
ATLANTA 71 Walton St.	MINNEAPOLIS 708 First Ave., N.
BOSTON 14 Piedmont St.	PITTSBURGH 123 Fourth Ave.	SAN FRANCISCO 234 Eddy St.	LOS ANGELES 514 W. 8th St.	TORONTO 96 Bay St.

COMEDY FILMS

LOVE IN A BROKER'S OFFICE

Pokes and Jabbs
in

Frenzied Finance

Another Rip, Rear, Roaring Comedy
Containing a Mountain of Fun

JANUARY TWENTY-FIRST

It has been demonstrated that

Vim Comedies

Are sure-fire money getters.
That they draw larger crowds.
That they build business and create good will.
That they are the best comedies obtainable

and

That those exhibitors who get in line now are the exhibitors who will wind up the year with the biggest profits.

THE RIOT BREWING

FRENZIED FINANCE

Released JANUARY TWENTY-FIRST on the

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

Knickerbocker Star Features

Present an Absorbing, Interesting Drama

PAYING THE TOLL

IN THREE EXCITING PARTS

3 RAPID FIRE REELS

3 RAPID FIRE REELS

AS GOD IS MY JUDGE—I AM INNOCENT

This Feature Will Pack Your House
Three Thousand Feet of Live Wires
Tense, Grim and Powerfully Built
Just the Kind of Feature to Start the New Year
Beautiful and Striking Posters and Photos
One, Three and Six Sheets—READY NOW

Released January 7th 1916

ON THE

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

The Edison Studios present

A superb dual role masterplay of surprising suspense, the Kleine-Edison feature,

"THE CATSPAW"

Dramatized from the best seller novel
by William Hamilton Osborne

featuring Marc MacDermott and Miriam Nesbitt

Marvelous double exposure photography has aided in making this Kleine-Edison feature unique for fascinating suspense, perfectly mirroring the charm and grip of the book, "a best seller." Marc MacDermott was never more at home than in depicting with deft skill the two roles he plays—one the gentleman society burglar and the other his "double" who unconsciously furnishes the alibi for him. Easily one of the greatest crook characters on the screen, yet savoring nothing of the "crook" play. Every scene presents a new twist of surprise. Masterfully plotted to hold suspense convincingly. Miriam Nesbitt, equally skilled, as his crafty companion. Released Wednesday, January 12th.

Already Released from the Edison Studios

Mrs. Fiske, international star, in an extraordinary production of Thackeray's best novel, "Vanity Fair," picturizing her famous "Becky Sharp." In seven acts. 400 people in cast.

Appealing Mabel Trunnelle and Everett Butterfield in five acts of smashing punch and artistry—a remarkable film founded on the best book of the world's greatest novelist, "The Magic Skin," of Balzac.

Viola Dana, the country's idol, in a powerful play of purpose, "Children of Eve." A pity-stirring play. In five acts. A tremendous fire scene.

Mabel Trunnelle and Marc MacDermott in a strangely fascinating 5-reeler, "The Destroying Angel," from the novel by Louis Joseph Vance.

Released through the Kleine-Edison Feature Service.
George Kleine, 805 East 175th St., New York

New York
Pittsburgh
Denver
Atlanta
Minneapolis
Boston
Seattle
Cincinnati
Dallas
Toronto
Montreal
Kansas City
Chicago
San Francisco
Philadelphia
Los Angeles
New Orleans

A Wonderful Stage Success

"GREEN STOCKINGS"

Played one of the longest runs in the annals of photo-play history in New York.

It was one of the most successful comedies ever run on the stage.

It has played in every city in the United States.

"GREEN STOCKINGS" is now a BLUE RIBBON FEATURE.

It is five reels of comedy, featuring the greatest screen comedienne

LILLIAN WALKER

This Blue Ribbon Feature will undoubtedly establish a precedent for motion picture comedies.

Wilfrid North has succeeded in opening up a new era in comedy direction.

Produced under the personal Supervision of

ALBERT E. SMITH and J. STUART BLACKTON

This five-part VITAGRAPH BLUE RIBBON FEATURE will prove to be a novelty in the comedy field.

We suggest seeing this on the screen at the nearest V. L. S. E. exchange

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

A Mental Deficient Restored to Normal by an Operation

It is the heart-interest situations that makes a story successful or unsuccessful

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

Have heart-interest situations—They are the best three-reelers in the world

Big love redeemed in the story of a brutal father who makes a mental degenerate out of his own daughter by hitting her over the head.

Should this father be tried for murder?

A wonderful operation restores the daughter's mentality—The father eventually reaps his reward.

THE STORY

Nell, a motherless young girl, is continually abused by her brutal father, who is trying to make a thief out of her In a fit of rage he one day hits her over the head with his revolver and, thinking he has killed her, escapes. Four years later Nell has apparently recovered, but in reality suffers from bone-pressure, caused by the blow, and in consequence is now a petty criminal. John, a lad of her own age and her only friend, is heartbroken as he sees the girl going slowly down the crooked path of life, and the remarkable two-sided nature of the girl comes out as she rushes to help a woman struck down by an auto, then surreptitiously rifles her pocketbook John secures a position with Allen Drew, an artist, and when the latter needs a pickpocket model, John gets Nell the job. While she is posing, the artist's best friend, Dr Strong, a famous surgeon and student of criminology, calls and Nell succeeds in picking his pocket unobserved; but her theft is discovered, and John interests the surgeon in her case The doctor operates, and Nell recovers normal mentality She secures a position as a maid, but her Nemesis, her father, appears and tries to force her to help him rob the safe A struggle follows which results in the accidental death of her father Then John receives the reward of his faith and love by Nell's promise to become his wife

When you get heart-interest in conjunction with a novel theme—You have a high grade photo-play

STORIES OF HEART-INTEREST WITH NOVEL THEMES MAKE

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

THE BEST THREE-REELERS IN THE WORLD

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

PERSONALLY · PICKED PROGRAM

Produced under the personal supervision of

ALBERT E. SMITH AND J. STUART BLACKTON

January 17th

"MRS. DANE'S DANGER"—Four-part Drama

Produced by Wilfrid North

Featuring LILLIAN WALKER and Other Eminent Vitagraph Stars and

"BITTERSWEET"—Comedy

Produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon, presenting an all-star cast

REGULAR RELEASES

"WHEN LIN CAME HOME"

Drama—Monday, January 10th

Featuring George Holt and J. Carleton Weatherby

"WHEN TWO PLAY A GAME"

Comedy—Friday, January 14th

Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew

"BY LOVE REDEEMED"

Three-part Drama—Saturday, January 15th

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE

Featuring Garry McGarry, Belle Bruce, Jewell Hunt and Anders Randolf

You Can't Get Better Than the Best

For fifteen years VITAGRAPH has led the world in photoplays.

For many years others have strived to reach the pinnacle of perfection that has been acquired by the oldest producer.

For many years VITAGRAPH has set the pace.

That is Why We Can Say—See Them On the Screen—and Know You Will Book Them if You Do.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

LUBIN

FIVE REEL UNIT
RELEASED JAN. 10TH 1916

HERBERT FORTIER
IN

"THE CITY OF FAILING LIGHT"
FOUR ACT DRAMA

"A BATHTUB MYSTERY"
DAVE DON COMEDY

ALSO

JAN. 10TH
"THE LOST BRACELET"
1 ACT DRAMA

JAN. 11TH
"THE OLD WATCHMAN"
2 ACT DRAMA

JAN. 13TH
L. C. SHUMWAY
IN
"THE BOND WITHIN"
3 ACT DRAMA

JAN. 15TH
BILLIE REEVES COMEDY
"A SKATE FOR A BRIDE"
ONE ACT

GENERAL FILM
LUBIN
RELEASES

Pa Says
"PREPAREDNESS is a Big WORD meaning BEAT the other
FELLER TO IT"
—PREPARE TO LAFF!—CAUSE
I'm in the movies NOW

SIR. HOPKINS
(MYSELF)

TRADE KALEM MARK

The Two-reel series with all the attributes of a feature---that' "Stingaree".---Pocket the extra rentals and profit by its big advertising possibilities and consistent, uniform merit.

A Duel In the Desert

Ninth Episode in the series by E. W. HORNUNG, creator of "Raffles," has the fascinating desert for a background and the red-blooded action of strong men on their mettle for its theme. Released Wednesday, January 19th

Remember that you can get "Stingaree" at any General Film Company branch office or the Greater New York Film Rental Company. Twelve two-act episodes, one released every Wednesday, each telling a complete story

Are You on our Mailing List for the New Kalem Bulletin? Better Write Now!

Striking 1, 3 and 6-sheet, four color lithographs on each issue. Other advertising aids, too.

KALEM COMPANY

235-39 WEST 23RD ST., NEW YORK, N.Y.

THE BLACK CROOK

The Spectacle That Has Been Advertised by Two Generations

TO AID YOU, MR. EXHIBITOR:

The complete line of advertising matter is headed by a Twenty-four-sheet stand of dazzling beauty that you must not fail to see. Also two styles of one-sheets, two styles of three-sheets, and a six sheet. In addition, Special Music has been prepared for this spectacular feature by Walter C. Simon, which is being offered to exhibitors at the low price of fifty cents. This score will greatly enhance your showing of "The Black Crook" and will also prove of value to your orchestra later. It gives you $2.00 worth of music for 50 cents.

IN FIVE PARTS

A General Film Release, January 10

KALEM COMPANY, 235-239 West 23rd Street, New York City

THE HAZARDS of HELEN

THE ORIGINAL RAILROAD SERIES, FEATURING

HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

In railroad pictures, Kalem leads and others follow. This was never more strongly illustrated than in the releases promised for the latter part of January and the month of February. In "Tapped Wires," issued Saturday, January 29, five reels of thrills are compressed into the one reel length. Helen's thrilling pursuit of a train in an automobile, her leap from the speeding machine to the road as the auto crashes over a forty-foot cliff, burying its other occupants beneath it, are but two of the exciting moments in this release. Is it any wonder that the "Hazards" have been

Imitated for Seven Years—But Still Supreme

Live-wire publicity backing is given you on the "Hazards." Striking 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs, newspaper mats, etc.

SNOOP HOUNDS

A Bud Duncan Burlesque Comedy

You can imagine the laughs in this picture when it is said that Bud and Gus are rival Sherlocks, working for opposing parties in a divorce suit. Their blundering methods are a scream.

Released Tuesday, January 25th. 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs on this comedy.

THE FATE OF AMERICA

An Episode in the "Ventures of Marguerite"

The first of three "Ventures" dealing with the timely theme of America's unpreparedness. "The Wolf," an international crook, with amazing powers, is the center of the stirring action.

Released Friday, January 28th. Attractive 1, 3 and 6-sheet 4-color lithographs.

THE VILLAIN WORSHIPPER

Two-Act "Stingaree" Episode by E. W. Hornung, creator of "Raffles"

"Stingaree" increases in interest as the bushranger nears the close of his adventurous career. In "The Villain Worshipper" he takes in hand a young man who has set Stingaree up as his idol and seeks to emulate his feats. The bushranger succeeds in his efforts to cure the misguided youth, but at the cost of a great sacrifice on his own part. There is a surprise in store for "Stingaree" rooters in the closing scene of this episode. Released Wednesday, Jan. 26.

Eye-catching 1, 3 and 6-sheet, 4-color lithographs are issued on each "Stingaree" episode. Other advertising aids, too.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company offices or the Greater New York Film Rental Company

Better drop us a postal now and get your name on the mailing list for the new Kalem Bulletin. Don't put it off again.

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada.....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid).....4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 312)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, January 8, 1916

Facts and Comments

WE are being discovered. When we say "we," we mean of course the plain, ordinary motion picture man, such as you, dear reader, and our humble selves. Great literary geniuses send us marked copies of their discoveries of and in filmland. We are certainly learning things. Some of the discoveries are accompanied by terms of approbation, while on the other hand some of the comments are shockingly unfavorable. It seems we are getting into literary "society." Well, the motion picture is a hardy plant and will survive in spite of it.

INVALUABLE is the aid which we are getting from the daily press in our fight against federal and other forms of censorship. The newspaper with the largest circulation in the metropolitan district devotes its leading editorial of two days ago to a forceful and convincing argument against federal censorship. This triumph of public sentiment over narrow fanaticism ought to encourage us all in keeping up the good fight. Do you, dear reader, realize that you can help considerably without much effort on your part? Send for THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S Anti-Censorship pamphlet. Send for the article "If Shakespeare Fell Among the Censors." This article has done much to turn the laugh on censorship. It has been reprinted wholly or in part by most papers that maintain a motion picture section. If you will offer it to your local editor he is very likely to thank you for it. Ridicule, when it is deserved and founded on reason, is a powerful weapon in any cause.

* * *

IF you are engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures in the State of New York do not fail to read the appeal for a great meeting to be held in Albany, March 1 and 2. You will find the appeal very interesting reading. If there is a local organization in your city we hope the question of a strong representation at the meeting will be taken up without delay. Censorship and Sunday closing bills will be introduced in Albany at an early date, according to our best information. An impressive gathering at the state capitol, while the law-givers are in session, is bound to have a salutary effect. Then there are many vital questions affecting the welfare of the exhibitor, such as film service, methods of payment, etc., etc. All these questions can be brought nearer to a satisfactory solution by intelligent discussion. There are some fine locals in this state, notably in The Bronx, in Yonkers, in Rochester, and in Utica. These we have no doubt will be represented in force. We want to see as many exhibitors there as possible, whether they are members of the league or not. The exhibitors of this state are an intelligent and progressive body of men. If they were not they could not have furnished the splendid co-operation which resulted in the crushing defeat of the constitution. Remember the place—Albany, and the time—March 1 and 2.

* * *

IN deciding to aid the National Board in its work, the producers have shown commendable wisdom. We realize as does every other friend of the motion picture, that the work of the Board cannot be dispensed with for some time to come. We do urge the Board to take that word "censors" and throw it into the river where the river is deepest and swiftest. It is a misnomer. The Board does not censor, it advises. The work of the Board rises above the plane of so-called censorship. It suggests standards and discusses ethical as well as aesthetical points with directors and producers. It works constructively, while legalized censorship is merely an engine of graft and tyranny and never has benefited one single solitary human being except, of course, the men of the legalized boards, who are maintained out of the public treasury. The men in the National Board render their services gratuitously; they are interested in social welfare, they are representatives of civic and social bodies, and their work they offer up as a gift to society at large. The maintenance of the necessary clerical force, expense of office, etc., is in large part provided by the producers. Narrow-gauged "reformers" and self-seeking politicians may howl themselves hoarse about that; they cannot howl away the genuine public service which the reviewing committees render without reward or expectation. Do get rid of the word "censorship."

"Dress'd in a Little Brief Authority"

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

HEROINE at piano, playing softly to herself. She is normal and well-educated, has never exhibited any mental weakness and is in a state of perfect health. Enter villain in a dress suit and an insidious smile. There is treachery in the air. He leans over heroine and fastens his eyes on hers. She does not have him ejected. She does not even resent his familiarity. Her face wears a troubled look, and she stares vacantly. He makes a few passes with one hand. Presto! She is now at his mercy, completely dominated by his will.

It is the rare producer who gives attention to the truth of what is being portrayed in his releases, and the director is usually after effects and emotional opportunity, so it is up to the author to eliminate what is false and silly in the use of such influences as that exerted by hypnotic suggestions. If he is not posted, it will repay him to study the subject. Its history is one of such bad associates and cheap trickery that it has become an object of popular distrust, if not of popular derision, whereas it really offers a rich field of dramatic incident.

Interest in hypnotism could be intensified, rather than dulled, by adherence to well-established facts and no harm done among the credulous and weak-minded. It is possible to depict some marvelous aspects of human conduct due to unconscious suggestion—it opens up wondrously beautiful possibilities in what has come to be recognized as an interesting abnormal condition. The truth about it, as about other mental conditions, is so modest that it must be sought out. The truth is that the results of hypnotism do not depend upon the will of the operator at all, but upon the compliance and suggestibility of the "subject."

Mesmer stumbled upon enough knowledge of hypnotic suggestion to fool the whole world, himself included. He pretended to possess in himself a sort of magnetic radiation which deeply affected his magnetically sensitive subjects, and while he was justly suspected by men of science, his popularity was so great that royalty was impressed, and he was granted an annuity to pursue his "good work." His subjects were really those of hypnotic suggestion, and it was eventually discovered by scientists that all Mesmer was able to do with his "subjects" could be done without any mysterious passes, without any magnetism.

We are no longer living in the age of Mesmer, and the true nature of hypnotism was discovered by an English surgeon named Braid, long before most of us were born, hence it is tiresome, if not nauseating, to intelligent people to see a wild-eyed individual making passes in front of a sensible-looking heroine and obtaining complete control of her mind through supposed occult powers. We might watch the experiments of a greedy old alchemist with mild curiosity, but when the screen deals with a subject where the faith of the ignorant and the credulous may be entrenched on the wrong side, the New Art is belittled where it should be engaged in building up respect.

It is in equally bad taste to attempt to promote through moving pictures some superficial theory of mental suggestion which shrinks from the bright light of scientific investigation and hides behind the barrier of one or another religious movement. The screen is not for the perpetuation of fanatical theories nor for the advocacy of vulgar shams designed for no better purpose than that of preying on the feeble-minded. Its language must be that of logic, of sound sense.

The United States Government tolerates a great variety of sects, bodies of men and women holding on grimly to certain doctrines, closely attached to certain teachings and interests, because there are still plenty of people in the world whose religious sentiments can only be aroused through such organizations. They are useful in a doctrinal way to the awakening of spiritual nature in humankind, but the New Art is only concerned with a healthful development of right living in a non-sectarian way, through whatever recommends itself to enlightened intelligence.

The promotion of this or that sectarian view on the screen is not only in bad taste, offending people not in accord with it, but it is opposed to what is bound to be a big and popular factor in future development, the educational release. Probably the most popular and profitable development of screen portrayal in the near future will be the educational release, but this new trend fairly bristles with unforeseen dangers. There are bound to be enthusiasts on the subject, many of them anxious to publish cherished opinions, whose fervor and interest do not specially qualify them as to the course to be pursued.

When we enter upon the navigation of dangerous waters, we naturally trust to pilot and captain qualified by long training and familiar with their duties rather than attempt to point out channel intricacies ourselves. On the same general principle, as a matter of good common sense, we should consult the greatest scientific authorities of our period, just as the President of the United States has recently done, before seriously embarking an enterprise deeply concerning our national life, our national safety, our national character. It is absolutely necessary that we discriminate between what is true and what is false in any projected educational system.

Truth is bound to win popularity for educational releases. It is bound to win that kind of support which brings the New Art constantly-increasing respect, hence the author of an educational release has a responsibility which should make him extremely careful in distinguishing between right and wrong in the presentation. He is morally accountable to those whose confidence in screen portrayals is most to be desired.

We all feel that we participate in what science has accomplished during the past fifty years, but we are not entirely conscious of what science has NOT accomplished, that its logic has not succeeded in weeding out delusion and supersitition from the human mind. This may be done through moving pictures. A big hope lies hidden there. It will not do for those of us now in authority, from author to producer, to consider ourselves more important than the art we are using. The author in particular should rise to his opportunity. He should not only familiarize himself with all facts bearing on his subject, but he should seriously attempt their right interpretation.

"The vital knowledge," says Herbert Spencer, "that by which we have grown as a nation to what we are, and which underlies our whole existence, is a knowledge that has got itself taught in nooks and corners, not the mumbling of dead formulas." There is the cue for the author who would become an educationalist. An author must have brains in order to teach aspiring millions to observe, to use keen logic and to attain fine judgment. If he has not, he will only be like the gentleman mentioned by Shakespeare.

"Man, proud man!
Dress'd in a little brief authority
Most ignorant of what he is most assured."

*Copyrighted, 1916, by Louis Reeves Harrison.

Our Chances in Europe

By W. Stephen Bush.

IN a recent letter to The Moving Picture World, J. D. Williams, of Australia, who has had considerable experience in both export and import of films, raises a very interesting point. He speaks of the neglect of the American producer in covering the vast non-American market in detail. We are now beginning to wake up to the possibilities of the South American market, but are we prepared to supply motion picture films to the other continents when the present European war will have passed into history?

There are many close students of foreign markets and especially the European market, who believe that after the war, London will no longer be what it is now—the American distributing point for the rest of the world. In the first place, the high duty now levied by the British government on films, will keep a good many American productions away from England. The British film men, of course, regard this situation with perfect calm, and their anxiety about the profits of the American producer is under perfect control. They believe that the import duty will stimulate domestic productions and only keep out inferior productions of foreign origin.

Of course, there are two sides to this. If other countries with important sea ports, either on the Baltic or on the Dutch, French or German coast, deal in a more liberal spirit with American films, it is entirely possible that the center of distribution will be shifted from London to some city on the continent.

Let us, however, assume for the moment that conditions after the war will remain substantially as they are now. This, of course, is an assumption entirely favorable to London as the American producer's central point for European distribution. Even in that event the American producer, if he wants to enlarge his markets and increase his sales, will have to depart from his present policy of making London his first, last and only point of distribution. There are importers of American film in London who represent American films in every European and a good many Asiatic countries, and who have never left London except for occasional short trips to the continent. London has until now, fixed the number of copies absorbed by the rest of Europe. London laid down the rule, for instance, that Holland and Belgium use one copy each and that Italy was rarely good for more than five copies. London practically regulated the sale of American film in Germany and Russia and Austria. The claim for the better, which is bound to come, especially now, when the British sales of American films have steadily decreased, will be exceedingly simple. It means that a Russian agent, staying all the year round at St. Petersburg and being in constant intimate touch with all the important centers of population in Russia, will be able to sell more copies in Russia than can be sold by correspondence via London.

Germany has been compelled to reduce her production of films to probably twenty per cent. of its normal output, while Austro-Hungary, which never produced very much, has stopped production entirely. These countries will be most promising markets for the American producer if he will try to sell directly to these countries and not make his profits dependent upon the imagined facilities of a London broker.

At present, there are only two American manufacturers who have attempted to gain a foothold on Continental Europe, without the aid of London. Both these companies have found their experiment profitable until the war broke out and cut off the Central Powers from the rest of the world. Conditions in our own country at this time are slowly settling down to something like a permanent basis. There is an intelligent desire in every quarter to recognize and to meet the changes that have come about. As soon as our producers are perfectly sure of their ground and know just what is expected of them, the foreign market holds out greater possibilities than ever before in the history of the American motion picture.

An era of prosperity seems to be ahead for the American motion picture producer, though here and there one may go to the wall. The growth in system and efficiency, which is plainly visible in dealing with the problem of distribution, will weed out incompetents all along the line.

The South American Market

By W. Stephen Bush.

IN considering the possibilities of the South American market, one fact will bear a lot of repetition; there is not an inch of moving picture film produced in any part of Latin America. With the sharp decrease of the European supply, there are but two problems to be solved by the American producer before he can play an important part in the South American market. One of these questions is the question of credit, and the other is the question of catering to the tastes of the South American public. Of these two questions, the last is, of course, the most vital.

How and to what extent have the French and the Italian and the German producers, who have heretofore divided this market up among themselves, catered to the South American tastes? There is, of course, a similarity in tastes between the Italian and the French and the Spanish peoples. Upon this similarity in taste the French and Italian producers have relied entirely. As far as our observations and investigations carry us, we have been unable to discover that a special appeal has ever been made to the South American taste. Latin America is far more akin to Spain and Portugal, both in race and taste, than to either France or Italy. Films of Spanish origin have been negligible in quantity. As far as we know, the Spanish market has been supplied almost entirely from other countries.

It seems to me that, under these circumstances, the American producer has before him an extraordinary chance of making a more practical appeal to the Spanish-American market and the Portuguese-American market than any European producer has ever thought of making. The literature of Spain and Portugal is the heritage of all Spanish and Portuguese America, just as the literature of England is our heritage. With one or two trifling exceptions, this vast storehouse of Spanish and Portuguese literature has never been touched by any European producer. There is, to be sure, a Spanish-American literature and a Portuguese-American literature, and the latter especially offers great opportunities to the film producer. In the main, however, the literary possessions of Spain and Portugal are the literary possessions of Central and South America. The names of Cervantes, Calderon, Lope de Vega and Camoens mean just as much to the people of the Argentine Republic, of Chile and Brazil and all the rest of Spanish-America, as the names of Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden or Pope mean to us. The comparison may limp like all comparisons do if viewed from a purely literary standpoint, but it is unassailable from the practical or commercial aspect.

Why is it not possible to smooth the road into the South American market by making such a special and practical appeal as I have sought to outline here?

An European producer recently said to me that it paid him to cater to American tastes and standards because whatever picture went well in America was sure to go equally well in Europe. Something of this policy might enter into our dealings with the South American market.

There is little doubt that in the literature of Spain and Portugal and of Spanish America and Portuguese America, there can be found a number of subjects which will appeal, not only to the South American, but to our taste as well. The drama and the heart story know no geographical or racial boundaries. Every great story and every great drama that succeeded in striking the right chord in the human heart has always been translated into every language. No one will deny that the screen is a much better translator than the dictionary.

It goes without saying that work of this character calculated to win a firm hold in the South American market, could be successfully undertaken only under the guidance and with the constant co-operation of Spanish or Portuguese Americans. Our producers have the facilities in greatest abundance; what is needed is proper direction. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the first American manufacturer who will heed this suggestion and produce a picture of special appeal to the Spanish-American and the Portuguese-American tastes and traditions will gain an inestimable advantage over all competitors.

Novel New Year Subject

Universal Film Manufacturing Company Issued a Reel of New Year Greetings From Leading Government Officials.

WHAT can be justly termed the most novel idea that has yet been adapted to the screen was seen in the reel of New Year greetings from President Wilson and other leading members of the present official household at Washington, D. C., to the people of the United States. The subject was made up of a telegraphic message together with a picture of the sender of the message, usually showing him seated in some characteristic pose at his desk. It was issued by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

Among those whose messages were thus transmitted were President Wilson, Postmaster General Burleson, Secretary of Interior Lane, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of War Garrison, Secretary of Labor Wilson, Speaker of the House Champ Clark, the British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, German Ambassador, J. von Bernstorff, Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York, William J. Bryan, Mayor John Purroy Mitchel' of New York City. and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

The reel was completed and distributed so that all theatres using Universal service were able to show it during the holiday season and reports indicate that the idea was well received by both exhibitors and patrons.

No Decree Yet Entered

Attorneys for the Government and Attorneys for the Defendants in the Suit of the United States Against the Picture Patents Co. et al., Conferring on Form of Decree.

THE attorneys representing the government and the attorneys representing the various defendants in the suit of the United States against the Motion Picture Patents Co., the General Film Co. et al., have within the past few days held repeated conferences to agree upon the form of decree which is to be submitted to the Federal Court. The decree must, of course, embody the findings of the court, which were to the effect that the defendants were unlawful combinations and operating in violation of the Sherman law.

It is understood that the attorneys for the government have served a copy of their proposed decree upon the attorneys for the various defendants. It is expected that the attorneys for the defendants will serve copies of their proposed decree upon the attorneys for the government some time within the next two weeks. On the final settlement of the order and decree the attorneys for both sides will be heard in Chambers before Judge Dickinson in Philadelphia. After the entry of the decree of dissolution, the defendants have the right to appeal within sixty days. None of the attorneys for the defendants would commit himself as to whether an appeal would be taken or not.

Sidney Drew with Metro

Under Long Time Contract for Single Reel Comedies—Fourth Addition to Metro's Barrymore-Drew Family.

THE Metro Pictures Corporation announces that Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew have joined the Metro family of celebrated screen stars. Mr. Drew, who gained a unique place in the comedy world on the legitimate stage before he became famous as a star and a director of comedies for the screen, will produce one-reel subjects on the Metro program.

The coming of Mr. and Mrs. Drew to the Metro forces marks the fourth addition of the great Barrymore-Drew family now under long contract with Metro, the others being Ethel Barrymore, and her brother, Lionel, who have achieved great success appearing in stellar roles provided for them in Metro photo plays.

The new Drew comedies, one of which will be presented each week, will be of the distinctive type in which Mr. Drew has become famous. They will be high class comedies not farces or burlesques, and in anticipating the contract just consummated with the Drews, Metro exercised great care in the selection of suitable vehicles looking to the unusual talent of these gifted artists.

The contract, which covers a period of years, and which calls in its first provision for a series of fifty-two comedies, was signed in the Longacre Building, New York, just before the bells began to ring out the old year. President Richard A. Rowland and Treasurer Joseph W. Engel, of the Metro Corporation, together with Metro's chief counsel, J. Robert Rubin and Mr. Drew completed their negotiations in time for a mutual participation in a New Year's feast at the Claridge, when the plans for the new comedy releases were gone over in detail. They were completed in their entirety and the first release was scheduled for the final week in February.

There will be one comedy each week thereafter, one reel in length, and Mr. and Mrs. Drew will be starred in each feature. In line with all previous activities Metro will surround these two stars with an exceptionally strong supporting cast, which will include some of the foremost artists in the comedy field of the silent drama.

The new releases, which were hinted at in announcement made by Metro late in November, will be called Metro-Drew comedies, and they will be polite in character and suited to accompany the big Metro feature releases.

After signing the contract Mr. Drew said: "It is very gratifying to me to be able to produce comedies for Metro under the unusually fine studio conditions which have been arranged for me at 3 West Sixty-first street, and I am proud to be with what I regard as the most progressive motion picture organization in the world. The esprit de corps of Metro is wonderful. Already I am as enthusiastic as a boy, and I know I shall do the best work of my career under the Metro banner. Under arrangements in my new contract I will be given ample opportunity to work out some novel features and innovations I have had in mind for some time. I am sure it is going to prove a highly satisfactory arrangement for all concerned and will result in the biggest kind of a success. Our productions will be, I might add, a decided departure in comedy reel features."

Mr. Drew will begin production within the next few days, and as soon as a selected company of players can be engaged. The comedies will be made in one section of the Sixty-first street studio, where the Rolfe Photoplays Inc. and the Columbia Pictures Corporation are now producing Metro pictures. Mr. Drew now has in hand the first group of ten comedies, which were made from original stories, and are ready for production. Metro promises a specific announcement regarding these comedies and the personnel of Mr. Drew's supporting cast, at an early date.

PARAMOUNT TO HAVE HOUSEWARMING.

Gathering all departments of its big organization under one roof except that dealing with the Newspictures, the Paramount Pictures Corporation has now moved into its new offices in the recently completed Rogers Peet Building at 485 Fifth avenue, corner of Forty-first street, New York. The executive offices occupy the whole of the ninth floor and in addition to this a large suite has been engaged on the floor below, for the accounting, shipping and stenographic departments.

Invitations were sent out for a reception to be held on the evening of January 5 and another on January 7, at which Mary Pickford, Marguerite Clark and other stars appearing in Paramount Pictures produced by the Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas Companies will be present. It will be in the nature of a housewarming.

Sees Change of Front by Exhibitors

William Wright of Kalem Company Declares There Is a Tendency to Return to Regular Program.

EXHIBITORS are changing front on the long subject as a money-making proposition is the opinion of William Wright of the Kalem Company. Mr. Wright, who has recently returned to New York from a three weeks trip taking in the territory bounded by Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, believes that for the great majority of picture theater men more money is to be made in a carefully selected program of short subjects than with longer and more expensive productions. By no means does he minimize the importance to the large house of the feature of quality. His point is that the long subject can make money only when it has real merit, and then only in a house of such size that it can afford an extensive advertising campaign.

"The situation in the motion picture business is undergoing one of the most radical changes it has experienced since the coming of the feature picture," said Mr. Wright. "That is my conclusion after a three weeks' trip, covering the greater part of the film territory east of the Rocky Mountain States. I would advise New York film men who do not wish to be caught napping during the coming year to make the same trip and learn from personal contact with exhibitors the way the wind is blowing before it is too late.

"Reports that come to you sitting at ease in your New York office may very easily be completely discovered. One exhibitor or exchange man visits the city one week and he replies to your question as to business by saying 'Rotten.' Another man comes to you the next week and he is glowing with enthusiasm. I have found to my own satisfaction the why and wherefore of both answers.

"I talked with exchange men, but of even greater importance with every exhibitor I could possibly meet. I found only one story. The exhibitor running a general program made up of short releases is making money, in some instances big money; the theaters offering long films so-called features are not making any money, and in many cases they are losing. While at the exhibitors' ball in Boston on December 1, I met a man who operates many theaters, two of them large houses. In these big houses he is running features and just about clearing expenses. In his small theaters he is offering his patrons a regular program, and he tells me he is cleaning up from $150 to $400 a week profit at each small house.

"This same story was repeated to me so often with varied details that it became old before I had neared the end of my trip. I do not say that there are no feature theaters making money. That would be foolish. But in every instance I found that the only exhibitors making any money with long films were the very largest houses, those selecting their features carefully and operating their theaters in a high-class manner. These are so few and far between, however, that they offer no indication of the general business outlook. A safer guide is the condition of the medium-sized houses that have been vainly striving to play the feature game. Running long features at high rentals, profiting by all the wonderful 'exhibitor co-operation' of which we hear so much, these houses have found it a nip-and-tuck struggle to keep receipts within reach of the steadily mounting expenses.

"Many exhibitors informed me they are planning to return to a general program made up of short releases. But in doing so they intend to profit by one lesson which they have learned while paying the feature-maker's fiddle. They plan to pick out each week pictures of superior quality that they can feature in the same manner that they have been boosting the long films, for they feel that they can get just as much business as formerly, while their profits will be augumented by the difference in cost between the regular service and their feature rentals. I found many exhibitors doing this already with our two-reel Stingaree stories. Several exhibitors I met called my attention to the fact that in the name of E. W. Hornung, author of this series, they have just as big an advertising card as had been presented by them in connection with a long feature, while the beauty of it was that the releases were condensed. In a similar manner I found other exhibitors featuring the daring personality of Helen Gibson, who appears in our railroad pictures, while many were planning advertising to profit by the return of Lloyd V. Hamilton to the Ham Comedy Company.

"Taking it all in all, it is my conclusion that from now on the long film will wane in popularity and the backbone of the motion picture business will be the short subject. This is not theory. I will leave to others the time-worn argument of whether the patrons really want varied programs or long films. This conclusion is the result of observations from the viewpoint of the exhibitor—the man who pays the bills."

The Kalem Company has definitely decided on the players who will be seen in the new series by George Bronson Howard. The work of production on the initial episode of the series is already well under way. In addition to the stars Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby, who will share honors as the "Love Pirates," the principal players in the support will be True Boardman, Paul C. Hurst, Thomas Lingham, Frank Jonasson, Edward Clisbee and Joseph Marber. These players have parctically all appeared during the course of the "Stingaree" series. As announced last week the series is being produced under the direction of James W. Horne.

Sis Hopkins and the director of the comedy company and the players who will be seen in her support in the coming Kalem series, have gone to Jacksonville. A farewell party was held by the members of the company at the Nineteenth street studio on New Year's Eve, which also served as Sis Hopkins' introduction to the interior of a motion picture studio. Work on the first subject comedy started Monday, no time being lost, as a technical crew had been busily engaged at the studio for a week.

The company which made the journey South on Saturday included, in addition to Rose Melville, the creator of Sis Hopkins, the director, Robert Ellis, Frank Minzey, Olive West, Arthur Albertson, Henry Murdock, Richard Purdon and cameramen and other assistants. Frank Minzey is well remembered through his long connection with the Sis Hopkins of the stage, and he is expected to prove equally popular when seen in similar roles on the screen.

National Board Fully Indorsed

Its Activities in the Anti-Censorship Fight Will Be Aided by the Manufacturers.

THE conference between the representatives of the National Board of Censorship and the representatives of the producers which was partially reported in last week's issue, resulted to the entire satisfaction of both parties.

There was some discussion as to just what form the activities of the Board should take hereafter. The representatives of the Board declared that censoring pictures was by no means their most important task. Their most important work was to spread the gospel of the freedom of the screen. The Board said one of the representatives wants to conduct a campaign of education. It wants to make known as widely as possible its philosophy of voluntary supervision and prove how much superior it is in every way to legalized censorship. The Board, the speaker continued, was not interested in the fight against legalized censorship because legalized censorship might hurt this or that manufacturer, but solely because it regarded censorship as a political heresy and as a very serious menace to the freedom of expression. The Board looked upon its co-operation with the producers as a very important part of the civic and social work which had been advanced through all the societies represented in the People's Institute.

There was a general assent to this approval of the Board's policy. It was decided to support the Board in all its missionary work against censorship. The expense incident thereto was apportioned among the producers in accordance with the number of films which each product submitted for the Board's examination.

QUICK WORK BY MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Within twenty-four hours after the ship was sighted off New York harbor, the Mutual Weekly was showing at the Palace theater, New York, animated pictures of the Ford Peace Party on its way to Europe aboard the Oscar II. This is extremely quick work, since all film must suffer an inevitable delay going through the custom house. However, the desire of the Mutual Weekly to give its patrons the quickest service took the editor himself, Pell Mitchell, down the bay on a tug to expedite delivery.

NEW PRODUCING COMPANY AT SALT LAKE.

Briant Stringham Young of Salt Lake City, formerly president and general manager of the Satchwa Film Corporation, will, in the future, be connected with a new company now in process of formation, to be called the Pioneer Film corporation, with headquarters in Salt Lake City. The new corporation has several contracts on hand, in addition to a large number of negatives from completed pictures. These will soon be put on the market in regular releases.

Metro Busy with New Year

Many Promising Feature Productions Are Planned as 1916 Dawns.

METRO begins the new year with a rush that bodes well for the coming season, according to an announcement made at the new offices of that corporation at the Longacre Building. Two new directors have been added to Metro's already large staff, and a new star will shine from the Metro firmament, a new leading woman, who later will doubtless achieve stellar rank, will be seen and the initial work has been done on many new and elaborate motion picture productions.

O. A. C. Lund, who has a long line of motion picture achievement to his credit, is one of the new directors, and the first feature he will produce for his new connections promises to be one of the most notable and unusual ever planned for the Metro program. The locale of this feature, which is yet unnamed, is in the snowy wilds of Labrador, and thither Mr. Lund will go with a company of Metro players, headed by Hamilton Revelle and a very well-known leading woman, who has been selected, but whose name is at present withheld. The production will be made under the auspices of Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., for the Metro program. An unusually strong supporting cast has been engaged.

Metro also announces that Julius Steger, the popular dramatic actor, who recently joined forces with Metro as a permanent star, will begin work immediately upon the strong five-act feature production, "The Blindness of Love." This dramatic vehicle, which was especially selected with Mr. Steger's gifts in mind, was written by Ruth Mitchel Comfort, the well-known dramatist and novelist. The production will be made by Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., for the Metro program, and will be directed by Charles Horan. Mr. Horan recently completed "The Rose of the Alley," in which little Mary Miles Minter is starred.

Mabel Taliaferro, who achieved fame on the speaking stage in "Polly of the Circus," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and other notable productions, will begin work on two new Metro wonderplays. Edwin Carewe, who directed Emily Stevens in the two wonderful features, "Destiny, or the Soul of a Woman" and "The House of Tears," and Ethel Barrymore, in "The Final Judgment," will direct Miss Taliaferro in the two new feature productions.

William Nigh, who is at present directing Valli Valli, in "Her Debt of Honor," has a few exterior scenes to make before completing the feature, and as soon as they are finished he will begin work on another big Metro production in which Lionel Barrymore and Marguerite Snow will be starred. This five-part photodrama is still unnamed, and was written by Mr. Nigh himself. This feature will be produced by the Columbia Pictures Corporation for release on the Metro program.

Howard Truesdell, who has been associated with Charles Horan, as assistant director at the Rolfe studio, is already at work on a new Metro production as co-director with Fred Balshofer, which will be made by the Quality Pictures Corporation. Mr. Truesdell and Mr. Balshofer will go to northern Maine to make the exterior scenes, where scores of thrilling and exciting situations, including a chase by a pack of ferocious timber wolves and a hand-to-hand fight with a bull moose will be photographed. The production is still unnamed, but will be made by the Quality Pictures Corporation for the Metro program.

Mary Miles Minter, who is in St. Augustine, where she has just completed the final scenes in "Dimples," a five-part Metro feature released February 14, will begin work immediately upon another feature production, "Love Triumphant." The exteriors of this feature will be made in Florida, and a majority of the strong supporting cast, that appeared with Miss Minter in "Dimples," will remain to work in the new picture. Thomas J. Carrigan, her new leading man, will be featured in "Love Triumphant" with Miss Minter.

A CORRECTION.

The Premier Program Corporation wish to announce that it has not leased the studio at 11 East Fourteenth street, formerly occupied by the Biograph and Kleine companies. Premier Program is exclusively a marketing organization, although two of its producing companies already have permanent eastern studios. One is located at Tappan, N. Y., and the other at Cliffside, N. J. Both of these studios are fully equipped, have ample room and are modern in every respect. For the present they are sufficient to meet the needs of the Premier Program, although negotiations are now pending and options have been secured for additional studios in the south during the winter months.

Frederick Montague Appears in "The Bait"

THE completed cast of "The Bait," the first five-reel Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, production David Horsley will release under the Mutual's new expansion policy, includes not only such well-known players as William Clifford and Betty Harte, along with others of reputation, but has been materially strengthened by the engagement for the picture of Frederick Montague, a legitimate player of many years' experience. He has been cast for the character of Tom Sloan the gambler, a part he is particularly fitted to portray.

Frederick Montague.

Mr. Montague brings with him, besides his legitimate stage experience, the fruits of five years' work before the camera. His first film engagement was with Thanhouser. Later he joined the Vitagraph Company in the east and came to the Coast, eighteen months ago, remaining with the same company only a short time, for Lasky engaged him for Col. Moreau in "Cameo Kirby"; Police Inspector Cregan in "A Gentleman of Leisure"; Fairfax in "What's His Name" and parts in other productions.

Mr. Montague was born in London, England, in 1860. He made his debut on the dramatic stage at the Globe theater in London twenty-five years ago, appearing in "False Shame." Following this he played important parts in companies headed by Edwin Booth, Thos. W. Kean and Mr. Sothern and for a number of seasons was leading man for Mme. Modjeska. Eighteen years ago he came to America from London with an Augustin Daly company.

"THE NE'ER-DO-WELL" BREAKING RECORDS.

Not since the release of "The Spoilers" has filmland taken more notice of a film drama than that evidenced in "The Ne'er-Do-Well." There are many similar details in connection with these two great dramas filmed by the Selig Polyscope Company. Both stories were written by Rex Beach, the novelist; both run about the same length, nine reels; both were produced by Colin Campbell, the well-known director; both were filmed under the personal supervision of William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company; both deal with red-blooded Americans and true American life. The record achieved so far by "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is unusual. Rights for this wonderful film drama are going like hot cakes and demands by mail and wire have been received by the Selig Company even before the film was ready for general release. Kathlyn Williams takes the leading role in "The "Ne'er-Do-Well," being supported by an exceptional company of players, including Wheeler Oakman, Frank Clark, Sydney Smith and Eugenie Besserer. A majority of "The Ne'er-Do-Well" scenes were filmed in the Panama Canal Zone. Life as it was during the work on the Panama Canal is faithfully reproduced; interior scenes of old Panama prisons; odd nooks and corners in Colon; work along the big canal; and the interiors of the homes of Spanish aristocracy are shown with every attention to true detail. The story of "The Ne'er-Do-Well" opens in New York City, and there is a battle every bit as realistic as that shown in "The Spoilers." Wonderful photography, acting, and an exciting story combine to make "The Ne'er-Do-Well" one of the greatest of film productions and a drama that will add to the laurels of the Selig Company.

PRESIDENT LAEMMLE GOES TO COAST.

President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, left the day before Christmas for Universal City, where he will spend five or six weeks in looking over the city and attending to certain business details of the company. Afterward he will leave for Hot Springs, where he intends to spend three weeks, unless called home by business.

Next Week's Vitagraphs

There Will Be Nine Reels of Drama and Comedy of the Usual Good Quality.

THE Vitagraph weekly program announced for release during the week commencing Monday, January 10, will consist of nine reels of drama and one of comedy. Monday's releases will comprise a four-part drama and two single-reel dramas. A "Sidney Drew Comedy" is announced for Friday, and on Saturday a three-part Broadway Star Feature will close the week's releases.

Scene from "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel" (Vitagraph).

The four-part drama announced for Monday in the Personally Picked Program is "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel," written by Archibald Clavering Gunter and produced by Theodore Marston with an all-star cast including Charles Richman, Leo Delaney, Arline Pretty, William Dunn, Robert Gaillard and Ethel Corcoran. The story holds the interest from the beginning and in a thrilling climax audiences will see a large steam yacht blown to pieces by 50 pounds of dynamite.

The plot tells of the efforts of rascally attorneys to push the claims of common law widows to the estate of a wealthy man. They plan to rid themselves of the real widow and endeavor to obtain evidence by spying on her in her room in a huge hotel, emptied by a scare of sickness. It is a mystery story of unusual originality handled in a different manner, capably directed and splendidly acted.

"A Cripple Creek Cinderella," a one-part drama released with the locked reel program, was produced at the Western studio of the Vitagraph Comany by Ulysses Davis and was written by Daisy Smith. The cast includes William Duncan, George Stanley, Alfred Vosburgh, Mrs. Vosburgh and Carleton Weatherby.

"When Lin Came Home," a single-reel drama, completes Monday's releases. This drama is one of real heart interest and employs a cast of players including George Holt, J. Carleton Weatherby, Miss Wolbert and William Weston. The story was written by L. Case Russell and produced by William Wolbert.

Scene from "By Love Redeemed" (Vitagraph).

Friday, January 14, "When Two Play a Game," a one-part comedy featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, is announced for release. The story was written by William B. Courtney and produced by Mr. Drew. The theme shows a wife with many women friends daily at the house, knitting socks for soldiers, much to her husband's discomfort. He plans to escape this unpleasantness and suddenly becomes a victim of aphasia, with the help of a friend. His wife hears of his plans and resolves to teach him a lesson by playing the "lost memory game" herself. After many complications both confess and "make up."

A three-part Broadway Star Feature, "By Love Redeemed," written by Alice Williams and produced under the direction of C. Jay Williams, is announced for release on Saturday, January 17. The cast includes Jewell Hunt, Logan Paul, Garry McGarry, Anders Randolf, Paul Hornung, and Belle Bruce.

In the story is a young girl abused by her brutal father, who one day, in a fit of rage, strikes her on the head with the butt end of a revolver. The girl suffers from bone pressure, caused by the blow, and in consequence becomes a petty criminal. Later a prominent surgeon performs an operation and the girl recovers her normal mentality. She secures a position as a maid and one day her father appears and tries to force her help him rob the safe. In the struggle which follows he is killed and the girl is left to marry the man she loves.

Motion Pictures in Honduras

Conditions Prevent the Establishment of More Than One Photoplay House in Tegucigalpa.

CONSUL E. M. Lawton, Tegucigalpa, says that there is but one motion picture theater in the consular district of that city, viz., the Teatro de Variedades. A number of causes combine to prevent the industry from being more successful, among which are poor transportation facilities, the small purchasing power of the masses, the sparse population generally, and the lack of electric service in all the other interior towns.

In this city shows are given three or four evenings a week, commencing at 8.30 or 9 p. m., and lasting until midnight or after. The prices of admission vary with the quality of the subject. Old pictures of the ordinary type of drama, comedy, etc., are sometimes displayed at prices ranging from 10 to 30 cents United States currency, depending on the location of the seats. Other nights, when such well-known films as "Les Miserables" are run, the prices are trebled; and for ordinary new subjects the usual charge is about 50 cents for the best seats.

No attempt has been made here to try continuous performances. The Tegucigalpa consulate has been endeavoring to interest persons in establishing small theaters with popular-price continuous shows. One firm, which is equipping a restaurant with a Japanese garden, has asked to be informed about films and accessories, and another firm has inquired for apparatus which can be operated by a portable light for use in towns where there is no electric service. With outfits of that sort a service might be established in some eight or ten towns within a reasonable radius of this city. The local theater rents its films from Panama on a basis of 50 per cent. of the receipts. So onerous is this charge that the question naturally arises, why would it not pay some American manufacturer to send a representative to tour Central America and contract with the established theaters for film service? There are probably 20 or more theaters in the five Republics that could use films for an average of 20 programs per month, and one central office, say in Guatemala City, could attend to the distribution and service generally. The writer has no positive knowledge of conditions outside of the Tegucigalpa consular district except as told by the owner of the local theater, but the latter is greatly interested in the development of some such plan and states unequivocally that such a project is much needed and could be made very successful.

All classes of pictures are popular, including comic, tragic, cowboy, chases, historical, war and detective stories. Perhaps the most popular are Wild West scenes, where feats of horsemanship and quick gun play are generous components. All reading matter should be in Spanish.

HARRY PALMER WRITES COMEDY FOR "BUDD" ROSS.

That not all Harry Palmer's time is given up to animating "Keepin' Up with the Joneses" for the Mutual program is evidenced by the acceptance of a scenario from his pen for the use of "Budd" Ross, a Gaumont star. Cartoonist Palmer's offering is called "Ham and Eggs." It will be released as a Casino Star Comedy January 16. It is being directed by Edwin Middleton.

Eight Busy Directors

They Are Making Forthcoming Equitable Releases—President Spiegel Pleased.

EIGHT Equitable directors are at work on forthcoming features, soon to be released by that company. This excess of four more productions a month than the releasing activities call for permits of the optimism of President Arthur H. Spiegel in the anticipation that very shortly eight productions ahead will afford the opportunity of diversifying the program to a greater extent than has been possible, with the concern just entering its third month of actual production.

Frank Sheridan.

John Ince is at work with Frank Sheridan, Arthur Ashley and Mary Charleson in "The Struggle," which is in the course of work at the Flushing studio.

Frank Powell is busily engaged assembling casts and securing locations for the initial work of the noted author, Richard Le Gallienne, "The Chain Invisible," in which Emmett Corrigan is to star. Mr. Powell is to take his company to the middle west, where the exteriors will be staged. The middle west being opulent in rugged landscapes and mountain scenery, will furnish admirable backgrounds for the stirring story to be enacted.

E. Mason Hopper is at Naco, Ariz., in the very heart of the great American desert, where Gail Kane and a supporting cast of twenty principals are staging the principal scenes in "Her God," which will be the second Gail Kane-Equitable production under Hopper's supervision.

Charles Seay, directing Muriel Ostriche, has been traveling throughout the southland for five weeks, he and his company being the honored guests of Con T. Kennedy's itinerant circus. The play being staged by Seay, "Babette of the Ballyhoo," calling in its entirety for circus surroundings and atmosphere, is being staged with the most faithful adherence to the author's ideas.

Harry Handworth is in charge of production of "The Pain Flower," in which Marguerite Leslie, formerly leading woman with Sir Henry Irving, will make her debut on the screen. "The Pain Flower" is being staged at Flushing, L. I., with several out-of-town places figuring in Handworth's itinerary for the exteriors.

Mary Boland.

S. E. V. Taylor will begin work this week on the elaborate production of "Passersby," contemplated by Equitable. "Passersby," from the pen of C. Haddon Chambers, is being scenarioized by the author himself, and Equitable has promised Mr. Taylor an all-star cast. Mr. Taylor completed "Her Great Hour" a few days ago, but fortunately was in possession of the scenario of "Passersby" some weeks ago, and this promises more novelties than characterizes "Her Great Hour," which is enthusiastically referred to by the Equitable concern as a picturesque and startling story.

Joseph A. Golden and Edmund Lawrence, of the Triumph staff, are working on "The Ransom," in which Julia Dean stars, and "Three Pairs of Shoes," with Mary Boland in the star role.

All in all, President Spiegel considers the activities of his concern seriously progressing toward a goal of class and distinctness to which his ambitions have been directed since he began studying the field a year ago.

Mutual Has Noted Writers

Several of Wide Fame Are Supplying Material for Mutual Features.

IN ITS determination to present the very best in story and plot in the motion pictures released through its service, the Mutual Film Corporation is drawing upon the services of the best fiction writers of America. Among its regular and occasional contributors to the scenario departments of the Mutual's producing companies are the names of some of the most widely read short story writers.

One of the most frequent scenario contributors to the American Film Corporation at Santa Barbara is Kenneth B. Clarke, the fiction writer whose short stories appear in the Saturday Evening Post.

The series of humorous motion picture stories by Charles H. Van Loan, which were published in the Saturday Evening Post, "Buck Parvin in the Movies," are being released tri-weekly in the Mutual as Mustang Star Features.

A third well-known fiction writer and contributor to the current magazines who has been engaged to write a series of Mutual photoplays, is Frank H. Spearman, the author of numberless railroad yarns, whose efforts at scenario writing are now being directed to the Signal Film Corporation's picturized novel, "The Girl and the Game."

Then there is Roy McCardell, the New York newspaper man, and the winner of the $10,000 prize for furnishing the idea and the scenario for the spectacular serial, "The Diamond from the Sky," which recently finished its first run releases.

Rufus Steele, another writer for the Saturday Evening Post, has contributed a worthy addition to the Mutual Program in the plot and story of "The Deathlock," a Mutual Masterpicture, to be released Dec. 30.

"The Secret Agent," a Gaumont three-reel "Rialto" release featuring Robert T. Haines, is the filmization of a Saturday Evening Post story by Arthur E. Stringer.

"The Other Side of the Door," an American Mutual Masterpicture, to be released January 6, is taken from a book by the same name written by Lucia Chamberlain.

Rennold Wolf, the well-known New York dramatic critic, and the author of many of the most popular musical and theatrical successes for several seasons back, has written several comedies for the Gaumont Company. "Hunting," a one-reel funny picture featuring Budd Ross, is the most recent offering from Mr. Wolf's pen to be filmed for Mutual release.

LUCILLE TAFT AND ALEXANDER GADEN IN "THE DRIFTER."

The big five-reel feature Richard Garrick will next direct for the Gaumont for release on the Mutual program will star Alexander Gaden and Miss Lucille Taft. The play is "The Drifter," from the pen of John B. Clymer. Miss Iva Shepard will also have a prominent part in the production. A great many scenes require a race track setting. Since there will be no race meet at Jacksonville in the near future, Director Garrick will transport his company to the nearest meet of the winter circuit. It is thought the players will go to New Orleans, although there is a possibility the work may be organized in time for the meet at Havana, Cuba. "The Drifter" will follow Gaumont's "As a Woman Sows" as that company's Mutual Masterpicture, edition de luxe, contribution to the Mutual program.

GOFF VISITS MIDDLE WEST BRANCHES.

A. W. Goff, assistant general manager of the V-L-S-E, left New York last week for a tour of the Big Four exchanges which will take him to Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Goff's visit to these offices of the Big Four is eagerly looked for by the branch managers of the V-L-S-E, for the reason that the new sales director can advise from a practical as well as a theoretical viewpoint, having conducted branch offices throughout the entire section of the country in which he will travel.

Mr. Goff will spend part of his time in promoting the cause of open bookings, of which he is one of the most ardent apostles.

Zukor Raps Sex Plays

President of Famous Players Film Company Discusses Method of Discovering What the Public Wants.

"THERE is just one way of determining what the public wants," said Adolph Zukor, founder and president of the Famous Players Film Company, in discussing the old yet ever new question, "and that is to take the consensus of opinion of as many exhibitors as possible. This opinion should be based solely upon the actual record of the results obtained by showing various types of film in their respective theaters. It is in accordance with this view that the Famous Players receives from the Paramount Pictures Corporation, its releasing medium, weekly reports on every feature that is produced.

"This report covers every section of the country and a similar index extends to the foreign nations as well. From a careful study of its averages, it is simple for the producer to determine exactly what kind of films are well received and those of inferior popularity. There is no more effective method devisable for the obtaining of accurate and detailed information of a really comprehensive nature. No one exhibitor, however judicious or well informed, can ever draw proper conclusions from his own limited field of observation.

"Though the exhibitor can, of course, determine his own needs, it is impossible for the producer to accede to the demands of the individual exhibitor. To paraphrase a familiar line, he must meet the greatest needs of the greatest number.

"The producer who attempts to determine on his own initiative just what the public wants, or who attempts to force the public to want what he thinks that it ought to want, is predestined to come to grief. There are those who consistently attempt to foist upon the public a salacious type of film, either under the guise of preaching sermons or with the frank intention of appealing to the sexes. The temporary success of that style of production has lured several manufacturers to release plays of this sort, but the records of the stage play and of the photoplay prove absolutely that the success is merely temporary and that the releasing of such pictures is poor judgment from a business standpoint. 'In the long run,' clean pictures pay best, whether they are comedies or dramas.

"That the frankly suggestive film is a detriment to the industry as a whole there can be no question, inasmuch as it spurs the censors to increased activity and gives the agitators for censorship grounds upon which to base their arguments.

"Our records show that clean comedies and the powerful dramas of the better sort are the supreme favorites today. The lasting success of films of this type and the heavy demands for the appearance of the stars in them proves beyond doubt that the public today is getting what it wants. Any new attempt to gauge 'what the public wants' by different standards than those of country-wide reports on the successes of the immediate past and of the present is doomed to failure. As I have said before, it is a physical impossibility to produce films to suit the requirements of any given locality. The standards of measurement must be broad and there is no possible way in which to make them so except that which has already been adopted.

"Individual reports are also made on the productions grouping them according to the star which appears in them. In this way we are enabled to keep strict account of the popularity of Mary Pickford, Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, Hazel Dawn and John Barrymore, and to see at a glance in what type of play they are best received. The constant tendency of our popularity pendulum to swing toward the stronger dramatic plays and toward the lighter comedies has determined our policy for the coming year.

"So far as the source of material is concerned, experience has shown that to be of no importance whatever. It makes no difference whether a play or a novel is being adapted, or whether the subject which is being produced is an original scenario prepared especially for the screen. There is just one point of importance: has the finished product real screen value; is it a good photoplay?"

FREE TO EXHIBITORS.

The Moving Picture World will send free of charge to any exhibitor who asks for it its literature on the censorship question and its brochure on the Sunday Law. Sooner or later every exhibitor will have use for either the one or the other and, in most cases, probably he will need the two pamphlets. We have distributed a large number and we want every exhibitor to have this extra service which goes free to all readers and subscribers of The Moving Picture World. SEND FOR THIS USEFUL LITTLE LIBRARY TO-DAY.

The First Selig-Tribune

Initial Edition of the New News Pictorial Weekly Is Just Out—Covers a Wide Field.

THE first edition of the Selig-Tribune News Pictorial was released by the General Film Company on Monday, January 3. Though it is rather early to estimate the degree of popular favor with which this new picture weekly will be received a glance at the titles of subjects covered indicate that it will cover a wide range of territory and subjects and should be, in consequence, a welcome number on the program of any motion picture theater. It is in reality a semi-weekly as it will be issued twice each week. A few of the interesting features are:

Scenes from the various battle fields of the great European conflict, supplied by John D. McCutcheon and other war correspondents; the new $8,000,000 bridge at Memphis, Tenn.; exclusive views of Col. E. M. House, friend of President Wilson, about to embark for Europe, On the same vessel leaving New York City are shown Captain Boy-Ed, formerly naval attache at the German Embassy, recalled at the request of President Wilson, and also Brand Whitlock, novelist, former Mayor of Toledo, and now U. S. Minister to Belgium, who returns to his duties. Kewpie, the baby elephant at the Selig Zoo, at Los Angeles, is shown partaking of breakfast and how he gets it is a study in natural history.

At Washington, D. C., the pages of the U. S. Senate are entertained at dinner by Vice-President Marshall, while guards watch plants manufacturing war ammunition at Aetna, Indiana. At Revere Beach, Mass., a roller coaster, wrecked by a gale, falls and crushes two houses and injures many persons. How the holiday spirit invades the Navy and how the bluejackets on the battleship Nebraska act as hosts to hundreds of poor children will prove of true heart interest.

Waldo Walker Becomes Assistant Director

WALDO WALKER, formerly of the publicity department of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company studios in Los Angeles, has been made assistant to Director Frank Lloyd. Mr. Walker has had a varied career, starting out as a newspaper and magazine writer. He "broke into" the Century Magazine with his first story while a student at the University of Chicago, and subsequently contributed to various eastern magazines, being perhaps best known for his "Green Book" series of stories on "Sammy's," a noted Chicago theatrical cafe, which he wrote under the name of "Bailey Lane."

Waldo Walker.

At College Walker was a member of the Dramatic Club of the University of Chicago, and appeared in both amateur and professional theatrical productions. At night he worked as manager of the Chicago Telephone Company, and on leaving college his employers induced him to abandon an artistic career by appointing him day manager of the north side exchanges. Unable, however, to resist the lure of the footlights, Walker returned to the stage, going out with the eastern road company of "A Stubborn Cinderella," the musical hit of a few seasons ago. After various engagements and also further excursions in the newspaper and magazine field, he came to the Pacific coast and went into the motion picture field by becoming connected with the Morosco film offices. Waldo Walker has made many friends in the business during his short career in filmdom and receives the hearty well wishes from all. His first work as Assistant Director commenced with the production of the Anna Held subject, "Madame La Presidente."

ANOTHER LONDON AGENT COMING.

George B. Cormack, of George B. Cormack & Co., Cinematograph Film Distributors, London, is in New York to complete some important film contracts.

Herrington Against Tax on Gross Receipts

President of National League Declares Himself on Important Principle.

IN THE course of an interview with a Moving Picture World man on the question of federal taxation, President Herrington said: "I cannot understand the purposes of the men who advocate taxation upon the gross receipts of any business, especially that of the motion picture exhibitor. Should Congress enact such a law it will be necessary to put every motion picture theater in the country under immediate government supervision. This could be done in two ways only: Either the exhibitor will have to make daily or weekly sworn statements of his receipts and file them with the Internal Revenue Office or the Federal Government will have a special agent in the box office who collects the tax on the spot. In either event your business would cease to be your own. What becomes everybody's business willl then be nobody's business. I know of on other business in the country where such a tax is being imposed. The imposition of such a tax is every bit as foreign to the spirit of our institutions as the establishment of censorship. Nothing of this sort exists in England. There is but one government in Europe claiming to be modern and progressive which has such a tax and that government is the government of France.

"Now, you can make this as strong as you like: The National League is unalterably opposed to any form of Federal taxation under any pretence whatever, but it is especially opposed to the imposition of such a percentage tax and it will fight the influences back of it with all the power at its command.

"FRED J. HERRINGTON,
"President M. P. E. L. of A."

CINCINNATI EXHIBITORS ELECT OFFICERS.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, as its full title now is, was held at the Hotel Sinton on the afternoon of December 28, after a heated but friendly campaign between two duly nominated tickets. The count of ballots after the fight showed that the entire Red ticket, headed by F. L. Emmert, had won, other officers elected being as follows: First vice-president, A. G. Hettesheimer; second vice-president, M. Marcus; treasurer, John J. Huss; managing secretary, H. Serkowich; sergeant-at-arms, Jesse J. Meis. A clever and fetching feature of the Red propaganda was the presentation at the door, to each entering member, of a red carnation by a red-haired young lady, the daughter of Mr. Hettesheimer. President Emmert and several of the other newly-elected officers were called upon by the members for remarks after the election, responding in happy style, and predicting for the organization as well as for exhibitors in general the best year in history. President Emmert laid special stress upon the necessity for maintaining high standards, in order to impress upon the public the fact that moving pictures are intended to elevate, and not to play down to public taste. A Dutch luncheon was served to the members after the election.

Adrien Avare, Colorist

Expert in Tinting and Toning Will Embellish the Product of the Raver Film Company.

FOR the coloring, tinting and toning of the first release of the Raver Film Corporation, Mr. Raver, president of the company, has secured the expert services of Monsieur Adrien Avare. Mr. Avare for many years was connected with some of the biggest producers of motion pictures in France. He was in complete charge of their technical departments. While he has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the business, he has given particular study to the coloring of film. He has compiled several very successful formulas for duo-tone work that are astounding. Those who have experimented with this end of coloring know well what great difficulty is encountered in securing perfect separation of the colors. They invariably blend, forming a third color that is not desired and form an unevenness that mars the beauty. Mr. Avare has solved several of these double coloring problems.

He has avoided hasty jumps from one extreme color to another, but has blended with his duo-tone process so that it appears as though one hue flows into the other. The tints were also picked with a view to the scenery and setting to which they were to be applied. They are true to the objects they dress.

Less than 200 feet of the six reels which comprise the production of "The Other Girl" will be uncolored. As Mr. Avare remarked, "It is a production that adapts itself splendidly to colors." However, he does not believe in applying tints where the natural black and white will deliver its message a bit more forcefully. Coloring demands a deep study, as it must be applied or not applied from both the scenic and story standpoint.

Thomas H. Persons

THOMAS H. PERSONS, superintendent of the Selig Jungle-Zoo, at Los Angeles, Calif., was recently snapped at a time when he was giving two automobile loads of Selig actors and actresses starting out on location the "once over." Now that all the Selig players have been transferred to the Pacific Coast for the winter months, it keeps genial Tom hustling and adds to his already manifold responsibilities. Photographs of Mr. Persons are few and far between, but his many friends in Filmland will immediately recognize Tom's smiling face. By the way, Tom recently granted an interview to Charles Van Loan of Collier's Weekly, in which he told Van Loan new facts anent the operations of the first motion picture company ever working in California. William N. Selig, president of the Selig Company, had an idea that the Golden State, with its perpetual sunshine, would be an ideal locality for motion picture production, and he sent the late Francis Boggs to Los Angeles.

Thomas H. Persons.

Madeline Traverse

IN MADELINE TRAVERSE the World Film Corporation has a star acknowledged to be one of the most important women players in the film world. Miss Traverse comes by her success naturally, being the descendant of an old theatrical family. Her father was Richard W. Trellegan, one time proprietor of the Boston Museum and of many important stock companies playing throughout the United States. Miss Traverse had her first experience under her father's direction. Being always a large child for her age, she was playing important ingenue parts at twelve, and at fifteen was intrusted with the leads in all the old standard stock plays produced by her father's company.

After her father's death she traveled all over Europe studying music, fencing, dancing and spending much of her time on horseback. On her return to this country she resumed her theatrical career with Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady," both in New York and en tour to the Coast and to London. She then played in "Joseph and His Brethren," understudying Pauline Fredericks, and playing her role on numerous occasions. With Cohan and Harris she played the adventuress in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" throughout the Chicago run of the piece, and afterwards in New York. Her picture career has been varied and important. She began with the Reliance Company, appearing in such pictures as "The Other Woman," "For the Love of a Man," "The Flower Girl" and "Leah Kleschna." She came under contract with the World Film Corporation, to support Robert Warwick in the picturization of the novel, "The Ambition of Mark Truitt," after which she is to be seen in numerous striking portrayals.

Madeline Traverse.

"What Ruby Did"

A Comedy in Eight Hours Produced at New Rochelle and Thereabouts—How Five Reporters Became Actors.

THE title of this comedy of newspaper life is "What Ruby Did." It was enacted last week at the Thanhouser studio and on the road between New York and New Rochelle, Leon L. Rubinstein playing the leading role, supported by Cissy Fitzgerald, Edward Earl, Charles E. Kimball, Hal Ford and others—five newspaper men, if you please.

SCENE 1.—Office in Which Scattered Papers Denote Great Activity.—Ruby, seated before desk, dictates a note to stenographer, naming the Hotel Hermitage, New York, as the place and 11 o'clock Tuesday morning as the time for the gathering of a party of newspaper men bound for New Rochelle to play reporters in "What Doris Did," a picture featuring Doris Grey, selected as the most beautiful girl at the Boston Exhibitors' Ball. The reporters are asked to bring evening clothes.

Scene from "What Ruby Did."

SCENE 2.—Lobby of Hotel Hermitage at 11:15 Tuesday Morning.—Casual loungers reading the morning papers. Young man with suitcase glances around expectantly and, seeing no one he knows, finds seat on lounge. Presently another young man, also with suit case, repeats much the same business. Ruby enters hastily at 11:20 and gathers a party of five, including the two men seated on the lounge He addresses them collectively.

CUT IN.—"We Will Start Right Away."

Ruby exits into cafe. Men standing in group converse, indicating the exchange of brilliant repartee.

INSERT.—Fifteen Minutes Later.

SCENE 3.—Same as No. 2.

Men in group register impatience. Ruby enters, accompanied by Cissy Fitzgerald, Charles E. Kimball and Hal Ford. Expressions on the faces of waiting men brighten.

INSERT.—"Now We're Off."

SCENE 4.—In Front of Hotel.

Party is distributed in three cars—one rickety taxi, one antiquated limousine, one modern limousine. Reporters enter the two first mentioned.

SCENES 5 TO 10.—Glimpses of Merry Party en Route.

SCENE 11.—In Front of Edison Studio.

Three reporters exit from taxi and look for other machines.

CUT IN.—Ten Minutes Later.

Antiquated limousine draws up to curb and party of newspaper men is complete as in hotel lobby. Faces again indicate impatience.

CUT IN.—"Where Is Ruby?"

Modern limousine appears. Ruby jumps out. Much activity. Driver of taxi goes for gasoline. Edward Earl shakes hands with reporters.

CUT IN.—Ten Minutes Later.

Taxi returns—Mr. Earl enters car with reporters and the three machines move up road.

INSERT.—Some Time Later.

SCENE 12.—Thanhouser Studio.

Actors and actresses, electricians and property boys are moving about. Reporters meet Director George Foster Platt and Doris Grey. There is much conversation and glancing at watches.

SCENE 13.—Dining Hall at Pepperday Inn.

Ruby at head of table presides over an elaborate luncheon—animation increasing with each course, reaches a climax in impromptu dancing.

SCENE 14.—Thanhouser Studio (set in duplication of Exhibitors' Ball).

Reporters, in evening dress and otherwise, stand around with extras waiting their turn to be used by Director Platt.

CUT IN.—One Hour Later. Reporters still waiting.

CUT IN.—Two Hours Later. Reporters still waiting.

CUT IN.—Two Hours and One-half Later. Reporter looks uneasily at watch, then approaches Messrs. Platt and Rubinstein. Brief conversation—Ruby nods.

CUT IN.—"In Five Minutes."

Consultation among volunteer extras while ball scenes are being photographed.

INSERT.—5:30 O'clock.

SCENE 15.—Platform for Reception Committee.

Doris Grey shakes hands with newspaper men.

SCENE 16.—Outside of Thanhouser Studio (rain and darkness).

Mr. Earl and three reporters with bags enter taxi.

INSERT.—One Hour Later.

SCENE 17.—Taxi with Punctured Tire at Curb of Deserted Road. Chauffeur and reporters confer dejectedly. Chauffeur examines tire, then looks up.

CUT IN.—"It's Too Bad I Ain't Got the Stuff to Mend It." Passengers gather luggage and disappear in the night.

SCENES 18 to 50.—Wet streets unpeopled save for three figures plodding onward.

SCENE 51.—The Third Avenue Elevated Road.

Miss Alleen Faye

MISS ALLEEN FAYE, late of the European stage, has recently made her way to America, afire with enthusiasm born of a knowledge of America's vast opportunities and remarkable screen accomplishments. Miss Faye has herself had considerable experience in pictures and is able to write her own scenarios. It is also interesting to know that she began her theatrical career in Hamburg, at the age of eleven, and has played before the late King Edward of England acquitting herself so well that he presented her with his photograph in memory of the occasion.

Miss Alleen Faye.

Some time later Miss Faye turned to the terpsichorean art and after several years of hard study became the prima ballerina of an opera company. After turning the second time to the playing of what is known in America as straight parts, her unusual adaptability to the drama in all its phases was noticed by a film producer on the Continent, who tendered her an excellent offer to enter the realm of the more popular silent drama.

Miss Faye is a beautiful young woman, with a wealth of hair of the Titian variety. She has, as would be expected, a charm of manner which should make her popular among American people and American studios. This young actress displays a large admiration for the American way of doing things, and will no doubt fall easily in line with American methods of screen production.

MacNAMARA WRITES UNIVERSAL STORY.

"The Poet's Progress" is the title of a poet's comedy with a different plot, which has been written by Walter MacNamara for Matt Moore and Jane Gail. Miss Gail plays the role of a Smiling Slavey and Matt is the poet. Mr. Moore is cast in Director Paton's submarine picture, and for that part has to have long, wavey hair. This long hair so impressed Mr. MacNamara that he wrote a poet photoplay for him, which is now being produced at Universal City Junior, Leonia.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Wm. N. Selig's Opinion of the Selig-Tribune.

SPEAKING of the Selig-Tribune, the first release of which was made Monday, January 3, William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, said the other day:

"In my opinion the Selig-Tribune will meet a want long felt by exhibitors of motion pictures. These exhibitors desire a news film that is strictly up-to-date, interesting and entertaining. The patrons of the various motion picture theaters have felt there was something lacking in the news pictorial films and have not hesitated so to express themselves not only to the exhibitors of motion pictures, but to the film manufacturers. It has been my ambition to supply that something.

"When I concluded to sever our connection with the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial and to manufacture and release a news film that would be something 'different,' I naturally was pleased to co-operate with the Chicago daily and Sunday Tribune, as the reputation of that publicity medium for universal pictorial and news service is flattering. I am sure that the pictureplay public will be more than satisfied with the Selig-Tribune. No time, money, or thought will be spared to make this news film everything it ought to be."

Lucien C. Wheeler, editor-in-chief of the Selig-Tribune news film, has been working with mathematical accuracy and with the speed of a whirlwind in the Selig general offices ever since he was appointed. An able and well trained correspondent, Mr. Wheeler, has seen service on the staff of the New York World, of the Washington Post and of Collier's Weekly. Besides, he is a fine judge of news pictorial "scoops," and is an adept in securing them.

At the time of writing, the completed plans for the opening releases of the Selig-Tribune give fine promise of success and popularity, and this is still more confidently assured when it is remembered that the pictorial productions are under the expert supervision of H. C. Hoagland, general manager of the Selig Polyscope Company.

The first number of the Selig-Tribune made its first appearance in Chicago theaters on Sunday, January 2. A number of theaters, including the Kedzie Annex, 3214 West Madison street; the Parkway, South Michigan avenue; the Keystone, 3912 Sheridan Road, and the South Chicago theater, 9220 Commercial avenue, booked it for the day mentioned. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, following the initial presentation, the Selig-Tribune was booked by a large number of Chicago playhouses, including McVicker's theater. The Selig Polyscope Company says that the Selig-Tribune is being cordially received by the trade and that the advance bookings are at least twice as large as at first expected.

Among the interesting news pictures shown in the first number of the Selig-Tribune were intimate views of Colonel E. M. House, the President's confidential adviser, who has sailed for Europe to consult with U. S. diplomats. The pages of the U. S. Senate are shown at an entertainment given by Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall. Captain Boy-Ed, recalled by the German Government, is shown going aboard the S. S. Rotterdam, en route to his home country. "Kewpie," the baby elephant at the Selig Zoo, is seen at breakfast, and the German Reserves are shown digging themselves in for a hard winter in Russia. In all thirteen interesting and timely subjects are presented in the first number of the Selig-Tribune. The photography is good, and the titles are attractively written.

Unique posters have been issued in connection with the first release of the Selig-Tribune. The posters are made so as to resemble the make-up of a large newspaper. The Selig-Tribune poster is three columns wide and carries regulation headlines and text, in magnificent form.

Meeting of Mutual Branch Managers.

A meeting of the branch managers of the Mutual Film Corporation in the middle west was held in the old Union League Club, Jackson boulevard and Custom House place, this city, Tuesday, December 28.

The occasion was marked by a luncheon at which John R. Freuler, president of the corporation, presided. The chief object of the gathering was to formulate plans for the new program, in conjunction with the de luxe edition, which will be released on Monday, January 17.

An able address was delivered by President Freuler after the business discussion terminated, after which those present proceeded to the plant of the American Film Co., Inc., in North Edgewater. There some of the future releases of Mutual were viewed, the visitors being taken in charge by Richard R. Nehls, general manager for the American.

Supper was afterwards served at the Broadway Inn, North Edgewater, and the guests departed for their hotels and homes at 10 o'clock p. m.

The following were present at the meeting in the Union League Club:

J. R. Freuler, president; Joe Finn, of the Nicholas-Finn Advertising Co., Chicago; B. N. Judell, division manager of the middle west, Chicago; E. H. Duffy, Chicago; Mr. Trosk, Detroit; Mr. Christensen, Cleveland; Mr. Haines, Cincinnati; R. I. Ballantyne, Des Moines; Mr. Goltz, Milwaukee; Mr. Miller, Indianapolis; Mr. Weiskopp, Minneapolis; Mr. Geary, Nichols-Finn Co., Chicago, and F. J. Flaherty, manager H. & H. branch, Chicago.

Chicago Film Brevities.

The Photodrama Club of Chicago, 3018 Jackson boulevard, was reorganized by its president, Clarence A. Frambers, on December 20. Thirty-two members were present. It was decided to change the former policy of the club, which confined the membership to scenario writers in Chicago, to a universal membership. All scenario writers are eligible, whether they have sold their first scenario or not. Those associated with Mr. Frambers, who organized the club, are Maude Moore-Clement, S. A. VanPetten, Louis W. Bass, Charles J. Buckley and Miss Minnie Strehz, all successful photoplay authors. Mr. Frambers states that, backed up by his experience as scenario editor for the Selig Polyscope Company and the success attained last year, better work may be hoped for the coming year, in which outside writers can participate. All scenario writers interested in belonging to this organization will receive full particulars relative to membership by sending a stamped envelope to Mr. Frambers, at the club's address, given below.

* * *

E. B. Smith, for five years operator at the Bell theater, 2407 West Madison street, this city, called at the World office last week. The Bell seats 300. An admission of 10 cents is charged on Sunday and Wednesday, when seven or eight reels are shown. Gold Rooster pictures are shown Sundays, and Mutual masterpieces on Wednesdays. Five cents is charged on the remaining days of the week, when five reels of first run Universal service are shown. Mr. Smith reported good business. W. H. Bell is owner and manager. His son, John, now engaged in other business, was the former manager.

* * *

Dwight Elmendorf will give another series of his travelogues at Orchestra Hall, beginning Wednesday evening, January 12. His travel talks will be given on five Wednesday and Friday evenings and five Saturday afternoons, the first Friday evening entertainment being given January 14 and the first on Saturday afternoon, January 15. The travel lectures and pictures will treat of the British Isles, Holland, Switzerland, Northern Italy and Southern Italy.

* * *

Burton Holmes has returned to town and repeated the most popular travelogue of his 1915 series, "The Panama-Pacific Exposition," on Saturday afternoon, January 1, at Orchestra Hall.

* * *

Nortman Bros. & Fecher, who are the present lessees of the Lexington and Imperial theaters on East Sixty-third street, recently took over the Drexel theater, 858 East Sixty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue. The Drexel seats 800 people. A. Karzas, the former owner, is said to have received $15,000 cash for the theater. The new addition gives Nortman Bros. & Fecher full control of all theaters on Sixty-third street, east of Cottage Grove avenue.

* * *

L. W. O'Connell has been appointed assistant to the secretary and treasurer of the Industrial Moving Picture Co. Mr. O'Connell has had wide experience in the advertising agency field and is thoroughly conversant with that branch of advertising. He occupied an important position with the Husband & Thomas agency, this city, for several years, and has resigned to accept his present position. Previous to his connection with Husband & Thomas, Mr. O'Connell was employed by the Lord & Thomas agency, and also did considerable general exploitation-advertising work for important interests on the Pacific Coast and in Canada.

* * *

Wm. Havill, city examiner of candidates for moving picture operators in Chicago for several years past, died recently of heart disease. Mr. Havill was a genial, capable man and gave good satisfaction in the above capacity. He had numerous friends, who sincerely mourn his loss. At one time Mr. Havill was president of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, Local No. 45, I. A. T. S. E.

* * *

M. M. Kravetz, manager of the Capitol Film Exchange, Denver, Colo., which distributes the Apex product as well as other state rights features, called at the World office last week, while in the city looking over the field. Mr. Kravetz will spend a few days in Chicago, after which he will return to Denver.

* * *

One day last week the members of the Advertising Club of Chicago were given a noon entertainment in the club dining room, the chief feature of which was the showing of the film, "Farming with Dynamite." This film was made by the Industrial Moving Picture Co. for the Du Pont Powder Co. Robert L. Ford, in charge of the Chicago office of that company, accompanied the presentation of the film by an interesting lecture. This is the second event of the kind presented by the industrial moving picture committee of the club, of which Ed. H. Philippi, of the Industrial Moving Picture Co., is chairman.

* * *

On Thursday afternoon, December 30, the Essanay Film Mfg. Co. filmed several scenes of "The Strange Case of Mary Page" and of "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines" at the Bush Temple theater, this city. Henry B. Walthall and Edna Mayo were the leads in the first mentioned picture, and Richard C. Travers and Ann Murdock took the principal roles in the second. The theater was crowded to suffocation by the general public, who were advised of the novel entertainment by announcements in the morning papers on the day mentioned.

* * *

Mabel Normand, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle and Al. St. John, of the Keystone Company, stopped over for a few hours in this city Wednesday, December 29, on their way from Los Angeles to New York City. Mr. Arbuckle, it is understood, will take his company to Fort Lee, N. J., and will occupy the former Willat studio there for several months. The party had a pleasant time during the stopover, and were introduced to quite a number of admirers. It will be remembered that Mrs. Arbuckle is better known on the screen as Minta Durfee.

* * *

Wm. Weiss, formerly salesman for the World Film Corporation in its Chicago office, was recently added to the sales force of Metro's Chicago office.

* * *

A. W. Howell, exchange auditor of the moving picture service for Metro, spent most of last week in Chicago. Mr. Howell's headquarters are in Pittsburgh, and he visits the Chicago office once every two months. Mr. Howell left for Kansas City and the Des Moines office, after concluding his business here.

* * *

J. P. Seeburg, president of the Seeburg Piano Co., this city, returned from a week's visit to New York, on Wednesday, December 29. Mr. Seeburg was well pleased with the results secured for his company in the Metropolis.

* * *

The first of the Vogue comedies, released Monday, December 27, through the Mutual, is giving much satisfaction, from all that can be learned. These comedies are produced by several companies in Los Angeles under the supervision of Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Co., Inc., and Joseph H. Finn, of the Nichols-Finn Advertising Co., this city. The first two releases will consist of two reels and those following will consist of one or two reels, according to the subject. These comedies are strictly of a clean variety. They are advertised as "slap-stick with a reason" comedies, and introduce a new personality in films, known as "Sammy."

* * *

During George Kleine's brief stay here, he informed me that shortly after the opening of the new year a series of one-reel comedies, in which Watson and Bickel are featured, will be released through Kleine-Edison. Several of these comedies are all ready for release, and I hope to have the pleasure of reviewing a bunch of them in the near future. Mr. Kleine told me that nothing suggestive or vulgar is permitted in these films, although they are, in a way, of the slap-stick variety.

* * *

"How Molly Made Good," a six-reel production the state rights of which for Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Indiana and Kentucky are owned by the General Feature Film Co., Chicago, is showing to remarkable business at the Fine Arts theater, where it opened Sunday, December 26. The picture has been liberally complimented by Chicago photoplay critics and some prominent Chicago citizens. E. M. Newman, the well-known travelogue lecturer, said, after viewing the films: "A very novel picture, and pleasing in every respect." The feature is booked for a three weeks' run at the Fine Arts.

* * *

The Chicago offices of the Metro Pictures Service were recently changed from the fifth to the fourth floor of the Mallers Building. Harry Weiss, manager, is so pleased with the new quarters that he requires a hat several sizes larger than that formerly worn by him. The new offices occupy large space, nearly one-third of the entire office space on the fourth floor. The various departments are excellently arranged and the appointments might almost be described as sumptuous. The provisions made for the accommodation of patrons are especially lavish in appearance. A large anteroom is fitted up with Spanish leather-covered furniture. An information booth enables exhibitors to secure any information they want regarding past, present and future releases of the Mutual programs. Even the services of a stenographer are at the disposal of any exhibitor or visitor. The manager's office is luxuriously fitted up in mahogany and blue, and the auditing department and the shipping room are models of their kind. The inspection room is one of the largest, safest and finest in the city. Mr. Weiss gives out that nearly 500 exhibitors in the states of Illinois and Indiana are booked from the Metro office each week, and he claims that 129 of the 646 exhibitors in Chicago use Metro service. It is unnecessary to state that Harry Weiss is responsible for much of the wonderful growth of the Metro business handled in Chicago. He has been ably assisted by my old friend Phil. Solomon.

* * *

F. Kantack, owner of the Western theater, 2311 West Lake street, called at the office one day last week and renewed his subscription for the World. The Western seats 300 people and programs of the General Film Company's product and mixed features are offered at 5 and 10 cents. Mr. Kantack purchased the Western about last Thanksgiving day, and announced that the business had steadily increased since he became owner.

* * *

Rex O. Lawhead, manager of the Universal booking offices in Chicago, tells me that the demand for features of the "Bluebird" brand far exceeds what had been expected by the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., at the outset, and this notwithstanding the dull business during the holiday season. Joe Wolf, formerly city salesman for the Celebrated Players Film Co., has been appointed to fill a similar position with the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc. His office is at 107 North Dearborn street.

* * *

Henry McRae will head a Universal company of players and assistants on a trip embracing China, Japan, India and South Africa, during which it is the intention to make a series of five-reel features, with natural backgrounds of the various countries in which the stories of the films are laid. The party will leave on the steamship Tenyo Maru, from San Francisco, on January 8. Mr. McRae directed several pictures for the Selig Polyscope Co. here, about three or four years ago. The trip will last about eight months.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

CHRISTMAS ON THE COAST.

"More Like the Fourth Than Christmas," says Jesse Lasky—Film Hub Enjoys Vacation and Exchange of Greetings.

MERRY CHRISTMAS was a much used subtitle in the chief producing city this week. Everyone was happy and merry and glad to be alive and living in the West. At least they all said so when we saw them.

Jesse L. Lasky said that it seemed more like the firecracker day than Christmas. The air was light and balmy and the sky was not marred by a cloud.

The various studios celebrated by big trees, vacations, presents, talks and other forms of merrymaking for the season.

The exchanges were dressed up for Santy, and the most jolly place for the week was the Fox office, where Winfield R. Sheehan, manager of the Fox firm, greeted exhibitors, players and everyone. Harry Leonhardt was also on deck with the open cigar box, and presided under the tree, in the limelight of the Edison candles which glared welcome from the tree. William Farnum came down from the studio and shook hands with the showmen and others and helped along the spirit of the evening.

Several companies that were away getting scenes returned for the holidays, and many happy little reunions were enjoyed by filmers here.

FILM ACTOR KILLED.

Charles Harron, Brother of Bobbie Harron, Dies When Car Turns Too Short a Corner.

While speeding in a car driven by a chauffeur, Charles Harron, moving picture actor employed by the Fine Arts studio, met with an accident which cost him his life here Christmas Eve. The car swung from one street into another at too high a speed and overturned, running into a tree. Mr. Harron, who was only 24 years old, was instantly killed beneath the heavy automobile. The other occupants of the machine escaped with minor injuries. Robert Harron left with the body this week for the east, where it will be given burial.

CARL LAEMMLE ARRIVES.

Head of the Universal to Spend Month on Coast—May Have Announcement Soon.

President Carl Laemmle of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, arrived on the Pacific side of the United States this week, just in time to enjoy a bit of our western Christmas. Mr. Laemmle expects to remain here for a month, inspecting Universal City, meeting the people, and looking over business in general. He may have some good news soon, he says.

ACTORS FUND ON COAST.

Mayor of Los Angeles Meets Film Men and Promises to Aid Charity.

At a meeting held this week in the office of Mayor Sebastian prominent film men discussed plans for holding benefits during 1916 to aid the Actors Fund of America in its strenuous campaign to raise a million dollars. The West has promised to furnish a third of the amount, and if the film men are as successful as they are enthusiastic they will pile up that sum.

De Wolf Hopper explained the objects and good done by the fund. Samuel Goldfish, in charge of the picture men's interest in the fund, who left the next day for New York, told of the plans for the coast men, and appointed Jesse L. Lasky to represent him here as chairman of the executive committee. Mr. Lasky named the following to aid him and act on this executive committee, which will meet during the month to formulate plans for benefits to be held during 1916: Thomas H. Ince, Frank E. Woods, De Wolf Hopper, Mack Sennett, W. H. Wyatt, J. A. Quinn and Clarke Irvine.

Prominent and wealthy Angelenos are to be named as patrons and will aid the fund. Days will be set aside when theaters will adverise the fund and give a percentage of their receipts.

Mr. Lasky said that inasmuch as local charitable organizations, when holding benefits, had always enlisted the help of photoplayers and stage actors, and had always been aided to the fullest, they could now reciprocate when the acting fraternity for the first time in the history of the business called upon the public for aid. The Mayor said he thought the idea a good one and that he and the citizens of Los Angeles would co-operate as much as possible to aid the good work.

ROSE TOURNAMENT AT PASADENA.

Annual California Pageant of the Flowers to Be Filmed. Universal Company Will Make Picture—Stars to Parade.

The annual rose tournament at Pasadena this year is to be a great affair. It is always attended by thousands.

The pageant consists of a long parade of beautifully decorated automobile floats. Carl Lammle will be present to see the parade and watch a feature picture in the making. Joe De Grasse will direct a story written by Ida May Park which features the pageant.

The story deals with the love of a man and a maid, their separation and final accidental reuniting when they meet at Tournament park on New Year's day, she as queen of the Tournament and he as hero of the big football game. This gives Mr. De Grasse a chance to stage at Tournament park a magnificent coronation pageant. The queen will be Louise Welch, and she will be crowned in the presence of the multitude at Tournament park. In her pageant will be over 100 members of the Universal company, while the big crowd will form an unusual background for the picture.

So impressed has President Laemmle become by the opportunities that he is here from the east to attend the affair.

"For seven years I have planned to visit Pasadena and attend the Tournament of Roses on New Year's day," said Mr. Laemmle. "At the last moment something important has developed and it has been necessary to call off my trip. This year I have decided to allow nothing to interfere with my plan to be at Pasadena."

BEERBOHM TREE REACHES COAST.

Distinguished English Actor, Who Will Appear in "Macbeth" at Fine Arts Studio, Is Given Ovation.

The arrival at Los Angeles of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, to make a photoplay of "Macbeth" at the Fine Arts Studio, has stirred the film metropolis. Sir Herbert was given an ovation at the train by Mayor Sebastian and other city officials, prominent representatives of the British Red Cross and scores of motion picture players and film men.

At the studio his welcome was equally hearty. As he arrived his car was surrounded by the band of real western cowboys attached to the studio, who fired a salvo from their six-shooters. Several hundred players had gathered and warmly applauded. For the players Sir Herbert was welcomed by De Wolf Hopper, dean of the Fine Arts stars, and George Stone and Francis Carpenter, the two youngest actors, aged four and six. David W. Griffith and members of the executive staff received the distinguished guest, who was accompanied by his daughter, Iris. They spent the morning watching the various companies at work on the big outdoor stages, a new experience to both. Speaking of the selection of "Macbeth" for his first American screen vehicle, the famous actor-manager said:

"I am more and more convinced that the selection is an ideal one and I am eager to be at work on the production. 'Macbeth', apart from the power and beauty of its dialogue, is a highly pictorial narrative. Its characterizations are strongly developed and it is throughout a story of action. It is, too, one of the world's great classics and to be taking part in its photodramatization is at once a responsibility and a distinguished opportunity."

Unusual preparations are being made by the Griffith staff for its first Shakespearean production. An extraordinary amount of research work has been called for in order to secure accuracy of detail, and the settings will be of impressive magnitude where opportunity offers.

HUGE BLAST FOR SCENE.

Inceville and Surrounding Territory Rocked by Big Explosion in Picture.

There was a big explosion this week at Inceville, where Thomas H. Ince is turning out features for the Triangle program. This is expected to be one of the most spectacular explosions ever staged for a motion picture. A three-story concrete and brick building was dynamited and then burned for realistic effects in scenes for the subject in which William Collier, the noted comedian, will be starred.

Dynamiting Building at Inceville.

Three hundred persons took part in the scenes, yet none suffered injury. Nine cameras were focused on the explosion. Twenty-five sticks of dynamite and three kegs of powder were used. The building was on a plateau within the Ince domain, and so substantially was it constructed that six weeks were required for its completion. It represented an office building.

Mr. Ince, assisted by Raymond B. West, instructed the players to race from the building the moment the signal was given. Following the explosion tons of sticks, stones, cement, glass and steel were thrown into the air. The concussion rocked the surrounding country as far as Santa Monica, where for a time there was consternation. When the smoke had cleared, it was found the skeleton of the building stood intact. This was unexpected, the producer saw even more realism, and he hurriedly revised the scenario and set fire to what remained of the structure and slowly it burned to the ground.

With Our Exhibitors This Week.

Los Angeles show houses are devoting much time and space to the moving picture productions this week, and much advertising space has been used.

The Monday night openings were notable. At Quinn's Superba, one of Broadway's best houses, Geraldine Farrar is compelling a lineup with her superb Lasky picture, "The Temptation," which is shown here for the first time on any machine. At the evening premier there were present a notable gathering headed by Mr. Lasky, Cecil B. De Mille, who made the picture; De Wolf Hopper and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree. "Temptation" looks good for two or three weeks run.

At the Majestic Thomas H. Ince's production of "Peggy," with Billie Burke, is packing them in to this house which heretofore has been run as a "legitimate" place. This film is now in its second week, and the prospects are for more time. The program is electrified with Mack Sennett's comedy, "Crooked to the End."

W. H. Clune is smiling over the box office at his big Auditorium with Selig's wonderful picture "The Ne'er Do Well," with the second week half over and the house totally gone for each show. Next week, unless this picture continues, "The Spoilers" in revised film work will be presented.

Down Broadway, at Tally's, Valeska Suratt is showing them something in "The Immigrant," made by Lasky. One day the censors swooped down on the house when the boss was out and nearly caused the place to close for some funny little reason or other.

Notes of the Studios and Players.

Marie Doro, who is starred by the Triangle Film Corporation in "The Wood Nymph," has secured a reel of duplicate scenes of her Fine Arts play which she has forwarded to her mother, who now resides in Cairo, Egypt. Miss Doro has been parted from her mother for three years. In this reel Miss Doro inclosed a message written on the film.

* * *

The "Brotherhood of Justice" is the name of a new Triangle play being rehearsed this week at the Fine Arts studios. The story is by Frank E. Woods and Bernard McConville.

* * *

A free moving picture show is to be opened this week for the public at Hamburger's big department store. A complete theater has been equipped on the fifth floor of the building and continuous performances will be given each day from 11 to 5 o'clock.

* * *

To boost the city of Los Angeles a "Made in Los Angeles" label on films produced here is being advocated by the daily papers, the Mayor of the city, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and many other public spirited bodies. Mayor Sebastian has called a meeting at the City Council Chambers January 3, when the joint committee of representatives of every big booster organization in the city will meet representatives of the film manufacturing concerns here to present their plan. A number of the leading film producers have expressed themslves in favor of the project.

* * *

Enterprising criminals on a number of occasions lately have got away with some of the most brazen hold-ups and daring robberies on the streets of Los Angeles, in broad daylight, by impersonating moving picture operators and making people believe that they were taking scenes for a moving picture production. To put a stop to such activities Chief of Police Snively has this week announced his intention of tagging motion picture operators using the city streets for crime scenes. A director will therefore hereafter require a permit to take motion pictures in public places. These permits will be made out on bright colored cards of sufficient size and so displayed that police officers or the public may know that a moving picture is taken. If, in the future, a citizen sees a man rush into the street and shoot another and sees no permit card posted on the scene, he will know that a crime is being committed.

* * *

William R. Russell diplomatically let it be known that he had added a six-foot cozy corner bench to the living room of his ranch at Santa Barbara, with the satisfying result that a Christmas shower of sofa pillows arrived to make the qualification "cozy" a true one.

* * *

Bessie Barriscale returned this week to Inceville after a prolonged vacation, to resume her work in a forthcoming Kay-Bee feature. Miss Barriscale looked refreshed from her sojourn in the mountains. Her first vehicle will be a virile drama of domesticity from the pen of James Montgomery, whom Ince recently engaged for his scenario staff. The cast includes William Desmond and Franklin Ritchie, formerly leading man with the Biograph Company.

* * *

Clara Williams has returned to the Ince studios this week fully recovered from her recent attack of pneumonia.

* * *

Under the direction of Charles Swickard 200 persons are working this week at Inceville in a set depiciting the barracks at Delhi, East India. The scenes are for a Kay-Bee feature in which H. B. Warner will be starred.

* * *

U. S. "Doll" Andrews, film cutter at Inceville, is this week receiving the felicitations of his associates over the arrival of an eight-pound daughter.

* * *

William S. Hart and his company of players are still snowbound in the mountainous regions of Boulder Creek, where they are filming scenes for a Kay-Bee feature. Word came in the nature of a telegram that had been relayed by carriers from the wilderness to Santa Cruz, the nearest city to the location. Mr. Hart stated that some fine effects have been obtained.

* * *

Owing to the fact that the town of Avalon, Catalina Island, has been destroyed by fire, the Lasky Company has chartered a small passenger steamship to be used as a hotel for the members of the organization appearing in the "To Have and to Hold" production in which Mae Murrary is to star.

The company will remain on the island for nearly two weeks filming the exteriors of the story. Wallace Reid will play the role opposite Miss Murrary.

* * *

"The Unborn," the play by Lucy Paton and Franklin Hall, which is meeting with a great deal of opposition from the censors in the east because it deals frankly with questions relating to eugenics, is to be put in film form by the Universal. Lois Weber is adapting the play for the screen.

* * *

Bessie Eyton and "Totem."

Bessie Eyton, of "Spoilers" fame, posed for a picture for us this week with her cat Totem. The cat is a regular moving picture actor and actually posed for the photo.

Totem is a wonderful cat. He was presented to Miss Eyton after the "Spoilers" was released last year. Since joining the Selig forces, Totem has become quite proficient in the art of playing before the camera.

* * *

Arthur Shirley, by furnishing a large bungalow in Hollywood, thereby announces his intention of remaining in this country for some time and sets at rest the rumor that he had succumbed to the request of the Australian theatrical public and would return to that country to resume his place on the Australian speaking stage. He is now under a two years' contract with Thomas E. Dixon and is taking the role of Colonel Vassar in "The Fall of a Nation."

* * *

J. Slipper, representing G. A. Metcalfe & Co., of San Francisco, has opened a local branch at 728 South Olive street and already is delivering Power and Simplex machines and showing the Baird.

* * *

The Los Angeles High School has adopted pictures as a means of educating its athletes. The proper way to do the many track stunts is shown by films run in projectors which can be slowed or even stopped when a particular stunt is being observed.

* * *

Last week it was necessary to employ a billygoat in a current Rolin picture. Among other amusing stunts the "Billy" did was the confiscation and swallowing of three scenarios from Director Roach's hip pocket. When Mr. Roach discovered the loss the only part of the scenarios in sight was a portion of one of the final pages on which was written "finis."

* * *

Allan H. Frahlich is the latest addition to the Rolin Company staff, and is now playing juvenile. Gilbert M. Pratt has been promoted from assistant to lead.

* * *

W. H. Matthews, well known in motion picture and theatrical circles in New York, has purchased a half interest in the Optic Theater, formerly controlled by "Pop" Fischer. This is one of the best houses on Main Street.

* * *

A reel of film exploded Christmas eve in the Western Theater, 255 South Main street, causing a near panic among the audience. The crowd made a rapid exit, and the loss was confined to $300 by the quick work of the house attaches. W. B. Allan, in charge of the machine, averted serious damage by closing the steel door to the cage as he escaped.

* * *

Because of the recent epidemics of grip and diphtheria, Barker Brothers, owners of the Mission Theater in Monrovia, Cal., are having their house thoroughly fumigated every week. Thoughtfulness of this kind is always appreciated by the public and good advertising for the house.

Miami, Arizona, has three moving pictures theaters. The oldest and largest is the Unique, which is owned and managed by Fred Green. The Unique is equipped with a stage and runs vaudeville and musical comedy acts in addition to the pictures.

The Crystal Theater is the newest house in Miami, having been open only a few months ago. The theater is owned by Kenney & Harris and is under the management of Justus B. Norcross.

The Lyric, formerly the Gem, is owned by Nenes & Company. George Nenes is the manager.

* * *

G. Fritz Martin of Tempe, Arizona, is building a first class moving picture theater on East Fifth street. The house will seat over four hundred.

* * *

"Credit where credit is due." Hence a correction has to be made. A most plaintive letter from Doris Schroeder of the Hollywood Vitagraph studios asks that we correct a mistake on the part of someone somewhere in the mysterious tangle of wheels of film making. George Stanley put on a one-reel comedy "He Got Himself a Wife," with a bunch of bathing girls in it, and the chief performer was Vivian Marshall. She is the one who deserves the credit.

* * *

It is not often that we can present any player in a new or different picture, but we have secured one this time which is decidedly distinctive. It is a snap of Bobby Harron of the Fine Arts aggregation as he appeared one day this week at the studio. A set was up on the stage and he went in behind the bars and looked out. The picture was not posed, and it cannot be appreciated unless it is looked at upside down.

Bobby Harron.

Credit Association Elects Officers

Meeting Held in Milwaukee—D. H. Hoyt Made President—Other Officers.

D. H. HOYT, of the Metro film service, was elected president of the Milwaukee Film Men's Credit Association at a meeting Tuesday night, December 28. Joseph Mergener, manager of the Mutual Film corporation, was named vice president and W. A. Baier, of the Jacob's film booking office, was elected secretary-treasurer of the new organization.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the various motion picture film exchanges of Milwaukee. The object of the association is to eliminate undesirable and untrustworthy exhibitors and to cultivate closer and better social and business intercourse between the film exchanges and the desirable exhibitor.

The association will be national in scope. Minneapolis has an association, and Mr. Baier will go to Chicago Tuesday, January 4, to interest the Chicago film exchanges in the plan of forming an organization there.

Following are other local members affiliated: J. F. Van Meter, General Film; J. R. Thomson, Universal exchange; B. C. Smith, Casino Feature Film; William Aschmann, Pathe; Leo Eckstein, Famous Players; E. S. Benham, Klondike Feature Film; I. P. Rink, Milwaukee Feature Film exchange.

The next meeting of the local association will be held on January 10 in the offices of the Universal Film Exchange, 133 Second street, Milwaukee.

Triangle's Patriotic Play

"The Flying Torpedo" Is Said to Be a Sensation—A Fine Arts Production.

"THE FLYING TORPEDO," a war story of the year 1921, has been shipped East and will soon be disclosed at the Knickerbocker theater, with general release a few weeks later. The Triangle-Fine Arts, in making this war play, preferred to pack the material in five reels instead of extending it a la the familiar type of military serial or of a long-reeler taking up an entire evening.

Scene from "The Flying Torpedo" (Fine Arts).

The motif of an impending foreign invasion of the United States controls the action of the piece. In response to an appeal of the National Defense Board, an old inventor (Spottiswoode Aitken), perfects an aerial torpedo controllable by wireless mechanism. A band of international outlaws who sell their booty to foreign governments steal the plans and the torpedo boat itself and murder the inventor. Prior to his death he has made one duplicate of the mechanism. Winthrop Clavering, chemist, detective and Conan Doyle type of novelist (John Emerson), enters the action vigorously at this point. Aided by a clever servant girl (Bessie Love), his tracing of clues brings him finally to the crooks' den, whither the police are summoned and the robbers and their spoil are taken. Clavering and Haverman (W. E. Lawrence) start the manufacture of the torpedo. An army of yellow men from the Far East invade the West Coast. The deadly swarm of novel missiles annihilate most of the enemy, and those that are not killed are driven back ignominiously to their ships, thus removing forever the threat of foreign invasion of these shores.

The exciting war scenes of "The Flying Torpedo" were directed under D. W. Griffith's supervision by W. Christy Cabanne, whilst the earlier scenes were staged by Jack O'Brien. Besides Mr. Emerson, the star, and those already mentioned, the cast includes Ralph Lewis, Fred J. Butler, Raymond Wells, Viola Barry and Lucille Younge. The working title of the story was "The Scarlet Band," changed to "The Flying Torpedo" recently. A notable characteristic, lifting it out of the class of ordinary war-plot dramas, is the strong vein of comedy that runs through it.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM FAR AWAY.

The Moving Picture World has received a seasonal message from far-away Cape Town, South Africa. Mailed on November 18 it reached New York on December 31. It is from Joe Fisher, proprietor of the Grand theater, of that city. There is a splendid photograph of the big community at the foot of Table Mountain, with the pier in the foreground. Mr. Fisher was a visitor to the convention and exposition held in the Grand Central Palace in New York in 1914, and made many friends among his fellow-exhibitors and among film men and screen players. While here he appeared in an impromptu story staged at the Edison studio. Mr. Fisher carried back home with him the film, which showed him surrounded by the Edison stars.

The Moving Picture World reciprocates the good wishes of Mr. Fisher. It hopes that he will enjoy a full measure of happiness and prosperity during the year that is to come.

World Film's Tropical Annex

Selznick Says He Is Going to Build a Studio in Cuba—Thinks It the Best Location.

WITH the announcement of the departure at an early date of Clara Kimball Young and company for Cuba comes the news that Lewis J. Selznick, vice-president and general manager of the World Film Corporation, has completed plans for the establishment in that island of a great studio and picture plant to be known as the World Film's tropical annex.

Negotiations have been closed for the long lease of large sections of land near Santiago and the Dykeri mine district. The property includes long stretches of sea coast, many acres of dense jungle and cane fields and every possible variety of tropical settings. The sea coast included in the World Film holdings, ranges from flat sandy beaches to cliffs of the most rugged and massive character. At points along the sea front the full force of the Atlantic sweeps in majestically in great rollers of green and white, while at other points are quiet lagoons of still water many feet deep, but so translucent as to permit the taking of motion pictures from above, in which the figures of divers and submerged wrecks can plainly be seen.

"We secured the lease to the Cuban property at a remarkably low figure," said Mr. Selznick, "and the architectural plans for the studio and living quarters for the company and working force have been passed upon. The work of construction will begin this month. It is our purpose to use the Cuban studio for many of our winter productions. It will be large enough to accommodate at least three companies at a time. On our property are locations available for almost every sort of scenic environment, from mountains to sandy beaches."

A Pertinent Question

By Theodore Wharton.

ONE of the most unhappy situations in the motion picture world today, which militates against the making of many a beautiful picture, is the relation of the theater to the children in its community and to the law as regards them.

I am not the only director in the business who has looked with high appreciation upon the possibilities in the field of pictures solely for children; and Wharton Incorporated is not the only producing company that has tried to solve the existing condition in a way that would allow of the presentation of pictures that would draw and interest and instruct and delight little patrons. But the fact that state laws here, there and nearly everywhere, prohibit the attendance of children unescorted by elders, has led to such a problem for the exhibitors themselves, in discriminating between children of proper age and those who have not arrived at that age, that the exhibitors cannot be blamed for wishing to do away with the whole matter by refusing to show pictures for children at all.

There is no field more attractive than that of child-life; there is none as yet so nearly untouched; and the reason stated above is the true one. The recently started movement on the part of certain very good people of fine ideals and high intent to secure "better pictures for children" has the sympathy of The Whartons and probably of practically every other producer in America. We would all be working for better pictures for children, if the condition described did not stand like a stone wall in our way. If our friends outside the profession could find a gate for us in that wall, they would discover that we are quite sincere in our desire to promote the very end for which they are striving and talking.

It would seem feasible that matinees could be given for children weekly in thousands of theaters all over the country, and that such a thorough understanding of the law and the difficulties it creates for the local exhibitors could be so made known to local patrons that the problem of the unattended child could be eliminated, and so make a way for child-pictures to come into their own. No one in the business of making films to delight the hearts of America's picture-lovers is any keener than my brother and I to use the wonderful material in child-life or to give to American children the joyous entertainments of picturedom. Wharton Incorporated has undertaken some pictures of the sort and will doubtless undertake more; with the hope that we shall help the campaign along. But it needs the intelligent cooperation of all agencies concerned to bring about the right result. I, for one, would like to see a discussion along this line, with a free expression of opinion from as many men, in the business and out of it, as could be given space—not to neglect the women—who should have a word—and who will have the last word, anyway, on this subject perhaps most properly of all.

Points for Picture Players

Viola Dana, Edison Star, Tells What Makes for Greatness on the Screen.

THE recent statement of an actress, who may be safely said to enjoy an eminent place on the stage, that she attributed her success to her acquirement of telling theatrical tricks, would not hold good nor insure equal success on the screen," declared Viola Dana, the little Edison star who is featured in her first Kleine-Edison release, "The Innocence of Ruth," with Edward Earl.

Viola Dana.

"While success on the stage is possible, I believe, by the use of a certain technique in which the emotions—the feelings—of the actor or actress do not enter as a part of it, I should say that, judging from my ten years' experience on the stage and what experience I have had on the screen that real, lasting success cannot come to a player who does not genuinely feel the part he or she portrays.

"To this reliance of the stage stars upon the use of well-known effective tricks to gain effects is due, I believe, their failure to attain the same heights on the screen. By this I do not mean that all stage stars do this. But I think that those who do succeed on the screen, to the expected degree, realize the greater and higher demands of the screen and meet them accordingly. For instance, every well experienced player knows just what inflection of the voice will produce certain effects on the audience. But in the picture the voice is absent. The player cannot any longer, on the screen, place reliance on the voice's myriad messages. And no matter how conscientious an artist a stage player may be, I believe there is always more or less, though perhaps unconscious, dependence upon the voice's inflections to 'get over' their biggest moments on the stage.

"For the screen there is left only the face and gestures. With the unsympathetic eye of the camera to catch every little thing that the eye would likely miss on the stage, the screen player cannot simulate thoughts and emotions. His or her face must really reflect what is passing in the mind. The successful screen player must use every phase of the suggestive power of thought to inspire the same thoughts and feelings in the photoplayer. Imagination, alone, in a screen player will not suffice. For instance, a good 'set'—appropriate to the scene or character. If I am playing a girl of the East Side as I did in 'The Children of Eve,' I can enter more immediately into the thoughts and feelings of that character if my, say, 'home' in the set really is like what a girl of that station would have in actual life.

"One, to succeed out of the ordinary on the screen, must not alone feel what is portrayed, but feel it deeply. And the player cannot really express all phases of life until his or her life has encompassed much—loved deeply and sorrowed. As for myself, I feel my stronger emotions so that I never rehearse them; if I did they would, if the second time played, lack the spontaneity, the stamp of reality."

BARSKY WRITES COMEDY WAR PICTURES.

"Ike, the War Correspondent," is the title of series of comedy war pictures written by Irving J. Barsky, director of publicity for the Associated Program. The pictures are being produced by the Federal Company, of which Will Rex is the director. These subjects are said to have been completed: "Ike Goes to the Front," "Ike with the German Army," "Ike Captures a Fort," "Ike Stops a Battle," "Ike on the Mountain" and "Ike Flivvers with Ford."

DAVIS NOW AN ASSISTANT DIRECTOR.

James G. Davis, who has been identified with the Gaumont forces for some time, has been appointed assistant to Director William F. Haddock.

Universal Plans for Miss Lawrence

Famous Screen Star to Make Her Reappearance in Adaptation of Marie Corelli's "Thelma."

FOLLOWING an announcement made in the columns of our last issue regarding the return of Florence Lawrence to the screen we learn from the Universal Film Manufacturing Company that an adaptation of Marie Corelli's famous novel, "Thelma," is to be her first picture. Already a Fifth avenue modiste is busy fashioning for her gowns appropriate to the production. It is said that there are fifty of these gowns to be worn by Miss Lawrence in "Thelma." Reference to Miss Lawrence's wardrobe recalls the fact that the first individual costuming given to any picture play was introduced by her in a Biograph production entitled "Lady Helen's Escapade," a rollicking comedy in which she wore new and elaborate costumes appropriate to role of "Lady Helen."

Bluebird Names Special Representative

N. H. Spitzer Begins in Canada a Tour During Which He Will Advise Exhibitors.

TO GET in touch with exhibitors and suggest to them the proper methods to pursue in exploiting Blue Bird features, N. H. Spitzer, special representative of Blue Bird Photo Plays, Inc., left for Montreal, Canada, Monday, on the first leg of a country-wide tour. To exhibitors who are familiar with Mr. Spitzer's success as general manager of Canadian territory with a prominent feature organization, his affiliation with Blue Bird will come as a surprise. As a matter of fact, it is due to his success in that field that he was offered his present position with the newest feature organization.

N. H. Spitzer.

The Blue Bird representative is considered an authority on motion picture merchandising methods. As a proprietor of theaters in Los Angeles and Seattle he obtained a first-hand knowledge of the problems which confront the exhibitor—a knowledge that will enable him to be of great assistance to the men who book Blue Bird features and desire to know the best methods of exploitation.

"The fact that we have added Mr. Spitzer to our forces is a further indication of our determination to do more for the exhibitor than merely sell him our service," declared a Blue Bird official in commenting upon the reasons back of his organization's move in acquiring the services of the special representative.

"What has been of assistance to me in my recent work," declared Mr. Spitzer, "is the fact that I have been an exhibitor. Ask the average theater owner why the appeals which reach him from the average manufacturer fail to move him and he will simply reply: 'He doesn't know my business!' Because I have solved the exhibitor's troubles to the extent of making my own theaters pay I am in the position to tell him how to make his theater pay.

"The experience I derived while putting life into my Seattle theater taught me that if the same procedure were followed in handling almost any 'dead' house it could be brought to life." Mr. Spitzer said it was his intention to get in touch with Blue Bird exhibitors in the cities he visited and demonstrate to them the business methods pursued by the most successful motion picture theater proprietors in the country. If necessary, the Blue Bird representative will make his headquarters in a house which has failed to return a profit on the capital invested and without cost to the owner whatsoever will take charge of the theater until an efficiency system has been installed and the business placed on a paying basis.

While in Montreal Mr. Spitzer will make his headquarters at the Blue Bird offices, 295 St. Catherine street. From Montreal he will go to Toronto, where the Blue Bird offices are at 106 Richmond street. The rest of his itinerary will be announced shortly.

Going South

Another Metro Company, Headed by Bushman and Bayne, Off for Florida.

ANOTHER Metro company of players, the third so far this season, headed by Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, left for the south this week, where more than fifty exteriors will be made for two Quality-Metro features. "Man and His Soul" and "The Red Mouse." The group of artists will go on a special car direct to Jacksonville, Florida, where they will work from two to three weeks. "Man and His Soul" is scheduled for release on the Metro program January 31, while "The Red Mouse" will not be presented to the public until sometime in February.

John W. Noble, who is directing Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne in these Quality-Metro productions, accompanied the party. William "Bill" Bailey, assistant director, associated with Mr. Noble, was sent several days in advance, to obtain the necessary locations for exteriors.

Most of the exteriors will be made for the five-part production, "Man and His Soul," which promises to be notable among Metro's screen achievements and it will be the most elaborate feature in which Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne have ever appeared. The theme of this really distinctive photodrama deals with Conscience. In an allegory the creation of the world is shown. Then is seen a realistic sand storm, one of the big scenes which will be made in Florida. In the midst of the storm is shown the birth of Conscience.

The next scene, which also will be made amid the wonderful everglades and foliage of the southland, will be the Garden of Eden, where Conscience again appears and possesses Adam and Eve. Down through the ages, the development of Conscience is demonstrated, until the present day is reached. Conscience is then seen atop a skyscraper in New York City, looking over the great city and weeping that the city is almost devoid of Conscience. In another scene a factory is burned to the ground. This scene will be made on the outskirts of Jacksonville, and more than 1,000 people will be used.

Besides Mr. Bushman, Miss Bayne, Mr. Noble and Mr. Bailey, others in the party include J. W. Davidson, Etta Mansfield, Fred Sittenham, Edward Brennan, H. O. Carleton, cameraman; Marty Malone, assistant cameraman, and J. W. Powers.

AUTO DRESSING ROOM.

In order to make the quick changes necessary for the hazardous scenes in "The Girl and the Game," Helen Holmes, star of the big Mutual-Signal special feature, has rigged up a portable dressing room. Recently Miss Holmes suffered a severe cold following a plunge into the ocean, because of a lack of a place to change her clothes. But now she has solved the problem.

The Auto Dressing Room.

A limousine has been converted into a dressing room. Equipped with running water, a dressing table and all the appurtenances of make-up needed by a leading woman, this auto-boudoir de luxe is Miss Holmes' portable home, carry-her to outside locations and housing her between scenes. The accompanying picture shows Miss Holmes in her auto-boudoir, the dressing table in the background, with coat hanger over it. The big cushioned seat of the limousine has been displaced by a wardrobe trunk and an especially designed wash-stand, thus affording the young star all the comforts of home afield.

Universal's New Feature Brand

Red Feather Productions Will Be Substituted for Broadway Universal Features Beginning January 31.

THE first announcement Joe Brandt made after becoming the general manager of the Universal was a change of name under which Universal features shortly will be released. Heretofore all features have been released on a program called Broadway Universal Features, which has gained prestige throughout the United States and Canada. As many confused the regular Universal program with the Broadway Universal program, it was thought best to have a non-conflicting name. Therefore, it was decided to use the name Red Feather Productions, the first of which will be Violet Mersereau in "The Path of Happiness," to be released January 31. Mr. Brandt is confident this change will appeal to both exchanges and theater managers, and will serve to assist theatergoers in differentiating between the two.

Following "The Path of Happiness" will be productions even bigger than anything that has ever appeared on the Broadway Universal Feature program, which will include in the near future King Baggot's initial appearance on the feature programs. So, too, will be seen Mary Fuller, Jane Gail, Harry Benham, Paul Panzer and other Universal stars who have appeared in Broadway features.

For the first time King Baggot will make a picture for release in the feature program. He has preferred to do the one and two reelers which have made him famous, rather than going into the making of the longer pictures. Constant demand for his appearance on the feature program has prompted him to make the change. Beginning with the advent of the Red Feather Productions, Mr. Baggot will appear regularly on that program.

Lasky Company in New Offices

Feature Picture Concern Has Top Floor of Rogers, Peet Co. Building on Fifth Avenue.

WHILE the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company's studios at Hollywood, Cal., have been spreading out over a large tract of land, the executive offices of the firm, situated in New York, have been moved to larger and more commodious quarters also. The New York offices, heretofore comprising the entire top floor of the building at No. 120 West Forty-first street, are now situated in the new Rogers, Peet Company building, No. 485 Fifth avenue, where they take in the entire eighth floor of the building.

The process of moving from the old quarters into the new took place on New Year's Day, soon after the return from Hollywood of Samuel Goldfish, executive head of the company.

In the arrangement of the new offices of the Lasky Company there has been a marked departure from the conventional system of office architecture. The first thing that will surprise the caller is a big waiting room, handsomely and comfortably furnished with easy-chairs and lounges, reading table and writing desks. The entire Fifth avenue frontage is divided into private offices for Mr. Goldfish, Mr. Lasky, Arthur S. Friend, and a director's room. On the Fortieth street side will be the offices of Whitman Bennett, business manager, and John C. Flinn, publicity manager. In the rotunda the stenographic department is situated, and in spacious quarters to the rear of the floor the shipping department is placed.

The move to No. 485 Fifth avenue is the third time the executive offices of the Lasky Company have been changed in order to obtain sufficient room for the business transactions of the increasing activities of the firm.

"A FOOL'S PARADISE" BEING FILMED BY IVAN.

Ivan Abramson's latest work especially written for the screen is now being produced by him at the Frohman studio for the Ivan Productions is "A Fool's Paradise." The company is headed by Chrystine Mayo, who portrays a vampire role. Paula Shay, the Ivan discovery; James Cooley, one of filmdom's best-known leading men; Jack Clarke, long Gene Gauntier's principal man, and Joe Burke. "A Fool's Paradise" is the Ivan regular monthly release scheduled for February.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

COMMENTS and statements made in these columns recently in regard to the attitude of exhibitors in Ohio to each other has paved an avenue which may not require a repetition of the question: "What is the matter with Ohio?" It has called forth a communication from an exhibitor known to the writer for many years, and his letter only confirms what we have always believed him to be—an exhibitor who embarked on the motion picture field to make that field his business and give his endeavors for its welfare. We think our acquaintance with him dates back to the first days of our knowledge of the motion picture business in Ohio—and that was before nine-tenths of the present number of Ohio exhibitors thought of engaging in the business. No, we are not flattering. What has been said is merely a prelude to the communication that is to follow. A plea, as it were, for attention to the voice of a veteran. Many more younger men may feel, and to some extent are, more enterprising and energetic than those who entered the field in the days of the nickelodeon, but that does not bar the sentiments of the veteran from a calm and judicious consideration. So here she goes:

"Mr. Man About Town," Moving Picture World.

Your query in current issue, "What Is the Matter With Ohio?" is not a very difficult one to answer and, as you say, it is "being asked by the exhibitors of other states." I will try to enlighten them and I hope the facts presented herewith will be accepted in the spirit in which they are written, for I have no motive in writing, except to see all Ohio as strongly united as the Cleveland district.

You say, "Despite appeals of their friends on the outside these exhibitors seem unable to stifle personal jealousies and ambitions and combine for the common good." Again, "factional strife seems to have gained such a foothold that the Ohio exhibitors are more divided now than they have been at any time," etc. In the first place any of Ohio's "friends on the outside" who are conversant with league history know full well that no "personal jealousies" have ever, as yet, caused any factional strife in Ohio. The one and only cause of factionalism in Ohio has been, and is yet, with those few who refuse to harmonize with us—censorship. I challenge anyone to refute this statement. It is fortunate for the business that the anti-censorites of Ohio have refused to O. K. this menace to our business, for by so doing we have assisted some forty states in preventing its introduction. Even as it is the political "uplifters" of other states and Canada quickly grasped the opportunity to "point with pride" to Ohio, the breeding spot of the pest, and some of them are now more handicapped than are we, for Cleveland treats it as a legalized joke.

No, "personal jealousies" never, never permitted even poor Neff's strongest opponents to enter a controversy with him upon any subject but censorship and it was only after the chaotic condition produced by the workings of the censor law that his staunch Cleveland supporters reluctantly withdrew their support from him, in July, 1914, following the repudiation of legalized censorship by the National Convention at Dayton the same week. The following February, this year, Cleveland sent eighteen delegates to the Columbus "harmony" convention and Max Stearns, though a recognized follower and champion of censorship, was elected state president and his election made unanimous on motion of President Sam Morris, of Cleveland local. Certainly an "olive branch" proceeding. Surely that should have ended "factionalism" in Ohio. And it would if Max had grasped his opportunity, but he failed to do so, and what has been the result? Instead of co-operating with us at once in reorganizing Ohio Max, who is very popular with our boys even yet, never made the least effort in that line.

At that time Cleveland's per capita tax was paid up to last April, otherwise we could not have attended the February convention of this year. In July last we were informed that State and National Secretary Wilson had failed to credit Ohio with any per capita tax paid into the national treasury and, as Cleveland local did not want to be without a national and state head, both Max and Wilson were appealed to by National President Herrington. We have seen the correspondence. Both refused to recognize President Herrington and Cleveland local's existence was totally ignored when a letter or a visit from Max would have been welcomed. Herrington then called an "open" convention October 18 at Cleveland and as Ohio state branch had automatically ceased to exist, for the above reason, we formed a new state branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and today, December 15, President Herrington granted us a charter as the Ohio branch. Our organizer, C. E. Megown, received exactly twenty-five applications for membership last week and has been invited to visit Toledo, Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton, the exchange "zone" centers of distribution where we fully expect to organize locals upon the "zone" basis drawing membership from the towns in each "zone" as Cleveland is now doing with Akron, Youngstown, etc.

Does this look "factional strife" or that "Ohio exhibitors are now more divided than ever?" Censorship, and that alone divided us. Censorship is now a problem for the manufacturers to solve with what trade assistance we may render. That answers the query, "What is the matter with Ohio?" Now, M. A. T., kindly help the good work along and believe me to be

Fraternally yours,

SAM BULLOCK.

Cleveland, Ohio, December 15, 1915.

So, the exhibitors "outside of Ohio" will understand, according to Mr. Bullock, that the root of all evil in that state, so far as the moving picture exhibitors are concerned, is the censorship question. Mr. Bullock's letter is given in full in acquiescense to his evident desire to answer the query as to the state of affairs in Ohio with facts as he sees them. As to the difficulties which have arisen between Ohio exhibitors and the state and national officers the exhibitors "outside of Ohio" cannot be expected to take cognizance until they come before them at a time that is set apart for such considerations. The least said in public print of internal difficulties in organizations the more easy is it for the members to adjust those difficulties. The question of official censorship is quite a different matter. It is a matter that appeals to the intelligence and manhood of every citizen of the country whether or not he be engaged in the moving picture business and a discussion of it cannot be given too much publicity. Mr. Bullock is emphatic in his declaration that there is no jealousy or factional strife existing among the exhibitors of Ohio and any difference of opinion that exists hinges solely upon censorship. And this is the only question in which the "outside exhibitors" can be interested.

* * *

It is hoped that a divided body will not be required to settle the question of censorship in Ohio. With the gradual growth of strength in the trend of public opinion throughout the country it is honestly believed that the time will come when the exhibitors of Ohio will be united in the belief that official censorship is not only entirely un-American and unconstitutional, but also one of the most pernicious weapons ever placed in the hands of grafters. On such an issue the sponsors must inevitably suffer defeat. The most puzzling feature of the situation in Ohio is that that state stands alone. Its organization of exhibitors has become disrupted by the official censorship question while in all the other states of the Union the exhibitors are united in their opposition to it. An attempt to explain Ohio's situation was made recently by an exhibitor from that state. He said that exhibitors favoring censorship had been guided in a large measure by the opinion of Senator Foraker and a subsequent sustaining of a test case by the United States Supreme Court. He said the pro-censors were honest and unselfish in their belief. All of which may be true. But Senator Foraker was more of a politician than a lawyer and at no time did he place himself on record as successfully controverting the declaration of Judge Gaynor that official censorship was unconstitutional. The latter was a man whose experience at the bar and on the bench made his legal status soar high above his political side of life, and today his opinion is a controlling spirit wherever the question of censorship is under discussion. Unfortunately, the test case that went before the United States Supreme Court from Ohio was not presented with the same force that Judge Gaynor viewed the censorship question. However, the Foraker opinion and the test case, this exhibitor claims, left an effect which has been responsible for the present situation in Ohio; but there is one thing that will ultimately set matters right, and that is public opinion. That is the power which is unmistakably manifesting itself throughout the country. It is a powerful lever and can control the action of all legislative bodies.

* * *

In concluding his letter, Mr. Bullock says: "Censorship is now a problem for the manufacturers to solve with what trade assistance we (exhibitors) may render. There are many who differ with him. Official censorship is not a problem. It is an abominable condition which everybody interested in equal and just government should co-operate in suppressing and abolishing. It is not a condition which only manufacturers of moving picture films, with the assistance of exhibitors, are to contend. Every one connected with and interested in the moving picture business must "get on the job." It is not a commercial condition, but a political one. The boards are created and filled by political influence and if a successful and definite fight is to be made against them, that influence must be met with political activity. It was through that channel that its sponsors spread its tentacles in spite of all appeals to reason and justice and it is the most effective channel now in view to get prompt results against them.

COMEDY BY JOSEPH TRANT RELEASED.

Miss Cissy Fitzgerald appeared upon the screen January 2, in a Casino Star Comedy written by Joseph H. Trant, "Leave It to Cissy." It was written by Mr. Trant to give the greatest value to Miss Fitzgerald's screen methods. The production was directed for Gaumont by Edwin Middleton.

Spokes from the Hub

By Marion Howard.

THE Hub is "de-lighted" to have that prince of men, S. L. Rothapfel, come over here and put new life and artistic touches into the Boston theater, now the home of the Triangle. There has been quite a transformation under Mr. Rothapfel's guiding hand, in and about the stage, to say nothing of the screen developments, and the vocal artists he brought over. They have a personality quite compelling and I'd go a long way to hear De Manby sing a ballad. Mr. Rothapfel's reputation in connection with the Strand Theater and elsewhere had preceded him, so we were not surprised at his achievement. He wisely puts on some short subjects of an educational value, and has so arranged the musical numbers that it is a joy to hear Mrs. Nichols and her white-gowned players, aided by the new organ. I saw "The Golden Claw," with Bessie Barriscale, who is excellent all through and a refreshing addition to the list of star catches. Her face films well, even in a close up, and she has intelligence back of it all. We are sure to enjoy her in "The Painted Soul." Another Triangle play we liked was "The Lily and the Rose," with Lillian Gish in a strong emotional part. Also in the cast were other players of "The Birth of a Nation," like Mary Alden, seen by me for the first time out of the colored make-up and playing the fine lady. Then the young lover was Elmer Clifton, one of the Stoneman boys, and we caught a fleeting glimpse of dear Josephine Crowell, the spartan mother of the Camerons. There was no mistaking "the fine Italian hand" of David Griffith in this splendid production.

* * *

Quite the best film seen here since my last letter was "The Cheat," notably in the settings and detail, perfect all through, so far as a critical eye could discern. Fannie Ward is sure to make good, but we were not prepared for the fine work of Sessue Hayakawa, the clever Japanese actor, who first aroused our admiration in "The Clue" last year. The scenes in this play will long be remembered when the plot is forgotten, especially the interior of the Jap's ornate residence with Oriental splendor everywhere, but in perfect taste. The branding of the Cheat's shoulder was a masterpiece in stage business. I liked the trial scene, the dramatic situation revealed by the branded woman, the efforts of the courtroom spectators to mob the Jap and beat him; the acquittal of the innocent husband, and the finale were all one long thrill worth while, for it spelled artistry on the part of the director. I hope the day will come when we can have a reissue of such masterpieces, for we had it at only two local theaters, and these during holiday time when so many were unable to see it.

* * *

"One Million Dollars" was refreshingly new as to plot, and with the detective strain all through it held attention. Mr. Faversham had an opportunity to do better work than in "The Right of Way," and was consistent. We were glad to see George Le Guere, that clever young man in "The Soul of a Woman." Certainly the Metros have given us rare treats with their well-balanced company of real players.

* * *

Through a slip of the types in my last letter I was made to give Lillian Lorraine credit for being the mother of that clever young actress, Ethel Gray Terry, who is a daughter of Lillian Lawrence in "The Galley Slave" film.

* * *

At the World Film run-off the other day I saw two unusually good pictures, though widely different in theme, moral and staging. The first was "Sealed Lips," a splendid dramatization of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," which I read years ago and still recall. We had our first glimpse of William Courtenay on the screen, and it will be a pleasure to pass the good word along, as he in the flesh is a favorite here and is a college mate of Governor Walsh, who will be sure to see him when the film is put on. He had the good part in the play and has proved himself all right in filmland. Arthur Ashley struggled with the part of the minister, who was a pretty bad lot, and was excellent in the closing scene in the pulpit, from which he makes his confession. By the way, that church scene deserves mention, for it was the real thing, and even the Episcopal ritual was worked out perfectly by the large audience. The perspectives were great, and the ornate details were admired. Then, too, the interior of the country homes of the two families were flawless. Certainly John Ince is some director.

Then we had that delicious comedy "Over Night," featuring Herbert Yost as Richard Kettle, the part created by Ernest True. Dainty Vivian Martin was Elsie Darling and big Sam Hardy was Percy. Florence Morrison was a typical suffragette and good to look at. Most laughable was the scene on Broadway picturing the Kettles (long and short) marching in the suffrage parade. Then, too, we get the Hudson River in action with the Palisades in view, and a real hotel nestling in the Catskills. I did not like the ending as compared with the speaking version when Mr. Kettle asserts himself and brings his bossy wife to terms. In the picture the four are put out of the hotel as undesirables, in a pouring rain, minus proper clothing and luggage. It is inconsistent and neither "points a moral nor adorns a tale."

* * *

Edgar L. Davenport came over from New York for the holidays to visit with his charming family here and found time to look up old friends and do a bit of business. While here he enrolled himself and daughter Margery in the Film Club. It was a joy to hear him enthuse over the film industry in general, the work of the directors especially, and he had many good words for the players, of which he is one, as you know. His brother Harry has given us proof enough of his art as a director for the Vitagraph, and in other ways he has distinguished himself. Harry's daughter Dorothy, we know, is one of the film stars and has made good with the Lasky forces and earlier. Another niece of Edgar's, Fanny Davenport Seymour, was married January 8 in New York to young Richard Field, a grandson of the late R. M. Field, of Boston Museum fame, and under whom May Davenport Seymour, the bride's mother, played a generation ago. I thought the wedding party at the church worthy of being filmed. Later we all were entertained most hospitably at the Seymour home, 34 East Thirty-second street. While over I was the recipient of much courtesy at the hands of directors and other film people, and am glad "dear old New York" is only five hours away from my den in the Hub.

* * *

Macklyn Arbuckle is a local favorite, so I was not surprised to find the Modern crowded to overflowing to see "The Reform Candidate." He has not done anything better even on the speaking stage, and no lines are necessary to convey a situation. He had a good company, including Myrtle Stedman, the reliable in serious parts. The child episode was cleverly worked out, and next to Arbuckle the best work was done by Charles Ruggles as Looney Jim. Space forbids extended mention of the many reels seen, but I like to emphasize the good bits that seem to stand out and live in memory. Mary Ruby was an ideal child grown up, and the pathetic ending for the man Art Hoke, who was bereft of his adopted daughter, caused a lump in the throat.

* * *

Lou-Tellegen, who wants to lose his hyphen, has outdone himself in "The Unknown"—a most carefully staged picture and out of his line of work a bit. It is difficult to realize that the scenes were not staged in Algiers instead of in our own California. Such stage settings are the acme of art. A young prattler said audibly, "What a shame to give that handsome man all those lashes; it must have hurt him terribly at the rehearsal." She failed to read the secret, or draw upon her imagination (?) to see how the trick was done. I dare say she actually feels sorry for him.

* * *

I went out of town the other night to see "Tess of the Storm Country," having heard of the excellent work of Mary Pickford, and not here when it was first produced. Such a play is mighty wholesome and should be reissued in all communities, for the younger set.

* * *

Well, after seeing the speaking version of "The Misleading Lady" with its daring adventures, we are wondering how Henry B. Walthall and Edna Mayo will manage that bungalow scene. A devotee of H. W. declares it quite impossible for "such a perfect gentleman" to be a bully even in fun. Well, I'll bank on Walthall's versatility every time, but what a contrast to his work in "The Raven"!

* * *

The Exeter put on "Stolen Goods" last week with a strong cast—if one cares for Blanche Sweet, the lackadaisical. For the life of me I cannot see where she fits, for she never can "play up" to the company the Laskys surround her with. Playing opposite was big, virile House Peters, and then we had Cleo Ridgeley, who is artistic to her finger tips. In small parts we easily recognized Tom Forman, Theodore Roberts, Ernest Joy and dear old Mrs. McChord. What appealed to me was the scenic effects taking us into France in the midst of the bombardment in this war, showing the Red Cross hospitals under fire, the refugees and other horrors. Great skill was shown here and in the California scene in the last reel. We wondered how Helen North got away from the war zone and with all those good clothes when she apparently was without a penny. However, we still have imagination. The ending was too abrupt, for when the heroine had served a jail term for another's crime she ought to have been set right. But then the author gave her consolation in her six-foot lover, with whom she made her exit "to live happy ever after."

* * *

Among Paramount pictures seen at two theaters here are scenes depicting Central and South America, revealing how abreast of the times they are and how they go in for good architecture in their public buildings, and how well trained along military lines the police are. I saw a film showing a penitentiary inside and out. It was most artistic architecturally, and was a model. Can you imagine prisoners in North America being given manicure sets and other luxuries for their cells? Well, that is what they do in that prison and the men looked like human beings rather than derelicts. An offering on the program that day was "The Valley Feud," with Anna Little as the heroine, capitally done in true Western style, and put on by the American Film Company. There was a wonderful sheep herd in it which pleased the young folks—for it was a matinee—the only time "kiddies" would be let loose at the picture houses. Another offering by the same producers was "To Rent Furnished," with Vivian Rich and Walter Spencer doing good work. Then we had one of Bobby Connelly's plays, "The Family Party," with lots of fun and a wholesome touch through it all.

* * *

Well, "The Immigrant" is a daring play, not for the young to see, for the immorality is not even under cover. It gives an opportunity for Valeska Suratt to pose and wear fine clothes at the expense of honor. Why in Heaven's name does she wear her hair a la washlady? It is hideously unbecoming and does not go with the evening gowns. On leaving the ship she appears with a Castle cut, quite in contrast, and it frames her hard face well. Theodore Roberts (does he ever sleep?) the dependable, has some part and meets with the end he deserves and in a scene which eclipses anything seen this season in the flood line. Some stunt that for the actors! Thomas Meighan, to my mind, is one of the best leads on the screen, never a poser, but the artist ever. He played the hero to the limit, even to taking the immigrant to his manly arms, despite her record, which she did try to atone for.

* * *

The Park theater management is being congratulated on securing Bell Yeaton Renfrew and her Bostonia orchestra, which gives selections and accompanies the films. Mrs. Renfrew is a handsome woman, widely known all over the country, which she has toured with her orchestra and has been heard at expositions. She directs the music for the annual shows of the fashionable Vincent Club here, and is a member of the Professional Women's Club. Thomas D. Soriero, the new manager of this playhouse, is making other changes of value to the public. He is young and enthusiastic; furthermore, he invites criticism and suggestions, being there to please the constituency. What a scream Jane is, staged by Oliver Morosco with the inimitable Charlotte Greenwood! It is always a pleasure to attend the Park, where Paramount pictures and travel films prevail. In Jane I recognized my old friend Lydia Yeamans Titus, daughter of the only Annie Yeamans, who died in harness at eighty or so.

MINNA PHILLIPS MAKES HER PHOTOPLAY DEBUT.

For many years Corse Payton's theater in Brooklyn played to capacity houses. People came from all parts of the borough to see Minna Phillips, their favorite, portray leading roles at this theater. And after her eleven years of service there, when the theater changed its name to the Lee Avenue and the policy became motion pictures, Minna Phillips decided still to play the same old stand if not in stock, then in photodrama.

So the Lee Avenue theater, for years Minna Phillips' stage, will have the first run on "Forbidden Fruit," the most powerfully dramatic play yet conceived by Ivan Abramson. In "Forbidden Fruit," Miss Phillips creates the role of Mrs. Reverend Dr. Ancaster, wife of a kindly old minister whose daughter makes a supreme sacrifice to save her husband from imprisonment. The sympathetic work of Miss Phillips in this drama will endear her more firmly to the vast army of her admirers.

BRITISH NOTES

A REFRESHING sign of the times to an industry already sufficiently hampered by the iron fetters of censorship hails this week from Hull. A deputation of anti-kinema cranks and self-appointed governors of public taste in moving picture films who petitioned the local justices to immediately ban the production "Five Nights" were politely but firmly recommended to mind their own business.

* * *

At the recent London Licensing Sessions a number of exhibitors in the area made applications to include vocal music in their programs, but except in those cases where similar licenses are in operation this permission was refused. Upon new moving picture theaters which are obviously constructed in every way along better lines than those converted from unsuccessful music halls, skating-rinks, etc., the authorities persist in exercising a most stringent control not only on issuing specific unalterable licenses for pictures and instrumental music, but in defining to a great extent the manner in which the house shall be conducted. The motto of the London County Council is clearly one of "look after the new ones and the old ones will take care of themselves," for while a modern hygienic picture theater constructed and managed upon the best principles known to the trade is regarded as lucky if it gets licensed for pictures and an orchestra, we have other decrepit wood-built survivals of the skating craze fully licensed for pictures, variety stage turns, any and every kind of music, dancing and refreshments.

* * *

The Glasgow branch of the Exhibitors' Association in considering how to penalize certain offending members the other day adopted the following resolution: "Upon proof being forthcoming that any exhibitor has signed a contract with the Essanay Company, the following firms pledge themselves that their charges for films will be increased to such exhibitors fifty per cent. on open market films and not less than five pounds per thousand feet upon exclusives for each three days irrespective of age." This was signed by the principal renting exchanges in the city.

* * *

"What's wrong with the British film productions?" is a question that is so frequently discussed in the press that it is inclined to flag in its interest to the trade. Leonard Williams, who is not distantly associated with moving-picturedom in dissecting the "ensemble" of the home product addresses a few pertinent remarks anent the exploitation of unsuitable works. In the specific instance of—to lift the veil from Mr. Williams' allusions—the British produced "Five Nights," he says, the producers apparently hoped for a "success de scandale." Be this as it may, the play is the apotheosis of dullness. The philandering hero is simply a super-bore and you feel as he dallies with love-stricken dames that immediate conscription would do him incalculable good."

* * *

The film exchanges in Scotland are forming themselves into an association, and when complete hope to be affiliated with the central body in London.

* * *

I hear there is every probability of the import tax upon foreign films being modified. The financial secretary to the treasury has already suggested a revised scale for blank film and negatives instead of the present imposition. Positive stock is not mentioned, so presumably it will remain at two cents per foot. The new provision for blank or undeveloped stock is two-thirds of a cent (a third of a penny) per foot instead of the present duty of one cent per foot, while for negatives the tariff may be reduced from the current rate of sixteen cents per foot to ten cents per foot. If this amendment materializes (and coming from the treasury itself there is every likelihood) a standard width may be instituted. That is, no film imported must be wider than one inch and three-eighths. It would appear from this that attempts have been made to evade the tax by importing film of greater width and cuttng it into strips after assessment upon its lineal length.

* * *

Walter H. Mather, of New York City, is at the moment in London as the promoter of a metropolitan Screen Club. Mr.

Mather proposes with the co-operation of the trade in general to establish a club along the lines of the one in New York and to this end he has the backing of a private syndicate and an option upon commodious premises in Oxford street, London.

* * *

The amount collected to date by the Cinema Ambulance Fund now exceeds £35,000.

* * *

The reputation of Manchester as a musical center is known to the uttermost ends of the earth and an event this week will considerably enhance its record. This is the inauguration at a local moving picture theater of a symphony orchestra of close upon fifty picked performers who will daily accompany the "pictures."

* * *

The clown for many years at the old Drury Lane theater pantomime, best known by the sobriquet "Whimsical Walker," has been recruited to the ranks of film comedians. The Trans-Atlantic Co. has secured a lease on his services and announces his initial appearance in a screen comedy entitled "The Nut and the Kernel."

* * *

The Lasky Company's version of "Carmen," admitted by viewers a praiseworthy conception of the noted opera, is at last to be issued to the exhibitor for exhibition on the 20th of January, after being held "in bond" a few weeks on account of the alleged Germanic utterances of Geraldine Farrar. As I intimated in the World some time ago, a certain section of the press inflated these stories to scaring dimensions and branded the actress as a pro-German agitator. Mr. Lasky personally has issued a categorical denial of the statements attributed to Miss Farrar as a prefactory explanation to the release of "Carmen." That the exhibiting fraternity accepts Mr. Lasky's explanation is proven by the long booking list for the production, yet on the other hand there is no gainsaying that the public mind has been extensively prejudiced against the picture through gross distortion of the facts.

* * *

The Gaumont Company, in association with Jury's Pictures, is next week releasing the first batch of war pictures taken under the authority of the British Government.

* * *

Percy Nash, the new film director of the Trans-Atlantic (Universal) Company, is engaged upon a drama, "Temporal Power," for his company in Rome. It will run to four reels in length and will be released as a Trans-Atlantic British production.

* * *

It is now nearly three years since the Kalem Company issued "From Manger to Cross," and it is a remarkable tribute to the evergreen qualities of the production that it is re-screened here every Christmas. This year its revival is to be seen as the Christmas attraction at several theaters in the South of England.

* * *

In the pre-war days the legions of American tourists visiting Stratford-on-Avon, Bath, York, Edinburgh and other centers of antiquarian and historic interest would, one would think, have stimulated some producing genius to prepare a sort of moving picture pilgrimage to these places or perhaps a suitable photoplay enacted upon historic ground and designed to be of special appeal to the thousands of American people familiar with the place by reputation only. Then again, such a venture need not be without a topical aspect as an event of the next week proves. President Wilson, not by virtue of his office, is the cynosure of all eyes in the United States on the eighteenth inst., and of the miles of moving picture film that will tell the general public all about the different scenes in and around the capital there will probably be none illustrating the ancestral home in the old country of Mrs. Galt. My reason for mentioning this is because up to the time of writing no moving-picture man appears to have yet discovered that Bolling Hall, near Bradford, the family home of Mrs. Galt's (whose original name was Bolling) immediate ancestors is a place both sufficiently historic in its associations and picturesque in appearance to justify the exposure of a few feet of film upon a singularly topical subject. The copies of such a film that would be exhibited in America should make the proposition a financial attraction not to be snubbed.

* * *

A new condition inserted in moving-picture show licenses issued by the London County Council is "that no films shall be exhibited except such as have received the certificate of the British Board of Film Censors and local and topical films dealing with current events."

London Trade Topics.

Of the handful of British films that find their way to the picture-going public of the United States those bearing the Beefeeter trade-mark are perhaps as well known as any. No better expression of the conservative principles of the London Film Co. is necessary beyond the firm resolve of the directors at the recent annual meeting to maintain the present standard of quality in face of the heavy financial debit. Their latest production, "The Christian," after Hall Caine's novel and play of the title, amplifies to the full this deliberation. It is a ten-reeler and contains many fine scenes acted in the city.

* * *

Two confusing duplications in the titles of dramatic productions are worrying exhibitors in the release calendars for the week, and their recurrence suggests the advisability of some weekly or monthly exchange of titles of films under production in the two countries. Nothing can be more disconcerting to an American producer who ships a film to this country than to find another production of the same story with the identical title announced for release about the same time as his own. And for the home producer the situation is equally annoying. When the British Motion Picture Chamber of Commerce comes into being, if ever it does, a little co-operation with the kindred organization in New York would effectively dispose of duplications, or at least obviate clashing of release dates.

* * *

Another proposal to permit the opening of motion-picture theaters in greater London on the Sabbath was defeated at the last meeting of the Middlesex County Council by a single vote.

* * *

Percy Nash, who is producing in London for the Universal Company's English agency, announces the completion of number four of their British produced pictures. It is a typically London drama called "The Devil's Bondman," and has its scenes laid from Kensington to Whitechapel.

* * *

Messrs. Leonard and Yorke, the original title characters in the stage success "Potash and Perlmutter," have been "done" in a short film play, "The Tailor of Bond Street," by the Gerrard Film Co.

* * *

The Vitagraph feature, "The Juggernaut," has been purchased for Great Britain by the Gaumont Company, and the Walterdaw Company has acquired similar rights of the Universal play "Business Is Business," starring Nat C. Goodwin.

* * *

Considerable interest is being manifested in London in the announcement of the moving picture industry in France to set aside December 22 as a special day for augmenting the patriotic funds of that country.

* * *

Signor Ambrosio, of the Italian studio that bears his name, has been spending a few days at the firm's London agency and has now sailed for New York.

* * *

The Ideal Film Co., a concern of vigor and prestige in the realm of film renting, in announcing its program for the new year, is adopting the "limerick" craze of a few years ago to the advertising of photoplays. The campaign is to be carried on in the daily and weekly press with a weekly prize of $250 for the best "limerick" about one or other of the Ideal Company's releases. This company has prepared among other productions a screen debut of Lady Tree (wife of Sir H. B. Tree, now in the U. S. A.) in the comedy "Still Waters Run Deep," and also has induced G. H. Ghwgym, "the white-eyed Kaffir," to take the lead in a visualized version of "The Blind Boy."

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

LOUISE HORNER NEW HORSLEY PLAYER.

A recent addition to the Cub Comedy stock company is Miss Louise Horner, a comedienne of long experience and known to theatergoers the country over for her interpretation of "slavey" types.

Miss Horner was especially engaged by Milton Fahrney, director of the Cub Comedies, to play the "slavey" in "Jerry in the Movies," because of her peculiar fitness for the character. Her work in this release was so excellent that Mr. Fahrney made her a proposition to remain with the company indefinitely.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Here's Jimquin Again.

JIMQUIN, of L. A., has been quiet for so long that we have been busy thinking of nice things for an obituary and he hustles along —just in time—with a funeral of his own; not exactly his own, but one he personally conducted.

Some City Father decided that Los Angeles would look prettier with palms along the street in addition to giving the people something to shin up when the steering wheel of a jitney went wrong, so they spent about $50,000 before they found they had the wrong sort of palms. After a time pressure of public opinion required that the dead trees be carted away again.

Jimquin and his brother had just taken over the Isis theater, so to help keep taxes down they carted away one palm with a placard reading, "Funeral of A. Palm, buried through the kindness of the Isis theater," and the address. And it made good because it had such a strong local touch.

Jimquin sends in two photographs of the proceedings. One is a close-up of the three-man cortege, with the City Hall in the background. The other is a close-up of Jimquin with the funeral in the background. We refuse to believe that he is as black as the camera paints him, but if he is we'll be willing to bet the Isis does not play "The Birth of a Nation." The pictures will not reproduce. A third entry is a frame of film showing Jimquin shooting the Liberty Bell with a machine and a banner advising the beholder to go to the Isis and see how he looks on the screen. The picture was shown in the theater five hours later and did big business.

Another Quinn stunt was to get the first Powers 6B in Los Angeles. For an entire day he and his chief operator took turns demonstrating the mechanism and answering questions, the machine being set up in the lobby. Each person received a frame of film specially printed for the occasion, and reading "Remember where you saw it. Isis theater, 542 Spring." The Universal trade mark was included, as the house runs that service.

From this we presume that Mr. Quinn has a copy of Picture Theater advertising, since this stunt is suggested in the book in Chapter X.

Of course there is a weekly program. One of them is titled:

WEEKLY REPORT
Of what is happening at your
ISIS THEATER
WEEK NOV. 1.

Your regular patronage makes you a stock holder and you receive dividends of solid enjoyment when you buy one or more shares at five cents a share each change of pictures.

Another one starts in, "Listen, Neighbors," and winds up with the explanation that the show will improve each week as "We're just getting warmed up to the job of running the theater for you." On the back page of this number the space is laid out in advertising squares with a paraphrase of the real estate announcement, "Will subdivide to suit tenant." Now that Jimquin is settled down we hope to have more stuff from him. He used to come in pretty regularly before he got so busy.

More Carmen.

When the house organ of the Majestic theater, Columbus, Ohio, comes in we take a little vacation and read it. It's worth while, and it probably appeals to the home readers as strongly as it does on here. There is real humor in a page skit by the manager, J. A. Maddox, who, like George Editor Carpenter, blames it on the office boy. This from the page is too good to hold back and it may be useful to others who will run Carmen:

Last week the boss give me a day off to go down to Lynchburg Ohio to see my folks. On the train comin back there was a big guy by the name of Hastings from Clintonville. He was walkin up and down the isle of the car uneasylike. I says what's the matter Hank? He says, I'm watchin that baggage car. I says, What's the idee? He says, I seen a show called Carmen in Cincinnati last week and a feller just told me they are takin it to Columbus. If them wild cattle and that woman with the long hair and the big knife ever gets loose on this train, I'm goin to look for a soft place to light.

But, I says, it's only a fillum.

Fillum or no fillum, says he, I'm takin' no chances. For a real go-as-you-please, rough-and-tumble, catch-as-catch-can fighter, this gal's got 'em all hangin' on the ropes. She could go in the ring with Jess Willard, at 5.45, cop the championship and set down to a course dinner at 6 o'clock without arranging her coffier or even powderin' her nose. I tell you, Kid, she's the ninth wonder of the world. What do you suppose would happen to the Turks if she'd join the allies and take a bunch of them cattle over there with her? Kin you imagine her on one side with a thousand of them wildeyed steers behind her and the Turks on the other side all wearin' red caps? Say, Bo, she wouldn't only take the Dardennelles, but she'd come back with so many Turkish Trophies and Fatimas that the cigarette factory that she worked fer would close down for six months. She would be elected queen of the Armenians by aclimation.

Warm Down South.

Although R. B. Wilby is managing four houses in Montgomery for the Strand Amusement Co., he is also faithful to his first love and continues to manage the Academy of Music, Selma, and is also lessee of the second house. Lately he has been scrapping with the editor of a local paper, who objected to the way the house was run, which enabled Mr. Wilby to present many facts that sunk in where the mere statement of fact would not attract. It is a dangerous thing to get in bad with the daily papers, but in this case Mr. Wilby seems to have the best of it, because he was able to explain things to his patrons in the guise of replying to an attack, which always interests.

Mr. Wilby, by the way, is in trouble with his program in Montgomery through an effort to blend the Triangle heralds with pages containing house stuff and announcements of other attractions. He wanted to get it all in the same tint, but the printers cannot duplicate in roller ink the ink used in the photogravure process. He might get a better effect than he does by acquiring catalogues from a few ink concerns, but if Triangle could do as well with straight printing, they naturally would not resort to photogravure. The Triangle heralds are artistic in the extreme, but it would be helpful to exhibitors who use them in combination if the company made them of uniform size. There is a difference of half an inch or more between them, which is discouraging to an exhibitor who purchases them to bind up, either alone or with other matter.

Mr. Wilby is having the usual trouble with increased prices, but he is the originator of the widely quoted Phonograph record prices of a couple of years ago, and he is pulling them by the same tactics now.

A Permanent Pony.

Samuel P. Cornish, of the Sexton, Great Falls, Mont., writes, enclosing a photograph of his house that is almost too wide to go nicely into a cut and another that is entirely too high to reproduce. The pony spoken of in the letter is a Shetland, which shows in the cut. It is ridden by a small boy in uniform to match the blanket and banner.

The banner, appropriately triangular, reads with the name of the house and "Today." The blanket is lettered with the name of the attraction. It is made with an opening for the saddle and is put into place after the boy is mounted. A sort of trade mark perambulating advertisement of this sort gains in effect the longer it is used. Mr. Cornish writes:

I am a very interested and constant reader of your most excellent department, "Advertising for Exhibitors," in the Moving Picture World, and find it very helpful to me in my efforts to stir up an interest among the patrons of the Sexton theater in our program.

Under separate cover I am enclosing several copies of our house organ, "The Sextonian," and would be very glad to receive constructive or destructive criticism of its merits from you. I realize that it no doubt has many glaring faults, some of which would be corrected if I had more time to devote towards editing it.

I was very much interested in a statement of yours in a recent issue of the World regarding the house organ of an exhibitor in Oklahoma City who gets complaints from his patrons if they do not receive his paper regularly. I wish to say that this is quite a common occurrence with us, although we do our best to see that everybody in Great Falls is supplied with a copy of "The Sextonian." However, you will readily understand that in trying to cover the whole town it is impossible for the delivery boys not to miss some of them occasionally.

I find our guessing contests very popular and have the desired effect of creating a great deal of interest in our paper.

I am also sending photos of our theater. The boy with the pony, which you see in the picture, is also one of our regular features, and one of the best advertising stunts we have. Please note also the 32-sheet stand on the side of the theater. We have four of these stands about the city in most favorable locations, advertising each week our four weekly changes by means of six sheets, as you will note on examining the picture closely.

The Sextonian has a drawn frontispiece, with a mortise for a cut and advertisement of the leading attraction for the week. The sheet is about 8 by 11 and runs eight pages, but in the eight-point type used this carries a lot of matter.

The guessing contests are varied from week to week, with a tendency to fall back on the camera when missing words and misspelled words tire. Back views are used in two of the five issues sent. The names of the winners are given, but not the answers. This last we think a mistake. There can be no objection to telling what the missing word is, once it has been found, and many who failed would like to know. The contests are conducted with a careful observance of the lottery laws. Chance is eliminated, and there are no entrance fees. You send or bring your reply, as you prefer, and are not required to enter the house or to purchase a ticket.

One thing that we miss is an editorial chat. There is an editorial heading, but no editorial, the space being used for the house program. The sheet otherwise is chatty and good reading, backing up the statement that overlooked patrons ask for it. In a word, it is precisely the sort of house organ in which an editorial chat would have its fullest effect. Even at the cost of removing a cut and a paragraph, we would by all means have that page devoted to the house, its policies, its comforts and its management. It will be more than worth the trouble to write five or six hundred words a week. In time the editorial page will come to be the first read. Better still would be two columns of editorial and one page of lighter matter, the contest, perhaps, and some kindly jokes about the winners and losers.

One good feature is a "Return by Request" program each Sunday, and the readers are requested to use a coupon to request the return of some picture they would like to see again. It does not follow that many of these pictures can be had, but it gives a good line on the tastes of the patrons and permits the use of an old film on a good business day, with the suggestion that it must be better than usual since its return is requested. For that matter, there seems to be no good reason why many pictures could not be played back to better business than at the first showing. Ever try it yourself?

The reading matter is well selected and the press agent raves are mostly passed over for the more intelligent stuff. Some of the Feature men are putting out "dope" that tries friendship to the limit and some houses are using it. The Sextonian avoids it—and is in demand. There's a lesson here.

A Potato Matinee.

Bill (William) Swanson writes:

On the front page of the enclosed paper, which is a House Organ of mine in Grand Junction, Colo., you will notice the "ad" on the foot of the sheet relative to the "Potato Matinee."

It might be an idea which could be encouraged in other theaters for the benefit of the poor.

The paper is our old friend, the Movie Fan, of Grand Junction, Colo., the same which recently kicked a large and jagged hole in an effort to stop Sunday shows. The start of the scheme was announced in this fashion:

POTATO MATINEE

THE MAJESTIC'S NOVEL WAY TO HELP FURNISH A BIG XMAS DINNER TO CITY'S POOR.

It has been customary for the Majestic theater to give to the children of Grand Junction a big treat each week by giving a Penny Matinee for the benefit of the school children every Wednesday afternoon. In doing this Manager Decker has done a great service to the community and one that has been appreciated by the parents of the city's little folks, and especially so by many who could not afford to spend 5 cents for the amusement of their children once a week. We have been thanked and commended by many a mother in this city who, in justice to the necessary enjoyment of her offspring, has taken advantage of this popular Penny Matinee.

Next week we will hold the usual Penny Matinee on Wednesday so that all the little faithfuls will have the same opportunity to witness the last episode of the great "Broken Coin" serial which they so faithfully witnessed from the start. In addition to Wednesday's Penny Matinee we will hold a "Penny and Potato Matinee" on Tuesday, Nov. 30, one day previous to the last Penny Matinee, and will continue to hold the Penny and Potato Matinee each week until Xmas. The best program suitable for the children will be selected each week regardless of what day it falls on. For Tuesday, our feature will be "Guarding Old Glory," a powerful big state-right feature, the story of which appears elsewhere in this issue. The admission price of this big feature will be 10 cents and 20 cents, but we will run one show after school for the benefit of the school children for the admission price of ONE PENNY and TWO POTATOES, or as many potatoes as any child wishes to donate. Some of the children who can better afford and want to help make this a Merry Xmas for all the poor and needy of Grand Junction—children of the more fortunate class—will cheerfully give as many as a dozen potatoes, or will bring a jar of fruit, a can of corn, beans or tomatoes, or a pumpkin, squash—but do not bring apples because they will not keep. Bring anything that is staple and which will keep until Xmas, but the minimum price of admission will be one penny and two potatoes. The penny in cash will go to the theater to help defray the expenses of this big feature while the potatoes and other donations will be turned over to the board of associated charities for distribution among the poor and needy to make them happy on Xmas Day.

Manager Decker originated the "Potato Matinee" idea, a novel and successful means of aiding the poor at Xmas time, which has since been imitated by many other exhibitors throughout the country. Almost every child can afford two potatoes and we believe the children of Grand Junction will help us pile up an immense lot of potatoes during the ensuing four weeks until Xmas, and thus make all the poor and needy happy.

Remember the date, little ones—Tuesday, Nov. 30. The big feature is "Guarding Old Glory." The admission price is One Penny and Two Potatoes, or as many more potatoes you wish to give to charity. Evening prices, 10 cents and 20 cents. Watch next week's Movie Fan for date of next Potato Matinee.

The suggestion is a good one and may be varied to suit the season, perhaps a potted plant for church decoration just before Easter or flowers for Memorial Day. Mr. Swanson writes as though he thought the idea new, but if he will turn to page 256 of Picture Theater Advertising he will find it mentioned there. It was originated by an exhibitor in Louisiana, who gave a series of anti-Christmas matinees at which the admission was any toy or fruit or candy that could be given less fortunate kiddies at a Christmas performance.

As a suggestion, we reproduce the advertisement that followed the announcement. In the original it is five inches across page. This is the house organ, which is full newspaper size. In a general newspaper three fives could be made to work as well.

The first matinee brought in a barrel and a half of potatoes, with three jars of fruit possibly for box seats.

A Diminutive Monthly.

The Town Hall theater, Saybrook, Conn., uses one of the smallest monthly programs we have seen. The house runs only two nights a week and the program for the month is a four-page, 3½ by 6 inch affair, yet large enough to take care of the announcements of the feature reels they run. A different color is used for each month, which works well with the issues so far apart.

Potato Matinee

Our Next Penny and Potatoe Matinee will be WED., DEC. 8th

LOOK AT THIS PROGRAM!!!

John Mason in "JIM, THE PENMAN." One of the greatest productions yet made by the Famous Psayers Film Co. Its a Paramount feature in 5 big reels. Then we'll also have a screaming L-KO comedy in 2 reels, entitled "BOARD AND ROOM $1.50," featuring the funniest Comedian in the world,--Billy Ritchie.

School Children's Matinee

A Show will be run directly after school for the Children to which an admission price of....

1 penny and 2 potatoes will be charged, or as many more potatoes as you wish to give.

The Potatoes will be donated to Charity

Evening Prices of admission 5c and 15c

DON'T MISS IT !!!!

7 Big Reels!!

Udells.

Dave Udell, of the Majestic, Paxton, Ill., writes that he has been ill, which is why he has not been in as often as he promised he would. Of his last offering this is, perhaps, the handiest:

UNEXPECTED GUESTS

Oftentimes "drop in" on you. They are friends of yours and want to be entertained. The best solution to this problem is THE CRYSTAL THEATER. Seats reserved for Theater Parties upon request.

The top lines are set in a four-line letter, the rest in ten point. Another advertisement runs:

JAWS

That Always Open Easy

Are the jaws of a person who has been to the Crystal Theater. There is something to talk about every night; something new and interesting.

Some People Say:

"Oh, well, I guess I got along all right before moving pictures came to town and I guess I can still git along without them." Those same people could possibly drift through life all right if they were blind; nevertheless they do not wish to lose their sense of sight. People lived before the electric light, machinery, telephone, etc., but how did they live?

Tonight:

In this "Jaws" is an eight-line letter and the other large lines are thirty-six point with an eight-point body type for the rest, leading down to the announcement of the attraction.

A Starter.

H. T. Coons, of the Gem, Hobart, Ind., sends in his opening program for the new theater that replaces an older structure. It is on a Hennegan cover and gives the program for the day only. There is an introduction to the house and a greeting to the patrons, also a schedule to be followed by days, giving the patrons an idea as to what the house will show on any given day of the week, which is useful where the program cannot be ascertained in time for publication. Mr. Coons writes that the house has a population of only 2,500, but even at that he could make a program permanent, with the aid of some outside advertising.

Perhaps.

Some one sends in a copy of the Allentown, Pa., Democrat, with the advertisement of the Lyceum theater marked. Two programs are given, one of thirteen and the other of fourteen reels. And the admission is five cents at matinees and ten cents nights and holidays. Perhaps it is a forecast that a local item just above is headed, "Sold by the Sheriff." It is suicidal to offer so much, no matter what the price. It surfeits the patron, who presently decides that he does not care for pictures any more and stays away. It would not matter did it merely affect the management, but it puts the town off the picture map for a long time.

Four Bits Per.

Some of the exhibitors who are doing their best to hoist the price from ten cents to a quarter should see the advertisements of the Thorne, Fairbanks, Alaska. They got fifty cents up there for a single feature of four or five reels, but the operator is a long way from the exchange and it takes carfare. The houses uses a two-column advertisement, eight inches deep, for each feature and runs two advertisements, with a reader to each, the films running two days each. The advertising is well planned and the readers are business makers; no extreme of statement, but a clean-cut comment on the production that would do for New York as well as Alaska.

Metro Borders.

Metro is getting into line with service and announces top and bottom pieces for advertisements from one to four columns wide, any office rule being used for the sides, according to the depth of the advertisement. In the sample we saw in the Boston Film Facts, straight six-point rule is used for the sides, but a lighter, broken border would be better in that it would be more in harmony with the general make-up of the top and bottom pieces. Some day a company will get out these ideas and have a border drawn to match.

Trying Out.

The Palace, Northumberland, Pa., is trying out a house organ. The management seems to have ideas. One of these is a novel make-up for the inside pages. The program for a day takes half a page, two column wide, with advertising or reading in the third column. The page is made up so that at the top the odd column is to the left of the program space and at the bottom the column is at the right. This gives a broken effect that serves to separate the days. Now, if they will frame each day in three-point border, keeping the panels standing, they will have a still better effect. The first page is kept for house talk and general matter. The paper stock is a little too absorbent and the use of a slightly better grade might make a better looking sheet, but a better grade does not mean a coated paper. This stock it almost good enough as it is, and a slightly better news will not materially increase the cost. For that matter, the stock used for the first issue is probably a trifle more expensive, but it is too thin and the ink from the impression on the other side shows through. As the paper stands it is good enough to make business, and it is well written. That's the main test, after all.

New.

The New Alhambra, Sandusky, which has just opened under the management of George J. Shade, sends in a quarter-page advertisement that preceded the opening. We think that for an opening announcement more of the space should have been given that fact, even though there is a two-column write-up on the same page. For the opening the house should be made more important. Announce the bills for the opening week, but take more space for talk about the house. Five announcements are too many for the start, for here the house holds the interest rather than the performance. Films must be used to draw later, when the newness of the house no longer appeals.

At It Again.

Steve Farrar is at it again. Steve is a bit weak on poetry, but if this is not a prose poem, at least it is effective advertising; only Steve had to go and print on green paper and the circular will not reproduce. He starts off with the heading for the house (The Casino, Eldorado, Ill., in case you do not know Steve), and then:

Charley Chaplin,

With his little beaney, his big breeches and big feet. He's at the Casino tonight. Come early for a seat.

Punch him with a stick; lam him with a brick; poor fellow, an auto knocks him upside down.

(Now comes another display line with the type upside down to show how he was bowled over.)

And when he glides, those left foot slides tickle the kids.

Churn Him Up, Mix Him Up.

(And now you will please imagine a Charley Chaplin with the type facing four different ways.)

He's funny, gets the money; never smiles, 'tis true; he safely leaves that all to you.

Charley Chaplin.

If you can figure this out you'll have something that will look crazy enough to demand attention. There is more, but this is Steve's best for the moment, and now he's started again we'll look for encores. It is to be hoped that he gets around to starting his newspaper again.

Color Schemes.

H. E. Ellison, who operates somewhere out in George Editor Carpenter's territory, has a new idea in color schemes. For The Yankee Girl all of the printing was done in red, white and blue. For Carmen the Spanish colors were used, and so on, appropriate colors wherever possible, but some effective combination, anyhow. Some of the other schemes were baby blue for Mary Pickford, purple for Marguerite Clarke, yellow for Blanche Sweet and brown for Pauline Frederick. The idea is to carry the color on all of the advertising and into the lobby. Mr. Ellison writes that people are coming just to see what color they are using.

Be Examined.

The Star, Two Harbors, Minn., recently opened a new house and to celebrate they got out a poster on the lines of the old Public Notice, only more so. In forty-eight point letters on a yellow circular they announced that:

Every person in Two Harbors is hereby ordered to have a thorough Medical Examination at either of the local hospitals today.

Smaller type explained that there was danger that persons might laugh themselves to death at the showing of a certain comedy. A larger "Notice" and keeping down the advertisement to more the form of a public notice would have been even better, but the idea is capable of many adaptations.

An Effective Combination.

George H. Kenyon, of the Princess, Colwyn Bay, Wales, sends in a program for his house that is out of the ordinary, a pinkish terra cotta sheet printed in dark red. It is eye-catching and pronounced, without being at all loud; a piece of advertising that will stand apart from other papers and be recognized at once. The house announces matinees for Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, and "also on wet afternoons," which is something new over here. The house gets from six to twenty-five cents for a feature, two or three one-reels and a topical or travel picture, more than obtains over here, but the better British houses have larger orchestras and more elaborate presentations.

Old, Yet New.

The pseudo invitation to a film showing is by no means new. It has been used in about every shape imaginable, but the Iris, Salisbury, N. C., dug up a new use when a page in their book program was given to an invitation in legible script to attend the Carmen performance. The Iris runs to an over-black face, and the effect of the light line script is doubly contrasty in consequence. Pick out something that really looks like engraving and print an invitation or an announcement without any border work or other fussiness and you'll be surprised to see how the page will stand up if you use a good quality of paper stock. Score one for the Iris.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid, $2.00.

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Inquiries.

Questions concerning the writing (but NOT the marketing) of photoplays will be replied to without charge if addressed to the Photoplaywright Department and accompanied by a fully addressed stamped envelope. Questions must be typewritten or written with pen and ink.

Questions as to the financial standing of concerns or the probable markets for specific or certain styles of stories cannot be answered.

In no case and under no circumstance will any manuscript or synopsis be handled and if sent will be returned without reply.

A list of addresses of producing companies will be sent if the request is made direct to the publication office, but not where request is made to this department.

Mussing Things Up.

ALWAYS the simplest story is the best if it is a story and not merely a bald attempt at one. So many authors labor under the delusion that merely added matter will help along. Here is a vampire woman. The story is of medium strength. Not enough for more than three reels, and not very strong, at that. The author wants to build up. He goes to the theater and sees one of the popular semi-nude cave man stories. Fine. There was something that was worth looking at. He will make his heroine a reincarnation of Cleopatra. Every little while he will flash back. When his heroine persuades the Governor to sign the bill that will mean her personal profit and his political destruction, then he will flash back to Cleopatra holding Antony from the conquest. When, in an earlier scene the heroine seeks to win the interest of the Governor, he can fade over into Alxandria some years back and get a corking pretty picture of the meeting of Antony and Cleopatra. When the Heroine and the Governor take the clandestine trip that later is used as the club by which he is induced to sign the bill it will help a lot to show the ancient couple in their journey on the Nile. He will have three reels of modern drama and two reels of history and it will be the hit of the season.

Perhaps it will and then, again, it may not. It may be that the production cost will prevent its manufacture. A level headed director may object to paying several thousand dollars for pure spectacle that is valuable only as spectacle and not as contrast to the modern story which it parallels but does not help, since it merely shows the author's paucity of ideas in that he modernizes an old story and brazenly advertises the fact.

The added material must be germane to the story. It must not be related to but a part of the story. The appeal must be derived from the story and not from the contrast. The contrast will help if used in moderation, but an elaborate series of fades and dissolves will not materially advance the story save from a visual aspect.

Suppose that the story runs that Cleo, a woman who is not better than she should be and yet not so bad as she might be, engages in a flirtation with a promising young lawyer. In a way she likes—almost loves—him, but she is far too selfish to truly love more than her own pleasure. She persuades him to take a vacation in her company. More as a sport than with any desire to be helpful, she engages the interest of her influential friends to promote his political aspirations. He becomes Governor. As the executive he throws off the yoke of the bosses and rules for the people. The ring has counted on his support in passing a gigantic grab. The papers realize the purpose of the bill and attack it. The ring can pass it through the Legislature but cannot pass it over the Governor's veto since it can barely muster the two-thirds vote and not the three-fourths required to pass over the veto. The Governor is with the papers and the people. In the last resort they send Cleo to threaten that she will tell how, when he was a struggling young lawyer she took him on a vacation and that it was her money that paid for the trip. His vanity is even stronger than his political aspirations. He signs the bill.

The story naturally runs about three reels. The cutting back to Ancient Egypt will pad the reels but it will not add to the story. It will be longer and more eye-pleasing, but the story is precisely the same three-reel idea.

Instead of the Egyptian Queen add a woman; a clean woman, the woman the Governor marries in spite of the efforts of Cleo to hold him her subject. It is the threat to tell the wife that is used rather than the appeal to the Governor's vanity. It is his love for the wife that causes him to waver and half promise to sign. Then the wife comes forward. Something she knows; more she can guess. It is she who persuades the Governor to defy Cleo and the men who employed her. It is she who accomplishes Cleo's undoing. Now you have not alone more story but more plot, greater interest and stronger appeal. Flashes of Cleopatra with a lot of chorus girls in tights would have made more of an appeal to the eye, but the story would have been voted tiresome in spite of this because it was a three-reel plot strung into five thousand feet.

This is not saying that a story could not be written about Cleopatra nor yet a reincarnation of Cleopatra, but the planning of the story must get Cleopatra into the plot as well as on the film if it is to raise a three-reel idea to the full measure of a five-reel story.

Have all the spectacle you want if there is a plot-reason for the spectacle, but have a plot-reason and not merely an earnest desire to atone for your plot-shortcomings. It is merely another form of putting in stuff "to make the picture more interesting," but you do not make it more interesting unless you mack the visual with the mental and give an idea as well as a picturesque scene.

Read the Fullface.

A woman queries this department on a matter of interest to herself alone and winds up with "May I see your reply in this department." She can. The reply is at the top of the department each issue. It says that questions will be answered where a stamped and self-addressed envelope accompanies the request.

Sets.

A correspondent writes that she has seen the model script of a one-reel play in which eight sets are used, though she has been told to use not more than six to the reel, and asks: "Would not a one-reel subject calling for eight different sets court a rejection slip?"

This is another example of studying technique to excess. One-reel plays should not run more than six sets, but if the play is good, really and truly good, ten sets would not cause its rejection. The play is one thing. Keep the number of your sets down, because scene setting causes delay and costs, but if you have a play worth eight sets or eighteen, go ahead and you'll sell it. A manufacturer would rather build a few extra sets than lose a good play, for now, more than ever before, plays of the right sort are in demand.

Modest.

Declaring that no manufacturer purchases from the outside, and urging this department to kill off the outsiders mercifully and quickly, a correspondent adds:

> Of course I expect you to conclude that I am raving and know not whereof I speak, but there are thousands in the country like myself who have submitted to various companies scripts bearing the hall-mark of originality, unconventional and possessing substantial interest, of good plots well plotted and conforming to the general principles of technique only to have them returned accompanied by the film producers Bible—the rejection slip.

Companies do not want scripts "bearing the hall-mark of originality," if it is the sort of originality that this letter suggests. They want sane, well-founded stories. They want producible stuff. They do not want ravers. No man who can write so complacently of his stuff really is an author. He is apt to be original along impracticable lines. He seeks to mask a poverty of idea with a plentitude of effects, but he does not write stories, and stories are what the producers are looking for; not raves.

The writer concludes with the question: "What is the use of digging a ditch when one lives in the desert?" The answer is that there is not a bit of use unless the desert is to be irrigated with ideas. If you can write the sort of ideas producers want, you can sell, but you can be too original and never sell at all. You must be intelligently original or it will avail you little.

Going Stale.

Don't work on one story to the exclusion of all others until you get sick of it. A starter lately wrote that he even slept with a note book under his pillow and wrote and rewrote his story until it was in the best possible shape. It could not have been. You are bound to come to the point where you go stale just as an athlete may be overtrained. Do your best work on a story. Then lay it aside and take up something else, forgetting the first as completely as possible. Then do a third and perhaps, by that time, you can come back to the first and approach it with a clear mind.

Another man writes that each time his story comes back from the studios he can see changes he can make that will better the script Of course he can, but why spoil good stamps? Put the script in an envelope and pretend you have mailed it. Then cut the envelope six weeks later and try again. Repeat until you finally open the script and find you cannot do much better. Then send out and you'll be far less apt to get a rejection slip if you pick out a proper studio. The chance of a sale is so remote that you are not even gambling your stamps. You are throwing them away.

Titles.

"Sometimes I think an hour or even more about a title," proudly announces an author. That is not enough unless in that time you get a title so apt and so inviting that you feel you cannot better it. Some writers will hold a story for a week or two if they feel that the title is not just right. They know the effect that the title will have on the sale and they want the best title possible. They are willing to hold back the story until they are certain the title is right, for they know it is better to get money two weeks late than perhaps not at all. If a delay will get a selling title, the delay is not a loss but a profit.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two or three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

The following was written for the New Year's number but was unavoidably crowded out of that issue:

The Year's Progress.

During the year 1915 there has been very great progress made in practically all matters which have to do with projection. Evidence is constantly reaching this department that, more and more, operators are coming to a realization of the fact that to attempt to limit the spread of knowledge with relation to projection borders on childishness, and it is with sincere pleasure I am able to say that during the past year a constantly increasing number of the men have abandoned their dog-in-the-manger attitude and buckled down to a study of the finer points of their profession.

In fact all along the line, from the most humble village operator to the men who handle the projectors in theaters costing tens of thousands of dollars, there has been a distinct inclination to study and improve. This is decidedly encouraging.

During the past year this department has succeeded in opening up new avenues of knowledge to the operator, and to a very considerable extent eliminating the guess work which heretofore has held practically full sway with regard to the optical system of the projector. During the year the editor has brought into being a new and complete Handbook of projection, which is now in the hands of the printer man and will be ready for delivery within a few weeks.

During the year 1915 there has been a distinct change in the attitude of theater managers with regard to projection. This change, while not startling in its magnitude, is very evident, and is due, we firmly believe, very largely to the work of this department. The theater manager is slowly being made to realize the fact that a higher grade of ability in the operating room is not only desirable, but absolutely necessary, and that added knowledge and skill calls for better working conditions and increased salary.

During the past year this department has accomplished considerable in abating the nuisance of poorly inspected films, although there is still much work to be done in that particular direction. In fact we have but just made a good start.

During the past year there has been brought into being a new six hundred dollar projector, namely, the Edison Super-Kinetoscope, and during the same period another new machine has been pretty well introduced to the trade, namely, the Baird, also a high class projector. The Coles Picture Corporation has, within the limits of 1915, been preparing, and is now ready to place on the market another new projection machine, described quite some time ago in the department.

In addition to the introduction of these new machines all the older ones have undergone very distinct improvement, and have been kept strictly up-to-date. The Nicholas Power Company has brought out a new machine, their 6B, with a new motor drive, or speed control, which contains many refinements, and has introduced a new stand which may be tilted at any angle; also they have very greatly improved the lamphouse, and made other important changes, as described from time to time in the department.

The Precision Machine Company has evolved a new and most excellent speed controller, and has made such minor changes in the mechanism and equipment as experience seemed to indicate would make for greater efficiency.

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company has made exceedingly important changes in the mechanism of the Motiograph, particularly in the elimination of the ball and socket arbor, substituting therefor a movement which was recently described in this department, and which seems to avoid the objectionable features of the ball and socket. They have also eliminated the inside shutter, which very greatly simplifies the mechanism. Aside from these two important changes, other minor points have been given due and proper attention.

There have also been several changes made in the mechanism of the American Standard machine, though for the most part they only make for greater simplicity. One important change, however, places the intermittent movement in an oil well on the right of the machine.

During the past year, under the leadership of this department, there has been a distinct tendency to install high grade projection lenses, and that particular proposition will be pushed vigorously just as soon as plenty of lenses are available, which may not be until the war is over.

During the year 1915 there have been placed on the market several new motor generator sets for the converting of A. C. into D. C. In mercury arc rectifiers a very important change for the better has been made in the installation of dial switches by means of which the amperage at the arc can be instantly changed, and the installation of a switch on the front of the rectifier by means of which the operator may instantly switch from D. C. to A. C. through the reactance of the machine, in case the tube should give out.

During the past twelve months some of the big producers have, largely through the instrumentality of this department, been awakened to the importance of having their films placed in the operators' hands in the best possible condition, and projected to the screen in the best possible manner.

And so I could go on for pages citing improvement after improvement in things having to do with projection.

The progress made is more than encouraging. Six years ago, when the projection department entered the field, the moving picture machine operator had absolutely no standing of any kind whatsoever. Everyone now concedes that skill on the part of the operator does cut some figure, and some have conceded that, after all, the operator really is one of the most important cogs in the wheels of the moving picture industry. We do not claim that the operator owes this change of attitude entirely to the educational work of the projection department, but we do say, and believe the statement cannot be successfully disputed, that the department has been a very important factor in the matter.

In closing I want to mention one other point, namely, the improvement in the morale of the men themselves. Six years ago a large percentage of the operators were composed of totally irresponsible men and boys most of whom neither knew, or cared to know, any more about their business than would barely suffice to "get by," and draw the little, piffling twelve to twenty dollar pay check. Go among a crowd of operators at the exchanges waiting for reels and the language was something awful; attend one of the balls in a large city and—well, you all remember what it was by two or three o'clock in the morning. Today the "tough" has very largely disappeared, and even the most shiftless operator evinces at least some desire to learn the technical end of his profession and improve his work; also a very goodly percentage of the body of operators of today are distinctly high class men; men whom one is proud to know; who are gentlemen; who have dignity, poise and who keep abreast with the advancement of knowledge in their profession.

Again I say, all this is more than encouraging, and I predict during the year 1916 there will be further advancement all along the line.

Now, gentlemen, as a last word, let me, in all sincerity, wish for the moving picture theater operator, the moving picture theater manager, and all those having to do with this great industry, which I am told stands either fourth or fifth, in amount of capital invested, in the United States, a prosperous year, with plenty of hard work, mixed with proper alloy of play, so that when on December 31, 1916, the clock shall strike twelve midnight, we can all look back and say: I have done well.

Question No. 119.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

Explain fully just what "flicker" is. What is "travel ghost" and its cause? Why does a properly proportioned three-wing shutter cause less flicker than a two-wing, speed being equal? Is the screen ever entirely dark when the picture is being projected?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 113.

The Roll of Honor on Question 113 consists of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, New York; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; Charles S. Stuckey, Edmonton, Alta., Canada; F. Richards, Blaine, Washington; J. H. Marchard, Baton Rouge, Louisiana, and G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana.

The reply of Brother Smith has been selected for publication.

Reply to Question No. 113.

By Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas.

The Question:

What are the effects of the intermittent sprocket being out of line, sidewise, with the upper and lower sprocket? What is the effect if one side of the intermittent sprocket is higher than the other? What is the effect of worn intermittent sprocket shaft bushings?

The Answer:

If the intermittent sprocket be out of line sidewise the effect will be serious in proportion to how bad the condition is, but in any event it is a fault which should be immediately remedied. First, it pulls the film sidewise and this, unless, as is the case with some projectors, the film be held in place by metal side-strips, will throw titles and pictures which are outlined in opaque out of line in the aperture, and if the condition be bad enough, may cause the sprocket holes to show on one side.

Another result of this fault is that the film will be pulled out of line either between the upper and lower sprockets, or between the bottom of the film chute and the lower sprocket, and this might, if the condition be bad enough, set up a decided tendency to climb the lower sprocket and lose the lower loop, or, with some makes of machine, may set up a tendency of the film to climb the intermittent sprocket teeth.

If one end of the sprocket be higher than the other the effect is obvious: it will cause the teeth on the lower end to do most, if not all, the work of pulling down the film, with result that the perforations on that side of the film will be strained, and the teeth on that side of the sprocket will wear much faster than the teeth on the other side, the latter condition being particularly bad, since if the sprocket be properly lined after the teeth on one side have become worn, then the teeth on the other side will do most of the work until they too become equally worn.

Exchange Splices.

C. E. Schmidt, Pathe Exchange, Omaha, Nebraska, says:

> What do you think of this? We have been receiving complaints about our film pulling apart during the showing of a reel, and although the writer looked carefully for the trouble, even making up some new cement, did not find the cause until yesterday, and then by accident. The writer sat at one of our inspection tables to make a patch, in order to see if the cement was good, and after properly cutting off the film, wetted and scraped off the emulsion side; he then turned the other end over to scrape the celluloid side, whereupon one of our inspectors interrupted and asked: "What in the world are you doing?" When I told him the inspectors assured me it was only necessary to scrape the emulsion side, and they guessed they knew how to splice a film, for did not one work for the General two years, another for the Mutual a year, and the third for the Universal, and they always scraped but one side only. Of course it was hard to convince them that my way was the right way, but they are not the only ones, as two "operators" (?) told us one side only needed scraping. You may take it from me there is one exchange in Omaha that is going to turn out properly patched and inspected films, and if the quality of projection in this territory is not improved it will not be because we are remiss in doing our share.

Well, it seems almost unbelievable that an exchange inspector or an operator would, in this day and age, not understand that A SPLICE ABSOLUTELY CANNOT BE PROPERLY MADE WITHOUT SCRAPING THE CELLULOID SIDE. I don't wish to be understood as saying that one cannot make a patch without scraping the celluloid, but most emphatically such a patch is not reliable, particularly if the back of the film, as it too often happens, be dirty or oily. My compliments to the Pathe Exchange of Omaha. I would most earnestly recommend that not only the other Omaha exchanges, but exchanges and operators everywhere take notice of the fact that a splice made without scraping the celluloid side as well as the emulsion side is not a good or dependable splice, regardless of the fact that you might seem to prove otherwise by making a splice which is apparently strong enough to suit anybody. Scrape the celluloid if you want to make a dependable splice. I am very glad indeed that the exchange inspectors are beginning to wake up and set forth their side of things in the department. It is proof positive that our little campaign on film inspection has borne fruit.

Light Plants, Etc.

W. E. Cooksey, Duncan, Oklahoma, says:

> What experience do exhibitors in general have with their own light plants—for example, Fairbanks, Morse engine and equipment, run by natural gas? I also would like to know if an ordinary A. C. compensarc would do to reduce direct current, voltage from 110 to 60.

No, you could not use an alternating current compensarc on D. C. It would not operate at all; see handbook. As to light plants, why the experience varies, according to the degree of intelligence with which the plant is handled. Managers and operators report producing current all the way from 2½ to 5 cents K. W. Personally, I think that, with a good plant working close to its capacity, handled intelligently, current can be produced for less than 4 cents per K. W., using gasoline at say 20 cents per gallon. As to the natural gas end of it, you would have to take that up with the manufacturer himself. I'm not posted.

Angle of Total Reflection.

In response to my request Brother Solar, Watertown, N. Y., contributes the following:

> Replying to your request for comments on total reflection: In my criticism of Brother Crawford's answer to Question No. 104 and your comments on same, I stated that if total reflection was being considered, the answer and comment would apply. Well, I should have said "if reflection was being considered."

In all cases where light is incident from air upon the surface of a solid or liquid, or, more generally, when the incidence is from a less highly refracting to a more highly refracting medium (as from air to glass) the reflection is partial. In such case the most powerful reflecting substances either transmits or absorbs a portion of the incident light. At a perpendicular incidence glass reflects only 25 rays out of 1,000, but when the rays strike the surface obliquely, the reflection is augmented. At an incidence of 40 degrees glass reflects approximately 30 rays out of 1,000 and refracts 970 (an incident angle of 40 degrees is about as large as will encounter practical projection). But at no incidence, however great, when the incidence is from air, is the reflection from glass or any other substance, total. Even at an incidence of 89½ degrees where the light almost grazes the surface, or the arc is placed as near the surface of the lense as possible, glass will reflect only approximately 800 rays out of 1,000 and refract 200. Still it is possible that total reflection may occur, and this leads to the enunciation of a principal which underlies all optical phenomena, viz.: the principal of reversibility. In the case of refraction, for instance, when the ray passes obliquely from air to glass, it is bent towards the perpendicular; when it passes from glass to air, it is bent from the perpendicular, or normal, and reverses its course. Total reflection never occurs, except in the attempted passage of a ray from a more refracting to a less refracting medium, but in this case, when the obliquity is sufficient, that is greater than 40 degrees and 43 minutes, it always occurs.

Referring to the figure, I have used a 5-inch condenser at the back, for the reason that we cannot get total reflection with a condenser of longer focus, with the arc in a position near that used in practical projection. The upper half of the figure is devoted to total reflection and critical angle. The lower to reflection. The incident ray A. B. is refracted at B. After refraction it takes course C E. This ray is more nearly normal to the first surface than is A B; consequently the refraction has bent the ray towards normal. The ray C E is refracted at E and takes direction E F, which is at a right angle (90 degrees) with normal to the second surface, H E. The incident angle C E H is 40 degrees and 43 minutes, which is the critical angle. If this angle is made larger, say 42 or 43 degrees or more, then we have total reflection, as shown by dotted line E I. By a little study of the figure we can see that if the arc or radiant point is moved nearer the condenser the incident angle will decrease, so we cannot have total reflection with the arc less than 3⅞ in. from a 5-inch condenser. If the condenser was of longer focus the refraction would be less, consequently we could not get total reflection without moving the arc back.

Let us imagine the space around the condenser occupied by air to be glass, the space occupied by the condenser to be air and the arc or radiant point 2⅝ inches from the condenser X B, the incident ray at an angle of 40 degrees and 43 minutes with normal to the first surface.

Under these conditions the rays are attempting to pass from a denser to a less dense medium, and will be refracted away from normal in the direction B O, and will be at right angles, or 90 degrees with normal. If the incident angle be increased, then we will have total reflection in direction indicated by dotted line B R, the direction being dependent on the size of the incident angle.

And now let us consider the lower half of the figure: ray X T is at an angle of 40 degrees with normal. At T 30 rays out of every 1,000 will be reflected in the direction of the dotted line T P, and 970 will be refracted in the direction T M. There will be an internal reflection at M, in amount similar to that at T. After the second refraction the rays take the direction M N, and at N the ray is at an angle of 50 degrees with normal to the first surface of the front condenser, so that approximately 32 rays out of 1,000 will be reflected in the direction of dotted line N R, and 968 rays will be refracted in the direction of N. S.

In order to understand why moving the arc nearer the condenser takes the ray of light out of the plane of total reflection and critical angle, let us compare ray A B, in the upper half of the figure with ray X T, also in the lower half. Ray A B, after the second refraction, takes the direction E F. This ray, with normal to the second surface, forms the 90 degrees, or right angle H E F. The radiant point X is 1½ inches nearer the condenser, and ray X T, after the second refraction, takes direction M N, and forms angle H M N, which is 120 degrees with normal. This ray is nearly parallel with the axis, whereas ray A B with the radiant point farther away, is grazing the front surface of the condenser.

I am publishing this sort of matter because I believe we now have a very considerable number of operators who can understand and appreciate the importance of a full knowledge of light action, and I do not know of any one who has a more complete grasp of that subject, coupled with the ability to express it intelligently than has Neighbor Solar.

Griffiths and Solar Agree to Agree.

It will be remembered that Brother Solar, of Watertown, objected to Friend Griffiths' "two ray theory," but after considerable correspondence Solar has concluded to agree with Griffiths. In a letter to Griffiths Solar says:

We are finally agreed on the so-called condenser image. It has taken me a long time to get your meaning in this matter. From your figures in the supplement, I inferred that you considered the point through which the crater and film images pass as the condenser image reduced to a small point, whereas you have considered the whole cone passing through the lens as the condenser image. This does away with any argument on this point. The crater is focused at a plane near the film, and light from this, as a whole, comes to a point in front of the lens (this distance is approximately the E.F. of the lens from its optical center) and as each point of the condenser carries an image of the crater and film they meet at the same point, or very near the same point, consequently the form of the whole condenser is focused at this plain.

And thus, at least, we have the battle axe laid aside, so far as that particular proposition be concerned—that is with relation to Friend Solar.

Wants the Answer.

Sidney Fletcher, Memphis, Tex., says:

Pardon my nerve for butting in, but will you kindly answer the following: I want to get out on the road, and wish to secure as light an outfit as possible. Will a 2 K. W., 60-volt generator be large enough to supply an arc to project a 10-foot picture, with the machine 30 feet away from the screen? I will also want to run about five 25-watt mazda lamps while the arc is burning. Will a 4-h.p. engine be large enough? What size carbons and what brand would you suggest?

Would suggest an Edison Model D projector. Try ¼-inch cored above and 7/16 inch solid below; also try two ⅝-inch cored carbons. Any standard make of projection carbons, though I think I would suggest trying the Speer or Reflex for that kind of work. A 2 K. W., 60-volt generator will give you 2,000÷60=33 amperes of current. Your incandescent current consumption won't amount to much, and you should have plenty of current to project a very good 10-foot picture, though you will have difficulty in getting a sharp 10-foot picture at 30 feet—distance is too short. However, the result may be good enough for the purpose. Two thousand watts is less than 3 h.p., therefore your 4-h.p. engine will be sufficiently large.

Derives Benefit.

C. S. Stuckey, Edmonton, Canada, sends answer to Question 113, and says:

I am sure that every operator who has studied the questions and answers has derived benefit therefrom. There are, of course, those poor individuals who claim to "know it all," but I'll gamble that they follow the projection department every week, even if they have to go in the cellar in order to not be seen reading it. (That is pretty good, Brother Stuckey, and moreover it hits the nail right square, slap bang on the head in quite some few instances.—Ed.) But why worry about such people? (I don't.—Ed.) They will sooner or later discover the vacant apartments in their dome and come to their senses. In the past you have advised when using a very steep pitch to raise the aperture plate at the top. Now, my idea is, why not block up the whole mechanism at the lens end, and then block out the lens ring at the bottom? It seems to me this would give as good results if not better. I am not in a position at present to prove this, but I believe I am right, and would like to hear from you on the subject. The tables issued in the light ray dope look pretty good, but they don't go far enough to meet our demands. We have an 18-foot 8-inch picture at 131 feet, with a 6½-inch E. F. lens, 1½ inches in diameter. (Aha! Diskivered! Certainly the tables don't go far enough, because YOUR EQUIPMENT DON'T GO FAR ENOUGH. The lens should be considerably larger in diameter.—Ed.) We are using a 9½ and a 6½ now, with the lamp nearly at the back of the stand, and have a pretty clear screen, taking current through a 30-ampere rectifier.

I want you to try this. It may not work but—try it. Put in two 6½ condensing lenses, pull your lamphouse back as far as it will go, and then set your lamp so that the white spot in the center, which will be surrounded by a light blue edging, will cover the aperture. You will be working on the back focus, it will look like His Satanic Majesty at the spot, and I am not going to say you will like the result, but I do want you to try it, and try it thoroughly. Outside of that you cannot make much of any improvement until you get an objective of larger diameter.

Appreciates Our Efforts.

F. V. Poyser, Brandon, Man., Canada, says:

Just a few lines to let you know that over in this part of the world we appreciate your efforts to bring about a better and wider knowledge of moving picture projection. Personally, I am perfectly willing to admit I have an awful lot to learn before I can claim to be at the top of the ladder; still, I trust that by hard work and study to get there some day. I might add in closing that our good manager has just informed me that he is getting a Powers Six B. Can you imagine the smile I am wearing? It's of the kind that won't come off.

Well, Brother Poyser, hard work and study will bring success in almost any line of human endeavor, and the profession of operating is still very far from the level it will one day occupy. I don't mind making the prediction that ten years from now high-class operators will be in demand at probably as much as fifty dollars a week—maybe more. If you are inclined to smile at that statement, why, just look back and see what the difference was ten years ago. We now have quite a number of good men getting forty dollars, and out in 'Frisco they get even more than that in some cases.

We Doubt It.

Bert Meester, Hobart, Indiana, proposes the following:

The amperage of a mercury arc rectifier may be varied by the use of an ordinary Powers adjustable rheostat controlling base, connecting the contact points to the regulating reactance terminals, and connecting the lever to one side of the A. C. line. This controlling base is designed so that the lever makes contact with one point before it breaks with the other, thus causing the reactance to act as an auto-transformer with a short circuited secondary, which would cause the contact points to arc badly unless the lever is shifted very rapidly. Would a controlling base designed to break with the contact it rests upon before it breaks with the other cause the rectifier to stop?

I referred this matter to this General Electric Company at Schenectady, and have thir reply as follows:

Regarding the use of a Powers rheostat switch for controlling the current of a mercury arc rectifier, we do not believe the ordinary rheostat switch can be successfully used for this purpose, because of the fact that in passing from one point to another with the switch it is necessary either to leave one contact before making another, or else have some means of keeping down the current during the time the lever is short circuiting two contacts. We accomplish this with the new type rectifier by means of a split blade switch with a resistance connected between two halves of the blade. You are familiar with our dial switch as used on rectifiers, and will note that the blade is split into halves. Inside the handle of this switch there is a ribbon resistance of something less than one ohm, which acts upon the current and prevents arcing and burning of the contacts. Of course, if the contacts were far enough apart so that the blade left one before touching the other the tube would go dead.

Brother Meester, of course, referred to the old style rectifier, which does not have the dial switch for varying the amperage.

A Faithful Reader.

H. Meusner, Newark, New Jersey, writes:

As a faithful reader of the department, I wish to thank you right now for the many valuable things I have learned through the medium of the department. Reading the same names so often, thought I would like to take a turn at answering some questions, and I think the only objection you may have is that I am a "horrid licensed woman operator," who has had the theoretical as well as the actual experience for tuition. I trust you will look upon me as one of the big family.

Surest thing you know, nor have I any objection to "horrid" licensed lady operators, because I'm sure they could not possibly be any such thing. Your answer to Question 113 is all right as far as it goes, but it does not seem like a lady's answer, because there isn't nearly enough of it. All you said was perfectly correct, but you could have said considerable more. Come again; be a little more prolific with your language, and there's no reason why you should not get on the Roll of Honor. There are mere men who have been trying for more than a year without once succeeding, but their perseverance has nevertheless been instrumental in educating them in the technical end of their profession.

Asks Questions.

G. L. Smith, Smithsburg, Maryland, asks certain questions, which are replied to as follows:

Yes, you can pull a great deal more than 25 amperes over a 25-ampere switch without burning it out, provided the contacts be in first-class condition, but you are nevertheless forbidden to do so by the underwriters' rules. I would suggest that you get another switch. They are not expensive; and, while you are about it, get one of 50 or 75 ampere capacity.

The reason the table does not "go far enough" is that your 1½-inch objective is too small in diameter. Now let us back up on that table for a moment. Let us look at it from the other end. It is evident that a good many of you fellows don't yet fully understand how to use Table No. 1, October 16th issue, to the best advantage. You have a 1½-inch diameter and a 4 5/16-inch back focus; also, as you say, the greatest back focus allowable on the 1½-inch diameter is 3.11. Now follow down the column in which appears the 3.11 until you come to 4.29, which is pretty close to 4 5/16 (your back focus), and then travel to the left across the horizontal line to the first column, and you find that a 4.29 back focus calls for at least a 1 13/16-inch objective lens opening, with two 7½-inch condensers, and twenty-one inches from the convex of the front lens to the film. This is the extreme condition. If, however, you go down a little further you will find in the fifth column from the right hand side, and in the horizontal line opposite the ¾ on the right hand side, the back focus figures 4.4, opposite which, in the first left hand column, is lens diameter 2 1/16 inches, which is about the lens you ought to have. If you had a lens 2 1/16 inches in diameter, you would use one 6½ and one 7½-inch condenser, with 18 inches from the apex of the front condenser to the film, or with a lens 2 inches in diameter, you would use the same condenser combination and the same distance, or a little bit more. Now do you get the idea? For your conditions, with an objective lens of the proper diameter, I think you would find plano-convex lenses to be quite satisfactory, though properly matched meniscus bi-convex might improve matters slightly. Yes, you are right about the diameter and focal length of condensers. So far as carbon set be concerned, it is too big a subject to treat here. I advise you to, by all means, get a copy of the new Handbook, in which the matter is fully explained and illustrated. There will also be about 800 other pages of text, every bit of which you will find to be of practical value. It should be ready for delivery some time in January. Use the same set for alternating as you do for direct. No, there is no likelihood of incandescents ever being successfully used for theatrical moving picture projection. They can be used for projecting a small picture, say 6 or 7 feet wide, but that is, I think, about the limit.

Good Record.

Mt. Clemens, Michigan, writes:

> In this theater we have two Power's Six A machines, one purchased July 30, 1912, and the other February 12, 1913. We have not spent a single dime for repairs or parts. Getting fine results, yet we purchased two Power's Six B projectors which we will install some time next week. We hope to get about five years' service out of the new machines, with the help of the department and the Handbook, and will do it too.

A report which speaks well of the machine and the care the operator gives it—but I cannot agree with running a machine that long without repairs, unless you only run two or three hours a day, and even at three hours a day, three years would mean 3,285 hours of run, and that is too much for an intermittent sprocket.

New Union.

Alabama says:

> We, the operators and stage employes, will make application for a charter for a union in this city on November 15. We already have twenty-three names on our list, and expect to secure a few more by the above date. Everyone here is well pleased with the Moving Picture World.

Let the good work go on. The department trusts you will succeed in organizing, and that, by conservative action, you will be enabled to better the conditions of both the operators and stage employes of your city.

He Is Learning.

G. L. Smith, Smithsburg, Maryland, encloses money order for subscription and says:

> I run a Power's hand driven No. 5 machine once a week in a town of 500, and am beginning to learn a few things about the moving picture business I did not know before. We are considering the installation of new equipment, and would like to ask a few questions. Our objective is a 1½ inch B. & L. lens, but the E. F. is not marked thereon, simply "long distance" and "Nicholas Power Company." Slide lens 1½ inch diameter, but in spite of everything we can do there are dark corners in the stereopticon picture. Use 25 amperes, 110 volt A. C. through a rheostat, with ⅝ inch Electra carbons. The distance between the crater and condenser is 3 inches, between film and rear objective lens 4 5-16 inches; condensers and slide lens 20 inches. (a) How do you ascertain the E. F. of an objective lens? (b) What size condenser and which kind would you get in the new equipment? Throw 53 feet. (c) What is meant by a 6½ and a 7½ focal length condenser? (d) Does the focus of a condenser have anything to do with the distance between lamphouse and aperture plate, carbons and condensers? (e) Will larger condensers work behind the same lens which is in front of smaller condensers?

In the first place if you are only using 25 amperes A. C., I would advise you to use more current, and if you can afford it to get an economizer. For 25 amperes A. C., I would use ½ inch cored carbons above and below, and would try different brands of carbons. The distance between your carbon and condenser is all right, but the diameter of your stereopticon lens is too small. It is one of the old "quarter-size" lenses, and only suitable when the E. F. does not exceed 10 inches. You should have a half size stereopticon lens. As to the moving picture lens, you should line up your optical system as per Table No. 1, October 16 issue.

(a) Pin a sheet of paper on the wall opposite an open window, preferably in a room having but one window, and holding the lens in front of the paper screen, focus the out-door scene as sharply as possible thereon, measuring from the screen to a point half way between the two combinations of the lenses. This measurement will be the E. F. of the lens. (b) See Table No. 1, October 16th issue. Can't answer last part of question in the department. (c) That the lens will focus a scene as described in "a" at that distance from the screen, but to be accurate plano-convex lenses must be measured both ways (with each side toward the screen), the two measurements added together and divided by two. (See new Handbook for complete dope.) (d) Most emphatically yes. See Table No. 1, October 16th issue. (e) Don't know what you mean. You will have to be a little more clear on that matter.

Why Do They Do It?

Recently, by courtesy of the Triangle folks, I visited the Triangle theater, Brooklyn—the old Crescent stock house. The theater has been remodeled into what I consider as being one of the prettiest playhouses it was ever my privilege to see.

The outside of the operating room is shown in the accompanying illustration. The room is located on the main floor directly central with the screen, which shows that whoever is managing the Triangle projection affairs has a good fund of knowledge and horse sense. It will be observed that the location calls for the sacrifice of eighteen seats. How much—how very, very much better it is to sacrifice these few seats, and place the operating room square with the screen where the picture will be projected without distortion and in absolutely sharp focus. In front of the room, to the right, we see Mr. ———, and, at his left, our old friend Al Neiter, who are in charge of projection in this theater. The evening I visited this house neither of these gentlemen knew I was in the theater until the show was half over; yet it gives me much pleasure to say that projection was beyond criticism, so far as the light be concerned.

The bill consisted of a prelude in the shape of the Keystone comedy, "Her Painted Hero," followed by the drama, "The Disciple." There was then a second comedy, and a corking good one, too, "Saved by Wireless," and at the end a film, which appeared to me as being padded to the very limit, "The Martyrs of the Alamo," though the gripping power and magnificent acting of "The Disciple" more than made up for any defects in the other subjects.

And now, I want to ask a question. The film, "Her Painted Hero," was literally shot through at no less than seventy per minute. Why is it that the average theater manager, high and low, seems to have an ingrowing idea that a comedy reel must be run so fast that the figures become literally automatic jumping jacks? The speed of the drama, "The Disciple," was all that could be desired, but the first comedy was, to me, an eye sore, due entirely to the absurd speed at which it was run. I cannot get the theater managers' point of view on this proposition.

One other thing I would like to speak of, however, and that is, while the observation ports in the Triangle operating room are not as bad as some I have seen, still how much better it would be, from any and every point of view, to have an adjustable port 6x12 inches, as per page 74 of the Handbook. This would give the operator a considerably better view of the picture, and would accommodate a tall or short man, or a man sitting down or standing up. As I have time and again said, I firmly believe in furnishing a comfortable chair at each projector, and absolutely requiring the operator to occupy that chair during every second of the time the picture is on the screen. By having an adjustable port, as suggested, the outside appearance of the room would be in no way injured, and the actual port would be no larger than it is at present, but the effective port would be 12x24 inches.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

More About Static.

George Lawrence of Oakland, California, whose interesting letter in regard to reducing static markings by grounding the camera through the operator by means of a metal turning crank, contributes another letter which is very interesting. He says in reply to the letter by J. H. Reed published in the issue of December 4th:

> Reading your letter published in the Photographic Department of this week's WORLD, thought I would reply direct, sending a copy to the WORLD.
>
> First, will say that I have been using the light tripod made by the Los Angeles M. P. Co. called the Angeles Tripod for the last three years. It is aluminum top, with regular split wood legs. There is no metallic connection with the ground. It may be that I and several others have been fortunate here, in regard to static, or it may be there are different climatic differences, though I have had my static troubles in full, but not recently. I am not acquainted with the Prestwich camera, and as there are none around here, could not examine one. I had a peculiar experience recently, went up into the snow taking stuff, and had a set up for some night flare stuff, but had my assistant refocus and crank when it was taken. The negative was so full of static you could not see the picture. How's that? I always rewind my own film, and try and not let any one else touch it after I first handle it, in this way keeping the polarized electricity favorable to that in my body. Then I always crank with bare hand, using a brass handle, with regular Eastman stock, but always leave the camera and film, when I am on location work in the snow country, in a room that is open to the outside air and of the same temperature, and in this way try to avoid heat. I simply freeze it up every night. I use a special light oil that will not freeze in the cold for the bearings in my camera, and keep them well oiled. I do not know whether the Prestwich camera is so built that all the metal parts are connected, but the Pathe, of course, is built direct on the center frame or steel plate. I have had at times a pressure plate made of steel, with a cut out space directly back of the aperture, but not cut out clear through; this space when painted black will cut halation, which might otherwise be caused by the polished surface of a steel plate. But ordinarily I simply use the camera as it comes from the factory, with original plate and film race. I have used the old Erneman, Williamson, and American and Gaumont cameras, and it was with these that I worked out the cut out pressure plate instead of the glass that came with some of them. I have used heaters, camphor and resin, wires and batteries, but never got the perfect service that came from the present method. As I say it may be conditions here. That I cannot tell. If you should happen to have a chance to see the Knowles film that is coming out Dec. 27th on Universal, you will see some of the film I took at 7,000 ft. with a brand new Pathe just from the factory, the only change being a brass handle. As snow never falls around the bay district of San Francisco, we have to go to the tops of the Sierra Mountains, which are at the nearest point twelve hours ride, and the snow line there is at the 6,000 foot elevation. This necessitates quite a change in elevation and climatic conditions which I think are as hard on the film as can be found anywhere. I have never taken film in the snow near sea level, so that may make quite a difference.
>
> I was troubled at one time by getting static in titles, as I had a title machine which I used to wheel out on to the studio floor and make titles with daylight. The change in temperature aparently caused static. I was using an old Williamson for title camera, and put a brass handle on it, and connected all metal parts together, and had no more trouble with it.
>
> I have tried X back stock but found that the dampness here caused the backing to become slightly gummy and it would pile up on the aperture plate, or pressure plate, on the film race in the gate and at times even stuck to the sprocket wheels, so I discarded it entirely.
>
> I use only standard Eastman stock direct from the factory, perforated, and then I know that if there is static in the stock, it is the fault of the manufacturer. I have found it next to impossible to rewind negative here when there is north wind blowing and so keep a certain amount always rewound on spools for emergency.
>
> As I mentioned before, I always rewind by own film, and handle it myself. There may be nothing in it, but I have the idea that if the film can be charged with the electricity, or whatever form of it that is contained in the human body, that the camera can be charged with the same, from the same person, and not have a conflicting current come in contact with it from another person's body, that having all the parts in a similar condition, with an outlet for such electricity as may be generated by friction into some receiving substance, such as the human body is through the brass handle, such substance containing a current that is not adverse to the one flowing in, which might drive it back into the camera with more force than it is generated, that any camera should be free from static. I know a certain camera man who could never get free from static, no matter what camera or apparatus he used, and I have come to the belief that there are men so constituted that their bodies may contain electricity of such character and in such quantities that by merely touching a camera they supercharge it with an opposing current, to the static generated from friction. In that case any electricity generated in the camera from friction must be discharged into the air, where all metal parts are opposing, on the same principle that a medical static machine works on.
>
> If there is anything further I can tell you, I will be pleased to do so at any time.

Mr. Lawrence's theory that the cameraman himself is a generator of static electricity is an interesting one and while it made me smile when I read it there may be something in it after all. It is quite possible for a human being to become quite heavily charged with electricity when conditions are favorable. When taking pictures at the Grand Canyon the writer has often had sparks an inch long leap from his doorkey to the doorlock after walking down the corridor on the woolen carpet to his room. You are all familiar with the crackle of a cat's fur when it is caressed in a cold, dry climate, and many of you have seen a gas jet lighted from a spark generated by scuffling over the carpet for a few steps in a dry room.

It seems probable, however, that the kind of clothing worn by a person would determine his static condition more than any personal peculiarity.

Gillon Camera.

James Martin, Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

> "Please tell me, if possible, where I can get some literature on the Gillon camera.
>
> "What are the rates per foot paid for good industrial and educational negatives? Do the companies that buy these wish them developed or undeveloped, and what companies buy this kind of film?"

The Gillon camera, used by the Eclair Company and others, was made by M. Gillon, Paris, but I understand the factory is now closed on account of the war.

Most companies who buy news films prefer to develop them themselves to insure that no dupe negatives have been made and sold to other companies.

The following companies buy topical films and pay from forty cents to one dollar per foot, according to the quality and news value:

Universal Animated Weekly,
Jack Cohen, Editor,
43rd Street and 11th Avenue, New York.

Pathe Weekly.
Mr. Merries, Editor,
25 West 45th Street, New York.

Paramount Weekly,
Mr. Green, Editor,
110 West 40th Street, New York.

Gaumont Company,
Mr. Pell Mitchell, Editor,
Flushing, New York.

Hearst-Vitagraph Company,
226 William Street, New York.

Nearly all of these companies also purchase scenic and industrial films and will inspect, with a view to purchase, any negatives you may submit to them. If available they will make you an offer.

Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN.

Musical Setting for "Camille"

Released January 3 by the World Film Corp'n.

SUGGESTIONS PREPARED BY S. M. BERG,

By special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of World Films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "Camille" were prepared by the photoplay department of the New York music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Further inquiries concerning any phase of the work of the orchestra leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World, and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department which will be a regular feature of our Music page.

Camille, queen of the underworld, has a wealthy lover, Count de Varville. She, however, loves Armand Duval, a young lawyer, whose father pleads with her to give him up. Ultimately the Count and Armand fight a duel and Camille dies.

The music most fitting for the picture is Verdi's "La Traviata," the story of which is founded on La Dame aux Camelias.

The theme selected is the Aria—"Ah fors'e lui che lanima," which will be found in the Tavan Fantasie of "La Traviata." Piano part. page five, letter D.

Scheduled time: five reels (about 5,300 feet), 80½ minutes.

"CAMILLE."

Time.		Sub-Titles or Descriptive Cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening.	Loves Torment—Barthelemy. (Valse lento.)
5½	T	En route to a new life.
6¼	T	Camille, queen of gayest Paris.	La Traviata Fantaisie—Verdi. (From beginning to end of letter C.)
11	T	After three months in Paris.
12¼	T	The Fall Art Exhibition.	Aria—La Traviata—Verdi. (Ah for'e lui che L'anima.) (Theme.)
14¾	T	Camille's features become a haunting memory.
15¼	T	Dr Munier.	Continue Fantaisie from letter E to end.
20½	D	When Camille sees the Doctor's face in her wine glass.	Repeat: Aria. (Theme.)
23¾	T	"I will tell you why I can't."	Petite Bijouterie—Bohm. (Valse intermezzo.)
28¼	T	"He is penniless. Do you think you could afford," etc.
28½	T	Cecile's wedding day has been settled.
31½	T	"de Varville: I need 20,000 francs," etc.	Serenade—Strube. (Andantino grazioso.)
32½	T	Armand's suspicions are aroused.
34¼	T	"She is with Count deVarville."
36¼	T	When Camille reads Armand's note.	Repeat: Aria. (Theme.)
39¾	T	With new interests in life caused by Armand's love, etc.	Roses and Rue—Scates. (Valse lento.)
43¼	T	"Where did you get the money which you gave to Camille?"
45¾	T	"Will you be my wife, Camille?"
46	T	Back in Paris Armand receives a call from his father.	Serenata—Tarenghi. (Allegro moderato.)
49¼	T	Armand tries to realize on the inheritance, etc.
52	D	When the father pleads with Camille.	Repeat: Aria. (Theme.)
56¾	T	At home Armand tries in vain to forget.	Intermezzo—Huerter. (Moderato grazioso.)
59¾	T	Paris
61¼	T	An evening at one of the fashionable Parisian clubs.	A Ball Scene—Nicode. (Descriptive Valse.)
62¼	T	"Do you know, Camille, that Armand is back in Paris?"
63¾	T	"I see Fortune favors you with cards."
66½	D	When Camille calls Armand.	Repeat: Aria. (Theme.)
68½	D	When Armand calls the guests from the supper room.	Agitato No. 2.*
69¼	T	With the coming of the dawn.	Mysterioso No. 1.*
71¼	D	The duel.
72¾	D	When Armand leaves the duelling ground.	Coeur brise—Pietromarchi. (Valse lento.)
75	T	"Don't blame Camille, she always loved you."
75½	T	"She's dying. Go to her at once."	Repeat: Aria. (Theme.)
80½	T	The End.

For the convenience of our readers a price list on the above mentioned numbers has been compiled, which can be found in the ad of G. Schirmer, Inc., on page 322.

"WHAT DOES THE PUBLIC WANT?"

A DETAILED program of the entertainment presented at the leading motion picture theaters of New York City is here given. Each theater is striving to present a program that will please its patrons, sparing no expense, energy or trouble to obtain the best possible results.

The Knickerbocker, which is now known as the official Triangle theater, appears to have as its aim the presentation of an entertainment of pictures with an appropriate musical setting; but nothing is offered as a relief or divertissement. Two shows daily are given, one in the afternoon at 2.15 and the other in the evening at 8.15. The orchestra is seated in the pit and is composed of two first and two second violins, viola, cello, bass, flute, clarinet, cornet, trombone, two French horns, harp, timpani and drums—in all fourteen musicians and the director, Mr. Louis Maurice. The show consists of two feature pictures of five reels each, with either one four-reel or two two-reel comedies, making fourteen reels in all. The orchestra plays for the features and rests during the comedies, which are accompanied by the piano and drums.

The Broadway theater, which may be classed as the official home of Paramount pictures, attempts to give an appropriate setting to the film, but believes that in selecting its music the program should be entertaining from a musical standpoint, even if something of the atmosphere of the picture is sacrificed. As an overture a selection is played at both the afternoon and evening performances. The house opens at 11.30 A. M., and a continuance entertainment of about two hours is given, which is made up of a Paramount feature and three or four reels of selected films. The orchestra comprises four first and two second violins, viola, two cellos, bass, flute, clarinet, piano, timpani and drums; fourteen musicians under the direction of Mr. James Bradford, who is also responsible for the official musical suggestions published by the Paramount Corporation in their weekly magazine. In addition there is a banjorine orchestra of two banjos, saxophone, bass, piano and drums. Both are on duty from 2.30 to 5 and from 7.30 to 11. Mr. Bradford and his musicians are seated on the right side of the stage, partly screened with palms and plays for the features without intermission while the banjorine combination sits directly opposite and plays during the comedies. At the selection the two orchestras combine, the banjos doubling on other instruments.

At the Strand theater one may almost say that the entertainment is a musical one with the addition of pictures. Here the music selected for the picture must not only be fitted but varied and entertaining with vocal and instrumental solos interspersed through the program. The theater opens at 11.30 A. M., and is a continuous performance. The entertainment is of about two hours duration consisting of a feature picture and three other selected reels. The orchestra, made up of twenty-five musicians, is under the direction of Mr. Carl Edouarde, and they play from about 2.15 to 5, and from 7.30 to 11. The instrumentation consists of six first violins, two violas, two cellos, two basses, piano, flute, oboe, two clarinets, bassoon, two French horns, two trumpets, trombone, harp, timpani and drums, and a colossal organ.

The following is a selected program:

1. Selections from "Pagliacci".....Leoncavallo
   Strand Concert Orchestra and Organ.
   Carl Edouarde, Conductor.
2. Strand Topical Review.
3. "Rose in the Bud".....Forster
   Margaret Horton, Contralto.
4. "Scenes from the South Sea Isles."
5. "Concerto" (in E Minor—Finale).....Mendelssohn
6. Fannie Ward in "The Cheat".....Paramount Picture
7. "Until" .....Sanderson
8. Comedy—"Diplomatic Henry."

Providing the character of the feature permits, the orchestra usually plays the first, third and fifth reels and the organ the second and fourth.

Exhibitors who have given thought to the problem ask this question: "Does the public want a presentation of motion pictures with fitting orchestral accompaniment, or an entertainment of music and pictures?"

A well-known exhibitor controlling four houses, when asked the question answered, "We had our orchestra play a selection during the evening but before they had finished the audience applauded for the picture to start." However, on dissecting this it was found that the orchestral instrumentation consisting of cornet, trombone, piano, violin and drums was trying to play the William Tell Overture without house lights on, and no slide to announce what was being attempted.

Another exhibitor whose theater seats 600 people charges 5c. admission on week days and 10c. on Saturday and Sunday. He books a service of second run features and miscellanies that total about ten reels. The music consists of a pianist, to whom he pays $12 weekly, and the instrument used is well fitted for the wood pile. When asked the above question he answered, "I'd like to have good music but I can't afford it." This is usually the type of a man that has tried everything for a living from delicatessens and groceries to newspapers and sodas, and would be most likely to leave his "Ice Cold Soda" sign outside of his store all winter when he was trying to sell hot drinks inside.

But there is another kind of exhibitor. This is the man who realizes that in order to make his chance patron a permanent one he has to present his pictures with a fitting musical accompaniment. It should be borne in mind that it is not the quantity of musicians that gets the results but the quality.

In Brooklyn, N. Y., there is a small theater that seats 450 people and charges 10c. admission for an eight-reel show. The house supports three musicians (piano, violin and a small reed organ) and the proprietor provides the music, for which he spends $10 a month. Although this theatre has been built six years the owner will tell you that there were nine changes of management in the first four years, and when he bought it it was considered a "lemon." However, his attempt to give in a small way an entertainment on the lines of the leading houses has resulted in a successful enterprise.

No theater is so small that serious thought cannot be given to musical requirement. Better a violinist and a pianist who will try to play simple waltzes and intermezzos with some taste and expression than a noise combination of unskilled performers who have no knowledge of interpretation.

The efforts of the three leading houses of New York City are being watched by musicians and exhibitors all over the country, as their ultimate success may be taken as the recognized standard of how motion pictures should be presented.

"Colonel Heeza Liar's Waterloo"

J. R. Brady's First Release Through Paramount Proves Amusing Offering.

AT AN advance private showing, "Colonel Heesa Liar's Waterloo," the first of J. R. Brady's cartoon films to be released through the Paramount Pictures Corporation, was seen by representatives of the trade and daily press, President William W. Hodkinson, Raymond Pawley and other executives of the Paramount Company last week. The offering consists of about six hundred feet of Mr. Bray's cartoon and four hundred of Raymond L. Ditmar's Zoo-pictures. It is quite unique in that all the subtitles are written in doggerel by George R. Meeker. These make an unusual and yet complete synopsis.

The pictures are, if anything, slightly better than any Mr. Bray has yet released, though he declares that those to follow are even better. The photography is clear and remarkably steady, thanks to the method by which they are made. It is interesting to note that there are from three thousand to four thousand drawings in each thousand feet of film and since every drawing must undergo thirty-four different processes, a week's output involves from 102,000 to 136,000. The accomplishment of this tremendous task is possible only through Mr. Bray's patents, which make extensive use of carbon paper, thus reducing the labor appreciably.

Scene from "Colonel Heeza Liar's Waterloo."

Mr. Ditmar's Nature Study, "The Skunk and the Weasel," is remarkable in the manner in which it presents the life of our wild friends. Since its producer is probably the foremost authority on animals in this country and since through his contract with the Bray Studios the vast resources of the largest Zoo in the world are thrown open to the Paramount Pictures Corporation, it is reasonable to suppose that there will be very interesting, not to say absorbing, results.

L. N. Glackens' cartoon comedy "Haddem Bad's Elopement" will be the next release of the Bray Studios on January 13th.

OCEAN FILM MAKING "DRIFTWOOD."

With Marshall Farnum, the newly associated director of the Ocean Film Corporation, at the helm of his company and with Bert Dorris assisting, work has been begun at the Yonkers studios of the corporation on the production of Owen Davis' stage success "Driftwood," in which talented and bewitching Vera Michelena, the world-famed comic opera and vaudeville star, is to be featured. An unusually strong cast has been assembled for the "Driftwood" production, with Harry Springler, Charles Graham, Leslie Stow, Etta Mansfield and Joe Daly as the leading characters.

Anthony P. Kelly, writer of "The Soul of a Woman" and adapter of such motion picture successes as "The Great Divide," "The Thief," "Body and Soul," "Samson" and many more, is the writer of the adaptation and scenario of "Driftwood."

GEORGE BRONSON-HOWARD JOINS LASKY CO.

George Bronson-Howard, one of the best-known writers in America at the present time, whose most recent book, "God's Man," is breaking all records as a best-seller, left New York this week to join the literary and photodramatic staff of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, making his headquarters in the future at the Lasky studios at Hollywood, California.

Bronson-Howard is the author of a number of novels and plays, of which "Snobs" was one. It had a long run on Broadway and subsequently appeared on tour for several seasons. It has since been picturized by the Lasky Company with Victor Moore as the star, Bronson-Howard, who is still a young man, will devote himself exclusively in his writing for the screen to photoplays for the Lasky Company.

ROBERT HILL, UNIVERSAL DIRECTOR.

Robert Hill, who has been for the past few years assistant to Director Lucius Henderson of the Imp-Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been promoted to a directorship, and is already at work on his first production. In his company Paul Panzer is leading man, assisted by such well-known stars as Sydell Darling, Edith Roberts, Wallach Clark and Frank Smith. The exteriors in the first picture under Mr. Hill's direction have been made in the Adirondacks, in which one of the fiercest fights ever staged in the snow took place between Paul Panzer and Wally Clark.

"AS A WOMAN SOWS" COMPLETED.

The first Mutual Masterpicture, edition de luxe, which Gaumont will release on the Mutual program, "As a Woman Sows," has just been completed by Director William F. Haddock at Jacksonville, Fla. Miss Gertrude Robinson and Alexander Gaden are featured in this production. It will be on the screen Jan. 24. "As a Woman Sows" was written by O. A. Nelson.

SMILEY'S OCEAN FILM PLAYERS HOME.

Director Joseph Smiley of the Ocean Film Corporation with his company which has been at Savannah, Ga., for the past two weeks on the production of the exterior scenes of the Ocean's second release, an adaptation of William L. Locke's world-famed story, "The Fortunate Youth," returned to New York on December 31.

With Mr. Smiley there returned Martin Faust, assistant to the director, William Marshall, photographer, and the following members of the cast: Lilie Leslie, the Misses Forrest, Milholland, Fitzgerald and Holton, Miss Sue Balfour, Wilmuth Merkyl, William Cohill, John Smiley, Charles Graham, Messrs. Morelli and Clarke and Master Chas. Morelli.

With the exception of a few minor scenes, "The Fortunate Youth" is about complete and forms release under the Ocean Film banner early in February.

Horsley Leaves for Los Angeles

Will Personally Supervise Production of His Pictures—Speaks of His Arrangements for Making Features.

DAVID HORSLEY left New York December 20 for his studios in Los Angeles. Immediately upon his arrival he will assume complete personal supervision of all productions being made, particularly those to be released as Mutual Masterpictures, de luxe edition, as it is his desire that these shall be, in fact, "masterpictures."

Just prior to his departure Mr. Horsley briefly covered the arrangements he had made for the production of his early forthcoming Masterpictures, de luxe edition.

"At this time we have two Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, productions under way," he said. "Each, of course, is in five reels. One is called 'The Bait' and the other 'Vengeance Is Mine!' The former is a drama of the northwestern woods, written by Miss Theodosia Harris, chief of my scenario staff, and is to be released January 22. We will feature in this release William Clifford and Betty Harte, supported by an especially engaged cast. A number of the scenes will bring in the Bostock animals, which will work under the training hand of Capt. Jack Bonavita.

"Crane Wilbur wrote the scenario for 'Vengeance Is Mine!' and of all the scenarios he has written to date this, I think, is the best.

"Mr. Wilbur will be featured in 'Vengeance Is Mine!' and is also to be supported by a specially selected cast, many of them very well known people. This production is to follow 'The Bait' in schedule, January 31 having been chosen for the release date.

"And as to stories—another important phase—we are getting the best that money can buy. Miss Theodosia Harris is a most successful writer. She has prepared and has produced a very large number of works. Further along this line, our efforts in the direction to obtain good stories is exemplified by an arrangement perfected during my stay in New York with Roy L. McCardell, who under the agreement, will write animal stories exclusively for me.

"So much for the first two productions. Later on we will offer Margaret Gibson, Irving Cummings and others of our stars in Masterpictures, de luxe edition, releases."

Aggressive 1916 Campaign

Triangle Will Rapidly Extend the Service to All Important Points.

THERE was an air of aggressive activity around the executive offices and branch exchanges of the Triangle Film Corporation in the closing days of the old year and the opening days of the new. Triangle heads are preparing a tremendous 1916 campaign. With approximately six hundred theaters lined up in the film service by January 1, the executives confidently expect within the next few weeks to have at least one thousand service contracts actively in force.

The methods of promotion and publicity used will be extensive and worthy of an organization that includes foremost directors and stars and that has just sent Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree to the West Coast to stage "Macbeth." Important announcements will be made in the near future concerning the South American and other foreign releases. Here in our own country the Triangle will be brought to every locality of playable size that appreciates the highest art in films as exemplified by the Griffith-Ince-Sennett supervised productions.

LENORE ULRICH RETURNS FROM MEXICO.

Lenore Ulrich, the popular little star of the screen and stage, has just returned to New York from Mexico, where her latest photoplay has been staged for the Paramount program by the Pallas Pictures Corporation.

To get the desired background for the play, the entire company journeyed through war-ridden Mexico and although many questionable characters and bands of desperate-looking natives were encountered during the trip, the strong guard of young Mexicans which accompanied the party offered an array which received the wholesome respect of the bedraggled citizens.

It is felt that the new Lenore Ulrich film affords the pretty actress another opportunity to score on the screen even to a greater extent than she did in "Kilmeny." The remarkable talent displayed by the star in this production has caused considerable comment among the Pallas Pictures headquarters where players and members of the technical staff who accompanied the party to Mexico were most enthusiastic in their praise over her work.

Ince Has Six Plays Ready

Triangle-Kay-Bee Director's Unusually Strong List of Attractions for the New Year.

THOMAS H. INCE'S prophecy that the Kay-Bee studio would keep six plays ahead of the requirements made by the Triangle film service has ben amply fulfilled. Mr. Ince enters the New Year with an unusually strong list of attractions. Among the plays now ready for presentation in New York or on the way from Los Angeles to New York are "The Green Swamp," "Peggy," "D'Artagnan," "Honor's Altar," "Hell's Hinges," "Waifs," "The Raiders," and "Bullets and Brown Eyes."

Scene from "The Raiders" (Kay-Bee).

This represents an early fall and late winter of extraordinary activity. The four plays in which Bessie Barriscale appeared culminated in "The Green Swamp" with Bruce McRae in the leading male role, and "Honor's Altar," wherein her opposites are Walter Edwards and Lewis S. Stone. Her next medium is "Bullets and Brown Eyes," a Russian romantic story, featuring William Desmond and Wyndham Standing as the leading men.

In "Hell's Hinges," William S. Hart portrays Blaze Tracy, a strong Western character, who copes successfully with the difficult problems of life in a frontier town. Mr. Hart is supported by a strong cast that includes Jack Standing, Clara Williams, Alfred Hollingsworth, Robert McKim and Louise Glaum. A striking scene in the play is the destruction by fire of the entire village of Hell's Hinges, an episode for the taking of which no less than thirty-eight buildings in the vicinity of Inceville went up in smoke.

H. B. Warner has been working with Ince on the production of two new plays in which the popular star of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" will be featured. The first one (working title "The Raiders") is a Stock Exchange story in which the hero, played by Warner, saves his fiance's father from financial ruin. The second one, now in preparation, is an East Indian story with the colorful atmosphere of Delhi where the Indian mutiny centered.

"Peggy," starring Billie Burke; "D'Artagnan," starring Orrin Johnson, and "Waifs," starring Jane Grey, are the other big comers on Ince's list. As reserve trumps he has in making new plays featuring William Collier, Collier's son Buster, and Charles Ray.

WILFRED LUCAS A STAR.

In recognition of his good work in "The Lily and the Rose" and other plays, the Triangle Fine Arts studio has promoted Wilfred Lucas to stardom. Mr. Lucas, who is a native Canadian and ex-opera singer, was for five years a prominent member of "The Chorus Lady" company with Rose Stahl. He likewise appeared in several other Broadway productions. For his present use as a film star, "Acquitted," a short story by Mary Roberts Rinehart, has been adapted to the screen by Roy Somerville. It is the tale of an honest man held under for years in a financial institution and finally wrongly suspected of murder. The latter-day workings of the "third degree" in extorting imaginary confessions from its victims are graphically shown. Mary Alden is Mr. Lucas' leading woman.

At the Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

Mary Pickford at the Strand.

AT THE Strand theater, this week, Mary Pickford is the star in "The Foundling," under the direction of Daniel Frohman. In this new film drama she has been given unusual opportunities to display her artistic versatility. The play was produced by the Famous Players Film Company, and Miss Pickford is seen in the part of a little boarding house drudge, whose goodness and charm are the means of restoring her to her rightful home.

The Strand Topical Review containing the latest News and War pictures and ladies' fashions, interesting travel and scientific studies and a new comedy, complete the film part of the entertainment. The new Strand Quartette, Margaret Horton, contralto; Martha De Lachmann, soprano; Martin Richardson, tenor, and Bruce Weyman, baritone, are heard in operatic and popular selections. An added attraction of unusual interest is Alfonso Zelaya, the celebrated pianist. Signor Zelaya is a son of the deposed president of Nicaragua.

Vitagraph Theater Program.

A program of unusal interest is shown at the Vitagraph theater this week, in the presentation of a five-part comedy, "Green Stockings," the famous stage success written by A. E. W. Mason, picturized by Eugene Mullin and produced by Wilfrid North. Lillian Walker heads the cast and is supported by Louise Beaudet, Frank Currier, Adele De Garde, Charles Wellesley, Denton Vane, Charles Brown and John T. Kelly. The story tells of the efforts of Celia, the eldest daughter in an English family, to avoid the stigma of spinsterhood.

Jewell Hunt, the latest star of the Vitagraph, and Garry McGarry, play the principal roles in a three-part drama, "By Love Redeemed." The film tells of the career of a poor girl who is forced into dishonesty by a blow on the head. An operation scene of remarkable realism is shown, with Anders Randolph as the surgeon.

Sidney Drew and his wife maintain their high standard of comedy in a one-reel playlet, "His Wife Knew About It," from the pen of James Montgomery Flagg. It relates the experiences of a husband who is forced to take his cook to a gay restaurant in order to retain her services in the household.

Triangle Bill at the Knickerbocker.

Marie Doro made her Triangle debut this week in "The Wood Nymph," at the Knickerbocker theater, supported by Frank Campeau and Wilfred Lucas. The story tells of a close-to-nature girl who sought her Apollo in the open. She has many thrilling adventures and narrowly escapes death in a forest fire before she finds her hero.

Bruce McRae and Bessie Barriscale are appearing in "The Green Swamp," an Ince drama that gives both stars large latitude for development of character. Lola May, Fanny Midgeley, J. Barney Sherry and Thelma Salter are prominent in the cast. Weber and Fields, who not so long ago were "The Best of Enemies," at the Knickerbocker, are now "The Worst of Friends" in a rattling good farce. Mae Busch and Alice Davenport are members of the cast.

Geraldine Farrar at the Broadway.

Geraldine Farrar, the celebrated prima donna, who recently appeared in the Jesse L. Lasky photodramatic version of "Carmen," is leading the program at the Broadway theater this week in "Temptation," a photodrama written especially for her by Hector Turnbull.

Miss Farrar appears as a young American girl who comes to New York to pursue her studies for a career as a singer. There is much in the early scenes of the photoplay devoted to the manner of living of the younger set of art students in New York, of the Bohemian life they live, and the trials and tribulations to which they submit themselves in order to win success.

SOUTH AMERICAN WANTS FILMS.

An American consular officer in Paraguay, under File No. 19657, has informed the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce, at Washington, D. C., that a manager of a theater in his district desires to receive catalogues and prices of cinematograph films. He is said to prefer dramas in several parts. Correspondence and catalogues should be in Spanish. The name and address of this manager can be secured upon application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce by referring to the file number mentioned.

Victory for Universal

Judge Hough Decides Against Motion Picture Patents Company in Suit Over the Latham Patent.

A suit of importance to the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and the trade in general, was decided in the United States District Court a few days ago when Judge Hough held that the attempt of the Motion Picture Patents Company to restrict the use of its machine to film made or supplied by its licenses is void.

The result of this decision is, generally speaking, that film exchanges may supply, and exhibitors may use on licensed machines, film purchased from any manufacturer whether the film is licensed by the Patents Company or not, regardless of the notice on the machine, because the Motion Picture Patents Company has no right to restrict the use of the machine.

Suit was brought in March, 1915, by the Motion Picture Patents Company against the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, the Universal Film Exchange and the Prague Amusement Company of New York City for infringement of the so-called Latham loop patent No. 707,934. The charge was that the Universal Film Exchange had furnished motion pictures made by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to the Prague Amusement Company for use at the Seventy-Second Street Playhouse, where the pictures were exhibited on a Simplex machine, which was manufactured and sold under a license from the Patents Company, and that because the picture film was not licensed by the Patents Company its use by the Prague Amusement Company was an infringement of the Latham patent, the Latham loop being on the machine.

The case came on for trial in the United States District Court in New York City before Judge Hough on December 21. The Simplex machine used at the Seventy-Second Street Playhouse was produced with the license notice upon it, and it was shown to the court that the Motion Picture Patents Company had licensed is manufacture and sale, and that the suit was in reality an attempt to enforce the restriction as to its use contained in the notice. Judge Hough held that that restriction is void and cannot be enforced and directed that judgment be entered for the Universal Film Manufacturing Company and the other defendants.

Counsel for the Motion Picture Patents Company have stated that they will appeal at once to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and the other defendants, denied the validity of the Latham patent on several grounds, but that defense was not passed upon by Judge Hough, although evidence was given on that question which will come before the Court of Appeals.

MARIE DORO IN "DIPLOMACY."

Marie Doro, whose marriage to Elliott Dexter was announced recently, returned to New York from Los Angeles and is now in the Famous Players studio at 56th street, engaged in the production of that company's adaptation of Sardou's celebrated play, "Diplomacy," in which she is to star shortly. Mr. Dexter has been engaged to appear in the production with Miss Doro, playing Julian Beauclerc, the role which he enacted on the stage in the revival of the play at the Empire theater last year when Miss Doro costarred with Blanche Bates and William Gillette.

It is especially fitting that Miss Doro and her husband should make their first appearance together, since their marriage, in this Famous Players production, as it was while playing in "Diplomacy" on the stage that they first met, and it was while both were making their respective screen debuts under Famous Players' auspices that the romance developed.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" CLOSES NEW YORK RUN.

The long run of D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Liberty theater, closed with two special farewell performances there Sunday afternoon and night, January 2. The engagement began the first week in March, 1915, and lasted until January, 1916, making a total of 45 consecutive weeks played on Broadway, with an average of 14 performances a week and in addition to this there was an augmented run of 14 weeks at Brighton Beach, which gives New York a total of 59 weeks, with a total of 802 consecutive performances. This is considerably over 100 more continuous presentations of this production than was ever given by any attraction in the history of the American stage. The record it has passed stood for 23 years and was held by "A Trip to Chinatown."

Fatty and Mabel's New Year

Keystone Stars Arrived in New York Thursday, December 30, Direct from Los Angeles.

MABEL NORMAND and Roscoe Arbuckle spent their first New Year's in several seasons within the charmed circle of New York stageland. The white lights beamed merrily for them, the cup of joy effervesced, and the plaudits of admiring throngs for their real selves brought a novel pleasure. In plain vernacular, Fatty and Mabel are on the job in New York. With their Eastern Keystone Company, including Minta Durfee, Al St. John and others, they arrived in the metropolis Thursday afternoon, December 30. The party came through direct from the Coast, escorted by Traveling Passenger Pike of the San Pedro Road. They were met at Grand Central Station by Frank Myers of the New York Central, and a number of the New York Motion Picture and Triangle executives.

Miss Normand is looking fresh as a daisy, but it was deemed best not to break the journey for picture-taking en route, since her recovery from serious accident has been so recent. Mr. Arbuckle, the director of the company, said he would start work soon at the Willat studios in Fort Lee. Mrs. Ford Sterling (Teddy Sampson) and Syd Chaplin were among the friends who greeted the newcomers at the station.

On New Year's night, Mr. Arbuckle, Miss Normand and the other Keystoners were the guests of the New York Globe at the Lexington Opera House. They saw "Peter Rabbit in Dreamland," and two thousand people saw Fatty and "the Keystone girl" and applauded the flesh-and-blood authors of millions of laughs. After the hard, grueling work at Edendale, the Keystone folk enjoyed every minute of the New Year's festivities.

Tom Moore

TOM MOORE, the eldest of the "Famous Moore Family" and husband of Alice Joyce, the celebrated screen star, confessed recently that as a boy his great ambition was to become a "Jewish Comedian," and in the next breath admitted that he was born in the County Meath, thirty miles from Dublin, Ireland. Tom's wish was realized, however, and not so long ago. He appeared in New Orleans as "Rozinsky" in A. H. Wood's production of "Since Nellie Went Away." Tom also admitted that his first five appearances on the stage ended by his being stranded in five different parts of the United States. Lew Taylor, photographer with the Kalem Co., was responsible for Tom's entry into the motion picture field, and Taylor also introduced Tom to the present Mrs. Moore.

Tom Moore.

At first, Tom didn't care for the moving picture life and after one or two attempts, left the "Cinema's" and went back to his earlier love, "a stock company," in Bridgeport, Conn. Fate was not to be thwarted, however, and eventually Tom landed solid with the Kalem Company, where he wooed and won pretty Alice Joyce. Just the other day Tom signed a contract with the Lubin Co.

Tom and his little family have a beautiful home at Ninety-second street and West End avenue, New York, and, as he says himself, "You couldn't blow him out of pictures with all the guns of united armies of the universe."

A. Glantzburg, of the Typhoon Fan Company, has just returned to New York from a very successful trip through the South. He made contracts to install Typhoon fans in a number of houses.

Tom Powers, Cartoonist

TOM POWERS in the pictures! No, not an actor, but as a cartoonist. Powers of the sarcastic pen, Powers of the humorous pen, Powers of the powerful pen, who, with his cartoons, has worked political wonders, brought about the downfall of political dynasties and made kings of capital shudder in their marble palaces, is presented as one of the main features of the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial.

Tom Powers.

"Joys" and "Glooms," which have become famous in the Hearst newspapers, will scamper across the screen as a part of the Hearst-Vitagraph semi-weekly news film. "Mrs. Trubbel" will continue to stir up domestic discord, but in thousands of theaters in addition to the columns of the Hearst papers. "Powers Phables," will bring before you humorously in motion on the screen the weaknesses of human nature. "Never Again!" the "Down and Out Club" and "Charlie and George," will be other features to be seen in motion from the pen of America's most famous cartoonist and comic artist.

T. E. Powers began his business life as a grocery clerk, and he admits himself that he made a very poor clerk. Being a genius, Powers was born with a desire to draw. While as the grocery clerk he frequently caricatured on wrapping paper the rather comical, but still impressive features of his grocery store boss. Some of this paper went out wrapped about groceries, and eventually came to the hands of the grocer, who, thereupon, failing to appreciate genius, decided to dispense with the services of young Mr. Powers.

Powers felt compelled to seek some means of livelihood and finally obtained employment with a lithographer, receiving for his labors the sum of $2 a week. Despite the fact that he was of a saving disposition, Powers somehow squandered all of his weekly income, and soon concluded that he would have to seek some occupation more remunerative. Having a job which paid better, Powers was able to save more money, and not long after went to Chicago, where he attended art school.

The publisher of a big Chicago newspaper was attracted by some small illustrating Powers had done and gave him a position. Powers worked with the Chicago newspapers until 1894, when the New York fever got possession of him and he went to that city. Then followed several years with the New York World, until Mr. Hearst concluded that Mr. Powers was too valuable a man to work for anyone but Hearst, and took him over to the Hearst organization, where Powers has been ever since.

DRA KO DIRECTOR FULLY RECOVERED.

Joseph A. Richmond, the director for the Premier Dra Ko releases, has entirely recovered from his broken arm, even the bandages having been removed. Richmond broke his arm while cranking his car at Tappan, N. Y., and as he was in the midst of work his arm caused him considerable inconvenience. He, however, continued his work and was daily either at the Dra Ko studio in Tappan, or the New York offices of the Premier Program Corporation.

Walter K. Hill, well known to the motion picture trade, has joined the publicity staff of the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc. He began operations last Monday, January 3.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON

ABOUT PICTURES IN SCHOOLS.

Chicago.

THE rapid rate with which the use of pictures in schools is growing is nothing in comparison to the rate which is possible if only those responsible knew a little bit more about the subject. The lack of knowledge is appalling, and whenever any person with a little authority discovers that pictures are really helpful in school work he talks and acts as though he had just made the discovery and begins to talk loudly as to what can be done. Take, for instance, the superintendent of the Chicago schools, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, she announces the coming use of pictures in the Chicago schools as though it were some new thing, little supposing that they are about two years late in thinking about the project.

"In geography," she says, "we will take pictures of mountain ranges, great grain fields, the plains and the large rivers of the world. The children will then get much more comprehensive ideas of some of the things they study." There is no need for this worthy superintendent to say what "we will do" as if the idea was a new one, it is as old as educational kinematography, and the very pictures, she says, "we will take" have been waiting for school authorities for several years. Again the Chicago superintendent of schools says, "In history great historical events WILL BE enacted, various scenes in American history WILL BE produced.," How tardy is the knowledge of some people; these very pictures have been lying idle, waiting for the school authorities to wake up to a knowledge of their existence and use them; their short-sightedness and limited outlook is like a prophet of old who thought and said, "I only am left," being surprised when he was told, "There are six thousand beside thee." More and more surprising is a further statement made by another authority in the great city of Chicago that "We will make Chicago the birthplace of a system of educational pictures"—too late again, the State and University of Wisconsin are ahead by an established course, dating back two or more years.

It is becoming exceedingly common to read in educational journals that this school or that board has found that moving pictures are suitable for school purposes; the statement of this discovery is followed by a prophecy as to the great outlook, ignorant of the fact that what to them is a prophecy is to others almost ancient history. When will it be known, or what can we do to make it known that there are hundreds of films, more than any school can use in a year, waiting for the schools to come to a knowledge of their existence? It is a great pity that The Moving Picture World is chiefly known as a trade paper, if only it might circulate among the heads of departments of schools and colleges, it would be a source of information to them, for which without doubt, they would be profoundly grateful.

Iowa.

It is pleasant to have brought to our attention the fact that the State of Iowa is handling educational pictures as a state. The Iowa State College has completed plans to furnish film service to all schools which are equipped to use them.

The department will undertake to supply any school which agrees to provide the proper equipment, with at least twelve complete programs during the school year. To aid any school to grasp all the necessary details for an intelligent preparation, a bulletin is issued, giving cost of installation and general instruction, whereby a thorough knowledge of all requirements is obtained, and thus secure all the benefits of the state extension plans.

Kansas.

Notice has previously been taken of the fact that Kansas is following in the line of state plans of educational pictures in schools. It is now certified that the five big state schools are to have a film circuit of their own. The finest films that can be obtained are to be used on this circuit, this arrangement was made at a recent meeting of the heads of these schools in accordance with plans made by the state board of administration. This plan is but the beginning of a larger plan which will ultimately include all the higher educational institutions of the state. The state control of educational moving pictures in schools is spreading so rapidly that it will soon become general, only in this way can the matter be made thorough and comprehensive; too big for individual schools to handle the problem seems now within measurable distance of being solved. The proper complaint that schools were backward was justifiable in that each school found itself unable alone to undertake so large a work as to equip itself and secure the proper films; now, however, the large circuit plans will make it impossible for any other than a complete and successful course being at the disposal of at least all the high schools, and, ere long the course cannot fail to reach even the most distant country school-house, which as richly deserves the same attention, for therefrom often spring some of our best scholars.

THE VOCATIONAL PICTURE.

In Boston the question of the vocational film is coming to the front as it must necessarily do whenever the matter of the educational film is under discussion. That there is a new and close relationship between the school and future of the scholar is an accepted fact. In Berlin it is considered a part of the school duty to prepare the scholar for his particular prospective trade.

In the discussion of an occupation or profession the main thing above all is to interest the young person about to leave school in an occupation corresponding to his capacities and predilections. A wrong selection frequently avenges itself on a whole life. Unnecessary coercion is another danger often frustrating many a talent and qualification, thus turning a useful life along a wrong course. These evils and dangers, the proper use of vocational pictures will correct, by directing or suggesting that which is most attractive and fitting, thereby leading, as it undoubtedly must, many a life along most useful channels.

In Boston the "Central Station for Scientific and Instructional Kinematography" has interested itself in this branch of vocational study and is preparing in conjunction with those already issued, such a series of trade and industrial films as shall best fit in at such a critical period in the life of the scholar. They also advocate a larger use of such films in the every-day moving picture house, they contend that such pictures are always well received, it being as interesting to see "How the World Works" as well as "How the World Lives."

THE EDUCATIONAL PICTURE IN SPAIN.

In Barcelona, Spain, where the public school is in an unusually advanced condition, the use of the educational picture is about to be adopted.

Dr. Jose M. de Larsarte, a professor in the School of Industrial Engineering, also a member of the Common Council, recently told of a plan he is working on for the purpose of using the moving picture in all the schools of the city.

Dr. Larsarte in defining his seasons for the immediate use of the pictures says: "Motion pictures furnish the grandest instrument of culture ever invented. The method is not a hardship, but rather an agreeable medium for instruction; pupils are enabled to study a thing in its setting. If they are studying geography they get the full color of a place from the motion picture. They see not only a name, but cobblestones, costumes, fountains and styles of architecture. In Barcelona there appears to be nothing to hinder the use of the kinematograph in all branches of the curriculum."

Dr. Larsarte has been visiting the public schools of America and is enthusiastic about much that he has seen, expressing himself as most surprised at the number of young women as teachers in the higher branches. he also believes it is the mission of the schools by means of the educational picture to offset the exhibition of pictures unsuitable for children in the common picture house.

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

"Camille"

Famous Character Is Beautifully Portrayed by Clara Kimball Young in World Film Production.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

"CAMILLE," as you may recall, is the story of a courtesan doomed to a premature death, the story of a woman who loved honestly, yet was denied all save fleeting moments of happiness. There is nothing strikingly fresh here, for frequently enough authors have to all intents and purposes duplicated the plot of "Camille" and presented much the same style of courtesan under a different name. But, conceding all this, and allowing for the great number of re-christened Camilles, it remained for Clara Kimball Young to bring out the full value of the famous character in a superlatively fine performance. It is easy to wax enthusiastic over an actress so thoroughly accomplished in comedy or drama as is Miss Young, and at no time in the past has she given fuller justification for enthusiasm.

Scene from "Camille" (World Film).

She presents a beautiful woman, rather bored by luxuries which do not satisfy, however much she may crave them. And hanging over her is the shadow of death, not to be escaped unless she foregoes a life of unhealthy dissipation. Physically, Miss Young is quite the ideal Camille. She has the requisite grace and distinction, and a judicious use of make-up gives to her face and eyes the expression born of a fatal illness. No subtitles are needed to inform an audience that Camille is suffering from tuberculosis, that deep down in her heart she is pitiably unhappy and that in her love for Armand Duval she is as sincere as previously she has been false.

The appeal of the central character is based first of all on an audience's normal sympathy for an unhappy woman who is playing a losing game, next on the woman's whole-souled devotion to the man she loves. This devotion meets all tests and with each misunderstanding, each new manifestation of a superb unselfishness, Camille inspires deeper sympathy. One is thoroughly in the mood for the poignant scenes in the final reel, showing her death in the arms of her lover, and it is here that Miss Young reaches the highest mark in a really beautiful performance.

The World Film Corporation was fortunate in securing a director of the French school, such as Albert Capellani, to produce this subject; also in casting Paul Capellani as Armand, and certainly both did much toward giving the drama a French atmosphere. Then there are others deserving of mention for capable acting, among them Robert Cummings, Frederick C. Truesdell and William Jefferson. Carefully prepared in so many respects, it is surprising that in a picture of this importance several poorly photographed scenes and one or two affected by static were allowed to pass.

"Excuse Me"

Pathe's Adaptation of Stage Farce Is Just One Laugh After Another for Five Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

STANDING sponsor for a five-reel comedy such as seldom brightens the exhibitor's horizon, Pathe's Gold Rooster may be excused if he flaps his wings and crows lustily. In the adaptation of Rupert Hughes' "Excuse Me," produced on the stage several years ago by Henry W. Savage, he has enough of a surprise to justify quite a bit of crowing, especially as the very same play probably would have caused most producers to shake their heads and say, "It can't be done."

And, truth to tell, it probably could not have been done—successfully, that is—by a company not fortunate enough to secure the cooperation of Mr. Hughes, who wrote subtitles in character, of George F. Marion, director and interpreter of the inimitable Pullman porter, of Vivian Blackburn, Robert Fisher and various other players engaged in the original production. The interesting point is that a five-reel comedy, with the action of four out of the five reels confined to the experiences of passengers on a Pullman car, has been made really and truly funny.

Working under such limitations, robbed of the opportunities generally offered to directors by changes of scene and several plot threads, Mr. Marion concentrated on bringing out the full value of character sketches and humorous situations, such as made "Excuse Me" one of the most popular farces of recent years. Mr. Hughes was the first to make use of the rich opportunity for human contrast and humor offered by the democratic mingling of all sorts and conditions of men and women in a sleeping car. It was necessary on the screen, as on the stage, to draw sharply defined characters and to place them in curious, though not impossible predicaments.

In the picture we find characters and incidents much the same as those devised for the stage. First of all there is the porter, so burdened by the troubles of his charges; then Wellington, the corpulent and bibulous husband, who, on the way to Reno to get a divorce, finds his wife on the same train; the eloping couple played by Geraldine O'Brien and Harrison Ford, whose plan to visit a minister before boarding the train was not realized; the self-effacing little minister who eventually marries them; the traveling Englishman and others, a whole trainload of others, all deftly worked into a laughable mix-up. If the clever acting and situations account for seventy-five per cent of the laughs, the other twenty-five per cent must be credited to Mr. Hughes' subtitles, always bright and, on occasion, refreshingly informal, as if he intended taking the audience into his confidence.

Scene from "Excuse Me" (Pathe).

Three Good Biographs

Releases for the Week of January 17 Comprise a Single (Reissue), a Double and a Triple Part Subject.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

FOR the week of Jan. 17 the Biograph Company will issue as its regular program a single, a double and a triple part subject. The single reel is a reissue, "The Miser's Heart," to be released on Monday. It is a melodrama, with a bit of characteristic Griffithian suspense. A. Lestina has the role of the Miser and finely plays it. Inez Seabury is a most interesting child. Others in the cast are Robert Harron, Edward Dillon, Wilfred Lucas and Charles H. Mailes. It is a good picture.

Scene from "The Angel of Piety Flat" (Biograph).

"The Angel of Piety Flat."

The Tuesday release is a two-part subject, "The Angel of Piety Flat." It is a companion piece to "Packer Jim's Guardianship," "Coincidence" and other stories of the primitive west. There is the charm of outdoors—of the desert plain and the desert hills. Ivan Christy has the role of Little Put, who when Big Tom, his worthless partner, is killed in a poker game conceals the fact from Tom's sister, who comes west on a visit. Mary Malatesta is the sister whose kodak gets her into serious trouble with the superstitious Indians. W. C. (Spike) Robinson arrayed in all his glory is the chief who detains the young woman following the disappearance of a chubby three-year-old Indian whose picture she had tried to snap.

There is a bit of comedy surrounding the arrival of Dorothy at Piety Flat. The residents vie with each other in bringing to the shack of the only woman in camp quantities of household necessities. There are situations of strength following the decision of the Indians that Dorothy's camera must be responsible for the absence of the child. The finding of the little one by Put, the release of Dorothy and the romantic outcome make a good ending of an interesting picture.

"A Life Chase."

There are strong situations in "A Life Chase," the three-part adaptation of Adolphe Belot's drama. It is a story of a widow's dissembling in order that she may possibly discover if the man to whom she makes love may have been the instrument of her husband's death. How she actually falls in love with him, is convinced of his innocence, accepts his proposal of marriage, only to hear his confession when he learns her identity—all are logically and convincingly and dramatically told.

Scene from "A Life Chase" (Biograph).

Louise Vale is strong as the widow of Bouval; it is a character making heavy demands on capacity for emotional portrayal. Franklin Ritchie is Almivar, whose guilt of the murder of Bouval is cleverly concealed from every one in spite of the circumstantial evidence against him. Mr. Ritchie's treatment of the role is such that he as thoroughly deceives those following him on the screen as Almivar does the police. The denouement, when Almivar, shocked by Mme. Bouval's revelation of her identity, turns his knife upon himself, is one of power.

Gus Pixley as Meloit, the beggar falsely accused of killing Bouval, is seen in a guise which seems to place on him the burden of proof that he is not a murderer. Mr. Pixley is excellent. Jose Reuben is Vaubert, the friend and adviser of Mme. Bouval, and Jack Drumeir is Bouval. Travers Vale is the director of a well acted and well produced subject.

"Tom Martin---A Man"

A Strong Three-Reel Subject by Selig, Featuring Guy Oliver —Scenario by W. C. Clifton.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

A STORY of manhood that withstands the test unto death itself will be told in "Tom Martin—A Man," a Selig "Diamond Special," in three reels, to be released through the General Film Company on Jan. 24.

The hero is Tom Martin, a village blacksmith, strong of heart and muscle, with none of the worldly polish of manners to commend him to his sweetheart, Mary Brandon. When a city bred schoolmaster comes to the humdrum village in which Tom and Mary live, he places the big blacksmith at a disadvantage, which sorely troubles that giant. True to the butterfly instinct of some women at all times and to most women at some time, Mary is attracted by the engaging manners of the stranger, and soon begins to show a preference for his companionship. And she does this despite the fact that she has promised to become Tom's wife.

The breach between the former lovers is made still wider when Tom, with a sense of possession, takes the law into his own hands on one occasion and almost crushes the life out of the schoolmaster. After that exhibition of Tom's wrath, Mary avoids the smithy and its locality and lavishes her smiles on the schoolmaster alone.

Scene from "Tom Martin—A Man" (Selig).

One day when Mary attended the school exercises at the request of the teacher, Tom saw a mad dog rushing through the street in the direction of the school. Instantly he remembered that it was the time of recess and that the children were in deadly peril of being bitten, so without weapons other than his naked hands he followed in the wake of the fleeing, snapping animal.

The children were playing when Mary and the schoolmaster saw the dog rushing down upon them. Her first thought was for the little tots, whom she quickly gathered around her and rushed to the door of the schoolroom, but it was barred tight by the cowardly teacher, who had fled inside for safety, with no thought for the children or the girl he had professed to love.

Tom came on the spot just as the dog was about to spring up the steps towards the cowering Mary and her frightened brood. With his bare hands he choked the life out of the brute, sustaining in the struggle a badly lacerated wrist.

It is needless to say that the teacher was instantly "fired" out of town, while it is sad to state that the brave Tom died soon afterward from hydrophobia.

Guy Oliver's impersonation of the blacksmith shows us a big, simple, blunt, heroic man, who carries his heart on his sleeve and his courage always to the front. That scene in the smithy, when he feels the poison fast depriving him of his will power and his senses, and hastens to forge himself to the anvil so that he may do no hurt to Mary, who is about to visit him, is both affecting and thrilling.

Miss Vivian Reed gives a pleasing characterization of Mary and the teacher is well portrayed by Fred Hearns. The old village doctor affords a strong character sketch in the care of Al. W. Filson. Indeed, Mr. Filson excels in such creations. Miss Lillian Hayward appears as Mrs. Brandon, Mary's mother, and she and the actress who takes off cleverly the air and mannerisms of the prim village gossip are worthy contributors to the interest of the filmed story.

"The Golden Chance"

A Lasky Feature of Striking Strength and Splendor, Starring Cleo Ridgeley.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

THIS is a marvelous picture. It is an ordeal for the reviewer. The gloss on all the superlatives has been worn off by the ruthless hand of the press agent and superlatives after all are the only terms in which justice can be done to this picture.

In the first place, the story is uncommonly strong. It is rich in dramatic material and replete with genuine pathos. It describes in pictures of superb beauty and sublime simplicity the Golgotha of a woman's heart. The theme of the story is entirely modern, but there is a wonderful element of romance deftly woven into the plot. The romantic element is not at all lacking in our modern life, but it takes the eye of an artist and a dramatist to find it. This picture is ample proof of what can be extracted from modern life in the way of romance and sentiment if one has a real divining rod.

The guile of a society woman aiding her husband in the exploitation of a young millionaire is the first thread in this exquisite texture.

The next is the silly but tragic adventure of a well-bred young girl who marries a scoundrel.

The third thread is supplied by the play of hearts—the heart of the woman so cruelly toyed with by fate and the heart of the young millionaire. Next to the dramatic power found in such abundance in this play is the element of suspense. A swift and well constructed introduction wakes our sympathy and interest in the leading characters and then rivets our attention upon the development of the plot. The director has chosen, and chosen wisely, to depart from all conventional time-worn notions. The unexpected is happening all the time. The spectator is invited to guess at the next turn in the play and is delighted to discover that he has been wrong, for the solution is far more dramatic, far more subtle and entertaining than he could ever have guessed by himself. So much for the dramatic aspect.

There is a new force in this play. I speak of the wonderful lighting effects which seem to lend an indescribable charm and lustre to numerous scenes in the play. Never before have lighting effects, i. e., the skillful play with light and shade, been used to such marvelous advantage. The highly critical spectators who saw the first display of the film were betrayed into loud approval by the many and novel effects following each other in rapid succession. If paintings in a Rembrandt gallery or a set of Titians and Tintorettos were to come to life suddenly and were then mysteriously transferred to the moving picture screen the effect could not have been more startling than it was.

I do not hesitate to say that in the specializing in this branch of our noble art the Lasky pictures are simply in a class by themselves.

Scene from "The Golden Chance" (Lasky).

The work of the cast is in full accord with the perfection of the rest. Cleo Ridgeley a year ago would have seemed unequal to the task imposed on her in this play. While I have noticed much improvement in this artist within the last few weeks, I was by no means prepared for her flawless work in this play. She carried off the principal scenes with consummate art and I have no doubt that many a woman seeing her shifted back and forth from joy, wealth and happiness to poverty, poignant grief and utter wretchedness will pay her the tribute of a tear. There is not a fraction of an inch of waste anywhere. The climax is as it ought to be the strongest part of the play and it comes upon us with startling suddenness and irresistible force. "The Golden Chance" deserves to take its place among the very best of the Lasky productions. It is bound to add to the prestige of the motion picture everywhere.

"The Other Girl"

Raver Film Corporation's First Subject Features James J. Corbett in a Picture Made Interesting by Its Athletic Phase.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THERE is a strong athletic touch to "The Other Girl," the initial production by the Raver Film Company. The story is an adaptation by George Proctor of the work of Augustus Thomas and was produced by Percy Winter. The picture features James J. Corbett, one-time pugilistic champion of the world, and its interest centers around "Gentleman Jim." Mr. Corbett is entitled to credit for his natural work before the camera. He has self-possession, and, excepting those moments when with gloves on his hands he is making a quick stroke, has in his movements the moderation so essential to "registering" on the screen. Supplementing Mr. Corbett on the athletic side is William Muldoon, former wrestler and now known to fame for the many famous men he has licked into physical condition at his health farm. The farm and its patients appear in the story.

Scene from "The Other Girl" (Raver).

Backing up the athletes is a good cast. Paul Gilmore has the role of the Rev. Clifton Bradford, referred to on the screen as "Rev. Bradford," an expression reminiscent of village newspapers. Edith Luckett, Becky Bruce and Frances Thompson are prominent on the feminine side. And there are many other players.

While "The Other Girl" contains no situation of marked dramatic strength there can be little question that it will have good drawing power by reason of the presence of Mr. Corbett. The instructions in boxing which "Kid Garvey" gives to the minister are not only interesting but contain as well elements of mirth. The pictures of Broadway at night are out of the usual. The white way after dark has been photographed so seldom that its novelty appeals to New Yorkers as strongly as to those who have never looked on the original. There are many pictures of street scenes in the metropolis.

"The Other Girl" may be said to be a good initial release.

"Destruction"

Theda Bara Plays the Most Wicked of Evil Women in the Latest Fox Melodrama.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE horrors in this five-part melodrama are piled on so heavily, and the woman played by Theda Bara is so outrageously evil that an audience finds several of the scenes rather amusing. Here is an instance where the attempt to startle and terrify, because it is overdone, fails to carry conviction and the response of the spectator is far from that expected by the producer. At the New York Academy of Music, where "Destruction" was shown, the audience followed the first two reels patiently and after that revealed its good sense by laughing at the preposterous wickedness of the character portrayed by Miss Bara in her most forceful manner For a time it appeared as if the melodrama were destined to become a farce.

There could be no better indication that the Fox Company has about reached the limit in the production of abnormal photoplays, likewise that Miss Bara is ceasing to touch the emotions by depictions of erotic women. Having provided a diet of horrors for many months, the Fox producers evidently thought the time had come to increase the dose and present in "Destruction" something more horrible than usual. But the public, instead of being stimulated, refused to swallow the new concoction of sensationalism and merely laughed.

Technically, William S. Davis has provided a first rate production, terminating with a fire scene of the most spectacular quality, and there is some praiseworthy acting, especially by the player in the role of the drink-crazed factory worker, who abuses his wife and eventually shares the fate of the impossible Ferdinande in the burning house. The gorilla-like ferocity of this actor is impressive. Miss Bara is not to be blamed for the picture's failure as an emotional melodrama, for she acts precisely in the past and that, no doubt, is what the Fox company wishes.

The Purification of Mulfera

Eighth Episode of Kalem's "Stingaree" Series Is a Good Combination of Comedy-Melodrama.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE eighth episode of Kalem's "Stingaree" series, the filmed version of the book from the pen of E. W. Hornung, is "The Purification of Mulfera." Mulfera being one of the worst of the small Australian settlements. The subject gives full opportunity for the comedy talent of True Boardman, who portrays Stingaree, the outlaw of education and former position in England who in Australia lives by his wits and his weapons and preys on the society from which he is debarred. Sharing the honors with Mr. Boardman is Paul C. Hurst, who through the series carries the role of Howie, Stingaree's roughneck partner. The character work of Mr. Hurst is notable and contributes to the rough humor of the episode. Marin Sais is Ethel Porter, who comes to Mulfera to aid the bishop in his work of reformation. Incidentally she does more than sing to the roistering men who congregate at the settlement. When she finds Stingaree the captive of the authorities she takes measures to set free the man she had known in better days back in England.

Scene from "The Purification of Mulfera" (Kalem).

The story turns on the meeting of Stingaree with the bishop of the diocese and his accompanying chaplain on their way to reform Mulfera. Stingaree compels an exchange of raiment. In the garb of the two ecclesiastics the outlaws proceed to Mulfera. Howie talks to the men of the settlement and is interrupted by Stingaree, who suggests a collection. Under the persuasive influence of four revolvers there is a searching of pockets if not of consciences. The sudden appearance of the bishop, who has struggled across the desert, caused the hasty departure of the pair. They are captured by rangers and taken back to Mulfera. Locked in a room, they are released by Ethel, the escape being effected while she sings to the meeting now under the leadership of the real bishop.

Practically the entire two reels are of outdoors. There are unusually good desert scenes and some real riding. "The Purification of Mulfera" will have strong interest for those who love adventure, especially adventure in the open, with comedy and melodrama intermingled.

"Celeste of the Ambulance Corps"

A Red-Cross Nurse the Heroine of a Three-Reel War Drama Produced by the Edison Company.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE "pomp and circumstance of war" has furnished the background for many a worthy photoplay, and gallant young heroes have fought and bled and been the objects of adoration during the progress of the pictures. But it has remained for the author of "Celeste of the Ambulance Corps" to make a young and pretty Red Cross nurse the central figure in a three-reel screen drama. William Addison Lathrop is the scenario writer in question. His heroine is first shown as a young society girl, her mind bent only on marshmallows, matinees and millinery. Her father is a Civil War veteran, however, and a story told by one of his comrades of his rescue on the field of battle by a brave young nurse and the old soldier's praise of her courage fires Celeste with a desire to serve her country in a similar capacity. Events that follow are purely apocryphal. This country becomes engaged in a war with some indeterminate foreign power and our sacred soil is invaded. The action shifts rapidly from one phase to another of the life of a nurse in active service. We see her attached to a field hospital and attending the wounded as they are brought in from the front. Scenes of actual fighting and the carnage of war are also shown. Neither is the thread of romance missing. Celeste meets her hero in the person of one of the officers. They have but brief time for love making. The call of duty keeps them occupied with sterner things; but when he is numbered among the missing, she goes in search of him on the battlefield, is struck down by a bullet just as she reaches his side, and the two are found among the dead when the count is taken of the slain.

It will readily be understood that such a story forms an excellent plot for a photoplay. The contrast in the heroine's position and the change wrought in her character when she exchanges the laughter and frivolity of the drawing room for the horrors and fatigue of the army hospital, are material of which drama is made. Mr. Lathrop has not burdened his theme with an overabundance of complications, and, during the latter part of the picture, has depended upon the battle scenes for the big moments of his work. The producer has made a commendable effort to realize the possibilities of so striking and vital a subject. A large number of well trained supernumeraries are employed, the locations are impressive, and the military equipment is correct—except in one notable incidence. By one of those inexcusable oversights to which so many directors fall a victim, the ambulance used is not a regular U. S. Army vehicle, but one belonging to a city hospital, with a large gong fastened to the dashboard.

The cast is wholly admirable. Leonia Flugrath meets every requirement of the character of Celeste, and Charles Sutton, Pat O'Malley, Paul Bliss, Harry Linson and Julian Reed are equally competent in their respective roles.

"What Will People Say?"

Olga Petrova Is Starred in Metro Drama of Sustained Interest—Produced by Popular Plays and Players.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

RUPERT HUGHES wrote a novel in which he showed how lives are governed by fear of the opinion of other people. Consciously, or unconsciously, a great many of us are said to be ruled by what our neighbors think; we wonder "What Will People Say?" and this very pertinent question was made the title of the novel, and, in turn, the title of an interesting drama, produced in five reels by Popular Plays and Players, Scene from "What Will People Say?" (Metro).

with Olga Petrova in the role of a young woman who follows the dictates of worldly wisdom, rather than her own better judgment and emotions. It is in all respects a first rate photoplay suggesting a few of the false ideals that are passed as a matter of course in contemporaneous society.

The motif of the story is the all-important question that presents itself at each crisis. When a wealthy business man is on the verge of failure that will necessitate a radical curbing of the expenditures of his family, the first thought is "What Will People Say?" To prevent the humiliation of a bankruptcy that will excite talk, Cabot's daughter, Persis, consents to a wealthy union and even when she falls violently in love with another man she goes through with the marriage, mainly because it appears to be the only way of avoiding unpleasant gossip. Her married life is a tragic failure, yet when the opportunity for divorce presents itself, the question "What Will People Say?" again looms up with all powerful force. And so it goes almost to the end, the opinion of others is the guiding influence and generally it brings evil results.

The story through which this theme is developed has sound dramatic qualities in the conflict of well defined characters and the plausible presentation of interesting situations. The director made practically all of the scenes interesting by excluding everything not essential to the progress of the plot and by showing rare judgment in the selection of locations and artistic settings. Scenes photographed on a roof garden are unusually attractive, and every now and then there is an ingenious bit of camera work that pleases by reason of its novelty. Mme. Petrova is emotionally impressive and at the same time restrained in her portrayal of Persis. Fritz de Lint makes a convincing figure of the army officer and Fraunie Fraunholz is well cast as the dissipated husband.

"Thou Art the Man"

Impressive Vitagraph Drama Dealing with the Civil Service in India—Released by V-L-S-E in Six Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

FEW, we imagine, will question the good judgment of the Vitagraph Company in releasing "Thou Art the Man" in six reels instead of the customary five. The picture is its own justification, for it holds the attention without a lapse and probably would be harmed, not benefited, by the elimination of one thousand feet. Far more than in most photoplays, the characters are allowed to grow and work out their own destinies, so that we get something of a transcript of life instead of a series of dramatic episodes strung together by a plot. The full characterization that proves such a valuable asset to this picture is well worth the additional space required.

Scene from "Thou Art the Man" (Vitagraph).

Wherever the scenes were photographed, the backgrounds serve very well for a story of the Indian civil service, and their effectiveness is frequently enhanced by the finest kind of photography and lighting. But the real power of this picture is due to the capable presentation of a comparatively simple story by a notably efficient cast under the direction of S. Rankin Drew, who also plays one of the principal roles. At the basis of the plot is the familiar situation in which a wealthy man attempts to steal the love of a married woman whose husband cannot afford luxuries. The triangular affair is located in India, where Raynor, filling a subordinate position in the Civil Service, is at the mercy of his superior, Irving Marner.

When Raynor's wife is threatened with fever and the doctor orders her removal to the cooler climate of the hills, the poor underling in the governmental machine is thankful to Marner for an opportunity to increase his salary, though the new post is located in a fever-stricken district. Under the guise of kindness, Marner intentionally jeopardizes Raynor's life and takes advantage of his absence by wooing the woman to whom he has taken a fancy. His change of heart comes just in time. The young District Inspector is saved and Marner remains to die of fever. Occasionally the story has a fatalistic tone that adds to its impressiveness. Three sincere characterizations that stand out with equal force are given by Mr. Drew as Raynor, Virginia Pearson as his wife and Joseph Kilgour as Marner. The entire production is in accord with the best standards of photoplay craftsmanship.

Two Lubin Releases

"Sorrows of Happiness," a Four-Reel Unit Program Drama—"Vengeance of the Oppressed," a Powerful Three-Reel Photoplay.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT IS generally admitted that writers of every description, makers of novels, of stage plays or of screen dramas, are influenced by the works of other literary laborers. If this be true, the author of the "Sorrows of Happiness" has been swayed by the mid-Victorian novelists. The realists of a later day have, apparently, made no impression on Anthony P. Kelley, the gentleman in question, and his scenario reflects, with praiseworthy exactness, the merits of the school he has chosen to follow. Although the title, "Sorrows of Happiness," is somewhat ambiguous, the plot of Mr. Kelley's drama is clear and direct. Having definitely settled upon the climax, he allows nothing to impede the onward march of the story. There is, what Mrs. Malaprop would call, "a nice derangement of incidents," leading up to the big scene, where a recalcitrant wooer is confronted with the girl he deserted on her wedding day. In order that poetic justice be meted out to him in full measure, the fates are made to decree that this laggard in love shall succumb to the blandishments of the deserted bride's elder sister. When he arrives at the hour appointed for the late wedding it is to face a highly dramatic situation; the victim of his perfidy, who has been driven insane, is brought before him. The heart of the man is touched, and his honest desire to right the wrong, restores reason and happiness to Mary Carroll. This romantic story pays proper heed to credence, by having the heroine an unsophisticated little country girl and her betrayer a wealthy young city chap. Her father and mother are the correct types of honest farm folk; and events move interestingly along on the surface of life, and take no heed of the stronger currents below.

As the producer of "Sorrows of Happiness," Joseph Kaufman displays his usual intelligent grasp of his subject, and the acting of the cast meets every requirement. June Daye, Bartley McCullum, Craufurd Kent, Inez Buck, Helen Green, Marie Sterling, and James Daly, have the principal roles.

Vengeance of the Oppressed."

THIS three-reel photodrama has but one fault: the first part is so powerful that the authors have been unable to increase the force of the action as the story nears the climax. Nevertheless, it is an unusual piece of scenario writing and holds the interest to the very end. Written by Wilbert Melville and Julian Louis Lamothe, the producer of the picture, Edward Sloman, easily proves the wisdom of his selection. The opening scenes are laid in Russia, a young, Jew, his wife, and a Cossack officer comprising the leading characters. The familiar story of lust, brutality and murder is enacted, and the Israelite flees to this country, bereft of wife and mother. Once in the United States, the ability of the man is given free rein and, from an humble beginning, he lifts himself to a position of great authority in the financial world. When the Russian government sends Sergius Kosloff, the brutal Cossack, to negotiate a loan, the time for Aaron's vengeance is at hand. The manner in which he plans and executes that vengeance has abundant intensity and fine dramatic effect, and the play closes with the death of the Cossack and the Jew.

Here are strong passions treated with corresponding force. The direction is at all times worthy, but it is in the scenes in Russia that Mr. Sloman has achieved his best results. There is a verity, a conviction of the truth of the local color, that will not be denied. In giving the producer his well-earned meed of praise, it is also a pleasant task to congratulate him upon his acting of Aaron. It is a clean-cut, moving and always adequate impersonation.- Other characterizations that call for commendation are those of Adda Gleason, Adelaide Bronti, Francelia Billington, George Routh, Benjamin Hopkins, Julian Lamothe, Helen Wolcott, and L. C. Shumway.

"The Woman in Politics"

Five-Reel Thanhouser Released Through the Mutual Film Corporation as a Masterpicture.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

A WELL-CONSTRUCTED and interesting story of timely theme, "The Woman in Politics" suffers principally from lack of good title. To announce the theme in advance is not so detrimental as to placard the plot in the title, but it is bound to detract from that pleasurable uncertainty as to the Scene from "The Woman in Politics" (Thanhouser).

result of action which helps to sustain attention through five reels. The story is really one of a plucky girl's adventures in the political field, but less as a politician than as an honest and determined unit, who sets her puny will against organized graft, who would fail miserably but for the protection and guidance afforded by a young man of superior strength and mental resource, the Governor's Private Secretary.

A young lady in public service, impersonated by Mignon Anderson, attempts to do her duty as a health commissioner regardless of consequences and finds that she is out of harmony with the organization. She unfavorably reports a tenement belonging to the Mayor and loses her position. She appeals to the Governor and is thereafter barely preserved from ruin by the timely appearance on the scene of a young man of extraordinary daring and acumen. Interest centers on this mysterious character from the moment of his appearance, a clever piece of photoplay construction, an interest intensified by concealment of his identity. The mysterious and resourceful stranger, admirably impersonated by George Marle wins the plucky girl's battle for her through a series of sensational incidents, a stirring fight to the end.

"The Man Inside"

Edwin Stevens Central Figure in Mystery Offering Which Abounds in Dramatic Thrills.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

SCENARIO writers and directors frequently experience difficulty in finding sufficient action in story plots to make five good reels. The trouble has been quite the reverse in this production. It abounds in incidents and situations, all pertinent to the main plot, and fairly crowds the mind of the observer in the effort to keep up with developments. Only intense interest of the plot as a whole can offset such a deluge of short, choppy scenes as appear in this production, but the compelling power is there and holds the attention firmly.

The chief object of this attraction is the fact that the observer is conscious at all times of being in the presence of a master villain. Col. Dana Thornton, as impersonated by Edwin Stevens of histrionic fame, is a cool, calculating individual, who commits a series of crimes before being brought to justice. He first endeavors to steal some government plans from his brother, Barry Thornton, also impersonated by Mr. Stevens. He then stabs a man with a letter file and brings about the death of the supposed maid because she knows too much. The action sounds melodramatic in the telling, but is really straight drama as handled by the competent cast. Two love affairs also complicate matters considerably.

Scene from "The Man Inside" (Universal).

This production would have been stronger if simplified, but has much to commend as it stands. Harry Benham, Tina Marshall, Harry Strong, Sidney Bracey and others are included in the cast.

"Temptation"

A Lasky Picture in Which Miss Geraldine Farrar and Theodore Roberts Carry off the Honors.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

"TEMPTATION," as resisted with the utmost propriety by Miss Geraldine Farrar, is the head and front of this Lasky feature. Miss Farrar has a personality of such magnetic charm and such vivacity that she is bound to win her audience in even a mediocre play. The same may be said for Theodore Roberts. These two artists make "Temptation" acceptable. Of course there are very fine settings and all those delightful adjuncts of the Lasky art, but the story is conventional to a degree and we are permitted to guess the end some time before the end comes. There is no doubt whatever that this feature can be improved materially by trimming it here and there; I think a loss of about two or three hundred feet would be a gain.

Otto Mueller—thus the story runs—is the director of a metropolitan opera house and a little tyrant in his own realm. He abuses his power for the gratification of his evil desires. He certainly is a ruthless devil. Not only does he pursue the virtuous and talented singer, but he makes up his mind to wipe her gifted lover from the theatrical and operatic map. The latter has composed a first-class opera. Otto praises the opera extravagantly and wants to produce it at once until he hears that the fiance of his persecuted singer is the author. Thereupon he sniffs at it contemptuously and rejects it. The poor composer, although a splendid violinist, is forced to seek employment in a foundry, where he takes up the uncongenial and frightfully hard work of a puddler. No wonder he is half dead at the end of his first day.

The climax while to some degree anticipated is startling in some of its details. The young singer to save her husband's life has agreed to the "price" named by the wicked director. She comes to the appointment in gala dress, reminding one of the classic robes in which the virgins of old were dressed when offered to the fearful Minotaur of Crete. When she announces herself ready to be immolated upon the altar of her marital love she finds that the old demon impresario has been killed by a former favorite with whose affections he had trifled in a most reckless manner.

Scene from "Temptation" (Lasky).

Two Vitagraph Features

"Mrs. Dane's Danger" and "Secret Seven" Featuring Many of the Most Popular Stars of the Company.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

LILLIAN WALKER and L. Rogers Lytton carry off the honors of this film play. Their work is deserving of the highest praise. Lillian Walker takes the part of the young wife of an elderly husband. Husband and wife understand each other perfectly, but the usual gossip soon overtakes them. The young wife's name is mentioned in connection with that of Rex Gordon, a former admirer. There is a jewel robbery which is carried out with a good deal of realism. There are many tense and thrilling situations, though some of them were not quite as probable as they might have been. After a lot of confusion and misunderstandings that often border on the Scene from "Mrs. Dane's Danger" (Vitagraph).

tragic, there is a very happy ending: everything is explained satisfactorily and husband and wife are all the stronger in their mutual regard and attachment for the trials they have passed through.

"Secret Seven."

THIS three reel feature is rich in good entertainment. The cast consists of some of the most popular Vitagraph favorites, such as Rose Tapley, William Humphrey and Harry Northrup. "The Secret Seven" is the name of a daring band of counterfeiters. Manfredi, an American-Italian doctor, knows of the existence of this band, but has been sworn to secrecy by the leader. Manfredi is a friend of Paul Hampton, a secret service man, working for Uncle Sam. Hampton gets hold of a counterfeit bill and goes to work in the neighborhood where he suspected the counterfeiters are operating. Complications now set in rapidly, a sweetheart of the doctor is involved in the mesh of intrigue, a rival for the doctor's affections appears and swears vengeance. The situations are all highly dramatic and gripping. There is a rough road for the actor and his sweetheart to travel, but the tangled skein is finally unwound with great directorian skill and there is a most happy ending. Settings, photography direction and acting were of the best Vitagraph calibre.

Scene from "Secret Seven" (Vitagraph).

Triangle Program

In a Bill of Varied Merit Are Presented "The Green Swamp," Kay-Bee, "The Worst of Friends," Keystone, and "The Wood Nymph," Fine-Arts Film.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"THE GREEN SWAMP," an intense drama of the highest class, highest according to present standards, holds sympathetic attention throughout every foot of its four reels to the last moment of its artistic conclusion. So evenly balanced are the three great factors of photodrama, constructive imagination, capable direction and intelligent interpretation that one can only compliment author, producer and actors jointly for their composite craftsmanship. Only by such perfect harmony of effort is the illusion preserved, the illusion of witnessing a phase of life and of living in it so that one forgets one's actual surroundings. The story is flawlessly arranged, exquisitely handled and told by its people as if they were living their parts.

It is a story of a sweet young wife's love in its perfectly natural, though not elevated, expression. Extremely sensitive to changes of mood in her mate, dreading the loss of that complete happiness her influence over him has brought, she slowly sinks into a green swamp of suspicion from which her view of him becomes hideously distorted. She sinks deeper and deeper in the mire of distrust and misconception until she becomes ferocious on discovering that she is to bring a new life into the world. It requires one great dramatic incident to restore her to her senses. There is a state of high suspense until that moment arrives. It comes by natural and logical means, when a tragedy in her husband's life, which might have been caused by her jealousy, is narrowly averted. There is not a dull moment in this fine production.

Scene from "The Green Swamp" (Kay-Bee).

"The Worst of Friends."

"The Worst of Friends" serves principally to give new opportunity to those old stage favorites, Weber and Fields, a service they most surely require, for their old tricks seem stale indeed when compared with their screen performance. They are really wonderful survivals when one considers how long they have been at their unvaried impersonations and horseplay. The farce in which they appear, while it draws roars of laughter from the easily amused, has absolutely no continuity as a story, is a mere jumble of incidents which are vastly more amusing in a farce of better construction interpreted by the regular Keystone Company. Bad as it is in some respects, "The Worst of Friends" is so far above the average farce shown on the screen that it will be welcomed in nearly any varied program.

"The Wood Nymph."

"The Wood Nymph" is entirely dependent upon the charming personality and fine acting of Marie Doro for interest. Without her, or without an actress as attractive and capable, it would fall very flat. It drags as it stands except at bright moments, when there is promise of high comedy in its material. There is a painful monotony of scene, a lack of Scene from "The Wood Nymph" (Fine Arts).

characterization in all other roles save that of the principal, a confusing sameness of types and costumes among the four leading men, especially during the obscurity of the fire scenes, and those scenes, well enough done in themselves, are repeated and attenuated to the limit of good-natured tolerance.

"Fighting for France"

Five Reels of Genuine War Pictures Released as a Mutual Special Feature.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

WHILE these spirited illustrations of what is going on along the French line of battle, in the background and on the sea, have had advanced showings among a few principal cities, interest in them is bound to increase as time

Scene from "Fighting in France" (Mutual).

wears on, because they are true presentations and can never be duplicated. They will serve for many years in the historical department of educational releases. The great Generals, the great Monarchs, all the celebrities with the Allies are to be seen at close range; veritable armies of infantry, cavalry and artillery pass in review; the glory of war is rampant at times, but all points of view are taken, including those miseries of war often suppressed in the news.

It is all interesting; the trenches of marvelous construction; the trenches blown to pieces during the Champagne drive; the famous "seventy-fives" in action; the lines of downcast German prisoners brought in from the front; the Spahs, the submarines, the Dardanelle operations; the distant glimpse of actual battle, but the real big interest is the human one, the man behind the gun. He is ourselves as we would be under the same circumstances, as we yet may be, completely transformed for better or worse by an unsought change of condition. In every scene the common soldier, he who takes all the risks and gets so little return, is a sympathy-winning figure never to be forgotten.

"The Foundling"

Mary Pickford Is Seen in Excellent Famous Players Subject That Contains Pathos and Comedy.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IT IS a typical Mary Pickford story in which we see Miss Pickford in "The Foundling," the Famous Players five-part release of January 3. There are present those elements which in greater or less degree have been factors in her most successful pictures. As the title indicates, it is a waif story; and there are other children, an asylum full of them; and dogs, too.

John D. O'Brien makes his debut as a Famous Players producer and scores on his first shot. For his script he has an original story written by Frances Marion. It is a well-told story. There is pathos in the opening, where a mother passes from the world as a girl infant enters it. The tradegy is softened to the observer by the fact that only the arm of the mother shows as the doctor takes the pulse. There are many other moments of quiet in the picture, but there are also bits of mirth as well as straight drama that make for a wholesome whole.

Scene from "The Foundling" (Famous Players).

Miss Pickford is seen first as a child of thirteen in an orphan asylum. From the institution she is sent into a "home," which proves to be a boarding house, of which she becomes the slavey. When she runs away she is found by the man who proves to be her father; the head of the asylum had foisted upon him as his daughter her own piece. It is following the robbery of the father through the connivance of the bogus daughter that the facts are revealed.

Edward Martindell, as David King, the artist who gives to a neighbor for adoption the infant whose coming has brought him so much sorrow, shares with Miss Pickford the acting honors of the picture. His is a splendid performance. There is a good supporting cast.

Miss Pickford is at her best. One of the more notable phases of the subject is her control of the mites in the asylum. She entertains them, interests them. The visit of the little ones, when surreptitiously they bring to Molly O some food to make up for the supper of which she was deprived, will charm. And there is a gulp in the parting. There is comedy following the unsanctioned adoption of the dog; even more when the slavey discovers the improvised kennel contains four puppies—in spite of the ignorance of the child that her guest was "married." There is drama of a sterner sort after Molly O is taken to the home of her benefactor—and a most happy denouement.

"The Foundling" should be one of the more popular Pickford releases.

WILLIAM COURTENAY SEEN IN NEW VITAGRAPH.

William Courtenay, who has graced the legitimate stage in numerous successes during recent years, will soon appear before the moving picture public in the character of Robert Lovell in the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady novel, "The Island of Surprise," which appeared as a serial in a well known magazine. The novel was picturized and produced by the Vitagraph Company of America as a five-part Blue Ribbon Feature.

There are numerous "Brady" thrills in the film, for the scenes are laid in the South Sea Islands where the hero and the heroines are beset by savages and literally wade through blood to escape to freedom. So elaborate is the story that the Vitagraph company has been at work six months in gathering the scenes necessary, and it is considered as one of the most important releases ever filmed by that company.

Courtenay is cast as the son of a wealthy Wall Street operator, who marries his father's secretary, Dorothy Arden, without telling his father. William Courtenay gives a splendid portrayal of his difficult role. Eleanor Woodruff, Zena Keefe, Charles Kent, Julia Swayne Gordon and other prominent Vitagraphers are in the production which was filmed under the direction of Paul Scardon.

VITAGRAPH PHOTOGRAPHS CARNEGIE STEEL MILLS.

In the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature, "The Cave Man," Director Theodore Marston took a company to Pittsburgh and photographed certain scenes in the big plant of the steel trust at Homestead, Pa. It is the first time that a real motion picture of the interior of one of the mills has ever been taken and permission to use the structures was difficult to obtain. President Dinkey of the Carnegie plant and President Farrell of the United States Steel company were finally induced to give Director Marston the unusual privilege.

Robert Edeson, who is featured in "The Cave Man," borrowed garments from one of the husky mill workers, and went through the duties as he learned from watching them for more than a day. Lights were placed at advantageous points and the camera faithfully recorded one of the most thrilling scenes ever portrayed on the film.

From word received by the Homestead Mills and other huge industries in the steel district, the Vitagraph company is the first and only concern to use their cameras on the working of the plants. In acknowledgment of the courtesy extended, Director Marston showed the film at an entertainment of the mill workers, even before the Censorship Board had viewed it, and before it had been finally passed upon. It met with an enthusiastic reception.

Sammy Burns in Vogue Comedy..

Sammy Burns will soon be seen in a Vogue comedy which will permit him to display the athletic prowess undeniably his. The name of the picture, which will be one reel in length, is "Sammy vs Cupid." There is a pretty girl involved. Sammy is in love with her. She, however, like a regular American-minded girl, refused to marry a man who seemed physically unable to protect her through life, and Sammy, in this stage of the story, seems to merit the young lady's scorn.

But she reasons without Sammy. He begins a course of physical training that would seem like a vacation to recruits in the navy. He does some stunts never seen before on the screen. Nothing seems impossible to him. He engages in boxing bouts with regular "pugs" and wins. He wrestles and wins and just naturally takes the honors all along the line.

The picture teems with ludicrously funny situations and there is a screaming climax when Sammy gets a decision in a wrestling bout with Josh Benny, who tips the scales at 360.

Of course, his success in athletics spells success in love and the lady capitulates to the prowess of the man she once had scorned.

Novelty Heralds an Ivan Aid to Exhibitors.

The publicity department of the Ivan Film Productions has turned out something somewhat different in the quality and get-up of heralds as an aid to the exchanges throughout the country who are exploiting the regular monthly Ivan releases. For the January release, "Forbidden Fruit," special allegorical drawings were made depicting the Garden of Eden and its first inhabitants. These illumine the outside cover of the folder and the snake and fruit device is used on the inside to frame pictures of the cast and scenes from the play. Printed in several colors, this herald has created a great deal of most favorable comment among those of the local New York exhibitors who have seen it as well as the exchanges releasing the Ivan subjects throughout the country.

Fairbanks Twins in "An Innocent Traitor."

The beautiful Fairbanks twins, Marion and Madeline, have dropped their child roles to star in ingenue parts in "An Innocent Traitor," a charming play of army life and the secret service, announced for release on the regular Mutual program, Dec. 24. A unique thing about these youthful leads is, that they positively refuse to appear separately. If one is to be featured, she insists that her sister share equally in the honors. This keeps the Thanhouser scenario department using its wits to devise clever plays of doubles and confounded identities in which Marion and Madeline can both be prominently cast. "An Innocent Traitor" shows what delightful work these two fascinating little girls are capable of. It is doubtful whether even their most ardent admirers will be able to tell them apart on the screen.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company

HEREDITY (Biograph), Dec. 27.—This one-reel D. W. Griffith reissue is like a page of American history. The young half-breed, born of a white father and an Indian mother, who reverts to savagery at the first opportunity, is taken from life, and the entire reel makes an intensely interesting story. Harry Carey, Jack Pickford, Alfred Paget, W. C. Robinson and Madge Kirby comprise the cast.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 103, 1915 (Selig), Dec. 27.—Ferryboat Manhattan in a collision, New York; military parade, Charleston, S. C.; hockey champions, Omaha, Neb.; steamship Winneconne released at New York; Geo. A. Powell of Sacramento, Cal., President Wilson's double; peace declared between the three big baseball leagues, Cincinnati; vessel goes ashore on the Jersey coast; explosion of dynamite at Lynnfield, Mass.; ice skating on roof at Biltmore Hotel, New York; breakers at Venice, Cal.

HE GOT HIMSELF A WIFE (Vitagraph), Dec. 27.—As a bit of irresponsible but wholly diverting nonsense this one-reel farce meets all requirements. The fun moves at a lively pace and the cast, including Webster Campbell, Mary Anderson, Aileen Allen and the long line of school-marms, all try to come in first in the race for favorable mention. They all finish about even. Edwin Ray Coffin wrote the scenario.

THE CARETAKER'S DILEMMA (Kalem), Dec. 28.—Burlesque comedy runs riot through the one-reel of this photoplay, and the "touch-and-go" brand of farce acting that Bud Duncan, Jack McDermott and wholesome Ethel Teare know so well how to dispense, is liberally supplied. Bud Duncan also shows his skill as a dare-devil chauffeur, during the action of the comedy.

THE FABLE OF "THE HEIR AND THE HEIRESS" (Essanay), Dec. 29.—The sub-titles to this one-reel picture are among the wittiest that have served to point the humor of the Ade fables. The story itself illustrates several amusing phases of human nature, and is capitally played by Charles J. Stine, Earl Stanhope and Peggy Sweeney.

THIS ISN'T THE LIFE (Lubin), Dec. 29.—D. L. Donn has the star role in this one-reel farce, written by George Spink and produced by Edwin McKim. The picture is an amusing example of broad effects in funmaking, and Mr. Donn's comic gifts are utilized to the best advantage. Florence Williams, Patsey De Forest and Jack Delson take part in the proceedings.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 104, 1915 (Selig), Dec. 30.—Arrival of the steamship California at New York, with mail; Japanese orphans at a San Francisco orphanage; the Zoo, Omaha, Neb.; Henry Elonskey, champion swimmer, New York; noncapsizable boat, Baltimore; proposed monument to Santa Claus, New York; steamship Minnesota disabled, San Francisco; Christmas presents at public school; fatal accident at Spokane, Wash.

BY MIGHT OF HIS RIGHT (Vitagraph), Dec. 31.—William B. Courtney is the author of this highly amusing one-reel comedy that will be relished by all beholders. The manner in which a happy family rids itself of a bore, is cunningly planned. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and Donald MacBride share honors in the acting.

AT THE RISK OF HER LIFE (No. 60 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Kalem), Jan 1.—Helen Gibson makes good the title of this one-reel drama during the action of the story. The thrill is among the most heart-quickening that have been shown in this series of narrow escapes. There is an interesting plot and no lack of movement all through the picture.

A READY MADE MAID (Lubin), Jan 1.—In this one-reel farce, Billie Reeves dons skirts and hires out as a servant girl to an unsuspecting housewife. The results of his efforts at cooking, washing, cleaning and waiting on table can easily be imagined, although the reality is something fearful for the lady of the house, to contemplate. Mr. Reeves is assisted by Arthur Matthews, Carrie Reynolds, Peter Lang and Jessie Terry, and a lively fifteen minutes is the result.

THE LESSER EVIL (Biograph), Jan. 3.—Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh and Edwin August are among the old Biograph favorites seen in this Griffith reissue. As in many of the early Griffith pictures, suspense is cleverly maintained through a thrilling story. A girl is kidnapped by smugglers and, aboard a sailing vessel, is threatened with all sorts of indignities before a rescue is effected.

General Film Company Specials.

THE MAKING OF CROOKS (Selig), Dec. 27.—The outstanding merit of this three-reel drama is the strict regard for things as they are with which the subject is handled. Viewed solely as a piece of dramatic construction, the picture lacks form and many of the component parts of a photoplay; considered as a veracious narrative of the evil of pool rooms and the night life of the city, it hits its mark exactly in the center, and teaches a powerful moral lesson. Jack Pickford draws a lifelike portrait of a young Italian pool sharp, and the remaining members of the cast are all excellent.

BROUGHT HOME (Essanay), Dec. 28.—This two-reel drama is another of those heart stories that furnish Ruth Stonehouse with a chance of introducing one of her appealing impersonations of a young girl. As Dorcas Dale, the inmate of an orphanage, Miss Stonehouse looks and acts the little heroine to perfection. The picture has an engaging plot, and excellent acting is also contributed by Richard C. Travers, Edmund F. Cobb and Billy Harper.

THE WOMAN OF MYSTERY (Biograph), Dec. 29—Adapted from a novel by Georges Ohnet, this three-part drama is founded on the efforts of secret service agents to get the formula for a powerful explosive to be used in warfare. The story maintains a fair degree of suspense, is attractively staged and very well acted by Louise Vale, Franklin Ritchie, Charles Mailes and others.

THE TAKING OF STINGAREE (Kalem), Dec. 29.—A two-part offering, the sixth of the "Stingaree" series, by E. W. Hornung and produced by James Horne, with True Boardman and Marin Sais in the leads. It makes an excellent comedy and dramatic picture full of dandy character suggestions, well acted and freshly interesting all through. We commend it. A longer review may be found in our issue of December 11, 1915.

SAVED FROM THE HAREM (Lubin), Dec. 29.—A four-reel picture on the Unit Program, in which the U. S. Navy plays a prominent part. The story is melodramatic and deals with the adventures of a U. S. Consul and his daughter at the court of a foreign ruler. A review of the picture appeared in the issue of Jan. 1, page 94.

THE CONVICT KING (Lubin), Dec. 30.—The three reels of this photoplay contains a strong story of which Dudley Glass is the author. Melvin Mayo, George Routh and L. C. Shumway have the leading roles. A review of the picture appeared in the issue of Jan. 1, page 94.

THE MATCHMAKERS (Edison), Dec. 31.—A three-reel comedy-drama with a lively plot and well-drawn types. Sally Crute and Carlton King have the leading roles. A review of this picture was printed in the issue of Jan. 1, page 90.

THE MYSTERIOUS BRIDE (Knickerbocker), Dec. 31.—Romance of the kind supplied by the writings of Dumas the Elder is to be found in this three reel photoplay. The missing bride, who runs away from her husband on the wedding night, and playfully hides herself in a closet from which she never escapes alive, contributes the leading motive of the story, and the incidents that follow are equally melodramatic. The picture is well staged and acted.

THE PRISONER AT THE BAR (Essanay), Jan. 1.—The plot of this three-reel photoplay tells of a man who takes the law into his own hands and kills the one who wrecked his life. The theme is worked out with force and skill, and most persons will applaud the jury for acquitting the prisoner at the bar. Darwin Karr, Hugh Thompson, Williams Burns and Warda Howard constitute a well-selected cast.

THE MANICURE GIRL (Selig), Jan. 1.—This two-reel comedy belongs to the Chronicles of "Bloom Center" series, written by Maibelle Heikes Justice. The town barber is rash enough to engage a lady manicure from the city and, by so doing, completely upsets the domestic peace of Bloom Center. The photoplay has a number of hearty laughs to its credit, and is acted very effectively by Cecil Holland, Sidney Smith, Wm. Hutchison, John Lancaster, Rolph McComas and Anna Luther.

THE WANDERERS (Vitagraph), Jan. 1.—The story is quite simple; which constitutes a vital point in its favor. The subject is finely enacted by a good cast. The atmosphere is well in keeping with the picture. The photography is worthy of praise.

WHO KILLED JOE MERRION? (Vitagraph), Jan. 3.—Rather old in plot is this Broadway Star Feature but abundant with possibilities. The acting is well handled by an all star cast and the photography and settings are very good.

Fox Film Corporation.

DESTRUCTION (Dec. 27.—The horrors are so numerous in this five-part melodrama, and the woman played by Theda Bara is so intensely evil that an audience is not likely to take the production seriously. Several scenes intended to be dramatic were received with laughter at the New York Academy of Music.

Kleine-Edison Feature Service

THE DEVIL'S PRAYER-BOOK (Kleine).—A melodramatic production of a first rate story, produced in five reels by George Kleine, for release in the Kleine-Edison Feature Service. There is plenty of rapid action, for the most part dealing with the experiences of a girl who is reared to be a thief. Alma Hanlon and Arthur Hoops are the featured players, supported by Frank Belcher, Ruby Hoffman, Carlyle Fleming and Tom Coventry.

Metro Pictures Corporation.

WHAT WILL PEOPLE SAY? (Popular Plays and Players), Jan. 3.—Adapted from a novel by Rupert Hughes, this Popular Plays and Players production, starring Olga Petrova, is made interesting by reason of a good theme adroitly handled, and the excellent performance of Mme. Petrova, Fraunie Fraunholz and Fritz de Lint. The story goes to show how our actions are influenced by the opinions of our neighbors. Artistic settings add to the attractiveness of this offering.

Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 52, 1915 (Mutual), Dec. 30.—Some interesting items of this issue are views of a huge steel battleplane that was built in this country, has two gun turrets and is driven by a 140 horsepower motor, a hospital, Holland's gift to France is established at Pre Catelan, happenings during the Southern Commercial Congress, the new French submarine "Daphne" being launched here, and the second annual turkey scramble at Ostrander, Ohio.

LEAVE IT TO CISSY (Casino), Jan 2.—Cissy Fitzgerald plays the role of an artist in this farce comedy. To her studio come the husbands of other women, followed by their respective wives. Cissy's manner of disguising the situation will be found very amusing. The fun is clean and of the sort that belongs legitmately to farce comedy.

THE OPTIMISTIC ORIENTAL OCCULTS (Falstaff), Jan. 3.—An amusing comedy of an exaggerated sort. Riley Chamberlin, a rich old fellow, hates his relatives because they want his money. He contrives many schemes to keep them off his place. The substitution of the fake horse is a good feature. A pleasing comedy.

AN INNOCENT CROOK (Vogue), Jan. 3.—A two-part farce comedy of more than ordinarily entertaining qualities. The production, although not at all original in flavor, will be found very amusing to most audiences.

BILLY VAN DEUSEN'S SHADOW (Beauty), Jan. 4.—A farcical comedy with a laughable situation in it, wherein John Steppling appears in the dual role of club man and head waiter. They are frequently mistaken for each other, and when the hotel force take the club man forcibly into the kitchen and make him wait on the table, much laughter is created. A good number of the type.

TIME AND TIDE (American), Jan. 7.—This is an amusing comedy in which a son acting as guardian to his father, himself becomes infatuated with a pretty girl. Father has millions and so is in danger of being sought for his money. His son discovers that a widow who is about to marry his father is not in love with him, and puts an end to dad's love affair, making the widow believe that he has lost his money. The climax gives an interesting finish to the picture when both father and son get caught by a high tide out on the rocks.

TO BE OR NOT BE (Beauty), Jan. 8.—Orral Humphrey, Gladys Kingsbury, Mary Talbot and others appear in this low comedy number, featuring a troupe of Shakespearean actors of the old school. They walk the tracks and are chased by the constable, but at length are able to give their production. The comedy is fairly strong, but follows a well worn trail.

BELINDA'S BRIDAL BREAKFAST (Falstaff), Jan. 10.—Belinda and her lover, after their elopement, hear of Pickle Pete, a badly wanted fellow. The girl suspects her lover at first of being Pete, but the latter brings the real culprit to justice. This has a little too much burlesque about it. It makes an average release.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

THE LAW OF SUCCESS (Reliance), Jan. 2.—A two-part drama the plot of which is founded on the theft of an invention. The production has not an extraordinary amount of merit as regards dramatic action, nor is the theme new.

MATCHING DREAMS (American), Jan. 3.—A very pleasing two-reel number, featuring Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh. This contains quite a little of a high comedy spirit too seldom seen in either films or fiction. The girl dressmaker falls heir to a horse and riding outfit, temporarily, and meets the young man out in the country. She pretends to be Rosalind and he Orlando. The romance is a pretty one and both characters look the parts in the brief flash of "As You Like It." Of course, in spite of the girl's real station, the love affair turns out well. The settings are attractive. A good offering.

THE SHE-DEVIL (Reliance), Jan. 5.—A three-part melodrama which is rather difficult of moral classification. Some creditable dramatic action is exhibited in the picture, and the actor playing the role of the man who is driven to the verge of insanity by means of auto-suggestion is especially to be commended for his remarkable conception of the part. The production has not a pleasant flavor; too much suggestion of suicide, and too much killing occurs.

HILLS OF GLORY (Mustang), Jan. 7.—This is an interesting two-part production with Helen Rosson and E. Forrest Taylor in the leading roles. There is nothing especially new in the idea on which the picture is based, but the production is pleasing. Everybody likes to see a good "scrap," and it can be seen between the would-be lover and the husband of the innocent little country wife in this picture.

SOCIETY WOLVES (Thanhouser Masterpiece), Jan. 8.—A five-reel production, produced by Tom Terriss, based on an English play entitled "A Woman of the World." It features Elaine Terriss, Alfred Heming, Lida Hikox, Louella Knox and others. This deals with the operations of a band of social highwaymen, with whom the leading woman character is associated. The plot development lacks continuity in places, yet carries considerable interest. The chief incidents are melodramatic in character. The social scenes and settings are very good. The roundup of the gang at the close is well handled. This is fairly strong.

IN THE NAME OF THE LAW (Thanhouser), Jan. 11.—A three-reel offering, by Clinton H. Stagg, featuring Gladys Hulette and Morris Foster. The former is the moonshiner's daughter and the latter a revenue detective. Stories of this type have been frequent, but there are some new tricks in this one which serve to make it interesting. The revenue man first poses as an escaped convict to get into the graces of the mountaineers. Later he destroys the still, has a terrific hand-to-hand struggle with a rival, and finally rounds up the gang, only to release the men because of his love for the girl. As the still no longer exists he is able to do this honorably. The settings and atmosphere are good.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

THE IMMIGRANT (Lasky), Dec. 20.—Taken as a whole this subject makes a good film. Valeska Suratt is the star; while she puts forth great effort she does not measure up to great expectations. She is ably supported by a good cast.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS, NO. 102, 1915 (Pathe), Dec. 22.—Pictures of a gearless automobile and the largest electric locomotive in the world give a scientific interest to this news issue that contains a varied assortment of local events and war scenes. There are good views of Boston school children parading for "No License."

PATHE NEWS, NO. 103, 1915 (Pathe), Dec. 25.—A remarkable picture of the collapse of an English dirigible comes at the conclusion of exceptional views of the aircraft being used by England, France and Germany in the European war. Other interesting subjects in this number show some of the results of the recent snow storm, the congestion of freight on the Brooklyn docks and the efforts being made to rid Oklahoma City of drugs.

COLONEL HEEZA LIAR, NATURE FAKIR (Pathe), Dec. 28.—One of the intelligently humorous Bray cartoons presenting the adventures of the renowned Colonel Heeza Liar on a journey across the desert. This very acceptable reel includes "California's Rocky Shore," a beautiful scenic in colored film.

LONESOME LUKE, SOCIAL GANGSTER (Pathe), Dec. 29.—The experiences of Lonesome Luke in this split-reel comedy are thrilling enough and entertaining in an elementary way. The picture will go well with audiences partial to slapstick. Completing the reel is an instructive subject entitled, "When the Trees are Stone."

CHASING 'EM OUT IN THE OPEN (Pathe), Jan. 1.—The antics of Heine and Louie are more than customarily lively in this rapid fire, knockabout farce. There is enough plot to connect the incidents that are acted with plenty of spirit and an appreciation of comedy values. The film is good of its kind.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

NEW ADVENTURES OF WALLINGFORD, NO. 13 ("The Missing Heir") (Pathe), Dec. 27.—"The Missing Heir" is the title of this two-reel comedy presenting Burr McIntosh as J. Rufus Wallingford, Max Figman as Blackie Daw and Lolita Robertson as Violet. The story is a good one, showing how the partners make use of a fake spiritualist medium and force a dishonest lawyer into confessing the theft of a fortune. Mr. Figman's simulation of intoxication is an especially clever piece of acting.

EXCUSE ME (Pathe), Dec. 31.—A five-reel comedy of exceptional quality, adapted from Rupert Hughes's farce of the same name. Nearly all of the scenes are laid in a Pullman car where cleverly drawn characters are concerned in an amusing mix-up. George F. Marion directed the picture and gave a clever portrayal of the Pullman car porter. He was ably assisted by Vivian Blackburn, Robert Fisher, Geraldine O'Brien, Harrison Ford and others.

Signal Film Corporation.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME, NO. 2 (Signal), Jan. 3.—"The Winning Jump," which is the title of the second two-part number of this new series, is especially thrilling. Helen Holmes, the heroine of these pictures, continues to do nerve-racking jumps from railroad trains, after pursuing the villains, safe-breakers, by-the-way, down the railway tracks aboard a locomotive. These safe-breakers had stolen survey plans from the safe of Helen's father, who also meets his death at the same time. The serial promises to be a good one.

A LIFE IN PERIL (Signal), Jan. 10.—Chapter 3 of "The Girl and the Game." In this number Helen Holmes and Leon Maloney provide fresh thrills. The girl ties a rope across the route of some blazing freight cars and rescues her lover from the top of one of them, a feat which leaves the observer gasping with astonishment. The story is considerably advanced in this instalment, Spike being released from prison by his confederate. The hidden papers are also in the latter's possession now. The photography is exceptionally good. Several freight cars are burned and blown up to lend realism to the main scenes.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE WORST OF FRIENDS (Keystone), Jan. 2.—A rather disconnected series of incidents designed to bring out whatever is amusing in the impersonations of Messrs. Weber and Fields. While not up to the Keystone standard, the farce will get many a laugh.

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 199 (Universal), Dec. 29.—A particularly strong number, containing numerous American scenes of interest, war views in Europe and pleasing animated drawings.

BLIND FURY (Laemmle), Jan. 9.—Leon D. Kent appears in this as a down-and-out barroom loafer, who tells the story of his wrecked career. The yarn is well-constructed but conventional and has a weak ending. Jack Livingston and Mina Jeffries also appear.

HIS RETURN (Rex), Jan. 11.—An absorbing story, written by Helen Brady, of a young married woman who craves a child. Her husband says children are too expensive. She becomes an artist's model, which brings on a quarrel. Later, when the child is born, the couple make up. The cast is pleasing and the story gets a good hold on the observer.

GERTIE'S BUSY DAY (L-KO), Jan. 12.—An exceptionally pleasing number. Gertrude Selby has indeed a busy time in the park, meeting Reggie, the tree sprayer, the ladylike cop, a hobo, an old gentleman and Fatty. The mixups that occur are genuinely funny and the photography is clear and pleasing. A good number.

THE RUBBER ROMPERS (Powers), Jan. 13.—This half-reel features a boy and girl contortionist, who perform some marvelous stunts. An exceptionally good vaudeville act.

LUMBER INDUSTRY IN SWEDEN (Powers), Jan. 13.—On same reel with above, some pleasing glimpses of the way big logs are handled in the Swedish forests.

FLIVER'S GOOD TURN (Nestor), Jan. 14.—Another rattling good knockabout number, featuring the English comedian, Chas. Evans. This is exceedingly funny in both plot and treatment. Fliver plays burglar to help his friend become a hero, with laughable results.

THE RING AND THE RAJAH (Victor), Jan. 14.—A good offering, written by Anne Merwin. It tells of an Indian prince who visits England and falls in love with an English girl. His servant, knowing of his master's hopeless love, puts poisons in a ring, which almost brings death to the girl. This is well-constructed and tells a good story.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 4 (Powers), Jan. 15.—This continues the scenes taken on board a big battleship, showing the jackies washing down the decks, polishing guns, loading, firing, signaling, swimming, dancing and in other pursuits. The views are well taken and give an intimate knowledge of naval life to the observer.

FLIRTING A LA CARTE (L-KO), Jan. 16.—A low comedy number, featuring Alice Howell, Fatty Voss and others. Two quarreling married couples get into some flirtations. The poker game is the best feature. A fair number.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

BILLY'S REFORMATION (L-KO), Jan. 9.—A two-reel number, featuring Billy Ritchie, Gene Rogers, Louise Orth and others. Billy's flirtations lead to trouble on a sleeping car, from which the occupants flee in night attire. There is so much vulgarity in this that it hurts the humor very much. Some of the scenes toward the close, on the roofs of the high buildings, are better, but the offering as a whole is difficult to commend.

THE TEXTILE TRUST AND TOM LARNIGAN (Universal Special), Jan. 10.—No. 5 of the "Graft" series. Harry D. Carey, playing the part of Bruce's brother, Tom, brings the textile trust to justice in this number. The scenes are laid at a cotton mill, where a strike is on. The action is swift and carries the interest well. The latter scenes work up to a climax of a stirring, melodramatic sort. Ayres, after the murder of his own son by mistake, is held for murder and thus another is missing from the original "Fifteen."

THE BOOB'S VICTORY (Gold Seal), Jan. 11.—A two-reel number, written by Robert Leonard, who plays the leading part, assisted by Ella Hall, Kingsley Benedict and others. Mr. Leonard's characterization of the boob is familiar to those who have followed his career on the screen. He is at his best in this part. The present number is not exceptional as to plot, but it is genuinely amusing all the way through. The boob wants to be a detective and succeeds in rounding up a bunch of crooks at a summer hotel, where he is employed as waiter. A good offering.

MAN AND MORALITY (Victor), Jan. 12.—A three-reel subject, by Louis Leon Hall. Harry C. Meyers, Rosemary Theby and the author play the leading roles. Miss Theby doubles in the part of Rose and the native girl in the Philippines. This is a problem plot in which a young man leaves the girl of his choice because she has had an affair in her earlier years. He goes to the Philippines, where a native girl wins her way into his affections. Later the first girl learns of his slothful, worthless life in the islands and comes to him. The native settings are good and the story, while not powerfully handled, holds the interest closely.

X-3 (Big U), Jan. 13.—A three-reel number, featuring Murdock MacQuarrie as a veteran detective who succeeds in rounding up a gang of counterfeiters. The action, while of an obvious nature, is at all times interesting. There are some sensational incidents in the last reel, and a rapid fire chase which proves quite exciting. Eddie Polo, Arthur Moon, M. K. Wilson and Edythe Sterling are also in the cast. The number is one of average strength.

HER DEFIANCE (Rex), Jan. 14.—A two-reel number, written by Harvey Gates. Cleo Madison is featured as a country girl living with her brother, who seeks to have her marry a wealthy old farmer of the vicinity. She falls in love with a city man. They are separated and later meet in the city, after her child is born. Her flight from the unwelcome marriage was a good feature. This is sincerely presented and contains considerable heart interest. The development is natural and convincing.

ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE (Bison), Jan. 15.—A three-reel number, featuring Oliver Fuller Golden, W. Gettinger and others. The settings suggest very forcibly the desert country along the Mexican border line where the story is located. The action of the first reel is conventional, but the latter two reels are wonderfully realistic in the vivid picture they give of the young engineer struggling to free himself from captivity in Mexico. The horseback riding is a memorable feature and the night photography is very good. The suspense in these two reels is also excellently maintained. This is much better than the average production of the type.

THE LITTLE MASCOT (Rex), Jan. 16.—A two-reel story of a running race with Baby Early, Elsie Albert, Chas. Cummings and Jack O'Brien in the cast. The little girl learns that the hero has been bound and placed in an old cabin on the eve of the race. She brings about his release and he wins the event. The photography is none too clear at times, but is acceptable. The story is conventional, but quite pleasing and comes to a good close.

V-L-S-E, Inc., Specials

THOU ART THE MAN (Vitagraph), Jan. 3.—A strong six-part drama dealing with characters connected with the Indian Civil Service. S. Rankin Drew plays the role of a man who almost dies of fever and is eventually saved, whereas his superior in office, the man responsible for his trouble, becomes a victim of the malady. Joseph Kilgour and Virginia Pearson give capital performances in a most effective picture.

World Film Corporation.

THE SENATOR (Equitable-Triumph), Dec. 27.—A distinctly pleasing story of Washington life, written by Sydney Rosenfeld and produced by the Triumph Film Corporation under the direction of Joseph A. Golden. Charles J. Ross gives an excellent performance in the part of Senator Rivers and is capably supported by Constance Molineux, Ben Graham, Joseph Burke and others. The picture includes views of noted places in and near Washington.

Miscellaneous Specials.

THE OTHER GIRL (Raver), January.—This subject, the initial production of the Raver Film Corporation, features James J. Corbett in a story in which the former champion is seen with the gloves on. The picture, which is reviewed in this issue, should have good drawing power by reason of the presence of Mr. Corbett and also on account of the appearance of William Muldoon.

FIGHTING FOR FRANCE (French Official War Films), January.—A series of views along the European battle front comprising five reels. These films are apparently an authentic and valuable series. Some excellent views of submarines afloat, submerging, porpoising, etc., comprise a part of the film. A full review of these war pictures will be found on another page of this issue.

COMING GAUMONT RELEASES.

The three Gaumont companies already at work filming Mutual Masterpictures, Editions de Luxe, have their plans well enough in hand to warrant an announcement of the first releases of these five-reel features on the Mutual program. The first one to be presented will be thrown upon the screen Jan. 24, when Miss Gertrude Robinson and Alexander Gaden make their debut as Gaumont stars in "As a Woman Sows," written by O. A. Nelson. Other five-reel productions are "The Idol of the Stage," starring Malcolm Williams; "The Drifter," starring Miss Lucille Taft and Alexander Gaden, and "His Wife's Double," starring Miss Marguerite Courtot.

The final Rialto Star Feature which Gaumont will release at the present time is Arthur Stringer's "The Secret Agent." This multiple-reel photodrama will be released Jan. 12. Robert T. Haines is the star.

The Casino Star Comedy of Jan. 9 is called "Alias Mr. Jones." It was written by S. A. Van Petten to fit "Budd" Ross, whose work as a star has been favorably commented upon by reviewers. The week following Mr. Ross will be seen in "Ham and Eggs," a Casino Star Comedy written for him by Harry Palmer, the cartoonist who animates "Keepin' Up With the Joneses" for the Mutual program.

Mr. Palmer's animated cartoon is part of a split reel with the scenic series, "See America First." Late in January this reel, which has been released each Tuesday, will be given to exhibitors Sunday instead. The first Sunday release is dated Jan. 23.

The Mutual Traveler is devoting two releases of "See America First" to Chicago, the first being of parks, drives and historic spots, the second of places which typify the commercial greatness of this country's second city. The release of Jan. 11, No. 18, is a series of views of Milwaukee. The week following the Mutual Traveler visits the Dells of Wisconsin.

PAVLOWA WORKING ON A SECOND SCRIPT.

Now that Anna Pavlowa has had her first experience in cinematography and has personally witnessed her debut in the silent drama with considerable satisfaction over her first effort, she has become so enthused that she is working on a Nippon love story in which her dancing will again be featured and which she proposes to complete before the end of the present theatrical season. She will go over the scenario with Lois Weber, her personal director of photoplays, and they will then put on an original production for the Universal, aiming to exceed even "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"THE FATE OF AMERICA" (Kalem).

A New York electrical expert, whose novel experiments have furnished material for several unusual effects in Kalem productions, notable among recent releases being "The Spy's Ruse," is responsible for the invention which furnishes some of the most startling scenes in "The Fate of America." This single-reel release, scheduled for January 28th, is the first of three episodes of the "Ventures of Marguerite," dealing with the timely theme of America's unpreparedness, and carrying the same characters throughout the three issues.

An "electrical gun" is the contribution of the expert mentioned to the action of the initial instalment. "The Wolf," the villain of the story, is an international crook, possessed with astounding power. His den is a weird spot, filled with marvelous contrivances for aiding his nefarious plans and foiling pursuit. The "electrical gun" when aimed like an ordinary revolver, fires a death-dealing electrical current at all in its range. "The Wolf" uses it first to smash a plaster bust to bits in order to terrify Fred Randall, Marguerite's admirer, and later when police raid his den, the electrical gun kills the first man who enters the room.

Scene from "The Fate of America" (Kalem).

Of course, no such miraculous affair has yet been perfected. For practical purposes it was necessary that the electrical gun be connected by wiring with the power, and that the player aiming it wear rubber gloves. Since, like lightning, the current would then strike the nearest conducting metal, it was necessary that the player in the part of the policeman have his shield conspicuously placed, while the scene was carefully laid out so that no other metal was closer to the "electrical gun." As it was, with all possible precautions taken, the player was felled by the shock and momentarily stunned.

"The Fate of America" also, by the way, gives photoplay audiences their first glimpse of Arthur Albertson since he was transferred from the Jacksonville company to that staging the "Ventures." Albertson is seen as Fred Randall, Marguerite's friend, who aids her when she becomes the prey of "The Wolf" through the fact that she has accidentally come into possession of a code book sought by "The Wolf" for a foreign power.

ANIMATED WEEKLY GETS WAR PICTURES.

Jack Cohn, editor of the Universal Animated Weekly, has received another shipment of war films. In this week's issue of the Animated are interesting scenes taken with the German army, showing Field Marshal von Hindenberg and sidelights on his life. The Serbians are pictured in an orderly retreat, while the English troops are shown en route. The traveling kitchen, which is very popular with the soldiers, is seen in operation; also the camp comedian imitating Billie Ritchie. French soldiers are passing hand grenades; there are views of trench life, of a band of German prisoners and officers quizzing a young captive. The Russian army contributes pictures of the hospital train and troops marching.

"MARTA OF THE JUNGLE" (Centaur).

Several thrilling realistic scenes of combats of humans with lions mark one of the interesting features of the Centaur Feature "Marta of the Jungles," released on the Mutual program January 13. The story, which is by Theodosia Harris and picturized in two reels, is laid in the veldts of Africa, carrying a wealth of beautiful color which, combined with the strength of the theme, makes the picture all the more interesting.

Scene from "Marta of the Jungle" (Centaur).

The play is interpreted by a well-chosen cast, headed by Margaret Gibson as Marta. Stephen Batty plays Dick Caulder, and Roy Watson is Sid Rolfe. The Bostock Animals appear in the animal scenes under the direction of Captain Jack Bonavita.

"THE UPSTART" (Metro).

"The Upstart," a five-part satirical comedy, the first of its kind ever produced by Metro, has just been completed at the Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., studio. It will be released on the Metro program January 24th. Marguerite Snow, the popular screen artist, is starred in this Metro feature picture, and George Le Scene from "The Upstart" (Rolfe).

Guere is featured. James Lackaye, the comedian, also has a prominent role. "The Upstart" is a picturization of the successful play of the same name by Thomas Barry, which enjoyed a run last season at the Maxine Elliott theater in New York City, and later on tour. The story of "The Upstart" deals with a young married man, who becomes fanatical on the subject of divorce.

"PIECES OF THE GAME" (Essanay).

Usually when a photoplay opens with a foolish young bridegroom inviting his best friend, who also loved the bride, to live with them, there is a triangle, the result of which any one with half an eye can foretell. Such is not the case, however, in "Pieces of the Game," a three-reel Essanay. It is refreshing to find a new angle in that it is the friend who saves the wife from temptation. It is during the friend's temporary absence from the home that a third man comes on the scene. A new acquaintance, he pays constant attention to the wife. She accepts his attentions because of her loneliness, her husband spending all his time in work. Through propinquity and the fascinating ways of villains he gradually ensnares her. Then the friend returns and sees the situation at a glance. He warns the husband, only to be doubted and win his scorn. Finally he learns that the two are planning to elope. His love for the girl leads him to go to the interloper and order him to keep away. When the girl learns that the man is so cowardly as to be frightened by a threat she turns from him in scorn. Repentant, she then turns to her husband and confesses. He realizes his own responsibility in the matter, resolves in the future to pay more attention to his wife, and asks forgiveness of his friend.

Scene from "Pieces of the Game" (Essanay).

"MAN AND HIS SOUL" (Metro).

"Man and His Soul," the big five-part Metro production in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are starred, is nearing completion, as far as interiors are concerned, at the Rolfe studio, where the Quality Pictures Corporation is temporarily installed. John W. Noble is directing this elaborate Metro photoplay, assisted by William "Bill" Bailey. The exteriors will be made in Florida.

The story of "Man and His Soul" is decidedly novel, and deals with the origin, development and importance of Conscience.

Scene from "Man and His Soul" (Quality).

Conscience is presumed to be the bond that links a man with his soul. In a wonderful allegory, the first scene shows the creation of the world. In a sandstorm that immediately follows, the birth of Conscience is seen. Next is shown the Garden of Eden, with Adam and Eve seeing each other for the first time. Conscience again appears and possesses them. The development of Conscience down through the ages, with many important historical events, is then presented.

When the story takes the form of present-day events Conscience is seen seated on top of a skyscraper in New York City, viewing the city and weeping because it seems void of conscience. The central figure of the story, essayed by Mr. Bushman, is then introduced. He is a man that puts aside his conscience that he might succeed in life. His every act is entirely void of conscience and things move along smoothly for him until a crisis comes in his life. He then realizes there can be no supreme happiness and that his soul is extremely lost, unless a man's conscience is clear. He takes on a new conscience and proceeds to right the wrongs he has committed in the past.

There are scores of elaborate scenes in this production, one of which shows a big factory destroyed by fire, in which more than one thousand persons appear.

CONSTANCE COLLIER IN NEXT MOROSCO RELEASE.

In the next offering to Paramount patrons, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company presents Constance Collier for the first time in films. A fitting vehicle has been provided Miss Collier in "The Tongues of Men," taken from the stage success of the same name, which was presented for the first time in New York in October 1913, with Henrietta Crosman in the leading role. The original play met with the instantaneous approval of metropolitan theatergoers and duplicated this success throughout the entire country.

Supporting Constance Collier, Oliver Morosco has selected another notable cast headed by Forrest Stanley, as Rev. Pen-field Sturgis, who denounces from the pulpit the grand opera "Zaporah" and its prima donna, notwithstanding the fact that he has never witnessed the performance. Other important roles are entrusted to such artists as Herbert Standing, Lamar Johnstone, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Helen Eddy, the newest "find in filmdom," and Elizabeth Burbridge. Frank Lloyd, whose remarkable direction of "The Gentleman from Indiana" has brought him to the fore, staged the latest Morosco offering, the camera-work having been handled by that expert, Fred Dobson. "The Tongues of Men" will be released on the Paramount Program January 6.

Scene from "The Tongues of Men" (Morosco).

NEW FEATURE EXCHANGE FOR BOSTON.

The All Feature Booking Agency, which controls the state rights for a number of Griffith productions and has been booking them direct to Greater New York and New England theaters from its New York office in the Masonic Building, has just opened an office in Boston, at 53 Church street, to take care of the New England territory.

In addition to the Griffith features, which include "The Escape," "The Avenging Conscience," "The Battle of the Sexes" and six other subjects, with casts which include the same players appearing in "The Birth of a Nation," the All Feature Booking Agency will book four five-reel Pawnee Bill features produced on Major Gordon W. Lillie's buffalo ranch in Oklahoma, and also the new Sarah Bernhardt features, showing the famous actress in private life at her summer palace on Belle Isle, Brittany, entitled "Sarah Bernhardt at Home," and "Right Off the Bat," in five parts.

Harry K. Brin, formerly manager of the Continental Exchange of Seattle, and recently manager of the All Feature's New York office, will have charge of the new Boston exchange, assisted by Harry Jewell, well known in Boston film circles.

ASSOCIATED LOSES FOUR REELS.

The Associated Film Sales Corporation wishes to announce that four reels have mysteriously disappeared from its office: "The Woman He Married," two reels; "Beyond the Trail," one reel; "Fatty's Nightmare," one reel. A liberal reward will be given for their return or for information leading to the apprehension of the guilty parties.

DOROTHY DONNELLY IN PATHE'S "MADAME X."

Dorothy Donnelly, the star of the great Henry W. Savage production of "Madame X," now on the Pathe Gold Rooster Program, is easily one of the very best emotional actresses of the day. She is the daughter of Thomas Lash Donnelly, for many years lessee and manager of the Grand Opera House in New York, which city was her birth place. She made her first appearance upon the stage in the stock company of her brother, Henry V. Donnelly, at the Murray Hill theater, and remained there for three years, working up from small parts to leading business. In 1902 she supported Robert Edeson in "Soldiers of Fortune." Engagements in "Candida," "A Man of Destiny" and "The Lion and the Mouse" followed.

Scene From "Madame X" (Pathe)

When Henry W. Savage put on Brisson's great play, "Madame X," she was selected for the leading role, and no better choice could have been made. The success of the production is a part of theatrical history, and it holds the records for length of run and receipts. For seven years it ran to big business, and is still a name to conjure with. Miss Donnelly's art was of material importance in the success of the production. When the play came to be filmed no other person could be considered for the title role save her. In the picture as well as on the stage her splendid emotional talents put her part over with telling power.

THEODORE ROBERTS IN "PUDD'NHEAD WILSON."

Announcement has been made by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company that the first of a series of picturizations of Mark Twain's works to be produced by the company will be "Pudd'nhead Wilson," with Theodore Roberts as the star, which will be released January 31st, on the Paramount Program.

Unusual interest is attached to this picturization of the Mark Twain masterpiece, since it is the first of the author's works to be made into photoplay form by the Lasky company. Arrangements were completed recently by Samuel Goldfish, in behalf of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, and the Mark Twain Company, by the terms of which the exclusive right to all the famous American humorist's works was obtained by the Lasky company. "Pudd'nhead Wilson" will be followed by "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and many others.

Scene from "Pudd'nhead Wilson" (Lasky).

The production is one of especial elaborateness. Margaret Turnbull made the photoplay version from the book and Frank Reicher, who produced "The Secret Orchard" and other photoplays for the Lasky company, directed the production. Among those who will appear in support of Mr. Roberts in "Pudd'nhead Wilson" are Thomas Meighan, Florence Dagmar and Alan Hale.

"THE GODS OF FATE" (Lubin).

"The Gods of Fate," a multiple reel Lubin feature by Daniel Carson Goodman, is an epic of labor and deals with the struggles of a man against overwhelming odds. Richard Buhler and Rosetta Brice, who played the leading parts in "A Man's Making," will be seen in the leading roles. Francis Joyner and a competent cast will add materially to the success of the picture.

Director Jack Pratt is producing "The Gods of Fate" and is incorporating new and novel effects in this picture that promise to overshadow any of his previous efforts. "The Gods of Fate" embodies a powerful love story, together with a series of thrilling incidents that deal with the sterner side of life, the whole, making an intensely interesting and appealing subject. "The Gods of Fate" will be released on the V-L-S-E program early in January, and it is the opinion of those concerned in its production that it will exceed in popularity any of the Feature pictures thus far released by the Lubin Company.

"NO SIR-EE BOB!" (Selig).

"No Sir-ee Bob!" is a Selig rural comedy in the "Chronicles of Bloom Center" series, written by Maibelle Heikes Justice, and to be released through General Film service on January 15.

Ezra Pash receives a lot of Civil War relics, which belonged to his father. When he hears a real war veteran rehearsing war stories, he goes the vet one better and tells of his own wonderful deeds in the conflict. Urged to apply for pension papers, Pash does so. A stranger arrives in Bloom Center and signs his name "Dobbs." During an athletic meet, Pash, forgetting that he is a pseudo war veteran, knocks down Dobbs in a boxing contest. Constable Plum arrests Dobbs for fighting a poor war veteran. Upon his release, Dobbs leaves town, and a few days later Pash receives a letter which reads: "Do you get the pension? No Sir-ee Bob." The letter is signed, "Chester Dobbs, Chief Investigator." Pash is then left alone to mourn the fact that he failed to put one over on the government. This comedy is full of giggles from start to finish and all the Bloom Center types disport in many and varied ventures. The scenic effects are also excellent.

Scene from "No Sir-ee Bob" (Selig).

MITTENTHAL COMEDY AT THE STRAND.

The Strand Theater in New York City is running Mittenthal's Starlight comedy alliteratively titled "Deep-Dyed Dubs" all this week. "Deep-Dyed Dubs" is a Pathe release. The inimitable goateed gentlemen Heinie and Louie, featured in this brand of comedy, give a very creditable performance as two would-be swindlers and the fun commences when Heinie is given a coat of liquid black in order to resemble a very valuable "Black Statue" which a very wealthy woman is to purchase. But as he stands on a pedestal grimly holding his shield and spear, his powers of control prove to be nil under a shower of feminine caresses and thereafter his actions are hilariously human. The number of laughs which greet the comical activities of the featured two at each showing of the picture at the Strand proves conclusively that these two comedians have the fun-making qualities necessary to the successful running of a picture at the Strand, whose audience is polyglot and recruited from all classes.

CLYDE FITCH'S MASTERPIECE, "THE CITY."

"The City," universally acclaimed at the time of its production as the greatest play written by the late Clyde Fitch, master dramatist of America, has been put on the screen and will be released by the World Film Corporation early in January. There is no reason to believe that the play has lost anything by its transference to the screen. On the contrary, the film version is expected to prove even more a sensation than the original play. The story is maintained intact, with the addition of scenes of an elaborate character. Thurlow Bergen, known throughout the United States as a Broadway and stock star, will be seen in the principal role associated with a company of carefully selected photoplay favorites.

Scene from "The City" (World Film).

This is the first film presentation of a Clyde Fitch play. The brilliant dramatist died just prior to "The City's" opening night in New York. His last work brought forth glowing commendation, not only from the press of the nation, but from great leaders in all phases of public life.

"IN STRANGE ATTIRE" (Pathe).

The fourth and latest chapter of Pathe's "The Red Circle," called "In Strange Attire," will be released January 8. The scenarios for this continued photoplay are original and were written especially for the screen by Will M. Ritchey. The leading feminine part, that of June Travis, who has inherited a tendency to commit crime and is branded by a red circle birthmark on the back of her hand, is played by Ruth Roland. The red circle nemesis, one Detective Lamar, is played by Frank Mayo.

In "In Strange Attire," June Travis, in order to secure an incriminating coat from the police, dons male attire. At the police station she poses as a dumb tailor, sent by Lamar to identify the coat. Asking to take the coat to "his" establishment, accompanied by an officer, she soon loses him by a clever ruse.

Scene from "The Red Circle" (Pathe).

Climbing up a trellis to enter her room by the window, and so avoid her "mother" and Mary, she is seen by the butler, who notifies Mrs. Travis and Mary. The officer reports that the dumb tailor who got away with the coat had a red circle on the back of "his" hand. Lamar now has two red circles to hunt for.

"THE SHE DEVIL" (Reliance).

A play of exceptional emotional sweep has been filmed in "The She Devil," a Reliance three-part production, starring Gladys Brockwell in the title role. The scenes are laid in New York and in Paris, unfolding incidents which mould the career of a young American artist, in whose life two women play directly opposed parts. "The She Devil," Mina, is a Parisian gypsy girl of compelling charm. Bernice, Albert Alwain's American fiancee, on the other hand, is sensitive, proud and gentle. The tortures which she undergoes through the machinations of the other woman are very realistically enacted by Constance Talmadge. At the same time the intensest dramatic work is done by Miss Brockwell, whose emotional range is superb.

Scene from "The She Devil" (Reliance).

Marshall Neilan, famous as an actor and producer, has arrived at the Selig Pacific Coast studios and will immediately start work as producer of Selig comedies and dramas.

"JERRY IN THE MOVIES" (Cub).

A comedy that is sure to attract more than ordinary attention is the Cub release on the Mutual program for January 7 entitled "Jerry in the Movies," featuring George Ovey in the titular role. It gives theater patrons an interesting insight of the way motion pictures are made and at the same time unfolds a really humorous story that carries more than its full quota of laughs.

Jerry is fascinated by a movie actor and decides that he, too, shall become an actor. He has visions of attaining great popularity and wealth. He gets a job at one of the studios to enact the part of a policeman. Jerry thinks he's doing great work, but the director has quite a different opinion, since the amateur policeman has demolished pretty nearly all of the scenery in the place, ruining several hundred feet of film, demoralized the company and made things generally exciting for those about him.

Scene from "Jerry in the Movies" (Cub).

The popular Cub stock company including, besides Ovey, George George, Jefferson Osborne, Louis FitzRoy, Arthur Jackson, Belle Bellett, Janet Sully and Louise Horner, plays this release, which is directed by Milton Fahrney.

"THE MAKING OF FULTON."

The American Bioscope Company has just completed a three-reel drama, featuring Fred Fulton, the Rochester, Minn., Giant, who is matched to meet Jess Willard for the world's heavyweight championship, at New Orleans, March 4.

Mr. Fulton has enjoyed a spectacular rise in the pugilistic world and has adapted himself readily to the part assigned him, which is based on actual incidents of his life.

Mr. Fulton is 24 years old and is one of the solid citizens of Rochester, Minn., where he has a beautiful home.

Scene from "The Making of Fulton" (Am. Bio.).

Like all celebrated people, Mr. Fulton has a fad and during the summer months spends his time in his own garden, of which he is justly proud.

"HER DEBT OF HONOR" (Metro).

It has been definitely decided to name Director William Nigh's new Metro feature picture, "Her Debt of Honor," which is now within a few scenes of completion at the studios of the Columbia Pictures Corporation, No. 3 West Sixty-first street, New York City. Mr. Nigh not only wrote the five-part feature, but for the first time since joining the Metro forces he is playing a prominent role in it. Before becoming a director Mr. Nigh was starred in feature pictures produced by the Old Majestic company in California. He graduated into motion pictures after a successful career in musical comedy. He was also a successful playwright, having written "Off the Road" and other well-known plays and musical comedies.

Valli Valli is starred in "Her Debt of Honor," and William Davidson, who was seen in a prominent role with Lionel Barrymore, in "A Yellow Streak," has the leading heavy role. Many of the scenes are laid in the picturesque West, where Mr. Nigh knows every inch of the ground. Mr. Nigh came into immediate fame with the presentation of his first feature production, "Salomy Jane," which he made in the redwoods of California, in the heart of the Bret Harte country.

"THE BUBBLES IN THE GLASS" (Thanhouser).

Not a preachment, but an eloquest warning against extravagance and a cowardly attitude toward life, is the deeply affecting Than-o-play three-part feature, "The Bubbles in the Glass," the prettiest scenes in which emanate from a bottle of champagne. This three-act drama is released on the regular Mutual program, Jan. 4. Harris Gordon is excellent in the role of the disconsolate young man who has failed in the financial world, and who has yet to learn the saving power of love.

Scene from "The Bubbles in the Glass" (Thanhouser).

Mutual Ones and Twos

A Fine Line of Program Thrillers and Fillers of First Two Weeks of January.

WHILE the announcements of the spectacular enlargement of the feature output of the Mutual Film Corporation into weekly releases of three five-reel Masterpictures, Edition De Luxe, and three three-reel photoplays, has been occupying the attention of the motion picture world, the production of shorter pictures of feature quality has gone steadily on. The first two weeks in January will see the appearance of some of the most excellent short story picture film in the field.

As a New Year's feature on Saturday, Jan. 1, the one one-reel release is a "Beauty" comedy drama, produced by the American Company and featuring Lucille Ward and William Carroll, "Settled Out of Court."

"The Law of Success," a two-part picture play, produced by the Reliance Company, is the drama release of Sunday, Jan. 2. In its particularly well chosen cast are Olga Gray, Charles West, William Lowery and Harry Moody.

Cissy Fitzgerald, the comedienne of the Casino Star Comedy release of the same day, "Leave It To Cissy," gives to the public another comedy interpretation in her own inimitable manner.

There are thirteen one and two-reel releases scheduled for release the week of Jan. 3 and fourteen similar short story releases for the week of Jan. 10. These include the Tuesday split-reel scenic and animated cartoon, "See America First" and Keeping Up With the Joneses," and the Thursday current news reel, "Mutual Weekly" Nos. 53 and 54.

Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh will be seen in "Matching Dreams," a two-part American comedy drama, on Monday, Jan. 3. As the title suggests, the plot of the picture story is artistic and whimsical.

The two comedy releases of the same date include "The Optimistic Oriental Occults," a Falstaff funny picture in which Riley Chamberlain and Frances Keyes, veteran comedians, play the leads, and the second of the Vogue Company's output, "An Innocent Crook."

On Tuesday, Jan. 4, "Billy Van Deusen's Shadow," one-reel Beauty comedy featuring Carol Halloway and John Stepling, shares the honors for single reelers with the Gaumont scenic and animated cartoon before mentioned.

The next two-part drama comes on Thursday, Jan. 6, in "The Homesteader," produced at David Horsley's studios, a thrilling picturization of the life of a young school teacher in the west. Margaret Gibson, the intrepid actress of the Horsley contingent, plays the lead and is supported by John Oaker, Roy Watson and Jane Keckley.

"Hilda's Husky Helper," a Falstaff comedy, featuring Louise Emerald Bates and Claude Cooper, and Mutual Weekly No. 53 are the remaining Jan. 6 releases.

Friday, Jan. 7, is favored with two remarkable dramas of real artistic merit, including "The Hills of Glory," a two-reel Mustang photoplay, which draws a contrast between the superficial atmosphere of an eastern metropolis and the glorious freedom of southern mountains. E. Forrest Taylor essays a new type of role in this drama.

"Time and Tide," the second release of that day, is a humorous "American" drama in which father is lured away to an island by the two young culprits (Alfred Vosburgh and Nell Frenzen), and there left to the mercies of time and tide while they rush to secure the services of the parson.

"Jerry in the Movies" is the "Cub" comedy release of Jan. 7. In it George Ovey surpasses himself in humor. It is one of the best of these funny pictures shown.

"To Be or Not To Be," a Beauty comedy featuring Orral Humphrey and Mary Talbott, the popular American Players, and "Alias Mr. Jones," a Casino Star Comedy, headed by Budd Ross, will appear Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 8 and 9.

There are four dramas scheduled for the week of Jan. 10, any of which is founded on as carefully chosen a theme and is handled in the same masterly manner which characterize the Mutual's most pretentious features. "Viviana," a picturization of the emptiness of the "bright lights" and the satisfaction that comes with a life of doing good, is illustrated in the picturization of this story of a wealthy young clubman and a poor girl. Vivian Rich, George Periolat, Leslie Reed, Silvia Ashton and Marion Christie appear in this picture directed by Reaves Eason. It will be released on Monday, Jan. 10.

"Marta of the Jungles," a Centaur two-part drama, is a presentation of the life of diamond "fences," or men who smuggle diamonds, and is an excellent portrayal of African jungle life. This Horsley picture, featuring Margaret Gibson, will be released Jan. 13. Harold Lockwood, the American favorite, plays the lead in two American photodramas of this week. "The Secret Wire," a particularly strong two-part drama of a giant telephone system, which will appear Jan. 14, is one of them. In the support of the star are May Allison, Harry Von Meter and William Stowell. "The Gamble," a story of the virile West, also features Mr. Lockwood, supported by the same cast.

The week's comedies are as follows: "Belinda's Bridal Breakfast," Falstaff, featuring the Thanhouser players Gilroy and Bert Delaney, and a Vogue comedy, yet untitled, on Jan. 10; "The First Quarrel," an amusing situation all fixed up by uncle, and featuring the "Beauty" stars, Carol Holloway and John Sheehan, Jan. 11; a second untitled Vogue comedy on Jan. 12; a Falstaff brand comedy, "Reforming Rubbering Rosie," featuring Arthur Cunningham and George Mack, on Jan. 13; "Spider Barlow Meets Competition," a crook comedy from the American studios, with Winnifred Greenwood and Ed. Coxen in the leading roles, and "Jerry in Mexico," another George Ovey "Cub" release, on Jan. 14; "Getting In Wrong," a "Beauty" comedy with Neva Gerber and William Carroll, on Jan. 15, and "Ham and Eggs," a Casino star comedy featuring Budd Ross, on Jan. 16.

NOTES OF THE TRADE

EDWARD JOSE, who won his spurs by those fine Gold Rooster Plays, "The Beloved Vagabond," "The Closing Net" and "Nedra," has been given "The Iron Claw," Pathe's next serial, with a cast composed of Pearl White, Creighton Hale and Sheldon Lewis, who gained much public favor as a result of the "Elaine" serials. Mr. Jose will personally supervise "The Iron Claw," with Carrol Fleming as his director.

* * *

Carter De Haven is making the final scenes in his production of a five reel feature at Universal City. The story was written by Olga Printzlau and in it De Haven and his wife, Flora Parker De Haven, play the leading roles opposite each other. The story is entitled, "The Wrong Door."

* * *

William Robert Daly is at work a' the Selig Jungle-Zoo on an exciting melodrama entitled "Badgered."

* * *

Frances Nelson is rapidly approaching stardom under the World Flim flag. She is playing the leading role in the film version of "The Point of View," Jules Eckert Goodman's play, now in course of preparation, and will then be featured in a new picture. She is but nineteen years old.

* * *

"It Can Be Done," a strong Selig feature story dealing with "life back of the stage," is being completed at the Los Angeles studios. Jack Pickford and Fritzi Brunette appear together for the first time and are seen at their best. Edward Peil is admirably suited to the part of the theatrical manager.

* * *

With their five reel feature, "Love Thine Enemy," completed, Joseph DeGrasse and his company of Rex-Universal players begin the production of another Ida May Park drama, this time a two-reeler entitled, "Her Scoop." No cast thus far has been announced.

* * *

Lumley Hare, the English leading man who has been seen in so many successful Broadway plays, is under contract with the World Film Corporation. His first appearance will be in support of Kitty Gordon in "As In a Looking Glass."

* * *

Leo Pierson has been transferred to Producer William Robert Daly at the Selig Zoo, and will act as assistant. Ernest Sherman is Daly's new camerman.

* * *

Horace Davey, director of the second Nestor company, has begun the production of a one reel comedy at Universal City entitled, "The Tale of Two Kids." Billie Rhodes, Neal Burns and Ray Gallagher play the principal roles.

* * *

Eric J. Hallgren has purchased the Suburban Theatre, at 24th and Ames avenue, Omaha, Neb.

* * *

"The Home Breakers" is the title of a one reel comedy which Allen Curtis is staging at Universal City. Max Asher, Gale Henry, William Franey and Lillian Peacock appear in the leading roles.

* * *

Ida Stanhope, one of the newest comers into the motion picture field, made her first screen appearance with Mary Pickford in "The Foundling." Then the Lubin Company secured her for one of their feature photoplays. Miss Stanhope will make her initial appearance under the Lubin banner, as Rita, the younger sister in "Souls in Bondage," in which Nance O'Neil is being starred. Miss Stanhope is remembered for her Original Gibson girl in the Prince of Pilsen.

* * *

Grace Cunard is at work on the production of a two reel drama entitled, "Born of the People." The story is one with an unusual and startling punch which is not to be announced until its release. Miss Cunard plays the leading role in this production with Jack Holt opposite, and Neil Hardin in the role of heavy.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

EUREKA, CAL.—C. W. Ebeling, of San Francisco, has taken over the Pastime theater.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Mozart theater at 730 Grand avenue has been leased by C. E. Brooks and re-named after the lessee.

Oakland, Cal.—A Werum plans to erect a moving picture theater on 35th avenue, with seating capacity of about 450 persons.

Oakland, Cal.—Extensive improvements have been made to the old Union theater on East 14th street.

Washington, D. C.—Rialto Amusement Company plans to erect two-story theater building; 132 by 153 feet; reinforced concrete foundation; brick-steel column walls; reinforced concrete floors; terra-cotta partitions; brick face for exterior finish; cost, approximately, $150,000.

Gainesville, Fla.—W. M. Clark, prominent exhibitor here, has purchased the Alamo theater.

Chicago, Ill.—R. Levine, 6359 South Green street, plans to erect a two-story theater and store building, 100 by 161 feet, to cost $100,000.

Frankfort, Ind.—The Royal theater, which was damaged by fire on November 12, has been repaired, re-decorated and the operating booth reconstructed.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A modern fireproof moving picture theater is being erected by Frank Green at the corner of Hoyt avenue and Laurie street. It will have seating capacity for 600 persons.

Kokomo, Ind.—The Ideal theater has been redecorated and renamed the Cort.

Mishawaka, Ind.—O. J. Lembrotte, of Crawfordsville, has leased the old post office building for five years and will convert it into a modern moving picture theater, with seating capacity for 500 persons.

South Bend, Ind.—A modern ventilating system has been installed in the Colonial theater.

Tell City, Ind.—William Metcalf has leased the opera house and will conduct it as a first-class moving picture theater.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Alfred J. and Milton Schloss, of Cincinnati, O., have leased the Orpheum theater.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Robert Chaney, who now operates the Majestic theater, will make improvements to the house.

Winchester, Ind.—John Day, of Muncie, has leased the Irvin theater and renamed it the Orpheum.

Casey, Ia.—The McMullen opera house has been leased to C. E. Fauerly.

Clinton, Ia.—The Hansen-Mitchell building has been converted into a modern moving picture theater.

Estherville, Ia.—Henry Graff plans to erect a two-story moving picture theater, 44 by 115 feet, to cost $50,000.

Tabor, Ia.—C. E. Thompson has disposed of his interest in the Glidden theater to Homer Boatright.

Glasgow, Ky.—The Dixie is the name of a new moving picture theater erected here. It has seating capacity for 400 persons.

London, Ky.—The Rex theater, formerly operated by James West, has been taken over by Bradley Stanifer.

New Orleans, La.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Rialto theater, located at the corner of Murat and Palmyra streets.

Westfield, Mass.—Goldstein Brothers plan to erect a two-story moving picture theater, to cost about $60,000.

Detroit, Mich.—Russell Realty Company are having plans prepared for a 1½-story moving picture theater, 90 by 90 feet.

Menominee, Mich.—The Grand theater has been thoroughly renovated.

Canby, Minn.—The Seymour Land Co., of Minneapolis, has purchased the Idle Hour theater, on North Main street.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Hanson Brothers plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 48 by 90 feet, to cost $12,000.

Omaha, Neb.—Harding & Goldberg, 1319 Douglas street, are having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, 66 by 132 feet, to cost $30,000.

Hampton Beach, N. H.—Harry A. Kirk, 23 Inwood street, Dorchester district, Boston, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, to cost $20,000.

Albany, N. Y.—The new Madison theater has been opened to the public. It has seating capacity of 1,000.

Binghamton, N. Y.—Hinder Bros., 30 Schiller street, plan to erect a two-story moving picture theater, 43 by 90 feet, to cost $7,000.

Binghamton, N. Y.—S. O. Lacy, Phelps building, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 63 by 136 feet, to cost $10,000.

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

Pine Tree News

New Portland Theater to Be Managed by James W. Greely—C. W. McKinnon to Succeed Him at the Greely Theater—Thomas McLaughlin to Conduct the Portland Theater—Other Notes from Maine.

By John P. Flannagan, Maine Correspondent of Moving Picture World, Bangor, Me.

WILL MANAGE NEW PORTLAND THEATER.

PORTLAND, ME.—James W. Greely, for some time manager of Greely's theater, in Portland, Me., has severed his connection with that house to become manager of the New Portland theater, succeeding Moxley Blumenberg, who is to become manager of the Portland branch of the Paramount Pictures corporation. Mr. Greely assumed his new position on Jan. 3. He has purchased an interest of one of the owners and becomes part owner as well as manager.

C. W. McKinnon, one of the members of the Greely Theater corporation, is to assume the management of Greely's theater. Mr. Greely, who is one of the most popular motion picture men in Maine, was the manager of Portland's first moving picture house, Dreamland.

NEWSPAPER MAN WILL RUN THE EMPIRE THEATER.

Thomas E. McLaughlin, formerly of the Boston Post, and until recently business manager of the Portland Daily Press, has accepted the position of manager of the Empire theater in Portland. Recently he was asked to meet at the Falmouth hotel a man who wanted to show him some novel ideas in the theatrical line, and unsuspectingly complied. He was led into the dining room, finding there to his utter astonishment a large number of friends seated around a banquet table with a place reserved for him and only awaiting his presence. At the conclusion of the exercises he was presented with a gold watch.

NEW BANGOR HOUSE.

Bangor is to have a winter garden in the new Morse building on Harlow street, adjacent to Kenduskeag stream, and it will open with moving pictures and other entertainments on New Year's eve. It is proposed to have a concert and military ball for the opening night. P. J. Murray, a theatrical man well known in this part of New England, will be the manager. Mr. Murray plans to afford the public pleasing novelties in the amusement line. The new hall will be known as Morse's Winter Garden.

The J. A. McConvilles Visit Portland.

Joseph A. McConville, of Dorchester, Mass., assistant manager of the Famous Players Film Company, of New England, the New England Paramount office, spent the holidays with relatives in Portland, accompanied by Mrs. McConville, who was Miss Mary Petty, of Portland, and their little son. Mr. McConville is well known in Portland, having been formerly connected with the Express-Advertiser staff and with the New Portland theater as manager.

New Year's Cameraderie in Maine.

New York's method of hilariously welcoming the New Year is becoming the vogue in Maine and the theaters are responsible. At the Bijou theater, Bangor, and Lewiston theaters, Lewiston, which, by the way, has been renamed the Union Square theater, the audiences threw aside the ordinary theatrical conventionalities and talked freely to others in the audience, throwing favors, making noise with noisemakers, etc.

A New Augusta Company.

Papers of incorporation have been filed by Gray & Williamson, of Augusta, to handle theater propositions. The authorized capital stock is $8,000, with nothing paid in, and the par value is $100. Directors are Ernest L. McLean, clerk; W. B. Williamson, treasurer; Frank S. Southard, E. M. Leavitt, Winthrop, president.

Late New Year's Show at the Mary Anderson.

The Mary Anderson theater arranged a late performance, starting at 10.30 in the evening, on New Year's Eve, in order to handle the crowds which wished to remain up to see the opening of the new year. Manager Lee Goldberg reports that he has made arrangements whereby he will add the new Unit Program of the General Film Company to the service which he now has, and shows will be changed three times a week instead of twice. The service now includes the Fox, Unit-General and V-L-S-E programs. The theater played to large crowds during the showing of the Universal feature "Graft."

Xmas Show at the Queen, Owensboro.

The Queen theater, of Owensboro, Mayor Hickman, and the Owensboro Rotary Club, recently entered a combine whereby a free moving picture show was given for the benefit of the poor children. Three hundred packages of candy were put up and each child was presented with a package of candy and an apple upon leaving the theater.

HORACE WAKEMAN JR. LEASES EASTERN HOUSE.

Los Angeles Manager Leaves Coast and Will Run House in Westport, Conn.

Horace S. Wakeman, well known to picture patrons and film men on the Pacific Coast, is now located in Connecticut, and finds it, at present, wintery. While a bit homestick for the sunshine of California, he nevertheless sees a bright outlook before him with the new Westport house, to be called the Fine Arts, which is to have a capacity of about seven hundred and is to be furnished with all the modern appointments. It has a fine site on State street and is in the path of great prosperity. Another thing that helps Manager Wakeman to get along without the Los Angeles warmth and brightness is that still he gets his copy of the Moving Picture World, and says "and that alone is worth living for, even in this bleak climate."

DADMUN CO. NOT AFFILIATED.

There has been reports that the Dadmun Company, with office and studio at 1 Washington street, Haymarket square, Boston, were affiliated with another picture making concern. We are in receipt of a letter from Leon Dadmun emphatically denying this. His company is not now and never has been connected with any other film maker. The Dadmun company makes a specialty of industrial pictures and commercial films and have produced publicity pictures for a goodly number of New England's foremost manufacturers.

NEW YORK MIDSTATE LETTER.

By E. O. Weinberg, Troy Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

E. F. Johnston, former roadman for the Pathe's Syracuse Exchange, is working at their New York City branch as solicitor.

Claud Sydney is in charge of the United Film Service with offices on Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

J. A. Koerpel, manager of the General Film Co.'s office at Albany, has been appointed to branch manager at Washington, D. C.

A. Bevan, formerly in charge of New Haven branch of General Film Co., is now manager of the Albany office.

Pathe has appointed V. H. Bendel as their representative in Vermont. Mr. Bendel makes his headquarters in Albany.

Mr. Wolf, formerly at the Rex film exchange, is special representative for the Mutual's Albany branch.

OBSERVE FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

By Jacob J. Kalter, Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEWARK, N. J.—Two of the pretties Newark playhouses observed their fourth anniversary simultaneously, beginning January 3. The two celebrators are the Criterion theater, Central and Ninth streets, and the Playhouse, Clinton and Farley avenues. The houses are both owned by the Essex Amusement Company, which consists of Mink Lindeman, Philip Bernstein and Herman Austerman. The program of the Criterion, as announced by Manager Bernstein to the WORLD correspondent, is as follows: Monday, "The Lamb," Triangle; Tuesday, "The Blindness of Devotion," Fox; Wednesday, "Her Triumph," Paramount; Thursday, "The Iron Strain," Triangle; Friday, "Gretna Green," Paramount; Saturday, "Barbara Frietche," Metro.

Manager Austerman of the Playhouse gave out the following program for his theater: Monday, "The Little Pal," Paramount; Tuesday, "The Gray Mask," World; Wednesday, "His Wife," Mutual; Thursday, "The Warning," Equitable; Friday, "The Blindness of Devotion," Fox; Saturday, "Chimmey Fadden," Paramount. Appropriate souvenirs were distributed. It will be noted from the above programs that still another local house has booked Triangle plays. The Criterion theater is thus the third Newark showhouse showing Triangle pictures.

A PIONEER NEWARKER.

Leo Singer, the present manager of the Royal Feature Film Exchange, at 288

Market street, Newark, is one of the pioneers of the film exchange business here. In 1909 he became associated with the Metropolitan Motion Picture company, and after a year's service with them he organized the Royal Film Exchange, at 286 Market street, which was later sold to the Universal.

Leo Singer.

In 1913 Singer started the Special Feature Film Exchange, at 288 Market street, and the same year received the exclusive agency for Pathe's features. He has recently discontinued Pathe and is now booking independently. This week he has secured exclusive New Jersey rights to Homer's "Odyssey," in five reels. He is making arrangements to secure other big features.

LYCEUM THEATER REOPENED.

The Lyceum theater, Main street, East Orange, N. J., reopened last Monday evening. First run photoplays and vaudeville compose the program. Five hundred boxes of chocolates were distributed to the first 500 women and children attending the opening performance.

PICTURES AT KREUGER'S.

John M. Lederer, manager of Kreuger's auditorium, one of the largest halls in Newark, announces that every Sunday evening hereafter moving pictures will be shown at his house. The feature at the opening night was Dante's "Inferno." The auditorium is located at Belmont avenue and Morton street, Newark.

NAT BARUCH IN TOWN.

Nat Baruch, formerly connected with the Dallas branch of Fox Film, visited Newark Thursday. Mr. Baruch will assist Henry Siegel in taking care of the Jersey territory of the Blue Bird Photo Play company.

"PEACE" FEATURE IN NEWARK.

Proctor's Park Place theater, which has changed to pictures, as announced in these columns last week, will show the Vitagraph feature, "The Battle Cry of Peace," beginning Jan. 3. This is the first showing of that production in this city. The Park Place theater is under the management of Raymond S. Sayre, who is assisted in his work by Charles Steine. The showhouse has been completely renovated and vastly improved.

A modern equipment, consisting of two Simplex 6A projection machines and a high power electric generator has been installed. The booth is in charge of William Totten, an experienced operator. The seating capacity of the house is 1,700. A seven-piece orchestra furnishes the music. In discussing the future plans Manager Sayre said: "The policy of this house will be to show extraordinary features. We will continue to exhibit such productions until the people of Newark show that they do not desire them."

W. W. ANDERSON WITH GENERAL

With the resignation of Edward Bizar, W. W. Anderson has been appointed manager of the Newark branch of the General Film, 16-18 Beaver street. Mr. Anderson comes from Chicago, where he acted as assistant to V. H. Hodupp, Chicago manager of Pathe, but now general manager of the Twenty-third street branch of the General Film Company. Many new additions and changes have been made since the arrival of Mr. Anderson.

NEW KEARNEY THEATER.

A moving picture theater seating 1,400 is being erected on Kearney avenue, Kearney, N. J., by Max Gold, of Paterson.

Philadelphia Matters

Failure of Philadelphia Moving Picture Supply Company Astonishes Local Exhibitors—Iris Theater Opens on Kensington and Allegany Avenues—Notes from Trenton, N. J.—Other Items.

Special to Moving Picture World, from Philadelphia News Service.

SUPPLY COMPANY FAILS.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Moving picture exhibitors in Philadelphia were recently very much surprised when acquainted with the fact that Harry Hirshfield, trading as the Philadelphia Moving Picture Supply Company, 1233 Vine street, had passed into bankruptcy. Mr. Hirshfield was well known to the local trade, having been in business for many years, and enjoyed the confidence of his customers. He was particularly successful with out of town exhibitors, installing his equipment in many of the theaters along the Jersey coast, notably so in Atlantic City, N. J. It is very doubtful if anyone realized the condition of Mr. Hirshfield's financial affairs, for the news of his failure was totally unexpected. He had the reputation of being a thorough gentleman at all times and maintained this standard even when business was breaking in the wrong direction. A public sale of the property will be conducted by Samuel T. Freeman & Co., well known auctioneers of 1519 Chestnut street.

IRIS THEATER OPENS.

The Iris theater, Kensington and Allegheny avenues, Philadelphia, was opened on Christmas Day under the management of the Kensington Amusement Company. Mr. Ronsger, who has been given the position of managing the theater, reports that business has been excellent during the several days which the theater has been open. This is a very pretty house and under the proper management should prove to be a success.

RECEIVER FOR TRENTON, N. J., PICTURE THEATER.

Application was recently made to Judge John Rellstab in the United States District Court at Trenton, N. J., for the appointment of a receiver for the St. Regis motion picture theater, located on East State street, near Montgomery street, Trenton. The request was not complied with, but the court issued an order to show cause, returnable on Jan. 3, why a receiver should not be appointed. The petitioners are James H. Morris, contractor, trading as W. J. & J. H. Morris; John T. Flanagan, Fred R. Parker, Payne and Scammell and the Newton A. K. Bugbee Co., headed by Republican State Chairman Bugbee. All complainants are of Trenton.

TRENTON OPERATORS ELECT.

At a recent meeting of the Moving Picture Machine Operators Local No. 359, Trenton, N. J., officers were elected for the new year, the results being as follows: Clark D. Vaughn, president; Thos. Wheaton, vice-president; J. Norris Dakim, recording and corresponding secretary; Frank A. Kueger, financial secretary and treasurer; William Sison, business manager, and Messrs. Manners, Griffith and Vaughn were chosen as delegates to the Central Labor Union. President Vaughn, Recording Secretary Dakin and Financial Secretary Krueger have held office since the organization of the union. It was decided at the meeting that the City Square and the B. & B. moving picture theaters be continued on the unfair list, as they have not granted the demands of the union men in establishing a wage scale and placing union operators.

New Forrest City House.

C. P. Lyden, well known moving picture exhibitor, recently opened a new house in Forrest City, Pa. The new theater is of the most modern design possible and is strictly sanitary and fireproof throughout. The equipment is of the very best, having been purchased from the Swaab Film Service, 1327 Vine street, Philadelphia.

Harry Carnahan Dies.

Harry Carnahan, connected with the advertising department of the Broadway theater, Broad street and Snyder avenue, Philadelphia, the home of good vaudeville and moving picture plays, died recently in the St. Agnes Hospital, after falling unconscious at 15th street and Washington avenue. Carnahan was thirty-eight years of age and resided at 934 North Eighth street. He was well known throughout local theatrical circles, having served on the publicity staffs of many theatrical enterprises.

Business Notes from Philadelphia District.

Title to the one-story brick moving picture theater located at 2011 and 2013 Frankford avenue, Philadelphia, has been conveyed by George B. McCracken to Andrew Convery for a consideration said to have been $21,600. It occupies a lot 36 by 120 feet and is assessed at $17,000.

The Philadelphia Booking Company was recently incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware for the purpose of conducting a general moving picture business. The new concern has been capitalized at $2,000, F. R. Hansell, of Philadelphia, and George Martin and S. C. Seymour, of Camden, N. J., being the principal incorporators.

Mr. Ciatolo, manager of the Savoy theater, Hazelton, Pa., was a recent visitor to Philadelphia, and while here visited the Calehuff Supply Company, where he purchased a Fort Wayne motor generator outfit and several 6A projection machines. Mr. Ciatolo is an energetic and progressive person and certainly offers the patrons of his house the best possible service. He announced that he has been very successful of recent date.

The Nation theater, of Bethlehem, Pa., has recently been equipped with some of the most modern devices obtainable. Several new projection machines have been installed and the character of pictures exhibited has been placed at a higher standard.

Word has been received from Chambersburg, Pa., that H. R. Weber has leased the Orpheum theater from Mr. Boyer and will take possession on the 16th of December. Mr. Weber has leased the theater with an option of purchasing the same from Charles W. Boyer, of Hagerstown, who obtained his house from the Franklin Guards Association in July of 1914. Manager Frank A. Shinabrook, who has been Mr. Boyer's local representative since taking possession, will continue on the Boyer staff and will go to Hagerstown.

Mr. Weber is a well-known figure in moving picture circles throughout the eastern part of Pennsylvania, having conducted theaters in Philadelphia and Chambersburg for many years. He announced that he intends making many improvements to his lately acquired property, including the installation of much new equipment.

J. Favini has opened a new theater in Jessup, Pa., and announces that he intends to exhibit first class feature films. He was a recent visitor to this city and while here paid a visit to the Swaab Film Service, 1327 Vine street, where he purchased considerable equipment, including 2 6B motor-drive machines.

Washington's Avenue Grand Theater Sold

Harry M. Crandall and Joseph P. Morgan Take Over Theater at 645 Pennsylvania Avenue—Will Form Part of Local Chain.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It has been officially announced that Harry M. Crandall, owner of Crandall's theater, at 9th and E streets, N. W., and operator of the Apollo theater, 624-634 H street, N. E., and Joseph P. Morgan, who conducts the Princess theater, at 1119 H street, N. E., have purchased the Avenue Grand theater property, at 645 Pennsylvania avenue, S. E., for a consideration of $55,000. The Harris Amusement Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., is the present lessee of the property and will continue as such until the spring of 1916. Messrs. Crandall and Morgan have not as yet decided on definite plans for the future, but it is believed that the house will be thoroughly remodeled and will form one of a chain of houses to be secured in various parts of the city, upon the relinquishment to them of the property by the present occupants.

PEACE FILM IN WASHINGTON.

Frank Spurrier Exhibits Picture Under Auspices of D. A. R.—Prominent Speakers.

Considerable attention was attracted to "The Battle Cry of Peace" when exhibited recently at the Continental Memorial Hall under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution, by Frank B. Spurrier, local manager for V-L-S-E. Between the reels prominent advocates of preparedness for the United States addressed the audience. Among the speakers were J. Stuart Blackton, who wrote the film story; Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York; Augustus P. Gardner, member of Congress from Massachusetts, and Rear Admiral Chester, U. S. N. Mrs. William C. Story, president-general of the D. A. R., presided.

In commenting upon the film, a local newspaper stated that "There was no forcing of thrills, tears or smiles last night. Every spectator in the big audience was wrought upon as the makers of the film intended he should be, and every spectator left the hall last night, following a brilliant reception to Mrs. Story, with but one resolve in his heart—to work, as Mrs. Story asked, for better national defense for the country."

The auditorium, said to be the largest in Washington, was filled to overflowing with Senators, Representatives, Cabinet officials, officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and others high up in official life, and it is said that the movement for greater preparedness received great momentum through this exhibition.

LOCAL METRO CHANGES.

There has been a change in the official line-up at the offices of the Metro Film Service Company, Inc., Ninth and D streets, N. W., brought about by the withdrawal from the corporation of O. J. Allenbaugh, formerly its president and manager. L. M. Day, the secretary and treasurer of the concern, becomes its president and manager, while J. Frank Brown retains his position as vice-president and sales manager. The new member of the company is Thomas E. Kountz, who has been elected secretary and will have full charge of all of the details of the office. Mr. Allenbaugh, it is said, has gone west to engage in another business.

PICTURES AND ALCOHOLISM.

Motion pictures were given an additional character of value in a paper read by Dr. Luis Lopez de Mesa, of Columbia, before the delegates to the Second Pan-American Scientific Congress now in session at the building of the Daughters of the American Revolution, for he said that photoplays are of great usefulness in suppressing the liquor habit. "When such diversions are easily accessible," he declared, "the use of alcohol becomes purely occasional." He gave it as his opinion that appreciable results have never been produced by police restrictions, or by medical, pedegogic, financial or commercial ones. Official restrictions, he declared, have simply raised taxes that accomplish nothing outside of increasing the public revenues.

GOLD ROOSTER EASELS.

Considerable favorable comment is to be heard concerning the very attractive easels now being put out by the Pathe Exchange for use in theater lobbies. These are highly embellished and in one of the upper corners is the "Gold Rooster Plays" seal in colors. At the side of this is a space for framing the picture of a star, beneath is the name of the star and the play in which he or she is appearing, while three additional places are left for the display of photographs illustrating scenes from the play. These can be purchased outright or secured on a rental basis.

LEO GARNER COMES BACK.

Leo Garner has been recalled to Washington, to assist Sidney B. Lust in the management of his business in this city. Mr. Lust is proprietor of the business here operated under the name of the United Film Service and is interested in a number of other ventures. George Powers will go on the road in place of Mr. Garner.

As Alan Bachrach Sees Conditions.

Alan Bachrach, who covers Virginia and North Carolina for V-L-S-E, returned to Washington for the holidays. He states that all through the coal fields region of West Virginia business is booming, but that throughout southwestern Virginia and in parts of North Carolina conditions have been exceptionally quiet during the month of December. He states that this is attributed by the exhibitors to the fact that everywhere the people started in early in their preparations for Christmas and motion pictures were for the time being forgotten. However, all look for a more prosperous business commencing with the new year.

C. O. Moss Took Short Holiday.

C. O. Moss, who covers the State of Virginia for Pathe, slipped away to Pittsburgh to spend Christmas day with relatives and friends in that city. On his return he came to Washington, spending a few days in the local office and is now again traveling through his territory.

Fox Representative Here.

R. E. Reddick and Nat Barach, special representatives of the Fox Film Corporation, have come to Washington from New York for the purpose of making a trip through this territory.

Interesting Property Transfer.

It is reported that the District Amusement Company has recently transferred to Ida B. O'Neil the ownership of the property at 419-421 9th street, N. E., occupied in part by the Washington Film Exchange (Universal), and it is understood that the consideration was in the neighborhood of $65,500. The property has a frontage of 35 feet on 9th street and a depth of 100 feet. There has been considerable speculation as to the plans of the new owner with regard to the use of the property and it has been rumored that it is to be used as an entrance to a new theater said to be projected for erection on 8th street. This has not been confirmed. This property adjoins the Garden theater on the south side. The property on the north side was recently purchased by Tom Moore of the Garden theater.

J. W. Hunter to Build in Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Is Having Plans Made for a New House on Site of His Doris Theater—Will Have Seating Capacity of About 700 Persons.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—J. W. Hunter, of the Doris theater, in Wilkinsburg, Pa., is having plans prepared for the erection of a handsome new moving picture theater on the site of his present house, 827 Wood street, a lot measuring 25x132 feet. The new plans call for a one-story building costing $10,000. Including a balcony which is to be in the new theater, the seating capacity will reach nearly 700. The new theater will be modern in every respect.

The Doris theater was opened by Mr. Hunter four years ago and has always been a big success. Mr. Hunter, having been connected with the Joseph Horne Company, of Pittsburgh, in a managerial capacity for a number of years, the Doris has been in the charge of a manager. He resigned that position last week, however, and will hereafter devote his entire time to the personal management of his new theater.

SHILOH THEATER REOPENS.

The Shiloh theater on Mount Washington, Pittsburgh, Pa., was reopened last week after having been ordered closed four weeks ago by the building inspectors. Mr. Poke, the manager, was very fortunate in being granted an extension of time until April 1. At that time he expects to have his new house, which is now in course of erection on the lot adjoining the present house, completed.

OPERATORS ELECT OFFICERS.

At a recent election of officers of the Moving Picture Operators' Union No. 171 the following members were elected: President, R. C. Freeman; vice-president, J. A. Rhodes; secretary, Joseph Dean; treasurer, H. Brooks, and business manager, R. C. Freeman, with offices at the Union headquarters, 127 Fourth avenue.

Hatch Buys Out a Buffalo Exchange.

The entire stock of films and office equipment of the Buffalo Feature Film Company of Buffalo, N. Y., was purchased by J. Frank Hatch of the Hatch Film Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., last week, when he made a visit to that city. The stock, which was immediately moved to Pittsburgh, and is now in the hands of the Pennsylvania censors, consist of about one hundred feature subjects, also many single reel comedies and dramas. Some of the features were shipped to Newark, N. J., where Mr. Hatch also conducts a film exchange. The feature subjects consist of three to seven reels and all are accompanied by a complete line of paper and photos.

Mr. Hatch spent Christmas at his mother's home in New York. He returned to the Steel City after the first of the year. He expects to remain here for about two months.

Bentleyville House Sold.

L. Mamani and W. T. Brown have leased the Grand Opera house at Bentleyville, Pa., and took charge of the house New Year's day. This house has a seating capacity of 400 persons, and has always been a paying proposition. Louis Farro, the former lessee of the Grand, is building a new moving picture theater in Bentleyville, with a seating capacity of 400, which will be completed in about a month. It will be a $10,000 structure and will be up-to-date in every respect.

J. J. Rome Managing Park View.

J. J. Rome is now running the Park View theater on Forward avenue, near Greenfield avenue, Pittsburgh. This theater was formerly conducted by Mr. Schultz. It has a seating capacity of 260 persons, is equipped with two Power's 6-A machines, one of which Mr. Rome has installed since he assumed control.

Robert McCreery Dies.

Robert McCreery, aged 78 years, died last Friday at his home in West Fairfield, Pa. He was the father-in-law of both Thomas Hollis and Harry C. Smith, the well-known supply men of Pittsburgh, and their place of business was closed last Monday, when the funeral took place.

Richard A. Rowland Here Over Xmas.

Richard A. Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation, and partner in the Rowland & Clark interests, was in Pittsburgh, his home town, over Christmas. He was accompanied by Mr. Rowland and a pleasant family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Clark on Christmas Day. The party arrived in Pittsburgh Saturday morning and left again for New York Monday night.

A. H. McClelland with New Film Corp.

A. H. McClelland, well known to the exhibitors of the Pittsburgh territory, is associated with the New Film Corporation in the capacity of road man. Mr. McClelland has numerous friends throughout the territory and there is no question but that he will bring in the business.

Pittsburgh Business Notes.

Messrs. Harry A. Lande and Max W. Herring, managers of the Quality Film company, of Pittsburgh, completed negotiations last week for handling the Associated program in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia. This service consists of two and three-reel dramas and single reel comedies and includes the productions of such well known companies as the Empire, Ramona, Santa Barbara, Alhambra, Federal, Alta, Banner, Deer and others.

Cincinnati May Have New House on Fountain Square

Col. Edward Hart Buys 28 Feet Frontage on Fountain Square Connecting Two Other Holdings—Makes 72-Foot Lot—May Build Theater.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Special Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CINCINNATI, O.—Reports of the probable construction on Fountain square of a large picture theater have been in circulation here for some time, but have heretofore been rather indefinite. Now, however, as the result of a deal announced last week, the project assumes definite form for the first time. Col. Edward Hart, of this city, has purchased 28 feet on the block on the north side of Fountain square which, added to holding of 30 feet to the east and 14 feet to the west of the lot just purchased, gives him a connected frontage of 72 feet on this, the most desirable block for many purposes in the city.

The value of the property may be gathered from the fact that the lease said to have been arranged by Col. Hart, to run until 1928, is based on a valuation of $9,000 a front foot. Leases on one or two stores on the property in question will run for a year and a half, and it is probable that nothing will be done toward the construction of a large theater until that time.

LUBIN THEATER SITE SOLD.

A real estate transaction involving the Lubin theater, at 140 West Fifth street, has been made, Rosenberg Bros., of Cincinnati, acquiring the property from James P. Orr last week at $115,000. The Lubin interests have the property leased for two years at $7,500 a year, with an option on it for another two wears at $10,000 a year, making the investment a good one for the Cincinnati firm. Dealings in property for the use of moving picture houses have been considerable in that particular block of Cincinnati lately, the recent extension of the consolidated leases on the property occupied by the Colonial theater and the sale of another piece to Charles Schaengold, the local film magnate, for $130,000, being cases in point.

Ben S. Cohen Visits.

A popular and prominent film visitor to Cincinnati last week was Ben S. Cohen, manager of the eastern central district of the World Film, who was here with Manager Clay E. Brehm, Cincinnati manager for the World interests, for several days. Mr. Cohen was much pleased with the arrangements for the exhibition of World films in local houses, and promised Manager Brehm and the interested exhibitors the early delivery of the big production of "Camille" by the World forces, featuring Clara Kimball Young.

W. C. Watson with Local Famous Players.

Robert O. Laws, manager of the Cincinnati branch of the Famous Players' service, has a new assistant in the person of W. C. Watson, formerly with the Pittsburgh offices of the company. He succeeds Paul Allison, who was recently elevated to the rank of manager, in charge of the Indianapolis office of the company.

Fire in Grand at Canton.

A fire which it is suspected may have been of incendiary origin destroyed the scenic equipment and stage of the Grand theater, at Canton, O., on the morning of Dec. 24, and it was only with considerable difficulty that the blaze was confined to the rear of the house. Manager L. B. Cool, who owns the house, and who also handles the Park theater, at Youngstown, Ohio, was at the latter place at the time of the fire, but immediately went to Canton and gave his personal attention to the making of the repairs necessary to enable the house to be opened on Christmas Day. This was successfully accomplished and large houses saw an excellent Christmas program at the Grand, in spite of the fire of the day before.

Mystery in Series of "Accidents."

A mysterious explosion which wrecked the Wallace theater, at Wooster, O., some days ago, has been the subject of an investigation by the Ohio fire marshal's office, the curiosity and suspicion of the department having been aroused by a series of fires in Wooster. The circumstance that the operator at the theater was shot the day after the fire, at first, it was thought, by accident, is also under investigation. The department has not yet reported any findings on the matter, but intends to look into it further after the operator recovers from his wound.

Fine New House at Delaware, O.

The handsome theater in Delaware, O., is now under construction, in charge of Fred W. Elliott, architect, of Columbus, O. The building will measure about 60 to 104 feet, with a stage 18 by 43 feet, and will cost about $25,000. The seating capacity will take care of a thousand people. It is expected that the house will be finished by April 1.

News Film Shipped Direct.

Arrangements for unusually rapid service of the Pathe News to the Majestic theater, of Dayton, operated by Gerber & Haas, have been perfected, Manager C. C. Holah of the Pathe exchange lending his aid to facilitate matters. The result is that the big Dayton house will get the news service in a manner which will resemble the way a newspaper gets stuff. Mr. Holah arranged with the Pathe organization to ship the News film each week direct to the Majestic, without passing through the Cincinnati office at all. This will enable the films released in New York on Wednesday to be shown in Dayton on Friday and Saturday, while the Saturday releases will be seen in Dayton on Monday and Tuesday.

ATLANTA NEWS LETTER.

By A. M. Beatty, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ATLANTA, GA.—A majority of the Atlanta theaters were open last Sunday; the contributions received at the doors going to help the fund being raised by Atlanta for the support of the Atlanta Child's Home.

E. Hughes, who has been manager of the Atlanta office of the General Film Company, has returned to New York headquarters. Joe Marientitte is managing the local office of the General.

Audrey Munson, in "Inspiration," has been shown four times at the Savoy theater. Tuesday, notwithstanding a heavy rain fell all days, "Inspiration" packed the Savoy again to the doors.

The Lyric theater has again opened its doors to moving pictures and "The Melting Pot" is the picture for four days. The management announces the policy of the Lyric will be to show only the greatest and most beautiful pictures. Daily matinees will be given from 2 to 6.30, with evening shows from 7.30 to 10, the prices are to be 20, 10 and 5 cents.

"Damaged Goods" is being shown the entire week at the Georgian. The picture passed the censor board of Atlanta, and the theater is crowded.

Exhibitors over Georgia and the Carolinas report to the exchangemen great business during holiday week.

Sunday Shows Go Well

Chattanooga Theaters Give Sabbath Benefit Shows to Help Local Branch of Jewish Relief Committee—Large Crowds Attend at All Houses—Considered as Indication That Sunday Shows Are Popular.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Chattanooga Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—The popularity of Sunday moving picture shows was demonstrated in Chattanooga on Sunday, December 12, and again on Sunday, December 19, by the crowds which filled five of the theaters open for the benefit of the suffering Jews in the war zone. The theaters were the Alcazar, Picto, Strand, Royal and Grand. Julius J. Cohn, secretary of the local branch of the American Jewish Relief Committee, and chairman in charge of the committee operating the picture shows, stated that the proceeds from the shows had been greatly in excess of the amount expected, notwithstanding the bad weather experienced. These shows have demonstrated to the exhibitors' satisfaction that the people of Chattanooga are in favor of Sunday shows, and it is hoped that the exhibitors will receive a favorable verdict in connection with the test case which is now before the supreme court.

THE ADDRESS IMPORTANT.

The Strand theater, in Chattanooga, in advertising its programs, gives the location of the house directly under the name of the theater. This idea is an excellent one for handling transient trade. Visitors in a city can often find their way around if they have an idea of the address of a theater, but to take for granted that everyone knows where a theater is located does not consider in the traveling element. The average person, rather than ask the address of a particular theater will drop into the first one he sees.

CHATTANOOGA OPERATORS ELECT.

The Chattanooga Moving Picture Operators' Union recently met and elected officers to serve during the ensuing year. These officers are: President, Elbert Lowry; vice-president, Edw. Healy; financial secretary, Roy Hipp; recording and corresponding secretary, R. H. Johnson; business representative, A. C. Kamin; C. L. U. delegates—R. H. Johnson, Elbert Lowry, A. C. Kamin; trustees—R. H. Johnson, three years; Elbert Lowry, two years; delegate to Tennessee Federation of Labor, Roy Hipp.

New Theaters in Tennessee.

B. C. Butler, of Gainesboro, Tenn., has purchased equipment with which to establish a new picture theater which will have a seating capacity of 200. Other new developments out in the state include the opening of a new theater, seating 250 people, by W. D. Hill, at Dandridge, Tenn. At Coal Creek, Tenn., J. L. Davis is opening a new theater seating 400 people. A new theater seating 250 people is to be opened at Bluff City, Tenn., and Morristown, Tenn., will probably have a house seating 600 people before long. Ben Abbott, at Lafayette, Tenn., has also made arrangements to open a new theater.

Film Shows Pine Block Paving.

Under the auspices of the Southern Pine Association a moving picture was recently made at Chattanooga, Tenn., showing the operations necessary in handling wood block paving. This picture will be exhibited by the association in exploiting the use of pine blocks for paving, and will be shown before meetings of engineers, city officials, etc., at various parts of the country. The pictures taken show the work on market street.

"Eternal City" at the Lyric.

The Signal Amusement Co., of Chattanooga, Tenn., presented the Famous Players' production of "The Eternal City" on Dec. 28 to 29 at the Lyric theater and at advanced prices (twenty cents) during the showing. Miss Eloise Baylor sang "The Holy City" during the dream scene. Miss Baylor also sang "The Rosary" at the Friday and Saturday performances.

Stunt Advertises "The Raven."

The management of the Fifth Avenue theater, Nashville, Tenn., used a unique idea in handling publicity in connection with the recent showing of Henry B. Walthall in "The Raven." A cut showing a large raven sitting on the limb of a tree in the forest, and the moon peeping over the trees in the distance was used. Underneath the cut were the words:

"Quoth The Raven: "Never has there been such a fascinating and artistic screen interpretation as that given by Henry B. Walthall, in 'The Raven.'" The advertisement attracted much attention.

For Pickaninnies' Xmas.

Practically every theater of Nashville catering to the colored population arranged with the Negro Boosters' Club to give one-half of the receipts from the box office for two days to the club in order to provide Christmas presents for every negro child in the city. Special tickets were printed at the expense of the theater managers and distributed among the Boosters. All tickets sold outside of the box office and not turned in at the theaters represent a 100 per cent. donation to the cause, while such tickets as are turned in at the door will class the same as those sold at the box office. The colored patronage in Nashville is large.

Children's Shows in Nashville.

Through the efforts and endorsement of the Centennial Club of Nashville, special moving picture shows for children were started at the Parthenon theater on Saturday, December 18, and will be continued each week. The shows start at 10 o'clock in the morning, and continue until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the regular program is put on until 11 o'clock on Saturday night.

Princess at Memphis Gives "Good Fellows" Show.

The Princess theater of Memphis, Tenn., donated all proceeds between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 2 o'clock p. m., of Monday, December 20, to the Goodfellows' Club, an organization which annually collects funds to brighten Christmas for the poor. No tickets were sold, but a large brass jardiniere was placed at the door in which persons attending the shows placed coins. A special program was arranged for the day, and a large banner hung across the front of the building.

Chosen Notes of Interest.

At Springfield, Tenn., a deal has been closed between C. M. (Tip) Blackburn and J. W. Bell whereby Mr. Blackburn takes over the Bell theater, owned and operated by J. W. Bell. The house originally cost $7,000 and is new and commodious. Mr. Blackburn also owns the Royal, which he has been operating for several years, but is figuring on consolidating the two shows.

The Gay theater, Knoxville, has been showing the Triangle program since November 28, and has been doing nicely. An eight-piece orchestra has been engaged to play these pictures, this being the first time in the moving picture history of the city that an orchestra has accompanied pictures with music adapted to them.

The Crescent Amusement Co., of Nashville, Tenn., during the early part of December, advertised a special booklet of 24 tickets to be used as Christmas presents. These contained twenty-four five-cent tickets good for trips to twelve of the company's ten-cent houses, or twenty-four of the nickel shows. The five-cent houses include the Elite, Crescent, Rex and Alhambra. The ten-cent houses are the Fifth Avenue, Princess and Hippodrome. Holiday cards were enclosed with all books ordered sent by mail.

The Queen theater of Knoxville recently ran the last chapter of the well known series, "Neal of the Navy." This picture was an excellent drawing card, and showed results in the box office. During the week of December 6 the house showed all first run pictures, no return showings being made. During the following week Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of The D'Urbervilles," was shown as a return engagement of two days.

MORE PITTSBURGH ITEMS.

By Pittsburgh News Service.

G. W. Smith, the owner of the Smith theater in Hazelwood, Pittsburgh, Pa., who has had his old house torn down and a new one put up in its place, is adding a Smith orchestral organ to his equipment. The instrument is being installed this week, as the house is scheduled to be reopened in a few days.

Al. W. Cross, manager of the Hudson Feature Film Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., made a trip to New York last week and while there he concluded negotiaions for several big features, some of which he is not ready to announce. Two subjects, however, are ready for bookings, they are "How Molly Made Good," and "Thou Shalt Not Kill." Another attractive subject which Mr. Cross secured while away is "A Visit from St. Nicholas," a one-reel series of animated drawings by Frank A. Nankivell.

J. E. Michaels, of Michaels & Freeman, photoplay brokers at No. 1 Delray street, Pittsburgh, Pa., returned last Monday from a two weeks' trip to Wheeling and other parts of West Virginia. While in Wheeling, Mr. Michaels opened a temporary branch in the Athenian Amusement Company's office, with George Panos in charge.

VIRGINIA NEWS LETTER.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ALEXANDRIA, VA.—J. L. Sickles has opened the Savoy theater in Alexandria, Va., which is to be devoted entirely to a colored patronage.

C. E. Roane, of Hopewell, Va., who was one of the unfortunates who lost property in the recent conflagration which destroyed a large part of that place, reports he will shortly be back in the motion picture business as he contemplates the early opening of a new and permanent Family theater.

Peter Koek has recently opened a new house in Orange, Va., called the Palace theater.

Asheville, N. C.—R. J. Sparks, who has been manager of the motion picture interests of the S. A. Lynch enterprises in this city, has resigned his position and has gone to Jacksonville, Fla., to assume the management of the Arcade theater. Dan Michalove has succeeded him here.

Bluefields, W. Va.—Russel S. Wehler, owner and manager of the Rex theater in this place, has recently joined the ranks of the benedicts and is celebrating his return from his honeymoon by consulting plans which have just been prepared for him and which contemplate the increasing of the seating capacity of the Rex from four hundred or more to over seven hundred seats. This will be accomplished by making the house longer and by the erection of a balcony. Mr. Wehrle reports business as good. This is, of course, evidenced by the proposed improvements. An all feature program is used at this house.

IN LOUISVILLE.

A Managerial Change and an Engagement.

A change in managers has been made at the Olympic and Hippodrome theaters whereby Joe Goldberg, manager of the Olympic, has taken charge of the Hippodrome, and M. A. Jablow, manager of the latter theater, has taken charge of the Olympic. The engagement of Mr. Goldberg to Miss Forman, of Louisville, was recently announced.

RUSSELL McLEAN TO MANAGE CAPITAL THEATER.

Henry Reis, manager of the Ideal theater, of Louisville, one of the theaters operated by the Broadway Theaters enterprise, has returned from Frankfort, Ky., where he opened the Capital theater, which was recently leased by the Louisville company. Russell McLane, of Louisville, has been appointed manager of the Capital and has assumed his duties.

CASINO'S BIG FESTIVAL WEEK.

A big festival feature week was held at the Casino theater starting Jan. 3. During the entire week the program consisted of from six to eight reels in which six stars or more were seen daily. Among the film favorites were Mary Fuller, King Baggot, Hobart Bosworth, Francis X. Bushman, Charles Chaplin, Anita Stewart, Earl Williams, Warren Kerrigan and Leah Baird. Although the program was changed daily there were very few pictures shown which had been seen in Louisville previously. A number of them were two and three-reel subjects.

"NATION" FILM AT MACAULEY'S.

The management of Macauley's theater, Louisville, reports that it has booked "The Birth of a Nation" for two solid weeks at the playhouse, the engagement to start on Monday, Feb. 14. Prices to see this great production will be fifty cents to $2 per seat. While the photoplay has been seen in some of the smaller Kentucky cities and in some of the larger cities in the vicinity of Louisville, this will be its first showing in the city.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

KENTUCKY NOTES.

Announcement has been made at La Grange, Ky., to the effect that A. W. Vaughan has decided to sell out his moving picture equipment and get out of the business. Mr. Vaughan has been operating the house for several months.

Robert P. Hite has sold the Amusu theater in Conemaugh, Pa., to H. Stanley Pringle and W. W. Wyke. Mr. Wyke has been the manager of this theater for the past four years and will continue in that capacity.

The Quality Film Company at 404 Ferry street, Pittsburgh, Pa., has secured an extraordinary good line of holiday subjects, including the following: "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," "Sleeping Beauty," "Heart of a Princess," Baby Early in "Golden Locks and Three Bears" and others.

Louisville's Masonic Theater's Future Settled

R. V. McRae and M. A. McRae of Detroit Have Leased the House and Will Rename It the Masonic-Strand—McRae Brothers Newcomers.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Louisville Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—A rumor to the effect that Detroit interests were to lease the Masonic theater of Louisville for the purpose of starting a new moving picture theater has been confirmed by R. V. and M. A. McRae, of Detroit, who have leased the building, which is now being redecorated and put in shape for reopening as a high-class moving picture theater. The name of the theater has been changed to the Masonic Strand theater.

R. V. McRae reports that this is the first venture for himself and his brother in the moving picture industry, but that he has followed the exhibitors' and producers' movements for years, and is well acquainted with the ideas which are being used in the successful houses. The two McRaes will remain in Louisville, where they will give their personal attention to managing the theater. They are connected with the McRae-Roberts Co., of Detroit, which operates a news syndicate.

The new firm will feature a twenty-piece orchestra, which will play to the pictures. R. V. McRae, in an interview with the Louisville correspondent of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, stated that the firm had not made any arrangements for regular film service, and would not tie itself to any producing companies, but would secure a number of large available productions.

The theater will be operated as a 15 and 25-cent house, the lower floor being 25 cents. The gallery will not be used at present, but may be turned into a negro section. Artists are now busy redecorating the interior of the theater, which will be finished in French gray, gold and old rose, with costly rugs to match. Mr. McRae stated that he would be in the market for any high class material which is not tied up in Louisville at this time.

MAY BUILD COLORED HOUSE.

It is understood that articles of incorporation will be filed during the next few days by the People's Amusement Company, of Louisville, an organization which proposes to erect a colored moving picture theater on Walnut street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. It is understood that a theater seating over 900 people and costing between $15,000 and $20,000 will be erected. The proposed building is to be of brick, two stories at the front and one story at the rear, and is to occupy a lot 40x170 feet. The theater will be operated as a strictly 5-cent moving picture house. It is understood that the capital stock in the organization will be held by both colored and white people, about 50 per cent. of the capital being held by members of each race, while the management will be in the hands of white people. Walnut street is the main colored thoroughfare of the city, and it is estimated that there are at least 40,000 colored people centered on it at the point named. The Colored Knights of Pythias have done well with a new show house opened by the organization a few weeks ago. The Pythian house has a seating capacity of only about 350 people, but is filled well at all performances. This house is now showing features and has noted an increased interest in better pictures on the part of the colored people. A few years ago the race, it is said, would have paid no attention to anything but blood and thunder dramas or comedy.

LEXINGTON THEATER OPENS.

The Broadway Amusement Enterprise Company, of Louisville, opened the new Capital theater, of Lexington, Ky., on Monday, Dec. 20, with the Triangle program. The house is operated as a 5 and 10-cent theater, the first show being given at 7 o'clock each evening, and the house opening its doors at 6.30. A six-piece orchestra, under the direction of C. B. Riddle has been employed. Dustin Farnum, in "The Iron Strain," was the opening feature.

TOO MANY FREE TICKETS.

While the proper distribution of free moving picture tickets is undoubtedly a good thing in building up business, there is strong objection on the part of several of the exhibitors of Louisville to careless distribution. It is stated that one of the theaters operated practically a free show during the week of December 20 by distributing numerous free tickets, even distributing handbills which were good for admission at the house. Careless distribution of this kind, in the opinion of some of the exhibitors, will cheapen the standing of the industry, and act as a boomerang bound to hurt the moving picture business and especially the houses which promote this kind of movement.

Norman M. Dixon Visits.

Norman M. Dixon, former manager of the Mutual Film Louisville office, who is now with the Indianapolis office of the General Film Co., was in Louisville last week and closed contracts for service with the Parkland and Crystal theaters.

Louisville Personals.

The Colonial theater of Danville, Ky., which was recently closed so as not to conflict with revival services being held in the churches, has reopened for business.

A. B. Arnett, of Winchester, Ky., who recently purchased the Colonial, of that city, has about completed repairs and remodeling of the building, which has been freshly painted inside and out. The work interfered with showing pictures for several days, but the theater is again in operation.

Remodeled New Richmond House.

Charles Triebel, of New Richmond, O., who recently purchased the Pastime at Maysville, Ky., and assumed a five-year lease on the building, has announced that he intends to remodel the structure and open a first-class picture house, which will be the third active showhouse in the city. The Pastime was closed for several months following failure of the former operators.

Kentucky Theater Changes.

Lewis Judy and Marvin Gay, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., who for several months have been operating the Paramount theater, have closed a deal whereby they have taken control of the Tabb theater and have announced that the Paramount will be closed and the shows transferred to the Tabb, where they will be consolidated with the service now being shown at that theater. Joseph Miller, owner of the Paramount theater, reports that he will obtain new service and continue the business of the house. Judy & Gay took charge of the Tabb on Dec. 18.

Noland & Russell is the name of a new firm which has taken over the Green Dragon theater, at Shelbyville, Ky., which has been operated for several months by the Majestic Amusement company, of that city.

The management of the Lyric theater, of Lawrenceburg, Ky., is making arrangements to open a new theater which will be known as Lyric No. 2, and which will cater to the colored population of the city. A new Power's 6A machine has been installed.

Detroit Escapes Bad Law

Local Exhibitors, Led by Manager Gilligham, Hold Mass Meeting and Then Attend Hearing on New Censor Bill—Facts Are Placed Squarely Up to Law Makers—Trouble Grew Out of Coming of "Nation" Film.

By Jacob Smith, Detroit Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DETROIT, MICH.—Monday, Dec. 20, was an important day in the history of Detroit motion picture industry. On Tuesday, Dec. 14, there was introduced into the city council an ordinance by Alderman Edward Barnett which in substance was that "it shall be unlawful for any theater to show anything immoral, obscene, lewd, lascivious, or of an indecent character, or which portrays brutality, or which tends to incite race riot or race hatred, or that shall represent or purport to represent any hanging, lynching, burning, or placing in a position of ignominy of any human being, the same being incited by race hatred. Any person violating this ordinance to have their license revoked for one year and punished by a $200 fine and jail sentence, at the discretion of the court; also that the officers of any civic, charitable or social organization may make complaint to the Corporation Counsel for violations of the ordinance, whose duty it shall be to prosecute all complaints."

On Sunday, Dec. 19, A. J. Gilligham, manager of the General Film Company's Detroit office, sent out the following notice by special messenger to every exhibitor and exchange in the city: "The most drastic ordinance ever introduced in the common council of the city of Detroit was introduced last Tuesday night by Alderman Barnett in reference to pictures. Your investment and your business is actually at stake. Immediately get in touch with your aldermen. Ask them to vote "nó" when this proposition comes up in the council. There will be a public hearing on this matter in the Council Chambers Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Attend by all means. There will be a mass meeting of Detroit exhibitors to protest against this measure at the Empire theater at 11 o'clock Sunday night."

On Sunday night about 100 exhibitors attended the mass meeting and unanimously voted to use their best efforts in preventing the passage of this ordinance. A. J. Gilligham addressed the gathering. Promptly at 11 o'clock Monday morning in the Council Chambers the hearing started before the Ordinance Committee. There was present 80 per cent. of the exhibitors of the city, and all of the owners and managers of the vaudeville and legitimate theaters. In this connection it might be said that the ordinance was really framed in order to prevent the showing of "Birth of a Nation" which is booked for the Detroit opera house for two weeks starting Jan. 2. A. J. Gilligham, a theater owner in addition to being manager of the General Film Co., was the first to speak for the motion picture industry.

"I represent 15 film exchanges," he said. "I am here as their spokesman to protest against the most unreasonable and unfair ordinance ever introduced into the city of Detroit. We have no desire to offend any race, but if this ordinance is permitted to pass as it is worded, any one can go out and object to any film. All of the managers of motion picture theaters try to show clean films. It is not the intention of any man in the film business to present any picture that would hurt any race. I am here to protest against this drastic ordinance."

He was followed by Alderman John C. Lodge, Frank A. Coffinberry, manager of the Miles theater, Henry J. Guthard of the Majestic theater, Peter J. Jeup, representing 130 small exhibitors, and Edward Fitzgerald, the mayor's secretary. The latter was sent to Chicago by the mayor to see the "Birth of a Nation" and to report on it. He said that there were a number of scenes, which, in his opinion, were not quite fitting for persons of tender years to see, as he believed they would give a wrong idea of the negro race. There was a heated discussion pro and con regarding the ordinance and the "Birth of a Nation."

For a time it looked as if the ordinance would pass, and then Alderman John C. Lodge spoke up: "Gentlemen, I think it really would be unfair to pass this ordinance. If the theaters need censoring we have a Recreation Commission to handle that and I'll guarantee that next spring the Board of Estimate will grant a sufficient appropriation to permit this Commission to go ahead with its censoring. But I don't believe we should pass this ordinance and interfere with the work of this Commission. I would like to see the ordinance withdrawn, and as for the 'Birth of a Nation,' put it up to the mayor, urging him to prohibit its showing."

This seemed to meet with the approval of both sides, and Alderman Barnett announced that he would withdraw the ordinance.

As far as the "Birth of a Nation" is concerned, pressure is being brought on the mayor to have it prohibited, but it is not believed that he will do so. While there is some opposition against the picture, there are thousands of people who are urging its appearance. They have heard so much about it in other cities and can see no reason why Detroit people should not have an opportunity of witnessing it.

All Michigan time on the "Birth of a Nation" has been cancelled until after its showing in Detroit.

HAIL TO DETROIT.

With another year now passed into the beyond and a new year beginning, the Detroit correspondent wants to say a few words about Detroit and general conditions. Detroit has increased 80,000 in population in 12 months it not only leads the world in the manufacture of automobiles and accessories, but leads in 20 different lines, such as pharmaceutical supplies, adding machines, etc. In 1905 there were three theaters in the city; today there are over 175 theaters devoted to motion pictures alone, to say nothing of the legitimate and vaudeville theaters. Detroit never entered a new year with more optimism. When the next 12 months have elapsed Detroit will have added the following new theaters: Stratford, Drury Lane, Ferry Field, Regent, Boulevard and the new John H. Kunsky theater, Broadway and Grand Circus Park.

TO BEGIN ON KUNSKY HOUSE.

John H. Kunsky announces that work will positively start on his new downtown theater by the first of February, same to be completed by Sept. 15, 1916. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of $400,000 and will be the only downtown motion picture theater owned by its management. In other words, all of the other downtown theaters are simply leased. Mr. Kunsky, by the way, is a member of the recently organized National Theater Owners' Association.

A. ARTHUR CAILLE WEDS.

The World extends its best wishes and congratulations to A. Arthur Caille, president of the Majestic, Fine Arts, Ferry Field, Maxine and Norwood theaters, who was married on Saturday, Dec. 18, to Mrs. Lila R. Schantz, in the presence of a small party of friends in the parlors of the Park Hotel, Mt. Clemens. A wedding luncheon followed and Mr. and Mrs. Caille left the same evening for a short wedding trip.

ACT NOW OR HAVE CENSORS.

The Vigilance Committee announces that it will make a strong effort to have the Board of Estimates grant an appropriation for paying theater censors. If the motion picture exhibitors do not want censorship under the Recreation Commission the time to fight it is now. If they wait, it will be too late. One way to fight censorship is to clean up and put on cleaner shows. Quite a number of exhibitors are perfectly willing to have police censorship as in the olden days, but do not like the idea of a special committee, consisting of club women who may be inclined to be biased. Exhibitors haven't a moment to lose. They should begin to build their organization at once and make it an important factor to handle such matters.

FROM DETROIT EXCHANGE MEN.

What L. E. Franconi, of Pathe, Says.

L. E. Franconi, Pathe: "Our business in the past sixty days has shown an enormous increase throughout the state, due to a great extent to our Gold Rooster features. Managers who formerly would never consent to even talk to a Pathe representative are now glad to book our pictures. We are booking many leading theaters with first-runs and exhibitors are running our pictures longer than they used to. We look for 1916 to be a record-breaking year for this exchange. Nothing can stop us from forging ahead. We do business strictly on the one-price system and we treat everybody alike." Mr. Franconi has had 10 years' experience in all branches of the moving picture industry. Some years ago when he predicted in New York City that the day would come when there would be theaters seating 2,000 people and stupendous productions, his friends laughed at him. Mr. Franconi predicts that within 12 months there will be a big shake-up among the manufacturers and that there will be fewer of them. "Manufacturers who give their goods away and who don't make money must quit the business," he says. "No one can stay in this business unless he makes money—which is the same principle that applies to any business." Mr. Franconi spent Christmas with his family in New York.

Manager Dennison of Paramount Pleased.

D. Leo Dennison, Paramount: "We have enjoyed a splendid business since we opened our office about six months ago. We are furnishing our film to the leading exhibitors of the state and we don't know what it is to have a dissatisfied customer. We do everything in our power to help the exhibitor and cooperate with him. During the coming year we believe that exhibitors will contract for longer runs on Paramount features. Many large exhibitors are making a big mistake by changing pictures every day. They could just as well run features two and three days and thus get the benefit of reduced prices."

D. Leo Dennison.

Chosen Items of Special Interest.

The Globe theater, Grand River and Trumbull avenues, Detroit, has declared a five per cent. dividend amounting to $25,000. Checks were mailed to stockholders on Dec. 23. The Globe was remodeled in the fall and the seating capacity increased to 1,000. Roy Bishop is the manager.

Fred Grennell has resigned from the Detroit Free Press to devote his entire time to press agent work for the Majestic, Norwood, Fine Arts, Knickerbocker and Orpheum theaters.

The Highland View theater, 3012 Woodward avenue, Detroit, is now under the management of A. G. Shay.

A panic was narrowly averted at the Crystal theater, Sturgis, Dec. 21.

The lease of the Norwood theater to Messrs. Caille and Guthard is for a period of ten years.

ILLINOIS NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Manager C. W. Chiles With General Film.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Clarence W. Chiles, former manager of the Lyric theater at Springfield, has been appointed traveling representative for the General Film Company of St. Louis, which will be his headquarters, although he will travel out of Springfield, with central Illinois for his territory.

New Belleville Theater.

The Park theater in St. Louis was recommended by the building commission as the model for the new theater to be constructed in Beleville, Ill. The seating capacity of the local theater is to be 2,000. There is to be a lower floor and balcony, the balcony being constructed on the same style and plan as in the Lyric theater at Belleville. It is to encircle the houses from boxes to boxes. The stage is to be large enough to accommodate the bigest road show. The sides of the house will open so that it can be used for sumer shows.

Actor's Dad an Exhibitor.

Manager Chris Taylor of Dreamland at Kewanee features his son, E. Forrest Taylor, in Western pictures every Monday.

Two New Companies.

Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield has issued certificates of incorporation as follows:

The International Photoplay Company of Chicago, with capital stock of $25,000, the incorporators being Anton Czechowicz, Stanley Snopek and Frank Szezepkowski, and the Theater Belvoir Company of Champaign, incorporated with $50,000 capital stock, by L. V. and E. H. Russell and Mary L. Mayfield.

Chris Taylor Entertains Kiddies.

All the school children under twelve at Kewanee, Ill., have seen a free show at the Dreamland. Manager Chris Taylor has just concluded a long series of such entertainments.

Yule Tide Showmanship.

The Star at Lincoln, Ill., had a Santa Claus who gave candy to all children. While admission was charged, the management spent three times the cost of each ticket for entertainment. The Belvoir, the Lyric and the Orpheum theaters at Champaign, Ill., had free Christmas shows for children. Manager Erber placed the Fischer theater in Danville, Ill., at the disposal of the Rotary clubs and they entertained all the poor kids of the city with picture shows and two Christmas trees. All the boys and girls in Pontiac, Ill., had to do to see the annual Christmas show at the Bond theater was to walk in. The Maywood Hippodrome at Maywood, Ill., gave a big Christmas party. The feature was "A Little Brother of the Rich."

Illinois Theater Changes.

The former Family theater of La Salle, Ill., has been entirely remodeled and has reopened with the Mutual Masterpicture, "Up From the Depths." J. Koleites & Co.

B. A. Lucas, of La Salle, Ill., has made arrangements for the construction of a theater in the near future. The "Birth of a Nation" is soon to be shown at the La Salle theater at La Salle, Ill.

Nelson Brownfield has leased the Hippodrome theater at Chillicothe, Ill., from Bennett Bros.

Steve Lawless has opened a moving picture show in the opera house at Liberty, Ill.

H. Schmidt has closed his moving picture theater at Manteno, Ill.

William R. Hayes has purchased the Majestic theater at DuQuoin, Ill.

The Illinois theater at Rock Island, Ill., is now under the management of Jay Cox, a member of the Metropolitan Amusement Company, which recently took over that house.

Illinois Brevities.

The Gem theater at Cairo, Ill., played a return date of "Neptune's Daughter."

The Star theater at Quincy, Ill., did good business with a home talent railroad photoplay.

The Fox, Star and Strand theaters in Aurora, Ill., are selling coupon books for $2, which contain $2.50 worth of tickets, which will be honored at any of the theaters. Quite a number were sold for Christmas gifts.

Hanley & Gasmann discontinued their show at the Globe theater in Ivesdale, Ill., temporarily because of bad roads and the season of advent.

Mrs. T. L. Van Preter has christened her new theater at East Alton, Ill., the Gem.

The Central theater at Danville, Ill. has changed its policy and is now giving three acts of vaudeville and four reels of pictures for ten cents.

"Cabiria" was a repeater at the Illinois theater in Rock Island.

At Huntington, Patrons Ask for Sabbath Shows

Manager Perfect Takes a Ballot of Opinions and Finds 952 for Sunday Pictures and Only 58 Against—Prosecutor Sapp Says No.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

HUNTINGTON, IND.—T. Guy Perfect, head of the Huntington motion picture company, opened a ballot box for his patrons to express their opinion as to whether or not they wanted Sunday shows. Out of 952 ballots cast, only 58 were opposed to Sunday exhibitions. Manager Perfect says that he does not know whether or not he will try to keep open on Sundays, that he is using the ballot system merely to find out how public sentiment stands. "Many other cities in the state have Sunday shows and I believe there is an overwhelming demand in this city for the same kind of entertainment," he says.

Prosecutor A. H. Sapp, when he heard what was being done, came out flatfooted against Sunday picture shows in Huntington and indications are that he will be upheld in this stand by the city authorities. "I think Huntington is too small a city for Sunday shows," said Mr. Sapp, "and as long as I have the power of enforcing the law, I cannot see my way clear to allow them to remain open on the Sabbath in defiance of the state laws.

"I have had numerous calls since it became known the question was again before the public and so far as I am able to learn the sentiment seems to be against Sunday shows."

Would Stop Outside Music in Indianapolis.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Indianapolis city council which is believed to be directed against moving picture theaters. It seeks to prevent any owner, manager, or employe from the use of music or noise on the streets to attract attention to the house. Some of the houses use barkers, and others have used drums and buglers.

W. F. Hurst Will Manage Local Pathe.

W. F. Hurst has been named to succeed J. G. Lytle as manager of the Pathe exchange in the Willoughby building, Indianapolis. Mr. Hurst has been with the company for fifteen years, and most recently was employed as a traveling auditor out of Cincinnati.

Suit Over Metal Awning in Indianapolis.

Charles M. Olsen and Benjamin V. Barton, proprietors of the Central Amusement company, have filed suit in the local civil court at Indianapolis asking an injunction against Mayor Joseph E. Bell and Jacob H. Hilkene, building commissioner. Barton & Solson are owners of the Alhambra theater, Indianapolis, and they say they wish to erect a metal awning over the sidewalk in front of the theater. This is permissible under the city ordinance, but the city authorities have denied permission to do the work. The suit asked that an injunction be granted forcing Commissioner Hilkene to approve the specifications and to prevent interference with the work.

L. F. Ashley Buys Theater.

L. F. Ashley of Ladysmith, Wis., took charge of the U. S. Motion Picture theater, Noblesville, Ind., recently, having purchased the business from L. J. Dunning. Mr. Ashley is a young man of experience in the picture business and expects to make the house one of the best in Noblesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunning will return to their home at Ligonier, Ind.

New Vincennes House Opens.

The Alhambra theater at Vincennes, Ind., Second street and Swartzel avenue, has been opened by Joe Bauer, proprietor. The house will seat 450 people and is modern and fireproof. George Swartzman is manager and will run one vaudeville act as part of the program.

Indianapolis Strand's Decorations.

The decorations for the Strand theater, Indianapolis, are in charge of Ernest Huber of the W. P. Nelson company of Chicago. The color scheme is burnt orange, ivory, gold and black. The decorators say it will give some novel and striking harmonies that will help to make the house a place of beauty.

Chosen Indiana Items.

The Parent-Teachers' Club of Evansville, Ind., has booked "Litte Lord Fauntleroy" as one of the pictures which the women wish to be shown to the children of Evansville. The women's committee of the Parent-Teachers' Club is trying to get pictures in which love and murder are not the themes, according to their statement.

The Excell Film company, Indianapolis, has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000 to sell and rent films. The directors are Cecil Patrick, Mildred Patrick and Harry J. Brooks.

The Fireside Theaters company, Indianapolis, capital, $1,500, has been incorporated to do a motion picture theater business. The directors are C. R. Traub, J. W. and L. B. Summers.

The new $5,000 Kimball pipe organ has been installed at the Bucklen theater, Elkhart. Patrons of the theater are showing a great deal of interest in the music.

Censors Delay Business

Kansas Board of Censors Announces That Appeal Board Will Sit Only Twice a Month—Films That Fail to Pass Face a Two Weeks' Wait—W. D. Ross Wants to Run Again for Censorship.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas News Service.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The censor board of Kansas has found another way to hold up films from being released to the exhibitors and now exchange men face an enforced wait of one or two weeks on all pictures on which they wish to make an appeal from the decision of W. D. Ross, the censor, and his assistants.

The new policy has just been announced at Topeka by the three members of the appeal board. It is that they will meet hereafter only twice a month to view any films. Previously they have met almost daily and when an exhibitor was dissatisfied with Ross' non-approval of a film he could take it quickly to the appeal board, frequently having it released for immediate sale. But no more.

The appeal board's announcement means that a film won't be reviewed except at a stated time, about the first and fifteenth of each month. If Ross says a picture shouldn't be shown; then it can't be until the appeal board holds its next regular session.

Preceding the appeal board's announcement came the statement from Ross that he would be a candidate for re-election next fall. He is the state superintendent of instruction and holds his office as censor in the educational department. He now is serving his second term.

"The last legislature gave a new dignity and importance to the office of state superintendent and naturally I should like to share the increased usefulness as well as enjoy the added honor which the position will mean hereafter," he said, as a part of his candidacy announcement. "Finally, with my knowledge of the needs and my acquaintance with the people of the state I feel that I am in better position to render a service that is worth while than ever before. So, I shall run again."

H. G. GILL MARRIED.

H. G. Gill, publicity man for the Kansas City office of the Universal, "put one over" his fellow workers the day before Christmas when he announced that he had been married a month. Nobody in the office had gotten wind of the wedding. But it happened on November 24, when Gill and Miss Marcella Lake got on an interurban car and went to Olathe, Kan., for the ceremony.

FREE XMAS SHOW.

The Penn Valley theater, 2124 Jefferson street, Kansas City, put on a big "Christmas" show for the kiddies of the neighborhood. Hal Norton, the manager, posted notices that his afternoon show on Christmas day would be free, but that nobody over 15 years old would be allowed to attend. Consequently nearly two thousand "kids" piled into the house, ate the candy he provided, laughed when Santa Claus appeared and sat entranced while the Universal program was run.

BIG "PEACE" FEATURE COMES.

The Willis Wood theater, here, and the Boyd theater, Omaha, both opened on Christmas day with the big feature, "The Battle Cry of Peace," and have sold out at practically every performance with an admission price of twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five and one dollar. The Willis Wood, although the monster film was booked only for three weeks, now have extended its engagement to four with permission to continue it longer if desired.

The staging of the film here shows the finest production yet at any local house. The stage, on which the projection scene is placed, was especially decorated and Frederick J. Curth, of the Kansas City symphony orchestra, was given an orchestra of thirty pieces to furnish the incidental music. In addition a chorus of forty women was employed to sing patriotic songs while the film is being run off.

Two performances are given each day, one at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 8:15 o'clock at night. One striking feature of the showing here is the sale of the higher priced seats. It has shown, so far, that big productions can expect to play to higher prices, as a third of the Willis Wood patrons have taken the seventy-five cent seats. Omaha, it is understood, is finding a similar condition.

The picture was shown privately two days before Christmas to army officers, newspaper men, and members of the Security League. A parade to the theater was led by the Kansas City militia companies and naval reserves. At the theater short talks were made by J. L. Loose, president of the local branch of the league, and Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, pastor of the Linwood Boulevard Christian church.

GRUBEL BROS. GIVE BENEFIT.

The Electric theater, Kansas City, Kans., was turned over to the city police one day in the week before Christmas, to be operated by them as a benefit performance for the Christmas fund being used by the department for the relief of poor families during the holidays. Grubel Bros., the managers, arranged a program of pictures and vaudeville and the entire receipts were turned over to the charity work.

"CARE OF BABY" PICTURES.

A series of picture films on child hygiene work will be taken in Chicago under the direction of Dr. Lydia A. DeVilbliss, head of the Kansas bureau of child hygiene. Doctor DeVilbliss already has gone to the Lake City and is preparing for the actual filming work.

"Kansas has the only hygiene bureau in this section of the country," she explained before leaving Topeka, her home, "and this is the reason we were asked to put on the demonstration of the care of the baby—bathing, dressing, care of its teeth, eyes, nose, throat and so forth."

Will Enlarge the Apollo.

The Apollo, 3225 Troost avenue, is to be enlarged. Fred L. Scott, the new manager, has announced that a balcony seating 300 persons will be added to the big residence house at once. The lower floor now has a capacity of about 800. Another possible change in policy will be that of running big features four or five nights a week instead of the two or three previously.

Thompson Preaches Preparedness.

The war pictures taken by Donald C. Thompson are being shown at Thompson's home town, Topeka, Kan., and Thompson is with them, giving the "home folks," as the pictures are run off, a vivid word description of the difficulties of a war photographer and what may happen to this country if it doesn't get behind the preparedness campaign. Thompson, who formerly was a photographer on one of the Topeka papers, remained there five days. The pictures were shown at the Grand theater.

Kansas City House Goes Back to 5 Cents

Victor Theater, Operated by J. F. Rose, Feels Competition of Nearby Five-Cent House and Will Decrease Admission.

THE Victor theater, Kansas City, Kan., has recently changed radically its methods of operation. J. F. Rose, proprietor, admits that he has taken a step that can be called backward, but asks what he could do under the circumstances. His theater is near the center of the city, and his chief competitor is charging 5 cents admission. Both theaters have been giving the very best of service, first releases of fine material. Both have been providing five and six reels of pictures and two acts of vaudeville. Mr. Rose had been charging 10 cents on Monday and Tuesday, 5 cents other days, and hoping to make the price 10 cents every day. But a few days ago he took the bull by the horns, and made the price 5 cents every day. But he cut out the vaudeville—he said he couldn't see that it was doing the show any good anyway. And, for two reasons, he is having to decline the first releases; they come too high, now, and some of the houses won't let their stuff be shown at 5 cents.

But Mr. Rose is not allowing his entertainment to deteriorate. He has sent away the mechanical player, and installed an orchestra of five pieces, with Ray Stinson, violinist, well known in musical circles as an experienced orchestra leader, in charge. The orchestra will play real music adopted to the films, three pieces in the afternoon and five in the evening.

The Victor seats 700; its location, and its reputation, almost guarantee success if pictures can succeed anywhere in the city. And Mr. Rose seems to be starting on a very definite plan to build his business. Apparently he hopes to develop a patronage that will be not only satisfied but enthusiastic, and that eventually, when the time comes, will gladly pay the ten cents admission that he may later establish. The orchestra is an important feature of this purpose. And the elimination of the vaudeville, which allows attention to be centered on the picture service, is another feature. Mr. Rose hopes also for the development of a desire on the part of other managers to charge ten cents.

The Victor recently showed "Damaged Goods" for three days, running a continuous show from 1 to 11:30, and taking in nearly $1,000. Ordinarily the box office is closed between 4.30 and 7 o'clock.

NOTES FROM ANDERSON, IND.

By Leon Louiso, Special Correspondent for Anderson, Ind.

ANDERSON, IND.—The Cozy motion picture theater has undergone a number of improvements and is now one of the coziest theaters in the city. The management is under the direction of Mr. Frend Brown and Mrs. Jessie M. Faulkner. The theater has been entirely redecorated on the inside and a new, artistic front has been included. The service includes the Pathe, World Film and General Film features. The admission remains at the old rate of 5 cents. Jos. Faulkner and Wayne Rittenour furnish the excellent music presented by this theater.

Mr. Parvin Cook, the recent manager of the Starland theater, has resigned. Mr. Elmer Howell will take the management of the house. Mr. Cook has helped to build up a following of the best element of motion picture patrons of the city. His work with the theater has been very satisfactory and many will regret that he leaves the management. He has not as yet announced in what field his future activities will be. Mr. Howell is one of the best known men in the industry in this city and he takes up the management with this advantageous asset.

OTHER PRAIRIE STATE NOTES.

New Plaza Theater in Sioux City.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.—Plans have been filed for the new Plaza theater in Sioux City which St. Elmo Bateman of Waterloo is promoting. A wholesale liquor house is to be transformed at a cost of $35,000. It will contain a pipe organ, the only one in a Sioux City photoplay house.

Book That Should Be Helpful.

Frank Harding of Grinnell, Iowa, an exhibitor, has issued a forty-eight page book, "The Movie Man's Friend," outlining stunts he used in seeking business. We have not seen the book, but from this description we presume that it contains much valuable matter.

New Iowa Houses and Changes.

Allen Lynde has sold his interest in the moving picture theater at Pettison, Ia., to Merle R. Fish, his partner.

W. N. Potts has purchased the Lincoln theater in Jefferson, Ia., from Woods & Gottlieb.

Otto Haus has sold his moving picture show at New Hampton, Ia., to William O'Connor and Paul Martin.

B. C. and Ralph T. Morgan, owners of the Empress theater at Harlan, Ia., who purchased the Lyric theater in that city from G. A. Curtis, will operate both houses. The Lyric will be open nightly and the Empress on Friday and Saturday nights.

Guy Tadlock has sold a half interest in the Star theater at Sioux City, Ia., to Frank Perrera for $5,000. Charles Boon is the other partner.

A. Drake has sold his moving picture show at Radcliffe, Ia., to Granville Bros.

H. H. Ling of Newell has purchased the Photoplay theater at Manson, Ia.

Beckman & Brebesheimer have leased the Gem theater at Grundy Center, Ia., to Charles Johnstone.

Iowa Brevities.

The Casino theater at Des Moines, Ia., is now charging straight ten cents admission, five for children and showing only feature films.

The Garden theater at Davenport, Ia., played a return date of "The Island of Regeneration."

Nebraska Brevities.

H. B. Hurst has sold the Rex theater at Chadron, Neb., to Dr. McDowell and Mr. Smoke, of that city. Mr. Hurst has bought the Pastime and Deadwood theaters at Deadwood, S. D. Mr. Peterson, former owner of the Pastime and Deadwood theaters, is going to Bellefourche.

LANSING'S NEW THEATER.

Washington Strand a Fine Picture Theater—Details.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

LANSING, MICH.—The South Lansing Photoplay Company of Lansing has been incorporated with capital stock of $3,000. This is the company which has opened the new Washington Strand theater at 1129 South Washington avenue in Lansing, seating 300 persons. The stage effects include green velour curtains draped from the top of the proscenium arch and bearing the theater's monogram, "W. S." The setting was paneled especially by the Kunsky Scenic Company of Detroit, showing a landscape and water effect in green foliage and frost trimmings. The Minusa gold fiber screen itself is back of the stage setting and does not come into view until the picture begins. A 1916 model Motiograph projector is used.

The entrance is in white tile walls and floors with green figuring. The box office is marble and plate glass enclosed. The lobby is finished in mahogany, with much space between them. The electrical fixtures are made to order, of grass and wicker, with stained glass. The semi-indirect lighting system is used.

The officers of the company are A. A. Lauzin, president; B. F. Hall, Jr., vice-president; F. J. Lamb, secretary-treasurer; Arthur B. Campbell and T. H. English, directors. Walter Jacobson is manager.

Children's Matinee at 2 Cents.

The Lyric theater at Houghton is featuring a two-cent matinee for children every Saturday.

Michigan Brevities.

T. J. Tubbs and Edward Cooper of Owosso opened their new moving picture theater at Ovid, Mich., with "My Official Wife."

The military battalion in Grand Rapids will co-operate with Powers theater in that city in putting on "The Battle Cry of Peace" some time in January.

Robert Holmes, operator, and Charles Mallette, his assistant at the Ideal theater on N. Washington avenue in Grand Rapids, were painfully burned in extinguishing a film fire.

Fred G. Anthier has purchased the Idle Hour theater at Travers City, Mich., from Daniel S. Martin.

M. F. Decker, of Paw Paw, has purchased the New Epoch theater at Watervliet, Mich., from John Conners. Conners also has sold the Gem theater at Hartford to Guy Fish, one of its former owners, and Samuel Martin.

On Film Row, St. Louis

World Representative Shakes Snow from His Whiskers and Goes In to See Local Exchange Men on Olive Street—Finds Managers Optimistic and Business Not Too Bad to Smile Over—Some Are Enthusiastic.

A. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS has just passed through two of the worst snow storms and blizzards of the year. Christmas Eve brought a blizzard of half rain and half snow that after it fell to the ground was all slop and slush, and many a specially arranged program went begging for want of patrons. Two days after Christmas the Storm King played a return engagement and wrapped us up in another blanket of snow.

In Film Row, on Olive street, no one exchange manager would commit himself to the statement that his office was setting the woods on fire, but nobody seemed at all downcast; in fact, the future looks bright for both the distributer and the exhibitor for the coming year.

We visited Film Row simultaneously with the second snow storm, and after the managers got over their disappointment when we had shaken the snow from our hats and whiskers and they found that we were not a belated Santa Claus they spoke up and talked real cheerful.

Manager Baker, the head Fox at the Fox exchange, had not returned from Kansas City, where he went to spend the holiday with relatives, but there was a pleasing hum of business all over the place.

Sam Werner, of the United, was optimistic and full of his new plan of releasing a big feature a week. Mr. Werner says the troubles that have beset the United company will be finally disposed of about the first of the year, and it is his intention to devote most of his time to big features.

S. W. Hatch, of the V-L-S-E, said business is not any too good, but he had that well known Hatch smile on when he said it, and to judge from the measure of popularity that Big Four features are earning he has no cause to worry.

Charles Werner, who is the only manager in the row that is up in the air, Mr. Werner's office being on the second floor of the Empress building, was full of Metro talk. Mr. Werner can entertain any man for a solid hour with his interesting reminiscences of the early days in feature renting in the south. He says if the chills and fever hadn't driven him from the south he'd be there yet.

E. W. Dustin of the World Film was still harping on his favorite theme, "Quality, quality—and artistic direction are what make great pictures!"

The General Film company, the last exchange before you catch a street car, is one of those exchanges that looks like a bank from the outside, and from the busy appearance of everyone, from the manager down to the office boy, it looks still more like a bank from the inside.

At the Triangle office in the triangular shaped Plaza building, we formed a triangle with Floyd Lewis and his assistant, Mr. Frees, and had a discussion of Triangle pictures that was illuminative and beneficial to every one.

C. S. Edwards, of the Pathe Exchange, is busy on the Red Circle, and full of plans of how he is going to break the record on serials that he established with "Neal of the Navy."

At the Universal Exchange Manager Barney Rosenthal was full of Blue Bird enthusiasm and deep in consultation with carpenters who are building the new office for the handling of the Blue Bird photoplays, which will be under the watchful eye of I. Leon Klasky. Mr. Rosenthal is full of plans for the New Year and says that Universal peace and prosperity will be the watchword for 1916.

MUST SEE ALL FILM HE BOOKS.

William Sievers, manager of the New Grand Central theater, has adopted a new policy in regard to the programs that will be shown in his house in the future. Mr. Sievers will book only such features as have been reviewed by himself and found to be up to the standard of photoplays shown at the Grand Avenue playhouse. Heretofore the New Grand Central has run a feature a week, but beginning with the week of Dec. 27 a new bill was put on for New Year's, making the change on Friday instead of Sunday. Mr. Sievers says that he will close his house for a few days or a week rather than put on pictures that do not come up to his standard of excellence.

Patrons Know Why.

The St. Louis Times, in a Film Fan Contest, has made the discovery that St. Louis picture lovers are getting to be very sophisticated in the matter of moving pictures, and while they are enthusiastic and praise heartily any artistic film that depicts a logical story, they are as critical about the poorly constructed plays that have a weak plot, or perhaps no plot at all. The contestants must tell in so many words why they like certain films, and in trying to decide which one of several films they like best, they also find out which one, or ones they like least, and why.

Kiddies Get Gifts at Best.

The Best theater, Jefferson and Cherokee street, had a special matinee for children on Dec. 26, where every child that attended the show received a gift from the manager, Fred Wehrenberg.

New Dallas Exchange

J. D. Wheelan, a Leader in Local Film Circles, Begins New Exchange—J. D. Wheelan Film Company at Old Peerless Site, 1919 Main Street, Dallas—Will Work on Independent Basis with No Contracts for Output.

By S. A. M. Harrison Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS, TEXAS.—A new film exchange, to work entirely on an independent basis, has been opened up in Dallas by J. D. Wheelan. Offices are being fitted up in the room formerly occupied by the Peerless Company at 1919 Main street, and present indications are that these will be elaborately furnished. Mr. Wheelan will do business under the name of the J. D. Wheelan Film Company, although he will have no associates for the time being.

Mr. Wheelan is one of the Nestors of the film business in the Southwest. When cinematographic houses were as scarce as hen's teeth, he was in the phonograph business, first putting in a line of films as a side issue. Later he devoted his entire time to the business, forming a corporation with a name similar to the present one. This he sold out, it finally merging into the General Film Company, whose stuff it was handling. More recently and until its absorption by the Mutual of Tennessee Mr. Wheelan has been the head and shoulders of the Mutual of Texas.

Mr. Wheelan was also deeply interested in the Paramount of Texas. This interest he has sold, and it is understood that he got cash for both Paramount and Mutual stocks, putting him in the enviable position of being able to handle anything that comes along.

For the present the new exchange will handle open stuff, making no contracts for output.

FIRE IN DALLAS THEATER.

Jefferson Suffers Heavily from Water Damage and Loss of Roof—Operator Averts Panic.

Fire on the second floor of the building adjoining the Jefferson theater, Dallas, caused that house quite a little damage on the night of December 22, and necessitated closing for several days. The hardware store next door was gutted and the roof over the front part of the theater was burned off. Water practically wrecked the finish of the foyer and the front wall of the main auditorium, but the auditorium itself and the stage were untouched. The damage will amount to about $10,000 on the whole thing, well insured.

The Jefferson has been running vaudeville and pictures. As the fire was rather late, few people were in the house, but even then a panic might have resulted when the auditorium, filled with smoke, had not the operator, Joe Brewer, been cool headed enough to give the patrons the impression that the fire was further away and kept his machine going until all were out.

Will Handle Supplies.

It is reported on good authority that the Western Automatic Music Company, Dallas, will put in a line of picture heater supplies. As the company already controls the United Seating Company this will place them in a position to completely equip a house. The date of the change is not announced.

Strong on His Peace Music.

The musical director of the special orchestra engaged by the Empire theater, San Antonio, Texas, for the showing of "The Battle Cry of Peace," is about as enthusiastic as they make em. During a rehearsal of the special music at a preliminary run of the picture he was so determined to make the music just right that he broke four batons, two stand lights and a large announcement sign. Manager Lytle remarked that "he is —— expensive," but the results bid fair to repay it.

Dallas Local Notes.

E. R. McDuffey of the Essanay force was in the city preliminary to a trip over the territory, specializing on "The Strange Case of Mary Page."

H. T. Peebles, South Texas representative of the Mutual, spent Christmas in Dallas, principally to meet H. T. Peebles, Jr., who arrived December 23. Fine youngster and mother doing well.

G. B. Logan of the Southern Paramount, headquarters Atlanta, Ga., was in town overseeing the purchase by the Tandy and Lynch interests of J. D. Wheelan's stock in the Texas Paramount.

Dallas District Happenings.

The opera house at Boerne, Texas, has ben purchased by Rudolph Ort, and will be run as a picture house, using program service.

Comfort, Texas, has two houses, both opened recently. They are the Peters Opera House, leased for projection by A. Rashio of San Antonio, and the Franklin, opened by Arthur Franklin & Sons. The Franklin firm also has a house at Bandera, a town forty miles off the railroad.

Felix Hernandez & Co. have taken over the Guadalupe theater at Laredo, Texas.

The new Royal theater at Laredo, Texas, has been opened by L. M. Valdez. The Royal is a fine house and will run features only, arrangements having been made for service from Fox, Triangle and Mutual.

The Queen theater, San Antonio, has discontinued all features and will run program only, contracting for both Mutual and General. Excessive transient trade is given as the reason for the move.

Oklahoma City Makes Mayor Censor

City Commissioners Pass Emergency Ordinance Making Mayor Absolute Censor of Theaters and Shows—"Opinion of Mayor" Is Final Criterion.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Absolute power of censorship over all theatres and all other places of entertainment, whether public or private, is vested in the mayor of Oklahoma City, Okla., by an emergency ordinance approved by the city commissioners. The ordinance makes the mayor virtual dictator over the theaters and other amusement places.

The city's action was the result of a petition for censorship recently submitted to the city commissioners by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the city. The women were spurred to action by motion pictures that they believed should not have been exhibited. The principal offender was a film called "Inspiration," in which Audrey Munson, the "Panama-Pacific girl,' appeared. One union adopted resolutions against this picture, and asked for a board of censors. Other unions joined the censorship petition, although they did not go on record as sharing the unfavorable opinion of "Inspiration."

A conference of the mayor with the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions, the Ministerial Alliance and other organizations identified with uplift and social reform movements resulted in Mayor Overholser adopting the strong methods of Mayor Thompson of Chicago, declaring there should be no censorship unless he should be made censor and called upon his conferees to adopt a resolution requesting the city commissioners to make him the censor.

The censorship ordinance vests all power in the mayor. He may, however, in cases of emergency appoint and deputize "assistant censors," who may pass on the propriety or impropriety of performances.

"Any person, firm or corporation operating any theater, picture show, vaudeville or place of public congregation for entertainment, whether public or private, free or for hire, and who shall permit the exhibition, display, showing, picturing, expression or publication, in whatever form, of any idea calculated, in the opinion of the mayor, to corrupt private morals, or who shall continue to do so after the same is forbidden by the mayor of Oklahoma City," is the exact wording of that part of the ordinance which specifies the misdemeanor.

Penalty for violation of the ordinance may be placed, upon conviction, at not less than $50 nor more than $100, or ten to ninety days in jail, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The wording of the ordinance is considered virtually to make every theater owner his own censor. For, even if a show has come and gone from a theater, and later is brought to the attention of the mayor and proved to his satisfaction to have been immoral, the penalty of the ordinance is considered to be in order on conviction.

Thus the burden of strict censorship has been shoved from the shoulders of the mayor or any other "censorship committee" directly upon those of the owners of show houses, who are expected to vouch for the cleanness of their entertainments before their presentation.

The conviction of a theater manager of giving an entertainment tending to corrupt private morals will serve, according to the ordinance, as an automatic recall of his license in the city.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

Theater Changes and New Houses.

MANAGER W. E. OXLEY has opened a moving picture theater in the opera house at Elk Point, S. D.

A new moving picture show has been opened at Edmore, N. D.

L. T. Shumann sold his moving picture theater at White Rock, S. D., to Theodore Huls.

The Lyric theater at Dickinson, N. D., has raised the even prices for Paramount shows to twenty cents for adults and ten cents for children. The matinees are fifteen cents and five cents.

IN NEBRASKA.

Theater Changes.

MANAGER W. E. SNYDER has opened a moving picture theater in the Gourley Opera House at Rushville, Neb.

The Empress theater at Tekamah, Neb., has been reopened and now is under the management of Frank Welch.

Harry Saline has closed the Empress theater at Alliance, Neb.

A new moving picture theater has been opened at Glenville, Neb.

The Crystal theater at Peru, Neb., has been sold to A. M. McCommons.

I. C. Hansen has sold the lease on the Lyric theater at Beatrice, Neb., to Robert King.

IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Frank L. Hudson, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the General Film company spent the Christmas holidays here with his family.

A late type Edison machine and a Power's Cameragraph No. 6B are to be installed at the Tivoli theater and given a thorough test.

Rev. G. W. Barney of the Central Methodist church has placed an order for a late model Motiograph and will feature motion pictures strongly.

The Pals Club, with which many moving picture men are affiliated, will give a ball to Art Smith, the aviator, on the evening of January 15.

Alex E. Beyfus, vice-president and general manager of the California Motion Picture Corporation, is expected home shortly from New York and immediately upon his return additions and improvements are to be made on the studio at San Rafael. A lighting system will be installed and a second producing company will be organized.

The Royal Theater Company has had plans completed for the erection of a moving picture theater on California street, near Polk, to cost about $60,000. The building will be of fireproof construction and will have a seating capacity of 1400. Bernard J. Joseph is the architect.

Frank E. Simons, formerly of Missoula, Mont, but now of Lovelook, Nev., was here recently purchasing equipment for a new theater he is to open in the latter city. While in town he purchased a Motiograph projection machine from Edward H. Kemp.

The largest staff of experts in all departments makes the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the one paper in the trade that fully fills the requirements of every reader.

Edward H. Kemp, who recently took some fine moving pictures of activities at the Salvation Army farm at Lytton, Cal., has made a second print of the films and has sold a Motiograph to be installed at the farm.

California Changes and Business Notes.

The old Novelty theater at Lindsay, Cal., has been repaired and is now being operated as the Empress.

B. L. Waite of Arcata, Cal., is now giving weekly entertainments at Blue Lake, Rankin's Hall having been secured for the purpose.

R. Bauer plans to remodel the Lyric at Chico, Cal., and change the name to the Park theater.

The new Rex has been opened at Madera, Cal., by Chamberlin Bros. as a 5 and 10 cent house.

The McCloud River Lumber Company, which recently took over the theater at McCloud, Cal., has installed a late model Motiograph.

The Liberty theater at Los Banos, Cal., has been sold to Bernard Cavalla and Joseph Manducci by Graham Bros.

A new moving picture house is to be erected at Anderson, Cal., by C. G. Hainline at an estimated cost of $6,000.

Improvements to cost $1,000 are to be installed at the Imperial theater, Eureka, Cal., a new front for the house to be one of the changes.

The equipment of the operating room at Bennett's Melrose theater, Melrose, Cal., has been augmented by the installation og a Motiograph projection machine purchased from Edward H. Kemp of San Francisco.

"At the Front With the Allies" is to be shown at Sacramento, Cal., under the auspices of the Sacramento Bee; at San Jose, by the San Jose Mercury, and at Stockton, under the direction of the Stockton Mail.

Another T. & D. House

Big Pacific Coast Combination, the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, Will Build Large Theater in Stockton, California—To Seat 2,750 in $5 Opera Chairs—Details—More New Houses May Follow.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Turner & Dahnken circuit of San Francisco, which now has houses in this city, Oakland, Berkeley, Richmond, San Jose, Watsonville and Sacramento, with a large theater nearing completion at Reno, Nev., announces that it has completed arrangements for the erection of a high class moving picture house at Stockton, Cal. This new theater will be located on Weber avenue, opposite the courthouse, and will represent an investment of about $350,000. It will cover a lot 125 by 125 feet in size and will have exits on Hunter and Channel streets.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction, as nearly fireproof as is possible, and will be equipped throughout with the best in furnishings and equipment. The seating capacity will be about 2750 and opera chairs to cost $5 each will be installed throughout the house. A feature of the equipment will be an organ, to cost approximately $25,000, this to be the finest installed by this concern.

E. Bruce Johnson, secretary of the Turner & Dahnken circuit, is well known in Stockton, having graduated from the high school there in 1903, and has had charge of many of the details incident to the entry of the firm in that field. The permit recently granted to the Turner & Dahnken Controlling Company has been revoked by the State Commissioner of Corporations at the request of officials of the Turner & Dahnken circuit, as the projects for expansion are to be financed without the agency of the controlling company.

Arrangements are under way for extending the interests of the concern into several large coast cities not now covered and announcements along this line will be made shortly.

TRIANGLE MANAGER RETIRES.

C. Mell Simmons, who has had charge of the exchange interests of the Triangle Film in this territory since its first releases were made, is no longer connected with this concern, his position as manager having been taken over by Ben F. Simpson, who arrived from New York just before Christmas.

Mr. Simpson is not an entire stranger here, having been in San Francisco two years ago as the representative of George Kleine. Through the activity of Mr. Simmons the Triangle service is well placed in the San Francisco field, several important contracts having been signed recently, including one for a first run in the downtown section of this city. Commencing January 16, Triangle films will be shown at the Tivoli theater, and the Turner & Dahnken circuit has also arranged to show them at its Berkeley and Reno houses. Arrangements have also been made whereby this service will be featured at the Franklin in Oakland, two changes of program to be made each week.

NEW METRO EXCHANGE MANAGER.

E. D. Selden, who has had charge of the San Francisco branch of the Metro service since its opening a few weeks ago, has given up this position and has left for the East. He has been succeeded by J. J. Unger, a recent arrival from the East, where he has been connected with the General Film Company, and who, in addition, will fill the position of district manager for the territory west of Denver. A change has also been made in the management of the Los Angeles branch, this now being in charge of Harry Lustig, formerly with the Mutual at Denver, Colo. Harry Cohen, who has been on the coast for several months getting the new exchanges in working order has departed for New York.

FALL IN DARK PATRON'S FAULT.

Superior Judge John Hunt sustained the demurrer this week of the Turner & Dahnken circuit to the action brought by Ida Parasien for damages in the sum of $5,000. Miss Parasien was injured by falling in the Tivoli theater and made the claim that the accident was due to darkness. In making the ruling the Judge said: "A certain amount of darkness is necessary for the proper presentation of moving pictures, and a person who meets with an accident because of the darkness cannot hold the theater owners responsible."

BLUE BIRD ALIGHTS HERE.

Alterations are being made in the quarters of the California film exchange on Golden Gate avenue and space is being fitted up for the Blue Bird Feature Film Company, which will shortly make its bow in the local field. Fred Peachey, formerly with the United Film and later for a short time with the Mutual, has been appointed manager of the Portland branch of the Blue Bird exchange and has left for the northern city.

New Recruits for Board of Trade.

E. H. Emmick, who recently opened a large exchange here for the Picture Playhouse Film Company, has looked into the workings of the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco and has been so impressed by the advantages offered by the organization that he has filed an application for membership. Mr. Emmick is very well known in this field and prides himself on having been the first film man to locate on Golden Gate avenue, now known as Film Exchange row. He opened an exchange here for the Union Film & Supply more than two years ago, and there are now a dozen concerns in the block. The exchange he has just opened occupies the best location in the district, being at the corner of Jones street and Golden Gate avenue, and must be passed by all exhibitors visiting the district.

Golden Gate Gets "Ne'er-Do-Well."

The California, Nevada and Arizona rights to the "Ne'er-Do-Well" has been taken over by the Golden Gate Film Exchange and the production will be shown first at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles. Sol Lesser of this exchange will return from his trip to New York sooner than originally planned, and will be able to spend part of the holidays at home.

San Francisco Brevities.

The Western Theater Company has been incorporated at San Francisco with a capital stock of $50,000 by N. A. Eisner, I. M. Maley and H. R. Schultheis.

Sid Grauman, manager of the Empress theater, is making a business trip to Seattle, but before leaving made arrangements for giving, for the fourth consecutive year, an entertainment for the prisoners at San Quentin on New Year's Day.

R. W. Horn, who spent the past year in San Francisco as the special representative of the Nicholas Power Company, and who had charge of the two displays of this concern at the exposition, has left for New York.

Mayor Questions Ads.

Portland, Oregon's. Chief Executive Objects to Character of Newspaper Publicity Given Films—Calls Film Men to Account—Threatens to Revoke Licenses—Exhibitors Protest.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland, Ore., Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND'S censor board may pass a picture, but the scrutinizing eye of Portland's officialdom does not turn from it until the picture has finished its run and gone elsewhere. Official disapproval of exhibitors' advertising during a picture's run was the cause of the latest tilt between some of the downtown exhibitors and the city's department of public safety.

Will H. Warren, secretary to Mayor Albee, telephoned to Paul E. Noble, manager of the national theater, following the publication of his advertisements exploiting Universal's "The Primrose Path," advising Mr. Noble that it would be to his advantage to call upon the city's chief executive and discuss the advertisement in question. The National's advertisements appeared in three of Portland's daily papers and occasioned much favorable comment by men who know advertising on their forceful make-up and Mr. Noble failed to see anything wrong with them. Press of business, however, prevented Mr. Noble from complying with the mayor's request.

Mayor Albee, when interviewed on the subject, denied that his request for Mr. Noble's presence at the City Hall was in the nature of calling the National's manager on the carpet. He desired the exhibitors' co-operation, he said, in keeping down improper and suggestive advertising and his attention had been called by two other members of the city commission, whose identity he did not disclose to the publicity given to "The Primrose Path." The newspapers, commenting on the situation, declared the mayor had objected to the use of the word "daring" in the advertisements. This he denied, stating that his objection was to the advertisement as a whole.

Prominent down-town exhibitors stated they were of the opinion that the mayor's attack on the National's advertising was made without any reason except perhaps for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear upon the exhibitors and force them to give up their fight they are now waging for an appealable censorship ordinance. Among others who hold this view is Edwin James of the Majestic, who was recently called to the City Hall to explain why he had advertised "Inspiration" as "daring" and threatened with the revocation of his license if he persisted in following his present methods of advertising.

PATRIOTIC PICTURES STIR.

The holiday week in Portland was also a patriotic week at Portland's biggest motion picture theaters. At the Heilig "The Battle Cry of Peace," showed to capacity audiences the entire week. On December 2 Manager W. T. Pangle gave a special exhibition of the picture to 700 members of the Oregon National Guard. The Heilig, heretofore playing only first class road shows, is now filling some of its vacant dates with pictures.

At the National, commencing December 30, "Guarding Old Glory" was the bill. Manager Paul E. Noble of the theater arranged with the state military authorities for the use of some of Oregon's war equipment and his lobbies and foyer were tastefully decorated with gun racks, field pieces and other military paraphernalia. On December 30 the entire balcony of the National was reserved for the Oregon National Guard and the boxes were occupied by General White and staff in full dress uniform. The following night the Oregon Naval Militia attended the theater in a body and New Year's Day the G. A. R. and Spanish American War Veterans were guests of the management.

EMIL ERICKSEN NOW ROAD MAN.

Emil Ericksen, who has been booker for the Film Supply Company of Oregon, handling Universal films, has been promoted to the position of road man, with headquarters in Portland, and S. S. Schubach, formerly his assistant, has become head booker. Leonard Clark, former booker at the Portland office of the General Film Company, has been employed to take Mr. Schubach's former position.

SPUDS FOR ADMISSION.

GRANTS PASS, ORE.—Morey and Harvey, owners of the Bijou, have made potatoes legal tender at this house and children who contribute three tubers to the management are admitted. A barrel is placed near the entrance, fitted with a sign bearing the legend, "Admission for Children, 5 Cents or Three Spuds." Christmas week the agricultural contributions were donated to the Salvation Army, but before the holidays the potatoes were sacked and sold.

P. F. Moore has opened a new theater in Grants Pass. He has named it the Star and the seating capacity is 400. The Gaiety theater, Grants Pass, has closed.

BRIEFS.

Part of the Christmas entertainment given by the Portland Rotary Club to the children of the Frazier Detention Home consisted of a moving picture show at the Star theater, where a section of the house was reserved for them by the People's Amusement Company.

M. Rosenberg has returned from Seattle, where he secured "The Ne'er-Do-Well" and other features for distribution in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

J. S. Woody, supervisor of Northwest offices for the Mutual Film, with headquarters in Seattle, was a visitor in Portland, looking over the plans for the proposed central exchange building.

SEATTLE NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Seattle News Service.

A WIDE-AWAKE EXCHANGE MAN.

In October, 1907, George C. Endert opened the first regular film exchange in the Northwest under the name of the Kleine Optical Company. There were but few theaters in that territory then, but business soon grew to a very flourishing extent. Two years later the Kleine Optical Company was consummated into what is now known as the General Film Company.

Geo. C. Endert.

Just at this time the first independent film was being manufactured by Mr. Laemmle, now known as the Universal, when the first Imp and Bison films were made.

From that time Mr. Endert was connected four years with the Progressive Investment Company of Portland and Seattle handling Universal Film exclusively and being the only competitor of the General Film Company.

In March, 1914, Mr. Phil Gleichman appointed him manager of the World Special Film Corporation, now known as the World Film Corporation, Seattle Branch. He says he is very much pleased to report the World Film has always had its share of the business and is fully appreciated throughout the northwestern territory. His connection with it has always been very satisfactory, and this can be vouched for by any exhibitor in the Northwest.

BUYS COLONIAL THEATER.

In taking over the controlling interest and management of the Colonial theater in Seattle recently, E. H. Smith announced also a new policy for that house. He intends to eschew problem play pictures in favor of less sensational features, and expects to provide a program that will be favorably received by high-class patrons, such as come to his theater.

E. H. Smith.

Mr. Smith also has caused to be made extensive exterior and interior improvements in the house, and has put some new touches in the $15,000 organ, which now is one of the big features in the city.

Mr. Smith is well known in theatrical circles in Seattle, having been prominently engaged in the business for the past five years. He is a member of the Tilikums and other booster organizations of the city.

Many New Ontario Theaters and Changes

Picture Theaters Open in Canadian Province—In Toronto Majestic and Sunnyside Change Hands and Begin New Policies.

By W. M. Gladish, Toronto Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Majestic to Be Film House.

TORONTO, ONTARIO.—One of the latest important theater transactions became known through the announcement that E. L. Ruddy, head of a big Canadian sign board and poster company, is behind the proposition to take over the Majestic theater at Toronto, formerly a widely patronized legitimate playhouse, for moving picture purposes. It is declared that the sum of $50,000 is to be expended in transforming the structure, which seats 1,800 people. The changes include an entirely new front, a new orchestra floor, new seats throughout, the redecoration of the whole interior and the installation of improved scenic effects. The manager of the theater will be Leo Slushinger, who was manager of the Strand theater, Toronto, until one year ago. Mr. Slushinger has been in Buffalo during the past year, but has returned to take charge of the new house. The policy will be to exhibit the very best features obtainable and the management intends to cater to the "automobile trade." The theater is located on a side street and there is considerable space in nearby streets for the parking of cars.

Sunnyside Will Start New Chain.

Another big deal in Toronto consists of the transfer of the Sunnyside theater from Major Wilson of the Wilson Lumber Company to the National Theater Company, a new Canadian circuit which is headed by Z. M. Harris, Toronto manager of the Mutual Film Corporation of Canada, Limited. The Sunnyside theater is the first of a chain of houses to be established, it is declared. A ten year lease has been obtained by Mr. Harris from Major Wilson, who is leaving with a Canadian battalion for the firing line in Europe. The present seating capacity is 500, but the intention is to double the size of the structure next spring by the erection of a large addition. The present building is fairly new and is one of the coziest suburban theaters in Toronto. Mr. Harris has engaged a five-piece orchestra and has bought two new motor-driven Powers projecting machines. A new screen, with a velvet finish, is being installed.

Globe Theater Opens.

The Globe theater, another brand-new downtown house in Toronto, was formally opened on Christmas Day with a World feature. Advantage was taken of a wide frontage to the building to construct an unusually attractive and bright entrance with modern illumination and electric signs. The accommodation in this theater is about 500 seats. The building is not a new one, but the theater fixtures are new throughout.

New Regent Almost Ready.

Mr. George Nicholas, managing director of the Independent Amusement Company, which was organized four years ago, also announces that the third new theater of the company will be opened in January in Montreal. The house, which will be known as The Regent, will seat 1,200 people on the orchestra floor and balcony. An $18,000 ventilating system has been installed in the new structure, which is completely equipped for picture purposes. One of the outside features is an electric automatic sign, which includes a clock with a seven-foot dial. The company specializes in Universal offerings.

Ottawa to Have New House.

Ottawa is also to have a new theater, to be known as The Regent, under the management of Mr. Ken Finlay. The opening date was set for the first week in January when a Metro feature was presented. Manager Finlay has signed a year's contract for Metro pictures. He will have two changes of programs each week for the start.

Other New Houses.

Mr. Clark is opening the Model theater at Stayner, Ontario. It has seating accommodation for about 400 people. Mr. Henry Moore has also opened a 300-seat house at Westport, Ontario, while a new moving picture theater, with a 400 seating capacity, has been opened at Hintonburg, a suburb of Ottawa. It is also stated that the Crown theater at Bridgeburg, Ontario, opposite Buffalo, will reopen for business shortly.

Exhibitors See "Red Circle" Privately.

Exhibitors from Cobalt, Brantford, Simcoe and other distant centers attended the special private exhibition in Loew's Winter Garden on Thursday afternoon last under the auspices of the Specialty Film Import Company, when the first two chapters of "The Red Circle" were shown to an appreciative house. This serial will be released in Toronto early in January, when arrangements will have been made whereby one of the local newspapers will carry the story in weekly instalments. Another picture which made an excellent impression was "A Rose Among Briers," a Pathecolor release.

M. G. Thompson Buried Here.

The remains of Mr. M. G. Thompson, formerly of the Victor Film Company of Cleveland, and who was also the owner of five theaters in that city, were brought to Toronto, Canada, for burial in the family plot here. The late Mr. Thompson was a pioneer in the moving picture field, and it is a peculiar feature that his two brothers are also prominent in the film business. He is also survived by two sisters, who reside at 99 Spencer avenue, Toronto. The family were in receipt of many messages of condolence.

Ontario Theaters Burned.

Recent fires at Sault Ste. Marie and Milton, Ontario, wiped out two moving picture theaters in that Canadian province. The Lyceum theater at the "Soo" was burned by a fire which originated inside of the building late at night while T. D. Hume's house at Milton was destroyed when flames spread to it from a nearby structure.

Do Special Effects Help?

Manager Ralph Ruffner of Spokane's Liberty Theater Believes in Helping Out His Films by Special Stunts—Pistol Shots, Screams and Other Noises Some of the Means He Has Used—What Do Patrons Think?

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH. — Supplementing moving picture producers' work with special effects brings results according to the declaration of Manager Ralph Ruffner of the Liberty in Spokane, who is considered one of the live wire exhibitors of the Northwest. He is now working with a view of determining whether patrons prefer their moving pictures with special effects, so long as the specialties are not overworked and is employing many original ideas in his plans with a view of solving the matter.

Mr. Ruffner is giving this phase of the work serious consideration and has determined upon a series of special innovations, which he declares will make the Liberty the Strand of the Northwest. These are to be adopted gradually and will be augmented by others as Liberty patrons become educated to them.

He is equipping the house with a set of dimmers to regulate the house lights. Three colors will be used—green, red and amber—to procure the desired effects, and these dimmers will be grouped so that one man can handle them all. The house will be kept much darker than usual in order that the clearness of the Triangle pictures will not be marred by too bright house lights.

Ralph Ruffner.

It may make it a little awkward for patrons entering from the bright sunlight. To obviate this difficulty Manager Ruffner has had a series of electric bulbs made which are being worn by the ushers as button hole bouquets with the bulb in the center of a made flower. These are flashed to direct the light-blinded spectator to his seat.

Manager Ruffner says of the work:

"I am of the opinion that effects are not desired by the big majority of photoplay patrons. They detract from the picture when used for every little incident. In my career I have spent a great deal of time and study building and improvising mechanical appliances for noise making and about the only benefit I derived personally was the experience. However, there are times when the ear can be appealed to as well as the eye, and the effect synchronized will invariably add to the picture rather than detract.

"For example, several years ago the first of the 'California Rodeo' pictures made their appearance on the market. It was during a steer-riding contest. A short, snappy, full-of-action scene flashed on the screen showing the camera man in the middle of the track, slowly grinding away, all the time surrounded by flying hoofs and animated bovines. Suddenly there appeared in the scene a 'wild' steer who charged straight at the camera man.

"Everybody in the theater almost rose out of their seats in horror. I was playing the piano at the time and under the circumstances did the most natural thing—at the top of my voice I yelled 'Look out!" The effect was magical; it literally awakened the audience to the realization that they were only looking at the daredevil antics of a camera man.

"The value of a shot or a scream cannot be underestimated. Many will recall Nance O'Neil in the 'Kreutzer Sonata' which we exhibited last April. The intense dramatic action of the play coupled with a darkened theater and proper music had carried the emotions of the beholder right up to the breaking point. The climax was reached when the wife, insane from jealousy and neglect, seized a gun and killed her husband and her sister. The sudden ringing out of two shots—a pause—and then three more shots was most telling in its impressiveness. It left people with something in their ears as well as in their eyes even though it was not a pleasant ending.

"In 'The Shooting of Dan McGrew,' which we also exhibited, the line comes in 'A Woman Screamed and the Lights Went Out.' Believe I would risk a small bet that the Liberty was the only theater in the United States to play that particular scene up just as it was supposed to have occurred. We engaged a woman to scream—she screamed seven lusty times at five dollars per day. * * * At the first shot the big saloon lamp crashed to the floor, leaving the screen and the theater in darkness; then the duel between the two men, followed by the gradual lighting of the theater as a lamp was brought into the saloon scene. In one small space of time we had introduced a scream, a shot, crash of glass and light effects; nothing so unusual, but I wonder why there is not more exertion on the part of managers to assist the producer in taking up where the studio leaves off. It is like watching a bunch of firecrackers. If you do not hear the reports you are not impressed. Effects, in moderation, are worth while."

Mr. Ruffner has been an exhibitor in the northwest since 1907.

XMAS PARTY AT THE LIBERTY.

The general committee of El Katif Temple of Shriners, Spokane, Wash., entertained 817 children at the Liberty. Manager Ralph Ruffner and L. W. Hutton secured a special program, which consisted of a three-reel fairy story, "Such a Prince," with Elsie Elbert and Charles Cummings; also a Keystone comedy, "His Father's Footsteps." The children were each given a present by the manager of the Liberty. This was a wicker basket for them to weave themselves.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 15 and January 22

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 314, 316, 318.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.

	Serial No.
BIOGRAPH—In the Aisles of the Wild (Biograph Reissue No. 32—Drama)	19857
KALEM—The Black Crook (Five parts—Drama—Unit Program)	U-1040-1-2-3-4
LUBIN—The Lost Bracelet (Drama)	19858
SELIG—The Devil In Chief (Three parts—Drama).	19852-3-4
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical)	19856
VITAGRAPH—When Lin Came Home (Drama)	19855
VITAGRAPH—The Surprises of An Empty Hotel (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program)	U-1030-1-2-3
VITAGRAPH—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Com.-Drama—Unit Program)	U-1034

TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—Angels Unaware (Two parts—Drama)	19859-60
KALEM—Guardian Angels (Comedy)	19861
LUBIN—The Old Watchman (Two parts—Drama)	19862-3

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Dr.)	19867-8-9
ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy)	19866
KALEM—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama)	19864-5
LUBIN—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program)	U-1035-6-7-8
LUBIN—A Bath Tub Mystery (Com.—Unit Program)	U-1039

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.

LUBIN—The Bond Within (Three parts—Drama)	19870-1-2
MINA—Title Not Yet Announced.
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical)	19873

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.

KALEM—The Tricksters (No. 12 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Drama)	19878
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—Title Not Yet Announced.
VIM—Chickens (Comedy)	19880
VITAGRAPH—When Two Play A Game (Comedy)	19879

SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.

ESSANAY—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Dr.)	19881-2-3
KALEM—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen Railroad" Series (Drama)	19888
LUBIN—A Skate For a Bride (Comedy)	19884
SELIG—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 8, "No Sir-ee Bob" (Comedy)	19889
VITAGRAPH—By Love Redeemed (3 parts—Dr.)	19885-6-7

General Film Company.

Advance Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Miser's Heart (Drama—Biograph Reissue No. 33).
LUBIN—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
LUBIN—Fooling Uncle (Comedy).
LUBIN—The Little Sister of the Poor (Drama).
SELIG—Why Love Is Blind (Drama).
SELIG—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 5, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
VITAGRAPH—Bittersweet (Drama—Unit Program).

TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Angel of Piety Flat (Two parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—The Book Agent's Romance (Two parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Tale of a Coat (Burlesque—Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Life Chase (Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 4 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Scenes of Canadian Rockies (Scenic).
KALEM—A Duel In the Desert (No. 9 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.

LUBIN—The Law's Injustic (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 6, 1916 (Topical).

FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.

KALEM—The Sealskin Coat (No. 13 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Drama).
VIM—Frenzied Finance (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—A Telegraphic Tangle (Comedy).

SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.

ESSANAY—The White Alley (Three parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Open Track (No. 63 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
LUBIN—Insomnia (Comedy).
SELIG—Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "When the Circus Came to Town" (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Secret Seven (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

You can have A PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM from

THE GREATER VARIETY
RELEASED WEEKLY IN THE
REGULAR SERVICE

by the Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig and Vitagraph studios.

Our experience, dating from the very infancy of the motion-picture industry, enables us to give you the program best suited to the needs of your theatre.

Come to our office at your first opportunity and let us show you how our units are chosen and how our new big plan of closer co-operation means GREATER profits for you.

A Special Department gives its entire attention to a correct list of releases.

Stars Stories Directing Photography

—all the factors of a successful picture—plus the indelible stamp of public approval, are found in the

BIOGRAPH
RE-ISSUES

Monday, January 17

THE MISER'S HEART

One Reel Biograph Re-issue

Directed by D. W. GRIFFITH

Tuesday, January 18

The
ANGEL OF PIETY FLAT

From the story by Izola Forrester

The Two Reel Biograph

Directed by WRAY PHYSIOC

Wednesday, January 19

A LIFE CHASE

Adolphe Belot's tremendous drama

The Three Reel Biograph

Directed by TRAVERS VALE

For casts and descriptions of all Biograph releases refer to your copy of PROGRAMS

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 EAST 175TH STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 15 and January 22

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 314, 316, 318.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Blind Fury (Drama)	01103
L-KO—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy)	01104
REX—No release this day.
MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama)	01106
NESTOR—The Boy, The Girl and The Auto (Com.)	01107
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 5, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama)	01122
TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama)	01108
IMP—No release this day.
REX—His Return (Drama)	01109
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 201 (Topical)	01112
L-KO—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy)	01111
VICTOR—Man and Morality (Three parts—Drama)	01110
THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.
BIG U—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Drama)	01113
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
POWERS—The Rubber Rompers (Vaudeville Act)	01114
—Transporting Timber In Sweden (Edu.)	01114
FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.
NESTOR—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy)	01117
REX—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart—Interest—Drama)	01115
VICTOR—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama)	01116
SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.
BISON—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama)	01118
JOKER—No release this day.
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges At Work and At Play" (Edu.)	01119
SUNDAY, JANUARY 16, 1916.
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy)	01121
REX—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Drama)	01120
MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—The Man Inside (Five parts—Drama)	01123
NESTOR—Mingling Spirits (Comedy)	01124
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 6, "The Railroad Monopoly" (Two parts—Drama)	01140
TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—The Reward of Chivalry (Three parts—Drama)	01125
IMP—No release this day.
REX—The Silent Member (Drama)	01126
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 202 (Topical)	01129
L-KO—Saving Susie From the Sea (Comedy)	01128
VICTOR—Her Better Self (Two parts—Drama)	01127
THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.
BIG U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—Just Plain Folks (Three parts—Rural—Drama)	01130
POWERS—Building Up the Health of a Nation, No. 2 (Educational)	01131
—The Aerial Buds (Vaudeville Act)	01131
FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.
IMP—Vanity Thy Name Is (Two parts—Com.-Dr.)	01132
NESTOR—Flivvers Famous Cheese-Hound (Comedy)	01134
VICTOR—A Sea Mystery (Drama)	01133
SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.
BISON—Buck Simon's Puncher (Two parts—Western—Drama)	01135
JOKER—The Whole Jungle Was After Him (Animal—Comedy)	01137
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work No. 5, "Protecting the Ships At Sea (Educational)	01136

Mutual Film Corporation.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1916.
CASINO—Alias Mr. Jones (Comedy)	04375
MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1916.
AMERICAN—Viviana (Two parts—Drama)	04376-7
FALSTAFF—Belinda's Bridal Breakfast, (Comedy)	04378
VOGUE—Oh, for the Life of a Fire Man! (Comedy)	04379
TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1916.
BEAUTY—The First Quarrel (Comedy)	04384
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 18 Milwaukee, Wisc. (Scenic)	04383
Keeping Up with the Joneses, (Cartoon-Comedy)	04383
THANHOUSER—In the Name of the Law, (Three parts-Drama)	04380-1-2
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1916.
RIALTO—The Secret Agent, (Three parts-Secret-Service-Drama)	04385-6-7
VOGUE—A Bum Steer (Comedy)	04388
THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916.
CENTAUR—Marta of the Jungles, (Two parts-Animal-Drama)	04389-90
FALSTAFF—Reforming Rubbering Rosie, (Comedy)	04391
MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Woman in Politics (Thanhouser—5 parts—Political—Drama)	———
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 54 (Topical)	04392
FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Secret Wire, (Two parts-Drama)	04393-4
AMERICAN—Spider Barlow Meets Competition, (Crook-Drama)	04395
CUB—Jerry In Mexico, (Comedy)	04396
SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1916.
BEAUTY—Getting In Wrong, (Comedy)	04400
MUSTANG—"Water Stuff," (Three parts Comedy-Drama)	04397-8-9
SUNDAY, JANUARY 16, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Gamble (Two parts—Drama)	04401-2
CASINO—Ham and Eggs (Comedy)	04403
MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.
MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Thoroughbred (No. 54—American—Five parts—Drama)	———
TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Silent Trail (Two parts—Sociological—Drama)	04403-4
FALSTAFF—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy)	04405
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.
BEAUTY—Johnny's Birthday (Comedy)	04409
THANHOUSER—The Phantom Witness (Three parts—Mystery—Drama)	04406-7-8
THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.
FALSTAFFF—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy)	04410
MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Five Faults of Flo (Thanhouser, No. 55—5 parts—Society—Dr.)	———
FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Thunderbolt (Drama)	04416
CUB—Title Not Yet Announced	04415
MUSTANG—Wild Him Reformer (Two parts—Western—Drama)	04413-4
SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.
MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Bait (Centaur—5 parts—Drama—No. 56)

The Big Idea Behind the Big Four

IT would be a misstatement to say that we are not anxious to sell Big Four features.

It would be a GREATER misstatement to say that our anxiety to sell Big Four features is ever permitted to overshadow our consideration of your best interests.

The elimination of Pot-Luck in booking features, and the elevation of Certainty was the controlling idea back of the organization of this combination.

For this reason, we have urged with all the earnestness we command, the "Open-Booking" policy—the policy which permits the exhibitor to select that which is best suited to his patronage, and reject that which is not—and we have been untiring in our efforts to have him see PERSONALLY every picture before booking it. In other words, we seek only to sell a picture on its merits.

When it is not possible for the exhibitor to view a production, he has our assurance to so truthfully represent it that he will never have occasion to question either our good faith or our judgment.

Based unqualifiedly on this principle, we offer this week, for the consideration of the progressive, quality-building exhibitor:

ANITA STEWART and EARLE WILLIAMS, front-rank favorites, in a five-part VITAGRAPH BLUE RIBBON FEATURE, "MY LADY'S SLIPPER," by CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY.—A captivating heart-interest love story, replete with the lure of a beautiful woman's eyes and the romance of an adventure.

NANCE O'NEIL, America's gifted emotional actress, in a five-part LUBIN SOVEREIGN PLAY, "SOULS IN BONDAGE," from the pen of DANIEL CARSON GOODMAN, author of that most-talked-of novel, "Hagar Revelly."—A vivid, breath-catching problem play that will make you think and feel better for the thinking.

ANN MURDOCK, dainty darling of comedy triumphs such as "A Pair of Sixes," and RICHARD C. TRAVERS in CLYDE FITCH'S master farce, "CAPTAIN JINKS," produced by the ESSANAY COMPANY.—A shaft of sunshine, radiating sprightliness and good cheer and filled with the invigoration of a breath of cool, fresh air.

REGINA BADET, Parisian sorceress, in a five-part SELIG RED SEAL PLAY, "NO GREATER LOVE."—A play upon the heart strings of which James S. McQuade, the veteran staff writer of "The Moving Picture World," says, "Whoever views 'No Greater Love' on the screen will be the subject of a spell that is akin to the magical."

To round out this feast of genuine, prestige-building entertainment, the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial in 1.000 feet of rapid-fire highlights of the news of the world and YOUR OWN COMMUNITY—

And a two-part riotous comedy of the "Ford Flivver," with RAYMOND HITCHCOCK as supreme potentate of a galaxy of fun-makers, produced by the LUBIN COMPANY, and labelled, "THE WONDERFUL WAGER."

Just an average week's contribution to the welfare of the success-seeking exhibitor!

He who runs may read its moral.

V. L. S. E., Inc.

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

VITAGRAPH.

BY LOVE REDEEMED (Three Parts—Jan. 15—Broadway Star Feature).—The cast: Nell (Jewell Hunt); Saunders (Logan Paul); Johnny (Garry McGarry); Doctor (Anders Randolf); Allan Drew (Paul Hornung); His Mother (Mrs. C. Jay Williams); Grocery Man (Jay Dwiggins); Nurse (Belle Bruce). Written by Alice Williams. Directed by C. Jay Williams.

Nell, a motherless young girl, is continually abused by her brutal father, who is trying to make a thief out of her. In a fit of rage he one days hits her over the head with his revolver and thinking he has killed her escapes.

Four years later, Nell has apparently recovered but in reality suffers from bone-pressure, caused by the blow, and in consequence is now a petty criminal. John, a lad of her own age and her only friend, is heartbroken as he sees the girl going slowly down the crooked path of life, and the remarkable two-sided nature of the girl comes out as she rushes to help a woman struck down by an auto, then surreptitiously rifles her pocketbook.

John secures a position with Allen Drew, an artist, and when the latter needs a pickpocket model, John gets Nell the job. While she is posing the artist's best friend, Dr. Strong, a famous surgeon and student of criminology, calls and Nell succeeds in picking his pocket unobserved, but her theft is discovered. John interests the surgeon in her case. The doctor operates and Nell recovers normal mentality. She secures a position as a maid but her Nemesis, her father, appears, tries to force her to help him rob the safe. A struggle follows which results in the accidental death of her father. John receives the reward of his faith and love by Nell's promise to become his wife.

MRS. DANE'S DANGER (Four Parts—Jan. 17—Unit Program).—The cast: Alice Dane (Lillian Walker); David Dane (Wilfrid North); Rex Gordon (Donald Hall); Jasper Dicey (William Dunn); Simon Corey (L. Rogers Lytton). Written by Charles L. Gaskill. Directed by Wilfrid North.

David Dane, a rich man, much older than his wife, Alice, who is somewhat of a butterfly, is content that she amuse herself in society. They understand each other perfectly, but their attitude is misunderstood by others, who imagine them mismated and scent a flirtation between Mrs. Dane and her former admirer, Rex Gordon, man-about-town and gambler. Alice likes him, but when he attempts to make advances to her, she resents it and their friendship ceases until he apologizes and she forgives him.

Gordon is deeply indebted to Simon Corey, an unscrupulous money-lender, and, urged on by threats of exposure, enters Alice's home at night with the intention of stealing her valuable pearl necklace. At the very same time, Jasper Dicey, a "down-and-out" broker, enters for the same purpose, after having fed his hatred for Dane, who had once refused him a loan, by arousing jealous suspicions of his wife, by anonymous letters. Dane returns unexpectedly to confront the two thieves and his sleeping wife, in her bedroom.

In a frenzy of rage, Dane is about to shoot Gordon on the spot when Dicey steps forward and explains the true cause of Gordon's presence there. Mrs. Dane awakens and, horrified, begs her husband not to become a murderer, and with a sigh of relief, Dane permits the two thieves to leave unmolested. After the two rascals have gone, a happy reconciliation follows between Dane and his wife, thus Mrs. Dane's danger but cements stronger the love and faith between herself and her husband.

BITTERSWEET (Jan. 17—Unit Program).—The cast: Farmer Slater (George Stanley); Joan, his wife (Anne Schaefer); John (Webster Campbell); Bob (Lawrence Weingarten); Ruth (Corinne Griffith). Written by Daisey Smith. Directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

Farmer Slater has tyrannized over his family so long that they dare not call their souls their own. Bob, the younger son, is sullen, John, the elder, has promised to work out his college education debt on the farm. Just before his return, he has married Ruth, a light-hearted joyous city girl, who promises to "make his people her people." At the Slater farm she is chilled and browbeaten from the first; the breakfast hour is 4:30 a. m., the parlor curtains are kept down to prevent the carpet fading, etc.

Bob, angered at his father's refusal to let him attend a party, goes to the saloon, returns full of bitterness and liquor and steals money from his father's strong box. He is caught and ordered out of the house forever by his father, but Joan, his mother, for the first time, defies her husband and announces she is going with Bob. They leave, and Slater, left alone, is overcome by his rage and falls in a fit. They hear his fall and go back. As a result, Slater is an invalid for life, but a changed man, and after a life of discord, the whole family reunite in harmony and love.

A TELEGRAPHIC TANGLE (Jan. 21).—The cast includes Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. Written by Maude Bonner. Directed by Sidney Drew.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smithers have been married nearly six months and Mrs. John still nourishes the idea that her hubby is a paragon of virtue. John and his wife are to attend a lecture one night, but he meets a bunch of old college friends and renews acquaintance with mixed drinks and stacks of chips. Finding navigating extremely difficult, he spends the night in a hotel with the boys.

Next morning, when John does not show up, Mrs. Smithers, fearing some dire calamity has overtaken her hubby, anxiously calls up four of John's most intimate friends. The inquiries, "Did John spend the night with you!" brings forth from each and every one of the "wise" ones the reply, "Yes!" Each friend thinks he has done John a great favor, but when the four friends meet John, and he learns what a mess they have made, he collapses completely. Of course Mrs. Smithers realizes the deception practiced upon her, and she goes to John's office to demand an explanation.

After a heartbreaking moment, one of the boys gets an idea, rushes out and brings in a traffic cop. He then "confesses" to Mrs. Smithers that all were arrested for speeding and spent the night together IN JAIL. The cop is far-sighted and corroborates the story, which lets John out of that predicament nicely, but the cop calmly informs the boys he has been sent by the magistrate to collect the ten dollars fine which they promised to pay. All are broke, so John has to "dig down." The cop and the boys depart jubilantly, leaving John with a throbbing head, a thin bankroll and his wife with her arms around his neck begging forgiveness for her unjust suspicions.

THE SECRET SEVEN (Three Parts—Jan. 22—Broadway Star Feature).—The cast: Viola Fiori (Carolyn Birch); Sebastian (William Humphrey); Dr. Manfredi (Leo Delaney); Stephano Fiori (Templer Saxe); Rita Bellona (Rose Tapley); Paul Hampton (Harry Northrup). Written by Adolph A. Thomas. Directed by William Humphrey.

Dr. Manfredi, an Italian-American doctor, is a friend of Paul Hampton, United States Secret Service man, and accidentally stumbling upon a band of counterfeiters known as the "Secret Seven," Manfredi is sworn to secrecy by Sebastian, the villainous leader. Hampton, however, surmises what has happened from things his doctor friend tells him, and gains possession of one of the counterfeit bills. With this to work on, Hampton disguises himself and goes to work in the Italian quarter. Sebastian watches the doctor's movements and in that way discovers that Manfredi's sweetheart, Viola, is a girl he loved in Italy. He makes himself known to the girl and by threatening to inform the police that her father murdered her husband in Italy, forces her to break her engagement and marry him.

Manfredi is broken hearted, but cowed by the receipt of letters from the "Secret Seven" is cowed into submission. But Rita, a cast-off sweetheart of Sebastian's, and a member of the "Secret Seven" learns that he has married Viola and filled with jealous rage, determines on revenge. She goes to the Fiori home, where the wedding ceremony has just been completed, finds Sebastian, and upon his refusal to give up Viola, stabs him. Viola finds the body and is accused of killing Sebastian.

Viola protests her innocence, and tells the story of how he had used his hold over her father to force her into a marriage with him, and proves that her father killed a man in self-defense, only. Meanwhile, Hampton has raided the counterfeiter's den, captured Rita and the gang, and on being brought to the Fiori home, the woman confesses she killed Sebastian. Viola and Manfredi are then happily reunited.

VIM.

FRENZIED FINANCE (Jan. 21).—As brokers Pokes and Jabbs certainly live up to the name, for outside of the office furniture, their one asset is their nerve. Added to business troubles Jabbs as the real business man of the firm is driven to distraction by Pokes who, instead of attending to the office affairs, devotes all his time in flirting with Ethel, the stenographer. In despair Jabbs discharges Ethel, much to the chagrin of Pokes, who, however, dare not interfere. In vain Jabbs seeks to engage a new stenographer, but the applicants sent to him by the employment bureau only add to the worries of poor Jabbs, while Pokes sits by and enjoys the proceedings. Finally, Jabbs is forced not only to re-engage Ethel but also to employ Millie, Ethel's friend, as his own stenographer.

One of their clients enters with a large deposit which he entrusts with Pokes and Jabbs. The deposit is the largest that either members of the firm has ever handled and extraordinary precautions are employed to insure its safety. However, the modern crook resorts to unusual methods in his manner of plying his trade, so that when the client, having changed his mind about leaving the deposit in the office, returns to claim it, the partners suddenly realize that not only have the crooks stolen the money, but the safe as well. While Jabbs and the client seek the assistance of the police, Pokes devotes himself to the pursuit of the crooks and the safe. Catching up with them, he overpowers them, but during the struggle, the safe, released from control, rolls downs to the docks and falls into the harbor. However, undaunted, Pokes dives into the water after the safe and when Jabbs arrives with the police, Pokes has succeeded in salvaging the precious money.

ESSANAY.

ANGELS UNAWARES (Two Parts—Jan. 11).—The cast: Freckles (Ruth Stonehouse); Thomas Wade (Edmund F. Cobb); Grace Wade, his sister (Madge Kearns); Judge in juvenile court (Grant Foreman).

While in a fight, Freckles, a little street waif, hurls an apple through the window. Instead of running away, she goes into the house and confesses. It happens to be the home of Thomas Wade, clerk of the juvenile court, whose sister, Grace, is an invalid and longs for company. Grace tells Freckles not to worry about the broken window and the two become great friends, Freckles promising to come and see her each day. Grace tells her brother of her new acquaintance. That night Freckles is forced to aid her stepfather in a robbery and is caught. She is sent to reform school. Many days pass and Freckles does not come to see her. One night Freckles escapes from the reformatory and goes to Grace's home. She has no sooner arrived than Wade receives a message of her escape. Grace pleads with her brother to allow her to stay with them and her request is granted.

THE FABLE OF THE TWO PHILANTHROPIC SONS (Jan. 12).—The cast: Ezra (Charles J. Stine); Bill (Harry Dunkinson).

Ezra and Bill sallied forth from a straggling village in search of the uncertain female known as Dame Fortune. They found her, and accumulated Doe in bundles and bales and stacks. The walking vegetables back in the stockade heard that Ezra and Bill were batting above 400 and hoped they were getting it honestly. Ezra wanted to be remembered in his home town fifty years hence, as a benefactor, not as a guy that dealt from the bottom of the deck, so he built a library that cost him 50,000 bucks. The general criticism was that the dod-blasted thing looked like a barn, was arranged wrong, and nobody didn't want no library nohow. Bill floated into town one day. He called the boys around the cracker box and bought the cigars. He was escorted to the train and hailed as prince. Moral: In scattering seeds of kindness, do it by hand and not by machinery.

THE HOUSE OF REVELATION (Three Parts—Jan. 8.—The cast: Hon. Charles Raleigh (John A. Lorenz); Lady Denning (Marguerite Clayton); Godfrey, her brother (John Junior); Lord Howell (Jack Milton).

Lady Denning loves Hon. Charles Raleigh, but for some unknown reason is afraid of him. Sir Charles, realizing this, welcomes a message ordering him to join his regiment in Flanders. While in battle he sacrifices his arm in saving the life of Lady Denning's brother. Some time later, in London, he inherits an estate which includes a haunted castle at Lincolnshire. He goes to the castle to investigate. Opening a panel in the wall he finds the skeleton of a man. Beside it is a letter evidently written before death. It tells how the first Sir Charles had insulted a certain Lady Olive. Her cause was championed by Godfrey, who challenged Sir Charles. They agreed to throw dice to see who should commit suicide. Godfrey lost and wrote this letter before taking his life. The modern Sir Charles then understands why Lady Denning fears him. It's the atonement he must pay for the folly of his ancestor. He returns to Lady Denning, who, after hearing her brother's story, for some unexplainable reason has lost her fear of Sir Charles. He has atoned for the wrong done by his ancestor.

PIECES OF THE GAME (Three Parts—Jan. 15).—The cast: Walter Brent (Bryant Washburn); Greda Gregory (Nell Craig); Rodger Gregory, her husband (Richardson Cotten); John Lockert, a home-wrecker (Randall McAllister).

Rodger Gregory wins the love of Greda, whom Walter Brent had also wished to marry. Being good friends, Gregory insists that Brent live with them. Some time later finds the three living happily together. During a two months' absence of Brent, Gregory forms a friendship with John Lockert. Lockert becomes a regular visitor at his home. Gregory, unthinking, spends most of his leisure time working, while Lockert entertains his wife. Brent returns, and seeing trouble is sure to result, warns Gregory. Gregory refuses to listen. Finally Brent overhears Lockert proposing an elopement to Greda. She consents. Brent goes to Gregory telling him that he himself has tempted his wife and she had listened. Gregory threatens him, swearing never again to speak to him. Brent then warns Lockert to stay away from Greda. Many months pass and finally Greda tells her husband it was Lockert who had tempted her and Brent who had saved her. Their friendship with Brent is then restored after Gregory's humble apologies have been accepted.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

GRAFT NO. 3 ("The Traction Grab"—Two Parts—Dec. 27).—The cast: Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Mrs. Larnigan (Nanine Wright); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Roger Maxwell (L. M. Wells); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Boyd Penrose (W. Horne); Mabel Penrose (Mary Ruby); Jim Stevens (J. F. Abbott).

The first attempt of the Trust to have Larnigan killed having failed, they plan to ruin him politically and financially, then remove him entirely. Stone, the head of the Trust, gives his ordes to Black, over the private wire. Black does not know from whom he receives his instructions. Stone has a dictagraph arranged in Black's office to enable him to hear the conversations that take place. Tools of the Trust are called in Black's office to receive instructions. Larnigan is approached by the heads of his party, who promise him political rewards if he will line up on the side of the trusts, threatening him in case he should refuse. He defies them all, and later holds a mass meeting of the workers. He finds them ready to back him up in his fight. Black persuades Larnigan's chauffeur to drive Bruce to a certain spot in Central Park on his way home. Gunmen will be stationed there to put Bruce out of the way. Stone is listening to the conversation between Black and the chauffeur when Dorothy and Bruce call. Bruce and Stone step out into the outer office where Bruce tells him in confidence of his intention to attack the Traction Grab and asks his help should it be needed. Stone promises.

Meanwhile, Dorothy, left alone in Stone's office, picks up the receiver of the dictaphone and overhears the plot with the chauffeur. She leaves the building with Bruce and insists upon his riding in her car. She has her own reason for not telling him of the conversation she overheard. Bruce is driven to the home of Jim Stevens, a newspaper reporter, who has planned to help Bruce in his fight. They have arranged to work for the Traction Company the following day in order to secure evidence against it. Larnigan's chauffeur has rushed back in Black's office and told him of Bruce having driven off with Dorothy. Stone, listening, phones to Black to get the gunmen and place them near the Larnigan home. Black and the chauffeur start for the park. As Black steps out he is shot by the gunmen. Discovering their mistake, they place the wounded man in their car and hustle him off to the hospital.

Bruce arrives home to find his mother in tears; she has received notice of the foreclosure of the mortgage on their home. Dorothy overhears this remark and determines secretly to have the place. She gets her father to advance her a sum of money for a business venture. She tells him that she will take over the mortgage on the Larnigan home. Her father is astonished and angry, but does not show it. He had gone to considerable trouble to bring about the foreclosure. Boyd Penrose and his daughter, Mabel, call on Dorothy. Penrose is the head of the Traction Company. He intends to inspect the new subway under construction and invites the girls to accompany him and they accept.

Bruce and Stevens begin work with the conseruction gang on the subway. They get evidence that the inspector of materials is being bribed to pass inferior cement. Stevens rushes off to his paper with the article. Stone is with the editor when Stevens rushes in. The paper is controlled by the trusts and the editor has just completed an article, at the dictation of Stone, regarding the possible recall of Larnigan.

Stevens shows his article and it is promptly torn up and Stevens discharged. He goes to a rival paper, The Independent, which accepts it.

Stone heard Stevens tell about Bruce being at the subway getting evidence for the grand jury, so he goes there and finds Penrose. The latter arranges with Kelly, a tool of the trust, and foreman of the works, to send Bruce into the tunnel where they have prepared a blast. Bruce is given a dynamite cartridge to take to the spot, uncoiling the attached wire as he goes. Dorothy sees Kelly attach the other end to the explosion plunger, and, suspecting the motive, rushes after Bruce. Penrose tells Kelly to explode the cartridge in two minutes, which will give time for Penrose to reach the street. Dorothy reaches Bruce and tells him of her fears; he drops the cartridge and together they rush back to the opening. The cartridge is expolded and the defective cement in the construction causes the street to cave in. Penrose is killed. Bruce and Dorothy escape.

The Independent appears on the street with the expose of the Traction Grab, together with the news that the grand jury had returned indictments against the heads of the Traffic Trust.

GRAFT NO. 4 ("The Power of the People"—Two Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Mrs. Larnigan (Nannie Wright); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Roger Maxwell (L. M. Wells); Dorothy, his daughter (Jane Novak); St. John Dodson, head of Grain Trust (Edward Brown); Tom Larnigan (Harry Carey).

Bruce Larnigan finds himself so bitterly opposed by the administration that he resigns his office as District Attorney. He enters into an agreement with Editor Nash of the Independent, whereby he intends to continue his attacks on the criminal trusts through the press. His first effort is directed against the combine of the grain interests and the subsequent raising of the price of bread. His investigation takes him to Chicago. Stone immediately has a tough character, known as "Red Mike," sent after him with instructions that he must prevent the return of Larnigan if possible, but there will be no reward unless the fatality "looks like an accident."

Stone then sets about tearing down whatever prestige Larnigan might have remaining. He has the business men withdraw all ads from the Independent; collects the balance of stock and has the paper suspended. He gets members of the traction company to bring suit for libel against Bruce and attach his home, frightening old Mrs. Larnigan with threats of ejectment. Stone is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, and, in the absence of Bruce, proposes, but is rejected. When pressed for a reason, Dorothy tells him of the conversation she heard in his office over the dictaphone when the plot to kill Bruce was planned. Maxwell enters and hears his daughter accuse Stone. The latter does not deny his connection with the trust and tells Dorothy that her honored father is also a member.

Bruce finds evidence of much irregularity of the Grain Trust, and succeeds in catching a schooner, under orders, dumping grain overboard to create a shortage and give the trust an excuse for boosting prices. "Red Mike" has followed him like a shadow and Bruce's life was saved on more than one occasion through "Red Mike's" fear that it wouldn't "look like accident." Bruce is discovered on the boat, and, fearing that he is a spy, the crew set upon him. Bruce, badly wounded, finally jumps overboard. He is picked up by a yacht captained by his brother, Tom. Tom listens to the story of the prosecution of the Graft Trust; of the death of his father, etc. Tom swears to continue the work started by his father, and also to avenge his father and brother. He also carries with him a letter from Bruce to the woman he loves—Dorothy Maxwell.

Tom returns to New York with the evidence against the grain corner secured by Bruce. He is dumfounded to find the Independent closed; is filled with almost insane anger at finding the way his enemies have persecuted his mother, and is astounded when Dorothy announced her engagement to Stone. He does not deliver Bruce's letter. Tom has nothing left but his mission; no way to fight save through the direct medium of the people; so he holds a mass meeting and tells them the facts.

St. John Dodson, the leader of the Grain Trust, is guarded in his offices. Tom arrives at the office building occupied by Dodson, followed by the mob. He fights his way through the outer offices guarded by clerks and private watchmen and gains the private office of Dodson, locking the door behind him. Then he drags him to the window and shows him to the infuriated mob below. Dodson promises to right conditions, and in Tom's presence he phones the necessary orders to relieve the situation of the grain corner. After Tom has left, Dodson, still crazed by fear, shoots himself. Tom and his mother leave for Chicago, where they find Bruce somewhat improved.

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE.

LOVE'S PILGRIMAGE TO AMERICA (Five Parts—Jan. 10).—The cast: Bishop Dorchester (Thomas Keeswald); The Bishop's Wife (Sarah Brundage); Lulu, their daughter (Lulu Glaser); the Duke of Bilgewater (Henry Norman); Tom, his nephew (Tom Richards); Lady Mary (Adila Comer); Captain Sparks (Joe Girard); Mr. Lester (William Sloan); Mrs. Lester (A. C. Marston); Mr. Smythe (Hudson Liston); Lord Bridgewater (E. Cooper-Willis).

Lulu is the daughter of an English bishop and she loves and is loved by Tom, nephew of the Duke of Bilgewater. Lulu and Tom finally decide to tell their folks that they have become engaged. They expect a little opposition, for their respective fathers and uncle are enemies; but bravely hope to overcome it and make things right. Lulu leaves Tom at her door and goes in and gladly announces that she is to marry the duke's nephew. A scene ensues—and in the duke's castle a like scene is going on. The bishop insists that Lulu marry his curate, whom she despises, while the duke insists that Tom marry his cousin, Lady Mary, who has more brains than beauty. Tom refuses to marry his cousin and is ordered to leave the house. He and Lulu plan to elope. So they leave England to seek their fortune in America, confidently hoping to marry as soon as this is accomplished. Arrived in New York, Tom finds that the only thing he can get to do is peddling books.

Meanwhile Lulu attracts the attention of an old chap into whose office she goes, and he at once engages her to be his typewriter. Tom puts up $70 for his books and starts out to sell them. But it seems that "The Lives of the Saints" are not popular that year, and so he meets with nothing but failure. He happens into the office where Lulu is at work and there finds her struggling in the embrace of the old man. He fights with the old man and this interferences causes Lulu to be "fired." They are unable to pay their hotel bill, and stealing away they seek refuge in the park. In the morning they see an advertisement for a maid and butler, so, pretending they are married, they apply for the jobs and luckily get them. To their consternation they find that the man of the house is the same old fellow in whose office Lulu worked for a few hours. Tom, in his utter surprise, drops a whole tureenful of soup over his master.

Lulu warns the old man that if he fires Tom she will tell his wife all. So he agrees to keep his mouth shut. That night Tom and Lulu are shown to the same room. This will not do, so Tom takes his belongings and camps out in the hall. Feeling a bit cold, he steals into what he supposes to be an empty room, only to find it occupied by the cook. She chases him downstairs, where he has a bout with a burglar, who disappears leaving Tom with the bag of loot in his hands. The master and mistress come down. Tom and Lulu are taken for thieves and sent to the police station. Next morning, however, the old man is afraid to prosecute, and so thev are set free. This time in their search for work they are less fortunate. The only thing they can get is a very menial job called help's help in a large hotel. Here they wait upon the cooks and waiters and are treated with much disdain by their fellow servants.

Tom is soon fired, but Lulu keeps the job. In the park Tom is accused of stealing a purse from a fiery old man to whom he was about to restore his property. The old chap jails Tom. An old friend of Tom's comes to the hotel and visits the fiery old chap who jailed him. Lulu, who has been forced to don the attire of a bell boy to escape the attentions of a French cook, happens to be sent to their room with some drinks and hears them discussing Tom. Then she hears Tom's friend say that the Duke of Bilgewater is dead, and that his son has been killed in the trenches. She steps forward and discloses her identity. The old man, who proves to be a lawyer who is searching for Tom, asks where his lordship is. Lulu tells the old man that Tom is in jail where he put him. Tom is released and told of his good fortune. He and Lulu lose no time in getting home to England. There they are married at once and go to the castle.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 200 (Jan. 5).—Prominent Americans Sail.—Colonel House, President Wilson's personal envoy, and Brand Whitlock, Ambassador to Belgium, off for Europe.—New York City. Sub-titles: Colonel House. Brand Whitlock.

War Dance—Time honored custom is indulged in by natives.—Philippine Islands.

$800,000 Oil Tanker—The La Brea, new type of oil carrier, is launched at San Francisco, Cal.

Dinner on the Hoof—Stock yards glutted with cattle, sheep and goats that will feed thousands. —Chicago, Ill.

Latest Winter Fashions—Universal stars in newest sport coats, by courtesy of S. Heim & Sons. Sub-titles: Mary Fuller, imported Angora sweater, with fur trimmed collar, bottom and sash. Edna Hunter, Romanese silk sport coat, collar and bottom of beaver fur. Dorothy Philipps, silk sport coat, with chinchilla squirrel fur collar.

Thomas Mott Osborne—Grand jury indicts warden of Sing Sing prison, whose wonderful reform work has done much toward bettering prison conditions.—Ossining, N. Y. Sub-title: Prisoners greeting Osborne on return from a recent vacation.

Aerial Mail Service—United States Government inaugurates system bringing islands into closer touch.—Manila, Philippine Islands.

82-Mile Hurricane—Severest gale in years sweeps New England, causing death and great destruction of property.—Revere, Mass.

To Battle for Championship—Fred Fulton, young giant, who is to combat for heavyweight championship of the world.—Chicago, Ill. Sub-title: Fred Fulton (on left).

Peace Ship at Sea—Activities aboard Henry Ford's peace ship, taken in mid-ocean. Sub-titles: On the high seas. Henry Ford at compass. Executive staff. Three prominent ministers (from left to right): Dean Samuel S. Marquis, Dr. Lloyd Jenkin Jones and Dr. Charles F. Aked. Governor L. B. Hanna, of North Dakota. Lloyd Bingham, noted actor, who died on trip. Mrs. Helen Robinson, Senator from Colorado. Prominent peace delegates (from left to right): Miss Julia Wales, Mme. Schimmer, Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain and Mme. Malmberg. Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, whose peace methods are reported to have split party. The student body. The press squad. Mrs. Mary Fels presents to Henry Ford flag made by descendant of Betsy Ross, maker of first American flag. Lieutenant Jenkins and sailors of the British cruiser which escorted Oscar II into Kirkwell, Orkney Islands. Jake Greenberg, messenger who stowed away on board ship, working out his passage. Limbering up—Dr. Aked proves his agility in a game of leap-frog with Dr. Lloyd Jenkin Jones.

Cartoons by Hy. Mayer.

BISON.

ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE (Three Parts—Jan. 15).—The cast: Dixon Lee (Bill Gettinger); Teddy Ransom (Olive Fuller Golden); Hiram Ransom (William Canfield); Jose Morilla (Joe Rickman); Nina De La Guerra (Peggy Coudray); Capt. Jack Harding (Neal Hart). Written by George Marshall. Directed by Jacques Jaccard.

When Dixon Lee graduated from college, instead of following his chosen profession of civil engineer he started in to dissipate. The father of Teddy Ransom, the sweetheart of Dix, is superintendent of construction for one of the western railroads which is extending its lines into Mexico. They had experienced a great deal of trouble and Ransom had just received a report from the auditor of the road complaining of the excessive expenditure of money with such little results to show. While Ransom is trying to find the solution of these problems Dix comes in to ask for his daughter's hand. Ransom informs him that he will never consent to their engagement until Dix can show that he is able to take care of the girl. Ransom gives Dix a position with the construction gang in Mexico. Arrived in the foreign land, he notices one of the peons, a Yaquii Indian, being severely beaten by the foreman and he takes a hand, with the result that the Indian is filled with gratitude towards him.

Dixon meets the foreman and presents his letter. Dix is given work. Josee Morilla, the governor of the province in which they are working, and Jake Sheean, the foreman of the construction gang, are very chummy. Jose finds it easy to get Jake to pay him quite a sum of money for promised security, and the two are worried over Dixon's arrival, thinking that he will probably break up their system of graft. Nina, a girl of the dance halls, influenced by the money of Jose and Jake, uses her charms upon Dix, and finds him easily influenced. Dixon returns to his old habits of drinking and carousing and Jose and his confederate become careless. Although Dixon is drunk a great part of the time, he picks up many little items of information about the way the money changes hands. Jake sends in an unfavorable reports against Dixon and Ransom discharges him. Pretending to go to a house party one night, Teddy starts for Mexico. Jose decides to put Dix out of the way, and accordingly has him arrested.

Teddy's father, meanwhile, has learned of her destination and arrives on the Mexican border. The Mexican border is being patrolled by U. S. troops, who have orders to allow no one to enter Mexico because of the unsettled conditions and Ransom's ragings are fruitless. Meanwhile Teddy, having learned that there is no chance to save Dix's life, plans with the Indian whom her sweetheart befriended to have him and his tribe break into jail and release Dix. They succeed in freeing him, and also assist in aiding the fugitive to get to the engine which Teddy is holding ready for him. The Mexicans are equal to this and telegraph ahead to have the train stopped. They escape and secret themselves in a Mexican house. Upon learning that their ammunition is running low the Indian offers to go for aid and sets out for the Mexican border. He makes the trip successfullp and is picked up by a detail of Texas Rangers. He gasps out his story and they take him to the commander's tent.

Ransom sees the army officer refuse to assist, claiming that he has no power to go into Mexico. The captain of the Rangers declares that he is not under the U. S. ruling and, army or no army, he will bring them out. Meanwhile Teddy and Dix are nearly out of ammunition and Dix saves the last shot to kill Teddy with in case assistance does not arrive. He is on the verge of using it when they hear a shout and see that the Mexicans are being dispersed. The two are rescued and safely brought across the border. When Ransom sees the devotion of Teddy for Dix and learns that the boy is wakening up his real manhood he agrees to their engagement.

VICTOR.

MAN AND MORALITY (Three Parts—Jan. 12).—The cast: Harry Anstruther (Harry Myers); Rosemary Trent and Mizi (Rosemary Theby); John Stanton (Louis Leon Hall). Written and produced by Harry C. Myers.

Harry Anstruther, a wealthy young business man, is much in love with Rosemary Trent, who reciprocates his affection. During a yachting trip given by Harry to a party of friends he proposes to Rosemary. She tells him that before she can accept his proposal he must know of her earlier life, as he had repeatedly made the statement that the girl of his choice must be above all suspicion and free from any taint of scandal. Rosemary is the daughter of a retired army officer and when quite young she had been infatuated with a dashing Lieutenant in the regiment her father commanded. She had pledged her troth to the young officer and when he asked her father for her hand, consent was refused. With youthful indiscretion they eloped together to a distant city, where they take rooms in a hotel.

The suitor goes in search of a minister to perform the ceremony, while Rosemary makes ready for her coming marriage. On his way back to the hotel, the Lieutenant is killed by the stray bullet fired at a policeman by a fleeing burglar. This unfortunate accident blighted her life and it was years before she was reconciled to her father. After hearing his sweetheart's story Harry withdraws his proposal, although he still loves her deeply. The next day at the office he tells his business associates that he has to go away for his health and in an effort to forget Rosemary takes charge of the branch house in the Philippines.

Arriving at the headquarters in a native village far in the interior of the Islands he finds that with the exception of the branch manager, John Stanton, he is the only white man within miles. The enervating surroundings combined with his despair over his shattered romance make him take to drinking to excess. Stanton tries to save Harry, but the latter refuses to heed the words of his companion. When Stanton returns to the States he leaves Harry behind. Mizi, a native dancer, attracts his attention and he takes an interest in her. This native bears a striking resemblance to Rosemary, which fact impresses Harry.

His irregular life has wrought many sharp changes in him and he begins to show signs of debauchery. The dancing girl is constantly in attendance upon him, which arouses the jealousy of her native lover, Toto, who kills her during a quarrel. In the meantime Stanton has arrived in New York. While attending a reception he recognizes Rosemary from a photograph of her he had seen in Harry's possession. He seeks an introduction and tells her of Harry and the life he is leading. He says that she can still save him if she will go to the Philippines. Rosemary sets out to try to save Harry. She reaches his quarters to find him in the throes of a delirium, but when he recovers he finds her at his side and seeks forgiveness. They plan to return home and make up for the happiness they have lost.

THE RING AND THE RAJAH (Jan. 14).—Captain Blayne is the English resident officer at the court of the Rajah of one of the native States of India. One day Blayne saves the Rajah from a murderous attack by a native fanatic. The Rajah, is about to kill the would-be assassin, when Blayne interferes and points out that the man is deranged. To show his gratitude to the man who saved him the Rajah places on Blayne's finger a valuable ring. Later the Rajah goes to England, and with Blayne in his entourage, visits the garrison to which Blayne's old regiment is attached. Edith, the Colonel's daughter, is the girl whose photograph Blayne has carried with him all through his service in India. When Edith is presented to the Rajah, Blayne is pleased that the Rajah should show so much interest in the girl. He does not dream that the first sight of Edith has filled the Rajah with a fierce desire to make her one of his wives.

The Rajah, alone on the veranda, is the prey of jealous rage. The Rajah glances through the doorway to the ballroom. There stands Blayne, the man who is between him and his heart's desire. The Rajah turns to his body-servant and tells him to make way with the person he sees. But Blayne and Edith have changed places—and Forak sees not Blayne but Edith. It is not for Forak to question his master. If his master wishes the girl killed, the command shall be obeyed.

Forak follows Blayne and Edith when they stroll out through the garden. He creeps close when Blayne tells Edith of his love. Blayne places on his sweetheart's finger the ring the Rajah gave him; it is too large and it slips from her finger to the ground. The watchful Forak picks it up, and creeps away to his master's apartments, where he paints the inside of the ring with a powerful poison while the Rajah looks on. He then returns to the gardens and manages to toss the ring to a spot where Edith finds it. Blayne again slips the ring over her finger, and they set out on their return to the ballroom.

Edith is overcome by the poison and is slowly sinking when the Rajah snatches off the ring. Edith revives. The Rajah, contrite, beseeches her to forgive him. She does not know that her strange seizure has been due to his murderous jealousy; but she has not forgotten the insult of his love-making. She draws away from him and goes into the ballroom with Blayne. The Rajah is overwhelmed by his emotions. He looks at the ring. Slowly he presses it over his own finger.

REX.

HIS RETURN (Jan. 11).—The cast: Bill (Jack Bryce); Mary, his wife (Miss Mae Gaston); Loraine, an artist (Raymond Russell); His Mother (Miss Helen Wright). Written by Helen Bailey. Directed by Cleo Madison.

Bill is a truck driver. He and his wife, Mary, live in their little cottage, but are denied the blessing of children. Mary spends her spare time in looking over baby clothes and pictures of babies, and one day while looking over the paper she sees an ad for a woman to pose as a mother at a certain studio. She determines to use this opportunity to play mother and seeks out the studio mentioned. She is the ideal type that the artist has been looking for, and the expression of her mother love when the child is placed in her arms justifies the artist in his selection. She keeps her posing a secret from her husband, but he notices the change in her and how happy she seems to be.

One day on the regular route he has a box to deliver at the studio. The artist is at work and hears a knock at the door. He tells Mary to step behind the screen and on opening the door Bill comes in with the box. Placing the

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$3.50
Fifty Thousand $5.00
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

box near the screen Bill knocks the screen over and discovers his wife, clad in draperies. He flies into a terrific rage and refuses to accept her explanation; then after threatening the artist with death unless he takes care of the girl, Bill leaves. Mary is heart-broken and the artist's mother, coming in at the time, comforts her. Bill becomes a typical bum and loafs around the country for a year. Finally the longing to see his wife overcomes him and he sets out for their home town.

Mary, thrown upon her own resources, is compelled to pose for the artist regularly. The artist and his mother have been very kind to her, and the mother especially has watched over her. Mary is blessed with a child of her own and is posing for another picture. Bill stumbles into the room and finds his wife alone with the child, the artist having stepped out for a moment. There is a dramatic scene between the husband and wife, and when Bill learns the child is his the two are happily reconciled.

HER DEFIANCE (Two Parts—Jan. 14).—The cast: Adeline (Cleo Madison); Theron Gabler (Ted Duncan); Frank Warren (Edward Hearn); Old Scapin (Willis Marks); Mrs. Warren (Adele Farrington).

Theron Gabler and his sister, Adeline, live together in a small country town. Old Scapin the village Croesus, has long had his eye on Adeline—he not only covets the beauty of the girl, but wants her especially for her fitness in taking care of his household. Although old enough to be her father, he had frequently forced his suit upon the brother and the latter had made tentative arrangements with him.

Frank Warren, the son of a wealthy man, comes to the town to look upon some data on one of his father's investments. He meets the girl and a mutual attraction develops between them. His stories of his life and of the city are a never-ending source of delight to the girl. The brother notices several meetings between the two and forbids his sister to have anything to do with the city chap. In the past she had always considered her brother's word as law, but she now openly defies him and glories in her new found love of Warren.

Finally one night, Adeline and Warren are together until one o'clock. When she returns home her brother in his furious anger almost strikes her. They have a heated argument and the girl stands up for Warren, claiming that he is going to marry her, while brother insists that the city man is only playing with her and in mad rage leaves for the hotel where Warren is stopping to get satisfaction from him. Warren, meanwhile, has received a telegram from home requesting him to hurry back and hastily writing a note to Adeline, he manages to catch the last train out. Theron arrives at the hotel, finds Warren gone, and is given the note left for his sister. In his rage he tears the letter up and returns home telling his sister that Warren has skipped out. The girl, numb with grief, loses all pleasure in life, and when her brother insists upon her marriage to old Scapin she has not energy enough to resist the proposition and she and Scapin are married.

When the marriage is completed, the old man tries to force his attentions upon her and she becomes furiously angry, and striking him, leaves the house in a rage. She secures a horse and buggy outside and hastening to the station gets a ticket for the city in which Warren lives. Her brother and old Scapin pursue her; their buggy is overturned and old Scapin is killed. Warren has confessed his love for the girl to his father and the latter unable to get the boy to give her up, starts an investigation about the girl's character. In this way, Frank learns of her marriage to old Scapin and thinking he has lost her forever tries to put her out of his heart.

Many years pass. In the city, Adeline has found it hard to make a living and especially so when a child arrives. She secures work as a scrub woman in one of the office buildings and because she has no one to leave baby with, is forced to take it along with her. One day while she is working in the building, the baby begins to cry and Warren disturbed by the noise investigates. He finds the baby and is looking for the owner when Adeline, hearing the child's cry, hurries back and the two confront each other. Adeline accuses Warren of being a coward and a cad for leaving her, while, he anxious to make up with her, tells of his hasty departure, the reason of it, and of learning later that she had married. Explanations follow and there is a happy reconciliation between the two.

L-KO.

GERTIE'S BUSY DAY (Jan. 12).—The cast: The Girl (Gertrude Selby); The Boy (Reggie Morris); The Bug Catcher (Dave Morris); The Fat Friend (Fatty Voss).

Gertie is feeding the park swans by way of amusement when Reggie sees her from the opposite side of the lake and tries to flirt with her. She snubs him, for she thinks he is a little too fresh, and he decides to tease her by enticing the swans to his side of the shore. This provokes her for the time, but finally leads to a flirtation.

Later, admirers of all types, sizes and ages break in and try to cut out Reggie, but he manages to turn the tables on them and sets them all fighting. They forget Gertrude and try to annihilate each other and the lovers laugh at them and she congratulates Reggie on being rid of his would-be rivals.

FLIRTATION A LA CARTE (Jan. 16).—The cast: Dick (Dick Smith); Phil (Phil Dunham); Alice, Phil's Wife (Alice Howell).

Dick and Phil quarrel with their wives and leave their homes in bad tempers. Phil's wife decides to get even and goes forth to flirt on her own account, but is only frightened for her pains. Finally she flirts with Dick and is surprised by Phil and runs home. Dick and Phil quarrel and when separating vow vengeance on each other.

That night they meet in a gambling room and Phil tries to cheat Dick, who catches him at it and a fight ensues. The police take a hand and Phil and Dick are chased from the rooms. Phil gets clear, but Dick is hard pressed and only evades the officers by getting in Phil's house, where he hides under the bed. Phil catches him and they fight. The police hear as Alice screams and break in and take a hand. They find there some of the gambling gang and all battle until knocked out.

GOLD SEAL.

THE BOOB'S VICTORY (Two Parts—Jan. 11).—The cast: Boob (Robert Leonard); Detectress (Ella Hall); Detective (Marc Robbins); Farmer Higgins (Kingsley Benedict). Written and produced by Robert Leonard.

Although the Boob is a common farm laborer, he has ambitions to become a detective. Accordingly he subscribes for a book on the subject by a "famous" detective. There is little leisure to be found on a farm, however, and Farmer Higgins is unable to understand the ambition of his hired hand. The Boob tries some of his disguise tricks on the farmer, but they are unsuccessful and the result is that he is fired. Wandering to a summer resort nearby, he secures a position as waiter at the hotel. Here he has more leisure and spends his spare time in earnest study of how to become a detective.

A new arrival lands at the hotel and makes an impression on the Boob. He spends most of his time during the meal hours at her table and is severely reprimanded by the head waiter for neglecting the other patrons. The new arrival is in reality a detectress, and with her companion, a well known detective, has been sent to the hotel to try to break up the operations of a gang of crooks who have been burglarizing hotels and resorts. The Boob falls in love with the detectress. One day she sees his book in his pocket and questions him regarding his ability. He successfully answers some of her questions and she encourages him in his study.

The detectress and her companion get a line on a bunch of crooks. The Boob, while resting in a hammock, overhears the crooks plotting a robbery for that night, and on consulting his manual finds that the proper thing to do is to keep all information to yourself, and later get the drop on the crook first, then consult an officer. That night the detectress follows one of the criminals to the room in the hotel and hears him rummaging among things. She tries to get in the door, and in the excitement the crook escapes. Her companion comes to her assistance and together with the manager they open the door, but find no evidence of any one present.

The Boob meanwhile has been right on the job and when the crooks attempt to escape he confronts them with a drawn revolver and marches them back to the hotel. He is met by the detectress and her companion and tells them of catching the crooks. As the story ends the Boob, elated by his victory, secures the consent of the detectress to give him some first-hand knowledge of detective work.

BIG U.

"X-3" (Three Parts—Jan. 13).—The cast: Henshaw (Murdock MacQuarrie); Andre Cuneo (Eddie Polo); John Gordon (Walter Rogers); Jim Bryson (Arthur Moon); Frank Hilton (Millard K. Wilson); Ethel Gordon (Edythe Sterling); Chief of Secret Service (William White). Written by James Dayton. Directed by Jay Hunt.

Word is received by the government officers that Andre Cuneo, a notorious counterfeiter, having served sentence in Italy, has been liberated and is headed for America. John Henshaw, a Secret Service detective, is put on the case. The counterfeiter escapes arrest at the boat by getting over the side, where he is picked up by accomplices. Henshaw, missing him, is reprimanded by the office and the case is given to another man. Henshaw is heart-broken, but determines to take up the case on his own account.

John Gordon, teller of a bank in the city, is a member of the gang, who is called by the name of "X-3" in their dealings, and it is through him that the counterfeit money is circulated. Gordon has a daughter, Ethel, who is in love with Frank Hilton, a moving picture actor. After a few months' time Gordon decides to abandon the gang and live straight for his daughter's sake. He notifies the gang of his intention and they swear to get even. A few nights later Gordon quarrels with Hilton about his daughter. They part in anger, the girl being a witness to part of their quarrel.

Later that night Andre and Bryson come to Gordon's house. It is late and a bitter quarrel ensues between Bryson and Gordon, the former threatens exposure. Gordon loses his head and draws a gun and in the scuffle is killed. The murderers escape and the next day Hilton is accused of the crime and arrested. Henshaw makes the existence of this company possible. We have successfully been doing business for more than six years. We operate NOW the most efficient film factory in America. We are building—and have nearly completed—the most modern and completely equipped laboratory and studio in the world.

Entire Satisfaction to Our Customers

PERFECT DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE COMPANY

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, President

223-233 West Erie Street - - Chicago

reads the account, goes to the house and is begged by the daughter to clear Hilton. He agrees to do so. He obtains finger impressions of the murderers and later an impression of the finger prints on one of the counterfeit bills. He shadows Bryson and through this locates the counterfeiters' den.

Meanwhile the police have given up the search, as all evidence points to Hilton. Henshaw engages an apartment in the same building with Bryson, taps the telephone line and overhears a conversation between the counterfeiter and Bryson. He notifies the police and lays in wait outside their door. Bryson, coming to the den, finds him there. He gets the rest of the gang and they overpower Henshaw and take him to the basement. He is bound and fastened to a trap, which is to be sprung by a candle burning the rope in two. The counterfeiters pack up their belongings and attempt to leave. They are taken by the police before they can get away; they do not tell, however, about the capture of Henshaw.

The trap is sprung but the rope breaks throwing Henshaw into a sewer and from which he later escapes through underground sewers. Henshaw arrives at headquarters—proves that Bryson and Andre are guilty of Gordon's murder and Hilton is released. There is a happy reunion between Hilton and Ethel, who lays the consummation of their happiness to Henshaw.

NESTOR.

THE BOY, THE GIRL AND THE AUTO (Jan. 10).—The cast: Ray (Ray Gallagher); Neal (Neal Burns); Billie (Billie Rhodes); Mr. Smith (Harry Rattenbury); His Wife (Jean Hathaway); Ethel, his stenographer (Ethel Lynn). Scenario by Al. E. Christie. Directed by Horace Davey.

Ray and Neal are both suitors for the hand of Billie and it appears to be an even race until Ray buys a Ford, and from that time on Neal is left in the distance. Neal tries to get himself a car, but an audit of his accounts show hardly enough money to rent a machine, much less buy one. While he is despairing he sees an advertisement in the paper requesting a driver for the car of Mr. Smith. He calls upon Mr. Smith in answer to the advertisement. Mr. Smith is getting along in years, but his wife is very jealous of him and on every occasion she cautions her husband upon familiarity with his stenographers. Neal lands the job and his first trip is to take Mrs. Smith to the matinee. Thinking that Mrs. Smith will be in there for several hours, Neal hurries to Billie's house and finds Ray waiting for the girl. When Billie comes out and sees Neal in the big car Ray is forgotten and the two young people have an enjoyable ride.

Mrs. Smith, meanwhile, disgusted with the show, returns to where the car was left and finds it gone, she sets out for her husband's office in a bad mood. Mr. Smith thinks a great deal of Ethel, his stenographer, and his wife comes into the office when Ethel is in Mr. Smith's private office. She expresses determination to burst into the office, but to verify her suspicions she attempts to peer through the keyhole. The chief clerk, however, warns Mr. Smith of his wife's presence and Smith tips his stenographer and begins to give her a calling down. The stenographer leaves the room in tears and Mrs. Smith determines that her suspicions had been unjust.

Neal returns, using the old excuse of a broken down engine and gets away with it. Billie likes Neal and his big car so much that she asks him to take her shopping the next day and he promises to call for her. Next day he takes Smith to his office and then hurries to meet Billie. He takes his girl around town and after the shopping expedition has been finished he returns home with her. Mrs. Smith has meanwhile found a lady's handkerchief in her husband's coat pocket and determines to have it out with him. On the way to the office she sees Neal and Billie and decides that Smith has allowed his stenographer to use the car.

Neal hurries back to the office and is waiting for Smith when Billie, having missed her purse, hurries in and seeing the car gets into it. Neal is in a hard fix for a moment, but tells Billie the car is broken down and, she being in a hurry, does not wait. Mr. and Mrs. Smith both confront him and he is unable to deny having the girl out. It all ends up by Neal getting fired, and as he goes dejectedly down the street Ray and Billie in the Ford pass him by and give him the laugh.

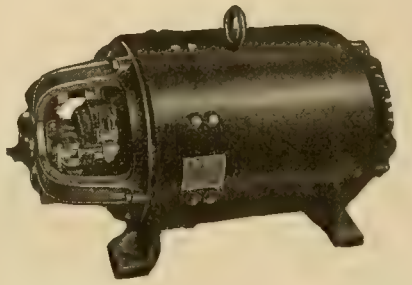
FLIVVER'S GOOD TURN (Jan. 14).—"My daughter shall only marry a Hero," so quoth Mrs. Higgins, and poor Archibald was ignominously pushed out of the house. "If I could only find Flivver, he would help me," thought Archibald, and having found him surrounded by a bevy of beauty, pours out his woes into the sympathetic ear of the ever-ready-to-help Flivver.

All Flivver has to do is to disguise himself as a burglar—break into their house—make as much noise as possible to wake up the old lady, then give her a good thrashing, whistle, and Archibald is to rush in, secure Flivver and marry his Lady-love. Flivver is highly amused and consents, but, needless to say, makes a horrible mess of everything.

He breaks into the wrong house, and real burglars into the right one, is pursued by the police and only manages to escape by the loss of his trousers.

HALLBERG

20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR



GIVES BEST LIGHT

Costs Only

$249

For 30 to 70 Amp. D. C. Capacity.

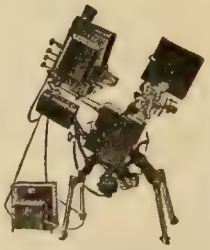
$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arc's—or $50 extra for control for (2) 30-40 amp. arc's on fine switchboards with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat—No live part on front of boards.

For 110 or 220 volt, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

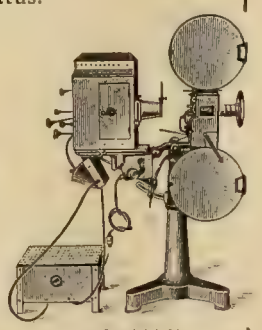
Weight, 450 lbs. Height, 15″ Width, 15″; Length, 28″.

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted Upon Request

I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.



POWER'S 6A



"SIMPLEX"

Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue, send 25 Cents.

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY AND CARRY ALL MAKES CARBONS AND SUPPLIES.

Send $2.50 for latest Operators' Book "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

J.H. HALLBERG SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER

38 East 23d St. The House of Quality New York

VICTOR.

THE HEART OF A MERMAID (Three Parts—Jan. 5).—The cast: Algae, the little mermaid (Mary Fuller); Bailey Dryden (Glen White); Tommy Taber (Paul Panzer); Dora Wainwright (Sydell Dowling); Her Mother (Marie Shotwell).

Bailey Dryden, a young millionaire, collects together his chums for a last voyage on his yacht before becoming a Benedict. The yacht is anchored near Mermaid Rock. There is a legend about the rock of a young mermaid who lives there and can assume human form every hundred years if she desires. The young men are delighted with the tale, and as Bailey stares at the rock the mermaid rises out of the water and beckons to him to come. Bailey, dumfounded, calls his chums, but when they have reached his side the mermaid disappeared. The next day Bailey visits the rock himself and finds the mermaid asleep with her arm about a baby seal. As the young millionaire approaches the sea myth, she throws her arms around him, and then suddenly disappears. He returns to the boat, but will not explain his strange actions to his friends, and, fearing he is unbalanced, they send word to his fiancee to come at once.

Next day by means of a fish the mermaid sends him a message asking him to meet her at full moon on the rocks. His friends, sure that his mind is affected keep close watch upon him, and when he steals out that night to keep the engagement, his chum, Taber, tries to stop him. A struggle ensues and he is forced to gag and tie Taber to keep him quiet.

Bailey and the little mermaid meet, and she tells him that she can assume human form and live with him always until he tires of her. She, then, assumes the shape of a human being, and Bailey carries her back to the yacht. He tells Taber and the captain he found her on the rocks. There are no feminine costumes on the yacht so Bailey borrows a loose suit from the Chinese butler and she dresses in the Chinese costume.

Next morning the mermaid is introduced to the young men, who are enchanted with her. She refuses to wear shoes of any kind, and she is happy in the new mode of living. In the midst of her joy Dora and her mother arrive. In a panic the men try to hide Algae, but when she sees Bailey kiss his fiancee she is filled with jealousy and throws herself past the men into Bailey's arms. Bailey explains matters to the mother and daughter, and asks Dora to lend the girl a few of her gowns. The Dryden fortune is too large to risk losing, so Dora, at her mother's mention, agrees to Bailey's request. Algae does not understand why Dora is permitted to go about in a dimunitive bathing suit, while Bailey covers her up hurriedly when she appears in a bodice and short skirt. Her last escapade brings down Bailey's wrath upon her. She has refused to wear shoes and stockings that evening although dressed in an evening gown, and, when pursued by the irritated Bailey, she dives overboard—ball gown and all.

Bailey punishes her by refusing to speak to her, and sends her to her room to change her gown. To punish her further he purposely makes love to Dora just outside the porthole of Algae's room. Algae hears him—believes he has tired of her, and, without stopping to question, the little mermaid casts off the dresses she wears and dives back into the sea nevermore to assume human form. Too late, Bailey discovers he loves her. She is gone. He is forced to set sail without her. On the rocks the little mermaid sobs her heart out, while he stands gazing out at sea.

Taber lays a hand on his shoulder, and—with a start he awakens—it has all been a dream. With a sigh at the charm of his dream he finished the letter to his fiancee, and then thinks once more of the little mermaid whom he loved and lost.

POWERS.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 2 ("How Uncle Sam Gets His Coin"—Jan. 1).—This is the first time that moving pictures of the mint and the Bureau of Engraving have ever been made. The first scene shown is the interior of the Bureau of Engraving, where the paper money and stamps are manufactured. Every phase of the way in which the paper is handled that later is converted into greenbacks is accurately depicted. Many fine close-ups give an excellent idea of the intricate machinery required. Splendid exterior views of the buildings are shown as well as the interiors.

A feature of the film is the manufacture of a $50 bill from the minute the designer receives his instructions until it is turned out ready for circulation among those fortunate enough to be able to own a bill of that denomination. The process includes the engraving of the plate for the bill, the transfer of the die to the plates, which are hardened by immersion in powerful acids, the manufacture of the inks with which the bill is printed and finally the printing of the bill.

The postage stamp machine, which performs twenty-one separate operations at the same time, the gumming machine and the feeding of the gummed sheets into the complicated machine, which turns out 4,000 perfect stamps a minute, is one of the most interesting sights in this picture.

The workings of the mint at Philadelphia, where most of our gold and silver is coined, are most instructive and gives a clear insight into the heretofore secret department. All the machinery used is shown with perfect detail. Other features of the picture are the Treasury Building, the money laundry, where the dirty bills are washed, canceled bills, the Washington Monument, a fine close-up picture of Secretary McAdoo, Uncle George Williams, who has been employed in the Treasury for fifty years, and many more scenes of universal interest.

BUILDING UP THE HEALTH OF A NATION," LESSON NO. 1 (Jan. 6.—On the same reel with this educational picture is a comedy subject entitled "Carl Emmy and His Dogs." A synopsis of this can be found on page 131 of the issue dated January 1.)

Every exercise which has raised hundreds of men from weaklings to strong, sturdy specimens of manhood will be revealed before the lens. The great feature of this system of exercise is that it requires no apparatus to follow it, and it is free and within the reach of every person who cares to take advantage of the opportunity presented them to regain vitality and to glow with health.

The body is a machine much more delicate than the works of your watch, which you take care of because you know that if the works get out of order that your watch will not run. This fascinating and instructive picture will show you how you can take care of your body and keep it in the same running condition that you keep your watch in.

As a film feature this has never been surpassed, and it is the first time that the screen has been used to show health building exercises before the public. Every movement is slowly and carefully shown so that any person in the audience will be able to go home and perform the same exercise without a mistake.

Bernarr McFadden, who will be featured in this series of calisthenic pictures, shows in the picture how he built up his magnificent physique and promises that if you follow his instructions that you can acquire the same type of development.

Mutual Film Corp.

THANHOUSER.

THE BUBBLES IN THE GLASS (Three Parts—Jan. 4).—The cast: The Girl (Lorraine Huling); Her Fiance (Harris Gordon); Worker in Vineyard (Ethel Jewett); a Glass Blower (Morris Foster); His Sweetheart (Madeline Fairbanks); Benton (Thomas A. Curran); His Wicked Wife (Kathryn Adams); a Dissolute Clerk (George Marlo).

The girl was proud of her fiance as he presided at a "little dinner" he was giving. It was to be their last meal together for some time, he explained, for he was "going on a journey." When the banquet was over he refused to accompany the others to the opera, murmuring a polite excuse about a "business engagement." But he waved goodbye to them gaily, and seemed thoroughly happy and free from care. Yet the girl, who loved him, had a feeling that something was wrong, and while at the opera, her attention wandered from the songs and singers to the man they had left smiling in the restaurant.

Something was wrong. Careless expenditures had ruined the man the friends thought wealthy, and "the journey" he talked of was a journey he planned—to the other world. The last glass of wine was in the bottle; he would sip that, and then end it all. Then it seemed to him that the bubbles winked back at him, and he saw, or believed he saw, a tragedy of the vineyard. There was a beautiful girl, a worker in the vineyard, and she had two suitors. That interested him for the girl he loved had another suitor, and sometimes the man who planned a journey was jealous too. The men in his vision fought for the woman, and the one who was victor fled for his life, only to fall a victim to his pursuers. The girl had watched the chase with staring eyes, and when she saw the end, she fell fainting to the ground.

In another vision he saw a tragedy of the wine presses, a woman who fooled a man who loved her to gain vengeance upon the man she hated. And when the efforts of the fool came to naught, and he was led away to punishment, the woman he adored disowned him, and fawned upon the man she hated.

HEINIE & LOUIE

At the Strand Theatre, New York City

JAMES AUBREY

IN THE "HEINIE & LOUIE" PICTURES

SOME SENSATIONAL RIOT

In a STARLIGHT COMEDY Entitled

"Deep Dyed Dubs"

Especially selected for the New Year's Week Attraction by the GREATEST MOVING PICTURE THEATRE IN THE UNIVERSE.

Had the audience rocking in their seats with real laughter.

WALTER KENDIG

AS "LOUIE" IN THE

"HEINIE & LOUIE" COMEDIES

Following With Another Big Laughing Hit THIS WEEK

"A Squabble for a Squab"

On the PATHE PROGRAM—All Over the World.

The Best One-Reel Comedies Made To-day. Created at the

MITTENTHAL

STUDIOS AND LABORATORIES, YONKERS, N. Y.

It was wonderful wine—that last glass, somehow it seemed to tell him a story of many incidents of its career. Some were pleasant, others not and the man mused over them. For the first time he realized his own insignificance. A soft arm entwined itself around his neck, two beautiful eyes gazed pleadingly into his, and the sweet voice of the girl spoke awakening him from his reverie.

She had been worried, she said, and had hurried away from the opera. From his few words and his actions, she had guessed his secret. His money was gone—well, what of that? Love and health remained, and with those happiness was assured, and with a loyal wife by his side, he could fight his way back to fortune.

A realization of his folly came to the man. He told the girl that her love would make him live. He picked up his glass, and holding it high in air cried: "Here's to the life I will live in the future, the life I will live to make me worthy of you."

He took a sip of the wine, then held it to her lips. She drank, and the glass fell unheeded to the floor, as he took her in his arms. And there it lay shattered—the bubbles in the glass slowly vanishing, as the bubbles of folly and extravagance vanished from his own life, never more to return.

AMERICAN.

VIVIANA (Two Parts—Jan. 10).—The cast: Viviana (Vivian Rich); George (George Periolat); Harry (Leslie Reed); Viviana's Mother (Silvia Ashton); Adele (Marion Christie).

At the death of her father, Viviana is forced to seek employment. She obtains a position in a photographer's establishment. There she meets George Perry, a wealthy young man about town, and he is attracted by the girl. When she leaves that evening, George in his high power car is waiting for her. Waiting for Viviana becomes a daily affair with George, and at length he succeeds in inducing the girl to accompany him to a cafe, instructing her to tell her mother that she must work that evening. Meanwhile George's sister, Adele, is flattered by the attention of Harry Fowler, a matinee idol. The two become constant companions. Drink and carousing cause Fowler's discharge. Reaching his batchelor apartment, he finds a note from Adele, in which the girl agrees to his suggestion that they elope. Perry receives a call from an old college chum, who is interested in uplift work. Personal aid of Perry is solicited.

Viviana returns one night to the studio for her forgotten purse, and is asked to deliver a delayed package addressed to George Perry. She goes to his apartment, and Perry, delighted, induces the girl to remain for a time. Perry steps across the hall into the room of Fowler, where he finds the note that his sister has written to the actor. Then he encounters Adele in the hall. Angrily he tells her that Fowler is married, and in reply to Perry's denunciation of him, Fowler taunts Perry about the girl in his own room.

Adele has learned her lesson and so has Perry. As his sister leaves, George returns to his apartment, and takes Viviana in his own car to her own home. Perry awakens to a realization of his wasted time and misspent energies. He resolves to devote himself to the big work of human helpfulness. He joins his chum Howarth in his work at a mission, where he helps care for the poor, and among other things holds out a helping hand to a chorus girl, whom Fowler has started in a downward path. At length Perry proves to his own conscience that he is worthy of Viviana's love. He goes to her and asks her to become his wife, and in a burst of happy tears she gives her promise.

THE SECRET WIRE (Two Parts—Jan. 14).—The cast: Harold Locke (Harold Lockwood); Vera Strong (May Allison); Milton Strong (Harry Von Meter); Jed King (William Stowell).

Harold Locke is a "trouble shooter" employed by a telephone company to keep its lines in order. He is sent by his "boss" to install a telephone extension in the room of Vera Strong, the pampered daughter of Milton Strong, millionaire. He is attracted by the fresh beauty of the girl, while she is impressed with the handsome vigor of the young lineman.

It is Vera's birthday, and as a gift to his daughter Milton Strong purchases a high priced motor car. Jed King, who sells the car to Strong, is an auto salesman by day and an auto bandit by night. He decides that his patron shall also be his victim, and he and his gang lay plans accordingly. King volunteers to teach Vera to drive the car. She accepts his proffered services, and King drives to a secluded spot where, by prearranged plan, his fellow bandits pounce upon them. Vera is seized and is to be held for ransom.

Locke is sent to locate a secret wire which long has baffled the telephone officials. It is a connection between Jed King's auto office and the rendezvous of the crooks. While searching for the connection, Locke is a witness to the kidnapping of Vera. He summons the police, then, single handed, he flies to the girl's rescue. After a revolver fight in speeding autos, the bandits escape with the captured girl. Locke trails them to an abandoned shack, where he is overpowered, bound hand and foot and cast into an attic room with Vera, who also is bound by her captors.

In a fit of wrath, King, the bandit leader, sets fire to the house. The bandits flee and Locke and Vera are left to a tortuous death in the flames. But the police arrive unexpectedly. The crooks are engaged in a hand to hand fight and eventually are overpowered. Then the burning house is entered. Locke and Vera emerge through the smoke and flame, he having been able to loose the ropes and carry the half conscious girl to safety.

The adventures of the day are the start of romance. Friendship ripens into love. The young lineman proves his worth, and Vera becomes his wife. Before the two opens the rosy vista of a long and happy life together.

SPIDER BARLOW MEETS COMPETITION (Jan. 14).—The cast: Willard Dale (Ed Coxen); Peggy Dale (Winifred Greenwood); Spider Barlow (George Field); Spike (Sid Algier).

The morning paper contains a brief item to the effect that Willard Dale, the wealthy young District Attorney, has given his wife a handsome and costly jeweled necklace. The news item has peculiar significance for Spider Barlow and his pal, Spike. Spider plans a campaign. They pose as a team of odd-job gardeners and obtain employment at the Dale home. They at once proceed to learn "the lay of the land." The Dales plan to go that night to a masquerade ball. Willard Dale forgets to order his costume, but at the last moment has an idea. He puts on a mask and some rough clothes and goes dressed as a burglar.

The policeman on the Dale's beat invites the Dale maid to go that night to the Policeman's ball. The house is left empty and Spider and Spike make a leisurely survey of the premises. They find the empty necklace case on Mrs. Dale's dresser and know they will have to wait for her return to get the necklace. They clean up the silver and Spike leaves while Spider remains. Upon returning home Dale playfully puts on his mask and amuses his wife by breaking through the front door as a burglar. Once inside they suspect the presence of real burglars and in the excitement Dale forgets to take off his mask. The hunt starts and there is a most confusing mix-up. Mrs. Dale runs into her husband and takes him for the real burglar. Later she runs into Spider and takes him for her husband. It is then that the necklace becomes Spider's.

The policeman accompanies the maid home and enters the complication. He also mistakes Dale for the real burglar and there is a scuffle in which Dale is compelled to "knock out" the cop. Spider makes a tranquil exit. Dale promises to get another necklace for his wife who tearfully admits that "everything will be all right."

THE GAMBLE (Two Parts—Jan. 16).—The cast: John Gordon (Harold Lockwood); James Hastings (Harry Van Meter); Philip Leland (William Stowell); Jean Hastings (May Allison).

John Gordon, owner of vast wheat fields, finds his labors awarded by a bumper crop, and decides to increase the scope of his activities. He visits James Hastings, a Chicago broker, and from Hastings buys an area of land adjoining his own. While on his business mission in Chicago, Gordon meets with Jean, who is Hastings' daughter, and at once is struck with the beauty and demure sweetness of the girl. Gordon returns to the West, where he finds Philip Leland, an English ne'er do well, son of wealthy parents, who has drifted from bad to worse. He gives Leland employment in his wheat fields.

James Hastings, Jean's father, plunges heavily in wheat hoping to execute a coupe. He loses all and in depths of despair, he ends his life with a bullet. Jean is left alone on the world, and Gordon, learning of her father's untimely end, hastens to Chicago to comfort the girl. The two become friends. At length Gordon proposes, and Jean accepts. She returns with Gordon to a lonely life of the wheat fields.

The months wear on. Leland, whom Gordon has befriended, falls deeply in love with his employer's bride. Gordon, intent on the work he has to do, unconsciously neglects his bride, and Leland with persistent effort is finding a way into Jean's heart. Gordon comes upon them one day riding together in the fields, and for the first time he realizes that Jean is finding a life apart from him. Jealousy shakes Gordon and he goes to Leland with the intention of killing him. Leland, however, flaunts in his face the declaration that he (Leland) has won the love that Gordon never possessed. Thunderstruck, Gordon declares that Jean herself shall choose between the two. The two confront her, and tearfully she throws herself into the arms of her husband. Leland is astonished. Then comes an Indian squaw carrying a papoose. She is Leland's lawful wife. Leland flees, and the burdened squaw follows him.

From then on fortune smiles on Gordon. Gordon is financially able to give Jean her heart's desire, but her heart's desire has changed, and finds its fulfillment in his arms, and in the fields of waving wheat she has learned to love. Leland, the ne'er do well, returns to the lotus-eating life of the squawman, a life which he had left when Gordon had first crossed his path.

BEAUTY.

THE FIRST QUARREL (Jan. 11).—The cast: John (John Sheehan); Carol (Carol Halloway); Tom (Chance Ward); Ethel (Beatrice Van); Uncle (Rae Berger).

Uncle presents John and Carol, the newlyweds, with a furnished bungalow. Bride and bridegroom quarrel about the hanging up of a picture of one of Carol's old time flames, whereupon both pack their belongings, and plan to go back to father and mother. Upon further reflection, however, each decides to bring the other to time, with the threat of suicide. John leaves a note to the effect that he has gone to drown himself, and Carol writes that she is about to jump into the ocean and end it all.

But neither of the notes reaches its desfination. Instead Uncle who arrives for a visit discovers them. With his valet he rushes furiously to prevent the impending double tragedy. On his way to a watery grave John stops at a real estate agent and lists his house for rent. Then Tom and Ethel, also newlyweds in search of a home decide to take it.

Uncle finds Carol and Johnnie on opposite sides of a huge rock. He comes to the conclusion that they both are bluffing, and both would be willing to be reconciled. While Tom and Ethel have entered their new abode they quarrel over a letter which Ethel finds in Tom's pocket, and both retire to their respective rooms.

The scene cuts back to the rock where Uncle hits upon a plan of strategic action. He instructs his valet to tell Carol that her husband has been drowned and that his body has been taken home. He himself tells a similar story about Carol to Johnny. Each rushes home horror stricken. They find Tom and Ethel in their respective rooms. The "corpses" are very much alive, much to the joy of everybody. Then consternation follows over the mixup, but by means of connecting doors and adjoining the rooms, the first quarrel becomes a thing of the past.

GETTING IN WRONG (Jan. 15).—The cast: Alice Bouncer (Neva Gerber); Major Bouncer (William Carroll); Miss Brennon (Lucille Ward); Tom Brennon (Jack Dillon).

By clever connivance, Tom and Alice, who are sweethearts, induce their respective families to take up their abode in the same apartment house. Alice lives with her father, a tippling and wrinkled Civil War veteran, while Jack dwells with a spinster aunt, who also is partial to liquid stimulant somewhat stronger than grape juice. The major proceeds to decorate his new home with his swords and guns and war medals. Alice hangs up her dance program, while in the adjoining flat Tom places his loving cups in artistic juxtaposition and Auntie places in prominent view the many ribbons and other prizes that her feline entrants have captured at the cat shows.

The major returns from his club decidedly the worse for alcoholic wear and tear. His daughter has gone to the movies with the neighbors, Tom and Auntie. The major sees two similar keyholes—two of everything in fact, and staggers into the wrong apartment. He notices the absence of his swords and other war relics. His heavy iron safe, too, is not in its accustomed place. So he summons a policeman. The two this time enter the right apartment and there are the major's cherished possessions. He and the officer partake of a wee nip, when Alice and her friends return. He introduces the bluecoat as a "club friend of mine."

Later there is another mixup. The major, fearing robbers, girds himself with sword and pistol, and begins shooting at imaginary intruders. He and auntie meet. She helps the veteran look for his lost door key. The two soon are holding hands, and when Tom and Alice arrive, the betrothal of the silly old folks is announced. Then Tom springs a coupe, and introduces Alice as his fiance. There is surprise all around, and romance emerges triumphant, and all ends in love and kisses.

CUB.

JERRY IN THE MOVIES (Jan. 7).—The cast: Jerry (George Ovey); Hank, the husband (George George); Movie Director (Jefferson Osborne); Assistant Director (George George);

There Are Pictures-- and Pictures

—and it is the difference indicated which has made possible the tremendous success of the

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN

Modern producers of photoplays are constantly seeking to present new effects through the careful manipulation of the camera. Without the use of a scientifically prepared projection surface these artistic effects cannot be satisfactorily presented to the audiences for whose enjoyment they were so thoughtfully devised.

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Have Won Their Spurs as

The World's Most Perfect Projection Surface

Your Photoplay Theatre Investment Is Not Earning Its Full Return if You Are Operating Without a Radium.

Write today for Sample, Price, and Details of Our New Sales Plan

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, Inc.

No. 220 West 42d Street, New York City

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS—Allfeatures, Ltd., No. 56 King St., W., Toronto, Can. Allfeatures, Ltd., Scala Theatre Building, Montreal, Can.

Movie Nut (Louis FitzRoy); Leading Man (Arthur Jackson); Leading Lady (Belle Bennett); Landlady (Janet Sully); Slavey (Louise Horner). Directed by Milton H. Fahrney.

Jerry is out of jail and has gone into the movies. He gets the idea by seeing a "movie nut" studying his part in the park. Jerry secures the scenario, returns to his lodging place, sweeps aside demands of the landladv and her husband for rent due, goes to his room, where he finds a sympathetic soul in the slavey. Together they rehearse a tragic scene. They rant and storm so loudly as to attract the attention of the landlord. He looks over the transom just as Jerry is stabbing the heroine. He calls the police, saying a murder was being committed. The officers throw open the door and all fall into the room. Jerry nimbly jumps over their prostrate forms, locks the door and goes off to apply for a job as an actor in the movies.

Although last in line of applicants when he reaches the studio, he manipulates matters so that he is first when the assistant director appears looking for types. He is accepted by the director and cast for a policeman. And here is where the fun starts in earnest. Jerry knows all about the motion picture producing business—in his mind. His good-natured conceit not only gets him into all sorts of trouble, but the mess he makes of the scenes and the wreck he causes, not counting the ruining of several hundred feet of film, and the utter demoralization of the company, from director to property-man, is a succession of screams.

CENTAUR.

MARTA OF THE JUNGLE (Jan. 13).—The cast: Marta of the Jungle (Margaret Gibson); Dick Caulder, supposed father of Marta (Stephen Batty); Sid Rolfe, a government detective (Roy Watson); "Wild Cat" Tom (Doc Barlow). Written by Theodosia Harris. Directed by Ulysses Davis.

Dick Caulder is a "ticket of leave" man. He is crossing the veldt in Africa, when he comes across a prairie wagon and sees a lion about to enter. He kills the lion and finds within a dead woman and a little girl of about seven years, crying beside her. He takes the child and finds farther on her father, lying dead. The man had been on the way to a doctor for his wife and had encountered a lion.

Dick Caulder takes the child to a lonely cabin. Being a criminal of long career, he pursues his dark ways. He takes as partner another evil fellow by the name of Tom. The girl grows up in a dark and menacing atmosphere. The two men are diamond "fences," getting the diamonds from a kaffir and passing them to smugglers. Sid Rolfe is sent from a London office to discover the source of leakage. It is a month before he finds any clue. He then discovers Caulder in a low saloon and, comparing him to an old photograph taken from the Rogues' Gallery, he spots him as a desperate character. Following the men, he sees the meeting with the kaffir and calls the halt. They, shooting wildly, escape him, but he marks their vicinity and later is saved from a lion by Marta, who gets him to the cabin. He finds a hand-bill of reward and suspicions that he is in the den of thieves. He questions the girl, learns her story, and is persuaded by her to hide in the room above when she hears the men coming. They discover his presence, know he is the man that is after them, and trap him, inasmuch as he cannot come down without being attacked. After many ruses, he comes down and bravely enters a battle with them. In his encounter with the lion, his horse has escaped and returned to headquarters. Suspicion is aroused and a searching party sent for him. The party arrives at the crucial moment. Caulder is killed and Marta, the poor little victim, is freed at last from her dark surroundings. She goes into the sunlight with Sid.

MUSTANG.

WATER STUFF (Three Parts—Jan. 15).—The cast: Buck Parvin (Art Acord); James Montague (Larry Peyton); William Jennings (Charles James); Ben Leslie (Joe Massey); Charlie Dupree (Hardy Gibson); Jack LaRue (Ashton Dearholt); Myrtle Manners (Dixie Stratton); Jennie Lee (Queenie Rosson); Mrs. Lee (Mollie Schafer).

Jenny Lee is seeking employment that she may aid her hard working mother in making both ends meet. She learns that the Titan Motion Picture company is paying $5 a day for motion picture "extra" girls. She applies to James Montague, director, and is accepted, and is given an unimportant role in a "movie" thriller, which that gentleman is to film the following day. The hour arrives and Jenny is on hand. Among other members of the company is Buck Parvin, the cowboy. Buck begs to be excused for water. Montague, however, is insistant, and Bucks puts in a goodly supply of guaranteed remedies for sea-sickness.

The company is transported to an old hull far out from shore, on which some scenes are to be taken. In accordance with the director's script, Ben Leslie sets fire to the boat. The eye of the camera is trained, and all aboard are told to jump. All comply with two exceptions. One of these is Buck, who has been overcome with sea-sickness. The other is Jennie, who cannot swim, and who fears to follow Montague's insistent instructions to jump. But she needs the $5 and with a shriek she leaps. Then the deep, dark ocean waters close over her flaxen curls, and she is lost from sight. She comes to surface shrieking. Buck sees her plight, and plunges to her rescue. Bravely he struggles with the drowning girl, and at length drags her to safety.

But, through his heroism Buck loses one of his most cherished possessions—a pair of highly ornamented boots; which were dear to his cowboy heart. Charles Dupree has got every action of Buck's thrilling rescue, which proves much more thrilling than that which has been conceived by the director. Buck assists Jennie to her home, where he is rudely rebuffed by Jennie's mother. "Oh, well, such is life in motion pictures," sighs Buck. Then he carelessly saunters to Montague's office and there bewails the loss of his boots. Montague hands the big cowboy an envelop. Buck peeks and discovers a $50 check made out to Buck Parvin. Attached is a memorandum, which reads, "In token of appreciation for saving the picture." It is signed by James Montague.

VOGUE.

AN INNOCENT CROOK (Jan. 3).—The cast: An Innocent Crook (Sammy Burns); Mr. Loosit (James Gibson); Mrs. Loosit (Helen Marlborough); Sue (Margaret Seaman); Tony (H. Dougherty).

Mr. and Mrs. Loosit go for a stroll in the park. They sit on a shady bench and Mrs. Loosit dozes. Sue seats herself on a nearby bench and deliberately flirts with Mr. Loosit, who, seeing his wife fast asleep, goes over and sits with Sue. Sue's accomplice, Tony, creeps up on the snoozing Mrs. Loosit, pilfers her watch and makes off with his booty. Then Sammy comes sauntering on to the scene. Sue sees him flourish a fat wallet, and at once she has designs thereon. She leads Sammy into a flirtation, and manages to filch the wallet, which, to her dismay, is filled with naught but Sammy's fine cut "chewin" tobacco.

Mrs. Loosit discovers the loss of her time piece. Loosit is sent in search of the thief. Sammy discovers the watch where the crook has dropped it through a hole in his pocket. He promptly takes the find to a pawn shop where he disposes of it. Sammy and Sue meet in a cafe, and Sammy proceeds to show Sue a wild and wooly time. A veritable fusillade of champagne corks greets the ears of the other diners. At length the celebrants are ejected. Then by the accusing finger of the pawn shop keeper, Sammy is arrested, charged with the theft of Mrs. Loosit's watch.

Sue and her masculine depredators are arrested, and they and Sammy meet in the police station. Sue's stalwarts pick a fight with Sammy, who, through his acrobatic agility, is quick in cleaning up the two belligerents. Sammy, however, commits lese majesty in the police court—or was it habeas corpus? At any rate, he is on the point of being drawn, quartered and boiled in oil, when in walks a gruff detective, a bosom "pal" of Sammy's. The two shake hands, and seeing Sammy in the toils of the law, the detective comes to Sammy's rescue.

"This man Sammy is as honest as I am," solemnly declares the plain clothes man. Then it is discovered that Sammy is not the man who stole Mrs. Loosit's watch. The time piece is returned, and Sammy is made a member of the force. Whereupon he exercises his newly acquired law enforcing function by standing

Scenarios Wanted

Two or more Reel Comedies for Equity Motion Picture Company featuring Billy B. Van and Beaumont Sisters.

Manuscripts Universal Society of Writers Inc.
Literary Agents 220 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

We Furnish Cameramen
ALSO DO
PRINTING AND DEVELOPING
OF THE HIGHEST GRADE
We guarantee all work. Give prompt delivery at lowest prices
Standard Motion Picture Company
Room 1620, 5 So. Wabash Ave. CHICAGO

You, Particular Exhibitors

Do you ever stop to think of the importance of properly and correctly recording your business transactions?

ACCURATELY! CORRECTLY! SYSTEMATICALLY!

THE THEATRE RECORD LEDGER

Is a nationally known theatre man's bookkeeping and recording system. You can keep your entire week's receipts and expenses recorded all under one cover of 52 pages, or one year's records.

Sells Everywhere $2.50

(Include 20c. additional for postage.) Money refunded if wanted.

Northwestern Motion Picture Equip.Co.
J. V. Bryson, Pres. Minneapolis, U. S. A.

COMPENSARC

That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our

BOOKLET 15018

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA
733

Edison Machine, $65

Including upper and lower magazines, electric burner, new Simplex rheostat, asbestos cord, rewind and lenses to fit measurements, everything ready to run a picture, guaranteed first class condition, for $65. Will ship subject to inspection. Many other bargains in Simplex, Power's and Motiograph machines. Opera and Folding Chairs of all kinds, new and slightly used, at bargain prices. Roll Tickets, 7½c. a thousand. Film Cement and Oil, 15c. bottle. All makes of Carbons. We are the largest THEATRE SUPPLY west of Chicago.

LEARS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
509 Chestnut St. St. Louis, Mo.

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

MINA COMEDIES
Caught With The Goods
RELEASE OF JANUARY 6th. BOOK IT beside a beer sign before two swinging doors. He whistles, as he has seen "regular" policemen do, and is rewarded when a white-coated arm reaches from within, tendering the newest wearer of the star with a large sized glass of an amber fluid that wears a huge white collar.

CASINO.

LEAVE IT TO CISSY (Jan. 2).—The cast: Cissy Fitzgerald (by Herself); John Love (Jerold Hevener); Ebenezer Simpson (Hudson Liston); Samuel Jenkins (Charles Hartley); Mrs. John Love (Kathryn Sheldon); Mrs. Ebenezer Simpson (Miss Lovelace); Mrs. Samuel Jenkins (Mrs. Mary Davis); J. Baldwin Cutting, a Male Butterfly ("Budd" Ross); J. Henry Castleman, a Tango Teacher (Cyril Reinhard); Professor Ivory, Castleman's assistant (Chas. Ritchie); Marie, the maid (Jennie Nelson); James, the butler (Phin Nares).

Cissy Fitzgerald is a beautiful, vivacious widow of the blonde type. Being a talented and attractive artist, her studio is the rendezvous for clever men and women (mostly men). Three married men are greatly interested in the gay Cissy. What happens to them in Cissy's studio—complicated by the unexpected arrival of their wives to make a social call on the fair artist—brings about a series of situations which almost cause Cissy and her very English butler, James, to die of heart failure. To tell how Cissy wins out would spoil a good story. There is a clever take-off on Castle, the Tango King, and Swan, the Greek dancer, the "most beautiful man in the world."

RELIANCE.

THE LAW OF SUCCESS (Two Parts—Jan. 2).—The cast: Gordon Reeper (William Lowery); Vincent Hight (Charles West); Helen Calm (Olga Grey); Joseph Hight (Harry Moody).

Joseph Hight completes two models of an invention for turning wood pulp into paper. One of the models is stolen and sold to Gordon Reeper. Reeper in a few years becomes rich. Meanwhile Anna Hight dies. Her son, Vincent, an itinerant actor, is trying to get into vaudeville. Joseph Hight, the father, has become a tramp. Vincent happens to stop at a boarding house where Gordon Reeper is a visitor. Reeper helps the young fellow secure a vaudeville opening.

The sketch, which Vincent has written, is an episode in the life of his father, and concerns the stealing of Joseph Hight's invention. Helen, the daughter of the boarding house keeper, secretly in love with Vincent, persuades the young actor to rehearse his playlet in the parlor. Reeper helps out by taking part. Vincent brings to the rehearsal a model of his famous "Reeper machine" is revealed. That same night Reeper's factory is burned. The owner is saved by a tramp. Shortly after a new firm is started called Hight, Reeper & Co. Helen marries Vincent.

FALSTAFF.

THE OPTIMISTIC ORIENTAL OCCULTS (Jan. 3).—The cast: Rich Uncle (Riley Chamberlain); relations (Boyd Marshall, Frank Herbert, Frank McNish and Walter Hires); Post Mistress (Frances Keyes).

The rich old man hated his many relatives and loved his money. The relatives really hated him but were so anxious to get his money that they pretended to be very fond of him, much to his disgust. The old man tried to make them understand that he did not care for their company, but they were bound to return. Each relative secretly thought that he was the favored one and the others the objects of the old man's dislike. A nephew had himself smuggled into the house in a grandfather's clock; a cousin pretended to be injured in an automobile accident; and two other cousins gained admission by disguising themselves as the old man's horse. All were ignominiously ejected, but they were far from discouraged, and the old man finally determined to take more vigorous measures.

One day the relatives were all summoned to the house and informed of the rich man's death. The absence of the funeral was explained by the statement that the late lamented had been playing with a keg of dynamite, and all that had been found of him after the explosion was his will. In this document it was set forth that the estate was to be equally divided among those male relatives who joined the Optimistic Oriental Occults—a secret society of which, it was said, the deceased had been very fond.

All the relatives consented to join and the initiation started promptly. The ceremonies included a number of vigorous stunts. At the conclusion of the ordeal the relatives, each carefully packed in a potato barrel, heard the old man's voice and found to their horror that he was alive. He explained that he had been playing a trick upon them, and had witnessed with great pleasure their initiation into the order of Optimistic Oriental Occults. He concluded his remarks by saying that if they ever returned he would be compelled to confer the second degree, a really severe ordeal, upon them. After which the barrels were rolled down a steep hill, followed by a number of excited, barking dogs.

The relatives never came back. The first degree had struck terror to their souls, and the thought of advancing in the order of Optimistic Oriental Occults was extremely distasteful to them.

HILDA'S HUSKY HELPER (Jan. 6).—The cast: Hilda (Louise Emerald Bates); Clerk (Claude Cooper); Stenographer (Frances Keyes).

One of the biggest drawing cards in vaudeville is Hilda. A little matter of lifting a thousand-pound weight with one hand is nothing to her, while her partner in the act is almost as remarkable himself. One night, however, Hilda had a new helper and his wonderful "ability" had far-reaching effects. He was a meek little clerk, teased by his fellow employes and ignored by his sweetheart (who preferred a large boastful suitor). The other man was a bully and delighted in terrorizing the little clerk, who was deep in despair when he chanced to meet Hilda, the vaudeville star. Hilda was a very kind hearted woman, and when she heard the clerk's tale of woe, she told him to cheer up.

"Don't worry," she said, encouragingly, "you shall work in my act tomorrow evening. Let your sweetheart and the office staff come to the theater and they will get a surprise of their lives."

The next evening the clerk worked in Hilda's act, while in the audience were the girl, the clerks' rival and his fellow employes. They had come to laugh at the young man, but they remained to marvel, for the feats of strength which he performed would have done credit to Sandow. Heavy shackles were placed upon him and were rent with one twist of his "mighty" muscles, he lifted great weights in the air, and then, as a final achievement, he supported upon his shoulders Hilda, two big men and several heavy weights. The audience did not know that Hilda and the two men were suspended from the ceiling by cables, nor that the weights were made of wood and the shackles were easily broken.

The clerk's sweetheart bitterly reproached herself for her treatment of such a mighty man, while his rival trembled when he thought of what would have happened to him if he had ever aroused the clerk's wrath. The new athlete's office associates were doing some heavy thinking and resolved that they would play no more practical jokes upon the little man, for they did not care to endanger their lives. So after the show was over the girl and the clerks sought "the strong man" out and made peace with him. He forgave them, for success had made him generous, but the office never saw him again. Hilda had recognized in her new helper a future vaudeville star and made him an offer to play in "the act" for the rest of the season. As the months passed by his popularity increased and soon he and Hilda became one of the best paid "acts" in vaudeville.

The clerks in this office never tire of telling about their former associate and of his great success in vaudeville, and they boast that they knew him when he wasn't a great actor at all, but, strange to say, they do not realize that they alone were responsible for the success in life of Hilda's Husky Helper.

MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE.

THE WOMAN IN POLITICS (Thanhouser—Five Parts—Jan. 13).—The cast: Dr. Barlow (Mignon Anderson); Mayor (Arthur Bauer); Governor (Ernest Howard); Secretary (George Marlo); Health Officer (W. Eugene Moore).

Beatrice Barlow has recently been appointed to a place on the health commission of her city. She is advised by Joel Stevens, an old political war-horse, drawing a salary as "health inspector," to loaf on the job and enjoy herself. But Beatrice takes her duties seriously. She turns in a report on a tenement house where the law has continually been violated, recommending drastic and expensive changes. Stevens gets a glimpse of the report and urges the girl to tear it up. "The owner of that block is Mayor Glynn," he warns her. "Do you want to get fired?" Beatrice submits her statement, and is promptly discharged.

The young doctor finds herself powerless to make the facts public, as the mayor owns the only newspaper of any consequence in town. Knowing that the governor may remove incompetent mayors, she sends her statement to him. A few days later, Dr. Barlow finds a case of small-pox in the same tenement. The head of the health department, fearing the wrath of the mayor, refuses to quarantine the building. Beatrice attempts to put up an official quarantine sign. The health officer interferes, and a strange young man appears and thrashes the officer. The tool of the boss hastens to the mayor. He

Easy Focusing

The carbons of the alternating-current arc both burn considerably and therefore both must be adjusted often in order that the arc shall be in the correct position to give proper focus and light distribution of the picture on the screen. Only the one carbon of the direct-current arc burns appreciably and the latter is therefore more easily kept in focus.

If your electric service is alternating current, a

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

will convert it into the direct current you need. Much of the time that the operator spent in focusing with the alternating-current arc can then be spent in giving better attention to operating the film mechanism, giving better and more even pictures and therefore pleasing your patrons all the more. Write for folder 4205-A for details.

Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co.
Dept. TR. East Pittsburgh, Pa.

"NEWMAN" Brass Frames and Rails

OVER 9,000 Theatres are using "NEWMAN" Brass Frames furnished in the various finishes which do not require polishing:

BURNISHED BRASS — GERMAN SILVER
BRASS OXIDIZED — STATUARY BRONZE
GUN METAL — OXIDIZED
BRUSHED BRASS OR DULL BRASS

"NEWMAN" ALL METAL FRAMES cost no more than ordinary wood frames, and will last a lifetime.

Write in to-day for 1915 catalog.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK CINCINNATI CHICAGO
101 Fourth Ave. 717 Sycamore St. 108 W. Lake St.
Established since 1882

The Battles of a Nation

Showing the Actual Bombardment and Capitulation of Warsaw!
and

The Warring Millions

Showing the Actual Battle, Fall and Capture of Ivangorod!!

Two Real War Pictures That Are Sweeping the Country

BECAUSE:

They Are the First War Pictures to Reach This Country to Show Actual Fighting—Not Mere Maneuvres.

Every City Taken by Storm. Record-Smashing Business Everywhere!

NEW YORK	PARK THEATRE—To a delighted press and enthusiastic crowds. A tremendous success from the jump.
CHICAGO	OLYMPIC THEATRE—In blinding blizzard police reserves summoned to handle the crowds.
BOSTON	BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Now running in this magnificent home of grand opera to audiences of the most discriminating taste.
BUFFALO	TECK THEATRE—To absolute capacity in snow and blizzard—hundreds turned away.
WASHINGTON	CASINO THEATRE—The week before Xmas to the biggest business this house ever did at this time of year.
OMAHA	BOYD'S THEATRE—Crowded from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily against other strong attractions.

Pictures taken by the American Correspondent Film Co. at the front, under fire!

Booking First-class Theatres Only

Entirely New State Right Plan

Address all communications to

BUFFALO TIMES

MOVING PICTURE SYNDICATE DEPT.

TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK

finds that dignity completely upset. He has just received word from the governor that charges have been filed against him by Beatrice Barlow, M. D., and that the hearing has been set for the following month. "That girl has the goods on me," says the mayor. "We must get her in bad somehow."

That same night, driving about town in the mayor's automobile Glynn and his dupe plot how they will ruin Beatrice's reputation. They choose to hold their consultation in the car because there will be less risk there of their being overheard. But they reckon without the husky young man, Beatrice's champion, who rides with them, a stowaway in the tonneau. The young stranger forestalls the scheme before Dr. Barlow can be compromised. A few days later, the tenement belonging to Glynn catches fire. Beatrice, attending a sick woman on the third floor, is rescued with difficulty by the enterprising stranger. While he dashes back into the flaming building to save a child, hirelings of Glynn's seize the fainting girl, bundle her into a limousine and drive off. The only witness to the abduction is a small boy. All that night and next day the young man hunts for the girl. At last, stumbling upon little Patsy Burns, his worst fears are confirmed. By clever detective work he locates Beatrice's prison, liberates the girl, and handcuffs the captors.

The following day, Glynn, with Beatrice and her ally both appearing against him, is convicted in the presence of the governor. The stranger, the head of the state admits, is his own private secretary. The grafting mayor and his accomplices go to the penitentiary.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 53 (Jan. 6).

San Francisco, Cal.—Mysterious mishap causes liner "Minnesota" to be towed back to this port. Federal investigation deepens the mystery.

Paris, France.—Bas-relief monument to heroic English nurse is erected. Paris' tribute to Edith Cavell.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Children at fete on battleship. Crew of the U. S. S. "York" give first party of the kind in history of the navy.

Savannah, Ga.—Fire destroys $200,000 worth of cotton. Three thousand bales awaiting shipment to Europe catches fire. Subtitle: Colored women pick over the cotton to reclaim the undamaged.

San Francisco, Cal.—Giant oil tanker launched. The "La Brae," costing $800,000, takes to the water here. Subtitle: Mrs. W. L. Stewart, sponsor.

Hot Springs, Va.—The hotel where President Wilson and his bride are spending their honeymoon.

Latest Skating Fashions.—(Courtesy J. M. Gidding & Co., 5th Ave., N. Y. C.). Subtitles: Cheruit model, made of white angora. Gidding model, purple leather trimmed with beaver.

San Francisco, Cal.—Troops hurried to Mexican border. Famous 7th U. S. Cavalry goes to Douglas, Arizona.

Washington, D. C.—Second Pan-American scientific congress is opened here. Delegates are present from 20 republics.

First pictures from the Ford peace ship.

New York City.—"The Tree of Light" blossoms in Madison Square Park. Carols are sung as lights come on.

New York City.—Thousands are fed by charity. Pathetic scenes where food and clothes are given out.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Day laborer's invention passes official tests. Poor negro invents R. R. mail receiver and expects to become a millionaire.

New York City.—Steamship "Rotterdam" sails with many notables. U. S. envoys are recalled and German officials on board. Subtitles: Capt. Boy-Ed, German Naval Attache, departs with a rush. Col. E. M. House, goes on mysterious mission. Mr. Brand Whitlock goes to resume his post in Belgium. Capt. Franz von Papen, recalled German Military Attache, sails on the "Noordam."

Have You Read Page 309?

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

THE STERLING
CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

—FEATURE FILMS—
Three, four and five reel subjects, with paper,
$10.00 per reel
Two reel subjects, with paper,
$7.50 per reel
Single subjects, with paper
$5.00 per reel
Splendid comedies, all makes
G. W. Bradenburgh
842 Vine Street Philadelphia

Are You Tired
of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The Orpheum Collection
contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:
No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3
Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.
CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

CAILLE
Ticket Office
Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
CAILLE BROS. COMPANY, 1001 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

GAUMONT.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, No. 15, "Chicago, Ill." (Dec. 28).—Chicago, "the windy city," with its varied industries, its parks and its beautiful drive along Lake Michigan, is the mecca of the pretty Mutual Traveler in the fifteenth split-reel scenic, See America First.

The tremendous stock yards, the library, the Field Museum, and the Art Museum, situated in Grant Park, and facing Michigan Boulevard; Lincoln Park, with its zoo and its grounds for tennis and golf; the Goodrich Steamship Company's docks; the University of Chicago and Northwestern University, at Evanston, and many of Chicago's most beautiful residences and clubs, are included in the Mutual's scenic.

The second half of the picture is devoted to Harry Palmer's funny cartoon, "Keeping Up With the Joneses."

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 103 (Dec. 25).

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Huge piles of merchandise congest the piers, and every available ship is pressed into service to carry America's enormous exports. Subtitles: The Swiss Government, unable to book freight, charters its own ship and Switzerland's flag flies on a trans-Atlantic vessel for the first time.

Roseland, N. J.—Heavy falls of snow put the horse and the auto out of service and oxen are used to distribute milk.

Ypres, Belgium.—Resourceful British soldiers use empty jars to make rough and ready bombs.

Ypres, Belgium.—British soldiers learn to use asphyxiating gases to cover their attacks on the enemy trenches.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Continued smuggling of opium, cocaine and "wetgoods" calls forth energetic action by the local police. Subtitles: "Dope" is found in the most unlikely places. One day's spoils in the war against the "bootleggers."

New York City.—With Jack Frost doing his best to aid the skating craze hundreds glide on the frozen lakes in the various city parks. Subtitle: The inevitable "Charlie" appears.

The Allies' Answer to the Zeppelin Menace.—Subtitles: The Zeppelin is the most important type of dirigible by which Germany seeks to terrorize the population of enemy cities. The car of the Zeppelin can carry several tons of explosive bombs beside the crew. Count Zeppelin, the famous inventor, who was recently made a member of the Reichstag. The chief weakness of the Zeppelin is its huge inflammable gas envelope which often catches fire with terrible results. France's reply to the Zeppelin is the Spiess, large number of which are being hastily constructed. Britain's first dirigible, the Mayfly, was not successful in her test. The second collapsed on her trial trip. Britain, as a consequence, pins her faith to the heavier than air machine, five hundred of which are shown ready for a raid.

PATHE NEWS NO. 104 (Dec. 29).

Hoboken, N. J.—Colonel E. M. House leaves for Europe on a special diplomatic mission for the President. Subtitle: Brand Whitlock, Minister to Belgium, sails on the same ship to resume work after a month's vacation in the United States.

Forest of Argonne, France.—French military lumberjacks are kept busy satisfying the constant demand for timber to be used in earthwork construction. Subtitles: An enormous amount of skill and hard work is put into the building of bombproof trenches. Small branches intertwined with twigs make an effective protection against shrapnel fire. Everything possible is done to make life comfortable at the headquarters of the regiment, a mile behind the firing line. Pets are made of the small denizens of the forest.

How the Russian Troops Are Turning the Turkish Flank. Subtitles: Cherkas infantry, famed for their resistance to hardship, are sent to fight the Turk in the snowbound wastes of Trans-Caucasia. Indifferent to the biting cold, the Cherka detachments begin their long southern drive, the aim of which is to unite with the British and capture Bagdad. Turkish prisoners accept their fate with stoical resignation. Wounded and frost bitten soldiers are carefully placed on sleighs drawn by oxen. Transportation difficulties are solved by the use of Bactrian camels which withstand the intense cold remarkably well.

MINA COMEDIES They Send You Away Laughing
EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

Making "Movie Fans"

Most progressive newspapers are now conducting motion picture departments wherein are printed reviews of the various plays, together with comments about studios and stars. But there is only one paper in the United States (so far as can be learned) that is making extensive use of its advertising columns to create "movie fans."

The Chicago Daily News is publishing a series of advertisements ranging in size from 200 agate lines to one-half page, telling its hundreds of thousands of readers why they should attend motion pictures and read The Daily News directory of motion picture theaters.*

Naturally this is not only increasing The Daily News' productivity for Chicago motion picture theaters, but for film manufacturers. Even without this stimulation of interest in motion pictures The Daily News is the logical medium in Chicago for the film manufacturers. For The Daily News has a circulation of over 400,000, of which more than 92% is concentrated in Chicago and suburbs. As there are approximately 450,000 families in Chicago, it can readily be seen that, disregarding the non-English speaking and the illiterate, The Daily News is read by very nearly every worth-while family in the city.

The Daily News sells more papers in Chicago and suburbs by over 100,000 than any other daily newspaper, and over 80,000 more than any Sunday newspaper. Therefore it is the only newspaper through which you can reach a these worth-while families.

Moreover The Daily News sells its space at a less cost per line per thousand readers than any other Chicago newspaper.

So that with the added stimulation of the motion picture news in the news columns, and the extensive motion picture campaign in the advertising columns, The Chicago Daily News is an advertising medium that commends itself in a very special way to the maker of motion pictures.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Over 400,000 Daily

*We will be pleased to send reprints of a few of these advertisements if you are interested.

Pathe's Paris Fashions in Natural Colors.—Subtitles: An evening dress of black tulle, the bodice trimmed with iridescent lace. A gown of brocaded taffeta with a train. A semi-evening dress of blue charmeuse, the waist trimmed with pearl lace. A pleasing effect is obtained by taffeta ruffles and belt on a tulle waist.

New York City.—Two hundred children visit the U. S. S. New York and are entertained on board by the bluejackets.

Chino, Cal.—Pig-raising forms part of the curriculum at the local grammar school. Subtitle: A girl's idea of pig culture.

Chicago, Ill.—"Down and outs" must now saw wood for the new municipal pile before getting free lodging. Subtitle: A bed ticket is the reward for two hours' work.

THE NEW ADVENTURES OF J. RUFUS WALLINGFORD (Pathe—Final Chapter—"Lord Southpaugh"—Jan. 3).—Eli Spooger is a devil in his old home town, but when it comes to dealing with the big jovial confidence man from the metropolis, he turns out to be fit for a devil's subject. Spooger is president of a bank in Oak Centre and he owns several shares of the Bessemer Malleable Iron Foundry. Bessemer unwittingly aids them into circulating a story about a million dollar war order he's going to get from "Lord Southpaugh"—so Wallingford and Daw told him, and so Violet and Fanny made Spooger believe.

Before the Oak Centre Clarion printed the rumor and even after that, the Wallingford party purchased all the shares of about town for less than a hundred. In Spooger's and Bessemer's presence they act as business rivals and Violet and Fanny form a third party—Secret Service Sarahs, as Spooger later called them. When Wallingford offered Spooger two hundred for every share that he could get, and when Daw wanted to borrow money from Spooger on his stock and Wallingford's, Spooger wouldn't do it, he bought every one at a hundred and fifty. $85,000 was what he was cleaned out of on the famous Bessemer stock.

At their hotel in New York the Warden girls look longingly at a nice little miniature cottage. Wallingford offers to sell it to Violet for one dollar, providing that she take the contents also. Assenting, she takes from the house a clay image of Daw. Surprised and happy, she buries her face in her hands. Then the expressman brought Daw in with a tag around his neck. Violet and Daw we leave in a state of rapture, while Wallingford, the Daw's star boarder, goes forth to sell the bill-posting rights to the North Pole.

OLD UNCHANGING HOLLAND (Photocolor—Jan. 4).—This travel picture shows only those scenes which tend to show the people as they go about their daily occupation. To be sure the windmills and canals are shown as are the country people (peasants) going to market with their produce, dressed as were their ancestors. Many cows are seen in large pastures, reminding one of many famous Dutch paintings. And they have not forgotten the houses in the village of Staphorst that recall musical comedies and people in costumes that fit the scenes.

QUAINT DANCES OF JAPAN (Globe—On Same Reel as Foregoing).—In a craze for modern dances we've been so flooded with numerous exponents of new steps that we almost forget that a look at what some people of the other countries are doing in this particular art and recreation might be productive of more good. Pathe has released "Quaint Dances of Japan" in which a series of Japanese dances are shown. We see the "Geisha" girls perform ancient symbolic dances. The scarf dance, the umbrella dance, the wedding dance, the "Hana Nomaki" and the "Nippon Ranzai" dances are some of the names by which they are known. The "Hana Nomaki" is danced in honor of the springtime and the cherry blossoms which fill Japan with beauty and fragrance every spring. The "Nippon Ranzai" is the most spirited of the dances and its performance always arouses the loyal subjects of the Mikado to enthusiastic demonstrations.

LONESOME LUKE LEANS TO THE LITERARY (Phunphilms), (Jan. 5.—Lonesome Luke delegates to sell some literature and receives a large folder containing general info about his wares. To become an adept in that particular line, one must be a born poet and our hero has no very great difficulty to make himself that. A busy man at his office is just the proper one to trap into a deal because even his employees, in their haste, fail to have time to eject droppers in at the orders of the boss. Luke selects just such an establishment and "goes to it" with the usual selections of chin-music. He fails thrice to sell his wares, but succeeds admirably in causing havoc in the home of the pen-pushers. Later in the day unkind fate takes him to this man's home where his arguments with the wife prove futile. While in between gaps he consumes the contents of a refreshment decanter. Inclined to be spoony, Luke goes to the park to hunt himself a partner and meets with this same man's daughter. Spooning under difficulties in the park, she takes him home, telling him that her father will buy his volumes. Now as we know, Ma and Pa have seen the stranger before and very handily beat him up within a half inch of the law.

ACH! SUCH CRIMES (Starlight—Jan. 8).—Heinie, now happily married, is engaged in removing such particles of dirt from the carpet as a broom in the hands of a novice will remove. While he conscientiously studies the art of street cleaning by mail, his most loving better half prepares the grub. The most awkward of men, he bumps against the tray of food which his wife fetches to him, giving himself another lesson in his chosen art and no nourishment with which to continue his muscle wrecking studies. He proceeds to the delicatessen for more bologna.

Meanwhile Louie stands all alone holding up the side of a shack, in which a band of kidnappers are plotting. They hear his breathing and open the door very suddenly. Thereafter Louie is one of them and steals a child just as Heinie marches home with the luxuries. Heinie sees him and pursues him into the shack, where he neatly cleans up the clan and takes the baby home. Louie squeals to the police with the result that Heinie goes to jail. The imitation zebra make a getaway and Heinie comes home to make a counter charge against Louie. Louie is found guilty and loses his precious liberty. Heinie returns to his domicile to comfort his weeping wife.

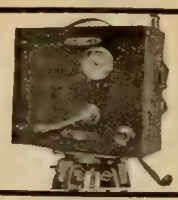
THE KING'S GAME (Gold Rooster—Five Parts—Jan. 7).—The story tells of the adventures of a young duke, whose father, the old Grand Duke of Kiev, coveted the wife of Count Dardinilis, his Colonel of Huzzars; of the old grand duke's plot to get her for himself; of her accidental death at the hands of his Cossacks, and of the Colonel's escape with his little daughter to America.

The young grand duke, now an orphan, comes to America to complete his education. The Nihilists send Perciley to kill him, but he is apprehended by the Secret Service who know the details of the plot. They dress the man in the grand duke's clothes and chain him to a carriage and thus he rides as the nobleman. The grand duke, closely resembling Perciley, comes upon their rendezvous, and goaded on by the Nihilists, throws a box of bon-bons at his double, unwillingly riding in his carriage. To make sure of their capture at the opportune time, the grand duke goes with them into the country.

Perciley escapes from the carriage, and his presence at the rendezvous makes it necessary that the grand duke explain. He escapes unharmed with the aid of Dardinilis daughter. When they are captured by the police the very lenient young duke calls it a draw and lets it go. Count Dardinilis is reappointed Colonel of Huzzars and his daughter becomes the Duchess of Kiev.

THE RED CIRCLE (Episode No. 4, "In Strang Attire"—Two Parts—Balboa—Jan. 8).—Jim Borden, crook, tries to wipe out his family by killing his son and himself, thus ending the criminal curse of the Red Circle birthmark. But the Red Circle appears on the hand of June Travis, wealthy girl reformer, and she robs a loan broker to aid poor debtors. It develops that June is Jim Borden's daughter. Mary' June's old nurse, in trying to divert the suspicion of Detective Lamar, finds herself in a precarious situation. Cornered in a garage by Lamar when her coat catches in the door, she slips from it and gets away with Lamar still in pursuit. The coat belongs to June. She tears the label from it. Later that day, in man's attire, June gets the incriminating coat from the police. She is seen entering her room through the window by the Travis butler who, thinking it a man, notifies Mrs. Travis and Mary. The three rush to June's room and beat against the locked door.

Will her "Mother" surprise the secret from



L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO
MovingPicture Exhibitors
Get your supplies from FULCO the house that carries everything you need
E. E. FULTON CO., 152 W. Lake St., Chicago
FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Tell Your Motion Picture Sales Story in THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD which Speaks Authoritatively to the ENTIRE Trade Each Week.

THE CATALOGUE OF BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
contains much that is valuable about electric lighting in general, and moving picture work in particular. Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
COMMERCIAL BUILDING
422 FIRST AVE
PITTSBURGH, PA.
We Will Equip Your Theatre Completely
REPAIR PARTS
SUPPLIES
MACHINES Shipped from Stock.

You will be pleased and it will pay you if you
Send Your Next Order to Hommel's

MASTERS OF PROJECTION
use the Master Model Projector, an American Standard Motion Picture Machine. It is so ingeniously devised and constructed that the operator is free from the usual time-taking duties so that he is able to concentrate upon the artistic reproduction of the film on the screen. No breakdowns, no big repair bills, no projection worries in the booth where an American Standard is installed. Full particulars gladly given. Write to
AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY
One Hundred Ten and Twelve West Fortieth Street, New York

NOW READY!

After Five Years in the Largest Theatres!

AND SEVEN MORE IN LEADING STOCK COMPANIES

AUGUSTUS THOMAS' UNIQUE DRAMATIC SUCCESS

"THE OTHER GIRL"
IN 360 SCENES WITH 400 PEOPLE

—INTRODUCING—

TWO STARS OF NATIONAL POPULARITY

JAMES J.
CORBETT
THE PEOPLE'S HERO ACTOR

PAUL
GILMORE
MATINEE IDOL OF A DOZEN SUCCESSES

AND A SPLENDID CAST OF WELL KNOWN PLAYERS

WITH WILLIAM MULDOON WORLD'S CHAMPION WRESTLER AND INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY ON HEALTH BUILDING

AN ABSOLUTE NOVELTY
DESIGNED FOR PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT AND MONEY EARNING

SCENES ACTUALLY SHOWN:

MULDOON'S FAMOUS TRAINING FARM
CORBETT'S FIRST FIGHT AT SCHOOL
EXCITING AUTO ACCIDENT ON CROWDED BROADWAY
CORBETT'S FIRST PROFESSIONAL BATTLE
BROADWAY'S NIGHT ELECTRICAL DISPLAY
MILLIONAIRE PATIENTS AT MULDOON'S FARM
CORBETT TRAINING FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT
AND A BIG, HUMAN STORY IN 293 OTHERS

TERRITORY WILL BE SOLD FOR CASH

TELEGRAPHIC INQUIRIES ANSWERED PROMPTLY

ADDRESS

RAVER FILM CORPORATION

110 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

her? See "Weapons of War," the next chapter of The Red Circle.

Triangle Film Corp.

THE WORST OF FRIENDS (Keystone—Three Parts—Jan. 2).—The cast: Lew Fields, Joe Weber, Alice Davenport, Mae Busch.

Lew Fields and his wife, Alice Davenport, are living in an apartment house, of which Lew is the janitor. They are visited by Joe Weber, who is the brother of Alice. Joe eats everything in sight. Alice wants Joe to have the best as her guest, but Lew is unsympathetic. Lew gives Joe a broom to sweep the halls and Joe is so awkward that he trips himself up and knocks Lew down. This angers Lew, who grabs the broom and hits Joe on the head. Joe waddles away as fast as he can but can't escape the hail of blows from Lew, until Alice sticks her head out of the apartment to see the excitement. When she sees Joe getting the worst of it, Alice runs up to Lew and nearly gets knocked down by a chance blow. This infuriates her and she slaps Lew's face right and left till he begs for mercy.

A tenant sends a call to the janitor to take a package to the beauty parlor run by Mlle. Fashionsky (Mae Busch). Lew goes there and becomes fascinated with the charming proprietress. Mae is a little coy but Lew is very persuasive and puts his arm around her waist. Alice thinks Lew ought to be back and hunts him up. She is furious when she finds Lew sitting on a sofa with the beauty specialist. She does not wait for explanations from Lew but rushes back to her apartment. She calls up the police and says there has been a murder committed at her address by Lew. She then discharges a gun, lies down on the bed with it beside her and her face smeared with catsup. Lew comes in a little later and the police run in and arrest him as they think he has killed Alice. Lew protests vigorously but is hustled off to the police station. A doctor is called in and he makes an examination of the supposed dead woman. As he is testing her heart action she suddenly jumps up. After some time the woman explains the reason for her attempt and she goes down to the station and gets Lew out.

Joe has got tired of dusting and beating rugs and enters the beauty parlor. By mistake he gets into the dressing room. The women make ludicrous attempts to escape and fall over each other, and Joe is also anxious to get away but only manages to trip them up. Just then some one starts to play the piano. A disappointed suitor of Mae Busch, the proprietor, has attached a bomb to one of the keys. When this key is played, the piano is blown through a skylight and lands in a pool where pretty girls in tights are bathing. They are nearly drowned but are aided in the rescue by Joe and Lew. They congratulate each other and are congratulated by the fair bathers for their rescue work. Alice admires them as a pair of heroes and it ends with all living happily together.

FATTY AND MABEL ADRIFT (Keystone—Two Parts—Jan. 9).—The cast: Roscoe Arbuckle, Mabel Normand, Al St. John, Frank Hayes, May Wells, Wayland Trask, Glen Cavender.

Fatty (Roscoe Arbuckle), a farmer boy, is in love with his employer's daughter (Mabel Normand). Al St. John, the son of a neighboring farmer, is a rival of Fatty's. He is enraged at the news of Fatty's marriage and swears vengeance. Mabel's father gives the happy couple a cottage by the seashore as a wedding present. There they go on their honeymoon, accompanied by Fatty's dog, Fido. A terrible storm comes up in the night. The rival has been chased away from the house by the dog, but he enlists the aid of a band of robbers and returns. During the wild night, while the newlyweds are peacefully sleeping, the robbers knock the underpinnings of the cottage away and it floats out to sea.

When the couple are awakened by the storm, they find themselves far out to sea with their cottage slowly sinking. They tie a note calling for help to Fido's neck and head him towards shore. Fido has a hard fight with the towering waves, but he finally struggles to shore and awakens Mabel's parents. On reading the note, they phone for the harbor police and start for the seashore on their old tandem bicycle. On their arrival, they find the real estate man (Glen Cavender), who sold them the little cottage, about to embark on his yacht. He takes them aboard and starts to the rescue.

All this time the cottage has been settling deeper in the water and finally Fatty and Mabel have to dive out of a window and get on the roof. They are rescued just in the nick of time by the yacht, as their cottage suddenly sinks out of sight. The rival and the robbers have returned to their cafe. They get into a quarrel and fight. A robber accidentally drops a cigar into a keg of powder. It explodes, wrecks the cafe and destroys the occupants. Fatty, Mabel and the parents return to their happy home rejoicing over their narrow escape.

THE MISSING LINKS (Fine Arts—Jan. 16).—The cast: Norma Talmadge, Robert Harron, Thomas Jefferson, Elmer Clifton, William Higby, Jack Brammall, Constance Talmadge.

How life seethes and boils at times even in a peaceful little town is recounted in this photoplay. As a background for stirring events are shown views of the quiet Main street, typical of a rural community and interiors of a church during a service and of the homes of the tranquil inhabitants.

But love and finance inject action into the serene atmosphere. A regular feud is started against the banker and his two sons by the justice of peace, because one of the banker's sons, Robert Harron, elopes with the justice's stepdaughter, Norma Talmadge. The justice seizes an opportunity to wreak his ill-will against the banker. A rumor is started that the bank is insolvent and the depositors withdraw their money till finally the doors have to be closed. The justice is appointed receiver and leads an angry crowd to the banker's house. He is finally admitted to the house and is shown the body of the banker, who has died from the shock of disappointment. His charges of dishonesty madden Harron and he threatens to kill the justice. Things come to a climax of intensity with the death of the justice and Harron is arrested on a charge of murder.

Through an amateur detective, the bank cashier is proved to be responsible for the murder of the justice by an incriminating cuff-link found near the body. Harron is released and cleared of the accusation just as a mob breaks into the jail bent on lynching him.

THE BECKONING FLAME (Kay-Bee—Jan. 16).—The cast: Henry Woodruff, Tsuru Aoki, Rhea Mitchell, T. Frank Burke, Lewis Morrison, T. Barney Sherry, Roy Laidlaw.

Harry Dickson (Henry Woodruff) is an attractive young Englishman, who is engaged to a beautiful English girl, Elsa Arlington (Rhea Mitchell.) While serving as a deputy commissioner in a principality in India, he becomes acquainted with the daughter of a nobleman named Janira (Tsuru Aoki). She is given in marriage to a dissolute Indian prince, Prince Chandra. While the festivities are in full swing, Chandra dies from a stroke of apoplexy. His body is put on the funeral pyre. At the period of this play, it was the practice among the people of India for the widow to throw herself on the fire in which her husband's body was burning. Janira is compelled in spite of herself to submit to this custom. Just before she is placed in the flames, Dickson and his servant see what is going on and rescue the girl after a fight.

Dickson becomes infatuated with Janira and keeps her in his bungalow in disguise as a boy servant. Elsa, his sweetheart, arrives from England. Dickson soon feels a reviving of his old love for her. His attentions to Elsa trouble Janira, but she is faithful to him and will not admit to herself that the white man can do any wrong. Dickson is summoned before the English commissioner and the father of Janira accuses him of having kidnapped the girl. The deputy puts up a bold front. Then to settle the matter, soldiers are sent to Dickson's house to fetch the girl. They return in a short time with the message that they found on their arrival that the bungalow was in flames. After the structure had been destroyed, they saw in the embers a human body burned to such an extent that it was unrecognizable. Dickson reels and the commissioner hastens to support him. The father of the girl totters out of the office.

—put the Kaiser
(HIS VERY LATEST PICTURE)
AND HIS GENERALS
PUT THE KING OF ENGLAND
PUT THE CZAR OF RUSSIA
PUT THE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE
PUT THE SULTAN OF TURKEY
PUT THE KING OF BELGIUM
PUT THE TSAR OF BULGARIA
Into Your WAR REELS
New Prints, 10c a foot
WAR STUFF—Choice scenes of all sides to put "Punch" into your War pictures. Action—Action—Action, nothing but action. New prints 10c. a foot. Send for list.
WAR FLAGS—All nations, 5 ft. x 8 ft. Non-fading, $2 each. Ballyhoo the front and inside when showing war pictures.
A. Stone, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City

HARRY K. LUCAS
"THE SUPPLY KING"
ATLANTA —— GEORGIA
THEATRES EQUIPPED THRUOUT. FIVE YEARS OF UNINTERRUPTED SUCCESS. 50 PAGE ILLUSTRATED SUPPLY CATALOGUE FOR THE OPERATOR OR MANAGER. WRITE.

Study the conditions in front of your Ticket Office to-day—during the holiday rush.
Wouldn't you like to provide a service that will absolutely insure your ability to take care of the crowds faster, and at the same time with accuracy?
This is only one of a dozen protections which
The Automatic
Ticket Seller and Cash Register
offers you.
Watch your ticket office to-day —Investigate!
The Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company
1737 Broadway, N. Y. C.
We manufacture all kinds of theatre tickets
"Used Wherever Tickets are Sold"

MINA COMEDIES
Clean Cut Comical Comedies
EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

Presents

MISS EBBA THOMSEN

The Internationally Celebrated Actress

Supported by an Excellent Cast of Players

in

"SINS OF GREAT CITIES"

An Absorbing Problem Photoplay in FOUR Stirring Parts

STATE RIGHT BUYERS and EXCHANGEMEN

Looking for High-Class Film Attractions, Released Semi-Monthly, Are Advised to Wire or Write for Our Attractive Territorial Proposition

Artistic Four Color Lithos in One, Three and Six-Sheet Sizes

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

110 WEST 40th STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

Miscellaneous Feature Film

V-L-S-E, INC.

THE GREAT DIVIDE (Lubin—Five Parts—Dec. 20).—The cast: Stephen Ghent (House Peters); Ruth (Ethel Clayton); Mrs. Jordan (Marie Sterling); Phil Jordan (Hayden Stevenson); Polly—Phil's wife (Mary Moore); Dr. Winthrop Newbury (Warner P. Richmond). Adapted for the screen by Anthony P. Kelley. Directed by Edgar Lewis.

The Jordans, Phil and Ruth, accompanied by Philip's wife, Polly, and Dr. Winthrop Newbury, a suitor for Ruth's hand, bid old Mrs. Jordan good-bye at the station of Milford Corners, Mass., and depart for the West, to work over some unredeemed desert land, which was left to the Jordans by their dead father. Arriving in the West, they take up their work, but it proves anything but a success. On the brink of the Great Divide lives Stephen Ghent, an untamed and untrained man of the West, and on account of his manner is respected by the habitues of Miller's saloon and dance hall in the town, which he and two of his acquaintances in the persons of Pedro, a half-breed Mexican, and Dutch, a brutal type of the West, frequent. Polly tires of Western life and jumps at the chance to take a trip to Frisco. Philip drives her down to the station that night. On an adjoining ranch a cowpuncher is seriously hurt and a boy is dispatched for Dr. Newbury. After cautioning Ruth to retire early, the doctor takes his leave.

Stephen Ghent, Pedro, and Dutch are down in the town drinking. They afterward depart and start up the Coldwater Trail, which runs alongside of the Jordan home. As they pass the dimly lighted cabin, they see a woman standing in the doorway. Cautiously approaching the door, they enter the cabin and Ruth is overpowered. Dutch and Ghent fight a duel for her in which Dutch is killed. Pedro is bought off by Ghent with a string of nuggets, and Ruth belongs to him. In the man of the woods, Ruth recognizes the ideal man she desires for a helpmate. Ruth agrees to marry Ghent and live as his wife in name only until he has changed his character. Ghent agrees and they are married. Ghent then brings her to his cabin. As day by day goes by, Ruth begins to see other qualities in her husband and also to believe in him. One night, however, Ghent filled with a desire for her and goaded on by the whiskey that is in him breaks his promise. Ruth denounces him for his actions and tells him that not until he has purged himself through suffering will she ever believe in him again. She also tells him that she is going to earn enough money to buy back the string of nuggets from Pedro—with which he managed to get her into his power. Some time later Ruth departs for town to sell her last blanket. She has been weaving Navajo blankets in order to raise the necessary amount to buy back the nuggets.

In the meantime the Jordans become disgusted and prepare to go back East. While waiting at the station they find Ruth, who has just completed the sale of her blanket. They see her start up the trail and follow her on foot. Ruth buys back the string of nuggets from Pedro, but she has not time to turn it over to Ghent upon her arrival at the cabin before she is overtaken by the others. It is her desire to have them believe she is happy and refuses to go back East with them. She introduces Ghent to them just as they are ready to catch the train. Ghent, unable to understand her changed attitude, starts to thank her. She tells him that circumstances forced her to act as she did, but that she is now able to buy back her freedom from him. Ghent is stunned, and at first refuses to let her go, but when she tells him of the life that is to come and that it is their duty to protect its happiness through a mother's love, he finally releases her from her promise, and Ruth, with the sense of newfound freedom, starts down the trail to overtake the others before it is too late. Ghent's attention as he looks after her is suddenly attracted to a bit of trembling earth on the mountain side. He realizes the great danger that Ruth is in and starts down the trail to rescue her. He is just in time and has thrown her to one side when the landslide comes upon him and carries him into the valley below. The rumbling sound has caused the others to look back. A reunion takes place over the injured Ghent. He is brought to the cabin, where he recovers under the care and attention of Dr. Newbury and Ruth. Ruth tells him that he has purged himself through his suffering and once more the couple start out in life upon a happier basis.

THE WONDERFUL WAGER (Lubin—Three Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Evermore Betts (Raymond Hitchcock); Franklyn Fitzmorris (Jack Henderson); By-dar-Zee (Marion Sunshine); Julia Woodrow (Florence Preston); Boss of the Circus (Bernard Siegel); Hugo, a clown (Wally Helston). Adapted for the screen by Mark Swan and Daniel Ellis. Produced by Rene Plaisetty.

Evermore Betts, a born gambler, is madly in love with Julia Woodrow, the amateur champion heartbreaker of North Chester County. Julia is ambitious for millions and a "title," and although she has smiled at Betts, she hasn't whispered the proverbial "This is so sudden." Franklyn Fitzmorris is the "hated rival" of Betts, with a more than even change of capturing the "fair Julia." After a game of golf for a small "stipend" which (as usual, when money is concerned) Betts has romped away with, Fitzmorris issues another challenge and the "suitors" agree to play the match on the Palm Beach links, since the "fair Julia" has heard the call of society from that direction.

With this match "sewed up," the two men make a wager of $10,000 and "the girl's hand" that one can beat the other in an automobile ride to Florida. A condition of the contest is that a car must be purchased by each one, but in no case must it cost more than $500. If anything happens to the car of either, the driver agrees to make the trip and enter the state of Florida in a vehicle on four wheels—not on rails, not propelled by steam, and not drawn by horses.

After making the wager, Betts' broker calls on him to put up his last cent to protect his margins and with the dawn of the morn for the beginning of the race, Betts appears in his wonderful "Ford Flivver," which he has borrowed the money to purchase. Fitzmorris with his fine second hand car gets away to a "beautiful" start and soon leaves Betts far behind.

Betts experiences everything from a puncture to "general auto debility" right from the start and after growing gray nearly trying to make it work he accidentally sinks the "flivver" in a lake and is forced to grab himself a job with a traveling circus in order to eat with any degree of regularity. In this new and eventful life his rise is rapid—from feeder of lions, caretaker of elephants, etc., he is promoted to the ranks of a clown as the proper place for him to while away his comical ideas of life. All the while, unable to advance, he pictures the $10,000 he owes to Fitz for the wager and the loss of the lady's hand.

One day by chance By-dar-zee, a pretty circus girl, with whom he has spent much time learning to forget the "fair Julia," gives to the famished Betts a sandwich wrapped in the inevitable newspaper. By chance Betts reads in the paper that Fitzmorris has been held up in Georgia and that if he can but get to Florida he has a golden chance to win.

He breathes his dark secret to By-dar-Zee

STOP!! Consider a minute Before you purchase your

THEATRE EQUIPMENT

There is a certain lasting confidence in purchasing from a reliable concern—Whether it is biscuits or battleships you buy. YOU KNOW THAT.

When installing a theatre equipment why not confine your purchases to a house whose experience and reputation will inspire that confidence? It costs no more—but the feeling of security you have is worth more.

The Kleine Optical Company is the oldest house in the country handling motion picture theatre equipment. We were the pioneers in the business! Ask anyone who has been in the business for years. The name KLEINE to them is synonymous to motion picture confidence.

Write us on any subject concerning the equipment of your theatre. WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS OF EVERY STANDARD MAKE OF MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR ON THE AMERICAN MARKET. OUR STOCK IS LARGE AND COMPLETE AT ALL TIMES AND INCLUDES EVERY ARTICLE AND DEVICE THAT HAS MERIT.

SEND FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

Kleine Optical Company

166 North State St. GEORGE KLEINE, PRESIDENT INCORPORATED 1896 CHICAGO, ILL.

FRED FULTON

The Rochester-Minnesota Giant

Matched to Meet

JESS WILLARD

for the World's Heavyweight Championship

A Snappy Three-Reel Drama

Produced by the

AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY

entitled

"THE MAKING OF FULTON"

State Rights Selling

Ready for immediate delivery, including special advertising matter and posters.

Wire for quotations.

AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY

6242 BROADWAY - - - CHICAGO

and with her makes his escape from the ferocious circus boss and his outfit. Hugo, a discharged clown, learns of their whereabouts and informs the boss. The fugitives are traced to a small country town, where the boss of the circus orders the whole town burned down to get his "clown" back. During the excitement of the blaze, Betts and By-dar-Zee again make a get-away and manage to eventually get to the state line of Florida, which Betts crosses in a baby carriage with By-dar-Zee as his engineer. He collects the bet from "rival Fitz" and then, gazing fondly at By-dar-Zee, chooses her instead of the title hunting "fair Julia," whom he wishes on Fitz as a "booby prize."

NO GREATER LOVE (Selig—Five Parts—Jan. 10).—Wherever one goes in Parisian circles, the conversation is all of Sadunah, the dancer. She has a daughter, Editha, a winsome girl on the threshold of womanhood. Into their lives comes Henry Laroche, secretary to Mostyn May, a power in the money markets of the world. The young man loves Editha, but his courtship is not encouraged by Sadunah. Mostyn May is taken by his friends to the theater to see the dancer perform, and he is so struck with her that he offers Sadunah an engagement to dance at an entertainment he is giving. Among the guests is May's millionaire uncle, Clifton Judd, an infirm invalid, living alone with his valet, Mark Repton, to whom the love of drink has become a curse. When Sadunah leaves May's house, she realizes that the money king is her slave. Despite all this May cannot induce the dancer to marry him. He believes she loves someone else, and she says it is true. Sadunah shows him a portrait of Editha, her daughter. "I love her better than my life," she says. May asks to be introduced to Editha, and when he leaves, Sadunah asks: "What do you think of him, my darling? What if he became your father?" The girl's answer must have been satisfactory, because a few weeks later she is waiting in the financier's house for the return of the lovers from their honeymoon.

Among the intimate friends of the financier, are the Earl of Wansford and his son, Lord Sandown. Between Lord Sandown and Editha, it is evidently a case of love at first sight. Sadunah sees in this a brilliant match for her daughter and decides to use her wit to bring about a marriage. Unable to deny his wife anything, May is easily persuaded to use his influence with the Earl. During a visit of the Earl and his son at the May chauteau, a marriage is arranged between the young people. Soon after this Uncle Clifton Judd writes that he is in ill health, and that he will be grateful if his nephew and niece will prepare for his reception the little cottage at the Devil's Pool. Accompanied by his valet, Mark, the old man arrives and takes up his abode in the cottage.

Then one morning May receives notice to the effect that unless $250,000 are available at the end of the month, reads the letter, May will be branded and then imprisoned as a thief because of certain illegal operations on the stock exchange. An appeal from May to his uncle is fruitless. Shortly afterward a note comes from the uncle which reads: "I shall not even dine with a thief. Heaven give me strength to reach town tomorrow to revoke my will." Sadunah is greatly angered at her husband, and tells him that the only way they can be saved is by killing Uncle Judd. At midnight May and his wife make their way to Judd's cottage. Quietly May enters.

Clifton is sleeping in the alcove with the drink-sodden Mark tossing uneasily on a couch outside. May fires and kills his uncle. The sound of the shot awakens the valet who goes to investigate. He, too, is shot by May, who goes on the porch, where his wife is waiting. Sadunah takes the revolver from the trembling May and places it in the hands of the valet. At home she sees that her dress has been torn, and it arouses her astonishment. Among those who visit the next day the dead bodies is Laroche, the secretary, and it is he who finds the piece of lace missing from Sadunah's gown. Without a word he places it in his pocket. The jury return a double verdict against the valet. The lawyers come to May to read the will. As he leans over to sign the documents May thinks he sees the uncle he murdered. With a shriek he falls dead.

A month has passed and Sadunah receives a letter from Henry Laroche, asking for an interview. At that interview Laroche shows Sadunah the piece of torn lace. "It is Editha I want. Give her to me and I remain silent," is Laroche's thunderbolt. Sadunah's mother love is so strong that she refuses to make the sacrifice, and she tells Laroche to do his worst. The secretary then announces that he will inform Editha that her mother is a murderess. Sadunah cowers and requests another interview the next morning at the Devil's pool. Laroch believes he has won. The next morning Sadunah climbs the cliff to the height above Devil's Pool. Waiting beside the broken fence is Henry Laroche. Sadunah greets him gaily and points to the beautiful view. Then as the man half turns the woman springs upon him. Together they crash through the broken fence and into the Devil's Pool deep below. Taking the awful secret with her to a watery grave, Sadundah proves that there is no greater love than to lay down her life for her daughter.

MY LADY'S SLIPPER (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Jan. 10).—The cast: Francis Burnham (Earle Williams); Countess de Villars (Anita Stewart); Duc de Rivau-Huet (George O'Donnell); Bucknall (Albert Roccardi); Marquis du Tremignon (Harry Northrup); Espiau (George Stevens); Marie Antoinette (Julia Swayne Gordon); King Louis XVI. (Joseph Kilgour); Benjamin Franklin (Charles Chapman). Written by Cyrus Townsend Brady. Directed by Ralph Ince.

Francis Burnham, a young American naval officer in the time of King Louis XVVI. of France, escapes from a British convict ship. He is desirous of reaching Paris to see Benjamin Franklin, then his country's Minister, but upon his arrival there learns Franklin is away. He meets Bucknall, an old shipmate, and earns his everlasting gratitude by helping him out of financial difficulties. Later, strolling through the suburbs of Paris, he has the good fortune to rescue a beautiful lady from a highwayman, but does not learn her name.

Meanwhile his restless nature gets him into gambling, he loses all and becomes indebted to a stranger who proves to be the Marquis de Tremignon. By threats and promises to wipe out his obligations, the Marquis secures Burnham's aid in the scheme he has in mind. He tells the young American that he is in love with the Countess De Villars, and she with him but her grandfather objects, so the Marquis plans to force his consent by securing some article of wearing apparel from the Countess and thus compromise her.

Burnham is to be his agent. He does not think very highly of the job, but when the Marquis threatens him with imprisonment, he consents. That night he enters the Countess' apartments and succeeds in securing one of her slippers but is confronted a moment later by the lady herself. She proves to be the lady he rescued from the highwayman. Crushed and humiliated, Burnham tells his story and she believes him. He learns that she hates the Marquis and that the rascal is really trying to force her into a marriage in this cowardly fashion.

Before she goes she gives him her slipper to take to the Marquis, but instead he keeps it and denounces that gentleman to his face for which he is imprisoned. The slipper Burnham intrusts to Bucknell for safe keeping, and the old seaman takes it to the Countess, telling her what has transpired. She helps Burnham to escape from prison, but he is captured by the Marquis's soldiers before he can reach the border. The Countess's influence, however, secures an audience with Queen Marie Antoinette, as a result of which the Marquis is humiliated while Burnham is freed, and marries the Countess.

GREEN STOCKINGS (Five Parts—Jan. 17—Vitagraph).—The cast: Celia Faraday (Lillian Walker); Her Father (Frank Currier); Aunt Ida (Louise Beaudet); Phyllis (Adele De Garde); Madge (Lillian Burns); Col. Smith (Stanley Dark); Tarver (Charles Brown); Admiral Grice (John T. Kelly); Col. Rockingham (Charles Wellesley); Raleigh (Denton Vane); Martin, family servant (Robert Vivian). From the play by A. E. W. Mason. Picturized by Eugene Mullin. Directed by Wilfrid North.

The Faraday family is composed of Celia, the oldest daughter, Aunt Ida, Mr. Faraday, an old gentleman, Phyllis, the youngest daughter, and Madge, the married daughter, whose husband is Colonel Rockingham. Robert Tarver, an empty-headed young swell, is Phyllis' sweetheart. Admiral Grice a typical old salt, and Jim Raleigh are friends of the family.

ALL THE PLAYERS

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
4987 General Office, Schenectady, N. Y.

Exhibitors and Managers: Read Page No. 309.

MINA COMEDIES

THEY ADD NOVELTY AND DISTINCTION TO YOUR THEATRE

EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

Simplex

REPORT FROM THE FIRING LINE!

RELIABILITY demanded whether for PROJECTILES or PROJECTORS. "SIMPLICITY in every part, DURABLE, QUIET RUNNING and EASY to PROJECT a ROCK SOLID PICTURE" is the report of

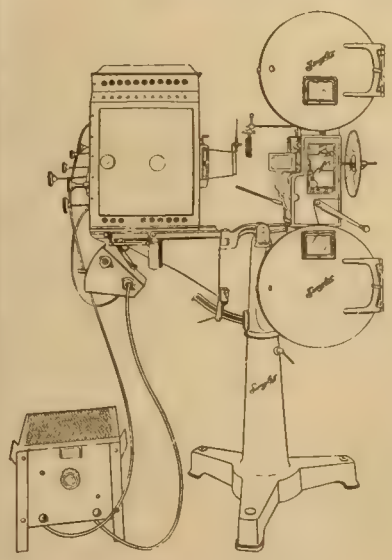
MANAGER LANGWORTHY OF SISTERSVILLE, W. VA.



"THEE SHOW"

Sistersville, W. Va.,
December 6th, 1915.

The Precision Machine Co., Inc.
317 East 34th Street, New York City.

Gentlemen:

Noting in the current number of our M. P. World that you had prepared a catalogue and price list of parts, which could be had upon request, we hasten to make the request.

We have been using a Simplex Projector since last April and think it the best upon the market, being in every way just what the name implies. SIMPLICITY in every part, DURABLE, QUIET RUNNING and EASY to PROJECT a ROCK SOLID PICTURE.

Thanking you in advance for the new catalogue, we will say that when the time comes for us to replace our other "old" machine, the new one will be another SIMPLEX, we remain

Yours truly,
(Signed) O. F. LANGWORTHY, Manager.

Simplex

The PROJECTOR that received the UNANIMOUS APPROVAL of the U. S. GOVERNMENT WAR DEPARTMENT
and
GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION
Send for Catalog "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

Tarver wants to marry Phyllis, but Faraday refuses his consent while Celia remains unmarried. There is a custom in certain sections of England that, if she is unmarried, an elder sister must wear green stockings at the wedding of a younger sister and Celia has already had to wear them once—at Madge's wedding. Celia worries greatly over this state of affairs. She is a very charming girl, though past twenty-five, and finally she determines to help out her sister Phyllis.

On the impulse, she announces "I'm engaged" and on being excitedly questioned, she tells everyone that the gentleman's name is "Smith" and that he is a Colonel in the Army. Immediately, Celia is transformed in the eyes of her family and she is looked up to with respect. She explains that Smith has sailed on a troop ship for South Africa, and foolishly writes a love letter to the fictitious Colonel, which she does not intend to mail, but Phyllis finds it and drops it in the letter box.

Now it happens that there is a real Colonel Smith at that moment fighting in Africa. In due time the letter reaches him and after recovering from his astonishment, he half jokingly leaves on furlough for England to locate that lady who so rashly signed herself "Celia Faraday." He does find her, just as the family are commiserating Celia over the reported demise of Colonel Smith. How should they know that Celia had quietly inserted the notice in the newspaper. Appreciating the humor of the situation, the Colonel, charmed with Celia's grace and beauty, introduces himself as Colonel Vavasour, "with a message from her deceased betrothed." Her horror and confusion know no bounds, but he helps her out of some very awkward situations and after a complete showdown, the Colonel becomes Celia's real fiance.

PARAMOUNT.

LYDIA GILMORE (Famous Players—Five Parts—Dec. 27).—The cast: Lydia Gilmore (Pauline Frederick); Dr. Gilmore (Vincent Serrano); Ralph Benham (Thomas Holding); Mr. Stracey (Robert Cain); Mrs. Stracey (Helen Luttrell); Master Ned Gilmore (Jack Curtis); Detective (Michael Rale).

Dr. Gilmore, though successful in keeping his wife in ignorance of his numerous intrigues, cannot conceal from her the fact that he no longer loves her. Finally ascertaining the truth of his suspicions that the doctor is in love with Mrs. Stracey, Stracey sets a trap into which Gilmore walks. When he has caught his man, Stracey is killed in the fight which ensues, and the terrified Gilmore confesses to his wife, giving her the knife with which the crime was committed. She hides it and, after a struggle with her conscience, decides to shield her husband for the sake of her son, Ned. Her great love for Ned has led to the formation of a new friendship with a lawyer named Benham whose great attachment for Ned has won her gratitude. This man falls in love with Mrs. Gilmore, but, being an honorable man, complies with her request that they part company. But it happens that Benham elects the night of the murder as the time on which to bid good-bye to Mrs. Gilmore. He comes to the house and is seen conversing with little Ned by one of the servants.

When the news of the murder comes out in the morning, circumstantial evidence points to Dr. Gilmore, though nobody believes that he is guilty. However, he is arrested and Benham, sensing his guilt when he reads of the affair in the papers, hastens back to Mrs. Gilmore to offer his assistance. Scarcely has she finished confiding the truth to him when he is called upon to prosecute the case himself. He accepts and jeopardizes his professional standing by coaching Mrs. Gilmore in the answering of the questions which he will ask her on the stand.

Mrs. Gilmore safely survives the perilous siege on the stand, but when the letter of the servant who saw Benham at her home is read in court and the judge demands that little Ned be placed on the stand, Mrs. Gilmore breaks down completely and confesses the truth. Her cowardly husband commits suicide rather than face the penalty of the law, and Mrs. Gilmore is removed from the court in a state of complete collapse. She is taken to Benham's home, where she is placed under the tender care of the lawyer's sister. There is every reason to believe that the suffering of Mrs. Gilmore will soon give way to a well-deserved happiness.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD (Famous Players—Five Parts—Dec. 28).—The cast: Joshua Whitcomb (Frank Losee); Reuben Whitcomb (Creighton Hale); Jack Hazzard (Happy Jack) (Denman Maley); Ruth Stratton (Louise Huff); Aunt Trilby (Mrs. Corbett); Cy (Horace Newman); Seth (Thomas Wood); Rickety Ann (Margaret Seddon); Sheriff (Russell Simpson).

Kindly old Josh Whitcomb, while sitting on the porch of his old farmhouse in West Swanzey, befriends Happy Jack Hazzard, a hungry tramp, and persuades him to reform. Reuben, Josh's only son, is arrested on circumstantial evidence when his bank is robbed of ten thousand dollars. After the boy has been lodged in jail, Rickety Ann discovers the real thief after Happy Jack has refused to "pal" with him. The thief is arrested and brought to the jail, where Reuben is confined.

But the sensitive boy, threatened with a long imprisonment by the president of the bank, loses his head and flees from the jail when he discovers a loose bar in his cell window. He makes his way into New York, where he is impelled by loneliness to join in with a number of undesirable young folks, who soon teach him to drink heavily. While badly intoxicated one evening he comes upon Jack Hazzard, now a very prosperous chap, who, recognizing him, takes him to a lodging house with the promise of returning for him in the morning.

Reuben, knowing nothing of the clearing of his name at home, runs away from Hazzard who he fears will betray him. Hazzard meanwhile has telegraphed to Josh of the finding of Reuben. The old man hastens to New York, where he puts up at the home of his old friend, Henry Hopkins, an extremely wealthy man. There Josh's unsophistication gets him into a number of embarrassing situations.

Being unable to find Reuben or Hazzard, Josh takes a walk, and when passing Grace Church bumps into Hazzard, whom he does not recognize. While they are talking, Reuben, once more intoxicated, passes under escort of a policeman. Josh rushes over to the boy, who is released on the request of Hazzard. Then all three return to the Whitcomb farm, where they are met by a joyous gathering, among them Ruth, who has remained steadfast in her love for Reuben despite his disappearance.

TEMPTATION (Famous Players—Five Parts—Dec. 30).—Renee Dupree, a young cafe singer, living in the Bohemian section of New York, is engaged to be married to Julian, a young violinist and composer. They are both poor, but Julian, who has just finished an opera, hopes to marry Renee when it is produced. One afternoon, when Renee and Julian are singing and playing at the Ritz, Otto Muller, the great Impresario, is struck with Renee's beauty and voice and offers her a position in his opera company. Renee makes good at the trial, much to the anger of Mme. Maroff, Muller's mistress, and is given an opportunity to sing a star role. Renee succeeds and Muller, captivated, plans to make her his favorite and supply her with every luxury. He engages an apartment for Renee and gives her a contract at an enormous salary.

When Renee discovers why these gifts are offered her, she scorns Muller and returns heartbroken to tell Julian of her great disappointment. Muller follows and finds her with Julian and in his anger and jealousy threatens to kill Renee's career if she persists in sticking to Julian and refuses to come to him. Renee again refuses and Muller leaves, promising to crush then both.

Muller keeps his word. Renee and Julian cannot find employment in their profession. Finally Julian takes a job in an iron foundry. His opera is about to be produced when Muller has it killed. This and the hard work breaks Julian down and with his hopes shattered he becomes seriously ill. Finally Renee is told by the physician that Julian's recovery is not a question of care and nursing, that if his mind was set at rest about the opera being produced, his life might be saved. Renee goes to Muller for aid, and he demands Renee herself as the price of Julian's life. Renee, out of love for Julian, determines to make the sacrifice. Renee offers herself to Muller on condition that he produce Julian's opera. The joy of the news of the acceptance of the opera makes the young composer's recovery assured.

The opera is produced and Renee in the star role makes a great success. At the end of the first performance Renee puts Julian off with an excuse and goes to keep her bargain with Muller. Muller, having quarreled with Mme. Maroff, welcomes Renee at his home. While Renee is in another room, decking herself in a gown Muller has provided, Mme. Maroff bursts in upon Muller and after denouncing him for casting her off, stabs him and leaves him for dead.

Muller tries to call out, but cannot, and is only able to write the name of the woman who stabbed him before he dies. Renee enters to find Muller dead and sees by the note that he has been killed by Mme. Maroff. She then realizes that she has been saved by a miracle and flees to Julian. Julian, who greets her in his studio, never knows the sacrifice she was to have made for him and through which his life was saved and his name and fortune made.

THE FOUNDLING (Famous Players—Five Parts—Jan. 3).—The cast: Molly O (The Foundling) (Mary Pickford); David King (Edward Martindell); Mrs. Grimes (Maggie Weston); Jennie (Mildred Morris); Julia Ember (Marcia Harris).

As "The Foundling," Miss Pickford is represented as a child spurned by her father, an impoverished artist, because its birth has cost the life of its mother, dearly beloved by the artist. Unable to tolerate the sight of the babe that had caused his wife's death, he gives it to a stranger, who, in turn, transposes it to an orphanage. In the sorrow of his wife's death, the artist finds the touch of genius for which he had longed, and through its employment in his work becomes a recognized leader of his profession.

In the meantime, Molly O, as his daughter is named at the orphanage, is adopted by a sycophantic woman, who pretends to be seeking a daughter, but who in reality wants a servant in her boarding house, and Molly O becomes a drudge and a slave. In the years that follow, King begins to realize the shallowness of fame and fortune without love, and regrets his impulsive act in sending away his baby daughter. He returns to America from Italy, where he has been working on his masterpiece, the Madonna, to seek his daughter. Through a series

Successful Concerns
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 8 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

For POSTERS
Goes Lithographing Co
Chicago

The Seeburg Pipe Organ
places your theatre in a class above your competitor and eliminates his competition.
J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO., Mfrs.
Republic Bldg., 209 S. State St., Chicago, Ill.
Branches: New York, 127 W. 65th St.; Atlanta, 65 N. Pryor St., Pittsburgh, 431 Liberty Ave., Boston, M. Steinert & Sons, Steinert Hall.

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

The First Moving Picture Journal in Europe
The Kinematograph Weekly
The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—
The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

Exhibitors of New York State

A Great Meeting of the Exhibitors of the State of New York will be held at Albany, March 1st and 2nd. All Exhibitors of the State are urged to attend. Watch for full details in the next issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Exhibitors, Read This

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has prepared blanks for petitions to Congress against the proposed Federal Censorship. Each one of these blanks contains space for fifty signatures. We will send these blanks to each exhibitor according to his needs. Our advice to him is that he make it a point to secure the signatures of voters or persons of voting age. No others will have weight. This is to be a petition of the People to their representatives in Congress. It is best, therefore to have the signatures of citizens who are not in any way interested in the moving picture industry. Do not sign yourself. Do not ask any of your employees to sign. Let only disinterested citizens sign the petition. Forward the petition duly filled out with the signatures to us and we will forward it to Congress. This should be taken up by every Exhibitor in this State. ADVISE AT ONCE WHETHER YOU REQUIRE ONE OR MORE BLANKS. WRITE US IMMEDIATELY. Act at once! Now!! This minute!!! of dramatic vicissitudes, Molly O's path crosses that of her father, and through the instrumentality of fate, she is restored to his waiting arms.

WORLD FILM CORP.

THE AMBITION OF MARK TRUITT (Five Parts—January 17).—The cast: Mark Truitt (Robert Warwick); Jeremiah Quimby (Alec. B. Francis); Thomas Henley (Robert Cummings); Roman Androskia (Ralph Delmore); Blair (D. J. Flannigan); Piotr (James Mack); Gracy (James Ewens); Rev. Courtenay (Adolphe Lestina); Dr. Graham (Philip Basi); Simon Truitt (George Moss); Bill Slocum (Harry C. Weir); Houlahan (Ezra Walck); Marcel (Adolph Parina); Kazian (Madaline Traverse); Johann (Harry DeVere); Unity (Dorothy Fairchild); Hanka (Julia Stuart); Mrs. Henley (Phillis Haseltine); Susan Martin (Mildred Havens). Directed by Oscar Eagle.

Truitt is a country lad who conceives an overpowering ambition to become a great power in the steel industry. In his day-dreams he often pictures the peaceful valley in which he has been born and reared, filled with belching chimneys and vast furnaces under his complete mastery.

As a beginning he bids goodbye to his little country sweetheart and enters the employ of a steel mill in Pittsburgh. He starts in at the lowest form of manual labor, but quickly is raised to a position as gang foreman, and soon afterwards becomes a skilled worker in the mills. He boards with the family of a shop foreman. The shop foreman's daughter falls in love with Mark and gives herself to him unreservedly.

Truitt fights his way on relentlessly. He becomes superintendent of the mill and then forms a new corporation with one of the younger partners of the firm. He deserts the girl of the mill, returns to his old home, marries his first love, and sees the realization of his life's ambition, in the construction of his own great steel mills in the quiet valley in which he roamed as a boy.

His wife becomes a mere social butterfly and the couple are estranged. There is a divorce. Alone in his great mansion, monarch of all he can survey from his window's outlook, Truitt at length realizes how hollow a victory he had gained in a life of power without love. He seeks out the girl of his days in the Pittsburgh steel mill, finds her love still steadfast, and makes her his wife.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

ROSE OF THE ALLEY (Rolfe—Five Parts—Jan. 17).—Nell Drogan (Mary Miles Minter); Kid Hogan (Daniel B. "Kid" Hogan); Dan Hogan, his brother (Frederick Heck); Mamie, Kid Hogan's girl (Geraldine Berg); Frank Roberts (Allen Edwards); Tom (Thomas J. Carrigan). Written by Harry O. Hoyt. Directed by Charles Horan.

Tom Drogan, addicted to gambling and drink, is the object of a good mother's devotion. His sister, Nell, is more susceptible to her mother's good teachings, and has grown like a flower among weeds, with a great affection for both, and an innocence that marks her apart entirely from her surroundings. One of Tom's drunken escapades so affects his mother that in her efforts to get him to their tenement room she is attacked with heart trouble which proves fatal. Her dying words are to Nell to be patient with Tom. He has been sent by Nell for the doctor and in his inebriate condition has forgotten all about the ill mother, and has been induced to go into a saloon and indulge further, finally remembering his errand and bringing the physician too late.

Tom brings Kid Hogan to the flat some days later to pay him a gambling debt. A dispute leads to the shooting of Hogan through the forearm and his brother, a cheap ward politician and plain-clothes man in the police department, hears the shot from the street, meets Tom, as he tries to get away, and is about to arrest him when Tom charges Hogan with having tried to assault Nell. Although Hogan knows he is innocent, he realizes the gravity of the charge and tells his brother to let Tom go—he'll get even. Nell assents to the charge her brother makes to shield him and Hogan decides he will get a woman associate of his who lives in the next apartment, to frame-up the girl.

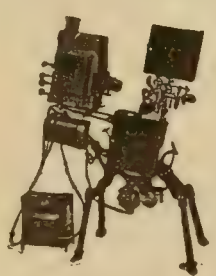
Hogan and two of his friends try to shoot Tom from a roof, but miss him. The girl, Mamie, then sets about getting Nell in the toils—asks her to go with her to buy a hat. On their way Mamie accosts two men, and Hogan's brother, who is conveniently near, arrests Nell, making no attempt to catch the fleeing Mamie. Frank Roberts, Nell's suitor, happens on the scene and pilots her safely through the affair. Meanwhile Tom has heard of the framing-up of Nell, and seeks Hogan, whom he knows is at the bottom of it. He finds him, with his girl, in a cheap dance hall, and there their respective gangs engage in a fight, in which several guerillas are killed, while others make spectacular getaways.

In this fracas Tom is mortally wounded, while Hogan is killed. Tom gets to their flat, just before Frank and Nell arrive from the station house. Tom's dying words to Nell are: "Don't let 'em get me, sis. Bar the door." While the pursuing officers are hammering the door in, Tom drops the revolver, and Nell picks it up, crazed with the single thought of protecting her brother, as she had promised her mother to do. Just as the officers break in the door Frank knocks her revolver up as she fires. It is too late—the brother is dead.

FOX FILM CORP.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER (Five Parts—Jan. 2).—The story opens at a chateau where gay French life is depicted, introducing Raimond de Mornay, the elder of two sons who secretly loves his cousin Claire. He makes no open declaration of his affection, however, and his brother, Louis, woos and wins her. Unable to stand the jealousy their marriage arouses, Raimond goes to Vienna where he engages in riotous living. His father's death recalls him home, but he is unable to watch the intimacy of the woman he loves with his brother, and he leaves for India where he stays for several years, becoming versed in the ways of the Hindu.

A letter from his nephew, Paul, asks him to come back. Believing he has stifled the jealousy that sent him away, he returns. The green-eyed monster attacks him with irresistible force and calling into play a curious box, that somewhere in its mechanism contains a drop of cobra poison, he gives it to his brother whose inquisitiveness over its mysterious nature releases a hidden spring and the virus is injected into his blood. He secretes the body in a casket, another of his possessions obtained in India. The casket guards his secret until Claire becomes suspicious and accuses him of the deed. His mind, brooding over his crime, becomes deranged and although pleading innocence, leads Claire to the casket and throws open the lid. The shock of unexpectedly seeing her dead husband kills her. Again Raimond escapes suspicion, but as time elapses he forms a dislike for his nephew, until, becoming obsessed with the idea of showing Paul what is inside of the chest, he drags the frightened child to the heavy box and shows him all that is left of what was once his father. Later, after becoming a raving maniac, Raimond falls dead at the sight of his brother's skeleton.



POWER'S 6B

QUITTNER BROS., owners of the

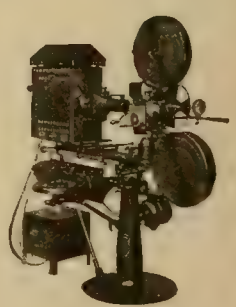
ALHAMBRA THEATRE

Torrington, Conn.

Wanted the Best Projection Obtainable
For This Beautiful Theatre.



MOTIOGRAPH

They Placed Their Order With Us for Projection Machines, Special Condensing and Projection Lenses, Special Prepared Screen, Spot Lamp, Frames, Chopper, etc., etc.

We Have It When You Want It

No Delays

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

And We Saw To It That Their

Projection Was Perfect

Ask Them About It — We Can do the Same for You

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET
NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET
BUFFALO, N. Y.

Tell Us Your Projection Troubles

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

A-1—Theatrical pianist and director. Specialty vaudeville and pictures. Sober, reliable. Charles Jerreld, 1205 Hampden St., Holyoke, Mass.

ORGANIST—(Young Lady) at liberty. Have been playing one of the largest theater organs in the country. If you are looking for an organist who can match pictures, address particulars to Lady Organist, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR—Six years' experience, guarantee perfect projection. First-class electrician; can repair machines. Go anywhere, reasonable salary. First-class references. Address Walter Milner, care Idyl Theater, Ocean City, N. J.

REFINED YOUNG MAN—Wide experience in general photography, with slight knowledge of motion picture photography, desires to locate with motion picture manufacturer, with view of becoming a cameraman. Address G. W. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

PIANIST—Experienced lady for straight pictures. Must be good sight reader with large repertoire. State all. Columbia Theater, Marion, Ohio.

WANTED—Experienced sub-title editor. One of the largest producing companies. Address Sub-Title, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters are business bringers.

THEATERS WANTED.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical, successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—First-class picture theater prosperous town 5,000. Seats 330. Best reasons selling. Bargain if sold thirty days. C. T., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

NEVER, in the history of the moving picture world, was there such a remarkable opportunity as we are offering today. Movie working from morning to night, seven days week. Located on a main street in city of close to 200,000. Actual expenses to conduct this business less than $325 week. Receipts for the past twenty weeks will average $460. Mirroroid screen; two 6A Power's machines, motor driven; motor generator; upright piano. In fact, everything necessary for first-class movie equipment. Positively worth $15,000. On account of other business which compels owner to move, will sacrifice for less than $7,000 cash, only. One or two weeks' trial will be given to any bona fide buyer. A duplicate of this enterprise was sold in Buffalo for $75,000. Lewis, Moving Picture Broker, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—New and second hand moving picture machines, all leading makes, at reduced prices. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Complete equipment, any quantity, new and second-hand for moving picture theaters, furnished at short notice. Specializing Powers' machines. W. H. Latimer, 308 Lackawanna Ave., Scranton, Pa.

MOTIOGRAPH—Same as new. Deagen Electric Unifon. Ten by twelve mirrorcloth screen. Twenty reels film. Arthur Close, 1120 Branson St., Marion, Indiana.

FOR SALE—Two Power's 6A travelling equipments, mechanism entirely rebuilt. One asbestos booth for two machines. One 220 volt compensarc. One Mirroroid screen 12x16 feet, used but two months. Poster frames. Bargain for quick sale. Eugene L. Keefe, 1325 Vine St., Phila., Pa.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters protect your patrons from eyestrain. Price $3.50. W. D. Warner, Columbus, Ohio.

WE MANUFACTURE motion picture machine parts. Rheostats, lugs, film cement, burners, rewinders, lens jackets, etc. Write for catalogue. Kelemen & Stetz, 56 West 26th St., N. Y. City.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—New and second hand. Special offers. 400 maple folding 35c, 400 leather upholstered $1, 1,000 opera, perfect condition. Electric sign. Bargains. All guaranteed. Shipped subject to examination. Atlas Seating Co., 501 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE, REBUILT MACHINES—Motiograph, 1908, $60. Edison Exhibition, $65. Power's No. 6, $115. Power's No. 5, $75. Motiograph, 1911, $125. A-1 condition guaranteed; many others. Write for catalog and list. Amusement Supply Co., 160H No. Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ORDER "Amberlux" lens filters today.

FOR SALE—225 Veneer chairs. A. B. Chase piano. Power's 6A motor driven machine, also fixtures. Will sell only show, town 1,800. Good stage; 210 seats. Power's 6A machine, etc. S. C. Knapp, Blissfield, Mich.

FOR SALE—New or second hand opera chairs for moving picture theaters at a bargain. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic takeup, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 5961 Franklin.

FOR SALE—Small Ernemann camera, like new, price $75. Fuqua, 20 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

BARGAIN—New Universal Camera complete, with a good tripod with panorama and tilt. The price of camera alone $250. Used Urban, 300 ft. Zeiss 3.5 lens, $75. American Printer, $75. Title machine, $30. Buckeye Motion Picture Com., Wapakoneta, Ohio.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED—Any kind of film, first-class condition, with posters. 4, 5 and 6 reelers preferred. State price, condition and amount paper. Open to buy big quantities. Sohmer, Rm. 803, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—"David Copperfield," seven reels, plenty of paper, Hepworth; "Motherhood of Politics," two reels, with paper. "Love and Devotion," or the "Passions of the Renaissance," founded on Tarquato Tasso's famous work, five reels, with paper. "The Miser's Daughter," three reels, founded on Balzac's "Eugenie Grandet." Eugene L. Keefe, 1325 Vine St., Phila., Pa.

THREE AND FOUR reel features in excellent condition with plenty of mounted and unmounted posters. Great bargains, also single and two reel subjects, with posters; finest line of comedy reels, popular makes. Weinberg's Features, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—(Lubin's) "Drug Terror," five reels. "Oliver Twist," with Nat C. Goodwin, five reels. Overland Feature Film Corp., Douw Bldg., Albany, N. Y.

100 SINGLES AND DOUBLES, American make, 12 posters with each reel. Shipped privilege screen examination. Federal, 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WE BUY and sell new and second hand moving picture machines, opera chairs and films. Crescent Film Exc., 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ENTER—"Amberlux"—Exit eyestrain.

WILL SELL, for any territory, brand new copy of the great Mutual masterpiece Besse Barriscale in "The Reward," four reels, $200; also one good print "The Mix-up," four reels, thirty days old, $75. Ernest Bru, 766 Seventh Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

A Welcome Visitor Each Week in Every Business Home Where Moving Pictures Are of Interest

The Moving Picture World

Is Admirably Adapted to Carry Any Little Message Which You May Wish to Send

Our Classified Advertisements at Three Cents Per Word Will Produce Remarkable Results

Send copy, with remittance, to CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., 17 Madison Avenue, New York City

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 238
"Angel of Piety Flat, The" (Biograph)... 254
Another T. & D. House..... 281
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 250

Bluebird Names Special Representative..... 232
British Notes. 236

"Camille" (World Film)..... 253
Calendar of Daily Program Releases. 284, 286
"Celeste of the Ambulance Corps" (Edison) 256
Censors Delay Business..... 278
Chicago News Letter..... 226
"Colonel Heeza Liar's Waterloo"..... 248
Comments on the Film..... 261
Credit Association Elects Officers..... 230

"Destruction" (Fox). 255
Detroit Escapes Bad Law..... 276
Do Special Effects Help?..... 283
Dressed in a Little Brief Authority..... 216
Drew, Sidney, with Metro..... 218

Eight Busy Directors..... 222
"Excuse Me" (Pathe)..... 253

Facts and Comments..... 215
Faye, Miss Alleen..... 225
Fatty and Mabel's New Year..... 251
"Fighting for France" (Mutual)..... 259
"Foundling, The" (Famous Players)..... 260
First Selig-Tribune, The..... 223

Going South. 233
"Golden Chance, The" (Lasky)..... 255
"Green Swamp, The" (Kay-Bee)..... 259

Herrington Against Tax on Gross Receipts 224
Horsley Leaves for Los Angeles..... 249
Hunter (J. W.) to Build in Wilkinsburg, Pa. 272
Huntington Patrons Ask for Sabbath Shows 277

Ince Has Six Plays Ready..... 249

Kansas City House Goes Back to 5 Cents. 278

Lasky Company in New Offices..... 233
"Life Chase, A" (Biograph)..... 254
List of Current Film Release Dates. 314, 316, 318
Louisville's Masonic Theater's Future Settled. 275

"Man Inside, The" (Universal)..... 258
Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 264
Many New Ontario Theaters..... 282
Mayor Questions Ads..... 282
Montague, Fred, Appears in "The Bait"..... 220
Metro Busy With New Year..... 220
"Miser's Heart, The" (Biograph)..... 254
Motion Pictures in Honduras..... 221
Motion Picture Educator..... 252
Motion Picture Photography..... 246
Moore, Tom..... 251
Mrs. Dane's Danger..... 258
Music for the Picture..... 247
Musical Setting for "Camille"..... 247
Mutual Has Noted Writers..... 222
Mutual Ones and Twos..... 268

National Board Fully Endorsed..... 219
New Dallas Exchange..... 280
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 228
Next Week's Vitagraphs..... 221
Notes of the Trade..... 269
Novel New Year Subject..... 218
No Decree Yet Entered..... 218

Observations by Man About Town..... 234
Oklahoma City Makes Mayor Censor..... 280
On Film Row, St. Louis..... 279
"Other Girl, The" (Raver)..... 255
Our Chances In Europe..... 217

Persons, Thomas H..... 224
Pertinent Question, A..... 231
Philadelphia Matters..... 271
Photoplaywright, The..... 241
Picture Theaters Projected..... 269
Pine Tree News..... 270
Points for Picture Players..... 232
Powers, Tom..... 251
Projection Department..... 242
"Purification of Mulfera, The" (Kalem)..... 256

Reviews of Current Productions..... 253

"Secret Seven" (Vitagraph)..... 258
Sees Change of Front by Exhibitors..... 219
"Sorrows of Happiness" (Lubin)..... 257
South American Market, The..... 217
Spokes From the Hub..... 235
Stories of the Films..... 288
Sunday Shows Go Well..... 274

"Temptation" (Lasky)..... 258
Three Good Biographs..... 254
"Thou Art the Man" (Vitagraph)..... 257
"Tom Martin—A Man" (Selig)..... 254
Traverse, Madeline..... 224
Triangle's Patriotic Play..... 231
Triangle Program..... 259
Two Lubin Releases..... 257
Two Vitagraph Features..... 258

Universal Plans for Miss Laurence..... 232
Universal's New Feature Brand..... 233

"Vengeance of the Oppressed" (Lubin)..... 257
Victory for Universal..... 250

Washington's Avenue Grand Theater Sold.. 272
Walker, Waldo, Becomes Assistant Director 223
What Ruby Did..... 225
"What Will People Say?" (Metro)..... 256
"Woman in Politics, The" (Thanhouser).. 257
"Wood Nymph, The" (Fine Arts)..... 259
"Worst of Friends, The" (Keystone)..... 259

Zukor Raps Sex Plays..... 223

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.

Habicht, Braun & Co..... 321
Jones & Cammack..... 319
Kiewert, Chas. L..... 324
Reisinger, Hugo 323
Speer Carbon Co..... 313

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.

American Seating Co..... 325
Andrews, A. H. 325
Steel Furniture Co..... 325

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

Amusement Supply Co..... 322
Erker Bros. 317
Foos Gas Engine Co., The..... 322
Fort Wayne Electric Works..... 295
Fulton, E. E..... 300
General Electric Co..... 306
Hallberg, J. H..... 292
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 317
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 300
Kleine Optical Co..... 304
Lears Theater Supply Co..... 295
Lucas, Harry K. 302
Northwestern M. P. Equip. Co..... 295
Picture Theater Equipment Co..... 310
Porter, B. F..... 322
Speed Controller Co..... 322
Stern Mfg. Co..... 325
Strelinger, Chas. A..... 300
Swaab, Lewis M. 323
Typhoon Fan Co. 324
Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co..... 296

FILM EXCHANGES.

Brandenburgh, G. W..... 298
Central Film Co..... 308
Greater N. Y. Film Rental Co.....296, 318
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co..... 298

LENS MANUFACTURER.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co..... 321

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.

American Film Co., Inc..... 199
American Bioscope Co..... 305
Biograph Co. 285
Buffalo Times M. P. Syndicate Dept..... 297
Edison, Thos A., Inc..... 206
Equitable Motion Picture Corp..... 189
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....167-70
Farnham, Jos. W..... 179
Famous Players Film Co.....174-75
French Official War Films..... 198
Great Northern Film Co..... 303
Hanover Film Co..... 317
Hearst-Vitagraph 196-97
Kalem Co. 211-14
Kane, Arthur S..... 182
Kleine, Geo. 203
Knickerbocker Star Features..... 205
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co.....176-77
Lariat Films 190
Lubin Mfg. Co..... 210
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Mittenthal Film Co., Inc..... 293
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored Insert
Paramount Pictures Corp.....171-73
Pathe Exchange, The, inc.....191-95
Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc..... 325
Raver Film Corp. 301
Rolin Film Co.....320
Select Film Booking Agency..... 178
Selig Polyscope Co.....320, 327
Selig Tribune 326
Signal Film Corp. 200-01
Sterling Camera & Film Co..... 298
Thanhouser Film Corp.....166, 202
Triangle Film Corp.....180-81
Universal Film Mfg. Co., 183-87, Colored Insert
Vim Comedies 204
V-L-S-E, Inc..... 287
Vitagraph Co. of America 207-09
World Film Corp. 188

MISCELLANEOUS.

Active Motion Picture Co..... 324
American Film Laboratories, Inc..... 319
Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Reg. Co.. 302
Bioscope, The 323
Caille Bros. 298
Chicago Daily News..... 299
Classified Advertisements..... 311
Corcoran, A. J. 298
Eastman Kodak Co..... 317
Erbograph Co. 298
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 322
Gunby Bros. 325
Industrial M. P. Co..... 291
Kinematograaf, De 323
Kinematograph, The 308
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 306
Manuscripts Universal 295
Moore, William N..... 300
Motion Picture Directory Co..... 324
Motion Picture Electricity..... 324
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides..... 325
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon..... 325
National Ticket Co..... 290
Netschert, Frank, Co..... 319
Standard Motion Picture Co..... 295
Stone, A. 302
Trade Circular Addressing Co..... 323
Vitagraph Co. of America..... 315

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.

Los Angeles M. P. Co..... 300
Universal Camera Co..... 323

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Harmo Pipe Organs..... 322
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co..... 308
Schirmer, G., Inc..... 322
Sinn, Clarence E. 298

POSTERS AND FRAMES.

Goes Lithograping Co..... 308
Menger & Ring..... 300
Newman Mfg. Co..... 296

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.

American Standard M. P. Machine Co..... 300
Enterprise Optical Co..... 321
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 328
Precision Machine Co..... 307

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.

Gold King Screen Co..... 322
Minusa Cine Products Co..... 324
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc..... 294
Simpson, Alfred L..... 322

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.

Utility Transparency Co..... 323

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.

Decorators' Supply Co..... 319

Now Is the Time to Place Your Order

FOR

SPEER CARBONS

REGENT THEATRE COMPANY
Billings, Montana.

October 14, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Your letter of October 8th received, also shipment of carbons.

Referring to your request for the opinion of our operator on your product, we are pleased to advise that your "SPEER" carbons are fully as good as any imported carbon we have ever used, in fact, our operator advises that they settle much quicker than imported carbons and give fully as good a light, and we are very much pleased with them.

Again assuring you your carbons are very fine, we remain,

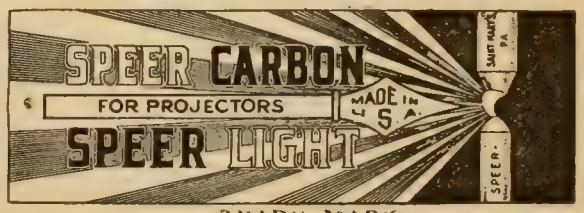
Yours very truly,
REGENT THEATRE COMPANY,
E. C. O'Keefe.

FIRST COME FIRST SERVED

NET CASH PRICES

½x12, cored, pointed both ends,	$37.50 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
9/16x12, cored, pointed both ends,	$40.00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
⅝x12, cored, pointed both ends,	$50,00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
¾x12, cored, pointed both ends,	$70.00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
⅞x12, cored, pointed one end,	$115.00 per M.	(500 in a case)
1x12, cored, pointed one end,	$150.00 per M.	(500 in a case)

We fill Sample Orders for 100 Carbons at the Above Pro Rata Prices



TRADE MARK

Our Speer Carbons are absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction or money back

Speer Carbon Company Dept. "W"

(Makers of Carbon for Electrical purposes during the past 25 years)

Saint Mary's, Pa.

For Sale by Leading M. P. Machine Distributors, Including the Following:

J. H. Hallberg, 36 East 23rd St., New York, N. Y.
E. E. Fulton Co., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Co., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Big "U," Laemmle, L-KO.
Monday—Broadway Universal Features, Imp, Nestor.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor.
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Victor.
Saturday—Big "U," Bison, Joker.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Dec. 8—Number 196 (Topical).
Dec. 15—Number 197 (Topical).
Dec. 22—Number 198 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 199 (Topical).
Jan. 5—No. 200 (Topical).
Jan. 18—Number 201 (Topical).
Jan. 25—No. 202 (Topical).

BIG U.

Dec. 23—No release this day.
Dec. 30—Babbling Tongues (Drama).
Jan. 2—The Honor to Die (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 6—No release this day.
Jan. 13—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Dr.).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 20—No release this day.

BISON.

Dec. 25—When Rogues Fall Out (Three parts—Railroad—Drama).
Jan. 8—On the Trail of the Tigress (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Buck Simon's Puncher (Two parts—Western—Drama).

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 20—Father and the Boys (Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Nature Man; or A Struggle for Existence (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Landon's Legacy (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Man Inside (Five parts—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Dec. 21—Christmas Memories (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—As the Shadows Fall (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 4—Lord John's Journal (Adventure No. 2, "The Gray Sisterhood" (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Reward of Chivalry (Three parts—Drama.)

IMP.

Dec. 21—When Love Laughs (Comedy).
Dec. 28—No release this day.
Dec. 31—A Tribute to Mother (Two parts—Psychological—Drama).
Jan. 4—No release this day.
Jan. 7—The Law of Life (Three parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 11—No release this day.
Jan. 18—No release this week.
Jan. 21—Vanity Thy Name Is (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).

JOKER.

Dec. 18—The Opera Singer's Romance (Com.).
Jan. 1—Lemonade Aids Cupid (Comedy).
Jan. 8—Those Female Haters (Comedy).
Jan. 15—No release this day.
Jan. 22—The Whole Jungle Was After Him (Animal—Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Dec. 23—One Hundred Years Ago (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 26—No release this day.
Dec. 28—The Evil of Suspicion (Drama).
Dec. 30—The Little Upstart (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—The Underworld (Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 6—Missy (Two parts—Modern—Drama).
Jan. 9—Blind Fury (Drama).
Jan. 13—No release this day.
Jan. 16—No release this day.
Jan. 20—Just Plain Folks (Three parts—Rural—Drama).
Jan. 23—Her Dream Man (Drama).

L-KO.

Dec. 22—From Beanery to Billions (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 26—Greed and Gasoline (Comedy).
Dec. 29—A Scandal at Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Pants and Petticoats (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 12—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Saving Susie From the Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Mr. Mcldiot's Assassination (Two parts—Comedy).

NESTOR.

Dec. 25—When Three is a Crowd (Comedy).
Dec. 27—Some Chaperone (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Flivver's Terrible Past (Comedy).
Jan. 3—Jed's Trip to the Fair (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Flivver's Art of Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Boy, the Girl and the Auto (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy).
Jan. 17—Mingling Spirits (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Flivvers Famous Cheese-Hound (Comedy).

POWERS.

Jan. 1—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 2, "How Uncle Sam Gets His Coin" (Topical).
Jan. 6—Building Up the Health of a Nation (Lesson No. 1).
—Carl Emmy and His Gods (Vaudeville Act).
Jan. 8—Uncle Sam At Work, No. 3, "Are We Prepared?" (Educational).
Jan. 13—The Rubber Rompers (Vaudeville Act).
—Transporting Timber in Sweden (Educational).
Jan. 15—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges at Work and at Play" (Educational).
Jan. 20—Building Up the Health of a Nation, No. 2 (Educational).
—The Aerial Buds (Vaudeville Act).
Jan. 22—Uncle Sam At Work (No. 5, "Protecting the Ships At Sea"—Edu.).

REX.

Dec. 24—The Terrible Truth (Drama).
Dec. 26—Stronger Than Death (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 2—No release this day.
Jan. 4—Shattered Nerves (Comedy).
Jan. 9—No release this day.
Jan. 11—His Return (Drama).
Jan. 14—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 18—The Silent Member (Drama).
Jan. 23—No release this day.

VICTOR.

Dec. 24—The Tale of the C (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 29—Father's Child (Three parts—Com.).
Dec. 31—No release this day.
Jan. 5—The Heart of a Mermaid (Three parts—Sea Drama).
Jan. 7—No release this day.
Jan. 12—Man and Morality (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama).
Jan. 19—Her Better Self (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—A Sea Mystery (Drama).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Dec. 20—Graft (No. 2, "The Tenement House Evil") (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—Graft (No. 3, "The Traction Grab") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Graft (No. 4, "The Power of the People" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Graft No. 5, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Graft No. 6, "The Railroad Monopoly" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Reliance (2), Casino (1), Thanhouser (1).
Monday—American (2), Falstaff (1), Novelty (1).
Tuesday—Thanhouser (2), Cartoon and Scenic (1), Beauty (1).
Wednesday—Rialto, Centaur (3), Novelty (1).
Thursday—Centaur (2), Falstaff (1), Mutual Weekly (1).
Friday—Mustang (2), American (1), Cub (1).
Saturday—Clipper, Than-o-play or Mustang (3), Beauty (1).

AMERICAN.

Dec. 20—The Clean Up (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 24—Yes or No (Drama).
Dec. 27—The Tragic Circle (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Mender (Drama).
Jan. 3—Matching Dreams (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 7—Time and Tide (Drama).
Jan. 10—Viviana (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Secret Wire (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—Spider Barlow Meets Competition (Crook—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Gamble (Two parts—Drama).

BEAUTY.

Dec. 21—Making a Man of Johnnie (Comedy).
Dec. 25—That Country Girl (Comedy—Drama).
Dec. 28—Kiddus, Kids and Kiddo (Comedy).
Jan. 1—Settle Out of Court (Comedy).
Jan. 4—Billy van Deusen's Shadow (Comedy).
Jan. 8—To Be or Not to Be (Comedy).
Jan. 11—The First Quarrel (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Getting In Wrong (Comedy).

CASINO.

Dec. 26—Hunting (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Leaving It to Cissy (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Alias Mr. Jones (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Ham and Eggs (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Dec. 23—The Winning of Jess (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Dec. 30—The Terror of the Fold (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 13—Marta of the Jungles (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 11—Curly (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psyclo—Drama).

CUB.

Dec. 24—Hearts and Clubs (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Jerry's Revenge (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Jerry in the Movies (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Jerry In Mexico (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Dec. 16—Billy Bunks the Bandit (Comedy).
Dec. 20—When William's Whiskers Worked (Comedy).
Dec. 23—Toodles, Tom and Trouble (Comedy).
Dec. 27—Una's Useful Uncle (Comedy).
Dec. 30—Foolish Fate Flora (Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Optimistic Oriental Occults (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Hilda's Husky Helper (Comedy).
Jan. 10—Belinda's Bridal Breakfast (Comedy).
Jan. 13—Reforming Rubbering Rosie (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Dec. 21—See America First (No. 15, Lexington, Ky.) (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 28—See America First, No. 16, Chicago, Ill. (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 4—See America First No. 17, "Chicago Industries" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 11—See America First (No. 18, "Milwaukee, Wis.) (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 316.)

HOPE JONES
UNIT ORCHESTRA

FOR SALE

NOW INSTALLED IN

Vitagraph Theatre

NEW YORK

COST THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS — SELL —

GREAT SACRIFICE

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR ANY HIGH CLASS THEATRE

The Vitagraph Company
116 NASSAU STREET
NEW YORK

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 314.)

MUSTANG.

Dec. 31—The Cactus Blossom (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 7—The Hills of Glory (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 15—"Water Stuff" (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 21—Wild Jim Reformer (Two parts—Western—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Dec. 30—Number 52, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 6—No. 53 (Topical).
Jan. 13—No. 54 (Topical).
Jan. 20—No. 55 (Topical).

NOVELTY.

Dec. 20—The Fiddler (Comedy).
Dec. 22—The Innocent Sandwich Man (Com.).—Between Lakes and Mountains (Scenic).
Dec. 29—No release.
Jan. 21—Italy's War Equipment (Topical).

RELIANCE.

Dec. 26—The Decoy (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 2—The Law of Success (Two parts—Drama.)
Jan. 5—The She Devil (Three parts—Melo-Drama).

RIALTO.

Dec. 15—The Ace of Death (Three parts—Dr.).
Dec. 29—A Prince of Yesterday (Three parts—Domestic—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Secret Agent (Three parts—Secret Service—Drama).

THANHOUSER.

Dec. 21—Ambition (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 28—The Last Performance (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Bubbles In the Glass (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Jan. 11—In the Name of the Law (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—The Phantom Witness (Three parts—Mystery—Drama).

THAN-O-PLAY.

Dec. 18—His Majesty the King (Three parts—War—Comedy—Drama).

MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Jan. 17—The Thoroughbred (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 54).
Jan. 20—The Five Faults of Flo (Thanhouser—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 55).
Jan. 22—The Bait Centaur—Five parts—Drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES.

Dec. 23—The Painted Soul (Five parts—Underworld—Drama) (No. 52).
Dec. 30—The Deathlock (Five parts—Drama) (No. 53).
Jan. 6—The Other Side of the Door (No. 54—Five parts—Romantic—Drama).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 27—The Girl and the Game (No. 1—"Helen's Race with Death"—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Girl and the Game (No. 2, "The Winning Jump") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Girl and the Game (No. 3—Two parts—Drama).

THANHOUSER MASTERPICTURE.

Jan. 8—Society Wolves (Five parts—Political Drama).

VOGUE.

Dec. 27—Sammy's Scandalous Schemes (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 3—An Innocent Crook (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 10—Oh, for the Life of a Fire Man! (Comedy).
Jan. 12—A Bum Steer (Comedy).
Jan. 20—Subject Not Yet Announced.
Jan. 23—Subject Not Yet Announced.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Pathe.
Tuesday—Pathe, Photocolor.
Wednesday—Pathe, Phunphilms, Globe
Thursday—Gold Rooster.
Saturday—Pathe, Starlight, Balboa.

BALBOA.

Dec. 25—The Red Circle (No. 2—"Pity the Poor—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 1—The Red Circle (No. 3—"Twenty Years Ago" (Two parts—Drama.).
Jan. 8—The Red Circle (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—The Red Circle No. 5, "Weapon of War' (Two parts—Drama).

GLOBE.

Dec. 29—Where the Trees Are Stone (See America First) (Scenic).
Jan. 3—Quaint Dances of Japan (Dances).
Jan. 10—Unfamiliar Fishes (Educational).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Dec. 17—Beloved Vagabond (Six parts—Drama) (Colored).
Dec. 31—Excuse Me (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—The King's Game (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—Madame X (Six parts—Drama).

PATHE.

Dec. 20—New Adventures of Wallingford, No. 12 (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 24—Life of Our Saviour (Seven parts—Drama) (Colored).
Dec. 27—New Adventures of Wallingford, No. 13, "The Missing Heir" (Two parts—Comedy).
Dec. 28—Col. Heeza Liar, Nature Faker (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 3—New Adventures of Wallingford (No. 14—Two parts—Comedy).

PATHE NEWS.

Dec. 22—No. 102, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 25—No. 103, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 104, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 1—Number 1, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Dec. 27—California's Rocky Shores (See America First) (Colored—Scenic).
Jan. 3—Old, Unchanging Holland (Colored—Scenic).
Jan. 10—From Kabylia to Constantine (Scenic).

PHUNPHILMS.

Dec. 22—Peculiar Patients' Pranks (Comedy).
Dec. 29—Lonesome Luke, Social Gangster (Comedy).
Jan. 5—Luke Leans to the Literary (Comedy).
Jan. 12—Luke Lugs Luggage (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Dec. 18—More Deadly than the Male (Com.).
Dec. 25—The Board-Bill Dodgers (Comedy).
Jan. 1—Chasing 'Em Out in the Open (Com.).
Jan. 8—Ach! Such Crimes! (Comedy).
Jan. 15—From Bad to Worse (Comedy).

VICTORY.

Dec. 23—The War Gods' Decree (Three parts—Drama).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT FILM CO.

Dec.—The Warring Millions (Topical).
January—The Battles of a Nation (Six parts—Topical).

AURORA FILM PLAYS CORPORATION.

January—The Waif (Five parts—Drama).

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Jan. —The Salamander (Drama).

CORT FILM CORPORATION.

Dec.—Whirl of Life (Drama).

DORMET FILM COMPANY.

Dec.—Joseph and His Brethren (Six parts—Drama).

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.

January—His Vindication (Four parts—Dr.).

EAGLE FILM MANUFACTURING & PRODUCING CO.

January—Ocena's Pearl (Drama).
January—Pirates of the Sky (Drama).
January—Grogan's Alley (Comedy).
January—The Adventures of Suffy (Comedy).

EQUITABLE—FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 3—The Dragon (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Behind Closed Doors (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Her Great Hour (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—The Ransom (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).

JOE W. FARNHAM.

January—Race Suicide (Six parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 19—A Soldier's Oath (Five parts—Dr.).
Dec. 26—Destruction (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 2—The Green-Eyed Monster (Five parts—Drama).

FRENCH OFFICIAL WAR FILMS.

January—Fighting With France (Topical).

HANOVER FILM COMPANY.

December—Marvelous Maciste (Drama).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Dec.—Forbidden Fruit (Drama).

ARTHUR S. KANE.

January—Somewhere in France (Five parts—Topical).

MEDUSA FILM.

Jan. —His Daughter's Second Husband (Five parts—Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Jan. 6—What Will People Say (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Turmoil (Columbia—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—A Rose of the Alley (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).

WM. MORRIS.

January—On the Battlefields of France (Top.).

THE NEW YORK WORLD.

January—Fighting in France (Topical).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Dec. 27—Lydia Gilmore (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Dec. 30—Temptation (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Foundling (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—Tongues of Men Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Mice and Men (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 13—The Golden Chance (Lasky—Five Parts—Comedy—Drama).

RELIABLE FEATURE FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 15—The World of Today (Six parts—Dr.).

SUN PHOTOPLAY CO. INC.

December—The Burglar and the Lady (Five parts—Drama).

SUPREME FILM CO.

Jan. 1—The Cow Puncher (Six parts—Drama).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Released for week of Jan. 2:
Cross Currents (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Between Men (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
Worst of Friends (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
(Releases for week of Jan. 9):
Let Katy Do It (Fine Arts—Five Parts—Drama).
Great Pearl Tangle (Keystone—Two Parts—Comedy).
The Corner (Kay-Bee—Five Parts—Drama).
Fatty and Mabel Adrift (Keystone—Two Parts—Comedy).

WORLD FILM CORPORATION.

Dec. 20—Over Night (Brady—Drama).
Dec. 27—The Rack (Brady—Drama).

V-L-S-E, INC.

Dec. 27—What Happened to Father (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Misleading Lady (Essanay—Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Thou Art the Man (Vitagraph—Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—No Greater Love (Selig—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—My Lady's Slipper (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Gods of Fate (Lubin—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Captain Jinks (Essanay—Comedy).
Jan. 17—Green Stockings (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).

KLEINE—EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Jan. 5—The Devil's Prayer Book (Kleine—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Catspaw (Edison—Drama).
Jan. 19—Wild Oats (Kleine—Drama).

When the film continues to repeat dates in all high-class houses, we call your attention to

MARVELOUS MACISTE.
IN 6 Parts
The Giant of Cabiria

MACISTE CANNOT BE COMPARED WITH ANY OTHER FIGURE ON THE SCREEN TODAY BECAUSE THIS SUPERHUMAN IS NOT EQUALLED BY ANY LIVING ACTOR.

STATE RIGHTS APPLY

HANOVER FILM CO., Inc.

BROADWAY AT 47th STREET Suite 904 Columbia Building Bryant 9544 NEW YORK CITY

A clear picture

is as essential as a good scenario. Because the basic product is right the clearest pictures are on Eastman Film. Identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Furnished for Single or Double Arc. Single, two or three phase circuit, 110, 220, 440 Volts, A. C. to Controlled D. C.; D. C. to Controlled D. C.

TransVerteR
TRADE MARK

is a complete—upright electrical unit, that furnishes the best possible direct current light for motion picture projection and may be installed and operated in any projection booth.

Better pictures, bigger profit and perfect automatic arc regulation.

Send for booklet, "The Perfect Arc"

The Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co.
Department W, Cleveland, O., U. S. A.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES AND SUPPLIES

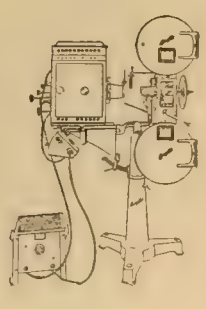
ABSOLUTELY EVERYTHING FOR THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE

WRITE FOR CATALOG

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.
608 OLIVE ST., ST. LOUIS, MO.



List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Mina, Selig.

Friday—Kalem, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Dec. 22—The Tides of Retribution (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 27—Heredity (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 30).
Dec. 29—The Woman of Mystery (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Lesser Evil (Drama—Biograph Reissue No. 31).
Jan. 4—The Avenging Shot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 5—The Skating Rink (Three parts—Comedy).
Jan. 10—In the Aisles of the Wild (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 32).
Jan. 12—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Miser's Heart (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 33).
Jan. 18—The Angel of Piety Flat (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—A Life Chase (Three parts—Drama).

EDISON.

Dec. 15—History of the Big Tree (Educational).
—The Black's Mysterious Box (Cartoon—Comedy).
—The Hicks in Nightmare Land (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 17—The Hand of the Law (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 18—Santa Claus Versus Cupid (Comedy-Drama).
Dec. 24—Blade o' Grass (Three parts—Drama).

ESSANAY.

Dec. 17—Broncho Billy's Marriage (Drama).
Dec. 18—A Christmas Revenge (Special—Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 21—The Danger of Being Lonesome (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 3 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 25—The Woman with a Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—Brought Home (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—The Fable of "The Heir and the Heiress" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Prisoner at the Bar (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Lesson (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—Mile a Minute Monty (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic Subject on the same reel.
Jan. 8.—The House of Revelation (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—Angels Unawares (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Book Agent's Romance (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 4 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Scenes of Canadian Rockies (Scenic).
Jan. 22—The White Alley (Three parts—Dr.).

KALEM.

Dec. 22—A Bushranger at Bay (No. 5 of the "Stingaree" Series (Special—two parts—Drama).
Dec. 24—The Oriental's Plot (No. 9 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
Dec. 25—A Boy at the Throttle (No. 59 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Dec. 28—The Caretaker's Dilemma (Burlesque—Comedy).
Dec. 29—The Taking of Stingaree (No. 6 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Spy's Ruse (No. 10 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 1—At the Risk of Her Life (No. 60 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 4—The Missing Mummy (Comedy).
Jan. 5—The Honor of the Road (No. 7 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—Crossed Clues (No. 11 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Jan. 8—When Seconds Count (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Jan. 11—Guardian Angels (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 12—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Tricksters (No. 12 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 15—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 18—The Tale of a Coat (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 19—A Duel in the Desert (No. 9 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Sealskin Coat (No. 13 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
Jan. 22—The Open Track (No. 63 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).

LUBIN.

Dec. 22—Heartaches (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 22—Otto's Cabaret (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 23—Beyond All is Love (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 25—No Smoking (Comedy).
Dec. 29—Saved from the Harem (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 29—This Isn't the Life (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 30—The Convict King (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 1—A Ready Made Maid (Comedy).
Jan. 5—Sorrows of Happiness (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 5—His Lordship (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Vengeance of the Oppressed (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 8—Billie's Headache (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Lost Bracelet (Drama).
Jan. 12—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Unit Program).
Jan. 12—A Bath Tub Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 13—The Bond Within (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 17—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 17—Fooling Uncle (Comedy).
Jan. 17—The Little Sister of the Poor (Dr.).
Jan. 20—The Law's Injustice (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Insomnia (Comedy).

MINA.

Nov. 25—Florence Turner Impersonates Film Favorites (Comedy).
Dec. 2—The $50,000.00 Policy (Comedy).
Dec. 9—Forty-Five Minutes from Nowhere (Comedy).
—Why Hubby Grows Bald (Comedy).
Dec. 16—When the Show Hit Watertown (Comedy).
Dec. 23—The Little Puritan (Comedy).
Dec. 30—From Blackstone to Stone (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Caught With the Goods (Comedy).

SELIG.

Dec. 27—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 103, 1915 (Topical).
Dec. 30—Hearst-Selig News Pictorial No. 104, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 1—The Manicure Girl (No. 6 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center"—(Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Buried Treasure of Cobre (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 6—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 2, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 8—The Chronicles of Bloom Center (No. 7, "Spooks"—Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Devil-in-Chief (Drama).
Jan. 10—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 13—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 15—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 8, "No Sir-ee Bob!" (Rural Com.).
Jan. 17—Why Love Is Blind (Drama).
Jan. 17—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 5, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 20—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 6, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 22—Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "When the Circus Came to Town" (Comedy).

VIM.

Dec. 24—Mixed and Fixed (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Ups and Downs (Comedy).
Jan. 7—This Way Out (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Chickens (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Frenzied Finance (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Dec. 27—The Pest Vamooser (Comedy) (Unit Program).
Dec. 31—By Might of His "Right" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Wanderers (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Little Trespasser (Com.-Dr.).
Jan. 3—When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor (Comedy-Unit Program).
Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Four parts—Drama-Unit Program).
Jan. 7—When Lin Came Home (Drama).
Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Unit Program—Four parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Unit Program—Comedy).
Jan. 14—When Two Play a Game (Comedy).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 17—Bittersweet (Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 21—A Telegraphic Tangle (Comedy).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.—Broadway Star Feature).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 24—Everygirl (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Mysterious Bride (Three parts—Drama).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Dec. 29—Saved from the Harem (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—When Hooligan and Dooligan Ran for Mayor (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Sorrows of Happiness (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Jan. 17—The Evangelist (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Bittersweet (Vitagraph—Drama).

We offer a GREATER VARIETY of BETTER FILMS in THE REGULAR SERVICE than any other exchange. Our subjects consist of the one, two, three and four reel productions of the EDISON, ESSANAY, BIOGRAPH, KALEM, LUBIN, SELIG, VITAGRAPH, KLEINE and PATHE studios. Our charge is most reasonable. It will be to your advantage to investigate at once. GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO., 126 West 46th St., New York

PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

American Film Laboratories, Inc.

"The Tiffany of the Film Trade"

THE FINEST FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIO IN THE WORLD

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

LOUIS B. JENNINGS, Pres. & Gen. Mgr.

EDWIN S. PORTER, Vice-President

69-71 West 90th St., New York City

Telephone Riverside 1410

Ornamental Theatres

Plaster Relief Decorations

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.

Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland.

The Quality Carbons of the World.

Reflex D. C. Carbons have a Specially Constructed Negative with Copper Coated Core.

Another operator writes us:

"The light produced by REFLEX Carbons is very white and more dense than other brands. I have used all makes of carbons. Your product is the highest class of carbon."

You, Mr. Manager, and you, Mr. Operator, must have the "highest class" carbons to get the best results. Try Reflex. We have a large stock on hand and are receiving regular shipments from our works in Switzerland. Send in your order now.

¾ x 12 plain cored	$10.00 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 12 plain cored	7.50 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 6 copper coated cored	3.75 per 100 carbons
½ x 6 copper coated cored	2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with Reflex Carbons send cash with your order, or instruct us to ship C. O. D., and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Watch our weekly advertisements and see the results that others are obtaining.

JONES & CAMMACK

SOLE IMPORTERS

Corner Bridge and Whitehall Sts. New York City

For Artistic Lobby Display and Stage Decorations

Install our Line of Artificial

FLOWERS TREES
VINES
LEAVES
GARLANDS WREATHS PALMS

Estimates made and theatres decorated under contract by our expert.

Our Thirty-two Page Catalogue No. 10, illustrating in colors the latest Artificial Flowers for Theatre Decoration, FREE.

FRANK NETSCHERT CO., Inc.

61 Barclay Street New York City

JACK PICKFORD

The International Star, With the Wonderful Collie, "Smudge," in

"WHY LOVE IS BLIND"

A Selig Feature Drama Dealing With Circus Life and Carrying an Unusual Plot of True Heart Interest. Released on Monday, January 17th, Through General Film Service. JACK PICKFORD Will Bring 'Em to YOUR Theatre!

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., CHICAGO

AND EVERYWHERE

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS

COMEDIES THAT ARE

Phunphilms

Produced by Rolin

Released Weekly by Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Direction of Hal Roach

LEADS

LONESOME LUKE	HAROLD LLOYD
Snub	Harry Pollard
Mazie Nut	Gene Marsh
Ethel	Bebe Daniels

Rolin Film Company, Los Angeles

D. Whiting, Gen. Mgr.

Make Your Pictures Please ALL Your Patrons

When every one speaks well of the quality of your pictures—their clearness and sharp detail—then you have an asset that is beyond price.

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses get the full value of every film, and your patrons get an ample money's worth—they come again and again. Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are accepted as the standard by exacting operators and are regularly supplied with Edison and Nicholas Power Machines. You can have them, too—any film exchange can supply you.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

566 ST. PAUL STREET, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Leading American manufacturers of Photographic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Apparatus (Balopticons) and other high-grade optical products.

FABRIL CARBONS

Read this letter and be convinced.

New York, Dec. 20th, 1915.

Have tried the "Fabril" carbons on my machine alternating current in my theatre and have found them to be absolutely satisfactory and have placed an order for same.

(Signed) John J. Wittman

ELDORADO THEATRE

PRESIDENT OF CINEMA EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF BRONX COUNTY, INC.

Habicht, Braun & Co., Film Dept.

161-3 Hudson Street, New York City

Uptown Shipping Office:
145 West 45th Street, Room 1013, New York City

Chicago: 109-111 West Ohio Street
Pittsburgh: 441 Market Street

In Buying The Motiograph You Buy SERVICE and SATISFACTION

(Read what Users think of the Motiograph)

Newell Theatre
MAIN STREET
USING LICENSED FILMS EXCLUSIVELY

CANADA MARIT &c
Dec. 29 1915

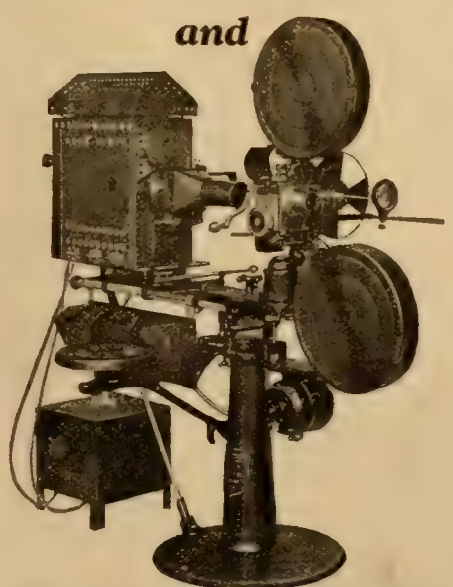
Enterprise Optical Mfg Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen

I was engaged in installing a Motiograph sold through your dealer in Winnipeg and used same last night and I must say your new 1916 Model can be summed up in four words - "THE ACME OF PERFECTION" The Sliding Disc is surely a wonder

Yours very truly,

C. S. Rees.



L. C. GILGER Mgr W. G. GILGER Owner

GILGER THEATRE
NORWALK OHIO

Dec. 23° 1915

The Enterprise Optical Co.
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

Congratulations on the efficiency of your shipping department. I wired for another Motiograph, to match the one I bought of you last summer. Saturday noon, and the machine arrived in good condition on Monday, was installed that afternoon and running for our evening show. I think this is the maximum of speed and efficiency

My operator likes the shutter on the new machine better than that on the older one - the both are 1916's - so I am enclosing a drawing of this shutter and wish that you would send me one like it as soon as possible and from past experience I know that this means immediately.

Thanking you for the prompt and courteous treatment we have always received at your hands, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, I am, Respectfully yours.

L. C. Gilger

LCG/WW

THE MOTIOGRAPH IS { UNEXCELLED—IN QUALITY / PERFECT —IN EVERY DETAIL

Write for Literature.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., 574 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office: 19 West 23rd St., New York City. Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

PORTER EQUIPS ANOTHER GREAT THEATRE

After a searching investigation of New York's Best Theatres, the BAY RIDGE THEATRE CORPORATION was convinced that B. F. Porter's installations were producing the BEST PROJECTION RESULTS. They signed a contract with him to install TWO SIMPLEX PROJECTORS, TYPE "S," Latest Models, in the LARGEST and FINEST THEATRE in BROOKLYN.

BUY YOUR MACHINES FROM THE MAN WHO SATISFIED THE PRODUCER OF "THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

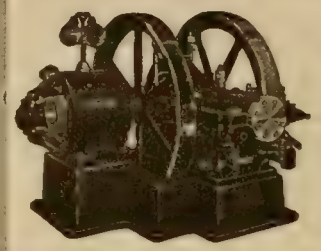
Speedco Arc Controller will feed your projection arc — save money — and maintain better illumination than you have ever known.

Let us send you booklet "A"

SPEED CONTROLLER COMPANY, Inc.
257-259 William Street New York

THE Foos

ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANTS



3 to 400 H.P.
Make current for 2 cents per K.W.
Special Electric Engines 3 to 75 H. P., make current as cheap as a 5000 H.P. steam plant. Your central station bills will pay for an outfit in your theatre in 3 or 4 years.

Send for Catalog 98

Price List of Music

Suggested in the cue sheet for the current WORLD release,

"CAMILLE"

Strube—Serenade	$0.80	Tarenghi—Serenata	$1.00
Verdi—La Traviata Fantaisie	1.50	Scates—Roses and Rue	.60
Barthelemy—Love's Torment	.75	Huerter—Intermezzo	.60
Bohm—Petite Bijouterie	1.00	Nicode—A Ball Scene	1.00
Pietroma.chi—Coeur Brise	$0.90

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to the net amount. The quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

The numbers in the cue sheet preceded by an asterisk (*) refer to The SCHIRMER PHOTOPLAY SERIES, a loose leaf collection of dramatic numbers specially written for motion picture use.

Two volumes now in preparation:

Price per volume (containing 10 numbers): Small orchestra, $3.20; full orchestra, $4.40. Each number separately, 60c. small; 80c. full.

G. SCHIRMER (Inc.), 3 East 43rd Street, New York City

Quality Service Reliability

When you want the best in machines or supplies in a hurry, get in touch with us. BY QUICK SERVICE, HONEST REPRESENTATION, BIG VALUES and COURTEOUS TREATMENT, we have become the ACKNOWLEDGED LEADERS in our line.

Let us tell you of OUR PLAN for BIGGER PROFITS and BETTER SERVICE.

We are the leading dealers in Moving Picture Machines and Supplies and can fill your every need. Drop us a line today for our complete catalog and special bargains.

We sell on the instalment plan

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
6th Floor, Cambridge Bldg.
N. W. Cor. 5th Ave. and Randolph, Chicago, Ill.

Distributors of the Motiograph, Power's, Simplex, Edison and other Machines and Genuine Parts

SIMPSON SOLAR SCREEN

SEAMLESS SEAMLESS

THE PERFECT PROJECTION SURFACE

Write for booklet and full particulars

ALFRED L. SIMPSON
113 West 132nd Street, N. Y. City

Patented June, 1908

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

126 West 46th Street NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

GOLD KING SCREEN

"Perfection in Projection"

Gold King Screens

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL

GOLD KING SCREEN CO., Altus, Okla.

Exhibitors and Theatre Managers don't fail to read page No. 309

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 6881 Audubon 416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

ELECTRA

PINK LABEL

CARBONS

are a guarantee of perfect projection

A Limited Stock of

5/8 x 12 Cored Double Pointed and 5/8 x 6 Cored
Still on Hand

To be had of all first-class dealers

SOLE IMPORTER

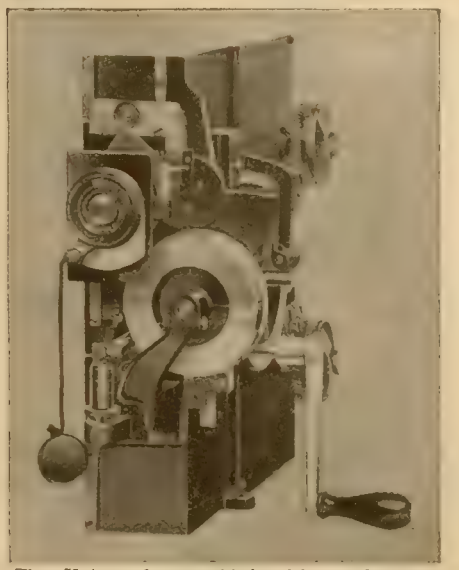
HUGO REISINGER

11 Broadway New York

The Universal Camera

For Motion Photography

The mechanism is as carefully and scientifically constructed as the movement of a standard watch.



The Universal assembled without the case. Front view showing the lens, flywheel, shutter and aperture adjustment, and the one-to-one crank shaft.

Demonstrational Catalogue on request

The Universal Camera Company
25 E. Washington St., Chicago, U. S. A.
1207 Times Bldg., New York
Represented by Atlas Educational Film Company
821 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

THE BIOSCOPE

IS THE ENGLISH TRADE JOURNAL
OF THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY

Annual Subscription (post free) 14s. (Dollars, 3.50)

85 SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, LONDON, W.

DUTCH EAST INDIES

Netherlands

DE KINEMATOGRAAF

Leading Organ of the Cinematograph Trade. With Correspondents all over the World.

AMSTERDAM	HOLLAND
Annual Subscription	fl. Dutch 7.50
Sample Copies	fl. Dutch 0.20
Advertisements, each line	fl. Dutch 0.20

Belgium

DUTCH WEST INDIES

FOR SALE

MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 22,000; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

1173 Film Exchanges	$4.00
149 Manufacturers and Studios	1.00
210 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers.	1.50

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.

168 West Adams Street, Chicago

Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

HANDY EQUIPMENT

Make'em Yourself Slides

These slides are written with pen and ink or on the typewriter, and they are neat and look well. Used for advertising slides, to announce future and feature programs, vaudeville and musical acts, etc. In fact, they may be used for anything you wish to say to your audience.

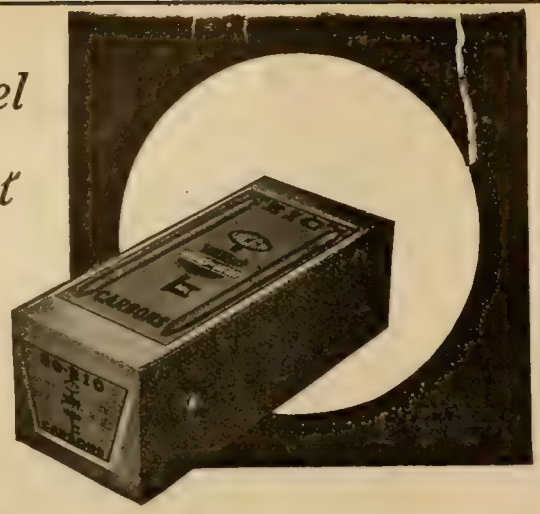
For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips of gelatin of four different colors—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Address all orders and remittances

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

1733 West 9th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Reel Bright Spot



Produced Only With

BIO RECOGNIZED BIO CARBONS BRAND STANDARD CARBONS

ORDER FROM YOUR DEALER OR EXCHANGE OR FROM

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK

MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St. | 165 Greenwich Street | SAN FRANCISCO 143 Second St.

ACTION

—TRULY PORTRAYED!

Nothing so genuinely THRILLS people or makes their hearts beat faster than good "ACTION" pictures. Actors and actresses risk their very lives to thrill audiences for ONE BRIEF SECOND. But, all this "Blood Curdling" action is for naught if your screen does not show it in its TRUE LIGHT.

MINUSA GOLD FIBRE SCREENS, "Built By Brains," catch every little detail in the film—the fiery eyes of the horse, the froth at his mouth. That is "ACTION"—THAT'S WHAT THRILLS! The delicate gradation of light in the distant mountains is all there, just as the camera saw it. That's the test of a REAL SCREEN—the "MINUSA."

It is to be "THRILLED" that the public come to your theatre. Do you "deliver the goods," or do your pictures look CLOUDY and LIFELESS?

If you knew someone who could greatly increase your Box Office receipts and save fifty per cent. of your light bill it would be SOUND business to hire him, would it not?

Well, a "MINUSA" will do both these things, and because of the saving in "juice," the Electric Company pays for it. Is it SOUND business to put in such a MONEY MAKER—Great Guns, can a DUCK SWIM!

ACTION, man, ACTION!! Don't wait—you're losing money.

Write or Wire for Samples and Prices.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY

MINUSA | SAINT LOUIS Broadway at Chestnut | CHICAGO San Francisco | PITTSBURGH Calgary Alberta | NEW YORK 19 West Twenty-third St | SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

Please Read Page No. 309

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W42

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

WE ARE ACTIVE

in every branch of the film business, Animated Cartoons, Trade Marks and Developing Printing and Stock Titles. Write us today.

ACTIVE MOTION PICTURE CO.

1101 W. Randolph Street CHICAGO

PORTABLE MOTION PICTURE PROJECTORS

BOUND VOLUMES

of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD are the

Accepted Reference Books

of the Moving Picture Trade

Your Office Equipment is Not Complete Without Them

ADDRESS CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.,

17 Madison Ave., New York City

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

Send for Catalogue W — TYPHOONS COOL YOUR SHOW Tel. 8134 Bryant. — TYPHOON FAN CO. 1344 Broadway N.Y.

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG

Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs

immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.

Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

OPERA CHAIRS

1000 Styles

For every purpose

Established 1865

Write for Cat. No. 31

Branches in leading cities

1472 Broadway, New York

728 Mission St., San Francisco

512½ First Ave. So., Seattle

Broadway & Yamhill St., Portland

THE A. H. ANDREWS CO., 115-117 SO. WABASH AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have

50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK

in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and

IMMEDIATE SERVICE

Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered; kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

General Offices: 1010 Lytton Bldg., Chicago

Sales offices in all principal cities.

Perfect Developing and Printing

Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS.

5c. per foot complete

Special price on quantity orders.

TITLES in any language.

6c. per foot

Cards Free—Tinting Free

Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.

GUNBY BROS., Inc.

145 West 45th Street New York City

Anti-Censorship Slides

Four Slides.....	50c.	Address
Six Slides.....	75c.	MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Twelve Slides All Different	$1.50	17 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City

Moving Picture Exhibitors and Theatre Managers. The fight against Legalized Censorship of Moving Pictures is your fight. Show these slides on your screen for the next few months and help create a strong public sentiment against this unnecessary and un-American form of legislation. See page 1743 of our issue of March 20th for text matter. All slides neatly colored, carefully packed and postage paid.

"Keeping Everlastingly at It Brings Success"

Send your slide orders and remittances at once to

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y.

There Is No Program So Good That One of Our Features Cannot Improve

Pasquali, Terriss Feature Film and Interstate Feature Film

MASTERPIECES

Picture Playhouse Film Co.

71 W. 23rd St. New York City

MR. EXHIBITOR

do you know for $39.00 you can equip your No. 6A machine with 110 V. Motor and motor drive, speed controller switch, etc., and $4.00 more for a 220 V.? This is quite a difference from the price you are asked to give up for a similar equipment. Start the New Year right. Save money and get your money's worth from us. There is a new Motion Picture Machine coming to life and it's going to be a knock-out at a reasonable price.

ASK US FOR INFORMATION

THE STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00

SIX MONTHS $1.50

See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

.....

Cut out and mail today. Theatre.....

Waiting for Something to Turn Up!

Wilkins Micawber was always waiting for something to turn up. He waited for so blamed long that when Old Opportunity came a-knocking at his door, Wilkins was in the back part of the house.

Don't do the Wilkins Micawber stunt; don't delay your resolution that the SELIG-TRIBUNE is the brightest and breeziest thing that ever did turn up! Emulate the other fellow who is giving the SELIG-TRIBUNE the glad hand and is toting in the sheaves of shekels while the harvest is heavy.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, "The World's Greatest News Film," has a standing army of camera men who do not wait for something to turn up, but are there turning the camera crank when the hot stuff develops.

In every part of the wide world where something is likely to happen, there you will find "nose-for-news" cameramen filming live news pictorials for

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE

"The World's Greatest News Film"

SHOWS THE NEWS AND DOES IT FIRST

SELIG Offers

TYRONE POWER Supported by Eugenie Besserer, Edith Johnson and Wheeler Oakman in

"THE DEVIL-IN-CHIEF"

A Multiple Reel Feature Drama Thronged With Thrills and Heart Throbs.

N.P.Co.

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN with consistent progress has taken its place in the long line of successive years in the history of Power's Cameragraph. With much accomplished in our business development as well as contributions to the advancement of motion picture projection, we desire to express appreciation to all users of our product and to most heartily wish them the best of fortune for the coming year, with the promise to play our part in bringing to the motion picture industry a prosperous NINETEEN HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN.

Nicholas Power Company

Ninety Gold Street New York City

Vol. 27, No. 3 January 15, 1916 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Her Great Hour" (World Film).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MUTUAL PROGRAM

EDWIN THANHOUSER PRESENTS

A THANHOUSER PHOTOPLAY

THE PHANTOM WITNESS

A 3-REEL DRAMA OF POWER & SWIFT, MYSTERIOUS ACTION:- WITH

KATHRYN ADAMS

SUPPORTED BY EDWIN STANLEY AND WILLIAM BURT

STAGED BY FREDERIC SULLIVAN

STORY BY PHILIP LONERGAN

RELEASED WED. JAN. 19TH

FALSTAFF COMEDIES

GRACE'S GORGEOUS GOWNS 1 REEL

RELEASED TUESDAY JAN. 18TH.

PETE'S PERSIAN PRINCESS 1 REEL

RELEASED THURSDAY JAN. 20TH

BOTH THESE COMEDIES BY THE FAMOUS FALSTAFFERS

RILEY CHAMBERLAIN
LOUISE EMERALD BATES
CLAUDE COOPER
FRANCES KEYES

THANHOUSER FILM CORP. NEW ROCHELLE N.Y.

"CAPTAIN JINKS OF THE HORSE MARINES" IN 5 ACTS

ANN MURDOCK AND RICHARD C. TRAVERS

are presented in Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy, which made such a wonderful stage success. The photoplay is filled with genuine, sparkling humor and comic situations. Arranged and directed by Fred E. Wright.

TRADE MARK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

A Letter to

(No. 115—Straight from the Shoulder Talk by Carl

Dear Old Bill:

When you said "The play's the thing" you said a large mouthful, Bill.

You didn't live in the age of airships and telephones and automobiles and rapid fire guns and other speedy things, Bill, but you put a speedy one right over the plate when you said "The play's the thing."

If all the moving picture companies in the world had sat down for a long time and studied over those few words of yours, they'd have saved themselves many a headache and many a wasted shilling, old boy. But instead of profiting by your wide experience, we all had to find out for ourselves that the play's the thing.

Listen a minute, Shake, and let me tell you what we've all been trying to do, in spite of your immortal words. You may flop over in your grave if this ever reaches you; and you'll wonder at the asininity of us moderns, but I'm going to tell you the whole truth, old dear.

We've been trying everything we could think of to FOOL OURSELVES and FOOL THE PUBLIC.

At first the people were satisfied with any kind of moving pictures as long as they MOVED. We could show a picture taken from the front of a moving train and everybody marveled. But they soon outgrew that.

So then we began to give them little plays. We got away with that for a time. We made some of your old stuff, Bill, and they liked it. But they soon outgrew you. Or we thought they did.

The next thing we did was to put lots of people into the pictures, hoping that the mob scenes would make the people think they were getting their money's worth. At first this was great. But pretty soon the fickle public (we like to call them fickle even when they're not) said: "Come on, now, do something new."

So the next thing we did was to use smashing big sets. We spent thousands and thousands of dollars just to take one big scene, such as a cabaret, or a ball room or something of that sort. At first the people gasped with wonder, but would you believe it, Bill, they soon got so that a big set didn't even make a dent in their cerebellums! They were looking for something else, and nobody seemed to know what it was.

Then we had a happy thought. We'll give them some well known stars of the stage, B'gosh, and that will make them crazy about us. So we all did that very thing. We flocked into it like a bunch of sheep. We grabbed all the stage stars in sight. Any star with a well-known name was good enough. We didn't care about the acting or the wrinkles. All we wanted was a well-known name spare

Laemmle, President of the Universal Film Mfg. Co.)

so we could stick it on the posters and beguile the gentle public out of their hard earned simoleons.

They fell for it, Bill. Yes, they fell hard. But after falling they got up on their hind legs again.

They came at us with blood in their eyes and yelled for something else again, as Old Mawruss Perlmutter would say. So we went over into a silent corner, communed with ourselves, and gave birth to a brand new idea. Aha! We would not only give them a well-known stage star, but we'd give them a well-known play by a well-known author.

Chuckle in your grave if you like, Billy Boy, but that's what we did. And for a while it was splendiferous. But only for a while!

And now where are we at? Whither have we withered? Who, how, which, what and why?

The answer is simple, Bard of Avon! We've decided that after all, THE PLAY'S THE THING! We don't care a tinker's dam who wrote it. If it's a good play, it will succeed. We don't care a hooraw in hades whether we have a stage star in the leading part or not. If it's a good play, NOTHING CAN PUT THE KIBOSH ON IT. We don't care if the whole thing is enacted in one corner of one room in one day. If it's a good play, the people will love it. Away with the big sets unless they are absolutely a necessary part of the play. Away with the mob scenes unless they help tell the good story!

We don't care what we pay IF WE GET A GOOD PLAY! We don't care who plays the lead, IF IT'S A GOOD STORY, WELL ACTED AND WELL PRODUCED. We don't care whether it's one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine or fifty reels in length, SO LONG AS THE STORY IS WORTHY OF THE LENGTH!

If I knew how to reach you by parcels post, Bill, I'd send you a couple of billion dollars in cash, just to show you that the Universal Company (whether any other company does or not) appreciates the boiled down wisdom and essence of the ages in that mouthful that you said when you said "The play's the thing!"

Yours with best regards,
CARL LAEMMLE.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
Carl Laemmle, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS PRESENT

"A Knight of the Range"

Featuring that Brilliant Broadway Star and Screen Idol

Harry D. Carey

Ably supported by a Brilliant Cast
-Including-
Olive Golden : Peggy Coudray

IF thrills make a picture, this equals ten of them. If a strong plot and vigorous acting make punches, this is full of them. If you and your patrons are interested in the sort of picture that COMMANDS applause BOOK this remarkable feature, and boost it to the limit. The story is old as the human heart. The settings and scenes are as big, vigorous and wholesome as the great West. One of the most magnificent Western pictures ever released.

Bookings may be arranged with your nearest Universal Exchange. Write or wire for release date and get in on the big money.

The UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

Greatest program on earth

What other Program, or what TWO Programs combined show regularly a list of stars equal in talent, in popularity or in numbers to the following---who now appear and will continue to appear on the regular UNIVERSAL PROGRAM:

King Baggot	Alice Howell	Harry Myers
William Garwood	Gertrude Selby	Rosemary Theby
Hobart Henley	Gale Henry	Eddie Lyons
Mary Fuller	Cleo Madison	Lee Moran
Jane Novak	William Dowlan	Eddie Polo
Herbert Rawlinson	Gloria Fonda	Billie Ritchie
Ben Wilson	Myrtle Gonzalez	Ella Hall
Dorothy Phillips	Murdock MacQuarrie	Robert Leonard
Matt Moore	Olive Fuller Golden	Lois Weber
Jane Gail	Francis Ford	Phillip Smalley
Harry Benham	Grace Cunard	Marie Walcamp
Rupert Julian	Dorothy Davenport	Rex De Rosselli
Elsie Jane Wilson	Agnes Vernon	Harry D. Carey
Stella Razeto	William Worthington	Harry Carter
Lois Wilson	Gretchen Lederer	Maude George
Billie Rhodes		Douglas Gerrard
		Edna Maison

PROOF of our assertion that the Universal Program is the greatest on earth is found every week. FOR INSTANCE here are the stars who appear on the Universal Program the week of January 31st. Where and on what program have you ever seen such a marvelous aggregation of talent in one, two, three, four and five reel photoplays on a regular program?

Violet Mersereau and Harry Benham
Lee Moran and Eddie Lyons
Wm. Garwood and Stella Razeto
J. Warren Kerrigan
Gertrude Selby and Reggie Morris
Myrtle Gonzales and Fred Church
King Baggot
Ella Hall and Marc Robbins
Frances Ford and Dorothy Davenport
Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips
Alice Howell and Chas. Winninger

There is talent—the real thing—good measure, pressed down and running over on every week's Universal Program—drawn from the great list of stars listed opposite. When the Universal does it—it's huge. When the Universal says it—it's true.

The Universal Program is the basis of the continued success of thousands and thousands of Exhibitors in every part of the world.

Performance alone proves the sincerity of promise. Programs come and Programs go—Program producers spend millions of dollars on paper—but as yet the Universal Program stands so far above them all that its standard will be followed for years to come.

You need to know the Universal Program as a big money-making proposition for you. Write or wire your nearest Universal Exchange for full particulars, or address

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Paramount Pictures

Short Subjects Lend Variety to Your Program

The single reels released through Paramount Pictures Corporation mean pleased patrons and bigger business for you.

FOR JANUARY

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS

The famous Bray animated drawings are known and looked for all over the country. Mr. Bray and his associates have created distinctive characters loved by men, women and children.

January 6—Colonel Heeza Liar's Waterloo. Cartoon Comedy by J. R. Bray.
January 13—Haddem Baad's Elopement. Cartoon Comedy by L. M. Glackens.
January 20—Inbad the Sailor. A Silhouette Fantasie, by C. Allen Gilbert.
January 27—The Police Dog on the Wire. A Cartoon, by C. T. Anderson.

RARE ANIMAL PICTURES

Arranged and Photographed by Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of the Great Zoo, Bronx Park, New York City. These unusual and decidedly interesting animal pictures complete each Bray release.

AUSTRALIA'S UNKNOWN

Four one reel Travel Pictures, showing Australia's unknown, will be released one each week for the four weeks beginning Monday, January 10.

These pictures rank high in quality, and are distinctly unusual, interesting scenics. Exhibitors contracting for the South American series of Paramount Travel Pictures will receive these entertaining pictures as a continuation of the series.

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

The finest Travel Pictures ever offered to the Motion Picture public; personally photographed, assembled and edited by Burton Holmes.

Instalment No. 1 Released February 7.
"The Cliff Dwellers of America."

Instalment No. 2 Released February 14.
"The Grand Canyon."

NEWSPICTURES

See what you read every week!

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pict
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH
NEW YORK.

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

are the productions of Famous Players Film Co., Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co., and Pallas Pictures.

A Partner in Any Business Has a Voice in Its Conduct—

Through its criticism blanks the Exhibitor has a voice in the

Paramount Program

It is best today—and bound to be best tomorrow because there is a real system behind it.

The system provides that you by your own voice decide who shall make the pictures, what stars shall play in them, what style of pictures they shall be.

Statistics are compiled from reports sent in by each theatre manager; each picture must come up to the proper standard.

This is one of the reasons why Paramount Pictures are the best and always will be. Have our nearest exchange tell you more about our system.

ures Corporation
VENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
ITY, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

HAZEL DAWN

IN A NOVEL
DETECTIVE
COMEDY-DRAMA,

"MY LADY INCOG."

A RARE COMBINATION OF LAUGHS AND THRILLS

IN FIVE PARTS RELEASED JAN. 17TH.

PRODUCED BY THE

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President
DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PROGRAM

AS UNENDING AS A CIRCLE— FAMOUS PLAYERS SUPREMACY!

FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
507 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Canadian Distributors—
Famous Players
Film Service, Ltd., Calgary—
Montreal—Toronto

6 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

"The Misleading Lady"

Presenting

HENRY B. WALTHALL

and EDNA MAYO

in Five Acts

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon from the great stage success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey. Directed by A. Berthelet.

HENRY B. WALTHALL

EDNA MAYO

"The Raven"
"Graustark"
"The Man Trail"
"A Bunch Of Keys"
"The Alster Case"
"The White Sister"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Slim Princess"
"A Daughter Of The City"
"The Blindness Of Virtue"
"In The Palace Of The King"

Book Essanay's Great Multiple Reel Features

Trademark Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

Trademark Reg.
U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

"FIRST TO STANDARDIZE PHOTOPLAYS"

1333 ARGYLE STREET, CHICAGO

GEORGE K. SPOOR, President

Are You Looking for the Best Photoplays?

Naturally.

Then you will want Essanay.

Ask the exhibitor who uses that brand.

He will tell you that you can book them without looking at them.

But better still; examine Essanay plays.

You will find they have an individuality, a distinctive quality that sets them in a class by themselves.

They are realistic, artistic, fascinating.

Essanay produces only pictures of the highest merit, so it wants you to see them and judge.

To look at them is to book them.

★★★★★★

Watch for the latest

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN

"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

★★★

"CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL No. 4"

By Wallace A. Carlson

Breezy animated cartoons of the news events of the day—January 19

G. M. ANDERSON

is thrilling millions with his great heart-throbbing dramas

WATCH FOR THE LATEST

"The Book Agent's Romance"

2 act drama — January 18

★★★

"THE WHITE ALLEY"

By Carolyn Wells

featuring

Elizabeth Burbridge and Harry Beaumont

3 act drama — January 22

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

George K. Spoor, President

A TALE OF AN UNCONQUERABLE LOVE

The Strange Case of MARY PAGE

With

HENRY WALTHALL
and EDNA MAYO

FIFTEEN POWERFUL EPISODES

It's Released on January 24

Book It Through the General Film Company

Essanay

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

George K. Spoor, President

The Supreme in Artistic Accomplishment
of The Silent
Drama

BLUEBIRD

PHOTO-PLAYS (Inc)
ANNOUNCE AS THE FIRST PRODUCTION

The Divine
SARAH BERNHARDT
In The Great French Drama
"Jeanne Doré"

From The Pen of That Illustrious French Writer
TRISTAN BERNARD

Being the Drama in which the Divine Sarah—made her last Stage appearance.

Communicate with the executive offices of
BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS
1600 Broadway
for booking arrangements and reservation
Or your local Bluebird Booking Office

BLUEBIRD
PHOTO PLAYS

BLUEBIRD
Photo Plays
(inc) ANNOUNCE
The Second
Forthcoming
Production
Presenting Helen Ware
in Secret Love
Adapted From
"That Lass 'O Lowries"
The Famous Novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett
BOOKINGS
May be arranged
By Communicating with The executive offices of
BLUEBIRD
Photo-Plays (Inc)
1600 Broadway
NEW YORK
or your local Bluebird
Booking Officer

COMING METRO EVENTS

In announcing a return booking of the Metro Wonderplay, "The Soul of a Woman," Mr. John J. Murray, of the Warren Opera House, Warren, Ohio, says:

"Any exhibitor who doesn't use Metro is asleep at the switch."

We are inclined to agree with Murray's frank and unsolicited opinion.

METRO PICTURES

Released on the METRO Program January 24th

METRO PICTURES

Metro Pictures Corporation
presents

VALLI - VALLI
in
HER DEBT of HONOR

A Metro wonderplay in Five supreme acts directed by William Nigh and produced by Columbia Pictures Corporation

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney DREW will invite you to laughter with a series of surpassing comedies which are not over the heads of children nor under the intelligence of intellectual giants. Their fun will be exclusively presented on the METRO PROGRAM in one reel feature comedies each week, beginning in February. The Drews are welcomed into the big METRO family, because, as the most distinguished fun makers in America, they belong there.

METRO PICTURES

Two Letters that tell a story

ARTHUR STRINGER
CEDAR SPRINGS
ONTARIO

December the 2nd. 1915.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.
25 West 45th Street.
New York City.
(Attention Mr. M. Ramirez-Torres)

Gentlemen:-

I somewhat belatedly beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th, in which you advise me of your acceptance of my serial story, "The Iron Claw" for production in moving pictures. I deeply appreciate the comments thereon by both your Scenario Department and yourself, and there is a not unnatural gratification in knowing that "The Iron Claw" was the vanquisher, as you say, of forty seven rivals. Your decision to produce this Serial in the manner you describe endorses my original blind faith that it's going to make a big success as a moving picture Serial.

Very truly yours,
Arthur Stringer

SCENARIO DEPARTMENT
PATHÉ EXCHANGE, INC
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45TH STREET
NEW YORK

November 10th, 1915.

MEMO. FOR MR. RAMIREZ.

Have just enjoyed reading the serial story "THE IRON CLAW" submitted by Arthur Stringer. I am enthusiastic. Indisputably, this is the best worked out idea that has come before me in ages. It will make a rousing motion picture serial, and I strongly urge its purchase.

I will look forward to putting it into scenario form, the material offering a chance for real pleasure for the adapter.

Don't let this get by you! It'll be worth whatever you pay for it!

SCENARIO DIRECTOR.
George Brackett Seitz
BS/C

The Iron Claw

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

A FEMININE

RUTH ROLAND'S

THE RED

Imagine a beautiful, talented girl who finds herself the battle ground of two warring natures, the one good, the other evil!

You'll agree that in such a story are photoplay opportunities galore!

The PATHÉ

EXECUTIVE

25 WEST 45th ST

JEKYLL AND HYDE
PART IN PATHÉ'S
CIRCLE

Produced by Balboa, from scenarios by Will M. Ritchey.

Complete in 14 episodes of 2 parts each.

Newspaper stories by Albert Payson Terhune.

NATION WIDE DIRECT-TO-THE-PUBLIC ADVERTISING THAT WILL BRING YOU BUSINESS.

EXCHANGE inc.
OFFICES
NEW YORK

EVERY MOTHER WHO EVER
EVERY SON WHO WILL WANT

MADA

The dramatic success of a
SIX PART GOLD
by Henry W. Savage, featuring

DOROTHY

This wonderful picture, which cost a huge fortune, is easily the most important feature ever put upon a program.

Produced by George F. Marion, who directed Mr. Savage's original theatrical production.

RELEASED

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

LOVED A SON—
EVER LOVED A MOTHER TO SEE

ME X

century now put into a

ROOSTER PLAY

the great star of the original cast

DONNELLY

The genius of Bisson, the author, coupled with the extraordinary emotional art of Miss Donnelly, have made a picture which throbs with pathos and glows with mother love.

JANUARY 14th

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

Concerning the Lasky production Fannie Ward in "The Cheat", W. Stephen Bush in the Moving Picture World writes: —

"Features like this one put the whole industry under obligations to the Lasky company. On every conceivable test this picture shows a hundred per cent. Indeed the feature is of such extraordinary merit as to call for the highest term of praise."

LASKY PRODUCTIONS EXCLUSIVELY ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

PALLAS PICTURES

PRESENTS

DUSTIN FARNUM

IN

"THE CALL OF THE CUMBERLANDS"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

RELEASED JAN 24TH

PALLAS PICTURES

PUBLICITY OFFICE
220 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y.

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE LTD
MONTREAL, TORONTO, CALGARY,

STUDIOS
205 NORTH OCCIDENTAL BV'D.
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Have You Followed the Popular Trend of Gauging the General Excellence of EQUITABLE PICTURES?

FOLLOWING

HENRY KOLKER in "THE WARNING"

Which was released December 6th and which include

The Illustrious Artiste

Gail Kane in "The Labyrinth"

A story of life back stage and a career moulded by doubt.

The Popular Stage and Screen Favorite

Charles J. Ross in "The Senator"

A romance of Capitol life, with a series of vivid counter plots.

The debut in filmland of Scotland's greatest actress

Molly McIntyre in "Her Great Hour"

S. E. V. Taylor's story of life as it is little known—with a powerful climax.

The Magnetic Stage Idol

William Courtenay in "Sealed Lips"

A heart-gripping tale, produced by Ince with an all-star cast.

The widely known film favorite

Margarita Fischer in "The Dragon"

One of the most unusual and entertaining tales ever screened.

America's representative emotional actress

Julia Dean in "The Ransom"

A fascinating story of mother love, sacrifice and struggle.

And Announced:

Frank Sheridan in "THE STRUGGLE"

Emmett Corrigan in "THE CHAIN INVISIBLE"

Marguerite Leslie in "THE PAIN FLOWER"

Gail Kane in "HER GOD"

Muriel Ostriche in "BABETTE OF THE BALLYHOO"

Carlyle Blackwell in "THE CLARION"

Here are the leading stars and noted players of the screen and the stage, blended, and, under the auspices of the most noted directors in filmdom creating visualizations of the most successful writers of the age.

DIRECTORS:

JOHN INCE — FRANK POWELL — HARRY HANDWORTH — EDMUND LAWRENCE
S. E. V. TAYLOR — E. MASON HOPPER — JOSEPH A. GOLDEN — JAMES DURKIN
CHARLES M. SEAY

The Above Diversified Subjects and Ambitious Announcement of completed and Pending Pictures Proves the Eminent Effort the

EQUITABLE PROGRAM

Is Making to Maintain or Improve if Possible the Splendid Consistency Established by the Past Six Productions

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION
LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE PRES. AND ADVISORY DIRECTOR
RELEASING THROUGH
WORLD FILM CORPORATION

WORLD
FILM CORPORATION
LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE-PRES. & GEN'L MGR.
PRESENTS
TWO NOTEWORTHY PHOTODRAMAS
HOLBROOK BLINN
IN
"LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL"
BASED ON "McTEAGUE" By FRANK NORRIS
A WM. A. BRADY PRODUCTION
AND
A REMARKABLE SCREEN VERSION OF
"THE CITY"
THE ACKNOWLEDGED MASTERWORK OF
CLYDE FITCH
FEATURING THURLOW BERGEN
SUPPORTED BY A DISTINGUISHED CAST
A SHUBERT FEATURE
HOLBROOK BLINN
CLYDE FITCH
"THE CITY"
"IT'S A DAMN LIE"
"LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL"
THE SHADOW FALLS

RADIO FILM COMPANY INC.
New York City

Who said STATE RIGHTS?

Here's only the second week and probably the last call on the big money-maker—

DEFENSE or TRIBUTE?

"Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute"--Pinckney

The big five-part heart-touching patriotic drama of thrills. Based on the question of National Preparedness, the most vital problem before America to-day.

EVERYBODY is thinking about the question of National Preparedness. There have been other Motion picture versions of this idea.

Instead of a lecture, here is a human drama. Instead of hard to understand theories, here is a treatment of the subject right down home to the everyday life of our cities, our farms, our factories, our homes, our families, our wives and daughters.

The handling of the drama is so plain and direct that the point is never for one moment to be doubted. For this reason the most prominent national officials have put their stamp of approval on "Defense or Tribute?" They themselves have seen the picture and have said that all America should see "Defense or Tribute?"

Wilson supporters, Roosevelt supporters, have openly declared their desire to see "Defense or Tribute?" put before the people.

WIRE YOUR OPTION

RADIO FILM COMPANY, Incorporated

1446 Broadway New York City

"Defense or Tribute?" has a most unique line of paper

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION
MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces
"VENGEANCE IS MINE!"
A REMARKABLE DRAMA IN FIVE REELS. BASED ON THE THEME OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT featuring popular
CRANE WILBUR
Released Week of JAN. 31ST.
Produced by Horsley

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces

THE IDOL OF THE STAGE

THE STORY OF A MATINEE IDOL WHOSE LIFE IS FULL OF DRAMATIC INCIDENTS. A PLAY OF "BIG SCENES"—FIVE REELS

featuring the Belasco Star

MALCOLM WILLIAMS

RELEASED WEEK of JAN. 31ST.
Produced by GAUMONT

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces

THE WHITE ROSETTE

A WELDING OF THE MEDIAEVAL AND MODERN SPIRIT INTO A POWERFUL AND BEAUTIFUL PLAY IN FIVE REELS

Featuring the great stars

E. FORREST TAYLOR
AND HELENE ROSSON

Released Week of Jan. 31st.

Produced by American

MUTUAL PICTURES

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Announces
A CLIPPER STAR FEATURE

THE SMUGGLERS OF SANTA CRUZ

AN ABSORBING DRAMA WITH ELABORATE SCENIC EFFECTS

featuring the AMERICAN FAVORITES

CHARLOTTE BURTON AND WILLIAM RUSSELL

Released Jan. 28th

Produced by American

MUTUAL PICTURES

The Smugglers of Santa Cruz

American Film Company, Inc., presents

William Russell and Charlotte Burton

the screen's foremost dramatic stars, in this newest of "Clipper" productions

A three-act drama, vigorous, picturesque and spectacular. Wonderful natural grandeur. An exceptional story of the sea. Arrange now to book this big feature.

Directed by Donald McDonald

Released Jan. 28th

A New Mutual Masterpicture—De Luxe Edition

Lord Loveland Discovers America

It's a laugh from start to finish. A five-reel comedy-drama from the popular novel by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, presenting the popular Broadway star.

Arthur Maude

Directed by Mr. Maude

Released Jan. 27th

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

American Film Company, Inc.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, President Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL PICTURES

The Man In The Sombrero

Harold Lockwood

the screen's most popular idol, and his beautiful supporting star, May Allison, play the leading roles in this romantic Western picture. It's a two-part American "Flying A" drama.

Directed by Thomas Ricketts

Released Jan. 25th

A Sanitarium Scramble

Presenting vivacious Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh in a single reel "Flying A" comedy-drama.

Directed by Reaves Eason Released Jan. 28th

Some Night

A burglar steals in where a hundred girls are sleeping. Woe is his! It's a "Beauty" comedy, with Carol Halloway and John Sheehan.

Directed by Jack Dillon Released Jan. 26th

Walk This Way

A side splitting "Beauty" comedy, presenting Neva Gerber and Walter Spencer.

Directed by Jack Dillon Released Jan. 30th

All "Flying A" and "Beauty" productions are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

American Film Company, Inc.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, President
Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL SPE

. . . . a short, sharp cry, and then she leaped. Down, down through interminable space the form of Helen hurtled. A splash! And then . . .

All Records SMASHED By This Railroad Film Novel!

THE world has learned to expect great things of daring Helen Holmes, yet in the "Girl and the Game" this fearless film star has eclipsed all previous achievements. Her great leap from a dizzy cliff is but one of the thrilling climaxes in chapter four of this marvelous production.

Greatest Newspaper Co-operation!

No film ever produced has been so enthusiastically received by the big newspapers of the nation. These great papers are publishing, week by week, the story of "The Girl and the Game:"

New York World
Pittsburgh Press
Atlanta Constitution
Omaha Bee
Buffalo Courier
Indianapolis Star
Chicago Evening Post
Detroit Journal
Baltimore American
B ston Globe
Cincinnati Times-Star
San Francisco Chronicle
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Cleveland Leader
Louisville Herald
Philadelphia North American
Memphis Commercial Appeal
Milwaukee Sentinel
New Orleans Times-Picayune
Los Angeles Tribune
Dallas Journal
Seattle Post-Intelligencer
Kansas City Journal

And One Thousand Others

SIGNAL FILM

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Publicity Offices: 222 So. State Street

IAL FEATURE

THRILLS!

"The Girl and the Game" is the production of guaranteed thrills! President Hutchinson, of the producing company, positively guarantees big, specific thrills in each chapter of this stupendous motion picture triumph. And he guarantees that the thrills presented will make your patrons gasp in sheer amazement.

Half a Million Dollars To Produce Fifteen Chapters!

This vast sum of money was expended to make "The Girl and the Game" the greatest box-office opportunity ever presented. It's a production of fifteen two-act chapters. One chapter released each week. Four now appearing.

The thousands of theatres now showing Helen Holmes in "The Girl and the Game" report stupendous crowds. And crowds bring profits! Get in on this big money-making proposition. Book this huge railroad film novel. Act at once. Now!

For booking information apply to "The Girl and the Game" dept. of any Mutual exchange, or at Mutual Home Office, New York City.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

CORPORATION

CHICAGO, ILL.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Oh! For the Life of a Fireman!

Slapsticks With a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

HERE'S a rip-roaring laugh—a scream for your patrons! Another of those sure-fire Vogue comedies, presenting an absolutely new company of most eccentric comedians.

Released—January 10

Other Vogue Comedy Releases

An Innocent Crook

Sammy's Scandalous Scheme

Are you booking Vogue comedies? They're the cream of all funny films!

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Executives

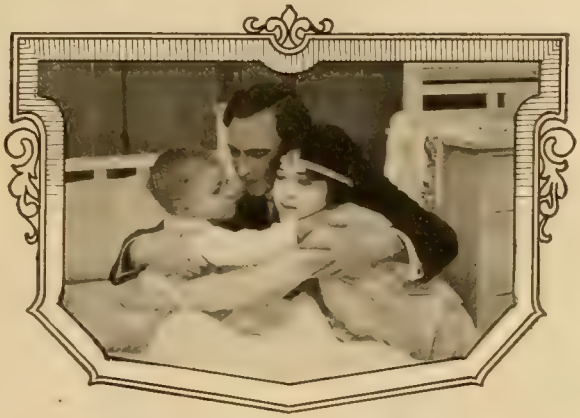
JOSEPH H. FINN SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON

Publicity Offices: 222 So. State St., Chicago, Ill.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

"AS A WOMAN SOWS"
Released January 24



GERTRUDE ROBINSON
ALEXANDER GADEN

How a Wife Was Saved After She Had Encouraged the "Other Man."

"THE IDOL OF THE STAGE"
Released February 3

MALCOLM WILLIAMS
The Broadway Favorite

A Spectacular Romance of Stageland, Society and Convict Camp.

"THE DEAD ALIVE"
Big February Feature

MARGUERITE COURTOT
Beautiful as the Dawn

Is She His Wife?
Miss Courtot Plays Two Parts.

GAUMONT CO.

FLUSHING, N.Y. MADE IN AMERICA JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

What Every Exhibitor Wants—

Pictures with stars who attract increased patronage.

Pictures of extraordinary merit to satisfy the most discriminating patron.

These qualifications are to be found in a stirring five-reel drama of the Northwest featuring William Clifford, Betty Hart, and the incomparable quadruped pantomimists—the Bostock Animals. Released January 22 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

THE BAIT

"VENGEANCE IS MINE!"

a remarkable picturization of a tremendous theme —capital punishment. Produced in five reels and featuring the popular star of the screen, Crane Wilbur. Released January 31 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

THE GIRL OF HIS DREAMS

One of the merriest of the deservedly popular Cub Comedies. Produced in one reel and featuring the funniest man in America, George Ovey. Released January 21 (regular Friday release).

As answering your wants book through your Mutual Exchange these

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE
DE LUXE EDITION
EDWIN THANHOUSER
PRESENTS

THE FIVE FAULTS OF FLO

ENVY
JEALOUSY
FICKLENESS
EXTRAVAGANCE PRIDE

FEATURING
THE SUPERB
FLORENCE LA BADIE

STORY BY
LLOYD LONERGAN
AUTHOR OF
"THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY"
AND
PHILIP LONERGAN

FIVE REELS
STAGED BY
GEO. FOSTER PLATT

RELEASED THURSDAY JAN. 20.

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE N.Y.

Opening the Door to Your Greater Success

Gertrude Bondhill

in

THE AWAKENING of BESS MORTON

A thrilling five-reel feature full of action, heart interest, dramatic situations, and beautiful photography.

MR. EXHIBITOR

Ask for Miss Bondhill's pictures. This charming little actress will delight your patrons.

MR. EXCHANGEMAN

Miss Bondhill, in a five-reel feature every month, is offered on the sanest business basis ever. GET IT QUICK.

LARIAT FILMS

Room 401 Longacre Bldg., New York

Bryant 2283

BEATRIZ MICHELENA

HER GREATEST PRODUCTION

"THE UNWRITTEN LAW"

by

EDWIN MILTON ROYLE

Author of "THE SQUAW MAN"

Prepared in Scenario by

CAPT. LESLIE PEACOCKE

California Motion Picture Corporation announces this feature as the second of a new series of wonder-film dramatizations, with Miss Michelena in the stellar roles and produced under the personal supervision of Alex. E. Beyfuss, after the standard par-excellant of

"Salvation Nell"

Scene from "The Unwritten Law" with Beatriz Michelena as Kate Wilson

SUCCESS!

Trade Press Predict Box Office Winner for New Raver-Thomas Novelty—

JAMES J. CORBETT

and

PAUL GILMORE

IN

"THE OTHER GIRL"

By AUGUSTUS THOMAS

NEWS: "Corbett magnetic. . . . Will be hailed with joy in many a town and city. . . . Striking exterior scenes. . . . Remarkable night view of white lights." (Thew.)

TELEGRAPH: "Cast excellent. . . . Novelties introduced. . . . Corbett reaching top notch as an actor. . . . Displays skill."

MOTOGRAPHY: Bright humor, interesting characters and acting that is natural should make it a popular attraction.

MIRROR: Story well worked out, clear and comprehensive. Gilmore gave finished and polished performance throughout. Night scene particularly beautiful. (E.)

WORLD: Strong, athletic touch to the Other Girl. Good cast, good drawing power. Broadway at night out of the usual. Other Girl a good initial release.

BILLBOARD: Most desirable feature. One for which there will be a demand.

A MONEY GETTING PICTURE

THE NOVELTY OF THE NEW YEAR

TERRITORY SELLING TO LIVE WIRES | FIVE PARTS | GREAT LINE OF FLASHY PRINTING

Name Your States—Telegrams Answered

ADDRESS QUICK

RAVER FILM CORPORATION

110 W. 40th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

LUBIN

FIVE REEL UNIT
RELEASED JAN. 24TH 1916

GLADYS HANSON
IN "THE EVANGELIST"

DAVE DON COMEDY
"FOOLING UNCLE"

:ALSO:

JAN. 19TH
"THE LITTLE SISTER OF THE POOR"
ONE ACT DRAMA

JAN. 20TH
"THE LAW'S INJUSTICE"
3 ACT DRAMA

JAN. 22ND
BILLIE REEVES COMEDY
"INSOMNIA"
ONE ACT

GENERAL FILM
LUBIN
RELEASES

KLEINE-EDISON

"The Catspaw"
"The Destroying Angel"
"Children of Eve"
"The Magic Skin"
"Vanity Fair"

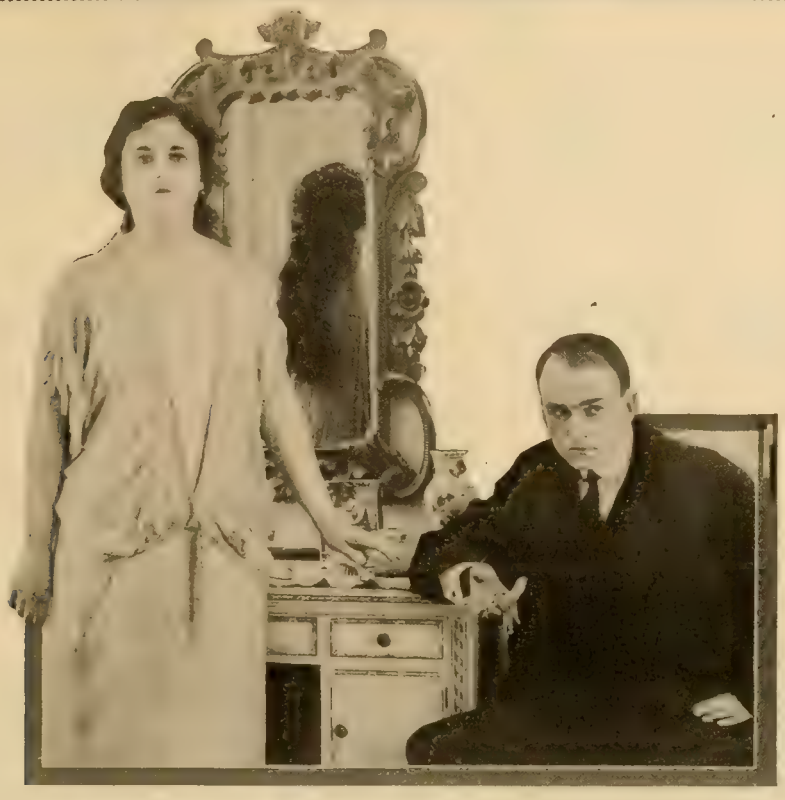
Something to be proud of - Edison is "Some" Features to profit by - you can

Released Through the Kleine-Edison Feature Service

George Kleine - 805 East 175th Street, New York

New York Denver Minneapolis Seattle Los Angeles Kansas City New Orleans Philadelphia Toronto
Pittsburgh Atlanta Boston San Francisco Dallas Chicago Montreal Cincinnati

KLEINE-EDISON



"You Stole Them!"

gasps Cleo—"Your Own Mother's Jewels—For Me!" Even the not-easily-shocked Cleo was horrified at the moral depravity of the man who asked her love——!

Ruin, death and shattered reputations prove fruits of the far-blown seeds of his bountiful harvest of

"WILD OATS"

George Kleine's enchanting drama of youth and youthful folly featuring

MALCOLM DUNCAN and ALMA HANLON

"WILD OATS" will catch your fancy in the first ten feet of film —after that it's smash upon smash, a perfect whirlwind of sensation through five amazing reels of drama in which the central theme is wine, women and cards—

It's a KLEINE—on that only program of consistent quality!

RELEASED JANUARY 19th, through KLEINE-EDISON FEATURES

GEORGE KLEINE, 805 E. 175th St., N. Y. City

NEW YORK
226 W. 42nd St.
CHICAGO
166 N. State St.
ATLANTA
71 Walton St.
BOSTON
14 Piedmont St.
DENVER
405 Railroad Bldg.
PHILADELPHIA
1309 Vine St.
MINNEAPOLIS
708 First Ave., N.
PITTSBURGH
123 Fourth Ave.
NEW ORLEANS
103 Nola Building
KANSAS CITY
209-12 Ozark Bldg.
SEATTLE
204-5-6 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
SAN FRANCISCO
234 Eddy St.
TORONTO
96 Bay St.
CINCINNATI
138 West 7th Street
DALLAS
1812½ Commerce St.
LOS ANGELES
514 W. 8th St.
MONTREAL
204 St. Catherine St., W.

Knickerbocker Star Features

ANNOUNCE

Jackie Saunders

IN A STIRRING DRAMATIC PHOTO FEATURE

A Daughter of the Woods

DIRECTION OF HORKHEIMER BROS.

3 REELS ALL EXCITEMENT

3 REELS ALL EXCITEMENT

Handsome Photos 8″x10″ in sets of twelve

A Beautiful Story—Beautifully Told

THE KIND THAT MOTHER AND KIDDIES LIKE.
MOST ELABORATE EXTERIOR BACKGROUNDS.

One Three and Six Sheet Posters

Released January 14th 1916

ON THE

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

VIM

COMEDY FILMS

POKES and JABBS

The Giggle Producers in

BUSTED HEARTS

ONE REEL ALL COMEDY

It Means Money To Every Exhibitor To Have

Vim Comedies

Included In His Service

Every Friday You Can Obtain From G. F. Exchanges

Vim Comedies

Get 'Em While They're Hot

BUSTED HEARTS

LET LOOSE

JANUARY TWENTY-EIGHTH

ON THE

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

The screen interpretation
Of the original Broadway success
"GREEN STOCKINGS"
Opens up a new avenue
Of production.

This chic comedy
In which
Lillian Walker is featured
Is devoid of slapstick
Or the risque.
It depends entirely
Upon its humorous situations
To carry it on to success.

The ovation given
"GREEN STOCKINGS"
At the Vitagraph Theatre
Admirably proves
Our contention
That this comedy is
New Original Unique.
Produced by Wilfrid North
Released January tenth.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

For January 17th
The Blue Ribbon Feature
Will be
"MY LADY'S SLIPPER"
Written by
CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
Directed by
RALPH INCE
Featuring
ANITA STEWART
And
EARLE WILLIAMS.
Produced by
VITAGRAPH
What more could be said?

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

FLIRTING WITH DEATH

The exhibitor who accepts
A given program
From any exchange
Without first seeing it projected
Is flirting with Financial death

—o—

We insist that every exhibitor
Sees all Vitagraph productions
On the screen.

—o—

Eventually this will force
Every other manufacturer
To adopt the open market
Which means
That they must Bring every production
Up to Vitagraph standard.

REGULAR RELEASES

—o—

"THEM WAS THE GOOD OLD DAYS"

Comedy—Monday, January 17th

Featuring John T. Kelly, Kate Price and Harry Fisher.

"A TELEGRAPHIC TANGLE"

Comedy—Friday, January 21st

Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

"THE SECRET SEVEN"

Three part drama—Saturday, January 22nd.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE

Featuring Carolyn Birch, William Humphrey, Leo Delaney, Templer Saxe, Rose Tapley and Harry Northrup.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

The name HEARST
Stands for Publicity—
Advertising
And efficient
News service

—o—

The Name VITAGRAPH
Stands for Quality—
Gigantic production and Speed in service

—o—

The combination
HEARST-VITAGRAPH
Means a news pictorial
Of the highest class
Backed by Advertising
Of a gigantic Magnitude

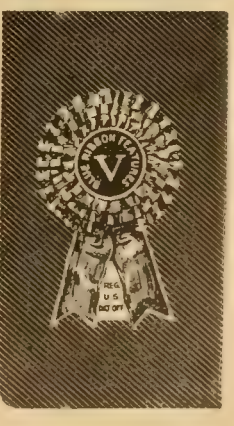
—o—

Hearst-Vitagraph
Will eventually be
The only news reel
In the field
If the term
"News reel"
Is accepted
At its face value



The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

"Stingaree's" Early Sales Made It "The Series Hit of the Year"—Consistent Strength Since Then Has Made It "The Series With No Regrets"—If You Waited "To Be Shown" Book Quickly, Before It Is Too Late

The Villain Worshipper

Tenth Episode in the Series by E. W. Hornung, Creator of the Famous "Raffles." Stingaree meets his would-be double in a two-reel episode tense with action. Released Wednesday, Jan. 26.

And the big "punch"—"Stingaree," with its wonderful advertising possibilities, costs you no more than an ordinary release. At any General Film Company office or the Greater New York Film Rental Company. Twelve two-act episodes, released every Wednesday.

Get a postal now and tell us to put your name on the mailing list for the new Kalem Bulletin

Striking 1, 3 and 6-sheet, four color lithographs on each issue. Other advertising aids, too.

KALEM COMPANY

235-39 WEST 23RD ST., NEW YORK, N.Y.

THE BLACK CROOK

Advertised by Two Generations
Your Profit Is Assured

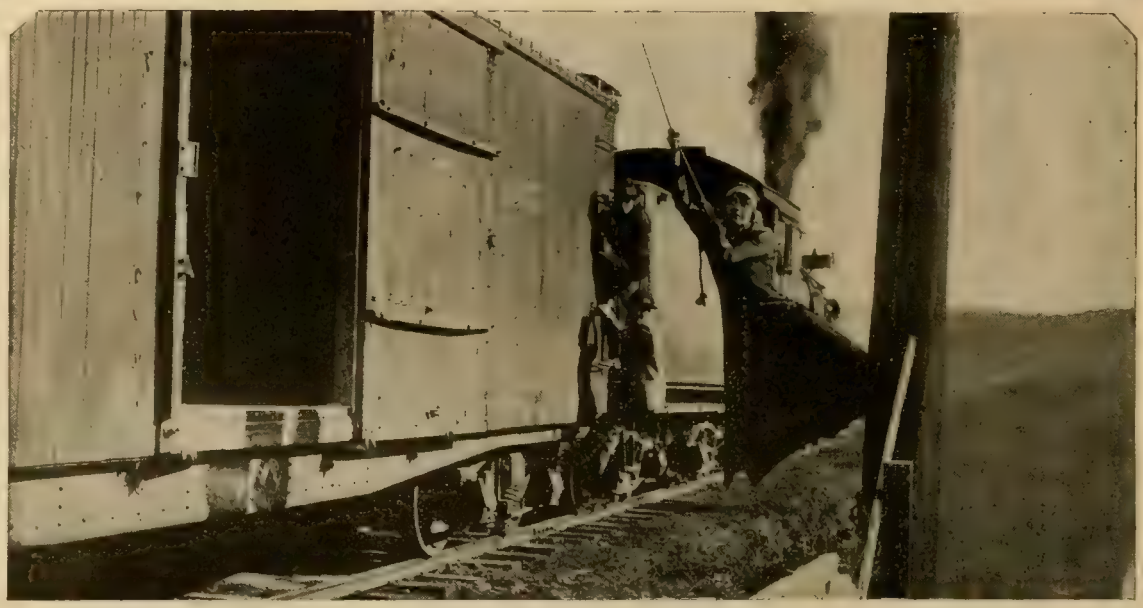
A Spectacular Picturization That Will Surpass the Fame of the Memorable Stage Production

"The Black Crook" comes to you with live-wire publicity backing. The Twenty-Four Sheet Stand is a dazzling beauty. Then there are two styles of one-sheet 4-color lithographs, two threes, and one six sheet. And you must not fail to get the Special Music, prepared by Walter C. Simon, and supplied to exhibitors at fifty cents. Attractive Heralds also.

IN FIVE PARTS

Released by the General Film Company

KALEM COMPANY, 235-239 West 23rd Street, New York City



"THE BROKEN WIRE"

An Episode in

"THE HAZARDS of HELEN"

Featuring HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

"Breath-taking" is the only word that describes the effect on the spectator of Helen's astounding performance in this release. Pursued by two crooks, Helen climbs a telegraph pole and grasping a messenger wire, swings through the air before an onrushing train and on the rebound lands in the freight car.

Kalem Sets the Pace

Make a Note of the Release Date, Saturday, February 5th—Special 6-sheet, 4-color lithographs, and 1 and 3-sheets, each with an exciting scene actually shown in the picture. Newspaper mats also.

ARTFUL ARTISTS

A rollicking Bud comedy, with Bud and Jack rival art students, Ethel, the object of their contentions.
Released Tuesday, February 1st. 1 and 3-sheet 4-color lithographs on this comedy.

THE LURKING PERIL

Second of the "Ventures of Marguerite" with preparedness the theme, and without a lagging moment in the reel.
Released Friday, February 4th. 1, 3 and 6-sheet posters of eye-catching design.

THE MOTH AND THE STAR

A "Stingaree" Episode by E. W. Hornung, Creator of "Raffles"

Out of jail and in again, is the story of this thrilling day in the life of Stingaree, the bushranger, who is the most striking character now on the screen. Eleventh episode in the series that improves with each release. Released Wednesday, February 2nd.

Stirring 1, 3, and 6-sheet lithographs

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company offices or the Greater New York Film Rental Company

ARE YOU ON THE MAILING LIST FOR THE NEW KALEM BULLETIN? BETTER WRITE NOW

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 500)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, January 15, 1916

Facts and Comments

THE exploitation of sex as the most fertile and withal the most profitable theme for public amusements on stage and screen is showing signs of decline. These aberrations of taste are of far less frequent occurrence today than ever before in the history of American amusements. When one glances at certain periods in European literature, notably the French and the British drama, one realizes that we have advanced wonderfully. If you have any doubt on the subject go to a good library and look through such classic productions as Beaumont and Fletcher. The riot of immorality which broke out after the Restoration may be considered as the natural reaction from the Puritan severity and hypocrisy and may therefore hardly be classed as a normal development. Beaumont and Fletcher on the other hand were considered clean and decent authors in their time. There is not a producer we venture to say who would dare to visualize any of their plays today. The morals of the screen are in the hands of the American people, hence there is no need of any inquisitorial body.

* * *

IN one of the Eastern States a former vaudeville performer has been elected to the legislature. He has signalized his debut in law-giving by the introduction of a bill which provides that every motion picture entertainment must come to a full stop every thirty minutes to be varied with some other form of amusement. Vaudeville preferred, we suppose. Good chance here for a short comedy entitled "The Vaudevillyun's Revenge," or "Who Put the Devil in Vaudeville."

* * *

NOTHING uncommon to see rows of baby carriages in the lobby of a motion picture theater. On the whole we rather like to see them. We remember the day when we had a standing agreement with proud young mothers and fathers to let them know immediately the moment the offspring became noisy. A sleeping infant is easily checked. Here comes a motion picture theater offering not only to check babies, but to guard and save half consumed cigars. Improvements will never cease.

* * *

WE ARE happy to note that numerous small and large contemporaries freely help themselves to the pages of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD whenever they are in need of first-class reading matter and good reliable information. We realize the sincerity of this appreciation, because it is strictly at our own expense. We do not exactly begrudge the use of our columns. Good stuff is worth spreading. Hence with two or three exceptions we have never copyrighted the contents of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD. Just the same an acknowledgment of the source would seem to be ordinary fair play.

* * *

AMERICA'S great film centre is New York City. Here are the offices and very many of the studios of the film producers, here most of the buying and selling is done. The city of New York is day after day the Mecca of film men from every part of the country. Now we would suggest making these men welcome whenever they appear. Just now there are film corporations whose heads and whose minor officers even are next to unapproachable. It is easier to see the Grand Llama of Tibet than some of these important officials. The only person that is visible and thoroughly approachable is the office boy. Alas, even he when dressed up in a gorgeous uniform becomes filled with hauteur. It seems to us that public corporations depending for their profits on the public might show the public a little courtesy and therefore be more circumspect in the selection of their "bouncers."

* * *

GOVERNOR WILLIS of Ohio, it is said, chaperoned a party of Ohioans into a neighboring state. It so happened that a picture which had been put on the expurgatory index by the Ohio censors was being shown in the state to which the Governor and his constituents had traveled. The Governor heard that some of his party were about to go to a theater where the prohibited film was being shown. Thereupon, it is said, he shooed them away, setting a fine example of respect for the Ohio censors both in and out of Ohio.

An Enigmatic Secret

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

"GIVE the people what they want," says the gentleman who regards the writing of a drama as a job, who imagines that the great stories of the world have been made to order, who sits down to a scenario as he would a table d'hote dinner, knowing the general construction of it in advance. He is aware of what he likes—and whose dinner is it anyway? His idea of public taste, to be perfectly frank and aboveboard, is that it must reflect his own, though there is such a thing as being modest about definitely stating what a hundred million of scattered men, women and children prefer in the matter of screen stories. They go to the picture show to enjoy themselves and leave without filing a report at the box office, their attitude being that of watchful waiting.

The successful exhibitor is a better judge of what the people want, especially when he observes for himself, casts aside personal prejudice and considers all shades of opinion. It is a matter of business for him to select more or less according to the state of mind of those he must please.

All very well in its way, but the successful exhibitor gradually becomes aware that there is such a thing as change in the public state of mind. A noticeable peculiarity of all audiences is that they are liable to grow weary of a really good thing when it is served as a steady diet. The form of release that drew crowds yesterday may fail today, and the winner of today may be the failure of tomorrow. There are ways of getting at public preference, but there are no absolute rules on the subject yet discovered. Under the circumstances how can the producer be expected to know what to produce?

Some producers reason from analogy. A certain novel has made a hit, why not reflect it on the screen? A certain stage play has had a long run, why not repeat its success in photodrama? If that unsafe form of reasoning is used, why not take into consideration the fact that the greatest novels, like the greatest plays, are not adaptations, but are written especially for the medium through which they are made known to the public. According to that logic, the greatest photodramas are bound to be those written first for screen presentation.

Other producers do not attempt to refill the bottle and sell it on the label, but aim in a general way to be responsive to a demand. Again rises the difficulty of getting at that demand. Is it for the sob sonata of the fallen woman? Is it for the nocturne of the Brute and the Lady in Lace? Is it for etudes of social criticism, or for minuets of romance? Perhaps, after all, we may have to consider what people are reading to determine what kind of screen stories are likely to suit the greatest number.

According to a recent report of the New York Public Library, one made up from branches scattered among five millions of people, some of them Americans, there is a decided drift away from fiction of the frothy kind to that of definite purpose. The astonishing demand is for information on the fine arts—science has long been popular—but all are dominated by a positive craving for books relating to the European War, not merely for romance of the war, but history of events. Greatest attention is given to books indicating the political and social consequences of the tremendous conflict. People are reading less to pass the time and more to improve it.

Not the least interesting part of the New York Librarian's report, especially for exhibitors, relates to the selections made by boys and girls. "They are reading better books," says the Librarian, "and with more intelligence than did their parents. Those between thirteen and nineteen are organizing clubs on every hand for mental betterment in things literary." It looks very much as though the educational release will not be popular with adults alone, but may easily meet with enthusiastic reception among all above the age of twelve.

While these reports may indicate a trend among those who frequent libraries in one section of the country, they can only be regarded as a contribution to a general sum of knowledge on the question of public taste. Newspapers may furnish another, and still another will be found in the big periodicals which circulate by millions in our homes. The best of family periodicals reflect very closely the mental conditions of those creative spirits who build up our social structure, but pictured stories address the emotions more directly than they do the mind, often reaching the latter through feeling.

It is at this point that most of us enter a labyrinth, where we can do little better than grope our way toward any definite conclusion. The pictured story addresses itself so largely to sensations of pleasure and pain irrespective of thought activity, that audience susceptibilities have to be taken seriously into account. Tenderness of heart, and fine sensibility on one side, and mere sentimentality, or morbid desire on the other, come within the general definition of "feeling," but a more restricted sense is meant, one applying to what is emotionally experienced by members of an audience.

A sure step in the right direction is to win audience sympathy for one or more leading characters. All plays above farce-comedy that depend entirely upon ingenuity, or upon some exciting situation supposed to be "dramatic," head for a disappointing slump at the conclusion when the affections of an audience have not been engaged. The pleasure they give is either intellectual, that of solving a problem, or merely that of gratifying curiosity temporarily stimulated, and they may utterly fail if the situation is forced or improbable. To win at all they must be plausible.

Not so the story striking a tender chord in the human breast. Once the emotions are deeply engaged, faults that might seem glaring under other circumstances are forgiven and improbabilities are tolerated. Fine characterization leads us nearer the heart of giving people what they want than the cleverest of illusions. Kindly interest in the characters makes the way to success decidedly easier, but there is a deeper interest; our pictured people must be created for some purpose worth the effort made to enlist sympathy for them.

The enigmatic secret of giving the people what they want will never be solved by the writer who is called upon to make scenarios to order unless, as occasionally happens, he is already deeply in love with his subject. His whole soul must be aflame if he would warm other hearts and brighten other minds than his own. He must know the truth in order to tell it, and, if he would glimpse the secret of success, he must know much more than the truth, the method of making it so beautiful that it will soften hearts on its way to its final appeal, its spiritual appeal to the mind.

*Copyright 1916, Louis Reeves Harrison.

Good Faith and a Bad Reward

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE coming convention of the exhibitors of the city and state of New York which is to be held on March 1 and March 2 at Albany will take up many questions of the highest practical importance to the exhibitor

Here is one of them: What can be done to protect the exhibitor who at great expense and great effort has popularized a particular brand of film in his theater and in his neighborhood?

We know that many producing and distributing companies do exact very substantial deposits from all exhibitors using their particular brand of films. The exhibitor pays the deposit which remains in the possession of the company. He then pays his film service the same as usual. The exhibitor now feels reasonably certain that with so much evidence of good faith on his part the distributing or producing company will reciprocate in kind. He therefore spends money in advertising the particular brand of films which he has secured. I personally know of more than one case where the exhibitor not only advertised in all the newspapers in his city, but went to the expense of bill-posting, making paper at his own charge. Popularizing a brand of films is work that cannot be done successfully in a day or in a week. It takes months to do it in anything like a satisfactory manner. Now when the popularity of the brand has been firmly established it happens that a foolish and unfair competitor is moved to approach the producer or distributor and offer him a substantial advance on the rental price. There are exchanges where that kind of competition is very much discouraged. I know of at least a dozen exchanges where such a competitor would be bowed out and at least one exchange in Philadelphia where he would be kicked out. It would seem that nothing more is needed than ordinary common sense to reject an offer of unfair competitors, but alas there are exchanges and there are producing companies that allow themselves to be tempted.

A few such instances have come to my knowledge within the past six months or so but none seems more flagrant than a certain case reported to The Moving Picture World from Shawnee, Okla. In that city a high class exhibitor with a large investment contracted for a certain brand of films. The name of the brand was absolutely unknown before this exhibitor began to advertise it. I have before me copies of the newspapers in which this exhibitor advertised his chosen brand of film. He was not satisfied with ordinary advertising methods. I can well compliment him upon his enterprise and his resourcefulness in making the brand known not only to the patrons of his own theater but to the readers of all the newspapers in the city and the suburbs. This advertising covers a period of six months and must have involved the expenditure of a good round sum of money.

Now come the officers of the corporation whose pictures he had so thoroughly advertised and they tell him with many barren expressions of regret that they have decided to cancel his contract. They admit that they were perfectly satisfied with the business relations between themselves and the exhibitor, they admit that they have made a substantial profit and they admit that a cancellation is a most unwilling step on their part. Then follows this sentence! "Unfortunately, however, we must sometimes take actions which are prompted by our natural desire to look out for the best interests of our corporation and this is one of the instances where the possible profits to us are so great that we cannot afford to overlook them even though it costs us our relations with you. . . . From the first thirty days after this letter is written we can serve you with no more of our productions."

After this notice the brand of film which our correspondent had so successfully advertised at heavy expense was given to his competitor. This competitor had curtly rejected the offer of the company when it first placed its films on the market in Shawnee, Okla. Our correspondent, however, had created the demand for the film and he now found that his good faith and his enterprise had been made the means of hurting his business.

Of course any corporation indulging in such business methods will eventually ruin itself.

Nobody is worrying about the fate of such a concern. The harm which such corporations do to the exhibitor and to the industry at large brings us face to face with a very serious problem.

I think all fair-minded men will agree that the exhibitor who at great expense and always at considerable risk builds up a reputation for a certain brand of film has acquired a kind of equitable right. He has created a demand for the film. The film may have been entirely unknown in his territory before he began to work for it. A contract which allows the producer to take the films away from him because some other fellow offers more rental does not seem to be fair. It looks one-sided. I do not claim that the exhibitor acquires any proprietary right in the film but it seems to me he ought to have more than thirty days' notice of cancellation. This would at least give him a chance to interest himself in some other brand and acquaint his patrons with it.

The proper way to meet this kind of treatment at the hands of an exchange or a producer is "preparedness" which in the exhibitor's case is but another word for organization. If there were more co-operation and a better understanding of the common interests such a case as that reported from Shawnee, Okla., could not have occurred. No exchange would dare to affront a strong exhibitor's organization in that way. The idea that success in the exhibiting profession follows the adherence to any one particular program or any one particular brand of features is all wrong. The success is just as much in the choice of subjects and in their proper presentation.

Exhibitors are certainly not playing their own game when they place a blind reliance on any particular brand of films or features. Not only are they apt to fail in the all-important matter of variety but they educate their patrons to certain definite but one-sided programs.

Another thing that wants to be considered is this: A Feature Program may start off with a superb quality of pictures and then may deteriorate in less than a month. Such things are known to have happened. A recent British visitor to these shores said to me: "I would not take any man's fifty-two a year." Perhaps this was a radical statement but there is a lot of sober truth in it. The drift of the day is all toward the open market and sooner or later every exhibitor will have to learn the art of choosing and of program-building.

This is a good time to take your first lessons.

* * *

ACCORDING to the perfervid assurance of a sublimated press agent, there is a play in which a man "bares his naked soul." Nudity surely can go no further.

Blackton Denies Rumors

Vice-President of the Vitagraph Company Says There Will Be No Change in the Management of the Big Concern—To Be a New Vitagraph Theater.

IN a note to the Moving Picture World Samuel Spedon, publicity manager of the Vitagraph Company, speaking for J. Stuart Blackton, vice-president of the big organization, denies the statements printed in a New York evening newspaper to the effect that the Vitagraph company was to change ownership. The story was more or less circumstantial and set forth that President William F. Rock was to retire, that a group of Wall Street men were to become heavily interested, and that Mr. Blackton and Albert E. Smith were to continue with the company. It was also alleged that William R. Hearst's name was being mentioned as one of those connected with the "Wall Street men." By reason of the alliance between the Vitagraph company and the Hearst newspapers in the production of a news weekly there were those in the trade who were inclined to credit the article as being founded in truth.

When Commodore Blackton was asked if he cared to add to the brief statement sent out by Mr. Spedon he said that sooner or later the company would issue a formal statement of its plans for the future, but that for the present the officials of the company were most concerned in squelching the "silly, malicious rumors" that were being put in circulation and that were so misleading to the friends and patrons of the Vitagraph.

"Surely we have been in business long enough, we have been sufficiently successful, to make it seem singular that we should have to deny these stories," said the commodore. "No change in management has been thought of. We have for many months been working on a carefully prepared plan for this year's output. We are not yet ready to announce those plans, and may not be for several weeks. It is to be assumed a number of persons in the film trade have learned that changes are in progress here, changes in the program and changes at the studio. We are enlarging some departments and naturally we are cutting down some others.

"We are going along in our usual Vitagraphic way, improving our business and our product. We have now on our shelves a five-reel feature for every week right up to the middle of June. Those who have knowledge of the expense involved in the making of five-reel features will have a pretty accurate idea of the capital we are putting into Vitagraph productions.

"It is possible that our relinquishing of the Vitagraph theater may have aided in a measure in giving apparent tangibility to the unfounded statements of which we complain. Giving up the Vitagraph theater as a matter of fact indicates no change of policy. We have found it very unsatisfactory trying to run a continuous performance in a house with such small seating capacity. The Vitagraph theater has practically but 600 good seats. We leased it for one year and were so successful that we continued the contract for a second twelvemonth. Owing to the presence of a three-months cancellation clause, however, we have never been sure that we could remain there. Naturally this put out of the question the making of alterations, extensive or otherwise. Had we held a five or a ten year lease it would have been different.

"There will be another Vitagraph theater. It will have an ideal location, and it will seat at least 1,600 or 1,700 persons. It will contain those factors the absence of which have so handicapped us in the operation of the present Vitagraph theater. We will probably have something definite to say in regard to it in a few months.

"The operation of the Vitagraph theater has been the most profitable thing for our business we have ever done. Out-of-town exhibitors have made more capital and done more business out of the fact that pictures came direct from Broadway than would be imagined unless one travel around the country and see for himself. So by all means we shall have a Vitagraph theater in New York.

"Later on, as I said before, we intend to give out a carefully prepared statement for the information of the public and the trade in general. It will be issued when we consider the proper time has arrived. It will go into exact details of our policy and I think it will be of interest to our competitors, of considerable interest to our competitors, and of considerably more interest to exhibitors."

The same journal which printed the story referred to in the opening paragraph also said that Victor Smith, who for a long time has been studio manager of the Vitagraph Flatbush plant, would take up work with the Lubin company in Philadelphia. Mr. Smith, it is said on the best of authority, will not leave the Vitagraph.

Motion Picture Costume Ball

Screen Club and New York Exhibitors Will Unite in Big Event at Madison Square Garden.

WHAT its promoters intend shall be a spectacle unique in the amusement history of the metropolitan district will be staged in Madison Square Garden on the night of Saturday, February 19. The Screen Club and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League Local No. 1, of New York City, have joined forces for a "motion picture costume and civic ball." As an attraction will be not only the screen players at present in the neighborhood of New York; but these players will appear in character, in the costume of the roles in which they believe they have been most successful in attaining the regard of the public. For the Screen Club Jules Burnstein is general chairman of arrangements, while Samuel H. Trigger occupies a similar position as representative of the exhibitors. Actively supplementing the work of the joint executives are Billy Quirk, president of the Screen Club, and Lee A. Ochs, president of League Local No. 1. The price of tickets has been placed at $1 for each person.

To determine the woman player who with a prominent public man will lead the grand march the New York American began on January 9 a voting contest which it is expected will arouse a great deal of interest on the part of the general public. To the woman receiving the largest number of votes the American will give a diamond bracelet valued at $500. There will be four other prizes, as well as awards to those turning in the largest number of coupons. Three boxes will be placed at the disposition of the American for prize winners.

There will be an auction sale of boxes at the Cort theater, West Forty-eighth street, near Sixth avenue, from 2 to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, January 20. Several boxes will be reserved for the use of prominent officials.

Adrian Gil-Spear, a member of the Screen Club, has given to the two organizations one thousand 24-sheet stands. It is the intention to place these at points as far remote from New York as Trenton and New Haven. E. St. George Hardin, another member of the club, has promised to supervise the placing and wherever possible to do so without expense to the Screeners and Exhibitors. The action of these two men is typical of the proffers of many others in the two organizations. The individual exhibitors of the greater city have promised to do their share in bringing the big function to the attention of their patrons and will have tickets on sale. The capacity of Madison Square Garden is estimated at 18,000. The general headquarters for the ball will be the Screen Club, 165 West Forty-seventh street.

Essanay Serial Through General Film

Rumor That "The Mystery of Mary Page" Would Be Handled by V-L-S-E Authoritatively Denied.

IN THESE days of wild rumors concerning the disposition of motion picture plants and the movements of important motion picture men, the Moving Picture World is being bombarded with denials of statements which, on their face, are in most all instances nothing more or less than "pure bunk." Unfortunately these rumors come to public notice through reputable publications and, therefore, receive a stamp of genuineness that makes their denial an absolute necessity.

One of the latest is that the Essanay serial, "The Mystery of Mary Page," will be distributed through the V-L-S-E. An official of the Essanay Company requests us to make a denial of that rumor as strong as possible, and to announce finally that the serial will positively be given to the exhibitors by the General Film Company.

That ought to settle that particular rumor. When looking for your dates for the Mary Page serial ask your nearest General Film exchange manager about it.

LOOKING FOR EDITH JOHNSON.

Anton Hugo Johnson, a traveling man, is seeking information of his sister, Edith G. Johnson, whom he has not seen for many years. An Edith Johnson, who recently appeared in Selig pictures, he thinks resembles his lost sister, but he is not certain and would like to hear from her to clear up the mystery. Letters addressed to the Moving Picture World will be forwarded to Mr. Johnson.

CHANGE IN LUBIN RELEASE DATE.

Owing to an oversight, the release of the Lubin one act drama, "The Little Sister of the Poor," was announced for January 19—the correct date of its release is January 17.

Chicago Gets Exhibitors' Convention for 1916

National Executive Committee of the M. P. E. L. of A. Selects Chicago for Next Annual Convention—Urges Support of the National Board of Censorship—Criticises Board of Trade.

By JAMES S. McQUADE.

THE national executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America met in sessions that occupied Wednesday and Thursday, January 5 and 6. The meetings were held in Suite 209-10, Hotel La Salle, and a hearty and earnest spirit for the welfare of the league was manifested throughout. The exhibitors in attendance participated in the deliberations, and President Herrington invited everyone present to assist by the expression of their opinions and advice.

The following members of the national executive committee were present: Fred J. Herrington, president of the M. P. E. L. of A.; L. W. Brophy, second national vice-president, Muskogee, Okla.; Peter J. Jeup, national treasurer, Detroit, and James Delves, national secretary, Pittsburgh. M. E. Cory, first national vice-president, was absent because of a storm-delayed train in California, and was represented by Peter J. Jeup as proxy. Judge A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles, and Marion S. Pearce, of Baltimore, both members of the executive board, were also absent, no reasons being given. Judge Tugwell was represented by Frank M. Kinney, of Cleveland.

The Wednesday morning session was called to order at 10:00 o'clock, and lasted until 1:40 P. M. The business of this session was mainly confined to a discussion of the future welfare of the league. Every exhibitor present was heartily in favor of immediate affiliation with the league, and the desire for harmony was universal.

President Herrington made a strong speech calling for the extension of the league to every state in the country, and advocated immediate action in every state.

Thomas Furniss, of Duluth, told how that local had been incorporated so that as an organization it might more efficiently protect the interests of exhibitors. He also stated that the Minneapolis local had been incorporated, and later Charles H. Phillips, of Milwaukee, announced that the Milwaukee local had also been incorporated and had rendered good service to exhibitors there.

The afternoon session lasted from 3:00 o'clock until 5:45, and it was occupied also by a discussion of the great and urgent necessity for a strong national organization. The meeting adjourned until 10:00 o'clock Thursday morning.

A night session of the national executive committee was held from 8:00 o'clock until 10:30, during which the books of the national treasurer and secretary were audited and examined by President Herrington and Second National Vice-President L. W. Brophy, and found correct.

Thursday morning's session was devoted to the discussion of a letter received by William J. Sweeney, treasurer of the Chicago local, from J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, New York City. This letter, in part, read as follows:

I understand the executive board of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League meets in Chicago at the LaSalle Hotel tomorrow.

One of the vice-presidents of the Board of Trade, Frank J. Rembusch, will be present. He has raised the question on behalf of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League which you raise on behalf of the Illinois branch of that organization (if it is a branch). I have told Rembusch this:

The Motion Picture Board of Trade will hold a trade show along new and original lines, either in Madison Square Garden or Grand Central Palace, in New York, late in May or early in June. A committee has been appointed and plans are now being drawn for this show.

The program, so far as it has been arranged, includes, among other things, addresses on different subjects vital to the exhibitors of motion pictures. These addresses will be delivered by the foremost authority on each in the country.

I believe it would be a mighty good thing for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League to hold its annual convention at the time of this trade show. We hold out, however, no financial inducements nor promises of so-called entertainments, which, as a matter of fact, is more frequently dissipation than entertainment. If the executive committee decides to convene at the same time the trade show is held, we will be glad to provide a suitable hall for their convention in the trade show building, and to afford the properly-authorized delegates admission credentials to the show.

The Board of Trade feels that the interests of every branch of the industry are one. It realizes, of course, the tremendous part in the industry which is played by the man who presents the product of the manufacturer and distributor to the audience. Therefore, it would welcome at its trade show the national convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, if it decides to come.

The discussion was frequently acrimonious, as it was considered that the Motion Picture Board of Trade did not show a disposition to treat the M. P. E. L. of America with becoming dignity and consideration. Watterson R. Rothacker, general manager and president of the Industrial Moving Picture Company, this city, and a division vice-president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, was called upon to throw light on Mr. Binder's letter. It was considered undignified that the league should be asked to play second fiddle on such an occasion as the holding of their annual national convention. Mr. Rothacker, while stating that he had no authority to enlighten the meeting on the policy of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, expressed himself as being very certain that no discourtesy towards the league was intended by Mr. Binder in the letter already quoted.

F. J. Rembusch took up the subject next and asserted that so far as his knowledge of the Motion Picture Board of Trade went he was certain that that organization would be to the exhibitor whatever he wants it to be. "No trade show can be a success without the exhibitor," said Mr. Rembusch. "The exhibitor must feel that he is welcome and he must be given some inducement to attend. The Board of Trade cannot absorb the Exhibitors' League." He also said that much credit must be given to the Motion Picture Board of Trade for having represented in its organization all the departments of the moving picture business. It was his opinion that a number of trade shows and conventions should be held every year for the benefit of the trade, and that an organization must have at least one trade show and exposition every year.

President Herrington was distinctly in favor of the exhibitor standing on his own feet. "Build up your own organization," he said. "Exhibitors are as far behind today as they were five years ago, so far as organization is concerned, except for the local organizations in leading cities." He referred to the fact that recently various manufacturers in New York were seen by F. E. Samuel regarding a trade show and exposition in New York this year, given by the league, and that the manufacturers referred him to the Motion Picture Board of Trade. Mr. Samuel stated that the manufacturers would not consider exhibitors direct. Mr. Herrington said that he had more confidence in the manufacturers than in the Board of Trade, wherever a trade show and exposition will be given by the league, and he expressed the belief that Mr. Binder's letter would be set aside by the manufacturers after they considered the matter carefully. He was also in favor of keeping the coming national convention and exposition out of New York.

It was decided, after several other speakers had voiced their opinions, that the executive committee should go ahead and select a city for the coming national convention and exposition of the league, and this business was reserved for the afternoon session. Before the Tuesday morning session closed, President Herrington expressed the belief that the meeting should go on record to request the manufacturers of films to keep up the present National Board of Censors, which, it appeared to him, was slowly going out of existence.

Resolutions for Support of National Board of Censors.

Thomas Furniss then made a motion, which was seconded and carried, that a committee of three be appointed to draft resolutions on this question. President Herrington appointed on the committee Charles H. Phillips, Thomas Furniss and W. J. Slimm, and they reported and recommended the following resolutions, which were read and carried unanimously:

Whereas, it has been called to the attention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America in executive session assembled, on the 6th day of January, 1916, at the city of Chicago, Ill., that the National Board of Censors is not receiving proper support to maintain the Board. Therefore, it is

Resolved, that it will be to the best interest of the trade in general that the National Board of Censors be not allowed to die. Therefore, we, the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, in executive session assembled recommend that the manufacturers of films support and maintain the National Board of Censors as at present constituted.

On reconvening Thursday afternoon, a motion was made and carried that Mr. Rembusch or Mr. Sweeney, or both, be directed to take action for the co-operation of the Motion Picture Board of Trade at the meeting of that body on January 10 in New York City, to aid in the success of the next national convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. The motion was carried unanimously. Mr. Rembusch will attend that meeting and will present the resolution.

At this juncture the cameraman of the Selig-Tribune made the request that the members of the executive committee and the exhibitors present should give him an opportunity to take them in moving pictures for that news film. This they did, and those present proceeded to the roof of the La Salle Hotel, where the wind was blowing at the rate of about fifty miles an hour and the temperature about seven degrees above zero.

Chicago Wins the Convention.

The selection of a city for the next national convention and exposition was then proceeded with. William J. Sweeney spoke for Chicago, while Mr. Jeup favored Detroit, and President Herrington made a bid for Pittsburgh. After considerable discussion, in which several others favored Chicago and Pittsburgh, the members of the executive committee cast their votes, which resulted in the selection of Chicago, by unanimous choice. The convention will be held from July 11-15, inclusive. The entire seventeenth floor of the La Salle Hotel has been placed at the disposal of the convention, free of charge, and the use of the large exhibition and ball room on the nineteenth floor has also been given the convention gratis. The Chamber of Commerce has also given assurance of substantial support, and everything points to one of the most successful conventions in the history of the league.

Illinois re-entered the league on Friday, January 7, and Wisconsin and Indiana have promised to come in just as soon as meetings can be conveniently held. At the present time, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, southern Michigan, Oklahoma and California are members of the league, and doubtless, with the persistent efforts of President Herrington and the growing needs felt by exhibitors to have the safeguarding of an organization, many more states will have joined the league before the national convention meets in Chicago.

Exhibitors everywhere, whether members of the league at present or not, should put their shoulders together and make the Chicago convention a credit to the moving picture business.

The exhibitors present during the deliberations were W. J. Slimm, member of the Ohio state executive committee, Cleveland; Frank M. Kinney, national vice-president for Ohio, Cleveland; Charles M. McGowan, business agent for northern Ohio, Cleveland; G. M. Luttrell, president of the Illinois league, Jacksonville, Ill.; W. W. Watts, treasurer of the Illinois league, Springfield, Ill.; F. J. Rembusch, exhibitors' vice-president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, Shelbyville, Ind.; M. Clarence Beatty, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Thomas Furniss, of the Duluth local, Duluth, Minn.; Charles H. Phillips, counsel for the Milwaukee local; B. K. Fischer, secretary of the Milwaukee local; Henry Trinz, vice-president of the Milwaukee local; W. J. Sweeney, treasurer of the Chicago local; Fred H. Hartman and H. L. Lieberthal, members of the executive committee of the Chicago local; John H. Frundt, president of the Chicago local, and Sidney Smith, secretary of the Chicago local.

The Albany Convention

To Be Held at the Ten Eyck March 1 and 2—Every Exhibitor of New York City and State Should Attend—An Important Program.

EXHIBITORS of the city and the state of New York are urgently invited to attend a real exhibitors' meeting for mutual protection at Albany, March 1 and 2. Such a meeting has been discussed for some time. Letters were sent by the local men in New York and in the Bronx to the sister organizations in Rochester and Yonkers, both of which cities have strong exhibitors' leagues. There has been a gratifying response and the task now before every man interested in the exhibiting profession is to make the meeting the biggest in the history of New York state. ALL exhibitors are urged to come. Whether you own a small or a large theater it will be to your interest to be present.

Two reasons ought to weigh with all exhibitors in the state. In the first place, we want to make a strong demonstration of our numbers and our power.

Remember that ALL EXHIBITORS in the city and state of New York are invited, whether they are members of an organization or not. That's why the first reason for being there is important. The more exhibitors attend the greater the impression upon the legislators. When the Moving Picture World last fall asked for the co-operation of the exhibitors in its efforts to defeat the proposed constitution it received great encouragement both from members of the league and from non-members. No credentials will be asked at this meeting except evidence of bona fide interest in a motion picture theater situated within the state of New York.

The second reason for attending is the need of protecting the interests of the exhibitor. If any conclusion may be drawn from the numerous letters that have come to this office and from the talk current among exhibitors there are many grievances which ought to be and which can be redressed to the advantage of all concerned. If you are an exhibitor it won't take you long to guess just what is meant.

The program, which you will find printed on page 489, is merely the skeleton of the events that will take place. One does not have to look at the program twice to see that it is eminently practical. The men who are scheduled to speak are for the most part practical exhibitors. The idea will be to invite speakers from the floor. The first object will be to promote the common interests of the exhibitor, the meeting is to be genuinely representative and the utmost freedom of discussion will prevail.

DETROIT EXHIBITORS RESOLVE.

The New Year's resolution of the Detroit Exhibitors' League will be to co-operate on a greater scale than ever before. The recent proposed ordinance regarding indecent pictures which was defeated has awakened a new spirit among both small and large exhibitors, and it has started them on the road of thinking. The more they think about it, the more do they realize that NOT to be organized and prepared for emengencies is like a man who fails to carry fire insurance on a hazardous building. A good organization is nothing more or less than insurance against drastic legislation, drastic ordinances and unfair attacks from those outside the business. Once in a while you hear some exhibitor remark, "Well, what do I get out of it?" The best answer to that is that he gets out just what he puts in, the same principle applying to any business or line of trade. The coming year is going to see a solid and substantial organization of Detroit exhibitors, and the writer wants to assure the league and all of the members that the Moving Picture World is ready to co-operate at all times whenever it can be of service.

General Film Opens Showrooms

President Berst's Promise That Exhibitors Have Chance to See All Films on Screen Already Being Fulfilled.

CONSIDERABLE progress has already been made in carrying out the policy of co-operation with the exhibitor, inaugurated by President J. A. Berst, of the General Film Company. Soon after his election to the presidency Mr. Berst gave directions that projection rooms for the exhibitors' benefit be established as soon as possible in every branch. Mr. Berst's idea was to have one or two days private showing of all subjects, whether on the Regular Program, the Unit Program, or handled by the Special Feature Department. It was his desire that the exhibitor have an opportunity of seeing all General releases before he booked them, as a first step toward the open booking system favored by Mr. Berst.

A number of the branches have now fitted up projection rooms and are holding private exhibitions for the exhibitors weekly. F. C. Aiken, division manager for the Middle West, arranged for such weekly showings in Chicago. The first private exhibition for the benefit of exhibitors in Chicago and vicinity was held in the Essanay Projection Room in the First National Bank Building on January 10, when the releases for the week beginning Monday, January 17, were shown. The exhibition began at 9.30 A. M., and with an intermission for luncheon continued until 4.30 P. M. The following day the rest of the releases were shown.

On Monday and Tuesday, January 17 and 18, all general subjects for the following week will be displayed in the projection room of the Selig Polyscope Company. After that date the exhibitors' showing will alternate between the Essanay and Selig rooms. This arrangement is to continue until spring when the Wabash branch will move into new quarters with a large projection room as a prominent feature.

The establishing of this service for exhibitors in Chicago greatly pleased the men who own and manage theaters there and in surrounding towns. Formerly they were obliged to spend parts of several days in different localities in order to review General releases. Less than 50 per cent. of a week's releases were available for exhibition under the old plan.

Mr. Aiken wrote recently to Mr. Berst that exhibitors were highly pleased with the quality of the releases. He added that not only were exhibitors present, but branch managers and salesmen. Already they had found this reviewing of the products they handle a great benefit.

In Boston General releases are shown to New England exhibitors exery Tuesday and Wednesday, a week in advance of their release. The Newark branch has a fine projection room. Before it was fitted up special showings for the benefit of exhibitors were given in Newark theaters. Projection rooms are approaching completion in Cleveland, Los Angeles and many other cities.

Censorship Hearing at Washington

Representative Motion Picture Men to Appear Before the House Committee on Education Against the Hughes Bill.

THERE will be quite a representative gathering of motion picture men at Washington, D. C., on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week on account of the hearing which has been accorded the representatives of the motion picture industry by the House Committee on Education, which committee is now considering the Hughes Bill calculated to impose a national censorship on motion pictures. Formal notice of the hearing was communicated to J. W. Binder, executive of the Motion Picture Board of Trade in the following telegram received Friday, January 7:

The committee this morning determined to commence hearings on H R 456 next Thursday night, the thirteenth instant, at 8 P. M. Those opposing the bill will be allowed three nights in which to present their objections. Those favoring the bill will also be allowed three nights. Each night session will continue for two and one-half hours. I am wiring you in your official capacity as the representative of the various motion picture interests and hope you will communicate this information to them. Briefs may be filed within seven days after conclusion of hearings. DUDLEY M. HUGHES, Chairman.

The provisions of the Hughes Bill were stated in a recent issue of the Moving Picture World. A bill, similar in its provisions, has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Hoke Smith, but the hearing before the House Committee will practically cover both measures. The members of the committee are: Chairman Dudley M. Hughes hails from Danville, Ga.; William W. Rucker, Keytesville, Mo.; Robert L. Daughton, Laurel Springs, N. C.; John W. Abercrombie, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Claudius W. Stone, Peoria, Ill.; John A. Key, Marion, Ohio; William J. Sears, Kissimmee, Fla.; Benjamin C. Hilliard, Denver, Colo.; Caleb Powers, Barbourville, Ky.; Horace M. Towner, Corning, Iowa; Edmund Platt, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, Ohio; Frederick W. Dallinger, Cambridge, Mass.; S. Taylor North, Punxsutawny, Pa., and Robert M. McCracken, Boise, Idaho.

One of the agitators for the bill is Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, of Washington, head of the International Reform Bureau, a familiar figure in the corridors of the Capitol, for he takes an active interest in all forms of legislation bearing on reforms. One would hesitate to say that he is a lobbyist, yet he is right on the job.

Dr. Crafts has been instrumental in having sent many of the telegrams and letters which have poured into the offices of Congressmen and Senators, they being in the nature of petitions urging the passage of the Hughes Bill, and he has had prepared a "boiler plate" form reading as follows:

"SPECIAL WESTERN UNION NIGHT LETTER.

"U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, Care Hon. , Washington, D. C.

"Undersigned petition Congress to establish Federal censorship motion pictures in interstate commerce."

At the bottom of this interesting little blank telegram is the following information: "(13 signatures allowed—one free in 50 word limit. Send one telegram to care of your Congressman and order duplicate to care of one of your Senators. Will usually cost 5c. or 10c. each to signers.)" At the side of the message is the following—"Senator Hoke Smith and Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, both of Georgia, have introduced bills providing for establishment of a motion picture commission in the U. S. Bureau of Education, to censor all films that seek copyright or interstate commerce privileges or right to exhibit in the territories and other places under Federal jurisdiction.—W. F. Crafts, 206 Pennsylvania avenue, S. E., Washington, D. C."

Up to this writing the only concerted opposition to the Hughes Bill and other forms of official censorship has been conducted by the Motion Picture Board of Trade. The plan of action as formulated by Executive Secretary Binder will be as follows:

Thursday evening, January 13, will be devoted to manufacturers and the most prominent ones in the industry will be present to present their side of the question. Friday evening will be taken up with the arguments of the exchangemen and exhibitors, many of whom have signified their intention of being present. Saturday evening a number of prominent editors, well-known authors, famous directors of motion pictures, and several stars of national popularity on the screen will be present. At the end of the evening the arguments presented during the three evenings will be summarized and recapitulated by William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade, who, with Mr. Binder, will be present at all of the hearings. A brief based upon this recapitulation will be presented by Mr. Seabury to be incorporated in the records of the Committee on Education. The first three evenings of the following week, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 17, 18 and 19, will be devoted to hearing the arguments of those who favor the bill, and at the end of that time two days will be devoted to rebuttal on the part of Mr. Seabury and Mr. Binder, and the formidable array of men who are interested in defeating this measure.

Whatever action may be taken by the Congressional Committee this hearing is practically but the opening gun of the strenuous fight that will follow. Twice before this particular measure, or one having the same end in view, has been quashed in committee; but, on this effort all the forces in favor of censorship of pictures will concentrate in a supreme attempt to pass the bill. A full report of the hearing will be made by a representative of the Moving Picture World who will attend all sessions of the committee.

Board of Trade Holds Annual Meeting

The Board of Directors Re-elected With But One Exception —J. Stuart Blackton Commends the Work of J. W. Binder.

THE Board of Trade held its annual meeting in the Blue Room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York City, on Monday afternoon at two o'clock. J. Stuart Blackton was in the chair, while E. A. McManus recorded. As the head of the executive committee, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, read the annual report which is required by law. The report was accepted and ordered on file. The same action was taken in regard to the report of the treasurer and the executive secretary.

Mr. Blackton spoke in high terms of the work of J. W. Binder, the executive secretary, and prophesied that the next annual meeting would have to be held in the ballroom of the hotel. He predicted such great growth of the Board. Mr. Blackton spoke at some length on the need of combating censorship and expressed the hope that all the great companies would be represented at the hearings on the Federal Censorship bill in Washington.

The next order of business was the election of a new board of directors. All the old directors were elected by acclamation, except Max Stearn, of Columbus, O., who had been on the board of directors representing the exhibitors. Instead of Mr. Stearn, A. J. Gilligham, of Detroit, was elected. Mr. Gilligham had been very active in defeating censorship in the state of Michigan.

Frank J. Rembush said he had attended the meeting of the national committee of the Exhibitors' League at Chicago. He declared that he had found some antagonism to the Board of Trade. He believed that the Board of Trade ought to co-operate with the exhibitor to effect its policies. He brought a resolution with him passed by the national executive committee and "holding out the olive branch," as Mr. Rembush put it, to the Board of Trade. The communication was, on motion of W. A. Johnston, referred to the executive committee. It was announced that a great trade show, under the auspices of the Board, would be held some time in May or June in the Madison Square Garden. This show, Mr. Blackton remarked, will no doubt furnish the Board with means to carry on its work. He said it would be the best show of its kind ever held here or elsewhere. His announcement and prediction were received with a good deal of enthusiasm.

The annual meeting was well attended. All the officers were present, in addition to about thirty or forty members.

Joseph Engel suggested that all the members devote a little more time to bringing in new recruits, and his remarks were heartily applauded.

Henry Otto, Universal director, who recently completed the five-reel production, "Undine," in which Ida Schnall, famous swimmer and diver and all-around athlete, is featured, has left for San Diego, taking with him a number of scripts which he will prepare for early production with Edna Maison and Douglas Gerrard in the leading roles.

Grace Valentine, who was featured in "Black Fear," a five-part Metro production, recently released, has gone to Jacksonville, Florida, where she will appear in the role of "Eve," in "Man and His Soul," the sensational Metro wonderplay in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are starred. The Garden of Eden scene in which Miss Valentine appears is one of the big scenes which will be staged in the south. Another will be the destruction of a large factory by fire, in which one thousand persons will appear.

Berst Appoints Division Managers

Chief Executive of General Film Company Makes V. H. Hodupp Division Manager for the East, While H. E. Lotz, Leading Canadian Film Man, Is Placed in a Similar Capacity in Charge of All Canada.

IN ACCORD with President J. A. Berst's policy of securing greater efficiency for the benefit of the exhibitor, and his desire to afford larger opportunities to men who have shown the co-operative spirit toward the man who manages the theater, important changes in the General Film Company field staff were made this week. These changes include the appointment of two new division managers, one for the East and one for Canada; the promotion of Six branch managers, and the engaging of three more entirely new to the General Film Company.

Soon after Mr. Berst's election to the presidency of the General Film Company, it will be remembered, he divided the country into four districts, placing in each a division manager in charge of that division's branches. The four division managers are to take the place of a general manager of the entire organization. The appointment of these division managers was announced soon after the creation of the division system. The appointment of V. H. Hodupp, made known this week, completes the quartette of the division managers for the United States.

Until Monday, January 10, Mr. Hodupp was manager of the Twenty-third Street General Film Company Branch. Prior to his connection with the General Film Company he had a long and successful film career with Pathe Freres. He handled many important matters for them. His last work for Pathe was done as manager of their Chicago exchange. While Mr. Hodupp has been in the film business practically since its development, he is a man of finely varied experiences. He has operated extensively in real estate and has been successful as a broker in downtown New York. He is one of the most popular men in the film industry, and is full of ideas and enthusiasm. His friends throughout the country will be highly gratified at his deserved promotion.

A second important change announced this week from the General Film Company's Offices is the selection of H. E. Lotz to be division manager of Canada. Until a few days ago Mr. Lotz was manager of the Mutual exchange in Montreal. He is familiar with the entire Canadian territory, from Montreal to the Pacific Coast, having spent seven years in the film industry in Canada. Like Mr. Hodupp, Mr. Lotz is a man of engaging personality. He has made friends in Canada from coast to coast.

An interesting illustration of the opportunities open to live wires in the world of film is afforded by Mr. Lotz's career. His first work for the General Film Company was done as a traveling representative for the Seattle Branch. Now he is a division manager, in charge of the General's branches over a vast stretch of territory.

Managers Promoted.

Of the six branch managers who receive larger spheres of action, H. H. Buxbaum is transferred from Minneapolis to Philadelphia. This is in recognition of Mr. Buxbaum's invariably courteous and helpful attitude toward his customers. Exhibitors and business associates were sorry to see the manager leave Minneapolis. A farewell dinner at which Mr. Buxbaum received a loving cup was one of the features of his departure from the Middle Western city. He is now installed in the Philadelphia office.

The popularity with exhibitors of J. T. Van Meter and his successful business methods while in charge of the Milwaukee branch of the General Film Company led Mr. Berst to select him as Mr. Buxbaum's successor in Minneapolis. It was felt that Mr. Van Meter would have larger opportunities there, and as he did not wish to leave the Middle West this promotion was eminently satisfactory to him.

F. L. Hudson, the third manager who is promoted, was especially successful in Los Angeles. He is transferred to Seattle where there are special opportunities for a man of Mr. Hudson's proved ability.

T. C. Malcolm is made manager of the Los Angeles branch to succeed Mr. Hudson. Mr. Malcolm was Mr. Hudson's assistant in the California Coast City. His effective methods of co-operating with exhibitors and his good business sense have won him his advancement.

M. Milder is the fifth of the General Film Company managers to be promoted. He was sent from Pittsburgh to Cleveland despite the written protest of some of his customers who asked President Berst to keep him in Pittsburg. But Mr. Milder's record was so unusual that Mr. Berst wished to give him advancement. When Mr. Berst's view was made known to Mr. Milder the latter asked that he be sent to Cleveland. He had once lived in the lake city, he knew the territory well, and he preferred Cleveland as a place of residenc and of business opportunity.

The sixth promotion is that of J. L. Marentette, formerly assistant manger in the Atlanta, Ga., branch. Mr. Marentette becomes manager at Atlanta. He is a well known Southern film man and before his connection with the General Film Company had made a record for himself in the Southern States.

The New Managers.

The three managers who come to the General Film Company from other organizations are W. C. Brimmer, C. W. Taylor and W. W. Anderson. Mr. Brimmer becomes manager of the Milwaukee branch, succeeding Mr. Van Meter. He, too, has a large following among exhibitors of his territory. Prior to joining the General Film Company he was manager of the Universal Exchange in Milwaukee. C. W. Taylor is appointed branch manager in Omaha. He comes to the General from the Mutual, having had charge in Omaha of the Mutual Exchange. He has had long experience on the business side of films and has many exhibitor friends.

The third of the new managers, W. W. Anderson, formerly of Pathe Freres, takes charge in Newark, N. J. He has already demonstrated that he is wide awake. One of the first innovations made by Mr. Anderson was the showing of all General releases in Newark theaters regularly each week for the benefit of the exhibitors. This was before the establishing in Newark of a projection room for exhibitors' private showings.

New and larger quarters have been taken by three branches. These are the Baltimore, Newark and Pittsburgh offices. The Baltimore branch is now at 402 W. Lombard street, the Newark, at 16-18 Beaver street, and the Pittsburgh at 119 Ninth street.

Ruth Findlay Star of "The Salamander"

RUTH FINDLAY, who has surpassed herself in B. S. Moss' production of "The Salamander," picturized from Owen Johnson's widely read novel of the same name which had its initial presentation last Tuesday at the Regent theater, New York City, scoring an immediate success, was born in New York City, on September 19, 1895.

Ruth Findlay.

The stage debut of this gifted young star was made in the Liebler production of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Miss Findlay's excellent rendition of the role allotted her in this play attracted the attention of William A. Brady, who engaged her for a principal role in "Baby Mine," which scored a marked success as a farce comedy several seasons ago. Following this engagement, Miss Findlay allied herself with the Joseph Brook's forces, appearing in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." In succession came engagements with such legitimate hits as "The Lure," "The Last Resort" and "What Is Love?"

The photodramatic debut of Miss Findlay was made in the World Film production of "The Man Who Found Himself."

Regarding Miss Findlay's work George Jean Nathan, the eminent writer of "Smart Set" fame, penned the following, under the title of "On the Powers of the Voice:" "Coquelin wrote, 'The power of the voice is incalculable.' 'All the picturesque effects in the world are not worth a cry uttered with the right intonation.' Possibly, but all the same, let me write that I went into a picture hall not long ago and in a film called 'The Moonstone' caught sight upon the screen of a young girl whose silent expression was thrice as dramatic, thrice as poignant, penetrating and eloquent as Bernhardt's memorable cry in 'Izeyl.'"

Paramount House Warming

A Gala Event in Motion Picture History Which Was Generously Attended—Carl Anderson the Great Efficiency Expert.

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE house warming of the new Paramount offices was like a parade of the men and women in the Almanac de Gotha of the motion picture world. The official opening took place at something like 8 o'clock Friday, January 7, on the ninth floor of the big new building on the northeast corner of 41st street and Fifth avenue.

William W. Hodkinson, the president of the Parmount Corporation, assisted by Mrs. Hodkinson and his son Kenneth, were among the very first of the arrivals and were Group Photographed in President's Office.

In front—Lenore Ulrich, Pallas-Paramount star; W. W. Hodkinson, president Paramount Pictures Corporation. In rear—Raymond Pawley, treasurer Paramount Pictures Corporation; Wm. E. Smith, president Famous Players Exchange of Philadelphia; Wm. L. Sherry, president Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Co.; A. D. Flinton, president Kansas City Feature Film Co.; Hiram Abrams, president Famous Players Film Co., of New England.

kept busy to the end with their tasks as hosts of a representative gathering of film men and film friends. Mr. Hodkinson glowed with happiness. He recalled the beginnings of his work in the East about three years ago.

"As for me," he said, "you know I could work on barrels in cellars if I were left alone. Of course now, when I look over these offices and then compare the various previous locations, I feel that something in the way of progress has been accomplished. Yes, I almost feel as if I did not want ever to come too close to 40th street and Sixth avenue.

Mr. Hodkinson laughed in his boyish way as he said this and then looked around and absorbed the atmosphere of comfort and elegance which prevails so unmistakably in the presidential offices.

The creator of Paramount submits to social functions with good grace, but he obviously is too much of a serious thinker to enjoy small gossip and the exchange of just compliments. He is so passionately devoted to his work and his visions are so keen and compelling that he finds little time for other things. With all his pre-occupation he is the most approachable and democratic of men. An amusing incident showing this fact occurred while Mr. Hodkinson was in his offices engaged in animated conversation with some of his prominent visitors and guests. One of the pages in his neat little uniform of dark blue entered through the open door. He was a very young man. When he saw the president surrounded by a group of important-looking men his heart misgave him and the words he had meant to utter died on his lips. Twice he essayed to make himself heard and twice he failed. When he raised his little voice for the third time Mr. Hodkinson heard him and quickly bent down to the boy to catch what he was saying. He did not hear exactly and putting his hand on the shoulders of the page he said with a serio-comic air: "I beg your pardon, will you state that again." This put the little lad at his ease and he delivered his message with great distinctness and glowing pride.

There were no elaborate ceremonies; on the contrary every thing was delightfully informal. Refreshments were served on the eighth floor in the Annex and were enjoyed by everybody.

The list of those present includes:

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Hodkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Pawley, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith, of the Famous Players Exchange, Philadelphia, a Paramount director; Mr. and Mrs. George R. Meeker, Hiram Abrams, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. William L. Sherry, of the Sherry Feature Play Company, a Paramount director; Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players Film Company; Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Pierce, of the Morosco Photoplay Company; Thomas S. Barrett, Harry I. Day, editor of Paramount Progress; Miss Josephine E. Gomez, secretary to the business manager; W. E. Green, William E. Mitchell, Charles Edward Moyer, James H. MacFarland, Miss Delia E. McMahon, James H. McFee, Tarleton Winchester, Joseph Engel and R. A. Rowland, of Metro; Ben A. Rolfe, managing director of the Strand theater; Fred Thompson and John Barrymore, Miss Pauline Frederick, Miss Hazel Dawn, Miss Marie Doro, Daniel Frohman, Frank D. Sniffen, general sales manager of Paramount; Jack Eaton, Mrs. Victoria Searle, C. Allan Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bray, Miss Lenora Ulrich, of the Morosco studio; House Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Howland L. Boas, of Reading; Alfred J. Hudson.

Description of New Offices.

Having inspected the offices in all the glories of efficiency, it was natural to inquire who was the man responsible for so much efficiency crowded into one great office.

If Carl Anderson had lived in some other Anno Domini than 1916, say if he had flourished about 1100 A. D., a statue of him would now probably be reposing against some stained-glass background and we would read of him in the ancient chronicles as the patron saint of the efficiency experts. As Carl, however, lives in this prosaic century, he has to be satisfied with a matter-of-fact report of his work by an ordinary scribe.

Carl Anderson is the efficiency expert of the Paramount. To prove his title he points to the living monument of efficiency which he has built on the ninth floor of what I had almost called the Paramount Building on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-first street. After I had been personally conducted I felt prouder than ever of being connected with the motion picture industry.

The ninth floor is half a city block in extent and there is a considerable annex on the eighth floor.

"I have worked on the plans and on their execution for something like half a year," said Mr. Anderson, looking the modest unassuming man that he is.

"Look around you," he said, "is there any man or woman here sitting at a desk casting a shadow on any part of his or her desk." There was no shadow to be seen.

"We owe this singular and highly beneficial condition to our light which, as you will observe, is a clear, pure but not glaring white. The light comes from a special nitrogen lamp which we have imported from Holland. The color of the walls is in what we call 'French Green' subdued and with a minimum of reflection. The desks are plain, there are no trimmings that might gather up the dust. Every desk is numbered and this number carries the occupant through every transaction with every department. You notice there is light on three sides. The electrical arrangements are perfect and no wires are visible. All electrical connections come out of the floor in conduits situated under the desks and are gathered up in so-called 'conduit-outlets' which are contained in the white painted columns you see."

Reception Room.

We left the main office with its atmosphere of efficiency and conscientious work and entered the publicity department.

"Here," explained my guide, "we handle 21,000 press clippings in one week. We know all about the advertising and the publicity of every Paramount exhibitor. We examine every newspaper that carries his advertising. Not only do we aim to help him in his advertising, but we keep tabs on the amount of publicity he is getting and if he is not getting enough we write him a letter to that effect."

I next saw the facilities of their addressing and distributing departments. There was the finest kind of an edge on their activities. I could readily understand when Mr. Anderson remarked that the department not only carried on its routine work with unvarying efficiency but that it was equal to any special emergency that might arise.

"Here we have the names of 125,000 friends of the Paramount Pictures," continued Mr. Anderson pointing to an imposing row of filing cases. "We keep in touch with them constantly. Of course they are not all exhibitors, but whoever is interested in our pictures is going to be kept fully informed of their progress. This automatic multigraph does a good deal of this correspondence. Likewise this machine will seal and stamp two thousand envelopes in an hour irrespective of size or thickness. Here, too, we have an intra-department postoffice which is one of our best time and labor-saving devices. Nothing has been overlooked." When a moment later I was shown an unbrella rack which individualized every umbrella and by a clever little locking device made it irremovable except by the true and lawful owner I confessed that a miracle in efficiency had been wrought.

Office of Carl Anderson, Efficiency Engineer and Business Manager.

On our way back through the room with the sixty desks so quietly and effectively controlled at all times by two experienced operators in a sound-proof switchboard room Mr. Anderson drew a sharp distinction between red tape and efficiency.

"Efficiency is the shortest way and the best at least cost," he said, "but red tape is a cloak for inefficiency. To save time and to save labor—these are the only two legitimate objects of genuine efficiency. I think though that efficiency can show itself in small things no less than in large ones. Look here."

Opening the desk of a stenographer he showed me a very complete and ample supply of all the things a stenographer needs in her work.

"This," he continued, "is supplied at night. No time is lost sharpening lead pencils or looking for supplies. It means I think a saving of at least five minutes for each of these employes and when you count up the saving of five minutes a day for say one hundred and ten people it amounts to a lot."

We returned to Mr. Anderson's own room, a spacious glass encased affair with a full view of every employe now in charge of a stenographer and secretary of very obvious efficiency.

The offices of President Hodkinson and of his assistants are marvels of comfort, efficiency and of quiet elegance. If the exigencies of space (which is fully precious in the Moving Picture World) did not forbid I would want to dilate on much more, for instance, on the Jacobean furniture of the reception room, on the rich rugs, the soft light, etc. One thing more I must mention, however: The courtesy of every employe and their manifest good breeding. There is no room for a bouncer on the ninth floor of what I again came near calling the Paramount Building.

Famous Players-Mary Pickford Co.

Most Popular of Actresses Closes Contract With Adolph Zukor Whereby She Retains Half Interest in New Organization.

ALL doubt concerning the future affiliations of Mary Pickford was permanently dispelled recently by the announcement that she has decided to remain with the Famous Players Film Company, the first feature organization with which she was identified.

The new agreement into which Miss Pickford has entered with Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players Company, includes the formation of the Famous Players-Mary Pickford Company for the making of feature productions in which Miss Pickford is to be starred, and in which the star retains a half interest.

The story of Mary Pickford has no parallel in the history of the theater or of the screen. A young girl in her early twenties, she has amassed a fortune, and is today the highest paid woman in the picture world. Large as the salaries which are paid successful actors and actresses are known to be, there has never been a player whose compensation approached that of this little golden-haired star.

Mr. Zukor, in discussing the new arrangement with Miss Pickford, declared that the formation of the new company enabled him to carry out several big projects which he contemplated for the coming year.

"Miss Pickford is unquestionably the most popular screen artiste today, but I do not by any means believe that she has reached the pinnacle of her fame. Her wonderful work in such widely different films as "Tess," "Madame Butterfly," "The Foundling," and some of her other recent productions, proves conclusively that Miss Pickford, superb as she has been, is steadily improving her artistry."

Olive Fuller Golden

"I AM the eldest daughter of George Fuller Golden, founder of the White Rats of America, one of the greatest organizations for actors in existence, and I'm proud of it!" says Pretty Olive Golden of the Rex-Universal forces. Miss Golden is only eighteen years old, but she has been in pictures for two years, appearing in film stories of the Famous Players, Biograph and Lubin companies. She is now one of the Universal City colony in Los Angeles, where she has just completed her role in "A Knight of the Range," the thrilling Western drama featuring Harry Carey. She thinks she played to best advantage in "Tess of the Storm Country," in which she finely played the unfortunate girl befriended by Tess. But she was perhaps most warmly welcomed by her ever-increasing public when she played the lead in the third "Terence O'Rourke" series. She says that her favorite parts are "hussies."

Olive Fuller Golden.

Her nickname of "Goldie" describes her very well, for she is fair, with blonde hair. She is over average height, but neither tall nor short, and has a slender, supple figure. She loves to read, and she is the author of several scenarios. She was educated in London, England, where she learned to ride and swim, and these sports, with dancing, are her favorite amusements. Her hobby is hats, and she says she is afraid that she is a wee bit extravagant where millinery is concerned.

Audience Applauds Bernhardt

First Showing of "Jeanne Dore" Draws Full House at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theater.

THE news that Sarah Bernhardt, in all probability, never will visit this country again increases the importance of her performance in "Jeanne Dore," a picture in which she appeared shortly after the amputation of one leg. As the first of the Blue Bird Photoplays, this five-part offering, given its initial public showing at Proctor's Twenty-third street theater, New York, on January 6, should attract interested audiences in all parts of the country for many months to come. If there is never another Bernhardt picture, "Jeanne Dore" will stand as the last artistic accomplishment of the world's most famous actress. It will be preserved as the work of a woman, who, seventy-one years old and physically incapacitated, retained a spirit that would not be downed and a genius for emotional expression strong enough to surmount handicaps.

Scene from "Jeanne Dore" (Blue Bird).

That many people are anxious to see Mme. Bernhardt in her latest picture was amply manifested by the audience that nearly filled Proctor's theater for the premiere showing. There were few vacant seats when the title of the production was flashed on the screen and the introductory appearance of the Divine Sarah was recognized by generous applause. Her playing was followed with close attention throughout the five reels, and at the conclusion the audience again registered its approval by applauding.

An analysis of the merits and effects of the photoplay, "Jeanne Dore," adapted from a stage work of the same name by Tristan Bernard, is unnecessary. According to American standards it reveals a few deficiencies, but in supplying Mme. Bernhardt with a character of strong sympathetic appeal the main purpose is served. Here is an instance where the player and not the play is most emphatically the thing. The theme is mother love, a mother love so intense that no amount of suffering, no ingratitude or coolness on the part of the loved one, serves to lessen its fervor. Mme. Bernhardt portrays a woman capable of any self-sacrifice, first for the worthless husband who gambles away his money and his wife's jewels; then for the son who inherits the wild traits of his father.

The story is so devised, with the series of tragedies all calculated to bring sorrow to the unselfish mother, that there is no break in the sympathetic appeal. And Mme. Bernhardt's acting brings out all the poignancy of a ruined life. She expresses much by quick, characteristic movements of her hands, by instinctive gestures that never fail to convey a meaning, and in the more tragic moments of the story her facial expressions give a wonderful revelation of the feelings of the tortured mother. So great is the skill of the great tragedienne that an audience almost loses sight of the limitations imposed by physical infirmity. Most of her scenes are played while seated in a chair, or leaning against a convenient support, and on the few occasions that she does walk, her feeble steps are aided by other actors.

Possessing a cumulative emotional power, the picture reaches its most impressive moments in the tragic scenes preceding the execution of Jacques and in the actual execution, giving a quite startling view of a guillotine in operation. The company in support of Mme. Bernhardt is adequate, with the exception of a young woman who suggests little save emotional and physical coldness when the character demands the reverse.

An unexpected feature of the program which included the first showing of "Jeanne Dore" at Proctor's was the appearance of Florence Lawrence on the stage. She was introduced by Jack Edwards as a member of the Universal Company's feature organization and the audience expressed its hearty approval of her return to photoplays.

MUTUAL'S SIX-A-WEEK.

New Schedule Commences January 17 With Some Interesting Features.

THE six-features-a-week releasing schedule of the Mutual Film Corporation will be ushered in January 17, with the five-part American, Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, featuring Charlotte Burton and William Russell, entitled "The Thoroughbred." Following upon the appearance of this Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, "The Five Faults of Flo," a Thanhouser five-reeler, featuring Florence La Badie, and "The Bait," a Horsley production of similar length, starring Betty Harte and William Clifford, will be shown the same week. The Thanhouser Masterpicture will be released on January 22, 1916, Wednesday, and "The Bait" on Friday, January 22.

While it is the decision of the Mutual, as announced, to increase the output of two three-reel pictures to a three-a-week, in addition to the three Masterpictures De Luxe, only one of the three-reelers will be released the week of January 17.

"The Phantom Witness," a Thanhouser production, in which Kathryn Adams and Edwin Stanley are cast for the leads, will appear on January 19.

In the two following weeks, two of the three-reel features will be put out. In the fourth week of the Mutual's new policy, which is the week of February 7, the Mutual will have struck its three-reeler pace.

The Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe Edition, which will constitute the Mutual's release of the second week, are "As a Woman Sows" (Gaumont), "Lord Loveland Discovers America" (American) and "Betrayed" (Horsley). The two three-reel features of the same week will be "The Burglars' Picnic" (Thanhouser) and "The Smugglers of Santa Cruz" (Mustang).

Lucille Taft

LUCILLE TAFT, the charming, dark-eyed leading woman for Richard Garrick's company of Gaumont players, who appear in the Mutual program in Rialto Star Features, is an ardent advocate of the theory that it pays to work hard. Miss Taft is a Southern girl. She was born in Memphis, Tenn., and in spite of the languid ease in which Southern girls so typically beautiful as Miss Taft are wont to conduct themselves, this enterprising little daughter of Dixieland is never idle a minute.

Lucille Taft.

Seven years ago Lucille Taft went into the motion pictures. Her pretty dark hair and expressive face made her particularly adaptable for screen purposes and she has been enormously popular. Some months ago she went out in the Gaumont studio at Flushing and asked Director Richard Garrick to let her play extra parts. But Miss Taft was quite sure that it was willingness to work at all times and at all things which made Mr. Garrick think her deserving of it.

Miss Taft appeared to good advantage in the three-part Rialto Star Feature picture released some time ago, "The Card Players," in which she played in support of William Roselle. She played opposite Hal Forde in "Lessons in Love." At present she is playing opposite Malcolm Williams, the well known Broadway star, in the first Gaumont Masterpicture, which will be released through the Mutual later.

Death of A. Arthur Caille

Leading Manufacturer and Motion Picture Exhibitor Dies Suddenly.

A GLOOM has been cast over the entire motion picture industry of Detroit, Mich., and it will take some time for conditions to get back to normal. The reason is the sudden and most unexpected death of one of its most beloved citizens, a pioneer of the moving picture industry, A. Arthur Caille, who passed away at midnight, January 2. Only two weeks ago he was married to Mrs. Lila R. Schantz in Mt. Clemens, Mich., and they had just returned from their honeymoon. An intimate friend of Mr. Caille's gave the World correspondent the following information concerning him:

A. Arthur Caille.

"When the motion picture history of Detroit is written, A. Arthur Caille's name will be well up in the honor roll. It was his broad vision and sound business sense that enabled him to see the glorious future of the pictures. He built and operated Detroit's first motion picture house, the Casino on Monroe avenue. In a short cycle of years he became owner and operator of what many persons conceived to be Detroit's handsomest theater, the Majestic.

A. Arthur Caille was 48 years old. Death came to him at his home without warning on Sunday night, January 2. All day he was busy with his various picture enterprises. Part of the day he spent at the Majestic theater. Later he motored with Mrs. Caille to Wyandotte, where two of his theaters are located. He returned home at 11:30 P. M., and had just entered his house at Second and Palmer avenues when he sank on his bed. Before a physician could arrive he died.

Although born in Detroit, Mr. Caille spent a number of years in Owosso and Saginaw, Mich. He returned to Detroit in 1893, and entered into the manufacturing business. After building the Casino on Monroe avenue, Mr. Caille went into partnership with John H. Kunsky, who now operates a large chain of theatres in Detroit. After a few years he sold out his entire interests in the Caille & Kunsky enterprises to Mr. Kunsky. But he did not stay out of the business very long. He first built the Maxine theater, Mack and Baldwin avenues, then the beautiful Majestic at Woodward and Willis avenues, which many declare is the finest in the country devoted exclusively to motion pictures. In partnership with Henry Guthard, he purchased the Norwood and Fine Arts theaters, Detroit, the Marx and Majestic theaters in Wyandotte. His last enterprise was the Ferry Field theater, now in course of erection, at Grand River avenue and the Boulevard. Besides his theatrical enterprises, he was president of the Caille Perfection Motor Co., Caille Bros., which manufacture slot machines, and the Caille theater ticket devices. He was a member of the Detroit Board of Commerce and the leading clubs of the city."

A. Arthur Caille was a man of genial personality and had a great faculty of making friends. What his friends thought of him was best expressed by the numerous floral tributes sent to his home and those who called to take a last view of his body on the day of the funeral. The writer, like dozens of others, had grown to love Mr. Caille, and we will all miss him. His death came at a time when he was at the acme of success; he had many big things planned; he had wonderful foresight. Arthur Caille's death was inexpressibly sad.

The pallbearers included A. J. Gilligham, General Film Company; George Weeks, manager Universal Detroit branch; Theodore Smith, sales manager Caille Bros.; John H. Kunsky, theater owner, and Henry Guthard, his partner in theatrical enterprises.

Lottie Pickford is soon to appear in a specially written five-part drama, the title of which the American Film Company has not yet announced.

Leading Stars in Pallas Pictures

Dustin Farnum, Florence Rockwell and Lenore Ulrich to Be Seen on Paramount Program During Early Part of This Year.

FOLLOWING its pretentious debut in filmdom with Booth Tarkington's "The Gentleman from Indiana," which subject presented a high water mark of quality readily upheld by its second release, "The Reform Candidate," the Maclyn Arbuckle success, Pallas Pictures announces that three new photoplays of unusual merit are now in the course of completion. Starring in these new subjects are Dustin Farnum in "The Call of the Cumberlands," an adaptation from Charles Neville Buck's well-known book and incidentally one of the best sellers on the market; Florence Rockwell in "He Fell in Love with His Wife," adapted from the novel of the same name by E. P. Roe, and Lenore Ulrich in a Mexican play of modern times, in which the former star of "The Bird of Paradise" and "Kilmeny" receives another screen vehicle admirably suited to her talents.

Besides presenting a romantic drama which, according to Dustin Farnum himself, even surpasses in quality "The Gentleman from Indiana," the prominent screen favorite's new vehicle offers scenes of natural beauty that are seldom duplicated. For the Cumberland Mountain scenes the entire company was taken to Thousand Pines, a favorite elevation for Californian mountain climbers, and called by them "the rim of the world." It is in the heart of the famous Bear Valley country, whose mountain lakes are exquisitely Swiss and whose scenic charms, its 2,000 feet precipices and canyons are known to painters from all over the world. Several artistic as well as dramatic surprises are promised on the presentation of the next Farnum offering.

"He Fell in Love with His Wife" presents Florence Rockwell for the first time under the Pallas-Paramount banner. Miss Rockwell is one of the best known of the younger American stars and has a brilliant record in Frohman and Klaw and Erlanger productions, notably as the true blue chorus girl in "The Double Cross," as co-star with Arnold Daly; as Necia in "The Barrier," by Rex Beach; as heroine in the K. & E. memorable spectacle "The Round Up," and in the recent all-star revival of Eugene Walter's "Fine Feathers." In addition to being a big seller as a novel, "He Fell in Love with His Wife" has also been a reigning stage success for the past three decades. One of the standard works of English fiction, it has a touch of Thomas Hardy's profound understanding of the children of the soil, plus a gentleness and tenderness that are unique.

It is felt that the Lenore Ulrich film affords the pretty actress another opportunity to score on the screen even to a greater extent than she did in "Kilmeny." Miss Ulrich has just returned from Mexico with the Pallas Pictures players, where the company enacted most of the important scenes of the new play. The remarkable talent displayed by the star in her latest film subject has caused considerable comment among the Pallas Pictures headquarters. Miss Ulrich appeared under the Pallas Pictures banner for the Paramount Program, through the courtesy of Oliver Morosco, another prominent Paramount producer, who has a two-year contract which calls for the exclusive screen services of the pretty actress. It is predicted by many that Miss Ulrich will become established as one of this country's most favorite film artists in the near future and that her popularity in films will even exceed her stage success is readily expected.

With Dustin Farnum, Florence Rockwell and Leonore Ulrich in pretentious subjects for early release, Pallas Pictures are preparing several new offerings and various negotiations are under way which it is expected will result in big announcements to the trade and public. With the release of "The Gentleman from Indiana," it was readily conceded by authorities in and out of the trade that the new Paramount organization had set a high standard for itself.

BUNGLES IN VIM COMEDIES.

Commencing Thursday, February 27, Vim Comedies will supersede MinA Comedies on the General program. Bungles, the leading and most popular comedian in Europe, was forced on account of the war to cancel his contracts in Europe, and judging from his work in Vim comedies (the first of which will be "Bungles' Rainy Day," released on the General program February 10) he promises to soon become as famous and as great a success in this country as he has been abroad—second to none. He plays the leading parts in all his comedies, directs them, and writes his own scenarios. He has made a long contract to appear in Vim comedies.

V-L-S-E in Canada

Big Four Opens Office in Toronto With C. W. Gookin in Charge.

THE constantly expanding business of the Big Four in Canada has necessitated that combination organizing a special sales service and headquarters in that section of America. The first of the offices to be opened will be in Toronto, under the management of G. W. Gookin, who will be general manager of the entire V-L-S-E establishment in Canada under Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the organization. Mr. Gookin will assemble his entire staff from "native sons" in Canada, and will divide the large territory which is to be covered into blocks so that every representative will be in close touch with the exhibitors in his particular quota.

Mr. Gookin, who has been with the V-L-S-E only since last September, and who provides another illustration of the principle of that organization to make its promotions from the ranks, is well fitted to take care of the big interests which will be under his direction. For four years Mr. Gookin was instructor of sales for the National Cash Register Company. It was here that he first became interested in motion pictures, being probably the first sales director to use motion pictures in instructing his force. Later Mr. Gookin went with the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, of which concern he was general manager for four years. He was afterward president of the Gookin Bank & Office Equipment Co., of Atlanta, Ga., which acted as southern distributors for the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, the Fireproof Furniture & Construction Co. and the Adder Machine Company, manufacturers of Wales' Visible Adding Machine.

When the business of the latter concern was turned by Mr. Gookin over to the Adder Machine Company, the organization making the Wales' Visible Adding Machine, Mr. Gookin accepted a subordinate position with the V-L-S-E in order to learn the film industry from the ground up. He entered the New York office as a shipping clerk first, and was subsequently promoted to the position of booker. A few weeks afterward he was transferred to the Pacific coast, where he rendered invaluable aid to A. W. Goff, coast division manager, and now assistant general manager of the V-L-S-E, in introducing advanced merchandising and advertising methods among the exhibitors of that territory.

Mr. Gookin, accompanied by Joseph Partridge, left for Toronto the first of this week, equipped with prints of all V-L-S-E releases and a large quantity of promotion matter. In addition to the personal sales campaign, the new Canadian manager will inaugurate a widespread and comprehensive mail and advertising campaign which he is unusually well equipped to direct.

The V-L-S-E has been trading in Canada almost from its inception, a large number of its films having been booked in western Canada by the Seattle office and in the large cities of eastern Canada direct from the New York office. It is expected that this business will be largely augmented with the presence of an organization on the field.

New News Reel Well Received

First Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial Sets Fast Pace—Many Interesting Scenes.

FORTY-TWO theaters in the territory of the New York branch of the V-L-S-E showed the first release of the new Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial on Tuesday last. Reports from other territories were unanimous in predicting that the pictorial was destined for a large and enthusiastic reception from exhibitors in all parts of the country. These reports indicated that the distribution of this pictorial would be the widest ever obtained by a film of this character.

In all, there were ten subjects treated of in the first release of the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial, the first of which was an exceedingly graphic series of views of the shipwreck of a large schooner off the Maine coast. The war pictures which followed were up to the minute in their timeliness, showing British and Greek soldiers in maneuvers in Greece.

The pictures which drew hearty rounds of laughter from the audiences were those of the "Peace Ship," in which the staid and serious members were shown playing leap-frog on board the Oscar II.

The second release of this pictorial was made on Friday, and even exceeded the initial production in its drawing qualities. As quickly as possible, there will be introduced sectional pictures which apply specifically to the particular zones in which the pictures are shown. It is believed that this innovation of localizing the interest in the film will greatly add to the public's interest in such productions.

New Directors for Famous Players

John O'Brien and Frederick Thompson Presiding Over Screen Destinies Starring Mary Pickford and John Barrymore.

TWO important additions have recently been made to the directorial staff of the Famous Players Film Company in the persons of John O'Brien and Frederick Thompson, the latter of whom returns to the company after a short absence.

John O'Brien comes to the Famous Players studio from the Pacific Coast, where he has spent the last three years in association with David Griffith. During this time "The Outcast," "The Tear That Burned" and "Her Shattered Idol," in which Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish and Robert Herron were featured, were among his productions that created favorable comment. Previous to his association with Griffith, Mr. O'Brien spent three years directing with "Broncho Billy" Anderson of Essanay.

Fred Thompson.

The work of Frederick Thompson is equally well known to the motion picture world. After a distinguished career as a director with the old Vitagraph Company, during which he produced "The Christian," he joined the Famous Players staff and staged "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Spitfire" for that organization. He then became affiliated with one or two other producing companies and now returns to the first feature producing concern with which he was identified.

It is of odd interest that J. Searle Dawley, who is also a member of the Famous Players directorial staff, should have paralleled the career of Mr. Thompson to a certain extent. Like the latter, he came to the Famous Players as the first feature producing organization with which he was connected. He then formed his own film company but returned to the pioneer concern about six months ago. His last release on the Paramount program was "Mice and Men," in which Marguerite Clark was starred.

Mr. Thompson's first picture for the Famous Players under the new arrangement will be "Nearly a King," in which John Barrymore is starred. The first O'Brien contribution to the Paramount program, through the medium of the Famous Players, was "The Foundling," starring Mary Pickford.

The engagement of these successful directors is merely another indication of the determination of the company to adhere to the high standard of production which was set at the time of its organization, over three years ago, by President Adolph Zukor.

CHARLES RICHMAN SUFFERING FROM EYE STRAIN.

Charles Richman, Vitagraph star, is confined to his home at West Orange, N. J., suffering with rational asthenopia, an affliction of the eyes bordering on blindness. His physical disablement occurred recently at the Brooklyn studio during the filming of a multiple reel Blue Ribbon feature.

Mr. Richman for several weeks has been devoting unusually long hours on the completion of this picture, during the day time under the combined natural and artificial light, and, as darkness approached the strength of the studio lights has been increased by the use of a new composition—a four thousand candlepower nitrogen light—forming two "spots" new to the production of motion pictures.

The prolonged exposure of the naked eye under this terrific glare resulted in Mr. Richman's complete physical collapse which occurred just previous to New Year's. Doctor Thomas H. Curtin, an eye specialist of note, has ordered a complete rest of several weeks, during which time, by careful adherence to instructions, hopes are entertained for the popular star's complete recovery.

Thanhouserites to Florida

Many Players and Directors Form Big Caravan from New Rochelle to Jacksonville.

LAST week witnessed an exodus at the Thanhouser studios, New Rochelle. The big new home in Jacksonville was pronounced finished and three full companies were shipped off. The directors in charge are George Foster Platt, Eugene Moore and William A. Howell. These companies include fifty-five persons, which makes the Thanhouser initial delegation the largest that ever descended on Jacksonville. And more are to go.

Mr. Moore has in his company for immediate purposes Barbara Gilroy and Harris Gordon, who are to be starred in "The Oval Diamond," the mystery play adapted from David S. Foster's book of that name. It is planned that Gordon play in this one of the greatest parts that have ever fallen to the gift of an actor. In the cast are William Burt, Sully Garde, Arthur Bauer, Violet Hite, W. Ray Johnston and Inda Palmer.

Mr. Howell heads the Falstaff Comedy southern company, and Riley Chamberlin will be his chief comedian. Louise Emerald Bates, the blonde beauty, will play the female leads, and Mr. Howell also took with him Walter Hiers, the fat knockabout with the moon face. Boyd Marshall, the popular juvenile, will be seen in comedy straights.

The journey of the Platt contingent is also in the nature of a special trip. Mr. Platt is now working on "What Doris Did," a forthcoming Masterpicture featuring Doris Grey, who won national fame by winning a motion picture career in a Boston beauty contest. He finished his scenes in and around New York just in time to be among the first companies to go South, where he will do the major portion of the work. Florence La Badie, who is sponsor for Doris, will be seen in this picture, as also will a galaxy of stars from other film companies, including Cissy Fitzgerald, Edward Earl and Hal Forde. It is to be a five-reel production, for which the Florida contingent includes Bert Delaney and Morgan Jones.

A feature of the Thanhouser migration is that the acting force includes a number of experienced supernumeraries. Contrary to the general practice of depending on local talent to save expense, Mr. Thanhouser sets a precedent by transporting them down. He has always been careful about super work in pictures and would rather pay transportation and its incidental increase of expense than hazard the use of novices.

The Thanhouser players will be housed in a beautiful studio which has been put up at an expense of $30,000. It is a permanent edifice, with one of the largest glass roofs ever constructed. George Grimmer is in charge.

Miss Katherine Grey

THE latest motion picture acquisition from the ranks of the real stardom of American drama is Miss Katherine Grey, the California actress who leaped into fame over night by her wonderful performance with Richard Mansfield in "Cyrano de Bergerac" and who then remained associated with him as co-star for the balance of his great career.

Katherine Grey.

Miss Grey has been featured on the stage by Charles Frohman and David Belasco, with both of whom the talented young actress had a successful career. In Belasco's "The First Born," a difficult play of Chinese life, Miss Grey made such a hit as comes to few. Under Charles Frohman's management Miss Grey appeared in "Business Is Business" and then co-starred with Nat Goodwin in "Wolfville," in which she played "Faro Nell," Alfred Henry Lewis's famous western character.

Then came a meteoric success in "The Reckoning," Schnitzler's remarkable play of contemporary Viennese life, the forerunner of all the modern problem tragedy plays. David Graham Phillips was employed by Charles Frohman to write a play for Miss Grey, and in "The Worth of a Woman" Phillips and Miss Grey succeeded in painting the real tragedy of middle class respectability.

Like most California girls resident in New York, Miss Grey is essentially a home-body. A splendid horsewoman and a lover of outdoor sports, Miss Grey is nevertheless like the violet of her own California redwood forests. No one passing the plain front of the house at 135 West Fifty-sixth street, New York City, would imagine that there is a whole floor there dedicated to the housing of Miss Grey's books and pictures that are in themselves an intimate history of American stage art.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

"Mice and Men" at the Strand.

"MICE AND MEN" is the star feature at the Strand theater, with Marguerite Clark in the principal role. This photoplay, which was produced by the Famous Players Film Company, is a charming romance of the Sunny South. It tells the story of Peggy, a foundling, who is adopted by a philosopher, in the hope that she will one day develop into an ideal wife for him. But the eminent professor has forgotten to reckon with youth in laying his unique plan. When Peggy meets Capt. George Lovell, the nephew of the philosopher, she finds him most interesting and ensuing complications form a pleasing story.

A new comedy, travel pictures of rare beauty and interest, educational studies and the Strand Topical Review are included in the picture program. The vocal soloists for the week are: Martha De Lachmann, soprano; Martin Richardson, tenor, and Bruce Weyman, baritone. Don Alfonso Zelaya, the Spanish master pianist, is retained for another week.

Program at the Vitagraph.

Anita Stewart and Earle Williams are shown at the Vitagraph theater in a picturization of the Cyrus Townsend Brady's "My Lady's Slipper," a five-reel film of exceptional interest. The scene is laid in France during the time of Marie Antoinette, and Miss Stewart plays a Countess, while Mr. Williams is an American adventurer, who eventually wins her hand. Harry Northrup is the wicked Duke who covets the Countess and seeks to compromise her by hiring the adventurer to steal her slipper. Joseph Kilgour, William E. Shea, Julia Swayne Gordon and Charles Chapman are in the cast.

A one-reel comedy, "Jane's Husband," with Edith Storey; "Bittersweet," a Western drama, with George Stanley, Anne Schaefer and Webster Campbell; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "When Two Play a Game," and a Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial complete the program.

"Temptation" Retained at the Broadway.

Because of the immense popularity of the star and the production, the Broadway theater has extended the engagement of Geraldine Farrar in the Lasky production, "Temptation," to two weeks. "Temptation" was first shown at the Broadway on Sunday, January 2, the doors opening at half past ten o'clock in the morning. Although it was pouring rain, the crowd was in line for nearly an hour before the start of the performance. Careful count was made of the number of persons that entered the theater during the different hours. The Broadway, which has a seating capacity of about 1,500, held more than 7,500 persons during the day. There were times when more than 200 men and women were standing in line outside the doors waiting for room inside.

Practically the same condition prevailed the entire week.

HALL CAINE'S SON VISITS V-L-S-E.

Derwent Hall Caine, son of the widely-known English author, was the guest of A. W. Goff, assistant general manager of the V-L-S-E, last week. Mr. Caine, who has just arrived in this country, is here to study the motion picture industry from all points, and possibly to appear personally before the camera in some of his father's works. He has had considerable film experience in London, among the parts he played being that of the lead in the picture version of "The Christian," by the London Film Company. While here, Mr. Caine will visit the studios of the Vitagraph Company, as well as those of the Lubin, Selig and Essanay, and other concerns.

Horkheimer on the Job

"H. M." Tarries at Long Beach Long Enough to Get a Line on Things.

SANTA CLAUS-LIKE, H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, descended on the studio in Long Beach, Cal., after an absence of four months in the East, on Christmas Eve. At one o'clock in the morning, he made an inspection of the plant, in company with Norman Manning, business manager, to the amazement of the night watchman. Immediately thereafter, "H. M." went into an eighteen hour conference with his brother, E. D. Horkheimer, secretary and treasurer, who had been on the job during his absence.

H. M. Horkheimer.

Snatching four hours of sleep, this human bullet—which is about the best description that can be given of President Horkheimer—called his various department heads into consultation.

From Business Manager Manning, President Horkheimer learned just what had been done in the way of improving the Balboa plant, in his absence. The inclosed studio has been completed, several new warehouses erected, a papier mache department added and many other amplifications made—not to forget the half-dozen new automobiles added to the steadily growing fleet of motor cars.

Will M. Ritchey, chief scenario editor, advised his superior that he was just winding up the scripts for "The Red Circle," the continued detective story which Balboa is giving to the screen, via Pathe's releasing agency. The original idea for this series came from H. M. Horkheimer himself.

Gratifying indeed to Mr. Horkheimer was the scrapbook submitted to him by H. O. Stechhan, his publicity chief. Although on the job only six months, he has succeeded in getting the name of Balboa into many publications that have never before shown any particular interest in moving pictures.

Among the strongest links in the Balboa organization are the Brothertons. Two of them have charge of departments. Robert or "Bob," as he is better known, is at the head of the laboratory; while a sister, May, presides over the assembly room. To the expert work of these much of the finish of Balboa pictures as they appear on the screen is due.

William Beckway, head cameraman; John Wyse, stage manager; J. W. Loy, superintendent of construction; W. T. Kearns, electrical chief; Roy Frechette, master scenic artist, and P. V. Wall, custodian of properties, all submitted detailed reports of their respective departments.

The men who actually make the productions—the directors and cinematographers—also called at the little office in response to "H. M.'s" summons. Bertram Bracken, dean of directors; Harry Harvey, Sherwood Macdonald and Henry King outlined what they have put on since August; while Joe Brotherton, George Rizard and Roland Groom spoke of their camera triumphs and troubles.

Executive reports were made to President Horkheimer by R. R. Rockett and E. J. Moore. The former has charge of the Balboa office force and routine, while acting as private secretary to Mr. Horkheimer, at the same time. Mr. Moore is the company auditor. Both of these departments were found in ship-shape condition.

With all this information at his command, President Horkheimer met with R. G. Judkins, head of the First National Bank of Long Beach. Ever since its inception two years ago, Mr. Judkins has been the financial adviser of the Balboa company. Success has been due in a large measure to the manner in which his counsel has been followed. Mr. Horkheimer outlined his plans for the ensuing year and they were strongly approved by Mr. Judkins. He was particularly pleased with Balboa's progress in the very recent past.

"The future looks good to Balboa," said H. M. Horkheimer in speaking of the trade outlook. "Without telling any secrets, I can say that there are several big consolidations under way, which may culminate almost any day now. Two of the old line film producers have offered to join with Balboa. They recognize the need of new blood and seem to have picked us as the psychological people to save them from wrecking."

Diversity of Subjects

To Be the Keynote of Equitable Productions—How It Is Effected.

VARIETY and a diversity of subjects are to be the keynotes of the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation in the future, as has been the policy since December 6, when Henry Kolker in "The Warning" was released. "The Warning" was a combination allegorical and dramatic subject in which all the art of the studio mechanic and genius of the director were brought into play, and the effects of the scenes in which the drunkard is seen suffering in Hades were as startling as they were entertaining.

The new policy of reserving and conserving subjects until their themes and plots and type and character of players would lend diversity to the program collectively came into effect following "The Warning," when on December 13 Gail Kane, the foremost Equitable star, appeared in "The Labyrinth," a tale of stage life. "The Labyrinth" was as different in theme plots and climaxes from "The Warning" as the imagination could conceive, and then William Courtenay in "Sealed Lips" followed "The Labyrinth," a story dealing with the frailty and degeneration of a man of the cloth, in direct opposition to the basic principle and atmosphere of either of the two features preceding it.

Following "Sealed Lips" came "The Senator," in which Charles J. Ross was featured. "The Senator" combined in its maze of plots a picturesque tale of political life and strife, supposedly at the National Capital. Ross and Kolker were entirely different in the matter of histrionic work from Miss Kane and William Courtenay, and the four features following "The Dragon," with Margarita Fischer, a quaint and unique story of Fifth avenue, the shops and social life thereon; Molly McIntyre in "Her Great Hour" as divergent in every way as was possible, and "The Ransom," with Julia Dean, another theatrical tale, but this time with mother love and sacrifice. "Her Great Hour" told of a flirting wife, devoted husband and hounded shop girl, but in a dignified manner, while "The Struggle" with Frank Sheridan is a virile story of an indiscreet youth, his terrible ordeal after becoming infected with leprosy, the devotion to him of the man he wronged and the subsequent denouement.

"The Chain Invisible," which comes early next month, is Richard Le Gallienne's rhetorical belief that no two people of opposite sex can possibly be thrown into each other's company without absolutely falling in love with each other. Emmett Corrigan and Gerda Holmes are to work under the auspices of Frank Powell in this unusual story, while as in direct opposition of effect, local detail and theme "The Clarion" with Carlyle Blackwell will see Samuel Hopkins Adams' remarkable treatise against fake nostrums; following, Muriel Ostriche in "Babette of the Ballyhoo" is another direct divergence from all the other features of the past eight and forthcoming ten weeks, in that it tells the story of a little circus girl, her tribulations and her romances, and will be followed by one of the most sumptuous and unusual features Equitable has yet produced—"Her God" with Gail Kane, which is so difficult of production that E. Mason Hopper demanded three months to complete the desert and allegorical scenes alone.

Variety and diversity, according to Mr. Spiegel, are the two obtaining tenets with Equitable, and he seems to bear his belief out, as attested by the extreme divergence of titles, stories and players shown above.

Caught in a Blizzard

Equitable Players Have Thrilling Experience in Arizona Snowstorm.

OF THE many narrow escapes recorded in the making of films, and there have been many, the experiences of the Equitable Motion Picture Corporation's company appearing in "Her God," under the direction of E. Mason Hopper, reached the zenith of hazardous experiences recently when Gail Kane, star of the company, and 110 other players were caught in the foothills on the edge of the great American desert in Arizona in a terrific blizzard and during the height of the storm wandered six miles out of their way and were compelled to seek refuge on a cattle ranch where many of the Mexicans and cowboys employed by the company were compelled to sleep in the corral with the sheep in order to keep warm because the small hacienda, or ranch house, could not accommodate over 65 people.

Gail Kane's Refuge During Arizona Blizzard.

The company left Jerome, Arizona, nine o'clock in the morning for a location near Springdale, a small settlement twenty-two miles up in the foothills. The storm broke with terrible fury and without warning about half-past ten, and in the blinding snow and terrible wind even their guide became confused and instead of traveling to the north the company, nearly frozen, wet to the bone, finally reached a ranch, known as Hacienda 104, and were given such shelter and succor as the conditions warranted.

George Sheer, the company manager, who remained at Jerome, after failure of the company to report for three days, communicated with President Spiegel of the Equitable concern, and arrangements were made for one of the officers of the company to go to the west, as the worst was feared; but while arrangements were made, one of the cowboys of the company returned to Jerome, and when the storm abated the entire company returned none the worse for its trying experiences, except a number of bad colds and several cases of threatened pneumonia. Miss Kane suffered greatly from privation and exposure, but preferred to remain with the company, saying she would rather work under stress of illness than remain in the desert any longer.

The Associated Press wires were placed at the disposal of the Equitable concern and it was this organization which first gathered news to the effect that the company was safely sheltered at the ranch.

DIRECTOR MIDDLETON TO MAKE MASTER-PICTURES.

Having completed the present series of Casino Star Comedies being released as Mutual pictures, Director Edwin Middleton will turn his back on the Gaumont Studio at Flushing, L. I., this week for the more congenial climate of Jacksonville, Fla. On his arrival at the metropolis of Florida, Mr. Middleton will take up the Gaumont direction of Mutual Masterpictures, de luxe edition, in association with Richard Garrick, William F. Haddock and Henry J. Vernot, who are already making Gaumont pictures there.

GENERAL MANAGER F. G. BRADFORD GOES SOUTH.

To get into close touch with the manifold activities of the companies at the Gaumont winter quarters, General Manager F. G. Bradford has gone to Jacksonville, Fla., to spend two weeks there. Three Mutual Masterpictures are in work at the present time, and Mr. Bradford will have the opportunity of seeing them while they are being filmed. These productions are "The Dead Alive" with Marguerite Courtot, "The Drifter" with Alexander Gaden and Lucille Taft, and "I Accuse!" with Gertrude Robinson and Alexander Gaden.

Bennett Southard

BENNETT SOUTHARD, a Californian and graduate of the University of that state, has been engaged to play principal parts for the Mirror Films, Inc., after a successful career on the stage. Mr. Southard has been especially engaged to play an important role in a surprise spectacle which is said to be in the course of construction in the Mirror scenario department.

Southard played for several years in the principal Pacific Coast stock companies, among them the Morosco and Belasco companies in Los Angeles and the James Neill Company in San Francisco. He made his New York debut at Wallack's theater playing the part of the Judge in "The Judge and the Jury," produced by Charles Frohman. He was in the original cast of George Broadhurst's play, "The Coward," and also created an important role in "The Man of the Hour." Mr. Southard has been in support of many Broadway stars such as Guy Bates Post, Charles Richman, and won great praise for his characterization of one of the best parts in "The Yellow Jacket." Leading man with Katherine Grey, he took a plunge into vaudeville in "Above the Law," produced by Martin Beck, and later played with Mrs. Louis James on the variety stage. Since then he has appeared with Bertha Kalich as well as under the management of Cohan & Harris and A. H. Woods. His most recent New York appearance was in "The Soul Machine," produced by Augustus Thomas under the auspices of the New York Stage Society. Within the past year, Mr. Southard has been doing work in motion pictures with considerable success. His work in "The Cowardly Way," an Equitable picture, brought him to the attention of Captain Harry Lambart of the Mirror company, who engaged the actor for a part on which the Captain lays great stress.

Bennett Southard.

SELIG TO PRODUCE "THE CRISIS."

Colin Campbell, dean of the Selig corps of directors, has gone to St. Louis, after a brief sojourn in Chicago, where he will look over unusual locations called for in the great story of "The Crisis." The old slave market and other locations well known in ante-bellum days will be inspected by Mr. Campbell. "The Crisis," the great story from the pen of Winston Churchill, will be filmed by the Selig Company with all the elaborateness that signalized those other two great Selig dramas, namely, "The Spoilers" and "The Ne'er-Do-Well." While in Chicago, Mr. Campbell took occasion to discourse interestingly on the forthcoming Selig Red Seal play to be released through V-L-S-E. It is to be entitled "Thou Shalt Not Covet" and features Tyrone Power and Kathlyn Williams, supported by Guy Oliver and Eugenie Besserer. Mr. Campbell has produced such Selig specials as "The Spoilers," "The Carpet from Bagdad," "The Ne'er-Do-Well" and "Thou Shalt Not Covet," released through V-L-S-E on February 7.

Lumley Hare, the English leading man who has been seen in so many successful Broadway plays, is under contract with the World Film Corporation. His first screen appearance will be in support of Kitty Gordon in "As in a Looking Glass."

The days when knighthood was in flower are portrayed with all the picturesque romance of the medieval days in "The White Rosette," a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe, now in preparation at the American Film Company's (Mutual) studios. Castles, drawbridges, moats and mailed armor have been constructed or hunted up among relics of ancient days to lend realism to the picture. E. Forrest Taylor, Helene Rosson, Eugenie and Harry Von Meter are cast in the leading roles.

Paul Gilmore is featured in the leading role of the Knickerbocker Star Features three-reel photodrama entitled "Houses of Mystery," released on the General Film program Friday, January 21.

World Offers Strong Program

Four Big Features With Noted Players Mark the January Releases.

THE World Film Corporation's schedule of releases for the first month of the new year is an exceptionally strong one, bringing forward as it does such stars as Holbrook Blinn, Kitty Gordon, and George Beban, in photodramas especially adapted to suit the methods and dramatic talents of the noted players named.

Holbrook Blinn adds another noted portrait to the long gallery of famous characters in his study of McTeague, in "Life's Whirlpool," which is a dramatic and striking feature based on Frank Norris' novel, "McTeague," which created much discussion when it was published. In "Life's Whirlpool," Mr. Blinn is supported by Fania Marinoff, the well known young emotional actress who assumes the role of Trina, the woman who despite McTeague's vagaries sticks to him through thick and thin till her situation becomes more than flesh and blood can support.

"Fruits of Desire" stars Robert Warwick, whose name is potent among the patrons of motion picture theaters throughout the country. In support of Mr. Warwick appears a cast worthy of his powers and including such noted names as Ralph Delmore, Robert Cummings, Madeline Traverse, who makes her debut under the World Film standard in this drama; Dorothy Fairchild, Phillis Hazeltine, Mildred Havens, James Mack, Alec B. Francis, Harry G. Weir and others equally well known. The story of "Fruits of Desire" is based upon Henry Russell Miller's powerful novel of modern life, "The Ambition of Mark Truitt." There are scenes in the picture taken in the heart of the great steel mills near Pittsburgh. The picture is under the direction of Oscar Eagle; which is enough to guarantee the excellence of its arrangement and perfection of its detail.

"The Point of View" introduces a new film star in the charming person of Frances Nelson, who is provided with an exceptionally strong and congenial part in this film version of Jules Eckert Goodman's dramatic story. Miss Nelson plays Myra, a country girl who is ardently loved by a prosaic grocery "king" but hankers for an artistic career. The story hinges on the "point of view" of Robert and Myra. To Robert, Myra is a toy. To her, love rules supreme and she adores even the worthless Lawton. The problem presented by the working out of this strong situation gives "The Point of View" real dramatic force and sustained action. Emile Chautard directs this feature.

Kitty Gordon enters the ranks of film divinities in a compelling screen production of E. C. Phillips' sensational novel of smart society life, "As in a Looking Glass." Miss Gordon in this photoplay is provided with a role congenial to her in every way. She enacts a woman of the "four hundred" and is afforded an opportunity to display an amazing variety of gowns.

"The Genius-Pierre" is the title finally selected for the new photodrama in which George Beban, who won screen fame in "An Alien," makes his bow under the World banners. In "The Genius-Pierre" Mr. Beban is seen in a role of absolute novelty and one which blends pathos and swift, soul-stirring drama. Maurice Tourneur, who directed "The Genius-Pierre," is authority for the statement that it exceeds in sheer dramatic interest and intensity any drama he has so far directed. Additional interest is added to "The Genius-Pierre" by the fact that George Beban is himself responsible for the scenario. Mr. Beban is supported by a large cast singularly well selected, including Doris Kenyon, John Hines and John Davidson.

Scene from "The Genius-Pierre" (World Film).

Industrial Moving Picture Company

The New Studio in Chicago Will Be Opened Early in February, With Thoroughly Up-to-date Facilities.

THE accompanying cut shows the exterior of the new laboratory and studios now being erected in Chicago by the Industrial Moving Picture Company. The building proper is 129 by 124, two stories, and is fireproof throughout. The laboratory will have a weekly capacity of nearly 2,000,000 feet of film. The studio floor provides for the adequate handling of six generous sets. Adjoining the building is an inclosed area of 124 by 48, which will be used for garage and storage purposes. The air throughout the entire building is washed and temperatured by special apparatus which governs both temperature and humidity. The ceiling and floors are all covered and each room made absolutely dustproof. An 18,000-gallon tank on the roof takes care of the automatic sprinkling system which protects each room. The perforating room provides for eighteen Bell & Howell machines. The printing room is built to operate comfortably thirty printers. The general offices of the Industrial Moving Picture Company will be located here, while a service station and sales office will be operated in the downtown district at an address to be announced later.

Exterior of New Laboratory and Studios of the Industrial Moving Picture Co., Chicago.

The outside structure is practically completed and it is expected that the entire building will be ready for occupancy and operation sometime in February, at which time it will be thrown open for public inspection.

Pictures to Instruct Bankers

National City Bank to Use Paramount Travel Series on Latin America.

MOTION pictures as a part of the education of the young banker is the latest use to which the silent drama is being put. Following the trend of intense interest that has been manifest in the rapid growth of the instructive motion picture, the National City Bank in New York City, through its president, Frank C. Vanderlip, has contracted with Paramount Pictures Corporation to show the South American travel series four days each week for the purpose of better acquainting the members of the bank's educational department with the exceptional facts of interest regarding Latin America, preparatory to their taking up their future work in that country.

The students in the educational department of the National City Bank will be shown the Travel Pictures—Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays of each week, beginning their travels with an aeroplane trip over the Florida Keys to Pelican Island, thence to Key West, Jamaica, the Panama Canal, Santiago de Chile, Valparaiso, Chile; Mollendo, Peru; Ariquipa, Peru; the Palominas Islands which lie off the coast of Peru, Huancayo, Lima, Peru; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Rio de Janeiro, Cerro de Pasco, Quito, Ecuador; Sugar Loaf Mountain; Guayaquil, Ecuador; La Paz, Bolivia; the Rio de Janeiro Hydro-Electric Power Plant; and all other places of interest at each of which the most important historical, geographical and instructive features are made the primary issue of the different installments.

M. H. Hoffman Talks on Bluebird

General Manager of New Feature Company Outlines Advantages Under Which Concern Begins Business.

WITH the presentation of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, in "Jeanne Dore," at F. F. Proctor's New York City theaters, to be followed by all houses on the Proctor circuit, the Bluebird photoplays get under way. This release is the first of a series that its promoters claim promises unusual results for exhibitors. The campaign of advertising and publicity will assume a nation-wide scope. "We think Bluebird photoplays will have tremendous advantages over other feature products," said M. H. Hoffman, general manager of the Bluebird corporation. "To set forth these advantages in detail many angles of film production and distribution must be taken into consideration.

M. H. Hoffman.

"In the first place, speaking in my capacity as general manager of Bluebird Photo Plays, Inc., their promotion and deliveries will be carefully and effectively supervised, after the films are turned out, under our arrangement with the Universal to utilize their tremendous equipment at Universal City, their new half-million-dollar studio in New Jersey, together with the pick and choice of Universal players.

"Our arrangement to utilize space in certain Universal exchanges throughout the country, and the system and facilities of these exchanges have eliminated much of the large overhead expense that usually cuts so deeply into the original investment in film production and distribution capital.

"The saving thus attained gives us additional means to turn into the actual production of Bluebird features. Again an advantage to exhibitors will be developed in the method by which our features will be selected. The fact that our directors will regard a production as being of Bluebird standard and quality will not be sufficient. It is necessary that a jury of fifteen exhibitors pass upon a production before it will be admitted to the Bluebird class. By this method of selection Bluebirds will be, as far as the allied human judgment of the jury can determine, a feature that is assured of successful exploitation immediately it comes under the Bluebird brand.

"In every line of merchandising—and why are not films merchandise?—the reduction in production and cost of distribution invariably redounds to the benefit of the article itself. That hundreds of thousands will be saved through Bluebird's production advantages may be readily believed; the saving in cost of distribution may be readily estimated. It costs an average feature exchange $500 a week for the maintenance of each branch. Figuring the cost of rental to Bluebird for space in the seventy-two branches which the Universal system affords we will be able to distribute our production at an actual saving of $35,000 per week, a tidy sum in itself.

"When the exhibitor realizes that this actual saving, plus the further and enormous saving in the cost of actual production, will be put right into Bluebird features he can arrive at an inkling of the tremendous production be may confidently expect through Bluebird. Thirty-five thousand dollars will go a long way toward paying for an average weekly feature release, but it will only be part of the cost involved in perfecting a Bluebird.

"Whenever an available production is made by anybody outside of our organization that is of sufficient class and excellence to pass the jury of exhibitors and thus be proved worthy to become a Bluebird we will buy it, and our facilities will be ample to bring to our brand the cream of the world's market. We begin this feature of our policy at the very outset of our career—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, in 'Jeanne Dore.' An interesting sidelight upon the increasing value of 'Jeanne Dore' as a piece of theatrical property is the recent offer made by a French releasing firm for the French rights to the Bernhardt photoplay—a figure that was almost exactly the price we paid when it seemed probable that Mme. Bernhardt would be physically able to return to America for another farewell tour. These incidents prove the increasing value to the exhibitor of this film."

By the film trade in general the engagement of Mr. Hoffman as the general manager of Bluebird Photo Plays is considered a stroke of business acumen on the part of the board of directors. His skillful control of the Universal's exchanges make him equal to the task of distributing, promoting and making popular and accordingly profitable to all concerned the features that shall come to view under the Bluebird insignia.

Lasky Releases for February

Fanny Ward, Charlotte Walker and Blanche Sweet Will Appear in Three Productions.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made this week by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company of the photoplays it will release on the Paramount program during February. The productions and the dates of their release are:

Fannie Ward in "Tennessee's Pardner," a picturization by Marion Fairfax of Scott Marble's version of Bret Harte's story of the same name; February 3.

Miss Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," from Eugene Walter's story of the same name, based on John Fox, Jr.'s, widely read novel; February 14. Cecil B. DeMille is the director of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

Miss Blanch Sweet in "The Blacklist," a tense dramatic photoplay by Marion Fairfax.

"Tennessee's Pardner," in which Miss Ward will appear, is a tale of the far west, the days of '49, when strong men fought the elements and made marches across the country to establish a new empire. Of all the stories written by Bret Harte, this narrative of little "Tennessee" is probably the best known.

Among interesting features of the Lasky picturization of "Tennessee's Pardner" is the fact that considerable of the action takes place in the old mission of San Fernando, Cal. Permission was obtained to use the old mission as the scene of the pictures. This quaint old place, a relic of a former day, was built by the Jesuits about 1800 and is one of a series of missions, each situated about a day's journey from the other in a line of travel from Mexico to Monterey.

For several years Miss Charlotte Walker appeared as the star on the legitimate stage in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," in which she now appears, under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille, as the photoplay star.

Miss Walker already has appeared in two Lasky productions with exceptional success. They are "Kindling" and "Out of the Darkness." The role of June in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" admirably suits Miss Walker's great charm and beauty. The picturization will be one of the most elaborate produced by the Lasky company and Mr. DeMille and the members of the cast have been in the mountains for more than two weeks completing some of the scenes.

The appearance of Blanche Sweet in another Lasky photoplay is always the cause of anticipation on the part of exhibitors and the public. William C. DeMille is directing the production, "The Blacklist," which is a photodrama by Marion Fairfax.

FANNIE WARD AND JACK DEAN MARRIED.

Miss Fannie Ward, the brilliant star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company whose recent production, "The Cheat," has created a sensation, surprised her numerous friends in the photoplay colony in Southern California and on Broadway, New York, at the announcement this week of her marriage to Jack Dean. Mr. Dean, who appeared as leading man with Miss Ward in many legitimate attractions in New York, London and en tour, is now a member of the Lasky Features Play Company and has appeared in leading support of Miss Ward in productions which include "The Marriage of Kitty," "The Cheat," and "Tennessee's Pardner."

With the announcement of their marriage, which was the occasion for hundreds of messages of felicitations sent to them at the Lasky studios at Hollywood, Miss Ward and Mr. Dean declared their intention of living in Hollywood or nearby in the future. Miss Ward is under a long term contract with the Lasky Feature Play Company and she and Mr. Dean are just completing arrangements to purchase a beautiful estate within motoring distance of the studios.

Coming Keystones Brilliant

Mack Sennett Has Outdone Himself in Triangle Comedies Starring Eminent Players.

TAKING some of the same characters he used in "Crooked to the End," Mack Sennett has endeavored to out-thrill and out-comedy that Triangle-Keystone with a new one called, provisionally, "The Great Leap." Fred Mace and Anna Luther are again the railroad station agent and his pretty daughter, respectively. The story deals with the attempted robbery of funds from a nearby mill, Earl Rodney, Joseph Swickard, Billie Brockwill and Dale Fuller having important roles. Among the thrills are Miss Luther's leap on horseback from a bridge into the swirling waters of a river; Fred Mace's rapid revolutions when bound to a spinning flywheel; Earl Rodney's near-death in a stone-crushing machine, and the passage of a deep ravine by a band of crooks on a bucket line.

Scene from "Murray's Mix-Up" (Triangle-Keystone).

Other marvelous new Keystones are "Fatty and Mabel Adrift," with Roscoe Arbuckle and Mabel Normand; "Because He Loved Her," with Sam Bernard and Mae Busch; "Murray's Mix-Up," with Charles Murray, Harry Booker and Louise Fazenda, and "A Modern Enoch Arden," starring the tramp comedian, Joe Jackson. The last-named is a burlesque of the well-known Tennyson story, with the amusing Jackson in the role of a returning wanderer whose home has meantime been invaded by the family lawyer who is in turn hounded by a pair of blackmailers. "Murray's Mix-Up" pokes fun at the prevailing type of "westerns," showing Mr. Murray in a "Bill" Hart role of sheriff and the diminutive Mr. Booker as the owner of a gambling hell. "Because He Loved Her" is a restaurant story, many jumps ahead of the old-series Keystone, "A Hash House Fraud." As to "Fatty and Mabel Adrift," that is described as pure thrills and fun, with Mr. Arbuckle and Miss Normand at their best as a pair of honeymooners floated out to sea in their beach cottage.

Scene from "A Modern Enoch Arden" (Triangle-Keystone).

Unprecedented activity characterizes the Keystone organization, and with the new indoor studio completed, the work goes on twenty-four hours a day. It is believed Mr. Sennett's record of producing two amazing comedy thrillers a week, each from two to four reels in length, is unequalled and unlikely to be surpassed. There are now nine Keystone companies actively making film, and special sensations are promised from those headed by William Collier and Chester Conklin.

Tree as Macbeth

What He Said After His First Day of Picture-Taking for the Triangle-Fine Arts.

TUESDAY, January 4, was Sir Herbert Tree's first day of work on "Macbeth" at the Triangle-Fine Arts studio. He ended it marveling at the resources placed at his command and most enthusiastic over the opportunity that the Griffith photoplay technique offered for distinguished rendition of the Shakespeare stories. Sir Herbert said:

"It is quite wonderful how many things can be done in pictures for the Shakespeare tales that cannot be done on the stage. With all due reverence to the master dramatist, it is possible to illuminate and accentuate many details so as to produce a marvelously truth-telling commentary on the text and at the same time heighten the dramatic values.

"That is what I have learned from my first days' work with Director Emerson upon the scenario. The pictorial

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree at Fine Arts Studio.
Left to right: Frank E. Woods, David Wark Griffith and Sir Herbert.

possibilities of 'Macbeth' grow, as one studies it in the light of this strange new art, into something very beautiful and wonderful—not precisely a play in the Shakespearean sense, perhaps, but a dramatic narrative of great power.

"I should like to call this series of productions 'Tales from Shakespeare.' If we can bring to the dramas some such reverent and illuminating interpretation as did Charles Lamb, I shall be happy indeed to have entered upon this enterprise. The motion picture studios are naturally strange places to me, but I am delighted with the kindly spirit of welcome and co-operation manifested and the amazing vitality of the industry. I know now that I am going to like it immensely."

BETTY HARTE IS FEATURED.

In the "copy" announcing the release of David Horsley's five-reel Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, "The Bait," on January 22. Miss Margaret Gibson was mentioned as co-star with William Clifford. This was due to an unintentional error. The leading role in "The Bait" is played by Miss Betty Harte, a photoplayer of rare ability and with a large following, who gives in this release one of her finest characterizations. The correction is made in justice to Miss Harte.

A. C. LANGAN PROUD FATHER.

A. C. Langan, who is the paramount factor in the Sun Photoplay Company, is receiving the sincerest congratulations of his friends on the birth of his little daughter, Mignon Zenna Langan. The child was born January 3 and registered very close to nine pounds. The doctor commented upon the sound lungs of the infant and is amply corroborated by the proud young father. Mother and child are doing splendidly.

Vitagraphs for Next Week

Good Subjects to Be Released for the Week of January 17.

"MY LADY'S SLIPPER," a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature in five parts, with Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, produced under the direction of Ralph Ince from the story by Cyrus Townsend Brady, is the principal release by the Vitagraph Company for the week of January 17. It is one of the most elaborate costume productions ever seen on the screen and shows Miss Stewart and Mr. Williams to splendid advantage in the silks and satins of the Louis XVI period in France.

Scene from "My Lady's Slipper" (Vitagraph).

As the Countess, Anita Stewart, in a white wig, with silks and laces, makes the role one of the most beautiful in her screen experience. Earle Williams maintains his reputation for good looks and histrionic ability, while Harry Northrup as the Marquis gives a splendid portrayal of that difficult role. Others in the cast are Joseph Kilgour, Julia Swayne Gordon, George O'Donnell, William Shea and George Stevens. The story was picturized by Edward Montagne, and is scheduled for release as a five-part Blue Ribbon Feature on January 17.

Included in the week's releases is a one-part comedy, "Them Was the Good Old Days," featuring Kate Price, Harry Fisher, John T. Kelly; "A Telegraphic Tangle," a one-reel comedy by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, and a Broadway Star Feature, "The Secret Seven," produced by William Humphrey and featuring Leo Delany, Carolyn Birch, Harry Northrup, Rose Tapley, Templer Saxe and Director Humphrey.

"Them Was the Good Old Days," scheduled for release January 17, tells the story of a grouchy old man whose antipathy to modern things brings on a dream, and he lives again in the times of a hundred years ago. He then appreciates the comforts of modern civilization. He is forced to wield the axe, shoot a blunderbuss, and is injured by an automobile which runs away and causes a sensation among the people of that time. He is about to be burned at the stake, when Indians capture him and he is again threatened. His dream ends and he is perfectly satisfied that the old days were not so good, after all.

Scene from "Them Was the Good Old Days" (Vitagraph).

The story was produced by C. Jay Williams from the scenario by Mark Swan, and the three Vitagraph comedians, Kate Price, Harry Fisher and John T. Kelly, give a good account of themselves.

"A Telegraphic Tangle," a one-part comedy, with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, is scheduled for release on January 21. It is a story of a man who has a night out against the wishes of his wife. When she looks for him the next morning, she calls up various friends, all of whom admit that the husband had spent the night at each particular house. Another excuse is given that all of the party spent the night in jail, and they produce a policeman to corroborate the story. The policeman gets some graft from it and calmly announces that he has been sent by the magistrate to collect the fine. The husband at the close is a sadder but wiser man.

"The Secret Seven," released January 22, is a Broadway Star Feature in three parts, and is a Secret Service play of exciting episodes, produced under the direction of William Humphrey. The Secret Seven are a band of counterfeiters. A Secret Service man and his friend, an Italian doctor, disguise themselves and spy on the law-breakers. The doctor finds his sweetheart allied with the band. A wedding, jealousy and hate form a basis for the interesting incidents that occur. In the cast are William Humphrey, Leo Delany, Harry Northrup, Carolyn Birch, Rose Tapley and Templer Saxe.

Adolf Philipp with World Film

Actor-Producer Signs Agreement to Appear in a Number of Pictureplays.

LEWIS J. SELZNICK has reached an agreement with Adolf Philipp, actor, author, producer, composer and impresario (the German George M. Cohan), to appear personally in motion pictures under the banner of the World Film Corporation, in all his famous successes, including "Alma, Where Do You Live?" "The Midnight Girl," "Auction Pinochle," "New York Life," "The Happiest Man in New York," "New York at Night," "A New York Brewer," "Two Lots in the Bronx" and "My Shadow and I." The first release has been decided upon, but Mr. Selznick is not yet ready to announce it.

Adolf Philipp.

In all, Adolf Philipp and his brother Paul have acquired the rights to more than 200 foreign plays, including the works of Delmar, Beaumarchais, Fuler, Daudet, Colombi, Grimm, Kaiser, Jensen, Rameau and Sardou. Altogether more than forty foreign authors are represented, among them being the names of those whose dramas have pleased the theater-goers of the great cities of the continent and which have also scored heavily when produced in American theaters.

For a number of years Mr. Philipp has been one of the most prominent figures in the American dramatic world, producing musical and dramatic hits which have received high praise from critics and have scored long runs in Broadway theaters. In this connection it is interesting to note that Mr. Philipp, with unusual modesty for a prominent impresario, has up to the present time kept his own dramatic and literary ability behind the nom-de-plumes of Paul Herve and Jean Briquet. These "two successful authors" had risen to the dizzy heights of fame based on such international musical plays as "Alma," "Adele," and "The Midnight Girl," before Mr. Philipp was cornered and finally admitted that he himself was practically the author of these productions.

A special staff of directors has been engaged by the Shubert Film Corporation which will do the actual filming of Mr. Philipp's productions, releasing them through the World Film Corporation, to superintend the making of the features. Contracts have already been signed with several noted stars to appear at the head of companies remarkable for their general strength and balance.

Helen, a Circus Rider

Kalem's Railroad Heroine Introduces "Russian Drag" and Other Surprises in Forthcoming "Hazards."

HELEN GIBSON has been withholding a secret from photoplay fans. While she has been going through episode after episode of the "Hazards of Helen," performing thrilling railroad feats, it has been unusupected that the daring actress is equally adept as an equestrienne. This hidden fact came to light recently on the arrival of Hamilton Smith, Kalem's new western general manager at the California studio, when he learned that Miss Gibson had gained considerable fame in the sawdust arena before entering upon picture work. As a result it has been decided to include riding exploits in the forthcoming "Hazards" wherever practicable and in keeping with the demands of the story.

Helen Gibson Doing the "Russian Drag."

In a "Hazard" soon to be released Helen introduces the "Russian drag," the feat shown in the accompanying illustration. The "Russian drag" is not, as its name might imply, a new dancing step, but the title is the circus form for the feat of standing astride two racing horses. A dangerous effort even under circus conditions, Helen is called upon to undergo even greater risks in the picture, since she must wear the encumbering clothes of ordinary life and ride without the steadying aid of reins. The "Russian drag" is attempted by few circus riders, and has never before been shown on the screen. It is only one of the daredevil exploits on horseback which Helen promises to add to her usual railroad stunts in the forthcoming "Hazards."

The Kalem California studio at which the railroad pictures are produced is at present the scene of unusual activity and there are rumors that numerous additions to the company and other strengthening moves may be expected in the near future. The railroad equipment has been increased by the purchase of several new passenger coaches of the types used in transcontinental travel. Negotiations are also under way for the purchase of another engine in addition to the now famous "3203" that has played its part in so many thrilling railroad pictures. In the past Kalem has leased additional equipment when needed for the "Hazards," but with the plans for increased producing activity it has been deemed wise to double the present equipment by purchase outright.

ROBERT HARRON IN THE EAST.

Robert Harron, co-star of the Triangle-Fine Arts play, "The Missing Link," and featured with Mae Marsh in "Hoodoo Ann," came east during the holidays on the sad errand of bringing to New York the body of his brother for burial. Charles Harron was killed Christmas eve as the result of a Fine Arts automobile turning turtle at the corner of one of the principal downtown streets of Los Angeles. He was a year older than Robert and had been his inseparable companion ever since D. W. Griffith brought the young actor out to the west coast. Mr. Harron stated that production at the Griffith studio is now at its busiest. The new Griffith twelve-reeler, formerly called "The Mother and the Law," occupies buildings covering several city blocks, and the ten Triangle companies are likewise working with intense energy.

Rothapfel to Direct Knickerbocker

Premier Exhibitor Expects to Make Many Changes and Great Things Are Looked For.

BEGINNING Monday, January 9, and continuing to Friday, January 14, inclusive, the Knickerbocker theater, where Triangle films have been showing, will be dark. The eclipse will come to an end with Saturday, January 15, when a new regime will begin with the premier exhibitor, Samuel L. Rothapfel, in complete charge.

Mr. Rothapfel has been invited to take the management of the Knickerbocker theater by H. E. Aitken, president of the Triangle Corporation. Mr. Aitken said, in speaking to a representative of the Moving Picture World, that Mr. Rothapfel had been invited to take charge "in order that the theater may have the benefit of his experience and under his guidance become a true model Triangle theater."

Mr. Rothapfel was immersed in work when a representative of the Moving Picture World called upon him in his office in the Times Building.

"I have a very good opinion of Triangle films," said Mr. Rothapfel, "and I believe that they are worthy of the best presentation I can give them. I am of course going to make some changes. For one thing the show will be continuous. In the second place music will play its proper part, which means that it will be a very essential part of the performance. I will have an orchestra of twenty-five pieces. The orchestra consists of men of my own selection and men who are experienced in the work which I will require of them. The leaders will be Hugo Riesenfeld, who conducted Lasky's Carmen at Boston; M. L. Lake and W. H. Furst. They will all work under my constant personal direction. I will compose and select the music for all Triangle plays. There will be a complete staff of copyists for the work of supplying the scores. A splendid organ will be installed by the Wurlitzer Company. While there are certain physical handicaps in the present state of the Knickerbocker theater, I will do my very best to please its patrons. The opening night I think will furnish proof of my enthusiasm for my work. In the matter of prices I want to say that there will be some seats held at $2, but the prevailing prices will be much lower, with 50 cents top."

Work on the Rialto theater, of which Mr. Rothapfel will be the managing director, is progressing rapidly, but no definite date for the formal opening can be given to the public at this time.

A marvellous change for the better may be expected at the Knickerbocker on and after January 15.

An Exhibitor Elected Alderman

GEORGE HILKEMEIER, a brother and partner of the well known Brooklyn exhibitor, William Hilkemeier, has been elected to the office of Alderman from the Sixtieth District, Brooklyn, which is situated in what used to be known as Old Williamsburgh.

Geo. Hilkemeier.

Mr. Hilkemeier has entered the political field only within the last two or three years, but his popularity soon brought him to the front and he won out in the Democratic primaries by a decisive majority. The Sixtieth District being normally Democratic, Mr. Hilkemeier won "in a walk." He and his brother have been the motion picture pioneers in the Eastern District of Brooklyn, where at one time they owned half a dozen theaters. Their first theater was located on Broadway, Brook lyn E. D.

Alderman Hilkemeier says that he will do all in his power to help the moving picture men if occasion demands it.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Federal Censorship of Moving Pictures.

THE tendency of the federal government towards paternalism is, perhaps, more strikingly shown by the attitude of the House Committee on Education towards moving pictures at the present time than by any other action at any time. The board in question, if the members require the knowledge, need not go far to find out that federal censorship does not preclude state censorship, and that the latter can still be improved (?) by concurrent municipal censorship. And with three possible concurrent censorships we shall have the moving picture finally censored out of business.

This censorship craze over the moving picture is really so indefensible that it should be laughed out of court. More especially will this apply to federal censorship, which the Chicago Tribune, in a recent editorial under the heading "National 'Movie' Censorship," refers to as follows:

A bill is now under consideration in the house committee on education to establish a federal board of moving picture censorship. It is reported the disposition of the committee is to recommend the measure for passage.

We haven't a doubt of it. What is our American system of local government to a congressional committee infected with a passion for moral reform?

But the committee should not content itself with so minor a matter as protecting the youth and suggestible adults of Kokomo and Kalamazoo from the contagion of wicked films. There are many careless communities that allow dogs to run at large. The committee should frame a federal law against this evil. Garbage disposal is deplorably inefficient in many towns. We need a uniform national statute on this subject to save the health of unheeding citizenship. We regret to note that the policy of segregation of vice is still adhered to in many cities. The committee should see to it that a national law brings these communities to a sense of their error. Or, perhaps, the committee believes segregation is the better policy, in which case a law should be recommended imposing segregation on all communities.

The field of usefulness opened up to the committee on education and to congress on the lines of regulation governing the moving picture censorship measure and the Mann white slave act is practically unlimited. If zealously cultivated under the guidance of the innumerable reform associations, groups, committees, etc., we eventually shall have a perfectly standardized continent, disciplined and ordered from Washington (with federal prisons as common as post offices), and we can then dispense entirely with the bother of local legislation and the expense of local administration. Great is moral reform by federal legislation. We cannot keep our own door steps swept. Let Washington do it.

Chicago Theatrical Manager Sees Boon in Pictures.

Harry J. Powers, the veteran manager of Powers theater, this city, is by no means pessimistic over the outlook for the drama in Chicago, nor is he fearful of the competition of moving pictures. Unlike many of his managerial colleagues, he actually sees in moving pictures and their present vogue a boon to histrionism and to theatrical business. Speaking of the business of the past year in Chicago's first-class theaters, he classes it as one of the best in the last ten years.

"Never in the history of the stage has theatergoing been so great—in fact, it is almost universal," says Mr. Powers. "This age is witnessing a craving for amusement as essential for the masses as the necessities of life. The advent of motion pictures is to be credited with this to a considerable degree. Pantomime, the highest type of histrionic art, was in a decline when the cinema appeared and revitalized it, accomplishing for the theater what the Victrola did for music and the public schools for education, also giving the cause of temperance an impetus by promoting neighborhood theaters, counteracting the vicious poolrooms and saloons.

"It is my firm conviction that the 'movies' have not detracted from the legitimate theater. I consider the expenditure of 10 cents for picture shows in the same proportion as an opposition to the best theaters, as the purchase of newspapers for 1 cent is a competition to the sale of books or high-grade magazines.

"I say 'yes,' to the question: 'Has the year been as prosperous as other years for theaters of the first class?' Taking the downtown houses as a basis, and including in this analysis $2 'movies'—as 'The Birth of a Nation' brought this about by its long engagement at the Illinois theater and its current run at the Colonial—I feel I am within reason in asserting that 1915 has been one of the best years Chicago has had in a decade."

Sol L. Lesser Purchases U. S. Rights to "Ne'er-Do-Well."

Sol L. Lesser, of San Francisco, returned late last week to his home city, where, after a few days' sojourn, he will remove his family to New York, where they will reside during his exploitation of "The Ne'er-Do-Well," the big Selig photodrama written by Rex Beach.

Mr. Lesser was in Chicago the past week and succeeded in purchasing all the United States rights to "The Ne'er-Do-Well" from William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, for the lump sum of $150,000. It is said that the deal was consummated between Mr. Selig and Mr. Lesser within five minutes' time. Mr. Lesser slipped into Chicago, visited the Selig projection parlors, saw an exhibition of the great drama and then called upon Mr. Selig.

"What is your price for the United States rights to 'The Ne'er-Do-Well'?" asked Mr. Lesser, addressing Mr. Selig.

"One Hundred and fifty thousand dollars," was Mr. Selig's prompt reply.

"I'll take it," said Lesser, and the deal was immediately closed.

Mr. Lesser says it is the biggest deal he has ever "pulled," and he believes that "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is the greatest picture in American history, with the exception of "The Birth of a Nation."

"I consider that 'The Ne'er-Do-Well' fully merits the title of 'masterpiece'," said Mr. Lesser after the deal was closed.

"The Ne'er-Do-Well" has already been shown for two weeks at Clune's theater, Los Angeles, and many have been turned away at every presentation.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Readers will be interested to learn that Thomas Santschi, one of Selig's well-known stars, worked at one time in a glass manufacturing company in Kokomo, Ind. This news leaked out when Mr. Santschi recently gave an interview in which he stated that he was thoroughly acquainted with every detail of plate-glass making. It was many years ago since Mr. Santschi was a glass worker, but now that he has gained celebrity before the camera the people of Kokomo are proud to claim him as a native son.

* * *

The old veteran exhibitor, George H. Hines, was in the city recently from South Bend, Ind., where he runs the big Auditorium theater, and purchased two new Edison machines from Frank Hough, general manager of the Kleine Optical Company. George also paid a visit to the Kimball Organ Company, this city, and contracted for the latest Kimball organ, at a cost of $15,000. George states that although he has a big "Bartola Orchestra" he needed a large organ for organ recitals to make his musical features still more pronounced. The Auditorium seats 1,650 people. My best wishes for a banner business for 1916 go out to my old friend George and his estimable wife.

* * *

W. G. Grieve, owner of the Empire theater, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada, visited the World office while in the city last week. Mr. Grieve and his wife and baby are taking a vacation which will last about six weeks, during which time they will visit Detroit, Buffalo, New York and other American cities. The Empire theater seats 300. An admission of 15 cents is charged for four reels of General Film service evenings and the same price for five reels at matinees. Mr. Grieve stated that business at the Empire in 1915 was better than it ever had been during the five years which he has owned the theater, and that the moving picture business in general in western Canada was good that year. In 1914, Mr. Grieve stated, business was so poor that it was necessary to add vaudeville to the program, but that he is now running a straight moving picture program. Brandon has a population of about 18,000. Mr. Grieve has been a subscriber to the World ever since he became an exhibitor, which was six years ago.

* * *

J. E. Willis, formerly division manager of the Middle West for the General Film Company, has been appointed manager of the Chicago branch office and manager of the western division of the New Film Corporation, with offices at 207 South Wabash avenue. Abe Warner is president of the corporation, A. S. Aronson vice-president and treasurer and H. M. Warner secretary. The head offices are at 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York City.

* * *

E. L. Iliffe, for three years treasurer of the Palace Music Hall, on Clark street, and for two years treasurer of the Colonial theater on Randolph street, has been appointed acting house treasurer of the New Strand theater, Wabash avenue, this city. Mr. Iliffe has had eleven years' experience in the capacity mentioned. He informed this office that Warde Johnston, in charge of the orchestra at the Strand, and E. C. Divine, president, spent two days in Indianapolis getting the Strand theater, in that city, in readiness for opening early this year.

* * *

News has been received at the Selig Polyscope Company's offices here that Miss Kathlyn Williams, Thomas Santschi, Wheeler Oakman and Miss Bessie Eyton received many thousands of votes in a popularity contest recently concluded in the British Isles. This quartet of Selig stars is reported to be extremely popular in Europe.

* * *

George H. Baird, a prominent business man in Chicago, and well known in railroad circles, died suddenly of pneumonia at his home in this city about a week ago. Mr. Baird took a great interest in the moving picture business and was a lover of moving pictures. Among his minor enterprises he was a stockholder and director of the Photoplay Releasing Company, this city, of which A. M. Gollos is president, George N. Gollos vice-president and F. E. Patterson secretary and treasurer.

* * *

I am in receipt of a handsome booklet, entitled "The Photoplay Review," published in Grand Rapids, Mich., by the Hamilton Publishing Company and devoted to the interests of the Majestic Gardens, the Strand, the Orpheum, the Idle Hour and the Monroe Original theaters. The booklet has valuable information for moving picture patrons of the theaters mentioned and timely announcements of attractions at each house.

* * *

I learn from a clipping in the Roundup Record, of Roundup, Mont., that George P. Hamilton is at present at work on a three-reel feature now being produced at that point by the Century Film Corporation. The film calls for sensational displays of western horsemanship, in which Charlie Mulhall, in the character of the bandit, "Lefty Mull," is displaying his well-known prowess as a daredevil rider. The picture will be entitled "Dot's Roundup," in which Miss Dot Farley is being featured in the role of the daughter of the sheriff of Musselshell County, of which Roundup is the leading town. Bud Byrd and Mose Ranger, riders of roundup fame, also take part in the production. The studio of the corporation is almost completed in Roundup.

* * *

An International News Service dispatch from Indianapolis conveys the news that Miss Olive Zebring, pianist of the Royal theater, that city, was instrumental in avoiding a panic caused by a fire in the operating room, one day last week. Miss Zebring played inspiring airs while the patrons marched out, and waited so long that she barely got out of the burning building safely. Wilbur Smith, operator, jumped down 10 feet and severely injured his spine. The interior of the Royal was destroyed.

* * *

Al. Ringling, the famous circus man, died at his home in Baraboo, Wis., on New Year's Day. Mr. Ringling had suffered from heart failure for nearly three years, which was contracted from excitement caused by a fire in the city of Cleveland when he had charge of the Ringling circus, which had just come into the city and was caught in the flames of a burning lumberyard. He has been ailing ever since. The last year of his life he devoted to the construction of the beautiful Al. Ringling theater in Baraboo, a structure devoted to moving pictures, at a cost of $175,000. The house was opened on October 23, and Mr. Ringling billed all the surrounding towns and cities within fifty miles. His will leaves his widow, among other valuable property, this new theater in which he took such pride.

* * *

William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, accompanied by Colin Campbell, leading director of productions in Los Angeles, and G. Pollack, technician of construction, paid a flying visit last week to St. Louis, Nashville, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., to look over the grounds made famous in the pages of "The Crisis," Winston Churchill's great story of St. Louis in ante-bellum days, as a preliminary to the production of that story in moving pictures. Thomas Santschi, Bessie Eyton, Wheeler Oakman and a star cast will appear in the leading characters.

* * *

The engagement of Miss Gertrude Spoor, daughter of George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, and Lieut. Douglas L. Weart of the United States Engineer Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Weart, of this city, was announced one day last week by the parents of the future bride. The date of the wedding will be fixed later.

* * *

At the meeting of the national executive committee at the Hotel La Salle, Mr. Herrington drew the attention of exhibitors to the fact that a page has been set aside in the Moving Picture World especially for the news sent in by exhibitors in all parts of the country regarding their business or local organizations of exhibitors. Both Mr. Herrington and Charles H. Phillips emphasized the importance of exhibitors sending in some news every week, especially touching on the vital question of organization. It will be a good thing also if exhibitors in various sections would stir up interest in the coming national convention in Chicago by sending in news items concerning the progress made in their respective territories. It all lies with the exhibitors to make the Chicago convention the greatest yet held by the trade.

* * *

The Chicago ordinance advocated by educators and civic organizations for permission to exhibit moving pictures in churches, schools, etc., by unlicensed operators was defeated by the Building Committee of the Council on Friday, January 8, by a close vote. The chief opposition to the ordinance before the committee was voiced by T. J. Reynolds, business agent of the Chicago Moving Picture Machine Operators, Local No. 110, I. A. T. S. E., and Charles Wheeler, representing the Chicago Federation of Labor.

* * *

When "The Birth of a Nation" closes at the Colonial on January 15, it is the intention to take the great photoplay spectacle to Australia and New Zealand, and thence en tour through India, China, Japan and the city of Manila. George Bowles, who has managed the presentations at the Colonial, has received instructions from headquarters to this effect and to get himself in readiness for the round-the-world trip. Another international tour will be made by the Griffith film at the same time, during which the largest cities in the British Isles, the Scandinavian peninsula, Denmark, Holland and probably Egypt and South Africa will be visited. Manager Bowles and his assistants will sail from Vancouver, B. C., and it is the intention to give daily presentations during the voyage.

* * *

The "Movie" Ball at the Coliseum New Year's Eve turned out to be a frost and a fake, as was pre-announced in my brevities in several previous issues. About 1,500 people were present, chiefly women and girls who hoped to get a look at the numerous film stars who had been promised. At midnight the band men demanded their money; but none was forthcoming, as only $400 was taken in at the box office, so that the dancers had neither music nor film stars for their money. The ball became a mob and the mob turned into a riot, which was suppressed by the timely arrival of the police. It is said that representatives of Mary Pickford attached the box-office receipts because the management had used her name unwarrantedly in connection with the ball. On complaint of one of the purchasers of a ticket, Perry E. Grosse, brother of Promoter Grosse, and F. Henderson, box-office cashier at the Coliseum, were arrested but were afterward released. In the issue of October 30, 1915, a brevity in these columns showed that one Perry E. Grosse, president of the Premier Film Company, 143 North Dearborn street, had been arraigned before Judge Heap in the South Clark street court on the charge of taking money under false pretenses. On that occasion three complainants —Anna Judge, Bessie Thurston and R. W. Headstrum—appeared against him and alleged that Grosse had swindled them out of money ranging from $5 to $55, after he had induced them to join his school for moving picture actors. The fake ball was given under the auspices of the Loyal Fraternal Order of Screeners, the leading spirits in the exploitation being B. B. Grosse, chairman of the ball; J. R. Mills, treasurer, and H. W. Leek, secretary.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

Starting Things in Los Angeles

Attacks on the Motion Picture Industry Arouse Producers to Action—Meetings and Conferences Held—Scandal Mongers Denounced and Legal Investigation or Prosecution Invited by Picture Men.

FOR some time the film men have realized, and have had to realize, for their own benefit, that the city of Los Angeles does not appreciate its motion picture industry. This is an astounding statement to make—astonishing when you consider that this industry brings to the city approximately $20,000,000 a year and work for 20,000 people. It looks however from past experiences and especially from recent activities that such a complaint would be justified. Producers complain of everlasting interference from the city with petty regulations; permits for this and that; interfering with the taking of pictures and the building of sets.

And this is not all! The censorship matter is still on the boards and there is no real immediate action being taken—the meddlers still try to cut the essence from the films.

The last kick—the straw that fractured the back of the camel, is the heralded and talked of vicious and unjust attacks on the moral conditions in the studios by a publicity-hungering clergyman in the "chemically pure" city. This ambitious man need look about his own neighborhood, if it is in the confines of the Angelic City—and he will not have to go out to the pure air of the studios to rake up filth. But we are not here to scold the clergy or pick to pieces the city in which we live.

Picture Men Hold Meeting.

